A SANITARY NECESSITY.

ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS.
A large per cent of sickness among women and children is attributed to the use of out-door closets in cold weather. Necessity for improvement has led to many inventions; earth closets, etc., all comparative failures; they have been too complicated, too expensive, not odorless, etc. Our Patent Ventilated Cabinet or Bedroom Commode
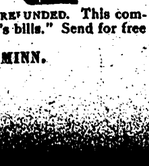
overcomes all objections. It is ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS, and CAN BE SET UP IN ANY ROOM having a chimney or stove pipe, BY ANYONE. NEEDS NO EXPENSIVE PLUMBING, COSTS NOTHING TO KEEP IN ORDER. It is endorsed by doctors and users, who say it is a Boon to Women and Children.
Affords all the comforts and conveniences of the most elaborate water closets WITHOUT DEADLY SEWER GAS. Particularly desirable for the country and small towns where there are no sewers. The effect on health is so great and the expense so little that every family should have one. Made of HARDWOOD, PANELLED, finished in ANTIQUE, with galvanized buckets—will not corrode—and all necessary piping, elbows and thimbles, complete, price $12.00. GUARANTEED AS REPRESENTED OR MONEY REFUNDED. This commode is not a luxury, it is a necessity, and a "saver of doctor's bills." Send for free descriptive pamphlet.


THOROUGHLY TESTED.

HANDS OF LOVE.

Hands that woo and win you,
(None those hands condemn;)
'Till the heart within you
Wrings its way to them!
Wrings its way, and like a dove,
Nestles in those hands of love!

Little hands—too tender
For the thorns of life;
Back of all the splendor
Sheltered from the strife.
Yet they hold the heavens above
Lightly—and a mother's love!

So, they woo and win you
In the dark and day;
And the heart within you
Flutters—beats away,
'Till it nestles like a dove,
Gently, in those hands of love!
—F. L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

"CHRISTINA."

SHE was a German girl who landed in New Orleans from an emigrant vessel, friendless and desolate. Her mother had died on the voyage, and her brother, Hans Herkel, who had come to New Orleans three years before, to make a home for them, had gone, no one knew where. The woman with whom he had boarded, and whose address Christina had, knew nothing of his whereabouts.

"Ach, Gott!" Frau Werlein exclaimed. "But Hans said you would come not for two year."

"No," Christina answered, trying to choke down her sobs. "But the mother wanted to see him, oh, so much, and she got weaker and sicker all the time. Then the mother says, 'I must see my boy before I die,' and the good neighbors, oh, they feel so sorry. They sell our things for us, and they give much money to pay our way here. And the mother is at the bottom of the sea, and Hans is gone, and I am alone."

The poor girl burst into a passion of tears, while Frau Werlein sat much troubled in mind, between sympathy for her countrywoman's grief and prudential considerations. She was not an unkind woman, but a long struggle with poverty had blunted all delicacy of feeling, and in trouble or not, she could not afford an unprofitable lodger. She had found out that Christina was penniless and friendless, and she must be made to understand that she, Frau Werlein, could not give her a home without some equivalent.

"But then, what will you do?" she cried. "I am poor, and I can keep you not without the money. Hans will come not back, perhaps, and how will you live?"

Christina took her hands from her eyes and looked up. She had been too much stunned by grief and disappointment to have given a thought to her own situation. But she was practical and sensible, and it did not take her a minute to meet the emergency.

"I can cook, I can wash, I can nurse children, I can embroider, and I make fine lace. Ach! I can do many things, and in this great city there must be plenty of work. And then when Hans comes back."

"Ah, yes, yes," Frau Werlein said, much relieved. "If you can do all those things you will not starve. We will go to-morrow to the intelligence-office, and you may get a fine place."

I happened to go to the same office that day in search of a nurse, and heard Frau Werlein's voluble enumeration of Christina's accomplishments.

I saw a short, stout girl with large features and pale blue eyes. Her costume, a short blue skirt, velvet jacket with innumerable silver buttons, long earrings, silver rings on her red, stumpy fingers, only seemed to intensify her remarkable ugliness. But she was clean, strong-limbed and healthy, and there was a frank, good-humored expression in her pale eyes that took my fancy. I thought I could safely trust baby Ruth to her care.

Her English was almost unintelligle, but that would improve every day, so then and there I made arrangements with her, or rather with the frau, that her protegee was to enter upon her duties the next day.

"Upon my word, Helen," my husband said to me when the new nurse arrived, "where did you pick up that frightful specimen? That girl is as clumsy as she is ugly. She looks like the old woman of Banbary Cross, with rings on her fingers, and I suspect she has bells on her toes as well."

"I never said she was handsome," I answered. "But I do think, Paul, she has a good open countenance."

"Open, indeed," he laughed. "Very open! Nose, mouth, eyes stretched to their widest. Well, my dear, we can only hope she will do better than she looks."

And she did. In her strong capable hands the work of the nursery became a trifle. My children were carefully dressed and systematically cared for. But it was on baby Ruth that all the treasures of her love were poured. It was pathetic to watch her strain the child to her bosom, and kiss it, with little tender German love words on her lips. She spoke to me often of Hans but the baby had brought healing to her sore heart.

"She do make me to forget," she said.

The hot June had prostrated me as it usually did, and Paul proposed that I should take the children and spend the summer at Last Island. There was fine surf-bathing, and it was near enough to the city for him to run down for a holiday every fortnight.

The island was little else than a long, narrow strip of sandy sand extending into the sea. Looking at the slight elevation of the land from the water, it gave me rather an uneasy feeling, for the island was evidently of recent formation, and who could say but what it might be submerged again during some storm. But Paul laughed at my fears.

"For fifty years Last Island has held its own against wind and waves," he said. "It isn't likely you're going to play the Jonah and sink it."

As for Christina, she looked at the strange country with dread and surprise.

"Ach Gott," she cried, "but it is de wasser all round, and de erf no higher as dat. When de waves come, what to do?"

"They have never come over as yet," I answered. She shook her head, but day after day she took her way to the beach. The scene seemed to have a fascination for her, but the fascination of terror, for she was always measuring the height of the tide on the sand. It became a common thing to hear her daily report.

"It's wasser come two fingers more high dan yes'day," or "De wasser go down so far."

"That girl has water on the brain," Paul said, impatiently. "If a mighty 'lagre' should come and sweep us into the gulf she wouldn't be a bit surprised."

Meantime life went on as it usually does at those seaside resorts, but pleasant as it all was I was not sorry when the 15th of September, the time decided upon for our return to the city, arrived.

Paul had come for us, but the fifteenth was ushered in by such a storm of wind and rain that the daily steamer did not arrive. The mainland was not at a great distance, but in a storm the sea between it and the island was extremely rough.

Toward noon the gale increased. I noticed that Paul became restless, hurrying out to the beach and examining one or two little fishing skiffs moored there. One of them he drew up and fastened near our cottage, saying:

"I suppose there is not a bit of danger, but it's well to be prepared, you know. I think," trying to speak indifferently, "I might as well knock together those old shutters lying in the yard; make a kind of raft. Not that there's the least danger, but it's raining and storming so that I want something to pass away the time."

I watched him with a sinking heart. But Christina was alert in assisting, and, in fact, did more than half the work on the raft. She seemed suddenly to have lost all fear in the presence of real danger and looked brighter than I had ever seen her.

Night came black and starless, but when supper time arrived, Paul insisted upon my going to the dining room. We were in a small cottage, about two hundred yards from the main building, but the wind was so high, it was with difficulty I traversed the short distance.

You can imagine that I had little appetite for supper that night. I heard music in the ball room, where the young people were dancing, as they did every night, but my one object was to get back to my baby, whom I had left with Christina. The two elder children were with us.

Suddenly the utmost fury of the storm burst upon the island, as we reached the door.

"My God," cried Paul, "the wind has gone round to the north! Hold on to me, Helen. Take one of the children; I have Mary."

Our first step was in water above the ankles. Another tremendous gust, and we heard a crash behind us, mixed with piercing shrieks, and knew the hotel was gone. Half fainting, I was dragged through the water. I knew not where or how. When I revived, I was tossing in a skiff with my husband and children.

"My baby, where is my baby?" I cried.

"You have two children, Helen," Paul said in a choking voice. "The cottage was swept away with the hotel. If it hadn't been for the quick flashes of lightning, I never could have found the boat, and we would all have been drowned."

"My baby, my baby!" I cried, wringing my hands.

"Her chances are as good as ours," Paul said sadly. "If this boat is driven out to sea, it won't live an hour. I think the wind is lulling a little, though. Oh, if daylight would only come."

I do not know how that night passed; that horrible night that even now haunts my dreams. By daylight the storm was over, and we found ourselves in comparatively calm water.

"Look, look, Helen!" Paul cried, don't you see that stunted orange tree? Don't you remember it grew on a mound to the left of the hotel? We have been on the island all night."

I looked. With the exception of that little green tuft above the waves, not a vestige remained of Last Island. We could see black specks on the water, but whether they were boats or the debris of buildings, we could not tell. Later we were told that out of over one hundred people who were on the day before, not more than twenty were rescued.

"Steamers and vessels will soon be coming to our rescue now," said Paul. "Of course they know what has happened. Here comes a steamer now, thank God!"

I did not echo his words. I was numbed by grief and exposure, and even when we were taken up by the steamer, and in the midst of kind, sympathizing friends, I sat there unable to feel grateful, when I thought of my little drowned baby and her poor nurse. I heard my husband ask one of the officers of the boat:

"Have many been rescued?"

"The schooner Gem out yonder picked up several," he answered. "I saw them take up a woman and child a few minutes ago."

I think I was wild when I heard that. I can just remember entreating the captain to take us to the Gem. It might be Christina and my baby. And then for hours I knew nothing distinctly, until the voice of my faithful nurse was in my ears, and baby Ruth in my arms.

"Ach, but when de wasser come I put baby on de raft, and I hold it tight, tight all de time, and de wind blow as never was, and de waves come, but I hold it tight, tight."

A man with staring eyes came rushing up to Christina as she spoke.

"Christina! Christina!" he cried.

"Mein brudder!" she screamed, and then there was a scene I have no space to relate. I had found my baby, and Christina had found Hans, who was employed as second engineer on the steamer.

Paul's gratitude to Christina took a substantial form, in the shape of a neat little cottage just out of the city, where she has made a pretty home for Hans, who, through his new friends, secured a position in a manufacturing establishment. We often see each other, for the "heavenly sweet baby," whose life she saved, is the darling of Christina's heart.

I have heard that a hotel has been rebuilt at Last Island, and that people go there. But one tragedy satisfied me of its insecurity. The island has too recently come up out of the sea not to be reclaimed by it time and again until many years have passed.—The Household.

Comfort for the fat and the lean can be derived from some recent medical statistics which show that at the age of thirty-six lean men become fatter and fat men leaner.

Cocoanut butter is now being made at Manheim, Germany. The method of manufacture was discovered by Doctor Schluk, a chemist, at Ludwigshafen. It is said that the butter is very nourishing and will soon be placed in the London market.

It has been estimated that the firing of a small pistol sets free about 600 foot-pounds of energy, while a watch consumes only about 1-54,000,000 of a horse power. The energy of a bullet would be sufficient, therefore, to keep the time for two years.

There is a demand for a type writer for travelers, the machine to be of the better class, or two-handed, and not to weigh over eight or ten pounds. The type writer has become a necessity for many traveling men, and a light, portable machine would find many purchasers.

A scientific paper describes how to make ice on a small scale. Touch the convex side of a watch crystal upon water so as to leave a drop hanging on the glass. Pour a little ether into the convex, and blow upon it. The rapid evaporation of the ether will render the glass so cold that the drop of water will be frozen.

An European dentist is said to have had great success in curing toothache within five or six minutes, and often in less time, by applying one pole of an electrostactic machine to the troublesome tooth and the other pole to the body of the patient. In seventy-six cases thus treated by him only three are said to have been unsatisfactory.

How water, commonly called sap, necessary to the life of a tree, passes from the roots to the topmost leaf and evaporates is a problem not yet solved by botanists. It is known that the ascent is made chiefly in cavities in the sap-wood only, the heart and bark serving other purposes. That is the extent of our knowledge of the matter. Beyond is mere conjecture, and every theory yet advanced has failed to stand the test of experiment.

Chalcedony.

"Here is something new and neat and sure to be popular," said a dealer in crockery ware and china to a Mail and Express man.

"It is called chalcedony, and is the latest product of the kiln."

It was a beautiful piece of ware and looked as if it was cut from agate. There were the same pretty veinings, fractures and seeming cracks with gold moulding.

"The manufacturers are turning it out in all sorts of shapes and for every kind of use," continued the man, "and it is finding considerable favor.

"Here you see is a complete dinner set from soup to coffee. These white and gold pieces are for soup and meat and then, of course, these plates with the fish designs are for the fish. The same idea, you see, is carried out with the plates for game, all of them being decorated with birds and things of that kind, and then here we have the salad dish like a cabbage lettuce leaf and little lettuce leaf plates to match.

"Makes a very dainty set, doesn't it! Oh, there are constant novelties in our business as in all others and changes occur continuously. Glassware is being decorated now, too, with garlands and wreaths and other things, but it will never crowd out cut glass. That has a field entirely its own."—New York Mail and Express.

A Painter's Unique Monument.

Above the grave in New Bedford, Mass., of William Bradford, the Quaker painter who first showed the world what color was in Arctic ice and how impressive were the bergs and the skies and the ships, has been placed a great granite boulder. The boulder has rested for ages on the shore near Fort Phenix, and was a landmark where the painter used to stroll; it lies rough as it was over the grave, with the barnacles still clinging to it, save for the face, where the artist's name is cut, with dates of birth and death, and two lines from Whittier's dedication to him of his poem, "Amy Wentworth."

The mahogany boards produced from a single tree recently cut down in Honduras were sold in Europe for $11,000.

TWILIGHT.

Slowly dies the long June day,
Softly rolls the earth away,
Lovelier light at length divining,
All a dream of misty bloom,
Trembling stars, and golden gloom,
Larger heavens and sweeter shining—
Which is dearer, dusk or day?

Where the glory died the dark,
Lost in light the ruby spark,
Violet gleam, and saffron splendor,
Melt and mingle into one,
When the long June day is done.
All the depths throb close and tender—
Is it day, or is it dark?

Love, the long June day had life,
Silver showers and sunny strife—
Now its rosy wraith fades o'er us!
Eld's vast twilight fills our eyes,
Yet what freedom of the skies
Parts the star-sown way before us—
Is it death, or is it life?

Alive With Snakes.

The Isles of Shoals, mere rocks standing ten miles from New Hampshire coast in a cold sea, are alive with snakes. On a warm day one will see dozens of them running in and out of the boggy places or sunning themselves on the bare ridges. They are nothing to be afraid of, however, for they are of only one variety—the common little green snake, that seldom grows to a length of two feet.

WANTED—A bright boy or girl in every town to send us a postal card asking for particulars of how, by a little pleasant work, they can earn a bicycle, a watch or choice library, without its costing them another cent. Box 46, BOSTON, MASS.

MRS. LIZZIE A. KNOWLTON, LIBERTY, ME.
Cured of a Severe Case of Dyspepsia by using Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup.
She is the wife of a well-known Spring Bed manufacturer, W. J. Knowlton, and by him induced to try "Groders," the remedy that cured him of a bad attack of dyspepsia.
She says: GENTLEMEN:—For several years I have been afflicted with dyspepsia and a complicated stomach and liver trouble. The least food I ate would distress me terribly and fill my stomach with gas. I was greatly troubled with dizziness, my appetite was poor, and I had a very bad cough, was very nervous, could not sleep, and in fact my whole system seemed to be affected; was unable to attend to my household duties. Physicians and medicines gave me no relief or benefit, and I had lost all faith in them, but to gratify the request of my husband I decided to try
GRODER'S BOTANIC DYSPEPSIA SYRUP.
Before I had taken one bottle I was greatly improved. I followed its directions and continued its use, and to-day I am in my usual good health, can sleep, eat, and enjoy life, thanks wholly to Groder's Syrup.
Respectfully,
MRS. LIZZIE A. KNOWLTON, Liberty, Me.

Miss Clara M. Cushman lectured in the M. E. church Thursday evening last, on "Every Day Life in China." The lecture was illustrated by costumes, introducing Chinese songs and curiosities, praying machines, model of bound foot, opium pipe, etc. It was pronounced good by those who attended. Had the weather permitted a much larger house would have greeted the speaker.

Through the courtesy of Station Agent Ingram the REPORTER is able to give notice of the change in the running time of trains on this road which went into effect Monday, June 26. The first train from Concord in the morning leaves there at 9 o'clock. One feature of this train is that it makes close connections at Contoocook with a train from Claremont, arriving at Antrim at 10.37. Returning, the train leaves Antrim at 4.05, arriving at Concord at 5.20 o'clock.

Dr. D. W. Cooley, our local dentist, is the person who has had considerable success in the use of the local anaesthetic, Odontunder, for the past year, at one time extracting 22 teeth for one person by this means. In the majority of cases it works "like a charm," it being entirely harmless, and the application to the gum is made in such a way that it can almost truly be said that "Dr. Cooley extracts teeth without pain."

Owing to the absence of a petitioner, the proper returns of the petition were not made consequently the "hearing" was not "heard."

In the Schools.

The schools throughout the town have closed, except the high school which closes Friday of this week, with public examination Friday afternoon. There should be quite an interest taken in this examination as it is the closing of the first year's work in this school. We are pleased to say that parents and friends thus far have given quite a good deal of attention to the school, as many as thirty visited the Primary and Intermediate schools in the village, and a good attendance of visitors in other parts of the town. This is as it should be, but we should not lose our interest in the education of children when they get into the higher grades. It is a great encouragement to children, no matter what their ages may be, to have father and mother make a little sacrifice to come and see what they are doing.

The Roll of Honor for perfect attendance, so far as we are able to report, is as follows:

Div. 1—Primary department, Miss Edith Marshall teacher: Margaret Jameson, Bessie Parmenter, Cora Truemond, Amy Tenney, Mary Swett, Ralph Bass. Walter Brooks, Herbert Hurlin, Ray Hulett, Morris Poor, Archie Swett.

The animal is quite valuable, and the doctor is to be congratulated upon her safe return. Her departure was duly advertised, and in less than twenty-four hours after such advertisement appeared in the columns of the Reporter, the horse was safely sheltered in N. J. Morse's barn, in whose care she has been of late. Does not advertising pay?

We have within the last few days sent out among our subscibers a considerable number of statements of their indebtedness. This is purely a business operation and should not be considered in any other light. The plain facts are that these several amounts agregate to quite a sum and in this, as in every other newspaper establishment that depends upon its receipts to prosecute its business, they are the necessary resources depended upon for that purpose. Those of our friends to whom these missives have been directed can aid us very materially just at this time by an early remittance. Put yourself in our place and we venture the assertion that you would do the same thing. Those who have not received these notices, and consider they are in arrears, their remittance will be given proper credit.

General directions in painting are to see that no paint is put over a moist or even damp surface. To have thin coats of Paint applied instead of thick. Chilton Paint should be thinned with the best raw linseed oil. Many people think there is little or no difference in linseed oil. The Chilton paint Co. in buying oil obtain only the best brands from people who have a reputation of buying the best and cleanest flax-seed, and allow their oil to settle for months before placing it on the market. How much better this oil than the oil commonly met with, and yet the Chilton Co. would not be satisfied to use this oil without settling it for themselves. In 1893 the Chilton Paint Co. will use in some of their paints linseed oil which they purchased and tanked in 1891. Very little such oil, if any can be found in the United States, and the public gets the benefit of it, but so does the Chilton Co. also for it adds to their reputation. It is extremely improbable that a gallon of paint will leave their factory the present year made from linseed oil crushed later that 1892.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

"It has cured others and will cure you" is true only of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The motto suits the medicine and the medicine the motto. What better assurance could you have that a remedy will cure you, than the fact that it has cured such multitudes of others?

A setting hen at Camden, Me., made a foster child of a newly born pig.

As a blood purifier, the most eminent physicians prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful combination of vegetable alteratives ever offered to the public. As a spring and family medicine, it may be freely used by old and young alike.

Show drifts still linger in some parts of Maine.

Whiskers that are prematurely gray or faded should be colored to prevent the look of age, and Buckingham's Dye excels all others in coloring brown or black.

Kentucky Almont.

The Handsomest Horse in New Hampshire, son of the Great Almont, will make the Season of 1893 at the Stable of William H. Darrah, Hillside Farm, Bennington, N. H.

Foaled May 12, 1882. Bred by Gen. Wm. T. Withers at Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Ky. Sired by old Almont, the sire of trotters.

Kentucky Almont's Dam, Lady Richelieu, is a chestnut mare 15¾ hands high. The following is what her owner says of her: "She is by far the handsomest and most blood-like of my brood mares, and is the greatest long distance roadster in the great horse State of Kentucky."

Kentucky Almont is a horse of magnificent proportions, standing fully 16 hands high, weighs 1100 pounds, is a rich golden bay with black points, nice mane and tail, splendid head and neck, deep oblique shoulders, short powerful back, round barrel, long smoothly turned hips, clean hocks, and the very best of feet and legs. His disposition is perfection, his gait long, level and far reaching, with that quick catty motion and splendid stifle action so notable in the Almont family, that will some day carry him a mile in 2.20 or better. He was started up a few times this winter and could, in the estimate of good judges, show a 30 gait to sleigh. He is one of the finest and gamiest roadsters a man ever rode behind. Breeders are now looking for size, style, solid colors, speed and road qualities combined, all of which Kentucky Almont possesses.

TERMS, $25.00 for the Season.

TOBACCO HABIT EASILY CURED.

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:
DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it.
B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

DOBBS FERRY, N. Y.
THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Some time ago I sent for $1.00 worth of your Tablets for Tobacco Habit. I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. I am cured.
Truly yours, MATHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four month before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly,
MRS. HELEN MORRISON.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.
THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO:—GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part.

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

Scarcely 40,000 People Were Present

SUNDAY OPENERS DISAPPOINTED

The Workingmen and Their Families Did Not Turn Out as Expected—Attendance this Week Expected to Pick Up. Honors to Gladstone.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, CHICAGO, June 26.—The Radical Sunday openers must have been grievously disappointed at the small number of people who visited the World's Fair yesterday. The total admissions, [illegible] were scarcely 40,000 [illegible] and broad thoroughfares of the "White City" had a quiet, deserted appearance. There was little music to speak of and the whole aspect of the Fair was as calm and peaceful and Sabbath like as a New England country village.

Even the Midway Plaisance which usually thrives in the very worst of times was dull and the camels and donkeys and their swarthy skinned drivers in the Cairo street, and the vicious looking savages from the South Seas and all the other heathen of that homogenous thoroughfare had a good rest from the excitement and rush of the last four or five weeks. The Fine Arts building was about the only place where there was anything like a crowd.

The workingmen and their families did not turn out as they did on the previous open Sundays. The fact that the United States Government Building and all United States exhibits, which form a most interesting part of the Fair, are always closed Sunday, as well as those of Great Britain and a part of the French exhibit, seem to have given the wage-workers the idea that they were not getting their money's worth. Then, too, the machinery is all stopped and many individual exhibitors hang up their curtains on Sunday, so that a great deal of the exhibition is closed, notwithstanding the gates are open.

The attendance at the religious exercises in Festival Hall was not as large as the World's Fair officials hoped it would be. Not over half the seats were occupied. Only a little over 3,000 persons turned out to hear the Rev. Dr. H. W. Thomas preach. He made but a brief reference to the Sunday question, and that was in his introductory remarks.

A statue of Hon. William E. Gladstone was unveiled in Donegal Castle, at Mrs. Ernest Hart's Irish Village. Mayor Harrison made an address, and Judge Moran delivered the oration. Mrs. Geneva Johnstone Bishop sang "Come Back to Erin."

The attendance at the Fair the past week, although good, did not average as large as that of the week before. The attendance for the week ending June 17, was 723,796, an average of about 103,400 daily. For the week ending Saturday the attendance was 703,000, a daily average of something over 100,000. With prospects of reduced rates and fine weather the coming week, the attendance is expected to increase wonderfully, and the week of July 4, will probably be the banner week, thus far, of the Fair.

THE SARATOGA SUICIDE

Mr. Curtis Denies That He Is Unbalanced in His Mind.

TROY, June 26.—The latest as to the supposed suicide of the woman missing from the steamer Saratoga Tuesday night is a statement by Henry P. Curtis, her husband, who is stopping in this city:

"I wish to deny that I am unbalanced in mind in any way, and the reason I left Bayonne is because I have no present business there. As regards the death of Mrs. Curtis, I think there is no probability that she committed suicide. Her whereabouts between the time she left home and her appearance at the boat Tuesday night are well-known.

"The use of chloroform can be readily explained by the fact that she was subject to neuralgic pains in the head and face. She was acquainted with the use of chloroform and alcohol for that purpose, and fully aware that there was no possibility of death resulting from chloroform so diluted with alcohol.

"She was in very poor health at the time, and my belief is that she had used the mixture for these neuralgic pains, and, owing to her poor physical state, the drug had a more than usually stupefying effect in the close atmosphere of her stateroom, and she sought relief on the open deck. While there she was either attacked by nausea or a fit of hysteria, the latter of which were violent at times, and either fell or threw herself overboard while unaware of what she was doing. There was absolutely no motive for suicide.

"The statements made as to the quarrels between us are false, as we never had a serious disagreement. I do not know T. F. Cochran, and have made no threats to shoot him. The accounts given by the New York papers have been colored extremely, and are in the main gathered from purely unreliable sources."

Ocean Grove Camp Meeting.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., June 26.—About 1,500 people attended the opening of the auditorium yesterday. The Rev. Dr. E. H. Stokes, president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, opened the services with prayer. The Rev. Theodore Cuyler of Brooklyn, preached the morning sermon. His text was "Burden Bearing." The afternoon services were conducted by Mr Hanlon and were largely attended. About 5,000 people attended the surf meeting at six o'clock in the evening.

Minister Taylor Reaches Spain.

LONDON, June 26.—Hannis Taylor, the new United States Minister to Spain, has arrived in Madrid and will be presented to the Queen Regent shortly. Satisfaction is expressed in Spain over the success of the retiring United States Minister in closing the long-standing dispute concerning American missionaries in the Caroline Islands.

FORFEITED HIS BONDS

Summary Action Taken Against Ex-Commissioner Peck.

ALBANY, June 23.—In the Court of Sessions District Attorney Eaton moved the trial of ex-Commissioner Charles F. Peck, of the State Bureau of Labor Statistics, and Elbert Rodgers, his stenographer, both charged with destroying public records, in the form of tariff circulars, last fall.

Mr. Eaton in asking that their bail bonds of $1,000 each be declared forfeited, stated that the defendant Peck was in Europe, and although he would like to have bench warrants issued, he did not think it advisable to send across the water for Mr. Peck.

A proclamation was made declaring the bonds forfeited and bench warrants were issued. The bondsmen are Thomas J. Cowell and Richard L. Armesley.

MONEY FOR THE WEST.

Heavy Demands on New York for Currency.

Two and a Half Millions Have Been Sent to San Francisco Since June 7—Another Big Shipment To-Day.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The financial stringency on the Pacific coast has resulted in heavy demands on New York for currency. The Sub-Treasury yesterday made a transfer by telegraph through the Sub-Treasury in San Francisco of $1,115,000 for which gold certificates were received, thereby increasing the surplus gold in the Treasury to a corresponding amount.

Shipments of $500,000 in currency were made by express. Arrangements have been made to forward $500,000 this afternoon.

The total transfers by telegraph to San Francisco since June 7 have been $2,623,000.

The money goes to strengthen the banks on the Pacific coast which have been subjected to heavy drafts in the past two weeks. The call from Los Angeles has been particularly large.

AN EXCITING TRIAL

It Took the Whole of a Paterson Court to Stop a Fight.

PATERSON, N. J., June 23.—An exciting scene was witnessed in the District Court here during a trial in which B. B. Haines, publisher of the Evening News, was plaintiff, and William L. Bender, President of the Call Publishing Company, was defendant.

James C. Sigler, manager of the Guardian, was called as a witness to testify to Haines' veracity. The witness said he would not believe the defendant under oath. Haines then jumped up denouncing Sigler for maligning him in open court. The witness jumped from the stand and made a rush with clenched fists towards the publisher.

It required the united efforts of Judge Kerr, a dozen lawyers, two constables and the janitor to separate the combatants.

THE FIRST REBALLOT

A Loss to the Social Democrats as Well as to the Army Bill's Opponents.

BERLIN, June 23.—The first of the second ballots was taken yesterday in Luebeck. The candidates were Johann Schwartz, Social Democrat, who received on the first ballot, 7,389 votes, and Herr Goertz, Radical Unionists, who received on the first ballot 7,156.

Goertz was supported by the National Liberals and was elected by a majority of 150. As Schwartz was the last deputy for Luebeck, this is a loss to the Social Democrats as well as to the enemies of the Army bill.

New New York Corporations.

ALBANY, June 23.—These new companies have been incorporated: The Francis Manufacturing company, to manufacture loop-hooks and eyes, at Niagara Falls; capital, $55,000; The David D. Warning Against Gambling.

MONTREAL, June 23.—At the annual meeting of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, General Manager Hague, in his address, warned business men against gambling and said that the table of Monte Carlo and the Chicago wheat pit are in principle one and the same. John Crawford, one of the directors, in alluding to the same subject, said that no less than $2,000,000 had been lost by Montrealers during the recent financial disaster in New York.

It provides that eventually his entire estate shall revert to the Indianapolis public schools. The net revenue will amount to $1,000 annually.

Not the Work of the Mafia.

CONFUSION IN GERMANY

Believed That the Army Bill Will be Pushed Through by a Small Majority.

BERLIN, June 26.—Confusion—rank confusion—reigns here in the political world. To prophesy how the whole thing will turn out is taking a great risk. The newspapers here are giving one opinion on one page and another opinion on the next.

The various parties are manoeuvring, haggling and huckstering with one another and are trying to get another turn of the electoral wheel. Experienced politicians shrug their shoulders when you ask questions about the situation and reply that they have never known such a condition of affairs before.

The general opinion is, however, that the Military bill will be pushed through by a small majority.

Herr Richter will probably be retired from the leadership of the Freisinnige party. The Tageblatt, Vossische Zeitung and other organs demand his resignation as they hold him responsible for the extinction of the party. Personally Herr Richter gives no sign of defeat. He is energetic, cheerful, and confident of the early reconstruction of the Freisinnige party.

The speech of Emperor William opening the session of the Reichstag is awaited with much anxiety as a report widens that his language will menace restriction of the suffrage. Talking with a prominent minister he said that the Government neither anticipated a further dissolution of the Reichstag nor any encroachment on the suffrage. On the contrary, he hoped that an entente between the dominant political groups would be effected and the Army bill speedily passed.

Basing the calculation on the most reliable data, the aggregate Socialist vote will fall short of the 2,000,000 predicted by the Vorwaerts and the Cologne Gazette. It was estimated that the vote will show an increase of 372,000 over that polled in 1890. The anti-Semitic vote is about 500,000, being ten times the votes cast by that party in 1893. Both sections of the Freisinnige party cast a total vote of 940,000, a loss of 214,300 votes since 1890. The increase in the anti-Semitic vote accounts for the failure of the Socialists to reach the figure they expected, the anti-Semitics drawing a large proportion of their gains from electors who would have otherwise voted for the Social Democratic candidates.

The papers now recall how Prince Bismarck favored the anti-Semitic agitation at its inception as a safety valve to the movement against capitalism.

Chancellor von Caprivi also, speaking at the last session of the Reichstag, said that both the anti-Semitic and Socialist streams came from a common source. The Vorwaerts therefore justly holds that a large part of the anti-Semitic vote ought to be placed to the credit of Socialism.

It is now stated that the engagement of Princess Alice of Hesse to the Czarewitch is definitely settled.

The Papacy a Democratic Republic.

ROME, June 26.—Cardinal Thomas, on assuming his title yesterday, delivered a discourse on the Papacy as a democratic republic. He said that the present Pope treated with democracy as Sixtus V. [illegible] Henry IV. and as Pius VII. [illegible] Napoleon.

THE CHOLERA OUTLOOK

Not Believed That it Can Become Prevalent Here.

Surgeon-General Wyman Thinks There is a Good Chance that the United States Will Escape the Plague this Year.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Surgeon-General Wyman, of the Marine Hospital Service, referring to the outlook for cholera in the United States during the present summer, said:

"We have an even chance of escaping the cholera altogether this year. Should it arrive it will certainly not become epidemic. Its non-appearance thus far proves that no germs have lived over the winter in this country, as it was feared might happen. However, it should not be forgotten that the disease did not reach the United States last year until August. There is plenty of time for trouble yet."

If cholera should get a foot-hold in this country Dr. Wyman thinks that it would be quickly stamped out. Thirty-seven of the States have Boards of Health. All of them are on the alert and would take active measures to prevent the disease from spreading. At the same time the new law will enable the general government to step in and enforce the proper regulations if the States do not. Isolation and disinfection would be the means resorted to for the suppression of the complaint. If it became epidemic trains and steamers would not be allowed to leave the infected locality. Supposing that the water supply in any instance were deemed responsible for the trouble it would be promptly cut off and arrangements would be made for getting water from some other source.

Should the cholera appear in the United States, trial will be made of certain new methods of treatment, the value of which has not yet been positively determined. One of these is the process of intestinal irrigation. This is the invention of an American physician, who obtained much success with it in Russian hospitals.

Good results are said to have been obtained by inoculation for the purpose of rendering individuals proof against the complaint. A French physician, Dr. Ferran, has thus treated thousands of people, among them many nurses who served in the hospitals.

The Cherokee Strip Bonds.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Treasurer Starr and Delegate Cunningham, of the Indian Nation have gone to Kansas City to meet the directory of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Company relative to the sale of the Cherokee Strip bonds. The New York brokers failed to keep the appointment at the Palmer House, but S. B. West, representing the Kansas City concern, was present and made an offer, which will be discussed at Kansas City.

FROM THE OLD WORLD

Constans and the Clemenceau-Millevoye Affair.

THE LOST BATTLESHIP VICTORIA

Expected that Some of the Survivors Will Reach Malta To-morrow—All England in Mourning—Political Situation in Germany—Probable Majority for the Military Bill.

PARIS, June 26.—Public attention is at present entirely concentrated on the Millevoye-Clemenceau affair, which is now assuming more and more the aspect of fiction rather than of an actual event.

Norton, the negro who is under arrest, has confessed that he forged the documents, all of which are false, but he asserts that M. Ducret, director of the Cocarde, who is also under arrest, was his accomplice in the fraud.

It may, however, be questioned whether Ducret was acting alone or whether he was not acting in obedience to the political instigations coming from the extreme Radicals.

M. Henry Rochefort has lost no time in asserting that it was a preconcerted plot arranged by M. Constans. This accusation is ridiculous, and yet it has been shown that Norton passed the whole of Thursday, while the debate on the affair was going on in the Chamber, at the house of a man named de Carti, who is notoriously an agent in the service of M. Constans.

M. Millevoye and his friends now admit that they were duped, but they declare that they fell into a trap prepared by agents of the British government, which, as they are known to be bitter enemies of England, wished to discredit them by making them ridiculous.

The Justice, M. Clemenceau's organ, expresses the opinion that Norton is nothing more than a very skilful thief who has deceived all those who have had anything to do with him.

The most noisy of the personages now in public life have lost all prestige by reason of it, and if it be proved that the friends of M. Constans have played a role in the affair with his approval he will lose all that he gained by his famous speech at Toulouse.

Another thing is also certain, and that is that the relations of France with England have not been ameliorated by this scandalous affair.

THE VICTORIA DISASTER

Definite News of the Accident Expected

LONDON, June 26.—It will not be until to-morrow at the earliest, in all probability, that adequate news of the circumstances of the disaster to the Victoria will arrive. When the survivors arrive at Malta the real story will be telegraphed to London.

No single blow could plunge the British empire into grief more profound than that which has overwhelmed the nation during the last forty-eight hours. The awful calamity of the Mediterranean has come as a personal affliction to the England people in a larger sense perhaps than would be true in the case of a similar disaster to any other country. Gloom and sorrow have spread over the land like the sudden darkening of a tornado hiding the sky. The shadow of grief rests visibly upon the faces of the people.

Funds are being started in different parts of the country to aid those who lost their supporters. Gratifying subscriptions are being made to those funds, and it is believed that large sums of money will be raised. Among the prominent subscribers to the fund started by the Lord Mayor of London is Queen Victoria, who has donated £100 to aid the stricken families.

A despatch to the Admiralty from Tripoli says that the damage to the Camperdown is less serious than was expected, and that she will be ready to proceed to Malta for docking in a few days.

According to Admiralty officials who were interviewed on the subject the statement that the Victoria and Camperdown were at right angles with each other at the time of the collision is clearly inaccurate. It is far more likely, say these authorities, that the accident happened in the course of the evolution called changing columns, sometimes termed the "gridiron."

The Victoria, according to this view, was at the head of the first column and the Camperdown was leading the second. In changing places the vessels would have crossed at a distance of 400 yards, but the Camperdown, through miscalculated deviation, struck the Victoria and probably ripped up the whole of one side. No number of water-tight compartments could have saved the Victoria, seeing that her balance was destroyed by the rush of water. The Camperdown could not have possibly rammed the Victoria at right angles, say the Admiralty officials, otherwise the Victoria would not have gone down so quickly.

It is understood that Rear-Admiral Markham will be court-martialled with the officers of the Camperdown, as that vessel carried his flag as second in command of the squadron when she collided with the Victoria.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The seventeenth Summer School of the American Institute of Christian philosophy will meet at Prohibition Park, Staten Island, July 6 to 12. The general theme to be presented is the "Bible And Society: the claims of both, and how the first meets the needs of the second."

The Grand Duke to Visit Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—The Grand Duke Alexander, son of the Czar, and now with the Astors on the Hudson, has accepted an invitation to visit the Willings here in July.

CALLED IT "WHITE RAIN."

A Visitor to This Country Who Had Never Seen Snow Before.

Among the arrivals on the steamer Gaelic at San Francisco recently was the nobleman Raden Adnin, son of the powerful chieftain Natodi Laga, of Java. He is arrayed in the curious manner of his countrymen, with sandals on his feet, decked with gold, a sarong bound around his loins, and gold and diamond buttons on his coat.

Adnin, the nobleman, is a dauntless, intrepid-looking man of about 32 years. He is tall and has an intellectual-looking face. Adnin has never been in America before, and speaks no English. A. R. Kirkhoven, however, a fellow countryman who is traveling with him, told all about him. He said that the nobleman lived in Sutaboime, had a wife and two children, and feeling it incumbent on himself to enlighten his mind on the condition of the world, has set out, like Haroun-al-Raschid, to be gone for many months. With this end in view he will visit Chicago, New York, Boston, and other cities of the United States, and may extend his trip beyond the Atlantic.

"On the second day out from Yokohama," said his companion, "when we were about 340 miles from land, we ran into a violent snowstorm. When the nobleman, Adnin, saw the flakes fall upon the deck he thought it was the most remarkable thing that could happen, and called the flakes white rain. He had never seen snow before. Later, when he saw the passengers grasp the snow, press it together into balls, and throw it about he was amazed. Adnin found it pretty cold aboard ship."

The Monkey.

As an example of the reasoning powers of monkeys, Mr. Darwin tells a story of one that was scratched by a pet kitten. At first Jocko was immensely amazed. Recovering from his surprise, however, he set to work to discover the location of the claws. After a severe tussle he got the four feet of the kitten with his clutches, saw the nails thrust from their guards, and, with the broadest grin of satisfaction, forthwith proceeded determinedly to bite off the points of each.

TROUBLES OF BUSINESS

Tales of Financial Disaster From Many Quarters.

BANK FAILURES IN SAN FRANCISCO

Lumberman Steers of New York Makes a Compromise—The Cataract Bank Suspension—Plankinton Bank Statement. Chicago Bankers to Confer.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24.—The Board of Directors of the Pacific bank, which closed its doors yesterday, say the direct cause of suspension was due to a notice from the Clearing House Association that the bank's paper would not be accepted hereafter. It has been known for some time that the bank was laboring under financial difficulties, and the announcement of the action of the board does not create great surprise.

The Pacific bank was organized in 1863 by R. H. McDonald, and its present manager is R. H. McDonald, jr. It has a paid up capital stock of $1,000,000, a nominal reserve of about $700,000 and deposits of about $1,500,000, according to recent official report. Its loans and discounts are said to be about $2,500,000.

The failure seems to be altogether due to the recent monetary troubles, and it is expected the depositors will lose nothing. Manager McDonald says the bank will resume, and that the suspension is resorted to that the bank may realize from its assets and protect itself from a sudden run by depositors.

The liabilities of the Pacific bank outside of the capital stock and surplus, are $1,630,000. Assets, estimated, $2,000,000.

The closing down of the Pacific Bank has resulted in the suspension of the People's Home Savings bank, a collateral institution under practically the same management.

It has a guaranteed capital stock of $1,000,000, of which one-third is paid up in cash. According to a recent statement of the People's Bank it has total deposits of $1,700,000. The outlook this morning was that there seemed to be no reason to apprehend that the suspension of these institutions would precipitate a run on other banks.

The leading institutions are said to be well fortified and prepared to meet any ordinary emergency.

The feeling is that all the commercial banks are on a secure footing. The presidents of many of them express themselves as glad that the crisis has arrived that they may show their strength.

Magnese Calcite Company's Creditors.

BOSTON, Mass., June 24.—At a meeting of the creditors of the Magnese-Calcite company, of which the missing Moody Merrill was president, the assignee stated that the company issued $50,000 in bonds and placed them in the hands of Moody Merrill, who represented that the bonds had never been put in circulation. It now turns out, however, that Mr. Merrill's statements in this regard were untrue. Several persons have come forward with some of these bonds, amounting in the aggregate to $14,700, and the assignee said it was safe to assume that all the $50,000 of bonds had been put into circulation by Mr. Merrill.

The Cataract Bank Failure.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 24.—The Cataract Bank, which closed its doors yesterday, has been placed in possession of Deputy State Superintendent of Banking, William Creed, who is now making a thorough investigation of its condition. The officers state positively that all classes of depositors will be paid in full. The capital stock of the bank is $300,000; nominal surplus, $50,000; deposits on May 31, $809,272.37. It will be several days before it will be possible to give out a detailed statement.

Big Lumber Failure.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 24.—The failure of Cincinnati's large lumber dealers, C. Crane & Co., has affected some Huntington people. Crane & Co. had paper in the Catlettsburg National Bank. An attorney has started out to levy on timber. H. Gordon, in this city, holds claims amounting to $16,000. The Bank of Huntington had about $3,600 of Crane & Co.'s paper. The claims about Huntington and along the streams emptying into the Ohio will aggregate about $75,000.

New York Builders in Trouble.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Sheridan & Byrne, builders, of No. 39 Cortlandt street, are financially embarrassed, and Charles W. Gibbs has been appointed receiver in a suit brought by Thomas J. Sheridan against James E. Byrne to wind up their affairs. The unsecured liabilities of the firm are about $70,000 and their total liabilities, including mortgages, more than $225,000.

Plankinton Bank Statement.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 24.—An analysis of the Plankinton bank statement filed by Assignee William Plankinton, shows that President Day secured in loans from the bank nearly $400,000 instead of $390,000. Of this sum $278,000 was loaned to himself and $100,000 to the Milwaukee Brass and Copper Works, of which he was president.

Minneapolis Bank Suspends.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 24.—The State bank of this city has suspended payment, the assurance being given to depositors that it would resume in a few days. The bank has a paid up capital of $75,000. Steady withdrawals by depositors were the cause of the action. The bank is one of the smaller ones of the city.

Chicago Bankers on the Situation.

PROTESTANT SISTERS RETREAT

Members of an Episcopal Order to Keep Almost Total Silence for Four Days.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., June 26.—The annual retreat of the Associate Sisters of the Order of St. Mary began to-day at the Mother House at this place. At least fifty of the associates will be there, and many women not connected with the order will also be present.

During the retreat, which will last for four days, none of the participants will be allowed to speak except to the Reverend Mother Superior and to the servants connected with this, the most severe order of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America. They will be prohibited, also, from receiving or writing letters, but they will not be required to fast.

The retreat will be held under the direction of Father Sergeant, who is connected with the Society of the Holy Cross. The Reverend Father will deliver a discourse at 10, 12 and 3 o'clock each day, after which the associates will have a meditation upon each subject presented to them.

The visiting associates will enjoy the privileges of the Sisters of St. Mary, such as the saying of the canonical prayers in their daily religious devotions, namely, Terce, sext, nones, vespers, and compline. This they consider a great privilege. They will have an early celebration of communion before the work of the day commences.

MORALS OF OLD NEW YORK.

Writer Who Says They Were Bad Two Centuries Ago.

In point of morals the New York of 200 years ago seems to have been about on a par with frontier towns and outpost settlements of the present day, says a writer in Harper's Magazine. About the time that Governor Dongan made his report to the Board of Trade, the Rev. John Miller—for three years a resident of the colony as chaplain to the King's forces—addressed to the then Bishop of London a letter in which he reviewed the spiritual shortcomings of the colonists. Mr. Miller's strictures upon the Dissenters, naturally warped by his point of view, scarcely are to be quoted in fairness; but of the clergymen of the Establishment, toward whom his disposition would be lenient, he thus wrote: "There are here, and also in other provinces, many of them such as, being of a vicious life and conversation, have played so many vile pranks, and show such an ill light, as have been very prejudicial to religion in general and to the Church of England in particular."

Continuing, he complains of "the great negligence of divine things that is generally found in the people, of what sect or sort soever they pretend to be." And, in conclusion, he declares: "In a soil so rank as this no marvel if the Evil One finds a ready entertainment for the seed he is ready to cast in, and from a people so inconstant and regardless of heaven and holy things no wonder if God withdrew His grace, and give them up a prey to those temptations which they so industriously seek to embrace."

These cheering remarks relate to the province at large. Touching the citizens of New York in particular, the reverend gentleman briefly but forcibly describes them as drunkards and gamblers, and adds: "This, joined to their profane, atheistical, and scoffing method of discourse, makes their company extremely uneasy to sober and religious men."

In Iceland it is not as cold as in many parts of the United States.
