LAMBERT'S LINEAGE

By Epes W. Sargent

Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure

Mollie was waiting for him in the hall. "What did he say?" she whispered eagerly.

"What the governor of North Carolina said to the other fellow," began Preston Lambert. "Then I said I wanted to marry you, and he put the bottle back in the cellaret."

"Then he won't let you marry me?" she said wistfully.

"Well, he didn't exactly say me nay," admitted Lambert, "but he made one prohibitive condition. I've got to get a family."

"A family?" she echoed.

"Just that. I suggested that he was a trifle premature, but he explained that what he wanted was back numbers, not future issues."

"Oh!" wailed Mollie. "Why did he ever find out that he was a direct descendant of William the Conqueror?"

"Pure cussedness," suggested Lambert. "Bill didn't hand down any money or titles that reached this far. It was Jabez Gordon who did most of that work."

"Grandpa Gordon was awfully poor when he married grandma," she assented. "It's funny they never thought about William the Conqueror before they got married."

"When you're poor," declared Lambert, "it doesn't matter much whether Adam or Bill Smith stands at the head of your family tree."

"I hate family trees," breathed the girl vehemently. "I wish dad never had heard of his genealogy."

"Oh, well," said Lambert cheerfully, "we can't chop the infernal tree down. I'll have to study forestry and learn how to grow one."

"Did he say you could marry me if you did?" she asked joyously.

"He said that for the sake of the race he wanted his daughter to marry a man as nobly born as herself. He sort of intimated that he had an eye on an English duke, with a pedigree as long as a snake's tail."

"I won't be a duchess," Mollie protested. "I want to be Mrs. Preston Lambert."

"And so you shall," he declared. "I'll have a family tree as tall as a cocoanut backed up here on a truck inside of three months."

"It took pa three years and a half to get his together," she dissented.

"That's all right," laughed Lambert, stooping to kiss her. "I'm a wonder when I get started."

Mollie followed him to the door and watched him swing down the street. Then she went into the now deserted library and gained some consolation from making faces at the elaborate design whereby the Gordon ancestry was traced in a direct line to royal blood.

More than one small fortune had been spent upon the tree, and it was the pride of Robert Gordon's life. The millions he derived from his father had been nothing to him until this ancestral line had been discovered. He had been merely Jabez Gordon's son. Gordon the elder had been a "Forty-niner" and had left vast stores of mineral wealth to his son and a faint recollection of his grandfather.

Robert Gordon's respect for ancestry amounted almost to a mania, and his first attention upon becoming the heir to the fortune was given to work on his historical records.

None of them had been successful until Gottfried Shackmeister had picked up the scent, and in due course delivered to his client letters and other documents to prove that the Gordons were a branch of an old English line.

It had not only taken him more than three years, but also involved traveling far and wide. Gordon, however, had not grudged either time or money.

It was less than three months before Lambert sought a formal interview with Gordon.

"I have that tree you wanted," he announced lightly as he was ushered into Gordon's presence.

"Tree?" was the puzzled exclamation. "I don't remember any conversation I have had with you on the matter of trees, Mr. Lambert. I leave those matters to the landscape gardener."

"Don't you remember," reminded Lambert, "that you said I could not marry Mollie until I had some man whose name has come thundering down the ages to blame my existence upon?"

"I recall saying that it was a duty we Gordons owed our race to marry only into families as ancient as our own," he corrected.

"Well," continued Lambert flippantly, "this is it!" He placed upon the table a small handbag, from which he extracted old volumes, time stained parchments, papyrus and what not.

"I find," he rattled on, "that I am directly descended from the Pharaohs."

Gordon rose angrily. "This is an insult," he stormed, "to come here with this absurd collection of forgeries which you presume to tell me are records dating back more than 2,000 years and collected by you within three months. Will you leave or shall I have to call the butler?"

"Hadn't better call Peters," urged Lambert smoothly. "I hate to do it, but I want to marry Mollie. Let me marry her and I'll ignore the fact that my family runs farther back than yours."

"Never!" shouted Gordon. "I would see her dead first!"

"On your own head be it then," said Lambert impersonally. "Here goes for a confession. I made these records myself."

"I know you did," almost screamed Gordon, "and you come here and have the effrontery to compare them to my own authenticated documents."

"I made some of these too," said Lambert quietly.

There was something in his manner that bore conviction. Gordon dropped into a chair. "How?" he gasped feebly.

"Do you remember," he asked, "that some years ago I was suspended from college for a hazing scrape?"

"Yes," whispered Gordon.

"Well, the pater shut down on the funds. I did not want to bother my sister (mother was dead, you know), and I earned some money writing for the papers.

"I could not get a regular job, but I picked up a dollar or two from the Sunday editions. One day they put me on the track of a man who was supposed to have forged a manuscript. He was not the culprit, but he was sorry for me, and gave me a good story on how it was done.

"He let me make a fake script myself, and somehow I seemed to be more than usually clever at it. It isn't a part of my history I'm proud of, but I went into partnership. Remember, I had been brought up to regard myself as the heir of my father's money and had not learned to work. For three months I had starved more often than I had eaten.

"This man—Shackmeister—was working on that selfsame tree at the time, and I wrote that letter of William's myself. I soaked the paper in acid, colored it with coffee and all that sort of thing. Here's one," producing a paper, "just like it. You can see for yourself."

Gordon examined the paper, comparing it with the one in the frame of which he had been so proud. When he turned he had aged ten years. Lambert was sorry for him.

"It's too bad," he said as he stepped over to the bowed figure. "I never would have told you, but I could not see Mollie's happiness—and mine—spoiled by your pride in a lot of manufactured history."

"It was my own fault," groaned the broken man. "I set up for myself an idol, placing it before my daughter's happiness, and upon my own shoulders my selfishness has recoiled."

He pressed a button and the well trained butler presently entered noiselessly. "Ask Miss Gordon to come to the library," said Mollie's father. Then to Lambert, "You won't tell her, will you?"

"Not unless you think I ought to."

"I must brave it out," said Gordon with a wan smile. "Let it lie a secret between ourselves."

Quietly Lambert moved to the fireplace, and when Mollie came in only a white ash over the glowing coals told of the burning of a tree.

The Truth Beautifully Told.

A miniature painter had been employed to paint a portrait of Mrs. Gladstone in her old age. It was intended that it should be a present for Mr. Gladstone on one of his birthdays. Mrs Gladstone was particularly well pleased with the portrait, but some of the grandchildren had opinions of their own about it. One of the younger grandsons drew Mr. Gladstone aside and asked him if he did not think that the portrait was somewhat flattering. "It isn't much like grandmother, is it?" he asked. "My boy," replied Mr. Gladstone in his beautiful voice, "it is the truth beautifully told; that's all.—Dundee Advertiser.

The 1905 Concord State Fair.

Five years of success, during which it has paid out $50,000 in purses and premiums and has expended an equal amount upon its splendid grounds and buildings, have made the Concord State Fair an institution of which the whole of New Hampshire is justly proud.

The 1905 Fair will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 12, 13, 14 and 15, and its managers guarantee that it will be bigger and better in every way than any of its predecessors. Ten Governors of New England and Southern States have promised to attend on Wednesday and address the people.

Other features of the program upon this and the remaining days will include the usual horse racing and sports, balloon ascensions, novel acts of daring, skill and fun, and a complete Wild West Show of 50 people, all absolutely free to those who have passed the main gate.

The exhibits in every department will excel the fine records of past years and there will be more Midway. Children will be admitted free on Tuesday and members of the G. A. R. on Friday. A parade of decorated teams and automobiles will be a special feature of Wednesday, and a $700 free-for-all of Thursday.

THE SENSE OF BEAUTY.

Cultivate It by Observing the Sky and the Landscape.

The oldest and readiest means of cultivating the sense of beauty is habitual observation of the heavens, for which the only things needed are the open sight of the sky and the observing eye. The heavens are always declaring "the glory of God." The noblest poetry of all nations celebrates the majesty and splendor of the sky. Psalmist, prophet and artist draw thence their loftiest teachings. Sun, moon and stars, sunset and sunrise, clouds tossed and torn by wind, floating or driving mists and fogs, snow, rain and the clear blue are all phenomena of the sky which will afford endless delights to him who watches them. The dweller on the prairie or the sea has the best chance at the sky, and the dweller in narrow streets, hemmed in by tall buildings, has the worst. This obstruction of the sight of the sky is one of the grave evils which beset a modern urban population. City people run about at the bottom of deep ditches and often can see only a narrow strip of the heavens. Fortunately the loftiest structures reared by men are not so high but that a moderate open area in the midst of a closely built city will give a prospect of large sections of the heavens. This is one of the great things gained for an urban population by accessible open spaces, such as parks, commons, marshes and reaches or ponds of water.

Next to observation of the sky as a means of developing the sense of beauty comes observation of the landscape. —Charles William Eliot in Critic.

CONGENIAL WORK.

It Is One of the Greatest Factors For Good Health.

Congenial work with mind and hands should be encouraged in all persons for its prophylactic as well as its curative influences. Rest will prove serviceable doubtless in numbers of cases, but its application should be restricted and carefully studied. There are many conditions where absolute rest will not only prove useless, but really harmful. To send a man from an active business life to one of complete inactivity will often prove disastrous, as much so as to prescribe all food for the obese.

The nervous will complain that they do not feel like work. If left to themselves and told to do absolutely nothing, not even to read, they are sure to dwell upon their infirmities and grow thereby morose and hypochondriacal, thus increasing their invalidism. The desire for work should be encouraged in all conditions and in all classes. If one's interest is aroused even to a slight degree a continuance in the work will develop a desire for occupation. One will never feel like work if one has nothing to do. Work will often accomplish what medicine, however properly applied, will not, for it is not alone that we must earn our bread by the sweat of the brow, but every man and woman should work for the pleasure of it as well as for the health giving, brain expanding results and the benefit of example.—Medical World.

The Eagle on the Dollar.

The figure of the eagle on the dollars of 1[illegible], 1838 and 1839 are exact portraits of a famous American eagle, "Peter, the mint bird." he was called by everybody in Philadelphia, and during his life his fame was equally as great as that of "Old Abe," the Wisconsin war eagle, the latter being really a spring chicken when compared with Peter. Peter was the pet of the Philadelphia mint for many years. Finally he was caught in some of the machinery and had the life jerked out of his body in a jiffy. ENVELOPES.

Why Some of Them Are Colored Blue on the Inside.

"For a very simple reason," was the reply. "One of the most important results in the making of envelopes is to prevent transparency. Many white papers are so transparent that by careful scrutiny the contents of an envelope made of such material may be determined. For instance, let us put a sheet of paper with writing on it into this envelope. We will now seal it and hold it to the light thus. There, you can not only see the bank check, but you can also read many of the words on the sheet of paper. This can be prevented either by getting a thick and high priced envelope which is not transparent or by taking a cheaper grade of paper which is blue on one side. We sell thousands of packages of blue envelopes—that is, envelopes which are blue on the outside—but people do not like them on account of their color. So to get over the difficulty and still make an envelope that will hide the contents and not be high priced the manufacturer uses paper which is blue on one side and white on the other. One factory in this city turns out more than a million of such envelopes daily, and their sale in large cities is enormous." —New York Press.

DRIVING BEHIND OXEN.

Bullock Traveling In India Is Both Common and Comfortable.

"Nowhere else in the world," says Dr. Francis E. Clark in Everybody's Magazine, "is bullock traveling so comfortable and so common, probably, as in some parts of India. The bandy is often fitted up in very comfortable style, and, though the springs might be improved, the comparatively slow pace of the oxen makes them less important to one's comfort.

"The patient little white oxen trot along at a rate of three or four miles an hour, and especially if it is the evening and the refulgent Indian moon is shining down upon you, if the nightingales are singing and the fragrant jasmine is blooming in the hedgerows, you think that India is not so far removed from paradise after all.

"But, after a night of such travel, when you come out in the broad light of disillusioning day upon a collection of filthy mud cabins and see the naked children, hungry and famished, the gaunt specters of men and women munching the uncooked grain dealt out to them by generous hands—in too much of a hurry even to cook the food which they crave—you revise your opinion and make up your mind that India, in famine time, is nearer the inferno than any other country in the world."

PECULIAR FIRES.

The Manner In Which Many Disastrous Blazes Originate.

Dust is a wonderful producer of fires. There have been instances in postoffices where the dust of the mail bags suspended in the rear of a close room exploded with terrible force. Dust explosions are of frequent occurrence in flour and drug mills. The origin of many fires in tailor shops may be traced to the so called dry cleaning of clothes. A rag dipped in naphtha is frequently used in removing grease spots from garments. The rag soaked with inflammable fluid is thrown upon the floor. Rhodes' Scholars Invading Oxford.

London Truth remarked recently that, whatever results may have been effected by the creation of the Rhodes scholarships at Oxford under the will of the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes, there is no doubt that they have advertised that ancient seat of learning all over the world to a most remarkable extent. The scholars themselves of course are of many nationalities and bring many others in their train. Oxford has now a far greater number of foreigners [illegible] in the city than at any time since the earliest period in her history. They seem to come from all parts of the earth—Europe, America, Asia and Africa—but comparatively few of them remain longer than a [illegible] and fewer still [illegible] full academic course. The Speech of the Diplomats.

The tendency among diplomats is toward supplanting the French language with the English. The peace conference at Portsmouth is probably the first great occasion in modern times where western nations were involved when French has not been the official medium of communication, French having taken the place once held by Latin as the international language of record. the formal documents resulting from the Portsmouth conference will take their form in that tongue.

In all probability the [illegible] language of the [illegible] Portsmouth would have been English but for the fact that M. Witte, the Russian envoy, does not speak it fluently. [illegible] at present a knowledge of English is deemed indispensable among officials of the rising generation. [illegible] English is preferred to it in China and Japan. English is [illegible] the chief language of science in minor European countries. The most widely spoken language of the world is destined to become the recognized medium for international communication, and English will probably some day take the place of French as the language of diplomacy. Before it is universally adopted it will doubtless be made phonetic, with the adoption of the continental pronunciation of vowels as the standard.

Wasn't Wholly Convinced.

"Waal," said the old lady, "if the airth is round and goes round, what holds it up?"

"Oh, these learned men say it goes around the sun and that the sun holds it up by virtue of attraction," he replied.

"Waal, if these high larnt men sez the sun holds up the airth, I should like to know what holds the airth up when the sun goes down! That's what's the matter!"

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. THE SENSE OF BEAUTY.

Cultivate It by Observing the Sky and the Landscape.

The oldest and readiest means of cultivating the sense of beauty is habitual observation of the heavens, for which the only things needed are the open sight of the sky and the observing eye. The heavens are always declaring "the glory of God." The noblest poetry of all nations celebrates the majesty and splendor of the sky. Psalmist, prophet and artist draw thence their loftiest teachings. Sun, moon and stars, sunset and sunrise, clouds tossed and torn by wind, floating or driving mists and fogs, snow, rain and the clear blue are all phenomena of the sky which will afford endless delights to him who watches them. The dweller on the prairie or the sea has the best chance at the sky, and the dweller in narrow streets, hemmed in by tall buildings, has the worst. This obstruction of the sight of the sky is one of the grave evils which beset a modern urban population. City people run about at the bottom of deep ditches and often can see only a narrow strip of the heavens. Fortunately the loftiest structures reared by men are not so high but that a moderate open area in the midst of a closely built city will give a prospect of large sections of the heavens. This is one of the great things gained for an urban population by accessible open spaces, such as parks, commons, marshes and reaches or ponds of water.

Next to observation of the sky as a means of developing the sense of beauty comes observation of the landscape. —Charles William Eliot in Critic.

CONGENIAL WORK.

It Is One of the Greatest Factors For Good Health.

Congenial work with mind and hands should be encouraged in all persons for its prophylactic as well as its curative influences. Rest will prove serviceable doubtless in numbers of cases, but its application should be restricted and carefully studied. There are many conditions where absolute rest will not only prove useless, but really harmful. To send a man from an active business life to one of complete inactivity will often prove disastrous, as much so as to prescribe all food for the obese.

The nervous will complain that they do not feel like work. If left to themselves and told to do absolutely nothing, not even to read, they are sure to dwell upon their infirmities and grow thereby morose and hypochondriacal, thus increasing their invalidism. The desire for work should be encouraged in all conditions and in all classes. If one's interest is aroused even to a slight degree a continuance in the work will develop a desire for occupation. One will never feel like work if one has nothing to do. Work will often accomplish what medicine, however properly applied, will not, for it is not alone that we must earn our bread by the sweat of the brow, but every man and woman should work for the pleasure of it as well as for the health giving, brain expanding results and the benefit of example.—Medical World.

The Eagle on the Dollar.

The figure of the eagle on the dollars of 1836, 1838 and 1839 are exact portraits of a famous American eagle, "Peter, the mint bird," he was called by everybody in Philadelphia, and during his life his fame was equally as great as that of "Old Abe," the Wisconsin war eagle, the latter being really a spring chicken when compared with Peter. Peter was the pet of the Philadelphia mint for many years. Finally he was caught in some coining machinery and had the life jerked out of his body in a jiffy. The figure on the coins named above is an exact reproduction of a portrait taken of Peter after he had been stuffed and placed in a glass case in the mint cabinet.

ENVELOPES.

Why Some of Them Are Colored Blue on the Inside.

"For a very simple reason," was the reply. "One of the most important results in the making of envelopes is to prevent transparency. Many white papers are so transparent that by careful scrutiny the contents of an envelope made of such material may be determined. For instance, let us put a sheet of paper with writing on it into this envelope. We will now seal it and hold it to the light thus. There, you can not only see the bank check, but you can also read many of the words on the sheet of paper. This can be prevented either by getting a thick and high priced envelope which is not transparent or by taking a cheaper grade of paper which is blue on one side. We sell thousands of packages of blue envelopes—that is, envelopes which are blue on the outside—but people do not like them on account of their color. So to get over the difficulty and still make an envelope that will hide the contents and not be high priced the manufacturer uses paper which is blue on one side and white on the other. One factory in this city turns out more than a million of such envelopes daily, and their sale in large cities is enormous." —New York Press.

DRIVING BEHIND OXEN.

Bullock Traveling In India Is Both Common and Comfortable.

"Nowhere else in the world," says Dr. Francis E. Clark in Everybody's Magazine, "is bullock travelling so comfortable and so common, probably, as in some parts of India. The bandy is often fitted up in very comfortable style, and, though the springs might be improved, the comparatively slow pace of the oxen makes them less important to one's comfort.

"The patient little white oxen trot along at a rate of three or four miles an hour, and especially if it is the evening and the refulgent Indian moon is shining down upon you, if the nightingales are singing and the fragrant jasmine is blooming in the hedgerows, you think that India is not so far removed from paradise after all.

"But, after a night of such travel, when you come out in the broad light of disillusioning day upon a collection of filthy mud cabins and see the naked children, hungry and famished, the gaunt specters of men and women munching the uncooked grain dealt out to them by generous hands—in too much of a hurry even to cook the food which they crave—you revise your opinion and make up your mind that India, in famine time, is nearer the inferno than any other country in the world."

PECULIAR FIRES.

The Manner In Which Many Disastrous Blazes Originate.

Dust is a wonderful producer of fires. There have been instances in post-offices where the dust of the mail bags suspended in the rear of a close room exploded with terrific force. Dust explosions are of frequent occurrence in flour and drug mills. The origin of many fires in tailor shops may be traced to the so called dry cleaning of clothes. A rag dipped in naphtha is frequently used in removing grease spots from garments. The rag soaked with inflammable fluid is thrown upon the floor. When the shop is closed up and the air is confined the naphtha soaked material will of itself generate heat. Bales of cotton placed in the hold of a ship are often the cause of disastrous fires. Frequently a spark from a cigar finds a resting place in a cotton bale, where it smolders for weeks. The dark hall in tenement houses is the indirect originator of fires. Greasy matting or small heaps of paper [illegible]. A match not ex[tin]guished or a cigarette stub is thrown down, and a blaze results.—Fire and Water.

I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced to use Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles, for I can honestly state I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success."

Wm. F. Dickey, Town Hall Drug Store,

Rhodes' Scholars Invading Oxford.

London Truth remarked recently that, whatever results may have been effected by the creation of the Rhodes scholarships at Oxford under the will of the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes, there is no doubt that they have advertised that ancient seat of learning all over the world to a most remarkable extent. The scholars themselves of course are of many nationalities and bring many others in their train. Oxford has now a far greater number of foreign residents in the city than at any time since the earliest period in her history. They seem to come from all parts of the earth—Europe, America, Asia and Africa—but comparatively few of them remain longer than a [illegible] and fewer still complete the full academic course. This invasion of [illegible] is said to be most unwelcome to the old inhabitants, especially the tradesmen and innkeepers, who complain that the place is overrun by a crowd of outsiders, who would not have been tolerated in the sacred precincts a few years ago. The presumption is that the despised aliens do not spend their money as freely as these dealers could wish or do not have it to spend. It is possible, moreover, that most of them are at the university for purposes of study, a motive which is not much honored by the tradesmen, who prosper upon the idle undergraduate.

"I can argue with any one here," said the pretentious man fiercely. "I can argue."

"Oh, yes, you can argue," said the quiet little man in the corner. "The misfortune is that you can't reason."

The Speech of the Diplomats.

The tendency among diplomats is toward supplanting the French language with the English. The peace conference at Portsmouth is probably the first great occasion in modern times where western nations were involved when French has not been the official medium of communication. French having taken the place once held by Latin as the international language of record, the formal documents resulting from the Portsmouth conference will take final form in that tongue.

In all probability the common language of the plenipotentiaries at Portsmouth would have been English but for the fact that M. Witte, the Russian envoy, does not speak it fluently. Educated Russians speak French, and at present a knowledge of English is deemed indispensable among officials of the rising generation. Orientals find it difficult to master French. English is preferred to it in China and Japan. English is also the chief language of science in minor European countries. The most widely spoken language of the world is destined to become the recognized medium for international communication, and English will probably some day take the place of French as the language of diplomacy. Before it is universally adopted it will doubtless be made phonetic, with the adoption of the continental pronunciation of vowels as the standard.

Wasn't Wholly Convinced.

"Waal," said the old lady, "if the airth is round and goes round, what holds it up?"

"Oh, these learned men say it goes around the sun and that the sun holds it up by virtue of attraction," he replied.

"Waal, if these high larnt men sez the sun holds up the airth, I should like to know what holds the airth up when the sun goes down! That's what's the matter!"

Public is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 246 St. Clair Ave., Columbus, O, writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at Dickey's drug store; price 50c.

The area of the Atlantic ocean is about 40,000,000 square miles.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

William K. Vanderbilt and his wife arrived in Portsmouth Thursday night from Newport, leaving town the next day on their yacht.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Carlton observed the twenty-first anniversary of their marriage Sunday, the 27th, at their home in Milford.

The Wilton High school class of 1890 91 held a reunion at the summer home of L. H. Baldwin. There were eighteen present and a very enjoyable afternoon was passed.

Rumor has it that another season will see a return to The Weirs of the National Universalist Campmeeting association, which formerly held its meetings there. Another meeting that is expected to be a prominent feature at The Weirs another season is the New England convention of the Epworth league.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Young of Hudson celebrated their 25th anniversary Friday evening, Aug. 25. The members of Hudson grange, Echo Rebekah lodge and Hudson lodge, I. O. O. F., the organizations in which they hold membership, were invited.

Sheriff Nathaniel Doane of Hillsborough county, assisted by Deputies L. C. B. Burke and Walter Berry of Manchester, and Frank Ordway of Milford, state liquor inspector, made a general round-up of the resorts in the western part of the county against which there had been complaints for liquor selling. Places in Wilton, New Ipswich, Peterborough and Francestown were searched and alleged evidences of selling, which warranted the placing of the proprietors under arrest, were found in a number of instances.

Mrs Laura Bragg of Hudson one day recently fell down a flight of stairs and was severely injured. Although no bones were broken, she was badly bruised on different parts of her body.

There is no way to maintain the health and strength of mind and body except by nourishment. There is no way to nourish except through the stomach. The stomach must be kept healthy, pure and sweet or the strength will let down and disease will set up. No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, sour risings, rifting, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles that are curable are quickly cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Re-opening of Schools.

On Tuesday morning, September 5, all the schools in town will open for the fall term. A few changes in the teachers from last term's list have taken place, and the following is the complete list:

High, principal—Prof. G. Gordon Newell.

High, assistant—Frederica M. Whitney.

Ninth Grade—Ethel A. Moore.

7th and 8th Grades—Clara M. Smith.

5th and 6th Grades—Charlotte E. Baich.

3d and 4th Grades—Lillian E. Seaver.

1st and 2d Grades—Miss Edith Child.

Centre Schools—Maude E. Miller and Ida M. Lord.

East School—Ethel C. Duncan.

West School—Alice E Cuddihy.

There will be no school in the Pond and Branch Districts, the scholars being transported to the Centre and the West schools.

At the opening of the school year, with this term, all children of school age are expected to enter school, as this is the only time during the year when children who never before have attended school are privileged to enter. This is a rule in grade work which is very important and must be strictly carried out.

There will be an examination for entrance to the High school at the High school room Thursday of this week at 9 a.m. All who desire to enter this school the coming term and have not previously taken or completed these examinations, will be present at this time.

Family Reunion.

On Tuesday, a party of the descendants of the late Samuel and Mary Wright Tuttle, once a prosperous family of the old High Range district, in this town, visited the old farm at the foot of Tuttle mountain. The party consisted of Mrs. William N. Tuttle, a sprightly lady of 80 years, her granddaughter, Mrs. Leroy Vose, of Cambridge, Mass., grandson, Wilbur Downes, great granddaughter, Emily Vose, Mrs. Mary Tuttle Buchanan of Saxon's River, Vt., Mrs. Josephine Tuttle Colby and daughter, Mabel, of White River Junction, Vt., John D. Tuttle and wife of Marlboro, Edgar H. Tuttle and wife of Dublin, H. B. Tuttle, wife and son, Edson, George E. Hastings and wife, Leander Emery and wife, Antrim.

The first point of interest was the Branch cemetery, where the bodies of four generations rest; next, the old farm, the old buildings were burned in 1873. But the rocks, the orchard and the mountain will resist the marks of time for many years. Many of the party climbed the mountain and were well repaid by the view to be obtained there. A basket picnic was held at noon, which was very much enjoyed by all.

Jennie Nesmith of Keene, the veteran teacher, who taught her first school in this district in 1861, accompanied the party.

Conveyance was by teams driven by Morris Burnham and Harry Eaton, who added much to the pleasure by their careful driving and pleasant attentiveness.

Nashua Fair September 4-5-6-7.

Reduced Rates via Boston & Maine Railroad.

Labor Day, September 4th, the Nashua Fair Association will open its annual exhibition at the Nashua Fair Grounds. Harness racing has taken on a new boom this year in New Hampshire, and the lovers of this sport can witness some rare racing. Among the many attractions will be the usual complete display of products, manufactured and domestic articles will also be on exhibition. The entries are made and the liberal premium list has attracted the best. The amusement portion will be the best yet. The "Pike," always a special feature will be bigger and better than ever before. Vaudeville performances free to all will be given every afternoon A family of trained bears, which can do everything but talk, are of sufficient interest to be a show in themselves. Monday, Labor Day, a Fireman's Muster will take place, assembling competing companies from many New England towns, and at the close of every afternoon's program a ballon ascension and parachute jump will occur. Tuesday, the 5th, will be Children's Day, and Wednesday will be Governor's Day. On Wednesday, a woman will be shot from a cannon suspended 1000 feet in mid air, and on Thursday, the 7th, and closing day, as an added attraction to the regular program, two first class base ball teams will play. Every evening during the fair a grand pyrotechnic display will be given.

Round trip tickets including admission at reduced rates via the Boston & Maine Railroad, good going and returning only on above dates will be on sale at this station and other principal stations on the Boston & Maine Railroad. For details regarding stations, rates, etc., and time of trains, see Boston & Maine posters or inquire of Agent.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitutation and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Way to Treat Hay Fever

No Stomach Dosing, Just Breathe Hyomei—Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

W. F. Dickey is recommending to his customers as a cure for hay fever, Hyomei.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms, the sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomei, and the discoverer of the remedy professes to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attack and to stop the progress of the disease, even in the most chronic forms.

A Hamlin, of Westford, Mass., writes "Hyomei cured me of hay fever in one week's time. I consider it a duty to tell others who suffer from this disease."

This endorsement is only one of hundreds that have been received by the proprietors of Hyomei, and W. F. Dickey offers to refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it, is the strongest proof that can be given as to the confidence he has in Hyomei's power to cure hay fever. The complete outfit costs but $1.00, while extra bottles can be procured for 50 cents.

Never in the way, no trouble to carry, easy to take, pleasant and never failing in results are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Gladstone & Paine were agents for ——————; we mustn't tell names. We wanted 'em. Paine was painting his big Colonial house. Said it took 10 gallons of white for the trim.

We sent him 10 gallons and said; if you get it all on, no pay; if you have any left, return it and pay for the rest. Agreed.

He returned four gallons and took the agency. Four or five years ago. He knows now that his old paint was and is adulterated; that's why it took ten gallons to equal six of ours.

Hay Fever for 27 Years.

Well Known New England Woman Cured of Hay Fever. Cure Was Lasting.

The thousands of discouraged people who dread the approach of summer because they have hay fever and cannot find any relief from it, will read with interest and gratitude the following statement from Helen S. Williams of Mansfield, Mass.

"For 27 years, from the month of August until heavy frost, I have been afflicted with hay fever, growing worse and worse each year, until of late years I was unable to attend to my work during that period.

"Last summer I fortunately gave Hyomei a trial, and I am happy to say that it entirely cured me, and I have had no occurrence of the disease since."

This letter is only one of many that have come to the proprietors of Hyomei, and the results following this treatment have been so remarkable that it is proposed at the annual convention of hay fever sufferers to recommend Hyomei.

By breathing the germ-killing and healing balsams of Hyomei anyone can have at any moment of the day, either in their home or office, a climate like that of the White Mountains.

The complete outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. W. F. Dickey agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without benefit.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Hillsborough.

Your petitioner, J. E. Perkins of Antrim, in said County, executor of the estate of Harriet Preston, late of said Antrim deceased, respectfully represents that the personal estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the demands against the same; that the said deceased at the time of her death was seized of certain real estate situate in said Antrim, containing about ½ acre, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the southwest corner of the premises on the highway, and running thence easterly by land formerly owned by Luther Curtis to land of Silas Taft; thence northerly and westerly by said Taft's land to the highway; thence southerly by said highway to bounds first mentioned. The above described real estate being the homestead of the late Harriet Preston, and situate in North Branch village, and that the same may be more than sufficient for the payment of said demands, but it is so situated that a part cannot be sold without injury to the persons interested therein. Wherefore he prays that he may have license to sell at public auction, or private sale, the whole of said real estate agreeably to the laws of said State.

Dated the 15th day of August, A. D. 1905.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Backache, "The Blues"

Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women—Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some uterine derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Surely such testimony is convincing.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell all suffering women of the relief I have found in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I commenced taking the Compound I suffered everything with backaches, headaches, menstrual and ovarian troubles. I am completely cured and enjoy the best of health, and I owe it all to you."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health more than one hundred thousand women.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

Word received as to the needs of Bret Harte's daughter shows that he indeed left her entirely unprovided for, and her health has broken down in an attempt to earn her living on the concert platform and the stage. The London committee appointed to raise a fund for her support—the Bret Harte assistance fund, as it is called—now includes George Meredith, A. Conan Doyle, Beerbohm Tree and Anthony Hope Hawkins. It is presumed that subscriptions will be acceptable from American friends of Harte.

Francis Joseph, emperor of Austria-Hungary, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, ascended the throne of Austria during the outbreaks against despotism in 1848. Into his life has entered more than one man's share of grief and tragedy, suicide and assassination having smitten the royal household. And now on the eve of his departure from the stage Hungary is ripe for a revolution, which will doubtless disrupt the empire.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is coming to this country to get some atmosphere for her new story. Well, we have a lot of it to spare, and not an ounce of it but is fresher than the thin old world atmosphere which she has been using so freely in her famous novels.

It is predicted that this year's crops will be larger than any the world has yet seen. The hired hands are always getting the worst of it in the way of work.

Boy's Breakfast Logic.

Father (to sleepy headed son coming to breakfast on time)—So you got up before breakfast, did you? Son—No, sir, after it. Father (surprised)—After? Son—Yes, sir. If I hadn't got up after it I wouldn't have got any.

His Was Permanent.

"I say, Jenkins, I'm in a temporary embarrassment. Can you lend me $10?"

"Only a temporary embarrassment? You're much luckier than I am."—Translated For Tales From Fliegende Blatter.

In idleness there is perpetual despair.—Carlyle.

"Man Is Nature's Enemy."

"Man," said Professor Lankaster in his Romanes lecture at Oxford, "is nature's rebel." Natural selection having, as supposed, lifted him from so low—the mud—to his present high estate is now believed by many of its advocates to be a failure as regards raising him any higher. Having done so much in the past, it is thought to be incapable of doing "the little more" which is of such great importance. While in the case of other creatures their actions are supposed to play into the hands of natural selection, so that this beneficent force becomes the alma mater of new races, in the case of man it has been otherwise. His own actions have defeated the aims of natural selection for his welfare. Darwin held similarly pessimistic views. "In one of my latest conversations with Darwin," writes Dr. A. R. Wallace, "he expressed himself very gloomily on the future of humanity." And this was on the grounds that under present conditions the fittest did not survive.—London Globe.

A Tax Dodger.

The income tax is an old institution in England, and a story which should amuse all taxpayers is told of the way in which Kelly, former owner of the Haymarket Opera House, evaded paying his tax. The commissioners called to protest at his having given his income at £5 0. "Sir," said Mr. Kelly, "I confess I have erred in my return. In fact, I have not 500 pence." "Are you not stage manager at the opera house?" inquired one of the commissioners. "I am," said Kelly, "but there is no salary attached. I do it to gratify my love of music." "Well, but you teach?" said another. "I do, but I have no pupils," was the ready answer. "I think you are a concert singer?" persisted a third. "You are right, but I have no engagements." "At least you have a good salary at Drury Lane?" cried the last. "A very good one," said the imperturbable victim, "but it is never paid." He was let off.

"Pirate" is a Greek word coming directly from "peirates," which means, etymologically, "one who tries" or "attempts"—in other words, an adventurer. "Adventurer," too, is a word that has lost respectability, but not so far as "pirate," which acquired its special sense at least 2,000 years ago. "Peirates" and the Latin "pirata" are known only in this sense. Cicero defines the pirate as the common enemy of all.

EGGS AS FOOD.

Though Nearly Half Water They Are Extremely Nutritious.

The white of an egg is nearly seven-eighths water, the balance being pure albumen. The yolk is slightly less than one-half water. These figures apply approximately to the eggs of turkeys, hens, geese, ducks and guinea fowls.

To show how nearly alike the eggs of various domestic fowls are in respect to composition, the following figures are given by the department of agriculture:

Hen's egg—Fifty per cent water, 16 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Duck's egg—Forty-six per cent water, 17 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Goose egg—Forty-four per cent water, 19 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Turkey egg—Forty-eight per cent water, 18 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

It should be explained that protein is the stuff that goes to make muscle and blood. Fat of course is fuel for running the body machine. Thus it will be seen that eggs, though half or nearly half water, are extremely nutritious, containing all the elements required for the building and support of the human body. But the old saying that an egg contains as much nutriment as a pound of beefsteak is far from correct. It would be nearer the fact to estimate a pound of eggs as equal to a pound of lean beefsteak in nourishing power.—Saturday Evening Post.

MAKING CAMPHOR.

A Simple Process With a Still More Simple Apparatus.

"To make camphor," said a chemist, "you put in chips at one hole, and out of another hole you draw the crude product in coarse white grains like salt.

"Wherever camphor trees grow you will find camphor distilleries. They are low buildings of mud brick, and their odor is so aromatic that it can be detected two miles off.

"In each building there are a dozen fires. On each fire is a kettle of boiling water with a perforated lid. Fitted on the top of this kettle is an iron cylinder filled with camphor chips of the size of your little finger. Fitted to the top of the cylinder is an empty inverted jar.

"There is your whole apparatus, a simple thing which works simply. The steam of the boiling water passing up through the cylinder extracts from the camphor wood its oil. This oil, mounting still upward with the steam, settles like a brine on the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This brine, when the fire goes out, dries into a substance like frost or snow.

"White and aromatic, the frostlike substance is the crude camphor. It is scraped off the sides of the jar and refined and pressed into those attractive balls and cakes that you buy at a high price everywhere."—Kansas City Independent.

STINGING MOSQUITOES.

Birds Suffer More From These Pests Than Does Man.

"The male mosquito is harmless. He never stings. It is the female who does all the mischief. Male and female alike live through the winter.

"After the mosquito's egg is first hatched, the creature that issues forth is called a wriggler. The wriggler lives in water, in marshy pools, in the puddles and the ooze of low lying meadows. He is like a tiny snake, and he must come to the surface to breathe.

"Hence kerosene as a mosquito exterminator. Ladle out kerosene on a pool of water and two tablespoonfuls will spread until they cover effectually fifteen square feet. This oily covering is air tight as a skin. If there are any wrigglers in the water under it they must die; they must smother.

"Some think mosquitoes feed on blood alone. This is a mistake. If a mosquito can't get human blood or bird blood or animal blood, it stabs plants and feeds on their juices."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Catching Cold.

Very severe colds are caught indoors, the result of indigestion or foul air. A cold is frequently brought on by eating a hearty dinner, becoming mentally absorbed for two or three hours immediately afterward and retiring to a warm, close room. The food is not digested, the temperature of the body is raised by the exertions of the stomach, the sleep is broken, and the individual rises chilled and ill. Had relaxation followed the dinner and the room been supplied with refreshing air, everything would have been different.

Wasted.

An old Scots woman, who at considerable personal inconvenience had gone a good way to visit a friend who was ill, learned on her arrival that the alarming symptoms had subsided. "An' hoo are ye the day, Mrs. Crawford?" she inquired in breathless anxiety. "Oh, I'm nearly well noo, thank ye, Mrs. Graham." "Nearly well!" exclaimed the breathless visitor. "Aefter me comin' sae far to see ye too!"—Cassell's Magazine.

A WELL KEPT SECRET.

How the Keeper Managed the Church and Town Hall Clocks.

The old watchmaker of a small town in the west of England recently retired, and the contract for keeping the church and town hall clocks in order was given to his successor. Unfortunately from the start the new man experienced a difficulty in getting the clocks to strike at the same time. At last the district council requested an interview with the watchmaker.

"You are not so successful with the clocks as your predecessor," he was told. "It is very misleading to have one clock strike three or four minutes after the other. Why, before you took them in hand we could hardly tell the two were striking. Surely you are as competent as Mr. H."

"Every workman has his own methods, gentlemen," replied the watchmaker, "and mine ain't the same as H.'s were."

"I'm decidedly of the opinion that it would be for the general good if they were," remarked one of the councilors.

"Very well, sir; in the future they shall be," came the reply. "I happened to write to Mr. H. last week about the trouble I had with the clocks, and—but perhaps," he added as he produced a letter and handed it to the chairman, "you'd like to see what he said."

"Dear Sir (ran the letter)—About them clocks. When you get to know what a cantankerous lot of busybodies the council consists of you'll do the same as I did for fifteen years—forget to wind up the striker of the town hall clock, and the silly owls won't be able to tell that both clocks ain't striking together."—Tit-Bits.

OLD FAMILIES.

One of Them Claims to Reach Back Beyond the Flood.

The most ancient family in France, in so far as the tracing back of the ancestry in an unbroken line is concerned, is the royal house of Bourbon, which goes back to Robert le Fort, in the year 861. Next in point of antiquity comes the Rohan family, which for the last century, however, has been settled in Austria, the so called Rohans in France being not really Rohans, but merely Chabots, their only connection with the house of Rohan being by marriage.

Then comes the house of Narbonne-Pelet, the head of which is the Duc de Narbonne, who can trace his lineage back without interruption to the year 910. Of course, in making this assertion, I do not take into consideration the somewhat mythical claim of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to be descended in a direct and unbroken line from Jacob's son, Levi. He has among his family pictures one old painting in which the Holy Virgin is represented as requesting the former Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to put on his hat, which he had doffed in salutation, she being depicted as uttering the words "Couvrez vous, mon cousin." Another picture represents an ancestor of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix navigating a small boat on the waters of the deluge, he being too exclusive and high toned to share the ark with the Noah family and its belongings.—London Chronicle.

Higher Chinese Education.

Many of our people think of China as a land of ignorant coolies who are so inferior to ourselves as to rise scarcely to the plane of human beings. The fact is that China contains a greater number of educated and cultivated people than any other country in the world. Their culture is not like ours, but it is based upon long study of literature, ethics and philosophy, and it has been transmitted through many generations. The Chinese have not well learned how to act together. Otherwise we should never have dared to treat them recklessly and unfairly.—Review of Reviews.

A Way Some Women Have.

I have heard that women are dishonest in the way of sending to milliners for boxes of hats on approval, keeping them for a week, and, when they return them with a note to say that none suits, the owners find that each has been worn once, if not several times, and this fact is betrayed by innumerable pin holes. I certainly myself have known women who are not above sending for clothes on approbation, carefully taking the pattern and getting them copied by a cheaper dressmaker.—Lady Henry Somerset in Black and White.

A Smuggler.

Some years ago a tame long haired goat formed part of the regular crew of a passenger steamer on service between an English port and a continental one. After a time the customs authorities discovered that it wore a false coat many sizes too large for it. The goat's own hair was clipped very close. Round its body were packed cigars, lace, etc., and then the false coat was skillfully put on and fastened by hooks and eyes.

It was a reporter with some humor who stated that at the end of a local party "the guests went home and the neighbors went to sleep."

Hay Fever for 27 Years.

Well Known New England Woman Cured of Hay Fever—Cure Was Lasting.

The thousands of discouraged people who dread the approach of summer because they have hay fever and cannot find any relief from it, will read with interest and gratitude the following statement from Helen S. Williams of Mansfield, Mass.:

"For 27 years, from the month of August until heavy frost, I have been afflicted with hay fever, growing worse and worse each year, until of late years I was unable to attend to my work during that period.

"Last summer I fortunately gave Hyomei a trial, and I am happy to say that it entirely cured me, and I have had no occurrence of the disease since."

This letter is only one of many that have come to the proprietors of Hyomei, and the results following this treatment have been so remarkable that it is proposed at the annual convention of hay fever sufferers to recommend Hyomei.

By breathing the germ-killing and healing balsams of Hyomei, anyone can have at any moment of the day, either in their home or office, a climate like that of the White Mountains.

The complete outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. W. F. Dickey agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without benefit.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Hillsborough.

Your petitioner, J. E. Perkins of Antrim, in said County, executor of the estate of Harriet Preston, late of said Antrim deceased, respectfully represents that the personal estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the demands against the same; that the said deceased at the time of her death was seized of certain real estate situate in said Antrim, containing about ½ acre, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the south-west corner of the premises on the highway, and running thence easterly by land formerly owned by Luther Curtis to land of Silas Taft; thence northerly and westerly by said Taft's land to the highway; thence southerly by said highway to bounds first mentioned. The above described real estate being the homestead of the late Harriet Preston, and situate in North Branch village; and that the same may be more than sufficient for the payment of said demands, but it is so situated that a part cannot be sold without injury to the persons interested therein: Wherefore he prays that he may have license to sell at public auction, or private sale, the whole of said real estate agreeably to the laws of said State.

...requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Surely such testimony is convincing.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 13th Street, New York City, writes:

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health more than one hundred thousand women.

Ask Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—A Woman Best Understands a Woman's Ills.

MAKING CAMPHOR.

A Simple Process With a Still More Simple Apparatus.

"To make camphor," said a chemist, "you put in chips at one hole, and out of another hole you draw the crude product in coarse white grains like salt.

"Wherever camphor trees grow you will find camphor distilleries. They are low buildings of mud brick, and their odor is so aromatic that it can be detected two miles off.

"In each building there are a dozen fires. On each fire is a kettle of boiling water with a perforated lid. Fitted on the top of this kettle is an iron cylinder filled with camphor chips of the size of your little finger. Fitted to the top of the cylinder is an empty inverted jar.

"There is your whole apparatus, a simple thing which works simply. The steam of the boiling water passing up through the cylinder extracts from the camphor wood its oil. This oil, mounting still upward with the steam, settles like a brine on the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This brine, when the fire goes out, dries into a substance like frost or snow.

"White and aromatic, the frostlike substance is the crude camphor. It is scraped off the sides of the jar and refined and pressed into those attractive balls and cubes that you buy at a high price everywhere."—Kansas City Independent.

OLD FAMILIES.

One of Them Claims to Reach Back Beyond the Flood.

The most ancient family in France, in so far as the tracing back of the ancestry in an unbroken line is concerned, is the royal house of Bourbon, which goes back to Robert le Fort, in the year 861. Next in point of antiquity comes the Rohan family, which for the last century, however, has been settled in Austria, the so called Rohans in France being not really Rohans, but merely Chabots, their only connection with the house of Rohan being by marriage.

Then comes the house of Narbonne-Pelet, the head of which is the Duc de Narbonne, who can trace his lineage back without interruption to the year 910. Of course, in making this assertion, I do not take into consideration the somewhat mythical claim of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to be descended in a direct and unbroken line from Jacob's son, Levi. He has among his family pictures one old painting in which the Holy Virgin is represented as requesting the former Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to put on his hat, which he had doffed in salutation, she being depicted as uttering the words "Couvrez vous, mon cousin." Another picture represents an ancestor of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix navigating a small boat on the waters of the deluge, he being too exclusive and high toned to share the ark with the Noah family and its belongings.—London Chronicle.

Word received as to the needs of Bret Harte's daughter shows that he indeed left her entirely unprovided for, and her health has broken down in an attempt to earn her living on the concert platform and the stage. The London committee appointed to raise a fund for her support—the Bret Harte assistance fund, as it is called—now includes George Meredith, A. Conan Doyle, Beerbohm Tree and Anthony Hope Hawkins. It is presumed that subscriptions will be acceptable from American friends of Harte.

Francis Joseph, emperor of Austria-Hungary, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, ascended the throne of Austria during the outbreaks against despotism in 1848. Into his life has entered more than one man's share of grief and tragedy, suicide and assassination having smitten the royal household. And now on the eve of his departure from the stage Hungary is ripe for a revolution, which will doubtless disrupt the empire.

"Man Is Nature's Enemy."

"Man," said Professor Lankaster in his Romanes lecture at Oxford, "is nature's rebel." Natural selection having, as supposed, lifted him from so low—the monad—to his present high estate is now believed by many of its advocates to be a failure as regards raising him any higher. Having done so much in the past, it is thought to be incapable of doing "the little more" which is of such great importance. While in the case of other creatures their actions are supposed to play into the hands of natural selection, so that this beneficent force becomes the alma mater of new races, in the case of man it has been otherwise. His own actions have defeated the aims of natural selection for his welfare. Darwin held similarly pessimistic views. "In one of my latest conversations with Darwin," writes Dr. A. R. Wallace, "he expressed himself very gloomily on the future of humanity." And this was on the grounds that under present conditions the fittest did not survive.—London Globe.

A Tax Dodger.

The income tax is an old institution in England, and a story which should amuse all taxpayers is told of the way in which Kelly, former owner of the Haymarket Opera House, evaded paying his tax. The commissioners called to protest at his having given his income at £500. "Sir," said Mr. Kelly, "I confess I have erred in my return. In fact, I have not 500 pence." "Are you not stage manager at the opera house?" inquired one of the commissioners. "I am," said Kelly, "but there is no salary attached. I do it to gratify my love of...

STINGING MOSQUITOES.

Birds Suffer More From These Pests Than Does Man.

"The male mosquito is harmless. He never stings. It is the female who does all the mischief. Male and female alike live through the winter.

"After the mosquito's egg is first hatched, the creature that issues forth is called a wriggler. The wriggler lives in water, in marshy pools, in the puddles and the ooze of low lying meadows. He is like a tiny snake, and he must come to the surface to breathe.

"Hence kerosene as a mosquito exterminator. Ladle out kerosene on a pool of water and two tablespoonfuls will spread until they cover effectually fifteen square feet. This oily covering is air tight as a skin. If there are any wrigglers in the water under it they must die; they must smother.

"Some think mosquitoes feed on blood alone. This is a mistake. If a mosquito can't get human blood or bird blood or animal blood, it stabs plants and feeds on their juices."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Higher Chinese Education.

Many of our people think of China as a land of ignorant coolies who are so inferior to ourselves as to rise scarcely to the plane of human beings. The fact is that China contains a greater number of educated and cultivated people than any other country in the world. Their culture is not like ours, but it is based upon long study of literature, ethics and philosophy, and it has been transmitted through many generations. The Chinese have not well learned how to act together. Otherwise we should never have dared to treat them recklessly and unfairly.—Review of Reviews.

A Way Some Women Have.

I have heard that women are dishonest in the way of sending to milliners for boxes of hats on approval, keeping them for a week, and, when they return them with a note to say that none suits, the owners find that each has been worn once, if not several times, and this fact is betrayed by innumerable pin holes. I certainly myself have known women who are not above sending for clothes on approbation, carefully taking the pattern and getting them copied...

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of Indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Backache, "The Blues"

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break." or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.

Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some uterine derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Surely such testimony is convincing.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell all suffering women of the relief I have found in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I commenced taking the Compound I suffered everything with backaches, headaches, menstrual and ovarian troubles. I am completely cured and enjoy the best of health, and I owe it all to you."

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles Refuse to buy any substitute.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health more than one hundred thousand women.

Word received as to the needs of Bret Harte's daughter shows that he indeed [illegible] entirely unprovided for, and her health has broken down in an attempt to earn her living on the concert platform and the stage. The London committee appointed to raise a fund for her support—the Bret Harte assistance fund, as it is called—now includes George Meredith, A. Conan Doyle, Beerbohm Tree and Anthony Hope Hawkins. It is presumed that subscriptions will be acceptable from American friends of Harte.

Francis Joseph, emperor of Austria-Hungary, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, ascended the throne of Austria during the outbreaks against despotism in 1848. Into his life has crowded more than one man's share of [illegible] and tragedy [illegible] assassination having [illegible] the royal household. And now on the eve of his departure from the stage Hungary is ripe for a revolution, which will doubtless disrupt the empire.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is coming to this country to get stage atmosphere for her new story. Well, we have a lot of it [illegible], and none of it but is fresher than the [illegible] world atmosphere which she has been using so freely in her famous novels.

It is predicted that this year's crops will be larger than any the world has yet seen. The hired hands are always getting the worst of it in the way of work.

Boy's Breakfast Logic.

Father (to sleepy headed son coming to breakfast on time)—So you got up before breakfast, did you? Son—No, sir, after it. Father (surprised)—After? Son—Yes, sir. If I hadn't got up after it I wouldn't have got any.

His Was Permanent.

"I say, Jenkins, I'm in a temporary embarrassment. Can you lend me $10?"

"Only a temporary embarrassment? You're much luckier than I am."—Translated For Tales From Fliegende Blatter.

In idleness there is perpetual despair.—Carlyle.

"Man Is Nature's Enemy."

"Man," said Professor Lankester in his Romanes lecture at Oxford, "is nature's rebel." Natural selection having, as supposed, lifted him from so low—the [illegible] to his present high estate is now believed by many of its advocates to be a failure as regards raising him any higher. Having done so much in the past it is thought to be incapable of doing "the little more" which is of such great importance. While in the case of other creatures their [illegible] the hand of natural [illegible] that this beneficent force [illegible] the alma mater of new [illegible] the case of man it has been [illegible]. His own actions have defeated the aims of natural selection for his welfare. Darwin [illegible] "In one of my [illegible] with Darwin," writes Dr. A. R. Wallace, "he expressed himself very gloomily on the future of humanity." And this was on the ground that under present conditions the fittest did not survive.—London Globe.

A Tax Dodger.

The income tax is an old institution in England, and a story which should [illegible] told of the way in which [illegible], former owner of the Haymarket [illegible] evaded paying his tax. The commissioners called to protest at his having given his income at [illegible]. "Sir," said [illegible], "I confess I have erred in my return. In fact, I have not 500 pence." "Are you not stage manager at the opera house?" inquired one of the commissioners. "I am," said Kelly, "but there is no salary attached. I do it to gratify my love of music." "Well, but you teach?" said another. "I do, but I have no pupils," was the ready answer. "I think you are a composer [illegible]," persisted a third. "You are right, but I have no [illegible] [illegible] "A very [illegible]" said the [illegible] it is never paid." [illegible]

"Pirate" is a [illegible] coming directly from "[illegible]" which means, etymologically, "one who tries" or "attempts"—in other words, an adventurer. "Adventurer," too, is a word that has lost respectability, but not so far as "pirate," which acquired its special sense at least 2000 years ago. "[illegible]" and the Latin "pirata" are known only in this sense. Cicero defines the pirate as the common enemy of all.

EGGS AS FOOD.

Though Nearly Half Water They Are Extremely Nutritious.

The white of an egg is nearly seven-eighths water, the balance being pure albumen. The yolk is slightly less than one-half water. These figures apply approximately to the eggs of turkeys, hens, geese, ducks and guinea fowls.

To show how nearly alike the eggs of various domestic fowls are in respect to composition, the following figures are given by the department of agriculture:

Hen's egg—Fifty per cent water, 16 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

Duck's egg—Forty-six per cent water, 17 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Goose egg—Forty-four per cent water, 19 per cent protein, 36 per cent fat.

Turkey egg—Forty-eight per cent water, 18 per cent protein, 33 per cent fat.

It should be explained that protein is the stuff that goes to make muscle and blood. Fat of course is fuel for running the body machine. Thus it will be seen that eggs, though half or nearly half water, are extremely nutritious, containing all the elements required for the building and support of the human body. But the old saying that an egg contains as much nutriment as a pound of beefsteak is far from correct. It would be nearer the fact to estimate a pound of eggs as equal to a pound of lean beefsteak in nourishing power.—Saturday Evening Post.

MAKING CAMPHOR.

A Simple Process With a Still More Simple Apparatus.

"To make camphor," said a chemist, "you put in chips at one hole, and out of another hole you draw the crude product in coarse white grains like salt.

"Wherever camphor trees grow you will find camphor distilleries. They are low buildings of mud brick, and their odor is so aromatic that it can be detected two miles off.

"In each building there are a dozen fires. On each fire is a kettle of boiling water with a perforated lid. Fitted on the top of this kettle is an iron cylinder filled with camphor chips of the size of your little finger. Fitted to the top of the cylinder is an empty inverted jar.

"There is your whole apparatus, a simple thing which works simply. The steam of the boiling water passing up through the cylinder extracts from the camphor wood its oil. This oil, mounting still upward with the steam, settles like a brine on the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This brine, when the fire goes out, dries into a substance like frost or snow.

"White and aromatic, the frostlike substance is the crude camphor. It is scraped off the sides of the jar and refined and pressed into those attractive balls and cakes that you buy at a high price everywhere."—Kansas City Independent.

STINGING MOSQUITOES.

Birds Suffer More From These Pests Than Does Man.

"The male mosquito is harmless. He never stings. It is the female who does all the mischief. Male and female alike live through the winter.

"After the mosquito's egg is first hatched, the creature that issues forth is called a wriggler. The wriggler lives in water, in marshy pools, in the puddles and the ooze of low lying meadows. He is [illegible] snake, and he must come to the surface to breathe.

"Hence kerosene as a mosquito exterminator. Ladle out kerosene on a pool of water and two [illegible] spoonfuls will spread until they effectually fill [illegible] square feet. This oily covering is air tight as a [illegible]. If there are any wrigglers in the water under it they must die; they [illegible] breathe.

"Some think mosquitoes feed on blood alone. This is a mistake. If a mosquito can't get [illegible] blood or [illegible] it stabs plants and feeds on their juices."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Catching Cold.

Very severe colds are caught indoors, the result of indigestion [illegible] foul air. A cold is frequently [illegible] by eating a hearty dinner, [illegible] mentally absorbed for two or three hours immediately afterward and [illegible] to a warm, close room. The food is not digested, the temperature of the body is raised by the excitement of the stomach, the sleep is broken, and the individual [illegible] chilled [illegible]. Had relaxation followed the dinner and the room been supplied with refreshing air, everything would have been different.

Wasted.

An old Scots woman, who at considerable personal inconvenience had gone a good way to visit a friend who was ill, learned on her arrival that the alarming symptoms had subsided. "An' hoo are ye the day, Mrs. Crawford?" she inquired in breathless anxiety. "Oh, I'm nearly well noo, thank ye, Mrs. Graham." "Nearly weel!" exclaimed the breathless visitor. "After me comin' sae far tae see ye too!"—Cassell's Magazine.

A WELL KEPT SECRET.

How the Keeper Managed the Church and Town Hall Clocks.

The old watchmaker of a small town in the west of England recently retired, and the contract for keeping the church and town hall clocks in order was given to his successor. Unfortunately from the start the new man experienced a difficulty in getting the clocks to strike at the same time. At last the district council requested an interview with the watchmaker.

"You are not so successful with the clocks as your predecessor," he was told. "It is very misleading to have one clock strike three or four minutes after the other. Why, before you took them in hand we could hardly tell the two were striking. Surely you are as competent as Mr. H."

"Every workman has his own methods, gentlemen," replied the watchmaker, "and mine ain't the same as H.'s were."

"I'm decidedly of the opinion that it would be for the general good if they were," remarked one of the councilors.

"Very well, sir; in the future they shall be," came the reply. "I happened to write to Mr. H. last week about the trouble I had with the clocks, and—but perhaps," he added as he produced a letter and handed it to the chairman, "you'd like to see what he said."

"Dear Sir (ran the letter)—About them clocks. When you get to know what a cantankerous lot of busybodies the council consists of you'll do the same as I did for fifteen years—forget to wind up the striker of the town hall clock, and the silly owls won't be able to tell that both clocks ain't striking together."—Tit-Bits.

OLD FAMILIES.

One of Them Claims to Reach Back Beyond the Flood.

The most ancient family in France, in so far as the tracing back of the ancestry in an unbroken line is concerned, is the royal house of Bourbon, which goes back to Robert le Fort, in the year 861. Next in point of antiquity comes the Rohan family, which for the last century, however, has been settled in Austria, the so called Rohans in France being not really Rohans, but merely Chabots, their only connection with the house of Rohan being by marriage.

Then comes the house of Narbonne-Pelet, the head of which is the Duc de Narbonne, who can trace his lineage back without interruption to the year 910. Of course, in making this assertion, I do not take into consideration the somewhat mythical claim of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to be descended in a direct and unbroken line from Jacob's son, Levi. He has among his family pictures one old painting in which the Holy Virgin is represented as requesting the former Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to put on his hat, which he had doffed in salutation, she being depicted as uttering the words "Couvrez vous, mon cousin." Another picture represents an ancestor of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix navigating a small boat on the waters of the deluge, he being too exclusive and high toned to share the ark with the Noah family and its belongings.—London Chronicle.

Higher Chinese Education.

Many of our people think of China as a land of ignorant coolies who are so inferior to ourselves as to rise scarcely to the plane of human beings. The fact is that China contains a greater number of educated and cultivated people than any other country in the world. Their culture is not like ours, but it is based upon long study of literature, ethics and philosophy, and it has been transmitted through many generations. The Chinese have not well learned how to act together. Otherwise we should never have dared to treat them recklessly and unfairly.—Review of Reviews.

A Way Some Women Have.

I have heard that women are dishonest in the way of sending to milliners for boxes of hats on approval, keeping them for a week, and, when they return them with a note to say that none suits, the owners find that each has been worn once, if not several times, and this fact is betrayed by innumerable pin holes. I certainly myself have known women who are not above sending for clothes on approbation, carefully taking the pattern and getting them copied by a cheaper dressmaker.—Lady Henry Somerset in Black and White.

A Smuggler.

Some years ago a tame long haired goat formed part of the regular crew of a passenger steamer on service between an English port and a continental one. After a time the customs authorities discovered that it wore a false coat many sizes too large for it. The goat's own hair was clipped very close. Round its body were packed cigars, lace, etc., and then the false coat was skillfully put on and fastened by hooks and eyes.

It was a reporter with some humor [illegible] the end of a [illegible] party [illegible] went home and the neighbors went to sleep."

Hay Fever for 27 Years.

Well Known New England Woman Cured of Hay Fever—Cure Was Lasting.

The thousands of discouraged people who dread the approach of summer because they have hay fever and cannot find any relief from it, will read with interest and gratitude the following statement from Helen S. Wilkins of Mansfield, Mass.:

"For 27 years, from the month of August until heavy frost, I have been afflicted with hay fever, growing worse and worse each year, until of late years I was unable to attend to my work during that period.

"Last summer I fortunately gave Hyomei a trial, and I am happy to say that it entirely cured me, and I have had no occurrence of the disease since."

This letter is only one of many that have come to the proprietors of Hyomei, and the results following this treatment have been so remarkable that it is proposed at the annual convention of hay fever sufferers to recommend Hyomei.

By breathing the germ-killing and healing balsams of Hyomei, anyone can have at any moment of the day, either in their home or office, a climate like that of the White Mountains.

The complete outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. W. F. Dickey agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without benefit.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Hillsborough.

Your petitioner, J. E. Perkins of Antrim, in said County, executor of the estate of Harriet Preston, late of said Antrim deceased, respectfully represents that the personal estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the demands against the same; that the said deceased at the time of her death was seized of certain real estate situate in said Antrim, containing about ½ acre, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the south-west corner of the premises on the highway, and running thence easterly by land formerly owned by Luther Curtis to land of Silas Taft; thence northerly and westerly by said Taft's land to the highway; thence southerly by said highway to bounds first mentioned. The above described real estate being the homestead of the late Harriet Preston, and situate in North Branch village; and that the same may be more than sufficient for the payment of said demands, but it is so situated that a part cannot be sold without injury to the persons interested therein; Wherefore he prays that he may have license to sell at public auction, or private sale, the whole of said real estate agreeably to the laws of said State.

Dated the 15th day of August, A. D. 1905.

... may be caused by diseased kidneys or some uterine derangement. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the ablest specialists agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.

The following letters from Mrs. Holmes and Mrs. Cotrely are among the many thousands which Mrs. Pinkham has received this year from those whom she has relieved.

Surely such testimony is convincing.

Mrs. J. G. Holmes, of Larimore, North Dakota, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I have suffered everything with backache and womb trouble—I let the trouble run on until my system was in such a condition that I was unable to be about, and then it was I commenced to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If I had only known how much suffering I would have saved, I should have taken it months sooner—for a few weeks' treatment made me well and strong. My backaches and headaches are all gone and I suffer no pain at my menstrual periods, whereas before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered intense pain."

Mrs. Emma Cotrely, 109 East 12th Street, New York City, writes:

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any substitute.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. Her advice and medicine have restored to health more than one hundred thousand women.

MAKING CAMPHOR.

A Simple Process With a Still More Simple Apparatus.

"To make camphor," said a chemist, "you put in chips at one hole, and out of another hole you draw the crude product in coarse white grains like salt.

"Wherever camphor trees grow you will find camphor distilleries. They are low buildings of mud brick, and their odor is so aromatic that it can be detected two miles off.

"In each building there are a dozen fires. On each fire is a kettle of boiling water with a perforated lid. Fitted on the top of this kettle is an iron cylinder filled with camphor chips of the size of your little finger. Fitted to the top of the cylinder is an empty inverted jar.

"There is your whole apparatus; a simple thing which works simply. The steam of the boiling water passing up through the cylinder extracts from the camphor wood its oil. This oil, mounting still upward with the steam, settles like a brine on the sides of the inverted jar at the top. This brine, when the fire goes out, dries into a substance like frost or snow. [illegible]

"White and aromatic, the frostlike substance is the crude camphor. It is scraped off the sides of the jar and refined and pressed into those attractive balls and cubes that you buy at a high price everywhere."—Kansas City Independent.

STINGING MOSQUITOES.

Birds Suffer More From These Pests Than Does Man.

"The male mosquito is harmless. He never stings. It is the female who does all the mischief. Male and female alike live through the winter.

"After the mosquito's egg is first hatched, the creature that issues forth is called a wriggler. The wriggler lives in water, in marshy pools, in the puddles and the ooze of low lying meadows. He is like a tiny snake, and he must come to the surface to breathe.

"Hence kerosene as a mosquito exterminator. Ladle out kerosene on a pool of water and two tablespoonfuls will spread until they cover effectually fifteen square feet. This oily covering is air tight as a skin. If there are any wrigglers in the water under it they must die; they must smother.

"Some think mosquitoes feed on blood alone. This is a mistake. If a mosquito can't get human blood or bird blood or animal blood, it stabs plants and feeds on their juices."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Catching Cold.

Very severe colds are caught indoors, the result of indigestion or foul air. A cold is frequently brought on by eating a hearty dinner, becoming mentally absorbed for two or three hours immediately afterward and [illegible]

... them clocks. When you get to know what a cantankerous lot of busybodies the council consists of you'll do the same as I did for fifteen years—forget to wind up the striker of the town hall clock, and the silly owls won't be able to tell that both clocks ain't striking together."—Tit-Bits.

OLD FAMILIES.

One of Them Claims to Reach Back Beyond the Flood.

The most ancient family in France, in so far as the tracing back of the ancestry in an unbroken line is concerned, is the royal house of Bourbon, which goes back to Robert le Fort, in the year 801. Next in point of antiquity comes the Rohan family, which for the last century, however, has been settled in Austria, the so called Rohans in France being not really Rohans, but merely Chabots, their only connection with the house of Rohan being by marriage.

Then comes the house of Narbonne-Pelet, the head of which is the Duc de Narbonne, who can trace his lineage back without interruption to the year 910. Of course, in making this assertion, I do not take into consideration the somewhat mythical claim of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to be descended in a direct and unbroken line from Jacob's son, Levi. He has among his family pictures one old painting in which the Holy Virgin is represented as requesting the former Duke of Levis-Mirepoix to put on his hat, which he had doffed in salutation, she being depicted as uttering the words "Couvrez vous, mon cousin." Another picture represents an ancestor of the Duke of Levis-Mirepoix navigating a small boat on the waters of the deluge, he being too exclusive and high toned to share the ark with the Noah family and its belongings.—London Chronicle.

Higher Chinese Education.

Many of our people think of China as a land of ignorant coolies who are so inferior to ourselves as to rise scarcely to the plane of human beings. The fact is that China contains a greater number of educated and cultivated people than any other country in the world. Their culture is not like ours, but it is based upon long study of literature, ethics and philosophy, and it has been transmitted through many generations. The Chinese have not well learned how to act together. Otherwise we should never have dared to treat them recklessly and unfairly.—Review of Reviews.

A Way Some Women Have.

I have heard that women are dishonest in the way of sending to milliners for boxes of hats on approval, keeping them for a week, and, when they return them with a note to say that none suits, the owners find that each has been worn once, if not several times, and this fact is betrayed by innumerable pin holes. I certainly myself have known women who are not above sending for clothes on approbation, carefully taking the pattern and getting them copied by a cheaper dressmaker.—Lady Henry Somerset in Black and White.

A Smuggler.

Some years ago a tame long haired goat formed part of the regular crew of a passenger steamer on service between an English port and a continental one. After a time the customs authorities discovered that it wore a false coat many sizes too large for it. The goat's own hair was clipped very close. Round its body were packed cigars, lace, etc., and then the false coat was skilfully put on and fastened by hooks and eyes.

Word received as to the needs of Bret Harte's daughter shows that he indeed left her entirely unprovided for, and her health has broken down in an attempt to earn her living on the concert platform and the stage. The London committee appointed to raise a fund for her support—the Bret Harte assistance fund, as it is called—now includes George Meredith, A. Conan Doyle, Beerbohm Tree and Anthony Hope Hawkins. It is presumed that subscriptions will be acceptable from American friends of Harte.

Francis Joseph, emperor of Austria-Hungary, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, ascended the throne of Austria during the outbreaks against despotism in 1848. Into his life has entered more than one man's share of grief and tragedy, suicide and assassination having smitten the royal household. And now on the eve of his departure from the stage Hungary is ripe for a revolution, which will doubtless disrupt the empire.

Mrs. Humphry Ward is coming to this country to get some atmosphere for her new story. Well, we have a lot of it to spare, and not an ounce of it but is fresher than the thin old world atmosphere which she has been using so freely in her famous novels.

It is predicted that this year's crops will be larger than any the world has yet seen. The hired hands are always getting the worst of it in the way of [illegible]

"Man Is Nature's Enemy."

"Man," said Professor Lankaster in his Romanes lecture at Oxford, "is nature's rebel." Natural selection having, as supposed, lifted him from so low—the monad—to his present high estate is now believed by many of its advocates to be a failure as regards raising him any higher. Having done so much in the past, it is thought to be incapable of doing "the little more" which is of such great importance. While in the case of other creatures their actions are supposed to play into the hands of natural selection, so that this beneficent force becomes the alma mater of new races, in the case of man it has been otherwise. His own actions have defeated the aims of natural selection for his welfare. Darwin held similarly pessimistic views. "In one of my latest conversations with Darwin," writes Dr. A. R. Wallace, "he expressed himself very gloomily on the future of humanity." And this was on the grounds that under present conditions the fittest did not survive.—London Globe.

A Tax Dodger.

The income tax is an old institution in England, and a story which should amuse all taxpayers is told of the way in which Kelly, former owner of the Haymarket Opera House, evaded paying his tax. The commissioners called to protest at his having given his income at £500. "Sir," said Mr. Kelly, "I confess I have erred in my return. In fact, I have not 500 pence." "Are you not stage manager at the opera house?" inquired one of the commissioners. "I am," said Kelly, "but there is no salary attached. I do it to gratify my love of music." [illegible]

Are You Troubled With LAMP CHIMNEYS?

Do they break on the lamp when burning or when put out?

If they do, your burner is clogged or your chimney is not the proper one.

We Can Remedy the Difficulty!

Most stores selling chimneys pay no attention to fit, other than that chimney is right size at bottom, so it will not fall off the burner. The shape and length of chimneys are more important. If the chimney is not properly proportioned the flame will melt the glass on some part, turn it white, and it breaks; the light will flicker, and the lamp will smell.

We Have Chimneys To Fit Your Lamp

We have 11 different chimneys that are 2⅝ inches across the bottom; so many in order that we may be sure to fit your lamp. We carry nearly 50 different sizes in Lamp Chimnkys.

Our Chimneys Are All "MACBETH"

The very best made anywhere, clear glass and uniform in size. If burner is clean, and you get the proper size chimney, they will never break except by accident, like dropping.

You pay from 6c to 12c for common chimneys thas don't fit, and break in use, perhaps in a very few days, and we sell you "MACBETHS" at from 6c to 15c, that give a better light and do not break unless you allow the burner to get foul, or drop them on the floor.

Why should we advertise Lamp Chimneys to people 30 miles from our store? We have to buy a lot of chimneys in order to buy to advantage and sell at prices we do, we want your trade and if you buy chimneys of us once, you will come again. Many Antrim people buy their chimneys from us when in Milford, others send by mail for them, (no charge for boxing). Send name of lamp. When sending for Lamp Chimneys, include the wicks.

We are Headquarters for all Lamp Goods in Hillsboro County.

A Venerable Lady Gone Home.

On Aug. 9th at 11.30 a. m., Mrs. Anne Clark Cochran, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank T. Moore in Goffstown, N. H., after a few months illness of infirmities of old age.

She was the oldest resident in town being 95 years, 6 months and 4 days old. She was born in New Boston, and resided there till the death of her husband, in 1882. Since then she has lived with her daughters, Mrs. Alfred Campbell and Mrs. Frank T. Moore of Goffstown.

She received her education in New Boston, and Pinkerton Academy in Derry, N. H.

On June 2, 1840, she married Wm. C. Cochran and became the faithful, devoted mother of his three little motherless children, being a cousin of his former wife, Harriet Crombie. The oldest son became Deacon Thomas Ramsey Cochran, one of New Boston's prominent citizens, recently dead, whose widow and son, Thomas Edward Cochran still reside in New Boston.

John Crombie Cochran, the second son, was an invalid, given up to die by his doctors, but by Mrs. Cochran's devoted and wise care, outgrew his lameness, and became one of Chicago's noted architects. He died just after the hanging of the Chicago anarchists, leaving a wife and three daughters, two of whom are married and have children.

The third, a daughter, married Rev. Warren R. Cochrane, D.D., and is now living in Antrim. They have had two children, Haywood Cochrane now in Chicago and Susie E. Cochrane, who died in Nov. 1896.

Mrs. Cochrane had also four children by William Cochran Mary A. who is now Mrs. Alfred Campbell, Margaret Ramsey, who died in infancy, twins—William Clarke, who died in infancy, and Anna Clarke, who is now Mrs Frank T. Moore, and the mother of William C. Moore and Frank C. Moore and Ida May Moore, of Goffstown. Mrs. Campbell is also mother of Mrs. Annie Ray C. wife of Peter Jones, and has three sons Ray, Wardner and Clark also Jessie M. Campbell of Goffstown.

Mrs. Annie Cochran united with the Presbyterian church in New Boston when young and lived a life of faith to the last. She was always busy, very swift and expert with the needle, sewing all day often even since her last birthday, till strength failed. She had a sweet face, gentle and refined manners, an intelligent reader and always careful in her use of language, dainty in her personal appearance and all her belongings to the end. She had a large circle of friends, many admirers and was by many called "A Model Lady." Her memory will indeed be blessed.

Of a family of ten, she leaves one brother, William Dalton Clarke, architect and civil engineer, Springfield, Ills. Her funeral was held at the house of her daughter, Mrs. Moore on Saturday at 11.30 a. m. August 12, and the interment at New Boston. Pall bearers were her grandsons, Peter Jones, Thomas Cochran, William C. Moore and Frank C. Moore. Many relatives and friends from out of town were present.

Baptist Annual Convention.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 17 and 18, the seventy-ninth annual meeting of the New Hampshire Baptist convention will be held at the First Baptist church of Newport. Eighty-seven churches will be represented by the convention, the churches having a total membership of about 10,000. An interesting program is being arranged and over 200 delegates are expected to be present.

Death of George Brown.

The body of George Brown was brought to Antrim Tuesday, the death taking place at Grasmere Monday. Mr. Brown was a long time resident of this town and at one time the proprietor of one of the largest farms in town, west of Gregg pond. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

Persia is an ancient country, as the world goes. It has ancient monuments. It has a literature in several ages. But one of its institutions, its national anthem, is comically modern. Several French bandmasters were in Persia less than half a century ago, organizing military bands. The shah was about to start for Europe and it occurred to him that he ought to have a national anthem. Summoning M. Lemaire, the French military music master of Teheran, the afternoon before his departure, the monarch, with an instinct more imperial than musical, ordered him to have a "Persian" national anthem composed and played before him by the imperial band next morning. There was night work for everybody concerned in Teheran that night, but next morning the "national anthem" was duly played and approved, and it is the "national anthem" still.

POSTAL TYPEWRITER
$100.00 TYPEWRITER $25.00

No one can imagine how much easier and faster it is to write with a machine than with a pen, until one has tried the comparison. It is like riding and walking. The Postal at its very low price offers the opportunity to everybody to try.

The Postal is first of all a practical typewriter, having the Universal keyboard. The working parts are made of best steel hardened and tempered to withstand wear, and everything in the manufacture of the Postal is the same quality as goes into the high-priced machines. The construction is so simple and strong, that not only has the number of parts been brought down to about one-third of what it is in the high-priced machines, but, what is far more important, the number of accurate adjustments has been reduced to the proportion of 1 to 28 as compared with other type wheel machines and 1 to 76 in type bar machines.

The Postal offers the advantage of changing in a few seconds from one style of type to another, or from one language to another.

The writing is in sight all the time, with the exception of the few letters immediately near the point of printing, we warrant all our machines to be of good workmanship and material and agree to furnish free within one year any part that may wear out or break through defect.

A Postal Typewriter may be seen in operation at The Antrim Reporter Office, Antrim, N. H., where orders will be received.
