500 0000 0000 0000 0000 0000 THE OLD BLUE JAR

Militown for the summer she made up her mind that she would bend all her energies to wheedle Aunt Phoebe out of the eld blue ginger jar that Uncle Julius had brought home from China, little thinking that the old slant eyed, fat sided mandarin would take such a jocular interest in her joys and sor-

The old blue jar had perched for many years on the corner of the high mantelpiece in the old fashioned country parlor, and Aunt Phoebe knew that If she gave it to Clementine she would have a dreadfully lonesome feeling every time she stood on a chair to dust the old clock, the shells, the peddler vases, the leather fans and other companions of its lofty abode. But Clementine was an accomplished wheedler, and the fond old annt finally said she might have her wish.

When Aunt Phoebe gave over to Clementine her right and title to the old blue jar, Randall was leaning in the window and idly sifting rose leaves from the old climbing vine through the meshes of his tennis racket. He sympathined with her lively admiration for the antique and unique in china and was glad that she had attained her heart's desire, but a more absorbing interest possessed his manly breast.

Clementine was going home in the morning, and he had been trying in vain for several days to get the feeble courage of his ardent convictions up to the declarative point. She was such a lively, fun loving girl, and love, you intensely serious business. Several times Randall fancied he had found her in a sober and properly receptive frame of mind, when with a trifling jest she would defeat his intention and put the little god to

Now, however, when the slant eyed mandarin on the blue jar winked at him through the vines, Randall said to himself enthusiastically:

"Well, old boy, that's the very thing! Thank you for the bright idea! Are they all as clever as you are over in

That night, in his room under the eaves, he constructed an eloquent letter to Clementine and in the early merning sneaked into the parlor and deposited it in the robust bosom of the old blue mandarin.

"If she finds it before she goes home, it is all right," said the timorous, adoring fellow, "and if she doesn't find i until afterward it will be all right too. But the mandarin felt a little funny that day, so when Clementine packed her trunk he inspired her to stuff the ginger jar full of her silken hose, that the precious article might take no risks of breakage in its voyage. So when Randall parted from her at the station she made no sign of knowing anything in particular, and his bopeful heart de elded that she would surely find the letter when she reached home, and would then bear from her. Now, Clemintine was a girl who al ways had a great many things on her mind, and when she had unpacked the treasured jar and placed it on a dainty table in her pretty parlor-with a self congratulatory thought that it was so respectable to have things that one's relative had brought from China-she wholly forgot the curious load that the mandaris had on his breast. She missed her silken bose, of course, and pestered Aunt Phoses with messages about

Randall waited for the answer to his letter. Awhile he waited patiently, then impatiently awhile, and then dived into his law books with that osure of settled distress" which lovers have known in every age and clime. He did not dream that the slant eyed marderia would be guilty of the unquedisminist trick of intercepting a sides, he toyed with the lid of the Jar. and the slant eyed mandarin appeared to wink at him three times very know-

Under some occult but imperative pressure Randall removed the lid and touched with his finger the silken texture of some mysterious contents. Curiosiv further constrained him and he pulled from the bosom of the now jubilant mandarin a pale blue article of singular description for a parlor ornament, and, following it, he extricated a pale pink strip of similar shape and structure.

Turning to Clementine for explanation of these unformeen apparitions, he found her speechless with wild eyed astonishment, and without a word or gesture she seized the old blue jar and hurried from the room.

Randall smiled the first real, soul felt, refreshing smile that he had indulged in for several months and vowed by the pigtail of the old slant eyed that he would stay rooted to the spot until Clementine returned.

What she said to the genius of the jar as she flew up stairs with it only the mandarin can reveal. As kandall paced the parlor, pulling his mustache and wondering if Clementine's keen sense of humor would carry her safely through the trying hour, she came shamefacedly into the room, bearing in one hand the blinking old mandarin and in the other the pleading letter he had borne so long hid in his clever old bosom.

Randall met the dear girl more than half way, and as she whimpered gently on his shoulder he promised never, never, never to tell.

And when they were married, if you believe me, that ridiculous old ginger jar accompanied them on their wedding trip, and Randall packed the bosom of the grotesque mandarin full of Clementine's bridal roses, there to fade and there forever to remain.

Now, as Randall never told and Clementine never told, the entire responsibility of this revelation lies between you and me and the ginger jar.

The Big Ships of the Past. Gigantic as are the sea monsters devised by the modern shipwright, we have not reached the dimensions of the Mannigafual of Frisian legend, whose masts were so high that a boy sent aloft to "bear a hand" came down a gray headed man, whose deck was so spacious that the captain had to gallog about on horseback to give his orders and whose length was so great that when swinging in the channel her stern scraped the cliffs of Albion white, while her bowsprit swept the forts at Calais. But we have exceeded in some respects the dimensions of Ptolemy's great ship, which was 420 feet long, 57 feet broad and 72 feet in depth of hold and which carried 4,000 rowers and figure of an Indian which surmounts soldiers and passengers. Of the great ship of Hiero, king of Syracuse, the dimensions have not been recorded, but she was at least as large as Ptolemy's "60,000 measures of corn, 10,000 jars of sait fish, 20,000 talents' weight of wool were the marks of the candle. The and of other cargo 20,000 talents, in ad dition to the provisions required by the crew," and that she was so large ne harbor in Sicily could contain her. This problem of harbor accommoda

We frequently hear the expression "God bless you!" uttered after some one has sneezed. The expression, it we can believe Clodd in his "Childhood of the World," dates back to the time of Jacob. We are told in Jewish literature that previous to his time men ancesed but once in a lifetime and that was the end of them, for the shock slew them. Jacob prevailed in prayer and had the fatality set aside on the condition that among all the nations a speeze should be hallowed by the words, "God bless you!" BIG ENOUGH TO HIT.

So Thought the Small Boy, but the Man Thought Differ

He wasn't very big, but he was sturdy little chap with a face that bore the marks of much thinking and premature responsibility. I learned afterward that he was supporting a crippled mother and an invalid sister who had been left belpless in the world by the death of her father. He might have run away from home and evaded the responsibility, but he didn't think of it. He just sold papers. At the loop on Fifteenth street a crowd was gathered, waiting for the evening cars. A ragged young girl was selling flowers at the Fifteenth street end of the waiting station when a man, rushing to catch his car, knocked her against the side of the building. Without stopping, probably not having noticed what he had done, he continued his rush, when the boy stepped in front of him deflantly. "Say, what do you want to knock # girl down for? Hit me. I'm big enough." The man paused in surprise and then stanced around. He saw the flower girl picking up her wares and understood. Without a moment's hesitation he went back to her, gave her enough money to make her eyes sparkle with joy and said:

"I'm sorry, my dear, that I hurt you I didn't see." Then, turning to the boy, he continued: "You said you were bigenough, young man, but you're a great deal bigger than you think. Men like you will have a lot to do with keeping this old world in a condition of self respect.

Then he caught his car, and the boy and the girl stood there wondering what he meant.—Denver Times.

DREAMS WHICH HAPPEN. L Robbery That Was Witnessed by a Woman During Sleep. A lady spending the summer in the country, some 20 miles from her city residence, dreamed that the latter was robbed, she herself being a witness of the robbery. In her dream she saw two men, one of whom limped, in the act of rummaging some trunks in the hall. A candle stuck by means of its own wax on the newel post illuminated the scene with a dim light. After finishing their work with the trunks the men went up stairs to a closet, from which they removed curtains and hangings stored for the sum mer months. The dreamer observed that they overlooked her most valuable curtains, which had been placed well back on upper shelves.

Suddenly she seemed to be transport ed to her birthplace at Auburn, N. Y., where she especially noted the bronze rison edifice. At breakfast the next morning she related her vivid dream to those present, five of whom are now living and vouch for the fact. Subsequently it considering that her freightage was was found that the city house had been entered and robbed. On the newel post were the marks of the candle. The curtains had all been taken but the best set, which were found where the dreamer had seen them.

Suspicion was directed to a painter who had been at work on the house who was lame and who disappeared immediately after the robbery. Investigation of this man's character showed that he had served a term in the Auburn peniteutiary.—Health Culture.

France and the Potate. There was much difficulty in introducing the potato into France. It was only toward the end of the reign of Louis XIV that it began to be used. The learned had opposed its introduction systematically, saying it produced leprosy, and the common people refused to test it even on their live stock. A trick at last established it. Fields were planted all over France with po tatoes and carefully guarded until the tubers were ripe, it being given out that these fields were growing a new thing specially for the king and that trespassers would be prosecuted. Now. the laws at that time were severe. A man might be hanged when he hunted in the wild forest, for the game was the seigneur's, almost each one of whom kept his private gallows. Trespass against the king implied, thereore, terrible punishment.

The danger of the punishment proved itself an alluring balt. As the contriver, wise in foresight, had seen, the fields that were purposely left unguarded were pillaged right and left, the potatoes eaten, some kept and planted and the tuber at last effectually introduced in France.

EASY "SURE THINGS."

multions That It Is Safe Bet Against.

There are many things which at first accomplishment that it is pretty safe to bet a man he cannot do. Most people know that the human hands are not strong enough to break a new laid egg if the hands are clasped and the egg laid endwise between the palms. It is said that the pressure required to break an egg in this manner amounts to tons. Among other safe bets is a wager that 'a man cannot rise from a chair without bending forward or putting his feet under the chair or outside of it. Many a man will back himself to give another a start of 50 yards in a dash of 100, provided the man having the start hops all the way. But no runner, however swift, can give that amount of start to an ordinary man. For the first five yards they go at practically the same pace. Therefore the runner, to go 25 yards while the "hopper" goes 45, would have to run more than twice as fast, and it would be a weak man who could not hop 45 yards at a pace equal to 20 seconds for 100 yards, and that would mean that the runner in order to win would have to beat all previous records.

If a man boasts that his penknife is particularly sharp, ask him to cut with one stroke of the blade one of those yellow ribbons, mostly of silk, which come around bundles of cigars. In 999 cases out of 1,000 the knife is not sharp enough to do this. It will cut through all the ribbon but the last strand, and that will pull out long, and the more he tries to cut it the longer it will pull

"In the Swim."

This phrase is, one fears, bad English in so far as it has acquired a neupron of vulgarity which, in the first place, perhaps, it did not possess, since it is thought to have originated from angiers being in luck when they find a swim or "school" of fish. Thus it has come to mean being in the popular current either in opinion, speculation or fashion dans le mouvement, in the wegge with ethers. It is possible that the phrase was suggested to anglers by the eastern metaphor "To swim in golden land," meaning to be prosperous.

swim in golden lard" (B. Jonson Fox." I. i).

Webster gives it as colloquial and says the meaning is "to be in a favored position; to be associated with others in active affairs." The Imperial Dictionary also classes the phrase in the same way and describes "the swim" as "the current of social or business events; the tide of affairs; the circle of those who know what is going on." The Dictionary of Phrase and Fable gives the origin as from an angler's phrase and says, "A lot of fish gathered together is called a swim, and when an angler can pitch his book in such a place he is said to be 'in a good swim.' -Notes and Queries.

"These eggs, of course, never find their way into the market because they are never taken from their nest except by such persons as I have mentioned, and they rob the nests, I suppose, because their principal food supply comes from this source. Quail meat comes pretty high in the market at all times, and the average-man will find it more profitable to spare the eggs and wait for the birds when the hunting season rolls around. These men would pass 100 nests in one day without disturbing an egg. The sport of hunting the birds is an additional incentive. "The average negro does not care so much about this aspect of the case. He figures that the white man, having the best gun and the best dog, will beat him to the bird. So he goes after the egg. One partridge will lay anywhere from 12 to 20 eggs, and a nest is a good find. I know of many families in rural sections who feast on these eggs in the laying season. I have tried the egg myself as an experiment. I found it peculiarly rich. It has a good flavor, is very palatable and in fact is altogether a very fine thing to eat. Really I believe that the egg has more nutrition in it than the fully developed bird, but of course, as one of the men fond of the game in the field, I would like to discourage the robbery of the nests."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

To the Citizens of Antrim:—

President Roosevelt has appointed THURSDAY NEXT, September 19th, the day on which the body of the late dead President will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States; and Governor Jordan has appointed the same day to be observed by the people of New Hampshire; and it is our wish to supplement their recommendation by this appeal to the people of Antrim:-

We earnestly recommend that business be suspended on that day, that the people gather at the Town Hall, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and that the Grand Army and kindred societies and Schools so far as possible attend in a body, to pay homage to the virtue and public services of President McKinley, and to invoke the protection and guidance of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe for our beloved country, and for him who has had so suddenly thrust upon him the grave responsibilities of President.

MR. EDITOR:

I noticed in your editorial column last week an article on the post-office matter in Antrim. Now, I hope you will pardon a few remarks from a straight Republican along this line. I think the people desire to be heard in this matter and will gladly welcome a caucus for the choice of a candidate for post-master for the coming four years, beginning

I sincerely hope, with lots of rons of the office will come together in caucus and select their cured. I am sure Electric Bitters appointment of the present inparty man should be.

AND HOW TO OBTAIN IT.

100,000 Shares of Stock Offered at 50e on the Dollar.

For the purpose of further developing their holdings the Company has decided to place One Hundred Thousand shares of stock—par value one dollar—at Fifty cents a share. There is no oil proposition before the people to day that offers such rich returns—with absolute safety of investment.

6 Per Cent. Guaranteed for 8 Years

The first one hundred thousand shares, besides being non-assessable, are guaranteed to pay six per cent. Interest annually for eight years. Every single share of the first one Hundred Thousand sold will bear the endorsement of The Continental Building and Loan Association of San Francisco, a trust Company incorporated under the laws of California, for Twenty Millions of Dollars, guaranteeing that the Central Pacific Oil Company will pay a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum for 8 years.

Read what The Chicago Western Trade Journal of July 2, has to say editorially:—

"Greater fortunes have been made out of oil than any other product Mother Earth has yet given us. Rockefeller could not have acquired his hundreds of millions in a few years through any other source, nor the Standard Oil Company have paid dividends making bundreds and thousands of millionaires out of men who started with but the closhes they wore. California is about to take the lead among its sister states in the production of this great treasure. Such persons as Hunry Crocker, Claus Spreckles, Mrs. Phaebe Hearst and other multi-millionaires, are putting thousands to to the newly discovered

Wise ones who get in at the start are sure to make

This being the situation, the question naturally arises, how and where an investment in oil development stocks should be made. Common justice to our readers requires that we should advise them as to a reliable company, whose stocks are offered on a basis which insures safety and speedy profits. Such a corporation is the Central Pacific Oil Company-611 to 617 Laughlin building, Los Angeles, California-which represents the biggest oil proposition before the world to day-including, as it does, the consolidation of the cream of the Kern river, Bakersfield, Ventura, Sunset. McKittrick, Tchachapi, Kramer, Newhall, Los Angeles and Fullerton fields. Each share of this stock will have attached the guarantee of the Continental Building and Loan Association of San Francisco-with a subscribed Capital Stock of Twelve Millions of dollars-that the Central Pacific Company will pay 6 per cent. interest for 8 years."-Western Trade Journal.

The following is from an article which appeared in the Los Angeles Herald of June 2:-

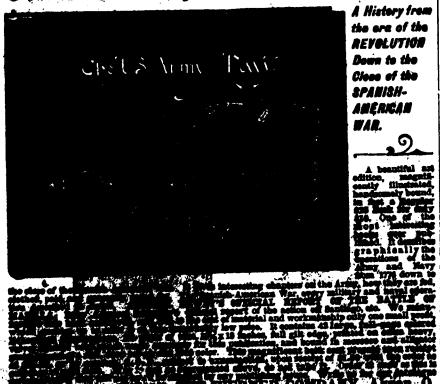

"A large number of land holders have just succeeded in consolidating some of the best oil lands in Southern California, and have incorporated the Central Pacific Oil Company-Capitalized for Five Millions of Dollars. Two millions have been expended in securing proven oil lands. Three million shares have been set aside as treasury stock, which will be used for developing the properties of the monster company. The gilt edge part of the great enterprise is in the fact that all the purchasers of the first One Hundred Thousand Shares will have the right to surrender the same to the company at the expiration of one year and receive in cash the full amount paid for stock, with interest of 6 per cent.--less any dividends that may have been paid on said stock.—Los Angeles Herald.

She was nothing more than a trader, and her accommodations were of the most primitive character. Mr. Talanti's friends, who were supposed to be eminent professors, turned out to be a common looking lot and not inclined to be sociable, but we were out for a jaunt and might expect a few drawbacks. We had a favorable wind for the voyage, and the professor and others felt that it would be the event of their lives. As the weather was pleasant and we had brought lunch from the hotel, our noonday meal was a sort of picnic. For an hour or two after the meal Professor Hempstead entertained us with a historic lecture, and time passed pleasantly for all hands. My friend could speak Greek, but when he attempted to enter into confound them surly enough. This excited our surprise, as they were supposed to be gentlemen. His skin is coarse, his language f ill of slips, and you may notice a sort of roll to his guit, as if he had been at sea for years. I believe the man's an impostor."

"But Professor Hempstead seems to be perfectly satisfied with him." "That counts for nothing. The professor may be up on ancient Greece. but he is way off on confidence games. I believe we are in for some sort of a skin game, but it's nonsense to worry over it. We have walked into the trap like a lot of idiots." The island was fairly well covered with trees, and yet it did not have a hospitable look. As we made a closer approach we could see a couple of rude huts and a primitive jetty, but Mr. Talanti explained that his castle was hidden by the forest and that he was landing at that point to save us a long walk. It was as we were drifting in to make fast to the wharf that others in our party became suspicious. The noble Greek was neither crafty nor diplomatic. He let the mask slip and betray him or at least aroused wonder and distrust, but the mest suspicious of us drove the people into line. When Professor Hempstead had rubbed his eyes, scratched his head and got it into his braid that something not down on the programme was going on, Talanti mounted a box and smilingly observed: "Ladies and gentlemen, you are now about to pass ashore to behold my wonderful discoveries, but each one of you is required to leave behind you all money and jewelry. I will see that ev-looked around him. "It's robbery!" cried three or four voices in chorus.

"Do not mar the harmony of the occasion with hard words," continued the chief villain. "I simply borrow your purses and lewelry. The term robbery does not sound well. As time flies let us get to work. Antonio, you may begin with the professor first."

Immediate notice was given to the various consuls and to the Greek government, but na one had any faith that anything would be accomplished. The government made loud promises and seemed to be making all possible efforts, but as a matter of fact Mr. Talanti was not even pursued. He never could have put up and carried through such a job without a number of officials standing in with him, and each and every one of them doubtless shared in the plunder when it was divided. It was said that the money and jewelry amounted to about $6,000, and the only consolaion any of the victims had was the privilege of abusing a country where such things could be carried out.

Some Suggestions About the Plumb ing and the Care That Should Be Exercised In the Aveldance Both of Expense and Disease.

Nowadays the plumber and his bill are your true household specters. Like other specters, careful common sense asked the bewildered professor as he will put them to rout and confusion 🗥 🖖 nine times in ten. Wise men have been studying this subject ever so long to device plumbing that would take care of itself, but they have not yet succeeded. Neither are they likely to without a revolution in mechanics whereby the tendency of fluids always to seek their own level may be eliminated and other things as wonderful brought to pass. So long as knowledge The men cried out in anger, but what remains nearly static so long will it could they do? I do not think there behoove every housemistress to look well to the usage of her pipes and her

A bit of rag or even string, a burnt match, a wisp of hair, seems a very little thing, one that the pipes can carry off with no possible hurt, but the rag. by hanging over the bend of the trap, may serve as a siphon to take away the water seal, which is all that stands hatween the household and unlimited

As for hair, there is no end to the harm it harbors. A wisp quickly forms itself into a sort of strainer, catching and holding all that passes. Aside from that, it has a trick of lodging in the most inconvenient places, catching upon the least roughness inside the pipe and staying there until by accre tion it has clogged the whole space. Hair has special affinity for bits of soap. Solid soap, by the way, should never be sent down the pipes. Very strong scapsuds even is objectionable unless you follow it with a flood of clean water, preferably hot water. Coffee grounds and tea leaves either clog a pipe very soon or else, if the flush water prevents that, wear it through quickly, partly by mechanical action, partly by chemical. Neither should ever be permitted in a sink. Even if you are wise enough to keep out all grease, and thus make sure thatthe grounds shall get safe away from your own pipes, in the sewer they may your whole pipe system, making necessary costly and inconvenient unclog-Every kitchen ought to have its grease can, emptied once a week in winter and in summer every three days. All sorts of refuse fat should go into it, even the scrapings from plates and dishes. Greasy water, as from boiling hams or corned beef, should be allowed to cool thoroughly, then have the grease carefully taken off before it goes down the pipes. Skillets and frying pans ought to be filled with very hot soda water and let stand half an hour the soda to partly saponify the grease and keep it from sticking to the pipe or caking on top of the trap. In scouring faucets be careful to keep screw threads turning many times a day. After scouring also take care to let the water run at least a minute before catching any for use. In washing sandy vegetables, as spinach, turnips, potatoes, use a big pan and drain caught. Even a spoonful of sand going down a pipe will cut and wear it more than a hogshead of water. Milky water is one of the hardest things to manage. Even a small quantity daily fouls pipes unless the milky water is followed by a flushing of sods water moderately strong, with a limewater flush about every three days. The limewater is made more effective by adding salt to, it. Sea salt is best. Put a lump as big as the fist in an earthen or wooden vessel along with twice the bulk of quicklime and cover with four gailons of hot water. Stir well and let settle. Pour the clear liquid down the pipes and follow it in half an hour with a flush of clear water boiling hot. Thus every kind of a sink may be kept sweet and fresh.-New York Sun.

South America.

Competent authorities assert that South America has greater undeveloped resources than any other portion of the world. Any crop grown elsewhere can be duplicated there, and the country abounds in mines of coal, silver and gold, most of which have been only slightly developed.

FQILED BY HIS OWN TRICK. Scheme For Selling a Farm and Its Dramatic Climax.

"Some years ago," said the narrator, "an oll boom hit Litchfield, Illa., and everybody for miles around was seen sniffing for bil and every stranger suspected of being an expert looking for a good thing. An old farmer named Locmis had a big place three miles out of town, which would have been a fortune for him had he not been possessed of a mania for swapping, manifest in a purennial attempt to trade off his land for twice its value.

"When the boom was at the top notch Loomis received a visitor who took so much interest in the farm, so liked its appearance, location, etc., that the old farmer scented a petroleum man and saw' visions of incalculable wealth; but, being a shrewd man; Loomis did not care to take any unnecessary chances with Providence, and on the quiet he sent the hired man out the back way with orders to dump the kerosene can into the well. The visitor liked the entire place, inspected the barn, the chicken yard and then, as if by chance, asked for a drink of water. "Loomis was waiting for that and hauled up a brimming bucket before the man's own eyes and poured him out a gourdful of liquid with a fine opelescent scum upon it. The visitor smelled the stuff, tasted it, made a wry face what might be expected from his in- and asked if the water was always like that, 'Oh, yes,' said Loomis, but you soon get accustomed to the taste, and our doctor says this is the finest water on earth for the stomach. Well, I it, was the unexpected felig am looking for a farm' not an off well. and Mal have got to have my drinking water three miles from Litchfield guest I'd rather buy mearer towit.
