The Public Does Not Take Sufficient Interest in These Particulars.

Ventilation has not ceased to be a live element in construction of buildings. It is the duty of the architect to give the country capable men in this line. Such men are not to be confounded with ordinary contractors in heating and ventilation, a large majority of whom are quite inexperienced. Nor are they to be confounded with most architects, who at their best have but theoretical ideas of this most important science.

Not being experts, they often seek the advice of some amateur in the heating business or vendor of apparatus, whose knowledge is quite superficial, as a rule, but without consideration, and permit the architect to cover all into his feet for the plans of the superstructure. The product of such unskilled knowledge is a condemnation unknown to and that would be repudiated by the practical, skilled engineer.

Opening of windows and doors and contact from foul air ducts at the necessary volume with contact and continuous flow of air for respirations and without material increase of carbonic acid gas and other offensive conditions, then take the supply from such elevation as is necessary to insure wholesome results and in such quantities and under such manipulations as will permit the necessary volume with contact and continuous flow of air from the apartments with needed temperature. Good ventilation and practical warming for our larger school and public buildings are an established success, and the public need not be without this greatest of blessings.

It is not to be secured by the employment of theoretical architects, stilted artificers or from the lowest bidder for a work devised to cost the least money. Architecture is a noble profession by itself, and, though somewhat allied to, does not include practical warming and ventilation.

FROM COOK TO KING.

By CHARLES B. LEWIS (M. QUAD).

(Copyright, 1893, by Charles B. Lewis.)

In the year 1848 the American bark Charles L. Walters of New York arrived at Poonah, China, with a miscellaneous cargo. A portion of the cargo was unloaded there, and she proceeded on her voyage up the Yellow Sea.

The Chinese government put aboard of her 1,000 muskets and a lot of ammunition to be landed at some port on the north shore for use in suppressing one of those insipient rebellions always "on tap" in some part of the vast empire.

The cargo was deposited at the southern peninsula of Korea, when she met with a typhoon and was driven to the west among the islands lying above and below the mouth of the Whang-ho river. The vessel was commandeered by Captain James Chester, and carried a crew of 13 men. At midnight the whole affair gave him credit beyond what you would imagine. The party which landed to attack him was set upon by a force of 300 men and almost annihilated. The cannons were captured, and the crew was so rigorously applied to and with so much better aim that after an hour she was driven out of the fight, with a loss of 20 men.

It was a glorious victory for Gray, and within 80 days thereafter over 1,000 natives occupying other islands came to settle on the island and tender allegiance to the king. In 1850 Gray had 3,000 settlers on his island and an army of 800 men. His people fished and gathered shells and tilled the land, and from all accounts were peaceful and contented.

low the islanders to get away. He convinced Gray of his friendly and merciful intentions, but the man was obstinate. He was not only a brave man, but had the obliquity of a warrior. His people were not willing to go, and he would not skulk away and leave them to fight a battle. He called a meeting of the prominent men while Captain Barnes was ashore, and the unanimous decision was to fight.

They were given the day to think it over, and it was not until the morning of the next day that the Chester took up a position outside of the range of the small cannon in the forts and opened fire. The object was to drive the natives out rather than to kill them, and shells were used to destroy the hulk and fort and the villages along the shore. The bombardment was continued from morning till night, and after the first two hours it was hoped to see signs of flight.

By 3 o'clock in the afternoon the hulk and the fort were knocked to pieces, and neither bullet nor ball had reached the Chester. A boat was sent ashore, and Gray was asked to surrender. He had lost a great many men and fully realized his helpless situation, but he refused to give in.

That night at midnight about 40 small craft, carrying three to ten men each, pulled off the shore and attacked the Chester. She was taken by surprise, believing the islanders to be fleeing, and she was surrounded by a close chain of small craft, pulling off the shore and attacking the Chester. Entered at the Post-Office at Antrim as second-class matter.

Easter comes later than ever this year, and will be April 14.

The Boston & Maine railroad has declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on preferred stock, payable March 1.

Postmaster-General Bissell has resigned that office, and W. L. Wilson of tariff fame, has been appointed at the head of the postal service, to succeed Mr. Bissell.

The bill to extend to women the right of municipal suffrage came before the House of Representatives on Wednesday, and by a vote of 108 to 155 the movement was defeated.

It is hard to make a farmer believe that $500 a year on a farm will go as far to support a family well as will three times that sum in the city. But it is true, says the Massachusetts Ploughman.

Some Plain Deductions.
Out of the chaos into which the country has been plunged by the various disastrous strikes of the last half dozen years a few points begin to be made plain. One is that the public will not much longer tolerate those damaging interruptions to the ordinary current of industry. Some way must be found by employers and employees to settle wage difficulties, or the people will rise and force their representatives to make laws compelling both sides either to arbitrate or quit and let other parties take up the industries they fall to conduct properly.

Before the Brooklyn trolley strike had reached its most dangerous aspect the common council of that city and the board of supervisors of Kings county, in which Brooklyn is situated, had adopted resolutions calling on the attorney general of the state to annul the charters of the railroad companies unless they yielded and agreed to settle the strike. The annoyance and loss to the people from these convulsions are something that simply will not be borne much longer.

The Brooklyn trolley companies had all the protection they asked for. The police were at their disposal and were shot and stoned in the service of the companies. Nine regiments of the national guard were also at the service of the railroads, and they used bullets to quell the mobs. At every point where they were wanted they were stationed. Yet for all this protection the companies admitted that they could not run their cars regularly and successfully.

Another point in the strike business is that the sympathies of the people are almost universally in favor of the striking workmen. In Brooklyn provisions and money poured in for the strikers from citizens in all quarters. In nearly every locality where there are labor difficulties the people are with the workmen. It shows that whether workmen are oppressed by capitalists or not the people believe them to be so.

But the worst, the most lamentable feature of strikes is the element of hoodlums and toughs that they bring to the surface. The story is the same everywhere—it is not the striking workmen who commit the acts of violence, but the thugs and desperadoes in whom the latest spirit of rapine and destruction is aroused, and who are always drawn as soon to the scene.

Plaintiff of all looms up the fact that capitalists and laborers must find some way to avoid these strikes, or there will shortly be neither capital nor labor in this country. There is a call here for a reconstructed economic science.

Government Banking.
The financial writer of the New York Sun insists constantly that the United States government is already in the banking business and in heavily. He says:

If the government ought not to issue notes to serve as money because it ought not to do banking, it ought not to issue the superior national money orders, and it should change its whole present fiscal system into one in which every element of banking shall be excluded.

The fact seems to be entirely overlooked that the United States treasury issued for more than half a century has been, in a certain sense, the largest bank in the country and has done a vastly bigger business in the way of receiving and paying out money, which was originally the peculiar function of a banker, than any other institution. By the independent treasury act of 1890, which was the outcome of General Jackson's long and bitter war with the United States bank, the custody of the entire national revenue was placed in the hands of the government and has ever since remained there. Two years after the passage of this act congress passed a bill intended to establish what was to be called the Federal Bank of the United States, but President Taylor, to the great disgust of the party which had elected him vice president, vetoed it, and no effort has since been made to pass another like it.

The bureau of American republics learns that three South American republics, Peru, Ecuador and Colombia, have agreed to submit to at least one difference to arbitration. There is a question concerning the real ownership of 80,000 leagues of land lying along the headwaters of the Amazon river. The land is at present held by Peru. Before the independence of Venezuela, Colombia and Ecuador this land was part of the Spanish state of New Granada. It has accordingly been taken for granted that Spain knows more about the question in dispute than any other nation, and Spain has been asked to arbitrate. When Spanish American republics can settle a difference by peaceful arbitration, it looks as though other nations ought to be able to do so.

Premiums for speed above the requirements will be no longer given by the United States to the builders of naval vessels. This is right. Builders, contractors and designers in their zeal to have their country's warships the fastest on the globe without any other reward than the satisfaction to be drawn from that fact and from the appreciation of their grateful fellow countrymen. It is just as well once in awhile still to do something for pure love of one's country. It will have a good effect on the school children.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Rev. C. E. Eaton had a fistula removed from the neck of his horse one day last week.

Albert Fleming and wife of Lowell, Mass., and were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Paige.

Crows were heard singing their lays on Sunday morning. Isn't this a sign of approaching spring?

Charles W. Kelsea, confined to the house last week by sickness. He is able this week to be out again.

Harrington & Kibbey are out with a new and attractive advertisement on 3d page. Read what they have to say to you.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Matthews and daughter spent a few days last week with relatives at Hillsboro Bridge.

Fifteen united with the Methodist church on Sunday last on probation, and four received the ordinance of baptism.

The many friends of Miss Carrie Brownell are pleased to learn that she is recovering, though slowly, from her serious illness.

Just as we go to press we learn of the sudden death of Mrs. James W. Perkins, on Tuesday night, of spasmodic asthma.

PASTURE TO LET.—A good accessible pasture on west shore of Gregg's pond, to let for season of 1895.

John B. JAMESON.
The Boston Globe says that "the engagement is announced of Miss Jennie May Jameson of this town and Oscar G. Nims of Keene."

Mr. Herbert W. Dustin, formerly of Antrim, but now in the employment of H. A. Tuttle & Co., of Pittsfield, was married to Miss Ellen F. Sanborn, Feb. 27.

Don't forget that tonight is the date for the appearance of the Musgrave Family Ladies' Quartette at Town hall. Lovers of good music and readings should be there!

Morrison Brothers & Prescott have a new dry goods advertisement in this issue. It is needless to tell you to look it over, but be sure you read the prices.

Ladies clean your Kid Gloves with Josephine Glove Cleaner, for sale only by Putney & Little, headquarters for dry goods, groceries, carpets, boots and shoes. You will find each department complete.

Mrs. Hannah Hill, who has been stopping a few weeks in the family of Charles Smith, at Wilton, has returned home, accompanied by Little Irene Smith, who will reside with Mrs. Sumner Morse for the present.

An old resident calls to inform us that at one time Antrim contained three potash establishments, three tanneries, two carding mills, and one clothing mill, in addition to other industries, and which she does not now possess.

FOR SALE.—The subscriber offers for sale, at a low price, his farm of about twenty acres; house and barn in good condition; one horse, one cow, and a lot of farming tools.

MEINRAD TROLLER, Antrim, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Atwood had a very narrow escape from suffocation one night last week, due to escaping coal gas. Mr. Atwood recovered in a day or two, and Mrs. Atwood was several days in recovering, she being somewhat indisposed at the time.

Antrim's town reports have been printed and delivered to the Selectmen. It makes a book of some forty-eight pages this year, and contains the reports of Library Trustees and Treasurer of the South Antrim Village Fire Precinct, besides other valuable reading.

James Grosvenor Wilkins died Saturday, Feb. 23d, after a lingering illness, aged 62 years and 8 months. He was a native of this town, a deaf mute, and educated at Hartford, Ct. He was a cabinet maker, and skillful in that vocation, and was an upright citizen. Mr. Wilkins married a Miss Pratt of Cambridge, Vt., also a deaf mute, who, with two daughters who are gifted with speech and hearing, survive him.

Mrs. David O. White died Saturday, Feb. 23d. Mrs. White passed nearly the whole of her married life on the place where she was brought up, her father, William Carr, succeeding to the homestead founded by her grandfather, William, who came from Goffstown in 1787. Mrs. White was born March 31, 1817. Her husband has been dead several years. The son, Andrew D. White, lives on the old homestead, having cared for his parents in their declining years.

Caucuses!
The Democrats of Antrim are invited to meet at the Selectmen's room on Monday evening, March 11, at 7:30 o'clock, for the purpose of nominating candidates for town offices.

The Republicans will caucus in the ante-room of town hall on Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of filling any vacancy in the offices of the Republican club, and to nominate candidates for town offices.

The Citizens' caucus is called for Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock, at Selectmen's room, to nominate candidates for town offices.

Wyman-Parkhurst.

To-day, at two o'clock, occurred the marriage of Mr. Lindley F. Wyman of this town, and Miss Alice M. Parkhurst of Amherst, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim A. Parkhurst, in Amherst. The nuptial knot was tied by the bride's pastor, Rev. A. J. McGowan of the Congregational church. Mr. and Mrs. Wyman returned to Antrim after the ceremony, and will reside in the tenement in Goodell Block, on Main street, which has been nicely fitted up and furnished expressly for their occupancy. We unite in extending congratulations to the newly married couple.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Jubilee Singers.
The Jubilee Singers, who sang here last year with some noted helpers, are expected to sing in the Presbyterian church on Saturday evening of this week. These singers met with such good success here last season that they are anxious to again come before our people. They give a first class concert, together with the nature of the selection generally call out a large house.

Marvelous Results.
From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Plevna Junction she was brought down Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Antrim Pharmacy. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

Auction Sale.
By SCOTT & WOODBURY, AUCTIONEERS
Administrator's Sale of Real Estate in North Branch, Antrim. By virtue of license from Judge of Probate for Hillsborough, the subscriber will sell at auction, at the late residence of Sarah A. Marshall, deceased, on Monday, March 25, 1895, at 9 o'clock a. m., the Farm, containing 80 acres, more or less, known as the Hill and Griffin Farm, situated in No. Branch village. This is one of the best farms in town, and well divided, large two story house, with sheds and large barn, all in excellent repair, and well arranged for keeping summer boarders.

Terms at sale.
A. L. MARSHALL, Administrator.
No. Branch, March 4, 1895.

Bennington.
The Dramatic club were very much pleased with their treatment by the Antrim people last week during their short sojourn in our neighboring town and are well satisfied with the results. We hope that when the Antrimites have something good they will come over and we will try and reciprocate the favor. Particularly did we appreciate the hot coffee and lunch provided, the evening we were rehearsing by one of the daughters of Bennington (who now resides in Antrim.) Such things not only warm up the inner man, but go far toward creating a friendly feeling between the two villages.

Band Concert.
On Wednesday evening last, the Antrim Brass Band held their third annual concert at town hall. The music by band and orchestra was fine, never have they played better; and the solos on cornet, mandolin, guitar and violin were pronounced excellent. The select readings of Miss Blanche Harrington were of a high order, and well fitted to the occasion. She was a reader of rare ability, such as is seldom heard in this place, and she pleased her audience more than the average reader.

The audience was not large, and the receipts were not sufficient to pay the necessary expenses of the evening. The band is a worthy institution, composed of good citizens, and should be encouraged and helped, and the people would do well to patronize their concerts. A better one than they gave on Wednesday evening last will be difficult to find in a country village.

Dramatic.
On Friday evening last the Bennington Dramatic Club presented the play, "Rose of Ettrick Vale," at Town hall, Antrim, to a large audience, by invitation from the Antrim Improvement Society. The play was listened to with marked attention, and the reproduction of this drama held the audience from the start. Every part was admirably having their respective parts fully under control as regards their commitment to memory and the manner and style of delivery.

There is an amount of tragedy, but enough humor mixed in to keep an audience good natured, and it is seldom that local talent can produce a play of this kind to perfection as did the Bennington Dramatic Club.

This club has been invited to take the play to Milford, and doubtless they will decide to do so soon. The people of that town will miss hearing and seeing a good thing if they do not attend.

THE Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co.,
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
Incorporated 1851.
THE MASSACHUSETTS NON-FORFEITURE LAW OF 1887.

1. The law is absolute. Massachusetts, now, as ever, leads in life insurance legislation.

No other State has an insurance law that ever approaches it.

The law forms the basis of the policy contract. The Company must carry out the provisions named in the law.

The law provides that no policy of life or endowment assurance hereafter issued by any Massachusetts company shall become forfeit or void for non-payment of premium after two full annual premiums are paid.

The law fixes the amount of paid-up insurance and provides that it shall become binding upon the company without any further stipulation or act.

You may forget your policy, but your policy will not forget you.

This makes every policy under the Massachusetts law, which applies to Massachusetts companies only, a bond convertible into cash on any anniversary after two full annual premiums may have been paid. In short, the policy under the condition of this enactment protects the insured, leaving no loop-hole which makes it necessary for the insured to protect his policy.

Where Our Navy Is.

The United States will have for the rest of the winter seven warships in the gulf waters south of us. This is the strongest fleet that has ever been sent out at one time from the reconstructed navy. The famous white squadron, and also the squadron of evolution, the went to Europe as the herald of the new American navy contained only four large cruisers. There are now so many United States ships of war in the Asiatic waters, even with the Japanese Chinese war on, as there will be in a few weeks in the gulf of Mexico. The flagship of the squadron is the New York, commanded by President Cleveland's friend, Captain Rowley D. Evans, famed both for his fighting qualities and the exquisite needlework embroidery he privately amuses himself with in silent hours on shipboard. The other vessels are the Cincinnati, Raleigh, Columbia and Minneapolis. The Atlanta is already on the Central American coast. The Montgomery is in the gulf waters. The New York is the largest of the ships and is an armored cruiser of 8,200 tons. From this the ships range in size down to the Montgomery, 2,014 ton cruiser. The Columbia and Minneapolis are the swiftest of the fleet, having a trial trip record of 28 knots. The New York has a record of 31 knots.

Besides these vessels there are three of our ships in Asiatic waters by this time. Another is on its way to Honolulu, while the stanch Little Castino is traveling as fast as steam can carry her by way of the Cape of Good Hope to Mozambique to look out for American interests in Madagascar. The gulf fleet will cruise about the gulf waters till warm weather, then will come north for the summer. The ships will practice evolutions and maneuvers in company, such as are so famous among the warships of Europe and such as resulted in the frightful disaster with the British Camperdown a few years ago in the Mediterranean. It is to be hoped we shall have no Camperdown accidents with our gulf fleet. The commander of the gulf squadron is Admiral Meade. The ships will be at Bluefields by the middle of February. They will be a fine sight, with their fresh paint, glistening guns and gallant crews.

The Chicago and the San Francisco are at Algiers and constitute the chief dependence of the European squadron. The Baltimore is at Valparaiso and the Concord at Shanghai.

The awful disaster to the Elbe shows how a great steamer may be destroyed by a little boat only a tenth her size. The Elbe is said, of only 496 tons. A torpedo boat could not more successfully have sunk a huge ship than the Crathie did. From the time the Elbe was struck till she was at the bottom of the sea was not more than 20 minutes, and 350 people were drowned in the waters. Many more might have been saved but for the criminal carelessness habitual to ship companies and ship officers. So few great sea disasters occur in our time that a reckless disregard of old fashioned precautions prevails. None of the large passenger steamers carry boats enough to hold all on board in case such an accident as happened to the Elbe should befall. Above all the rows of the waves and confusion on the Elbe across the fearful cry, "There are not boats enough!" That was one reason why so many were lost. Another reason is the boats are so seldom used that the sailors grow quite unaccustomed to cutting them loose and launching them in a hurry, although the law in maritime countries requires that this should be done frequently and at stated intervals. Few of those charged with the task of cutting the boats loose were accustomed to the work, and so precious time was lost. Seafaring men say that when one of the great iron steamers is struck by a severe blow amidships, she is dead certain to go down. Nothing can save her.

The exports of breadstuffs during 1894 fell off more than $61,000,000, compared with those of 1893. They amounted for 1894 to $121,297,292.

Nervous and Weak

Hood's Helped Digestion and Gave Good Appetite

Always Glad to Recommend It.

"I have not words enough to express my thanks for the great benefit I have received from a very few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was miserable and nervous all the time. I did not know what to do. My stomach would not digest my food and I could not sleep at night. When I did the next did not do me any good, for I felt worse in the morning than before I went to bed. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla my blood is purified and my appetite is good. Hood's Sarsaparilla has done a great deal for me. I recommend it very highly to all who are afflicted with any of the ailments mentioned in the name of Hood's Sarsaparilla." OLIVER A. DEARBORN, Box 452, Tilton, N. H.
