THE POET'S GIFT.
The poet books with unweaned eyes
Upon the evening's sky.
The vale and mountain, plain and brook
He reads like pages of a book.
His ear attuned, earth's melody,
The zephyr and the morning wind,
The bird's song and the woodcock's heart,
All find an echo in his heart.
He feels the charm and subtle power
Contained in every grassy flower.
For he is master of a simple child.
All living things to him are dear,
And that is ever very near.
To poets only this is true—
To find on earth a part of heaven.
—Henry Copie.

A FEUD.
"I'll tell you, Frank, it's got to be the point where something must be done," said Mrs. Burnett, and she spoke so rapped at the small knuckles that were moving toward the sugar bowl. Morton, aged 9, jerked his hand out of the sugar bowl, and he came to a halt. "What did you do?" "I took out the sugar bowl," said Mrs. Burnett, "and I'm going to get a new one." "Don't do that, Morton," said Mr. Burnett, "turning to his wife, he asked, 'What have they been doing now?'"

"That boy and some more of his crowd put the same along the top of the fence and then threw at them to knock them off. About every other stone went over the top of the fence and went sailing across our back yard. If one of them had struck anybody, he wouldn't have known what hurt him."

"What did you do?" "I went out and told them if they didn't stop I'd send for a policeman. I said to that Deakin boy, 'It's a shame your mother can't teach you to be a little better than a savage.' 'Maybe she didn't know they were doing it.'"

"Do believe she puts 'em up to it. That boy's enough to try the patience of a saint." "Next time he comes into your yard I'll bet I throw something at him, put in Morton, when his chin was dripping with a mild mixture of milk and coffee. "You leave him alone," said the male parent. "You got into enough fights already."

"Well, Frank, those boys are forever picking on him," said Mrs. Burnett. "They are a good deal of a nuisance," responded her husband. "I'll bet when he gets out he's the same as the rest of them." Morton grinned and said nothing.

The only member of the Burnett family who had not joined in the arrangement of the neighbors was Alice, 6 years of age. She knew all about the feud and shared in the suspicions of her mother, but at present she was too busy with her supper.

The Deakins lived next door, and although there was a dividing fence it had not kept the two families apart. In the year during which the two households had dwelt side by side there had been a growing enmity. Yet Mrs. Burnett had never spoken a word to Mrs. Deakin, and her husband knew nothing of Mr. Deakin, except that he worked with his hands for a living and spent a great many evenings at home.

It would have been rather difficult for either the Burnetts or the Deakins to explain how the feud started, but it was operated from the first through the children.

There were two Deakin children—Lawrence, or Larry, aged 10, and little Willie, who, at the tender age of 3, had learned to regard the Burnett tribe with scorn and hatred and suffer to some degree under the indignities heaped upon his family by that arch fiend of juvenility, Morton Burnett.

For when the Deakins sat around the supper table and cast up the accounts of the day it was Larry who passed as the persecuted and abused child, while Morton Burnett was pictured as an infant of dark intents, headed straight for the bridal veil.

"If I was a man, Tom Deakin," said the wife, "I'll warrant you I'd go over to that house and give notice that things are simply going too far. Today that boy got up on the fence and called Lawrence all kinds of names."

"The said that his mother had said that na didn't have clothes fit to wear," suggested Lawrence, who had begun to breathe hard during the recital of his grievances.

"Anyway, I don't try to make myself look like a peacock every time I start to church," said Mrs. Deakin.

This comparison of Mrs. Burnett to a peacock tickled the children, and they laughed immoderately. Tom Deakin restrained them with a quiet "Tut, tut!" and said that the proper way to get along was to pay no attention to the neighbors.

"I'd like to know how you can help it," said his wife. "That boy is up to some mischief every hour of the day, and his mother seems to encourage him in everything he does. He throws things over into our yard, tosses Willie and makes faces at him."

"Next time I see him pick on Willie I'll give him another licking," suggested Larry.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," exclaimed his mother. "Don't you remember the talking I gave you the other time you had that fight with him?"

Lawrence remembered the mild rebuke, and his inward resolution was not changed. Tom Deakin went for his pipe, oppressed with the thought that he had been very unlucky in his selection of neighbors.

These complaints had come to him day after day from the downtrodden members of his family. The feud had grown from a thousand aggravating circumstances. Suppose Morton Burnett to be on the fence. His mother would open the back door and say loudly enough to make herself heard through the open windows of the Deakin house: "Morty, get down from that fence! Haven't I told you about that?" Mrs. Deakin would hear and under-

COLUMBUS OUTDORE.

Captain Andrew's Log Reads Like a Romance of the Sea.
In a little book entitled "Columbus Outdore" Captain William A. Andrews, who has acquired fame by crossing the Atlantic in small boats, tells of his adventures in the little 14 foot boat Apollo, in which he crossed from Atlantic City to Potosi, Spain, in 1892. The voyage occupied 60 days, including a stop at the Azores islands.

During all of his four voyages he never tasted warm food. His "stores" consisted mainly of canned beef, condensed milk, ship biscuits, beef extract and canned beans. Nearing all his meals were eaten while he had one foot on the boat's tiller.

Along on the ocean for weeks at a time, without sighting a vessel, he sailed day after day. Columbus himself would scarcely have ventured on such a trip. America's discoverer had three good sized vessels, 150 men, the best equipments of the times, and in addition the blessing of the church. Captain Andrews had nothing but a coffin shaped boat 14 feet long, a little store of provisions, an old quadrant, a compass and a chart, but through all his dangers and lonely hours Captain Andrews' cheerfulness never deserted him.

"She looks like a coffin," said many who gazed at the little craft before she started. "So she does," replied her captain, with a grim smile, "and as I built her myself I will be my own undertaker if she sinks."

One week after leaving port, when the little old tub was leaking badly and death stared Captain Andrews in the face, this entry was made in the log:

"No mail today. Can't understand why my best girl don't drop me a line."

Another entry describes a bath the captain took and comments on the fact that "when you're traveling this way no bathing suit or bathtub is necessary."

One dark night a big sea nearly swamped the little craft, and this he has described in the log. "I have just turned out again. Assumptions closed my eyes a big sea came over and slipped me on the 'deck.' As I lay flat on my back I saw that good old song so popular among the fishermen, 'The Fish and the Boy' which I had learned near Harlem, New York: 'Work ye terriers, work! Tail, ye terriers, tail!'"

Three weeks out this entry appears: "Sighted lots of little fishes swimming about my boat, waiting for a dolphin to come along. Then they will go away on the inside of the dolphin."

A novel way to keep boots from wearing out is thus mentioned in the log: "Have discovered a new way of keeping boots from wearing out. Don't put them on. Haven't had mine on for a week. They are wearing splendidly."

And so on goes the log, day after day, nearly every entry containing some attempt at humor, showing the fearlessness and buoyant disposition of the lone mariner.

Philosophy in the Saloons.
The saloons, which had been the centers of intellectual life since the days of Louis XIV, took the fever seriously. They were seized with a passion for philosophy, for philanthropy, for all the whims which were taking shape in the storm laden air of those days before the flood. They embraced the ideas of Voltaire, the materialism of Diderot and D'Holbach, the pure atheism of Helvetius, or they dreamed with Rousseau and St. Pierre of a renovated humanity yielding to every impulse of nature, and by that means returning to its pristine innocence.

It is not only Walpole who grumbles that the French were no longer the same people; that they had lost their vivacity and were forever discussing. "They talk philosophy at balls," says Segur again, "and moral science in boudoirs." These people of quality, "who know everything without the trouble of learning," established clubs for the study of natural science. They attended the most learned discussions at the academies. One marquis goes to see dissections performed. Another dissects with her own hands.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Whittier's Way.
John G. Whittier was greatly loved by strangers, who not only called on him, but thriftily insisted on putting up with him all night. "Thee has no idea," said his sister, "how much time Greenleaf spends trying to lose thee people in the streets. Sometimes he comes home and says: 'Well, sister, I had hard work to lose him, but I have lost him. But I can never lose a her. The woman are more pertinacious than the men. Don't thee find them so, Maria?'"—San Francisco Argonaut.

Early.
"It seems," saidly mused the post-ago stamp that had been bought at the corner drug store, "that I am driven from pillar to post."—Cincinnati Tribune.

THE TITLE MARKET.
Showing the Fluctuations in Prices of Foreign Nobles.
The work on "change has been very dull, although prices have held up pretty well, with the exception of English lords. These closed very low, which is not to be wondered at, as that has been the tendency of the British nobility for some time. There was a time when these were certain of bringing a good figure in the American market, but in late the demand here has fallen off somewhat, and the only good figure mentioned in connection with these lately are those of the counts girls that they have been marrying. The last reported sale was at about $500,000.

Prime Italian nobles are in good demand, although the confidence of the street was shaken some time ago, when it was found that one who invoice was unsalable.

German counts closed very strong. The demand for Greek princes seems to have entirely disappeared, and we have not heard of a single transaction in this line for some time.

Quite a trade has been built up with Japan of late years, and relatives of the mikado always find quick takers. Owing to the anomalous state of the market in respect to this class of goods, we are unable to quote figures, as it is generally understood that they have usually been had for the asking.

French nobles are staple, and the prices during the last season have been above the average. This class of goods can be obtained now in open market in almost any style of package and at prices to suit all grades of buyers, ranging from $500,000 for princes of the first empire upward, until the figures for nobles belonging to families dating from Charlemagne are beyond the pocketbook of the ordinary purchaser.

Of late there has been little market for Spanish titles, as some of the more recent experiences with these would seem to indicate that they are not likely to wear well.

Early advices from our London office indicate that the business during the coming year will be larger, both in volume and amount, than ever before.—The Titie Brokerage Company, American Agents for the International Supply Company of London.—New York World.

Had Seen Similar Cases.
"That's a portrait of your grandmother as she looked when she was a young lady, is it? How strongly it resembles you, Miss Bendorfy!"

"You only say that to flatter me, Mr. Spenser. Grandmother was quite a beauty, and everybody knows I don't make any pretensions of that kind."

"Indeed, I'm not trying to flatter you, Miss Bendorfy! The family resemblance is striking. I've often known cases of that kind. They were two sisters I was acquainted with when I was a boy. They looked wonderfully alike, just as that portrait looks like you, and yet one of them was as beautiful as a poet's dream, and the other was decidedly—that is, I mean she was not at all, as neither she was looking in that—that attractive quality, you know, that constitutes—that a perfectly lovely frame this portrait has, hasn't it?"—Chicago Tribune.

His Utterance.
"And you reject my offer?" he said to her intensely. "You refuse to be the one woman in all the world to me?" "I'm afraid so," she confessed rather kindly, for she meant well.

"Then, I have but one thing to say to you, madam," he said, reaching for his hat. "I am sure you have my permission to say that. What is it?" "No draw himself up to his full height. 'There are others,' he replied haughtily and passed out of the game.—Detroit Free Press.

Too Much.
Young Tutter—Miss Clara, suppose that tomorrow evening I should call again, and having served myself up to it, suddenly, while you were conversing, I should, without a word, throw my arms around your neck and deliberately kiss you. What would you do?"

Miss Pinner—Oh, Mr. Tutter, don't ask me to look so far ahead.—Brooklyn Life.

After Dinner Speech.
Master of the House (on his fiftieth birthday to his guests)—Ladies and gentlemen, this day 50 years ago, when I first saw the light of this world—am, um—I felt not for a moment anticipate that I should see so many numerous and—am—so distinguished a company gathered around me.—Deutsche Warte.

A True Solution.
Patriot—Say, little boy, do you know why Washington crossed the Delaware? Boy—Wanted to get on the other side, I reckon.—Texas Sittings.

Which Dies First When They Die Together?
The Russian doctors have reversed the assumption of the American tribunals that when a husband and wife are drowned in the same disaster the wife dies first. The Russian doctors have tested this assumption by the man who will be the first to die, because the woman is more agile and keeps herself longer above water.

There is a Woman in Philadelphia who lived for years in a daily circle of suffering, because she thought there was no relief.

Her suffering was caused by female weakness in its worst forms. She had pain in her back and loins, great fatigue from walking, leucorrhoea, and a frequent desire to urinate.

All this time relief was close at hand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her of all weakness and disease, and she is now a different woman. This woman is Mrs. Walter Wilcox, of 736 West St., who advises all women who suffer from female weaknesses to try it also and be cured. It expels tumors, removes backache, invigorates the system.

All druggists keep it for you.

Making Himself Agreeable.
The happy father was exhibiting his first-born to a friend possessing peculiar proclivities.

"How much does it weigh?" inquired the victim, after occasionally casting about for something more complimentary to say.

"Seven pounds and two ounces," replied the happy father.

"Direct—I mean stripped?" asked the friend anxiously.

"Of course," the surprised father answered.

"Well," began the friend doubtfully, "that isn't very much for a baby, is it? But—er—er—brightening up—"It would be a good deal for a treat."—Life.

A Head With Two Strings.
"And when will you get married?" "As soon as you give me your answer."

"My answer! Why, you said you had proposed to Millicent."

"Yes, but it was only provisionally, you know—in case you refused me."

An Extreme View.
Dr. Bacillus—Kissing is dangerous. N. Trapp—Yes; it leads to matrimony.—Tit-Bits.

The Antrim Reporter

Published every Wednesday.
H. WEBSTER ELDREDGE,
Publisher and Proprietor.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1895.

The Laconia high school is to publish a monthly paper called the High School Review.

It is predicted that six political parties will participate in the presidential canvass of 1896, as follows: Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, Populist, Free Silver and A. P. A.

The late legislature united in a concurrent resolution to instruct our representative at Washington to intercede in behalf of Daniel R. Henderson to secure his election as door-keeper of the National House of Representatives.

During last week the sum of $134,000 was paid-out of the state treasury. This sum was expended for regular appropriations, for official salaries, and for the pay of the legislators and attaches, the last mentioned item alone caused State Treasurer Carter to pay out $85,000.

The Session Laws are being circulated through the different towns of the State, by being inserted in the regular issues of the city and country newspapers. In what better way could they be carried into every home in the state than this? and they will be as surely read as is the paper which they accompany.

Charles M. Dorr, National Bank Examiner for New Hampshire, has tendered his resignation to Comptroller Eckles. Mr. Eckles has appointed in his place Arthur M. Heard, who has been in the service since 1893, having been appointed by Mr. Eckles. He was sent West, and his work at the time made such a favorable impression upon Mr. Eckles that the comptroller decided to give him a more important position at the earliest opportunity.

What a great difference a few miles makes in the approach of Spring. For instance, in Antrim, there is but little evidence that Spring is close at hand other than the amount of mud on our streets; and in towns only a few miles below here on the Boston & Maine railroad the streets are as dry and clean as one cares to travel over, and in many places the grass upon the lawns is quite green. But the patient water is no worse, and about the first of May these blessings of Spring will be ours.

Dun's Business Review says that reports from New England points are very encouraging, and there is also more inquiry from the South and West. In dry goods, business in nearly all departments are good, with sales larger than last week, and during March sales of jobbers and retailers have been good. The tone in cotton goods is very firm, owing to higher cotton, and several makes have been advanced in price. The mills in some instances are sold considerably ahead, but print cloths show little increase in activity. It is the quiet season for woolen goods, as early orders have been nearly all placed, and duplicate business is small. Boot and shoe buyers are placing orders more freely at the advanced prices, leather continues very firm, though more quiet, but hides continue to advance.

The Easter Youth's Companion.
Among the many attractive and handsome Easter numbers so popular among readers of magazines and papers, The Youth's Companion excels in appropriateness to the season and in the exceptional quality of its reading matter. "The Story of a Statue," by the Marquis of Lorne, prepared for the Companion in collaboration with the Princess Louise, is an article of rare interest. "Dorothy's Easter," and "A Corner in Eggs," are two typical Easter stories well worthy of twice reading. "The Romance of a Shoal," an adventure story by W. Clark Russell, would be hard to duplicate. Each one of the entire collection of stories deserves special mention, and with the miscellany, poetry, etc., collected in this one issue is worth the price of the paper for the entire year.

It May Be Revived.
Editor of the Reporter:
DEAR SIR:—Can you, or some one else, through the columns of your paper, inform me what has become of the "Improvement Society," which was organized last year? It seemed to flourish for a time, but the last we heard of it was the lecture by Mr. Northrop. Did his remarks kill it, or shall we hear from it again this spring? I hope we may, for its object is a good one, in which I am, and I believe many others are interested, and if they will only show some signs of life, and a disposition to do something, they will find plenty of helpers ready to take hold with them, and make Antrim what it should be, one of the best and most attractive towns in the State.

Easy to Buy, Easy to Take.
You will find a true friend in Hood's Pills. When you take them you will not be disagreeably reminded of the fact by griping and agonizing pains. They contain none of the drastic drugs formerly so extensively employed. Every ingredient used in Hood's Pills is selected with care. They will break up a cold, prevent the grip and are especially valuable to regulate the liver. They cure sick headache and indigestion.

The Selectmen have completed their trips to the town to ascertain the amount of taxable property in town. They are now at work making up the taxes, and the books will soon be delivered into the hands of the collector.

It is said that there is to be considerable building going on in this place the coming season. Several houses will be erected, tenements will be added to other houses, and the Goodell Co. propose to erect a new building to take the place of the "old Hancock" shop.

Easter services will be held in the Presbyterian church Sunday, April 14th, in the place of the regular morning preaching services. "Hope's Messengers," which delighted so many last year, will be repeated, in compliance to urgent requests, and will close the hour.

Kimball & Ronch, the Hillsboro Bridge clothiers, are out this week with their new spring announcement, of which particulars will be found in their new advertisement in another column. Read it, and you will be sure to find something that will interest you.

Rev. C. E. Eaton leaves Thursday for Concord, at which place will be held the annual Conference of New Hampshire, for the Manchester District. Mr. Eaton has been unanimously asked to remain with the Methodist church here for another year.

D. H. Goodell has a sugar orchard a little back of the village which has been worked to some extent each year, and this year is no exception. Sometime between midnight Saturday and Monday morning about twelve gallons of syrup was removed from the premises and has not yet been returned.

On Wednesday last Deputy Sheriff Perkins arrested a man by the name of Carey, at Hancock, and the prisoner was housed at the Antrim "cooler" over night. Thursday morning before Judge Baker, the gentleman pleaded nolo contendere, and was put under bonds for one year to keep the peace.

Milton Tenney has added to his stock of carriages at the hotel livery, a handsome wagon with three seats, designed more especially for the conveyance of sunbathers to parties during the summer season, but can be used for most any other purpose where a carriage of this capacity is needed.

Death of Mrs. R. C. Goodell.

Mrs. Una, wife of Richard C. Goodell, passed away peacefully on Friday morning last, at her home at Maple Grove Farm. Mrs. Goodell had been in poor health since the fall of 1893, when she had a severe attack of la grippe. She spent two winters in the West on account of her health; although her life was probably prolonged yet she did not regain complete health, and in November, 1893, her eyesight completely failed and she became totally blind. She was confined to her room but a few weeks and death came suddenly at the last. Deceased was never heard to utter a word of complaint about her affliction, but invariably said: "God knows best and I do trust in Him. She often said her only regret in going to her eternal home was to leave her husband lonely.

Mrs. Goodell was a Concord lady and was married to Mr. Goodell August 19, 1892, while in Los Angeles, Cal. They returned to Antrim in June, 1893, where they have since made their home.

Mrs. Goodell was twenty-five years of age, and her disease was pronounced consumption.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at one o'clock from her late home, Rev. B. H. Lane, pastor of the Antrim Baptist church, of which deceased was a member, officiating. Quite a number relatives and friends from Concord were present.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved husband in his sad affliction.

In the Spring

Nearly everybody needs a good medicine. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the cold months must be expelled, or when the mild days come, and the effect of bracing air is lost, the body is liable to be overcome by debility or some serious disease. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a trial. We are sure it will do you good. Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people. They tell the story.

Easter at the Methodist.

The morning service on Sunday last at the M. E. church was wholly given over to the members of the Sunday school, when an Easter concert was presented, which was a very enjoyable success. Everything considered the little ones did well; the recitations and exercises were well rendered; the boys' chorus was much appreciated. Music by choir and Sunday school chorus, was under the direction of F. W. Jameson. The program:

Anthem, Easter Morning, Fillmore Choir.

Scripture Reading—D. W. Cooley.

Prayer by Pastor, and Response by Choir.

King of Bells of Gladness, Sundry School Chorus and Choir.

Recitation—Miss Blanche Cooley.

Hallelujah, Sundry School Chorus and Choir.

Recitation—Grace Burnham.

Motion Song—Infant Class.

Recitation—Mary Perkins.

Recitation—Martha Whittemore.

Song—Maud Miller, Fannie Burnham.

Remarks by Pastor, and Collection.

Recitation—Albert Fleming.

Anthem, The Lord is my Strength, Novello Choir.

Benediction.

The floral display was beautiful, the potted plants, cut flowers, lilies and evergreen, being unusually handsome; and the manner in which they were arranged showed good taste on the part of those who had this portion of the program in charge.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the county than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Grange Notes.

April 3rd was "Sister's Night" at Antrim Grange. The sisters filled the chairs in a creditable manner, considering their inexperience; Sister Nellie M. Hills, Master.

After the business meeting, a varied program was carried out for the entertainment of the brothers. First being the experience meeting of the "Do All the Good You Can Club," each member earning a small sum of money, relating their experience in rhyme, and dropping the money into the chimney of a miniature grange hall; $2.56 was contributed.

Priest Wilson would have taken a prize for her ingenious way of earning money. Her recital was received with great applause.

Songs, recitations, readings, an art gallery, a quilting party, music by Horn Comb Club, concluded by reading prophecies: "Visit to Antrim Grange in 1905."

After the meeting a social was held when corn balls and molasses-candy were served.

The next meeting will be April 22, instead of 17, when the brothers will do the work.

Forty-seven members present and one sister from Peterboro.

It was pretty tough to think about when the scientist discovered microbes in a kiss, but now Dr. Steele, an analytical chemist, has discovered that bank bills are covered with them we are all broke up.—Nhaca Democrat.

Publishers as a general thing are somewhat alike, but in regard to the above we differ with the Democrat man, and don't care a fig what the scientist says about it, if any of our fair subscribers wish to pay for the Reporter in bank bills, we take all risks with the microbes.

The Phoenix Dramatic Club played "Down by the Sea" at Town hall on Friday evening last, to a good audience, in a very taking manner. The farce as advertised—"John Smith"—was not put on as some of the pieces could not be present owing to illness, but another was put on—"Woman's Suffrage in Antrim"—which did not quite come up to the popular view of this subject as entertained by the people of this town.

The Globe of April 8 contained a very interesting editorial, in which it said that for the past few days increases of wages have been announced in many sections, which give unmistakable evidence of better times, and point to profitable season in trade and industry. The great coke producers of western Pennsylvania have advanced 15 per cent., one of the largest woolen firms in New Hampshire, having three establishments, has increased wages 15 per cent., another great woolen firm in Pennsylvania has made a similar advance, several big iron establishments have recently raised wages from 5 to 15 per cent., and one of the great firms in Lawrence, employing between 3000 and 4000 persons, announced a raise of wages last week. The Globe is in high glee over what it considers more than ordinary prospects of prosperity in the near future, and it is to be hoped that its fondest anticipations will be realized before the expiration of the term of the present administration.

BENNINGTON.

Fred Odell has returned to his duties at the Mount Hermon school.

The entertainment given by the Sons of Veterans last week was a success in every way; for which much credit is due the management.

A stranger entered the family of Robert Knowles Wednesday, March 27. It was a daughter and she met with a very cordial reception.

The people here are all very much pleased to again see among them their venerable friend and neighbor, Nathan Whitney, who has been confined to the house for about five months past with a broken limb.

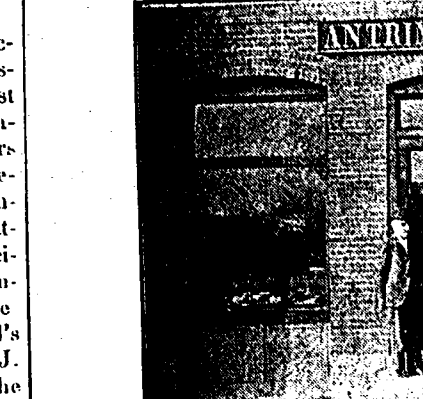

Mr. Rogers, Clerk at Monadnock paper mills, in this place, visited his home in Lowell, and also Boston, several days last week.

The roads are getting to be in very fair shape, the mud having dried away to a great degree.

Miss Mabel Richardson is somewhat improved from her illness, and her many friends hope soon to see her fully restored to health.

A Remarkable Business.

So large is the demand for Moxie, after eight years there is not room enough in the new twelve acre union station in Boston to store it, it should be used as a factory. There are now twenty factories in the United States, all the demand for the country. The company had over thirty hundred of test-tubes sent to them, and many people who had been cured of various ailments, such as nervous exhaustion, and as many of the convalescents were recovered after medicine had failed. Thousands of people write from all over the United States to congratulate the company, and state that, while using it they can do double the work they ought to and not break down. The work takes it steadily.

What are its possibilities in the future? Eight cents will win its present conditions? There is no surprise that the stock of the Moxie is not for sale. There are two reasons for its popularity, i. e., its harmless, pleasant, and its value compared with the price—12 cents per bottle if bought by the case of twelve bottles and the case returned. Signature of A. Thompson, M. D., on a label over the cork of each bottle, and pay back to the company for 30c per case, and pay back to the company for 30c per case. Address Moxie Nerve Food Co., Lowell, Mass., or apply to Goodwin's Cash Store, Antrim.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but all for no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at the Antrim Pharmacy.
