WHEN I WAS A BOY.

Up in the attic where I slept
When I was a boy, a little boy,
In through the lattice the moonlight crept,
Bringing a tide of dreams that swept
Over a low, red trundle bed,
Bathing the tangled curly head,
While the moonbeams played at hide and seek
With the dimples on the sun browned cheek—
When I was a boy, a little boy!

And, oh, the dreams—the dreams I dreamed
When I was a boy, a little boy!
For the grace that through the lattice streamed
Over my folded eyelids seemed
To have the gift of prophecy
And to bring the glimpses of time to be
When manhood's clarion seemed to call—
Ah, that was the sweetest dream of all
When I was a boy, a little boy!

I'd like to sleep where I used to sleep
When I was a boy, a little boy!
For in at the lattice the moon would peep,
Bringing her tide of dreams to sweep
The crosses and griefs of the years away
From the heart that is weary and faint today
And those dreams should give me back again
A peace I have never known since then—
When I was a boy, a little boy!

—Eugene Field.

THE GRAVE'S ODOR.

We were lolling in a couple of easy chairs on the veranda one evening after dinner, Stanfield and I, when my friend sent the glowing stump of his cheroot pirouetting down the steps, and, turning in his chair, said abruptly:

"Do you know, Dick, a man was shot once just where you're sitting?"

Naturally I was startled, and, instead of replying to Stanfield's remark, glanced uneasily down the long, ghostly veranda, of which the outer edge lay in bright moonlight, while the inner portion was wrapped in the dense shadow of the partly drawn bamboo jalousies.

"I know the feeling," said Stanfield, noting my uneasiness. "I never sit here of an evening without getting a creepy sensation all over me. The servants say the old bungalow is haunted, and I shouldn't wonder if they are right. Anyhow, if it isn't, it ought to be, for the story connected with it is an uncanny one altogether. See that hole in the jalousies there on your right?"

"Do you mean that oblong slit just above the balustrade? 'Pon my word, against the moonlight, it looks for all the world like a malignant eye!"

"So it is," said Stanfield, with a slight shiver. "It was through that hole Judge Robertson, my predecessor was shot."

"Ah, I've heard there was a strange story connected with his death, but I know none of the particulars. Suppose you light another weed and talk me out of this creepy fit."

"Talk you into a worse one, more like," retorted Stanfield, striking a fusee. "I'll wager you never heard a weirder story. But you shall have the facts and then judge for yourself."

With that he settled himself in his chair, and after puffing reflectively at his cheroot for some seconds went on to tell me the story of the shot through the jalousies:

"Robertson, you must know, was an Eton boy, like myself. We were chums, in fact, in the old days, and that is how I came to know of a peculiar tradition, if I may so name it, that is said to have been in his family for centuries.

"I don't know whether you believe in death warnings, Dick, but it seems that for hundreds of years no Robertson has ever died without first having a distinct premonition of his approaching end, and, what is more remarkable still, the warning always comes in the form of an odor, an earthy smell—the smell of a new dug grave.

"Well, about a week before his death, when he was on his way to take up his appointment here, in fact, Robertson passed through Malariabad, where I was at that time stationed as collector, and of course I put him up for the night. After dinner we were sitting smoking, just as you and I are now, when presently he says:

"'Stanfield,' says he, 'there's a devilish queer smell about. Been having any digging done on the premises?'

"'No,' said I, 'I haven't, and for the life of me I can't smell anything except these Dindiguls we're smoking.'

"'Perhaps that's what it is, then,' said he doubtfully, and for half an hour or so the subject was dropped.

"Just as we were making a move for bed, however, he suddenly grips my [illegible] and, 'Stanfield,' says he hoarsely, 'for God's sake tell me that your [illegible] have been digging somewhere [illegible] or that there's been a shower. I [illegible] get that earthy smell out of my [illegible]. It's like standing over a new [illegible] grave.'

"Just a week later, to a day, I was [illegible] in my office one morning when a [illegible] brought in a telegram. Dick, [illegible] telegram brought the news that [illegible] had been shot dead by his [illegible] at 8 o'clock the evening be[illegible]

"[illegible] own butler!" I exclaimed [illegible]

"The butler?"

"The butler, and that brings me to the explanation you asked for a moment ago. Robertson, it appears, had had a case before him in which a native was charged with maltreating his wife, a mere child barely 12 years of age, in such a brutal manner as to cause her death. Cases of that kind are far from being uncommon, as you know, and Robertson—well, he did what almost any other English judge would have done under the circumstances—gave the scamp his deserts and sentenced him to death.

"Now this occurred only a few hours before he was murdered, and you will at once suspect some hidden connection between the two events. And you are right. In passing sentence of death upon the brutal native he virtually passed sentence upon himself.

"Robertson had in his service at the time, among other servants, a butler who was related to the man he had just condemned. Whether he was aware of the exact relationship existing between the two I don't know, but I am inclined to think not. As a matter of fact, when Robertson sat down to dinner that night, after sentencing the native to death, he was waited upon by the convict's own brother.

"You observed a rifle on the dining room wall, I have no doubt, just opposite your place at table. It was from that rifle the fatal shot was fired.

"Not while Robertson was at dinner, though. The butler was too wily for that. He bided his time until his master had seated himself in his usual place here on the veranda, taken his coffee and smoked his cheroot. Then, when these had begun to make him drowsy, the fellow took the rifle from the wall—it was always kept loaded—and crept through the bedrooms to the far end of the veranda, where, as you see, the shadow lies so deep.

"Sitting as we are now, you observe that the steps between the far end of the veranda and the jalousies with the hole in it are concealed by the row of pillars, and you will readily understand how a barefooted native might creep along those steps under cover of the pillars and apply his eye to the hole without being either seen or heard. Well, that is just what the butler did. Only he did something more.

"After applying his eye to the hole he noiselessly inserted the muzzle of the rifle in the aperture, took deliberate aim at his master's heart and fired. Poor Robertson! He never knew what hurt him."

Stanfield ceased speaking, and a painful silence fell upon us both. The movement of a lizard in the jalousies through which the shot had been fired sent a thrill of horror through my nerves. I fancied I could hear the butler's stealthy footsteps and see the gleam of the rifle barrel in the moonlight. So awfully real was my conception of the whole scene that at last, in sheer desperation, I spoke and so broke the spell.

"Hadn't Robertson a wife? I have an idea that I once met her in Madras."

"He had, and speaking of her reminds me that my story is still unfinished. In fact, the most remarkable part of it is yet to come.

"About a year before her husband's death Mrs. Robertson, it seems, went home to England for her health, and when I last saw Robertson alive the night he had the strange premonition you remember—he was daily expecting her back. Well, it is a singular coincidence, but perfectly true, that the steamer she was a passenger by entered Bombay harbor on the very evening and at the very hour when Robertson was shot.

"Mrs. Robertson had gathered all her traps together, intending to disembark that night, and as soon as she heard the anchor dropped she left the cabin to go on deck. In her hand she carried a small traveling clock, and just as she reached the foot of the companion stairs she glanced at it and saw that the hour was exactly 8 o'clock. At the same moment an indescribable terror seized her. She looked up quickly, and there on the steps above her stood her husband.

She sprang up the steps to meet him, but he suddenly and mysteriously disappeared. At the top of the steps she ran against the purser.

"'There's no hurry, madam,' said he, 'the tender's not alongside yet.'

"'But my husband!' cried Mrs. R. 'I saw him here just now. How did he come aboard?'

"'Madam,' replied the purser, 'you must be mistaken. Not a living soul has boarded the ship tonight.'

"And he was right, for if Mrs. R. saw anything, as she declares she did, it must have been the spirit of her dying husband."

"Let us go in," said I, rising hastily. "This night air has given me a chill."

Patrons of Husbandry.

Wednesday evening, Dec. 7, the Antrim Grange celebrated the 15th anniversary of its life and service in this community. For sometime the meetings were held in the houses of the members and, later as the friends of the Grange know, the old town hall was bought and fitted up for the permanent home of the Patrons. Of the seventeen original members only three now remain and they were present at the anniversary and they were Ex-Gov. D. H. Goodell and wife and Walter Buchanan. There are now seventy members and the organization is in a prosperous condition in every particular.

New Hampshire has the largest number of members according to the population of any state in the Union. The organization as a body is doing a large amount of solid work and their threefold purpose of social, literary and economic life, is making the body at once and for all time very potential in the life and influence of farmers and the class of intelligent citizens represented by them.

During the evening of the anniversary a very pleasant and interesting program was presented, consisting of songs, music, recitations, dialogues, history and prophecy and addresses. The address by Ex-Gov. Goodell was especially pertiment and covered the history of the grange in these parts, but more particularly in reference to the moral and temperate character of the individual members. Captain Dutton of the Hancock Grange also made an excellent speech. Members were present from Bennington and Hancock.

A very fine supper was served and the time spent in social and literary intercourse was very highly enjoyed by the large number of Patrons from the home and visiting Granges.

The Antrim Grange starts out on its new year of life with the hearty good wishes of its friends and patrons.

The sooner a cough or cold is cured without harm to the sufferer the better. Lingering colds are dangerous. Hacking cough is distressing. One Minute Cough Cure quickly cures it. Why suffer when such a cough cure is within reach? It is pleasant to the taste. Chas. H. Martin of Antrim. Eaton Bros., Hancock.

Not Content to Stop.

The people of New England may always be relied upon to know a good thing when they see it. That explains the remarkable success of the Boston Sunday Journal in its new form and with its new features. Its circle of readers is growing by thousands each week. Its change in the size of its pages marked a distinct advance. Its large increase in number pages gave to the purchaser greater value than he had ever had before. The Boston Sunday Journal, too, is the only Boston paper which uses the half-tone process in illustration, a process which is a direct and accurate reproduction of the photograph. The Boston Sunday Journal reader gets too without extra cost, the New England Home Magazine, in itself the most expensive feature ever offered by a newspaper. But the Journal is not content to stop here. Next Sunday will be inaugurated a musical section, an eight-page additional part filled with choice instrumental and musical compositions.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy
CURES ALL KIDNEY, STOMACH AND LIVER TROUBLES.

Your Danger Now

Is from the over worked condition of the liver and kidneys which are unable to expel impurities from the blood. This causes rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been wonderfully successful in curing this disease. It neutralizes the acid in the blood and permanently cures the aches and pains which other medicines fail to relieve. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best winter medicine because it purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood. It gives help when help is needed. It tones the stomach, stimulates the liver and arouses and sustains the kidneys. It wards off pneumonia, fevers, bronchitis, colds, coughs and the grip.

Identification of the bodies found along the Cape will be vastly expedited by bringing them to Boston. There is general approval of the action of the governor in ordering the state police to see to this sad duty. It is hard enough for stricken relatives to face the enevitable; and everything we can do toward alleviating their sorrow is the true duty of Massachusetts.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snow-storm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will

Ayer's Hair Vigor

melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address,
DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

HANCOCK.

We are sorry to note that Mr. John R. Hill, one of our esteemed citizens, has had a relapse of his serious illness of last spring, and is now very ill at the house of his son, Almon Hill.

E. T. Munhall has engaged with Mr. Stratton, blacksmith, at East Jaffery. He will remove his family there as soon as a tenement can be secured.

Martin V. B. Elliott has sold his farm to George Starkweather, and at the recent sale bought the H. P. Runels farm.

A Christmas cantata is being prepared under the direction of Mrs. W. E. Putnam, to be presented on the 25th.

Rev. Mr. Chapin still occupies the pulpit.—Transcript.

Constipation prevents the body from ridding itself of waste matter. De Witt's Little Early Risers will remove the trouble and cure Sick Headache, Billiousness, Inactive Liver and clear the Complexion. Small, sugar coated, don't gripe or cause nausea. Chas. Martin of Antrim, Eaton Bros., Hancock.

GREENFIELD.

Good, snug winter weather, but the traveling is not the best.

Fred Martell has moved into Fred Atherton's tenement opposite the black-smith shop.

W. L. French of Nashua was at his father's, Geo. W. French's, a day or two last week.

C. H. Hopkins will soon pack his grip, take Mrs. Hopkins and start for sunny Florida.

Hugh McCanna finished his juror duties and arrived home from Nashua Saturday.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

"Digests what you eat."

When you have eaten too much, or when you suffer from any form of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, remember that Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It cures the worst forms of Dyspepsia. Chas. H. Martin of Antrim, Eaton Bros., Hancock.

If you call in the evening and ask a girl to go and ride with you and she tells you that she can't go for a few minutes as she has to help her mother wash the dishes, you sit right down and wait for her, for if you don't some other fellow will come along and get her and you have lost an angel.

When you ask for De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve don't accept a counterfeit or imitation. There are more cases of Piles being cured by this, than all others combined. Chas. H. Martin of Antrim, Eaton Bros., Hancock.

Once we were young and now we are not, and yet we have never seen a girl that was unfaithful to her mother that was worth the price of a theatre ticket to her husband. Now boys this is just as true as gospel and you don't want to do any experimenting on this either, for a misfit marriage is no joke.

Late to bed and early to rise, prepares a man for his home in the skies. But early to bed and a Little Early Riser, the pill that makes life longer and better and wiser. Chas. H. Martin of Antrim, Eaton Bros., of Hancock.

An Iowa girl advertised for a husband and got him The advertising and wedding fixtures cost $1. Within a year he enlisted in the Spanish-American war and was killed at Santiago, leaving his wife $3000 insurance in the E. W. A. This wife will, in addition to this, be drawing a widow's pension in a short time. Yea, verily, it pays to advertise.—Ex.

Soothing, healing, cleansing. De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is the implacable enemy of sores, burns and wounds. It never fails to cure Piles. You may rely upon it. Chas. H. Martin of Antrim, Eaton Bros., of Hancock.

Are You in Fashion?

If not, you should join the procession at once.—The people of New England know where to look for the news in war times as in days of peace, consequently they bought The Boston Globe in 1898 as they never had before that, or any other Boston newspaper. The average circulation of The Globe for the first 11 months of the year was,

Daily Globe, 233,286
Sunday Globe, 269,563

These figures are a cridit to New England. Her people may well be proud of the fact that the Boston Globe has a larger circulation than any other two-cent daily paper in the United States. Do you read The Globe. If not you are not in fashion. Try it for 1899.

BACKACHE.

Mrs. Pinkham speaks earnestly to women suffering from this discouraging complaint.

Backache is one of the most common of woman's troubles and one of the most wearing.

It is not an acute pain, but a most distressing, wearying sensation, making work almost impossible and indicating disease of the feminine organs.

A common mistake is to treat backache in women with local external applications, calling it "a little spinal irritation" or a "touch of rheumatism."

Do not be deceived; your backache means serious trouble for you unless the cause of it is removed.

All uterine and ovarian difficulties are relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Such relief progresses in almost every case to a complete cure. With relief of these troubles backache disappears.

Mrs. M. E. MULLER, 16 Franklin St., Providence, R. I., writes:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for backache. The pain was something dreadful; at times I could not walk straight. Now I am all right and enjoy good health. I feel like a new woman. You do not know how thankful I am that I have got my health back, and I have you to thank for it. Your medicine is the best that I have ever used. I advise all ladies to try it, and I am sure it will give unbounded satisfaction. I will recommend it to every friend I have.

Miss LIZZIE KOELLA, 529 Tecumseh St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound enough. For about a year I was sick with the backache. I could not work, could not sleep at night, and did not care to live. About two months ago I saw your advertisement in a paper, and thought I would try your Compound. To-day I feel like a new person. I am just enjoying health; never felt so good in my life. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends, who are now using it, and think it is just splendid.

A woman of experience in these matters understands women, and Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., has a wider experience than any physician, male or female. She offers you her counsel free of charge, and it is a friendly, sympathetic counsel. No man sees your letter or its answer at any time, and to secure the best advice it is necessary that you should be perfectly frank, this you can be to one of your own sex.

When the Prisoner Said

A celebrated judge ... a case where the accused could only understand Irish, and an interpreter was accordingly sworn. The prisoner said something to the interpreter, and the latter replied.

"What does he say?" demanded the judge.

"Nothing, my lord."

"How dare you say that when we all heard him? Come, sir, what was it?"

"My lord," said the interpreter, beginning to tremble, "it had nothing to do with the case."

"If you don't answer, I'll commit you, sir. Now, what did he say?"

"Well, my lord, you'll excuse me, but he said, 'Who's that ould woman with the red bed curtain round her sitting up there?'"

At which everybody present roared.

"And what did you say?" said the judge, looking a little uncomfortable.

"I said: 'Whist, ye spalpeen! That's the old boy that's going to hang you.'"

Fish In Nantucket.

The residents of Nantucket are said to be so well satisfied with their small island that they care but little for the outside world. Naturally many of the men are employed in fishing, and the old fishermen delight to tell of the foolish questions asked by the "rusticators" who visit Nantucket in summer. One summer visitor, in turn, tells this story of the town fish market:

"Have you any salmon?" I asked of the old salt, who was sharpening a knife.

"No, ma'am," he answered, and then he added, in a pleasantly condescending way, "We don't sell nothin but fish here."

"Well," I responded, "salmon is fish, you know. They are caught in all"— But he interrupted me.

"Land! I know folks eat all sorts of things. I hear about 'em eatin frogs and callin them fish. Folks are strange in their eatin, same as they be in their clothes," with a critical glance at my bicycle skirt, "but all the fish that folks ought to eat can be caught right round these shores. Can't I sell you a nice bluefish, that ain't been out'n the water more'n an hour?"

Not knowing any better way to regain his good opinion, I purchased the bluefish and went meekly home.—Youth's Companion.

Love Taps.

Marital relations in Ireland are as a rule of the most harmonious character, and if a husband and wife do fall out occasionally and even resort to blows they think nothing the worse of each other in the end. Pill Lane is a classic locality in Dublin, which might with some truth be described as the Billingsgate of the Irish metropolis. "That's a fine black eye you've got, missis," said a man to a woman sitting over her basket of fish in Pill Lane. "Fightin, I suppose, ag'in." "No, I wasn't fightin," replied the fishwoman. "Himself (her husband) it was that gave me that," and, facing fiercely round on her questioner, she added, "and I'd like to know who had a better right."

A laborer, out of employment, applied for outdoor relief for himself and his wife at the North Dublin union. "Well, my good fellow, we must have evidence that you are legally married," said the chairman of the relief committee. "Begor, sir, I've the best proof in the wurruld," said the applicant, and bending his head he displayed a scar on his skull. "Does yer honner think," he added, "I'd be after takin that abuse from any wan but a wife?"—Macmillan's.

Diseases of Memory.

Writing of diseases of the memory, a Russian doctor gives an interesting account of some of the eccentricities of his patients. In the case of a literary man, some time previous to his seeking advice he had been troubled with an absolute failure of memory.

He could remember exactly everything he had done more than a year ago, but occurrences of later date he had entirely forgotten. When attacked by the disease, he was engaged in writing a novel, which he had half finished. He remembered the first half, but could not tell how he had intended to finish it. He was at last unable to remember whether he had dined.

In another case the patient tells of his travels, but repeats the tales a dozen times an hour, with the same phrases. He would play a game of cards carefully and well; five minutes afterward he would mention that he had not played for weeks. He would say "Good morning!" when the doctor made his first visit of the day, but did not remember the visit three minutes later if the doctor again looked in.—London Tit-Bits

Really a Kind Man.

"Did you see anything of a pocketbook that I dropped somewhere in the bedroom I occupied last night, landlord?"

"Any money in it?"

"About £100."

"Yes, sir. Here is your pocketbook, with the money. The maid was honest enough to bring it to me, and I locked it up in the safe."

"Ah, very correct proceeding, very. I had intended placing the money in the bank this morning, where it would have been drawing 4 per cent. As a reward for your honesty I will say nothing about the interest for the time it has been in your possession, and you can make it square with the chambermaid. There is nothing small about me when I run across a man who seems to be trying to do what's right."—London Telegraph.

An Old Missouri Bridge.

There is an old lattice bridge across the North Fabius creek, near Monticello, Lewis county, that was built in the year 1845. It is said that it was the first bridge of the kind built in north Missouri. The timber was taken from government land and was sawed into lumber at a water mill and with whipsaws. The contractors were seven months on the job, for which they received $100.—Kansas City Journal.

The German Pooh Bah.

"I don't know that there is much use of my keeping my school open more than a month or two each year," said the German pedagogue.

"Why is that?"

"Our emperor has simplified matters to such an extent that when you ask the name of the world's greatest poet, painter, musician, general, traveler or monarch there is only one answer to all the questions."—Washington Star.

Among Other Things.

"So you've lost your new servant already?" remarked a lady sympathetically to a neighbor.

"Yes."

"What time did she go?"

"I really can't tell," was the reply. "She took my watch with her."—Roseleaf.

There are more spoiled men and women than spoiled children—only we do not hear so much about them.—Boston Transcript.

... had occasion to consult ... on a certain matter ... his letter, received an invitation to sleep the night at the palace. For 40 or 50 years he had practically led the life of a recluse, and it was after many cogitations that he decided to take the journey to the other end of the diocese, where the bishop lived. He arrived just in time for 5 o'clock tea, a meal to which he was a complete stranger.

After tea the bishop asked him to accompany him to evensong. When they returned to the house, the bishop, remarking that it was quite time they went up stairs, lit a candle and showed his guest to his room. It was then just 7 o'clock, and, though the old clergyman thought it was rather early to retire, still, admiring the bishop for such simple habits, he prepared for bed. He had just put out the light and lain down to sleep, wishing he had drunk a little more tea, when a booming noise rang through the house and smote upon his ear.

Quick as thought he sprang from his bed and, shouting "Fire!" at the top of his voice, rushed out on to the landing just in time to meet the bishop, with a lady on his arm, going down to dinner. The sequel to the story has never been divulged.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Lost Opportunity.

It was near one of the large railroad stations. A man rather advanced in years, whose old fashioned attire and open mouthed wonderment proclaimed that he was a visitor from the rural districts and not accustomed to the everyday sights of a large city, was suddenly accosted by a sharp visaged youth with, "Mister, yer dropped yer wallick." As he spoke he held forth a large wallet well stuffed with old revenue stamps covered with a couple of dollar bills.

Uncle Rube looked at the greenbacks bulging out of the wallet with equally protruding eyes, hesitated just one moment, and then, his cupidity evidently getting the better of him, reached for it. "Hold on; give us a tenner furst," exclaimed the possessor of the wallet.

The old man quickly put his hand in his trousers pocket; but, after a moment, drawing forth his empty hand, he drawled out, "Take it out o' the wallet."

The youth, closing the wallet with ill concealed disgust, turned on his heel and hurried off. The stranger in town looked after the youth a moment, and then, muttering, "Gol dern! Missed it ag'in. I told Sal I'd need more'n $3," he resumed his peaceful way.—Philadelphia Record.

Leaving It to the Jury.

A story is told of a judge who up to his death sat on the crown side on the South Wales circuit. Counsel for the defense once asked leave to address the jury in Welsh, and, the case being a simple one, permission was given without demur. He said but very few words; the judge also did not think much comment was necessary, but was somewhat startled by a prompt verdict of acquittal.

"What was it," he afterward inquired, "that counsel said to the jury?"

"Oh, he just said: 'This case, gentlemen, lies in a nutshell. You see yourselves exactly how it stands. The judge is an Englishman, the prosecuting counsel is an Englishman, the complainant is an Englishman. But you are Welsh, and I am Welsh, and the prisoner is Welsh. Need I say more? I leave it all to you.'"

The judge did not allow the experiment to be repeated of addresses to the jury in a vernacular which he did not understand.—London Mail.

Down and Up.

"I don't understand it at all," she said, knitting her brows with a puzzled look.

"What?" he asked.

"Why, I heard you telling about that deal you went into with Mr. Brown, and you said he dumped you good and hard."

"That was right."

"But not more than five minutes later the subject came up again, and I heard you say that he threw you up in the air."

"That was right too."

It looked like a hard problem, but with the aid of a slang dictionary she was able finally to solve it.—Chicago Post.

Why Bill Was Discomfited.

Blizzard Bill went up to the new parson's house with an unpleasant errand in view. He meant to run him out of town.

Three hours later he met Ginger Joe. Ginger looked him over.

"Grizzly or dynamite?" he softly inquired.

Bill looked at Ginger through his half shut eyes.

"You're a derned pretty sort o friend, you are!" he hoarsely growled. "Why in merry thunder didn't you tell me the parson was an army chaplain?"
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

According to Promise.

"Now that you've got your dog again," said the rough looking man, pocketing the reward, "you might ask me if I wouldn't like something to drink."

"You forgot, sir," sternly replied the owner of the animal, "that I said in my advertisement 'No questions asked.'" —Chicago Tribune.

He Registered.

"I will register for another piece of pie, ma," said a precocious urchin.

"My son, you have cast one thoughtless ballot of pie down your throat. There shall be no stuffing the digestive ballot box in this family."

And the little fellow hung around the supper without avail.—Golden Days.

Flattering.

Reggie's Fiancee—You know, Reggie, that girls are being called by the names of flowers now, and my sister suggested that I should be called Thistle.

Reggie—Oh, yes, I see—because you're so sharp.

She—Oh, no! She said it was because a donkey loved me.—Pick Me Up.

A Word of Warning

The trouble with thousands of women is not "female weakness," although many physicians suppose it is. The real trouble lies in the Kidneys, Liver and Bladder. Doctors often fail to effect a cure, simply because they don't give the right remedy. Women as well as men can ascertain for themselves if their Kidneys are diseased. Simply fill a bottle or glass tumbler with urine and let it stand a day and a night. If there is a sediment at the bottom, something is wrong with the Kidneys. If there is a desire to urinate often—if there is a pain in the small of the back—if the urine stains linen—look out! The Kidneys are diseased.

Ladies can take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with perfect assurance of relief. It will cure them of Kidney, Liver and Bladder disorders just as certainly as it cures men.

MRS. G. W. DAVENPORT, of West Troy, N. Y., says: "I was troubled with my Kidneys, and suffered intense pain in my back and loins. The wife of Dr. Robinson, pastor of the First Avenue Methodist Church, recommended Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. I got some, and have used it ever since, with the result that I am greatly benefited. All pains have left me, and I am like another person."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a perfect blood and nerve medicine. It restores the liver to a healthy condition and cures the worst cases of constipation. It is a certain cure for all diseases peculiar to females.

CURED BY

SMITH'S Green Mountain RENOVATOR.

40 YEARS OF SUCCESS IN VERMONT

When the blood is contaminated, Nature does her best to expel the dreadful poisonous secretions that threaten life. In discharging these poisonous secretions through the pores of the skin much damage is done. This is not strange, as the matter which contaminates the blood is often of a malignant, corrosive nature.

Smith's Green Mountain Renovator cures all skin eruptions by enabling Nature to discharge the blood poisons through the natural channels. If you are sufferer from impure blood, take this great vegetable remedy. Do not delay. Remember that if the poisons in the blood are of such a virulent nature as to produce awful sores on the body, the same poisons must be demolishing the internal organs in a much more terrible manner. You can be cured by taking Smith's Green Mountain Renovator surely and quickly.

"I have been troubled with scrofula or something of that nature for more than twenty years. Sores appeared on my limbs, and the disease seemed to go to my stomach and I would be sick. I tried many remedies which either did me no good at all or made me worse. Last January I was advised to try your Green Mountain Renovator. I took about seven bottles, when the sores on my limbs were healed and I felt well all over. I know that your medicine has cured me. DAVID B. FOX, Charlestown, Mass."

We could give many other testimonials of people who have been cured of severe blood poisoning, even of cases of syphilis in an advanced stage.

Every bottle of this remedy is sold under a guarantee ...
