THROBBING

Thousands of Women Cured of Sick Headache by Dr. Greene's Nervura.

"This head will be the death of me and I don't care how soon. I don't want to try to drag through life with pain like this." Are lines coming into your face? Is your beauty going from you? Think for one moment of the great multitude of women, suffering in just this way, who have been cured by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. There is absolute certainty of help in this grand medicine. Here is an instance.

MISS AGNES GRAHAM, 403 W. 28th St., New York City, says:

"For years I endured the greatest agony with sick headaches. My head would throb so that every step I took was positive torture. When I went home, after work, I felt as though I never could get there. It seemed to me that every step must be my last, and when I tried to go up stairs my head ached so badly I thought I would have to scream.

"Nothing I took helped me. The headaches returned all the time, and I despaired of ever getting over them. My back ached, too, and often I felt so tired and weak it seemed as though I could not go to work. I was badly run down, and in a very nervous condition.

"But I am thankful to say that these terrible headaches have left me, now that I have taken Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me. I began to feel its good effects from the first dose.

"After the first bottle, my nervousness was gone, and I had but one attack of headache since taking Nervura. I have now taken four bottles and have had no return of the trouble."

Just one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will do you so much good that you won't feel like the same woman. Try it and see. If you have complications, get Dr. Greene's free advice by call or letter. His address is 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

AND YOU AWAY.

Bells that over the meadows ring,
  Flowers that make the May,
But how can the world of the summer sing
  And you away, away?

And you away, my dear,
With the sigh and the falling tear,
What can the green world sing or say,
And you away, away?

Morn k ?? there on the hills supreme,
  Earth in its rosy ray,
But how can earth of the morning dream
  And you away, away?

And you away, my dear,
With the sigh and the falling tear,
What can the green world sing or say,
And you away, away?

A Highwayman's Juliet

A Celebrated Author's Weird Fancy.

By ARTHUR T. QUILLER-COUCH.

The house in question was what Peter the Scholar (who corrects my proof sheets) calls one of the rusinurby sort—the front facing a street and the back looking over a turfed garden, with a lime tree or two, a laburnum, and a lawn tennis court marked out, its white lines plain to see in the starlight. At the end of the garden a door, painted dark green, led into a narrow lane between high walls, where, if two persons met, one had to turn sideways to let the other pass. The entrance to this lane was cut in two by a wooden post about the height of your hip, and just beyond this, in the highroad, George was waiting for us with the dogcart.

We had picked the usual time—the dinner hour. It had just turned dark, and the church clock, two streets away, was chiming the quarter after 8 when Peter and I let ourselves in by the green door I spoke of and felt along the wall for the gardener's ladder that we knew was hanging there. A simpler job there never was. The bedroom window on the first floor stood right open to the night air, and inside was a faint candlelight flickering, just as a careless maid will leave it after her mistress has gone down to dinner. To be sure, there was a chance of her coming back to put it out, but we could hear her voice going in the servants' hall as we lifted the ladder and rested it against the sill.

"She's good for half an hour yet," Peter whispered, holding the ladder while I began to climb; "but if I hear her voice stop I'll give the signal to be cautious."

I went up softly, pushed my head gently above the level of the sill and looked in.

It was a roomy place, with a great half tester bed, hung with curtains, standing out from the wall on my right. The curtains were of chintz, a dark background, with flaming red poppies sprawling over it, and the farther curtain hid the dressing table and the candles upon it and the jewel case that I confidently hoped to stand upon it also. A bright Brussels carpet covered the floor, and the wall paper, I remember though, for the life of me, I can not tell why—was a pale gray ground, worked up to imitate watered silk, with springs of gilt honeysuckle upon it.

I looked around and listened for half a minute. The house was still as death up here—not a sound in the room or in the passages beyond. With a nod to Peter to hold the ladder firm I lifted one leg over the sill, then the other, dropped my feet carefully upon the thick carpet and went quickly around the bed to the dressing table.

But at the corner, and as soon as ever I saw around the chintz curtain, my knees gave way, and I put out a hand toward the bedpost.

Before the dressing table, and in front of the big glass in which she could see my white face, was an old lady seated.

She wore a blaze of jewels and a low gown, out of which rose the scraggiest neck and shoulders I have ever looked on. Her hair was thick with black dye and fastened with a diamond star. Between the two candles the powder showed on her cheek bones like flour on a miller's coat. Chin on hand, she was gazing steadily into the mirror before her, and, even in my fright, I had time to note that a glass of sherry and a plate of rice and curry stood at her elbow among the rouge pots and powder puffs.

While I stood stock still and pretty well scared out of my wits she rose, still staring at my image in the glass, folded her hands modestly over her bosom and spoke in a deep, tragical voice:

"The prince!"

Then, facing sharply around, she held out her thin arms.

"You have come—at last?"

There was not much to say to this except that I had. So I confessed it. Even with the candles behind her I could see her eyes glowing like a dog's, and an uglier poor creature this world could scarcely show.

"Is the ladder set against the window?"

"Since you seem to know, ma'am," said I, "it is."

"Ah, Romeo! Your cheeks are ruddy—your poppies are too red."

"Then I'm glad my color's come back; for, to tell the truth, you did give me a turn just at first. You were looking out for me, no doubt"—

"My prince!" She stretched out her arms again, and, being pretty well at my wits' end, I let her embrace me. "It has been so long," she said—"oh, the weary while! And they ill treat me. Where have you been all this tedious time?"

I was not going to answer that, you may be sure. By this time I had recovered myself sufficiently to guess what was near the truth—that this was a mad aunt of the family below, and that the game was in my hands if I played with decent care. So I met her question with another.

"Look here," I said, "I'm running a considerable risk in braving these persecutors of your'n. Hadn't we better elope at once?"

"I am ready."

"And the jewels? You won't leave them to your enemies, I suppose."

She turned to the dressing table, lifted her jewel case and put it into my hands.

"[illegible] ready," she repeated. "Let us [illegible] as death."

She followed me to the window and, looking out, drew back.

"What horrible, black depths!"

"It's as easy," said I, "as pie. You could do it on your head. Look here!" I climbed out first and helped her, setting her feet on the rungs. We went down in silence, I choking all the way at the sight of Peter below, who was looking with his mouth open and his lips too weak to meet the curses and wonderment that rose up from the depths of him. When I touched turf and handed him the jewel case, he took it like a man in a trance.

We put the ladder back in its place and stole over the turf together. But outside the garden door Peter could stand no more of it.

"I've a firearm in my pocket," whispered he, pulling up, "and I'm going to fire it off to relieve my feelings if you don't explain here and now. Who, in pity's name, is she?"

"You mug! She's the original Sleeping Beauty. I'm eloping with her, and you've got her jewels."

"Pardon me, Jem," he says in his gentlemanly way, "if I don't quite see. Are you taking her off to melt her or marry her? For how to get rid of her else"—

The poor old creature had halted, too, three paces ahead of us and waited while we whispered, with the moonlight that slanted down into the lane whitening her bare neck and flashing on her jewels.

"One moment," I said and stepped forward to her; "you had better take off those ornaments here, my dear, and give them to my servant to take care of. There's a carriage waiting for us at the end of the lane, and when he has stowed them under the seat we can climb in and drive off"—

"To the end of the world—to the very rim of it, my hero."

She pulled the gems from her ears, hair and bosom and handed them to Peter, who received them with a bow. Next she searched in her pocket and drew out a tiny key. Peter unlocked the case, and, having carefully stowed the diamonds inside, locked it again, handed back the key, touched his hat and walked off toward the dogcart.

"My dearest lady," I began, as soon as we were alone between the high walls, "if the devotion of a life"—

Her bare arm crept into mine. "There is but a little time left for us in which to be happy. Year after year I have marked off the almanac; day by day I have watched the dial. I saw my sisters married and my sisters' daughters, and still I waited. Each had a man to love her and tend her, but none had such a man as I would have chosen. They were none like you, my prince."

"No, I dare say not."

"Oh, but my heart is not so cold. Take my hand—it is firm and strong; touch my lips—they are burning"—

A low whistle sounded at the top of the lane. As I took her hands I pushed her back, and, turning, ran for my life. I suppose that as I ran I counted forty before her scream came, and then the sound of her feet pattering after me.

She must have run like a demon, for I was less than ten yards ahead when Peter caught my wrist and pulled me up on to the back seat of the dogcart. And before George could set the horse going her hand clutched at the flap on which my feet rested. It missed its grasp and she never got near enough again. But for half a minute I looked into that horrible face following us and working with silent rage, and for half a mile at least I heard the patter of her feet in the darkness behind. Indeed, I can hear it now.

The American Boy.

Even in trying circumstances, even when serious misfortune overtakes the youthful American, his aplomb, his confidence in his own opinion, does not wholly forsake him. Such a one was found weeping in the street. On being asked the cause of his tears he sobbed out in mingled alarm and indignation: "I'm lost! Mammy's lost me. I told the darned thing she'd lose me."—Muirhead's "Land of Contracts."

TWO LOVES OF A SAILOR.

Oh, an old man sat and blinked i' the sun,
  And a song of the sea sang he.
He sang a song of a mariner bold
  And his sweetheart so true, the sea.
    Sing ho, yo ho, sing hey!
    O'er crested billows, through dashing spray,
    With sails a-bulging, she scuds away—
    Away, away, o'er the waters gray—
    Away through the dying day!
    Sing ho, sing hey!

Oh, the mariner bold his ain love pressed
  To his heart and her sweet lips kissed—
Sweet lips that swore they would e'er be true
  When he sailed away i' the mist.
    Sing hey, oh, hey, ye ho!
    Through the singing tops the wild winds blow
    Into the dank mists the ship doth go,
    And the mariner sings as he rolls below,
    "My love will be true, I trow!"
    Sing hey, yo ho!

Oh, the lassie ashore forgot her man,
  But his sweetheart, the sea, proved true!
She lulled him to rest on her heaving breast,
  And her white arms about him threw.
    Sing ho, ye ho, sing hey!
    He went to his one true love that day
    At peace in her arms fore'er and aye—
    Less lasting the lassie's peace, they say—
    She wed with a lump o' clay!
    Sing ho, sing hey!

RALPH HOLMES' LUCKY "HUNCH"

By Charles B. Younger.

Ralph Holmes, express messenger on a fast night train running from Chicago to Peoria, had discharged his duties in the methodical way that comes with experience and familiarity with one's daily routine of work and sank into an easy chair with a ride of fifty miles yet before him and nothing to occupy his attention but his own thoughts, the rumbling of the wheels and an occasional note of warning from the engine. Thoughts come quick and fast at such times, and so it was with Ralph Holmes. The events of the four years since he was thrown upon his own resources passed him in review as a panorama.

On the long, tedious "runs" he had often been absorbed in a reverie of this sort, but in this instance there were new and perplexing problems confronting him. He had always found much that was gratifying in one of these quiet invoices of his few successes in life, and, while he felt none the less pleasure on others, he found little in reminiscence to encourage him in certain of his desires.

In all of these communions with his own thoughts there was one central figure, and that a dear, little woman, patient and loving, her hair made silvery and her form bent by the seventy years of worldly struggle. It was Ralph Holmes' mother, and well he remembered the night of his graduation from high school when she came tottering to the stage when the exercises were over, threw her arms about his neck and wept tears of joy. It was a glad event for Ralph, for he had closed his school career with honors, but it was of vastly more moment to the little old woman who proudly embraced him, for the joy which the diploma brought both of them represented years of toil and sacrifice on her part. Ralph was a sensible youth and not unmindful of the aid his mother had given him, often at the expense of her own health and comfort. He, too, recalled on this night, as often before, the assuring words he gave his mother before leaving home some months after his graduation.

"You have given me a start, mommer," he had said, "that many a boy in better circumstances might be glad to have, and I hope you'll live to see me prove that I deserved a fair start."

Then, as the train sped on, Ralph recalled his entrance to one of the great medical schools of the city and the difficulties he encountered during the first year because of his limited means. Though he had been forced to study from the books of classmates and wait on the table at a restaurant for his own board, his letters to the little mother at home were always cheerful and full of hope, containing as little as possible of the darker side of his college life. Then, during the summer vacation, he had by a rare stroke of good fortune secured the position of express messenger. Ralph confidently expected never to experience a happier day than when he made his first "run," for if he could but hold the place it would relieve him of the anxiety that the expense of his medical education caused him.

To be sure, he had held the position and it had more than paid his own expense. It pleased him to note in addition that he had been able to send a little money home to his mother. The two trips a week the year round had interfered to no small extent with his attendance at school, but he had been as faithful as his circumstances would permit, and it seemed to Ralph, as he sat there musing, that the faculty must have known something of his struggle and helped him along. Then, too, he had been deprived of the regular hours for study which the other students had, but he had improved all his spare time. Night after night he had sat in that same old chair in the express car when his work was over and "crammed" until the whistle blew for Peoria. More than this, his dingy room in the Railroad hotel there had been a favorite place for study when he turned in after the long "run" for a few hours' sleep. The precious sleep had oftentimes been sacrificed that he might make good recitations at college the following day.

But all this was in the past. This particular night found him a senior and within a few weeks of his graduation—the culmination of his own great effort. In these closing days of his college career, however, a new desire had taken possession of him. He had felt a call to arms in the fierce warfare which involves all the medical schools at the close of the year—the relentless, uncompromising struggle for hospital interneships.

True, he was not counted among the seniors of his own school as a candidate for hospital honors. This, he knew, was not because of a poor class record, for in this respect he stood well in the front ranks, but his duties outside of school had made it impossible for him to take the "quiz class"—the review of the work of the whole school course, which occupies during the last year the major portion of the attention of those who expect to take the competitive examinations for the interneships. This formality, Ralph argued with himself, need not prevent him from entering the competition when the time came. He, too, had done a great deal of reviewing in a quiet way and felt fairly well prepared for any ordinary questions which might arise in the course of the examinations. But of "catch" questions he stood in awe. But who could tell? Some would get the places and others would fail. He had made all the preparation possible, considering his condition, and why not take chances with the rest? It might happen that he would be among the lucky ones.

So, when Ralph Holmes locked the express car door early the next morning and went to his gloomy quarters in the Railroad hotel, it was with the determination to take the first hospital examination that came along, which would be on the following Saturday, and one of the days that he would be in the city.

Tired though he was, Ralph did not go to bed at once. The new excitement kept him awake. Sitting down at the table he picked up the first book that met his gaze. Why he did it he did not know, but in doing so he followed a definite impulse—a "hunch," as he was accustomed to say. Running over its pages in an aimless sort of way and having no thought of studying any particular subject he stumbled, as it were, upon a chapter hitherto unknown to him. "Tumors of the Adrenal Capsule," it read.

"Well that's a new one on me," he murmured as he glanced casually over the pages. Inasmuch as the subject had never been assigned for study, nor, to his knowledge, had any reference been made to it in class, he thought it might prove interesting reading.

"It must be a useless lot of stuff," he murmured again as he started to read, "or we would have heard something about it. Nothing else in particular to do, though, so guess I'll just glance over it. Might come handy some time."

An hour later Ralph laid the book aside and went to bed.

When Saturday came and students from various schools gathered for the hospital examination, Ralph Holmes was among the number. He dropped into one of the rear seats in a careless sort of way, but his presence caused no little comment among the members of his own class, who expected to see him in the competition least of all others.

"What are you doing here?" inquired one.

"Oh, just happened in to see what's going on," was Ralph's indifferent reply. But when he provided himself with paper and made ready to write the others were convinced that he was more than a mere looker on.

Then came a breathless silence as the questions were being written upon the board. There was one on anatomy, then a query on chemistry, another on physiology, then histology, materia medica and half a dozen other branches of medical science. Fourteen questions had been given and had been met with suppressed groans, smiles or whispers of "Easy!" or "Puddin'!" as they found the various contestants prepared or wanting in knowledge. Through it all Ralph had maintained a countenance as cold and expressionless as steel. He felt satisfied that so far he was equal to the test, but resolved not to betray his feelings to the others around him. It was the fifteenth and last question that he wanted to see, and his impatience got the better of him. He felt something tugging. A peculiar, unexplainable something took possession of him, and as the professor's hand was raised to write the question he followed it not alone with his eyes, but with his body. He stood up, but when he resumed his seat it was with a sigh of relief that was heard distinctly in every part of the crowded room. The professor had written:

15. Etiology, pathology, symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of tumors of the adrenal capsule.

The explosion of a bombshell would not have caused more consternation among the students than did that one question, for in none of the schools had the subject been introduced, and it had been utterly ignored in the "quiz class" work.

As for Ralph Holmes—well, he's now serving an interneship in one of the leading hospitals of Chicago, and the little mother is enjoying some of the happiest days of her life.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Found in a Bible.

The following story is being told in Hamburg about a most welcome find of money in a Bible, writes a Berlin correspondent:

A business man with a large and growing family began to find himself in serious monetary troubles. His wife fell ill, and the doctor sent in a very long bill, which he was unable to pay. The debtor in his distress made up his mind to sell the family Bible. On turning over the leaves before taking it out of the house he found a sealed letter inscribed with the words, "To the finder." He opened it and found the following letter inside:

In the sure knowledge that man does not turn to his Bible to read the word of God until he is in the greatest distress I have placed £100 in notes between pages 161 and 162.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 13, 1901.

Of Interest to Local Odd Fellows.

Grand Master Page has appointed his list of past grands to act as district deputy grand masters to serve during the current year under the report of the committee on legislation, and has been adopted. District No. 12 comprising some half dozen lodges, will be under the careful eye of Leander Patterson of Waverley Lodge, No. 59, I. O. O. F., who has held this office in our lodge most acceptably for several years past. This is somewhat of a new departure in lodge work and doubtless will prove a good one. A similar arrangement is in vogue in Massachusetts and we are told works very satisfactory.

Commenting on this the Manchester Union of recent date has the following to say:

"We understand the new district deputies will soon be called together officially at some central point probably Manchester for consultation and instruction from the grand master as to their specific duties and the secret work of the order. It is earnestly hoped and expected that every one will be present to the end that all may be fully instructed and equipped for the very responsible duties they will be expected to preform during the year. The installing staffs with the district deputy at their head will be drilled in a thorough manner and called upon to install officers without books or even notes. It is the purpose of the grand master, so we are informed, to have the district deputies and their assistants both proficient and efficient to the end that the installation ceremonies shall be an attractive feature in lodge work, alike interesting to all present and creditable to all who take part. It will certainly be expected that the installations for the year 1902 as a whole will be the most perfect ever given in the state."

There seems to be a "craze" among our small boys on the street, as one may see who happens to be out after dark, to learn to smoke, and evidently many of the boys in the vicinity of 12 to 14 years of age are making fairly good progress along this line. The parents should "take a hand" in this matter and make the same felt in a most convincing manner and this would have the desired effect if applied in doses of proper size and quantity.

It is stated that the post-office department expects to cover the entire country with rural free delivery within five years. District No. 2 in Antrim will not have long to wait.

The Charitable Mechanics' Association have reversed their decision and will hold a fair in Mechanics' Building, Boston, next year.

Some good fall weather we have been enjoying of late; probably e'er long something of a different nature will arrive.

Li Hung Chang, China's "grand old man," is dead; at a time when that country seemed to need him most.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

There Will be No Post Office Caucus.

A petition signed by more than one hundred republican patrons of the Antrim post office was last week presented to the Republican Club to call a caucus to nominate a man for postmaster for Antrim at the close of the present incumbent's term of service. The officers of the club argued that as Hon. Frank D. Currier, congressman for this district, had the say with reference to the nomination of a postmaster for Antrim, it would be well to let him settle whether or not they have a caucus.

Mr. Currier gave his decision in the matter to-day (Wednesday) and says he should not recommend that Antrim have a caucus.

The petition of Albert Clement the present incumbent seems sufficient for the Congressman to recommend him for a second term; he is now receiving the congratulations of his friends on his success in the matter.

Hills--Knapp.

On Tuesday of this week occurred the wedding of Oscar E. Hills and Miss Etta M. Knapp, the ceremony being preformed by Rev. Dr. Cochrane. Temperence Gathering.

On Friday evening at the Baptist vestry, Luke Richardson of Dublin, a well known temperance worker and state organizer of the National Prohibition Alliance met several of the citizens of Antrim and explained the object and workings of the Alliance. No organization was formed, there not being enough interest shown.

Spreads Like Wildfire.

When things are "the best" they become "the best selling." Abraham Hare, a leading druggist, of Belleville, O., writes: "Electric Bitters are the best selling bitters I have handled in 20 years." You know why? Most disease begin in disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, blood and nerves. Electric Bitters tones up the stomach, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, purifies the blood, strengthens the nerves, hence cures multitudes of maladies. It builds up the entire system. Puts new life and vigor into any weak, sickly, run down man or woman. Price 50 cents. Sold by W. F. Dickey, druggist

The receipts at the Pan-American exposition were four millions less than the expenses.

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did." says County Physician George W. Scroggs of Hall County, Ga. "Being a physician I have prescribed it and found it to give the best results." If the food you eat remains undigested in your stomach it decays there and poisons the system. You can prevent this by dieting but that means starvation. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer from neither dyspepsia nor starvation. The worst cases quickly cured. Never fails.

W. F. Dickey, Antrim, Eaton Bros., Hancock, G. O. Joslin, Bennington.

Foley's Honey and Tar
cures colds, prevents pneumonia.

The St. Louis world's fair in 1903 will beat all other expositions ever held.

To Cure A Cough

Stop coughing, as it irritates the lungs and gives them no chance to heal. Foley's Honey and Tar cures without causing a strain in throwing off the phlegm like common cough expectorants.

W. F. Dickey, Antrim, W. G. Fogg, Hancock.

Gov. Jordan's Thanksgiving proclamation appoints Thursday, Nov. 28.

Colds

"I had a terrible cold and could hardly breathe. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it gave me immediate relief."
W. C. Layton, Sidell, Ill.

How will your cough be tonight? Worse, probably. For it's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis or pneumonia, and at last consumption. Coughs always tend downward. Stop this downward tendency by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1. All druggists.

Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do as he says. If he tells you not to take it, then don't take it. He knows. Leave it with him. We are willing.
J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

The Change of Life

Is the most important period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living, not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes, scalding the blood surging to the heart until it seems ready to burst, and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, as if the heart were going to stop for good, are symptoms of a dangerous, nervous trouble. Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance. The cry should be heeded in time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

MRS. JENNIE NOBLE

It builds up the weakened nervous system, and enables a woman to pass that grand change triumphantly.

"I was a very sick woman, caused by Change of Life. I suffered with hot flushes, and fainting spells. I was afraid to go on the street, my head and back troubled me so. I was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. JENNIE NOBLE, 5010 Keyser St., Germantown, Pa.

Bible Day.

Sunday was observed at the Baptist church in a most appropriate and successful manner. In the morning the pastor, Rev. B. H. Lane, preached a sermon for the occasion. At first glance the motto of a certain Kansas paper, "Lie, steal, drink and swear," seems to be rather anarchistic, but the editor explains it as follows: "When you lie, let it be away from immoral associates; when you drink, let it be pure water; when you swear, let it be that you will patronize your home paper, pay your subscription, and not send your job work away from home."

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by W. F. Dickey.

STILLMAN S. LOVEREN.

Death in Arcata, Cal., of a former Antrim Resident.

On Saturday, Oct. 26, occurred the death in Arcata, Cal., of Stillman S. Loveren, a former resident of Antrim, and well known to many people here.

Mr Loveren was born in Deering, May 19, 1846, and was the son of Josiah and Asenath (Gregg) Loveren.

He leaves two half brothers in Antrim, John E, and George M. Loveren, also an own brother in Eureka, Cal. He had been in failing health for two years and his death was not unexpected. The following is taken from the Daily Humboldt Times, Eureka, Cal.:

Mr. Loveren first came to Humboldt county in 1876. Upon his arrival deceased engaged himself as a laborer but being of a frugal disposition was able in eight years to secure possession of valuable land holdings in the vicinity of Alliance. With untiring energy he developed the property until it became one of the most valuable in that section. About eight years ago a creamery, which has always done a thriving business, was erected and added materially to the prosperity of the community, its affairs being managed with that business sagacity that had made the life of its founder a success. Later his family, consisting of a wife, son and daughter, removed to Eureka in order that the children might enjoy the educational advantages the city afforded, the father spending his time between the two places.

Deceased was twice married and by the first wife leaves two children, a son and a daughter, George Loveren and Mrs Puulsell, the latter a resident of San Francisco. A younger brother is J. G Loveren the well known retired lumberman of this city; his second wife survives him.

As a business man the deceased was moderately successful and leaves a comfortable estate to his heirs. Inquiries concerning his property developed that its value is estimated to be in the neighborhood of twenty thousand dollars, all of which is invested in this county".

In this Issue Read the New Adv. of George O. Joslin.

On the fourth page of this issue will be found a large adv. which is replete with bargains which include almost every article to be found in this up-to-date and modern department store. Do not forget the old adage that "A penny saved is a penny earned," is as true as ever and Joslin's is the store where you can put the above rule into practice. For further particulars of this great sale read adv. and also the flyers that he is circulating.

Reliable and Gentle.

"A pill's a pill," says the saw. But there are pills and pills. You want a pill that is certain, thorough and gentle. Mustn't gripe. DeWitt's Little Early Risers fill the bill. Purely vegetable. Do not force but assist the bowels to act. Strengthen and invigorate. Small and easy to take. W. F. Dickey, Antrim, Eaton Bros, Hancock, G. O. Joslin, Bennington.

A Great Opportunity.

The burned district of Jacksonville, Fla., is to be rebuilt at once, offering an opportunity of employment to workmen, and excellent prospect to contractors and capitalists. Jacksonville is reached from all directions by the Seaboard Air Line Railroad System, which offers unexcelled facilities in the way of schedules and through car service to that point.

Third Quarterly Conference.

Rev. G. M. Curl, Presiding Elder of the Manchester district, held the third quarterly conference at the Methodist Church here on Monday evening of this week.

For Hoarseness.

Benj. Ingerson, of Hutton, Ind., says he had not spoken a word above a whisper for months, and one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar restored his voice. Be sure you get Foley's.

The Companion's Seventy-Sixth Volume.

In 1902—the seventy-sixth year of its publication—The Youth's Companion promises more varied attractions for its readers than ever before, and The Companion always gives more than it promises. The government of the United States will be represented in contributions from Secretary of the Treasury Gage, Secretary of the Navy Long, Postmaster General Smith, and Assistant Secretary of War Sanger—a list, it is believed, never equaled in a previous year.

The government of Great Britain will be represented by contributions from the Duke of Argyll, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava and the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, T. P. O'Connor and Winston S. Churchill, members of the House of Commons.

Other noteworthy contributors will be Wu Tingfang, Chinese minister at Washington, Booker T. Washington, President of Tuskegee Institute, Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, Gen. Charles King and Rear Admiral Hichborn, while more than two hundred of the most popular of living story-writers will contribute from four to six fascinating stories to each of the fifty-two issues of The Companion of 1902.

To all new subscribers for 1902 and to those renewing their subscriptions The Companion will send its beautiful 1902 Calendar, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. By sending $1.75 before January 1st the new subscriber will receive free all the remaining issues of 1901 from the time the subscription is received.

KNOWN ALL OVER THE U.S.

Throughout the length and breadth of Uncle Sam's domain—a country of the most fastidious and particular people in the world—thousands and thousands of enthusiastic men today wear none but DESBECKER-BLOCK MADE-TO-MEASURE clothing.

Why this great general popularity of our garments? Their style, their correct cut, their beautiful finish, and greatest of all, their marvelously low price. The immense volume of our business enables us, through our 2000 agents who represent us throughout the country, to make fine garments to individual measure at prices which no tailoring firm in America ever has or will be able to meet.

Fine tailored Suits and Overcoats to order $11.50 up. Trousers $3.15 up.

It is important that every man should know by personal experience what we can do for him in the matter of clothes. We guarantee to please him better than he ever has been pleased and save him from one-third to one-half of the average tailor's prices. What more could be done? How else could we have earned a national repute? See our samples. See our prices. Match them if you can.

We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as an adult. For sale by W. F. Dickey.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight. You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

SUPPER AND ENTERAINMENT.

Successful and Pleasant Affair at the Presbyterian Chuch.

The Ladies connected with the Presbyterian church gave a most successful supper and entertainment at the church vestry on Tuesday evening of this week. Despite the inclemency of the weather a goodly number of people were present. The tables were tastefully arranged and a most bountiful supper was served. After the tables were cleared the following exceptionly fine program was rendered:

Piano selection, Miss Helen Deacon.
Music, Orchestra
Reading, Miss Bessie Bryant
Song, Three Old Maids of Lee
Music, Orchestra
Tableau, Old Maids Repair Shop
Quartet
Zobo Solo, Roy Downes.

At the close of the above literary program a social hour was enjoyed and thus ended one of the most pleasant and successful event of its kind ever given at the church.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The entertainment at the rooms on Saturday evening proved to be entertaining and instructive.

The services which were held in the rooms on Sunday, by W. F. Maylott were well attended.

To-night the Cecilia String Quartet appears in the Town hall, in the Y. M. C. A. Lecture course.

Fire at the Cutlery Shop.

Quite a little excitement was caused on Thursday afternoon by the discovery of a fire in the attic, prompt and effective use of a few pails of water put a stop to the conflagation before any damage was done.

The Children's Friend.

You'll have a cold this winter. Maybe you have one now. Your children will suffer too. For coughs, croup, bronchitis, grip and other winter complaints One Minute Cough Cure never fails. Acts promptly. It is very pleasant to the taste and perfectly harmless. C. B. George, Winchester, Ky., writes "Our girl attacked with croup late one night and was so hoarse she could hardly speak. We gave her a few doses of One Minute Cough Cure. It relieved her immediately and she went to sleep. When she awoke next morning she had no signs of hoarseness or croup.

Modern Surgery Surpassed.

"While suffering from a bad case of piles I consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," says G. F. Carter, Atlanta, Ga. "I procured a box and was entirely cured. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a splendid cure for piles, giving relief instantly, and I heartily recommend it to all sufferers." Surgery is unnecessary to cure piles DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, burns, bruises and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits.

A QUESTION OF TEETH.

Did the Immortal George Wear Artificial or Natural Ones?

"George Washington's false teeth, which were supposed to have been made of ivory, are giving a certain class of freak historians about as much trouble as they must have given the venerable patriot who wore them," said one of the professors of the Smithsonian Institution to a reporter recently.

"Many times a year for several years this institution has been called upon to produce these mysterious teeth for the inspection of persons who insist that they are here.

"Our matter of fact answer to these inquiries that Washington had no false teeth, or at least if he did, that they are not in the possession of the museum, seems only to stimulate the inquiring mind to protest our statement. They proceed to give us authentic accounts of these teeth and always conclude with expressing the belief that they must be in the museum somewhere.

"Where or how the idea that Washington had false teeth originated is an unsolved mystery. That it is firmly believed by many is certainly a fact. There seems to be no authentic record of the Father of His Country possessing ivory teeth, and by a study of the bust we have of him, which was made but a few years before his death, there is no indication of an indentation along the line of the gums such as can be noticed in persons who have had their teeth drawn, even though they wear artificial ones. However, we will continue to answer the same question in the same way probably many times in the future."

According to some biographers Washington lost his teeth during his service as commander in chief of the Continental army and had a set of ivory ones made. These teeth, it is also stated, gave him much trouble because they did not fit.—Washington Star.

Soapsuds Dessert.

The tribes on the coast of British Columbia hold a festival in the autumn, the crowning item of which is the partaking of a few spoonfuls of a bowl of soapsuds.

They gather in the dingy huts, which are hung with the staple food—dried salmon. For light they stick into the ground, head downward, a silvery fish about five inches long, set fire to the tail, and they have a torch, for the fish burns steadily.

After eating of various unsavory foods there comes the great treat. This is a bowl of a frothy, soapy mixture, obtained by crushing in a not overclean manner the sapoliti, or soap berries, and squeezing out the juice. This is as much like soapsuds as it is possible to conceive. The natives sip it from spoons of black wood, neatly carved, [illegible]

THE FIRST AERONAUT

HIS INITIAL FLIGHT INTO SPACE WAS AT PARIS IN 1783.

Pilatre des Rosiers Was the Pioneer of the Long Line of Daring Spirits Who Perished In Their Attempts to Navigate the Air.

The first attempts to make ascensions by means of balloons were made in Paris in the year 1783. Pilatre des Rosiers was the first and most illustrious of the long list of aeronauts who have fallen victims to their desire to advance the art of aerostatics.

In July and August of the year 1783 balloons filled with hydrogen gas were sent up from Paris, and in September at Versailles the first balloon was sent up freighted with living animals.

In the same year Montgolfier constructed a balloon which he claimed would be capable of carrying passengers, his workshop being in the gardens of the Faubourg St. Antoine. The balloon was sixty feet in height and forty-eight broad. Its exterior was richly painted and embroidered, there being represented upon it the twelve signs of the zodiac, the arms of the king of France and numberless fleurs-de-lis and lower down, amid a crowd of grotesque heads and garlands of flowers, a flock of eagles, with extended wings, that seemed to be flying and supporting the huge balloon upon their shoulders.

Below the balloon proper was constructed a circular platform of wickerwork, covered with silk, which was used as a car. This platform was very large and was surrounded by a balustrade to prevent the aeronauts from falling out. In the center of this platform or car was an opening, below which was suspended by chains an iron stove, which was to be used for rarefying the air in the balloon, while in one corner was a magazine intended for the storing up of an immense quantity of straw, which served as fuel.

Pilatre des Rosiers, generally alone, but at one time accompanied by the Marquis d'Arlandes and on another occasion by M. Girond de Villette, had ascended in the balloon without cutting the rope which held it captive to a height of 1,290 feet.

Rosiers had much difficulty in obtaining permission from the king to make an ascent without being held down by the rope, but consent was at last secured, and on the 20th of November, 1783, everything was made ready. During the day the wind and rain were violent, and it was found necessary to postpone the ascent. The next day, the 21st, the weather was more favorable, and at 1:30 in the afternoon in the presence of the dauphin and his suit Pilatre des Rosiers and the Marquis d'Arlandes set out together from the Jardins de la Muette upon the first aerial voyage ever attempted and performed. The wind was still very rough and the weather stormy, but in spite of these disadvantages the balloon rose rapidly.

Having passed over Paris and become free from all fear of getting entangled among the buildings of the city, the aeronauts suffered themselves to descend considerably until they found themselves in a fresh current of air, which bore them in a southerly direction.

After proceeding a few miles farther the fire was allowed to die out, and the balloon descended about five miles from Paris. When the aeronauts returned to the Chateau de la Muette, they were greeted with the utmost enthusiasm by the assembled crowds. Benjamin Franklin was a witness of the whole spectacle, and when asked what he thought of it he replied, "I have seen a child born which may one day be a man."

Aerostatics had advanced to such a degree that on the 7th of January, 1785, Blanchard, a rival of Rosiers, crossed over the channel from Dover to Calais.

Rosiers was spurred on by Blanchard's success and set to work constructing a balloon which, when completed, he called an aeromontgolfier. It consisted of an immense balloon of hydrogen gas, with a large cylinder placed under it, the use of it being to rarefy the air without losing gas.

When a favorable day had arrived, Pilatre for the last time made his preparations. He was assisted by a Boulogne physician named Romain, and on June 15, 1785, they stepped into the basket, the ropes were cast off, and the balloon rose with the utmost majesty from the earth.

When it had risen about 200 feet, it struck a fresh current of air which took it directly toward the sea. It soon found another current which rapidly carried it back again. It possibly may have been the desire of the aeronauts to descend to find a more favorable current of air, for while opening the valve to let the cold air into his cylinder unfortunately a huge rent was made in the balloon. The consequences were immediate and horrible. At that time the balloon was 1,700 feet above the surface of the earth. A few moments afterward the two aeronauts lay on the ground dead and horribly mutilated.

Near the spot where Pilatre des Rosiers was buried a monument was erected in 1853 to commemorate the almost miraculous crossing of the sea by Blanchard, upon the very spot of earth on which that intrepid aeronaut descended. He had become for France a hero, and numbers of inscriptions are still readable.—New York Times.

A Korean Prison.

The gate was wide open, and the courtyard was full of prisoners, and the surrounding buildings were old and tottering. I asked the chief, whom one of the two or three listless attendants called for us, why the prisoners did not run away. "Oh," he replied, "they would be caught and beaten again and kept longer. Now they will get out soon."

But as I looked at them I saw they did not run because they could not. The life was beaten out of them. The keepers brought the heavy red cord with a brass hook at the end and trussed up a man with it to show how the beating was done and then brought us the stiff rods with which victims were pounded over the shins and thighs until the beaten spots were simply masses of festering rottenness. There was a room, black, foul, leprous, in which the men were fastened in the stocks. The Black Hole of Calcutta was scarcely less merciful than this.—Ladies' Monthly.

A Wise Prophet.

"On the whole," said the aged weather prophet, "I have found that the safest course is to predict bad weather."

"Why?" asked the neophyte.

"Because people are much more ready to forgive you if the prediction does not come true."

Her Size.

LAXAKOLA
THE GREAT TONIC LAXATIVE

If you have sour stomach, indigestion, billiousness, constipation, bad breath, dizziness, inactive liver, heartburn, kidney troubles, backache, loss of appetite, insomnia, lack of energy, bad blood, blotched or muddy skin, or any symptoms and disorders which tell the story of bad bowels and an impaired digestive system, Laxakola Will Cure You.

It will clean out the bowels, stimulate the liver and kidneys, strengthen the mucous membranes of the stomach, purify your blood and put you "on your feet" again. Your appetite will return, your bowels move regularly, your liver and kidneys cease to trouble you, your skin will clear and freshen and you will feel the old time energy and buoyancy.

Mothers seeking the proper medicine to give their little ones for constipation, diarrhea, colic and similar troubles, will find Laxakola an ideal medicine for children. It keeps their bowels regular without pain or griping, acts as a general tonic, assists nature, aids digestion, relieves restlessness, clears the coated tongue, reduces fever, causes refreshing, restful sleep and makes them well, happy and hearty. ☞ Children like it and ask for it.

For Sale by DRUGGISTS

Laxakola is not only the most efficient of family remedies, but the most economical, because it combines two medicines, viz: laxative and tonic, and at one price, 25c. or 50c. At druggists. Send for free sample to THE LAXAKOLA CO., 132 Nassau Street, N. Y. [illegible] ☞ We will express to any address on receipt of [illegible] large Family size bottle of Laxakola, [illegible]
