What a Bureau Really Is.

When parchment was used for writng and when bookbinding was in its infancy and a bound book was a costly luxury, it was the custom to place the book on a piece of cloth or a strip of wool in order to prevent the binding from possible damage on the rough wood of the table. Those who had to deal with money also had a strip of cloth on the table or counter so that the coins should not roll. This strip was called "Lureau."

In course of time the custom changed, and the same word was applied to the writing table covered with green or other colored cloth and at length descended to the modern table with the center protected by leather. As an office contains one or more of these tables it is not difficult to understand that the name should, in one country, have been given to the room that contained the bureau.-London Standard.

DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY. BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

— Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, a but so a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right car began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and ment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the discased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY. BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1001.

- Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most enument ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then case, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advectisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the discased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you hearifly and beg to remain by local applications, as they cannot reach the deceased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deaduess, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gels inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Soul for circulars, free.

The rural carriers have hard work and have to undergo much exposure. True they are allowed to increase their earnings by doing errands for people living along their route but such com missions as they receive are small and at the best uncertain.—Exchange.

Everyone who knows the least bit about the number of miles these rural carriers have to cover each day and the amount of exposure they experience during rough weather will certainly feel pleased to know that the department wishes to do the proper thing by them as far as compensation is concerned.

A Tennessee Trial

How a Judge Excused Himself For Discharging a Prisoner.

In one of the valleys to the east of the main spur of the Cumberland I stopped at a "huddle" of houses for the night. I was given a bed in a chamber with a window looking out on to the yard, and ten feet from the window stood a large apple tree. It being summer, the window sash was

It must have been about midnight when a sound at the window awoke me, and I got out of bed to see what was the matter. It did not take long to discover that some one was planning a surprise for me. A man had climbed the tree and from a handy branch had thrust out a plank to reach the sill of the window. It was the end of the plank dropping on the sill which areus-

I stood back a little to watch, and presently the fellow, whose color I could not determine, started to creep along the plank. I didn't know exactly what to do at first, but finally decided to give him a fall instead of a bullet. Waiting until he was midway between the window and the tree, I gave the end of the plank a shove, and down he went, yelling in affright as he found himself going. He had scarcely struck the ground when some one seized him. The house was alarmed, everybody turned out, and when I got down the owner of the house was standing guard over the man and saying:

"Now, then, Jim Hivers, you un has got yo'self into a powerful fuss! You un has been tryin' to git inter my cabin in the nighttime to rob the stranger, an' if you doan' dance high fur it I doan' want no mo' mest!"

"Wasn't a-tryin' to git in," sulkily -replied Jim.

"Then what was you un doin'?" "Arter apples." "Arter apples which hain't as big as shucks at this time o' y'ar. Jim, yo' is bad-bad all the way up an' down. I've knowed it fur y'ars, an' I've knowed that yo' would get cotched some day.

The cotchin' has arrove." "Cawn't prove it ag'in me," caimly observed the prisoner. "You un just wait! I'm gwine to tie yo' up till daylight and then take yo' befo' Squar' Taylor."

"Jess meant to look in the winder," explained Jim, who was evidently beginning to be alarmed. "Oh, yes! We understand! Now you un come ale ig to the smokehouse an'

doan' try any tricks on me?" Next morning he was regularly arrested on a warrant charging him with intent to enter and rob. The examination took place in the schoolhouse, and the justice conducted it without any lawyers to bother. When Jim was asked to plend, he replied: "I jess didn't dun It, an' I'll stick to my fat if yo' hang me!" "Then I'll enter a plea of not guilty," sald his honor, and he asked me to take the stand. I testified as related above, but all was not smooth sailing. When I stated that I was aroused by a

"Couldn't bin no nigger, nohow," said his honor. "Couldn't been nobody but yous, kase yous the one cotched." When I testified to pushing the end of the plank off the sill, Jim looked done up for a minute. Then a bright idea came, and he exclaimed: "Hold be un down, squar'. He says a plank! How long was that plank?

What sort o' wood? Who did it belong to? Donn' give he'un no high ground over me kase he looks peart." The owner of the house testified to noise, and he had just gone to the door when Jim fell from the tree.

"Shore it was me?" asked Jim. "Of co'se." "Donn' reckon it was anybody else?" "Couldn't bin, kase I grabbed it."
"Better be keerful! You's on oath!

What did I say?" "Sald you un was arter apples." "Put that down plain, squar'. Apples isn't as big as beans yit, an' if I was arter apples it proves insanity. That's one for me."

When he took the stand in his own defense, he was asked: "Prisoner, what is your name?" "What you drivin' at, Squar' Taylor?

A Big Ple Display.

The greatest pie display of which history tells us took place in 1509, at a dinner given after the funeral of Albrecht IV., king of Bayaria, at the royal palace in Munich. There were seven great pies upon the table, representing the seven ages of the world. The first pie was made of apples. It represented Adam and Eve, the tree of knowledge, the snake and the apple. The pictures were made upon the crust with confections of sugar and almonds. Another pie was made of doves and bore a wonderful representation of Neah's ark in its center, while round the edge were placed figures of every created thing. A key went with this ple in order that it might be determined what these figures were intended to represent. Upon-the crust of these wonderful pastrles appeared the tableaux of Abraham sacrificing Isaac, David slaying Goliath, the ravens feeding Elijah, Samson tearing open the jaws of the llon. and the last and most wonderful of all the pies when opened was found to contain four living birds, which all be

MESSES THAT ARE SERVED ON BOARD A "MEAN SHIP."

Queer Names the Sailors Give to the Inpalatable Food - Dog Chowder, By the Wind Soup, Topgallant Tea Some ships are known as "mean food that is served to the forecastle. They are chiefly deep water sailing ships and tramp steamers. Of course what a sailor shall have to cat is provided for by law, but the law some times gets badly mixed up on blue wa ter. The strange dishes served to sail ors on "mean ships" are no stranger than the names the sailors give them. One of the commonest of "mean ship" dishes is "by the wind soup." This delicacy is composed of well polished mutton bones, stale meat trimmings, a handful of potato parings and scraps from the captain's table. The mixture is boiled vigorously for two hours, at the end of which time the result is hot water of a light brown color with float ing islands of grease on its surface. A little hardtack is added, and there you have your "by the wind soup."

When a "mean ship" gets well out to sea, one of the first dishes to appear is "dog chowder." It is a sort of resur rection pudding, made of scraps that the cook does not dare to serve up as they are, but which he shreds finely or pounds in a mortar until all semblance of their original state is lost. The mass is well mixed with grease and served Grease plays an important part in all the "mean ship" dishes. Another standard item on the bill of fare of these ships is "topgallant tea." It is served to the men in the dog watches, and the recipe for making it is this: Three times a week weak tea, made from fresh tea leaves, is served. The leaves are saved and mixed with the tea leaves from the captain's table. Brown sugar or molasses is added, and from the mixture is made a decoction which which the sailors coll "topgamant tea. "Cow jipper" is a common dish on all "mean ships." It is made by boiling beef bones for six or seven hours with all the scraps left over from former meals. The broth so obtained is well sensoned with salt and served out. Another dish is "jumping-jenny," sometimes called "double belt ple," from the fact that the sailor has to take in a couple of holes in his belt after eating it in order to stay him until the next meal. It is the result of a week's leavings from the cabin table mixed with six or eight ship's biscuits and half an onion. It is not at all a nice dish, and a sailor with epicurean tastes always makes a row when the cook serves it.

On some of the "western ocean" tramps a dish is served known to the sailors as "hide stew," and the toughest old salt that ever was drunk or shore or mutinous at sea is subdued by it to a state of lumblike docility, for it is sure to double him up with indiges tion and make him think of the hereafter. It is made from a collection of the skins of everything - pigs, potatoes, fowl (from the captain's table). bacon rind and well picked chicken legs. This is boiled for six hours and plenty of thick grease added.

The captain of a "mean ship" always says, of course, that his men are well fed and that they only growl and grumble because they are a bad, usgrateful lot of abandoned wretches. In proof of it he will tell you that he case. Who knows how many times this gives them plum duff twice a week The duff he gives them is known to the that once held the puddings consum sharpened his goosequill pen, looked in port-when the captain gave his men

Waiting until he was midway between the window and the tree, I gave the himself going. He had scarcely struck the ground when some one selzed him: The house was alarmed, everybody turned out, and when I got down the owner of the house was standing guard over the man and saying:

"Now, then, Jim Hivers, you un has got yo'self into a powerful fuss! You un has been tryin' to git inter my cabin in the nighttime to rob the stranger, an' if you donn' dance high fur it I doan' want no mo' meot!" "Wasn't a-tryin' to git in," sulkily replied Jim. "Then what was you un doin'?"

"Arter apples." "Arter apples which hain't as big as shucks at this time o' y'ur. Jim, yo' is bad—bad all the way up an' down. I've knowed it fur y'ars, an' I've knowed that vo' would get cotched some day. The cotchin' has arrove." "Cawn't prove it ag'in me," calmly observed the prisoner. "You un just wait! I'm gwine to tle yo' up till daylight and then take yo befo' Squar' Tavlor."

"Jess meant to look in the winder." explained Jim, who was evidently beginning to be alarmed.

"Oh, yes! We understand! Now you in come ale ig to the smokehouse an' loan' try any tricks on me!" Next morning he was regularly arrested on a warrant charging him with intent to enter and rob. The examination took place in the schoolhouse, and the justice conducted it without any lawyers to bother. When Jim was asked to plead, he replied: "I jess didn't dun it, an' I'll stick to my fat if yo' haug me!" "Then I'll enter a plea of not guilty," said his honor, and he asked me to take the stand. I testified as related above, but all was not smooth sailing. When I stated that I was aroused by a noise, Jim put in:

"He un doan' dun say what sort of a food that is served to the forecastle. They are chiefly deep water sailing noise, squar'. Thar's mo' than fifty kinds of noises, an' he uns got to come right down fine." When I said that I looked out of the window and saw a man in the tree, ho interrupted with: "Squar' Taylor, is you un gwine put that down ag'in me? Thar's var'us sorts o' men. How does he un know it wasn't a nigger? Pin him right down, séuar'." "Couldn't bin no nigger, nobow," said his honor. "Couldn't been nobody but yous, kase yous the one cotched." When I testified to pushing the end of the plank off the slif, Jim looked done up for a minute. Then a bright idea came, and he exclaimed: "Hold he un down. squar. He says a plank! How long was that plank?

What sort o' wood? Who did it belong to? Donn' give he on no high ground over me kase he looks peart." The owner of the house testified to having been disturbed by a strange noise, and he had just gone to the door

"Shore it was me?" asked Jim.

A Big Pie Display. The greatest ple display of which "I don't give a durn if you did. We are history tells us took place in 1509, at a dinner given after the funeral of Albrecht IV., king of Bayaria, at the royal palace in Munich. There were seven great ples upon the table, representing the seven ages of the world. The first pie was made of apples. It represented Adam and Eve, the tree of knowledge, the snake and the apple. The pictures were made upon the crust with confec tions of sugar and almonds. Another ple was made of doves and bore a wonderful representation of Noah's ark in its center, while round the edge were placed figures of every created thing. A key went with this ple in order that it might be determined what these figures were intended to
