LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Union Service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday Evening.

A union service of the churches was held on Sunday evening last at the Presbyterian church, and the auditorium was well filled with an expectant gathering. Quite a goodly number were present from the neighboring town of Bennington.

The occasion of this union service was the presence of our former townsmen, Phenian E. Call, superintendent of the Union Rescue Mission, of Dover St., Boston, and three of the workers from the Mission; also Mr. F. F. Davidson, a director of the Mission since it was founded.

Dr. Cochraus had charge of the service; Rev. W. E. Braisted read the scriptures, and Rev. W. T. Bartley offered prayer. Mr. Call made a few remarks of introduction, after which the Mission workers related their respective experiences in a plain and interesting manner, and the same was quite impressive.

Mr. Davidson in his remarks gave a brief description of the Mission and its work, some incidents connected with its history, and the great good such an institution can and does accomplish. He is a nice talker, one who understands how to present his ideas in the most convincing manner.

An opportunity was given those present to assist financially in this branch of mission work.

With the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. J. E. Montgomery, a two-hour pleasant and doubtless profitable service was brought to a close.

Milk War Settled.

After a long conference the directors of the New England Milk Producers' Union and the contractors' association have agreed upon the price of milk which will govern the Boston supply until April 1. The price remains at 37 1/2 cents per can and the farmers can really ship more milk than under last winter's agreement.

For a time the prospects for a settlement between the producer and contractor were not bright and there was considerable talk of a strike. As it is that danger is passed and both sides seem to be satisfied with the present contract.

The Delineator.

The December Delineator (Christmas Number) represents the high-water mark of beauty and utility, and possibly of circulation also, in a woman's magazine, having a first edition of more than a million copies. It contains 240 pages. To produce this mammoth edition 728 tons of paper and 49 presses working 25 days were required.

The Delineator is one of the best woman's magazines published and deserves the success it has achieved. As a fashion magazine it is in the lead, and the best in their line is always appropriated by this enterprising company.

Cattarrh and Hay Fever.

Liquid Cream Balm is becoming quite as popular in many localities as Ely's Cream Balm solid. It is prepared for use in atomizers and is highly prized by those who have been accustomed to call upon physicians for such treatment. Many physicians are using and prescribing it. All the medicinal properties of the celebrated Cream Balm are combined in the Liquid form, which is 75c, including a spraying tube. All druggists or by mail. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Congress is now in session and getting ready to grapple with some knotty questions.

For Sale.

THE OLD RELIABLE

Absolutely Pure
THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

The Companion as a Christmas Gift.

The Youth's Companion is one of the few gifts that are always appropriate and yet within reach of the smallest purse. It brings to every member of the family something of interest, something of value—a story that cheers, an article that carries the reader into far-off countries or among men who govern, a sketch that amuses, a poem that puts a bit of truth in a new and convincing way, a page of pictures that holds the children spell-bound. It is America's home paper—a paper received weekly in more than half a million households in the United States.

If you desire to make a Christmas present of The Youth's Companion, send the publishers the name and address of the person to whom you wish to give the companion, with $1.75, the annual subscription price. They will send to the address named The Companion's Christmas Packet, all ready for Christmas morning, containing the Christmas number, The Companion Calendar for 1904, lithographed in twelve colors and gold, and subscription certificate for the fifty-two issues of 1904.

The new subscriber for 1904 will receive all the issues of The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1903 free from the time of subscription, also The Companion Calendar for 1904, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. Annual Announcement Number fully describing the principal features of The Companion's new volume for 1904 will be sent to any address free.

A DOG OF UTILITY.

The Pointer's Evolution From the Bloodhound Type.

The evolution of the pointer from that which may be described as the bloodhound type to the modern English foxhound kind has taken, perhaps, close on 150 years. He is essentially, above all others, a dog of utility, and as the pointer has always been looked upon as one of the chief helpmates of the man who loves to take his pleasure behind a well broken brace of dogs, a pair of barrels and straight powder, it stands to reason that that man has called in all his ingenuity and all his knowledge of breeding to provide himself with a sporting dog that is best adapted for the sport that is provided for him. Therefore in some places in America, where the plains are so vast, a very fast and wide-ranging pointer is required—one, too, with "bird sense." Where true ranging, a good nose and staunchness on game are to be found embodied in one single dog, there, perhaps, have we found the perfect animal, and a retrieving pointer at that.

As in other breeds of dogs, there are all sizes and sorts of pointers. The short headed, cloudy shouldered and often weak thighed and cow hocked pointer has gone by the board. It stands to reason that, although the cart horse can gallop, he cannot gallop with the thoroughbred, the clean necked, oblique shouldered, deep hammed, live racing machine. Half a day of real going will knock up the heavy headed, loose throated pointer. He has had to give way to the more elegant quantity; but even such as he should not be too small.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Evergreens.

The leaves of a green plant are chiefly used as feeding organs, which utilize sunlight in building up plant substance from water, carbonic acid gas and simple salts. Deciduous forms and evergreens have been evolved on different lines as regards foliage.

On the approach of autumn the former withdraw all nutritious substances into their trunks and branches. A layer of cork is then developed across the base of each leaf, which afterward falls off, leaving a neatly covered scar, which excludes air and germs.

These changes do not take place in evergreens, for these possess tough, leathery leaves, capable of resisting frost, which are shed gradually all the year round as they become old and effete. Such plants use sunlight year out, year in, while deciduous trees and shrubs do during the warm season only, though they work very vigorously in summer, getting ready the buds which open the next spring and storing up starch and the like to serve as food till the new leaves are unfolded and ready for work.

On the Wrong Track.

A young man in New York was deeply impressed with the beauties of Freemasonry and after considerable effort, mental and otherwise, had fitted himself for the ceremony of initiation into the order. He had heard of the "goat" and the "gridiron" and many other things connected with the first degree and was prepared to be surprised at nothing. In the course of his first evening at the lodge he stepped on a tack, which stuck into his foot and gave him considerable pain. He said nothing and made no effort to remove it, painful though it was. Two hours later, when it seemed to him that there was nothing more to come in the way of initiation, he asked if he might take the tack out of his foot. His sufferings were not ameliorated when he was told that the tack had nothing to do with the ceremonies.—New York Post.

He Was Not Leonie.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells the story of the statesman's examination for admission to Oxford university when he was a youth. The examiner, having utterly failed to floor the candidate on some point of theology, said, "We will now leave that part of the subject." "No, sir," replied the candidate; "if you please, we will not leave it yet," and proceeded to pour forth a fresh stream. The dean in Mr. Gladstone's day was Guisford, famous among other things for his trenchant brevity. "This leonic gift," observes Mr. Morley slyly, "the dean evidently had not time to transmit to all of his flock."

Considerate.

Mrs. Benham—You look mad.
Benham—I am mad. A man called me a horn fool today.
Mrs. Benham—You ought not to go mad about it. I think it was very considerate in him to blame it on your ancestors.—Brooklyn Life.

The Judge's Admission.

"What was your greatest trial, judge?" asked the young lawyer.
"Getting my seven daughters married off," replied the scanty haired jurist.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Remembered.

"What is a stomach pump?" asked the teacher in physiology.
"Takin' a trip across the lake," promptly responded Tommy Tucker.—Chicago Tribune.

The Ugly White Man

A traveler in the interior of Africa thus describes the effect which his presence had upon the natives: "My appearance on this occasion, as on many others, excited a universal shriek of surprise and horror, especially among the women, who were not a little terrified at seeing such an outcast of nature as they consider a white man to be peeping into their butts and asking for a little water or milk. The chief feeling that my appearance inspired I could easily perceive to be disgust, for they were firmly persuaded that the whiteness of the skin is the effect of disease and a sign of weakness, and there is not the least doubt that the white man is looked upon by them as being greatly inferior to themselves. One day, after bargaining for some onions with a country girl, she told me that if I would take off my turban and show her my head she would give me five more onions. I insisted upon having eight, which she gave me. When I removed my turban she started back at the sight of my shaven crown, and when I jocularly asked her whether she should like to have a husband with such a head she expressed the greatest surprise and disgust and declared that she would rather have the ugliest black slave for a husband."

Will Make You Sleep.

An alcohol rub at bedtime will go far toward breaking up insomnia. Let the rubber begin with the forehead and temples of the sleepless one, paying particular attention to the spine and back of the neck. Rub the alcohol gently but firmly into the body, working gradually down to the feet, and probably the patient will fall asleep before the rubbing is completed. One night or even one week of rubbing would not be likely to bring back permanent habits of sound, healthy slumber, but each night there is a gain toward the normal equilibrium of the nerves, and a month of alcohol rubs should put one in a position to do without external helps of any kind.—Boston Budget.

Women Who Dress Like Men.

Tourists in the Austrian Tyrol and the remoter regions of the Swiss Alps often come across strange peculiarities of dress, especially among the females in those out of the way places. In the little village of Champéry, which nestles almost under the frowning Dent du Midi, the women dress like men and may often be seen in the fields. Naturally they are objects of much interest to tourists, but the women do not seem to be at all uncomfortably conscious of the peculiarity of their garb. The peasants of Champéry are a simple, kindly folk, and doubtless find this novel dress more accommodating to the hard work they have to do.

The Ambitious Guide.

The Guide—Well, here we are on the peak at last.
The Tourist—Oh, guide, do you mean to say we can get no higher? Don't say that I can ascend no farther.
The Guide—Well, you can climb up this alpenstock if you want to. It's seven feet long.—Chicago Tribune.

A Surprised Duke.

Just after the late duke of Richmond and Gordon received the latter half of his title—he was created Duke of Gordon in January, 1876—he was sent to this country as president of the British commission to our centennial exposition. While in this country he heard of a certain picture owned by a country woman in which he thought he might be interested, and so wrote to her, using the official stationery of the commission and signing himself, as a peer does, simply by the names of his title, "Richmond and Gordon."

At the Sociable.

Mr. Sliptongue—I have not met your wife. Is she here this evening?
Mr. Hansome—Yes, but just at this moment she is engaged over there at the piano.

Why.

"Lillian is not sure that she loves Walter. Sometimes she thinks she does, and at other times she's convinced she doesn't."
"And yet she is going to marry him?"
"Oh, yes, that's all settled."
"But if she is not sure she loves him why doesn't she break the engagement?"
"Because she is twenty-seven."—Kansas City Journal.

Fixing the Blame.

"The trouble ain't with the farm," said the old man. "If the farm didn't have to do anything but support itself, it could be made to pay, but it don't seem to be able to carry the burden of us livin' on it, so I reckon we're to blame."—Chicago Post.

 Miss A. H. Eaton of Bradford was at Mrs. P. Eaton's over Sunday, on Wednesday morning she left for Hawke Park, Fla., where she will spend the winter.
 A Greenwood Evening will be held at the Town hall on Monday evening of next week, it will consist of Albert Greenwood and Mrs. Alice D. O. Greenwood who read and recite their own productions.
Mrs. F. A. Mitchell.
 The following is taken from the Bellows Falls (Vt.) Times. Mrs. Mitchell was daughter of Wyman Flint of Bellows Falls, and well known in Antrim.
 In Manistee, Mich., on Saturday morning last, Oct. 24, after an illness of more than a year and a half, Mrs. Anna Laura Flint, wife of Frank A. Mitchell, and daughter of Mr. Wyman Flint and the late Mrs. Almira Flint of this place passed away.
 Mrs. Mitchell was born in Bellows Falls and her life to the time of her marriage was spent in her paternal home. In January, 1881, she married Frank A. Mitchell, and the early years of her married life were spent in Glass Falls, N. Y., where she formed many strong and lasting attachments, endearing herself to a large circle of friends, to whom the knowledge of her death will come with deep grief and sadness.
 About sixteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell went to Manistee, Mich., which place has since been their home. There too Mrs. Mitchell by her winning personality, her charms of mind and heart won her many friends. She entered into the social life there, and because of her bright, attractive qualities was a favorite with all. During the many months of invalidism which she endured with a heroism, cheerfulness and patience almost sublime, her friends in Manistee ministered to her with a tenderness and devotion that attested to the love felt for her.
 Beside the husband upon whom the loss falls so heavily Mrs. Mitchell left Marjorie, a little daughter of nine years; her father, Mr. Wyman Flint; a sister, Miss S. Louise, and two brothers, Francis G. and J. W. Flint.
 The friends from a distance who came to attend the funeral were Wyman K. Flint of Milwaukee, Wis., Rev. and Mrs. Jesse Wagner of Waltham, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Abner Crombie of North Branch, N. H., C. B. Elder of Malden, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Foster Stevens of St. Johnsbury, Harry Templeton of Peterboro, N. H., Harry Whittle of Boston and Mrs. A. T. Batchelder of Keene, N. H.

A Greenwood Evening.
 Notwithstanding the people of Antrim have had the opportunity of listening to some excellent programs in their recent lecture courses, we wish to call their attention to the coming entertainment at the Town hall Monday evening, Nov. 22, given by Mr. Albert Greenwood and Mrs. Alice D. O. Greenwood. This is the only instance that we know of in literary history, except that of the Brownings, where man and wife worked side by side in the magnificent field of Poetry. During Monday evening and Tuesday we will pour the anxieties of the busy day world and take a little journey into the realm of imagination with these genial souls, the poets.

Grand Masquerade Ball.
 A Masquerade ball will be given by George H. Chadler Camp, S. of V., at the Town hall on Friday evening, Dec. 4. It will be the social event of the winter season. Neither time nor money will be spared in insuring a success their first annual ball. Music will be furnished by Wanatah orchestra. Costumes may be obtained of Carpenter, the Jeweler. See large bills.

Wanted.
 I would like a few washings to do. Would prefer going to the house, also would do house cleaning.

All Stuffed Up
 That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.
 No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.
 To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.
 "I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since."
Hood's Sarsaparilla
 Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

THE NEW YORK WORLD

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read wherever the English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-a-Week World long ago established itself in public favor, and is now recognized as the strongest publication of its kind in the United States. Advertisers and publishers seeking clothing combinations—and they know best—universally testify to this. It is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and even in remote South Africa and on the gold fields in the deserts of Australia. These are the things that tell.

Next year we have the Presidential campaign, in which all Americans are deeply interested. Already the issues are being discussed and the two great parties are preparing for the first moves. You will not want to miss any details, and if you subscribe now your year's subscription will cover the campaign from beginning to end.

The Thrice-a-Week is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political contests.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and THE ANTRIM REPORTER together one year for $1.65, to new subscribers, or old ones who pay up arrears, and a year in advance.

The regular subscription price of the two papers $2.00.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure "Digests what you eat."

It is said that in Paris the French girls of even wealthy parents, after they finish school, attend courses of dressmaking and millinery and to a great extent the industry which turns out the French woman as a model of good dressing, to be followed by the world, is carried on by the women of the family in what would be the home if the French knew the meaning of the word.

A reception day is rigorously kept, and much entertaining at dinner and "dejeuner" may be done, but always of a formal character. A person having the penetrating qualities of a book agent might venture to try "dropping in" on a French woman on a day when she is not regularly receiving, but in the natural course of ordinary social experience in Paris this would never happen, says Flora McDonald Thompson in Harper's Bazar.

Such order of living readily permits great economy. One has not to waste time, good clothes or house room in daily preparation for the unexpected guest. Six days of the week a French woman may run her sewing machine in the middle of her salon if she likes, secure from the interruption of chance callers. It is said that the chief function of the petit salon of a Paris apartment is to provide storage room for ball gowns which on reception days are taken down from the chandelier and locked up in a bedroom till the guests have departed.

WEDDING PRESENTS.

Some Hints About How and What and When to Send.

It is a golden rule to send your wedding gift in good time, the first to arrive being much more appreciated than that which is one of the many pouring in from all quarters during the last week.

By adhering to this rule you are also saved the annoyance of hearing that the saltcellars are charming, the third set already received.

A month before the wedding day is not too early to send the present, which should be accompanied by a visiting card, to be placed on the gift when displayed among the others. The package should be addressed to the bride if you are intimate with both the happy couple, and to the bride's house, addressed to the bridegroom, if it is he with whom you are best acquainted.

Most people wish to give something novel, useful and pretty. The future circumstances of the happy couple should influence the choice.

If they are going abroad, do not give anything unsuitable to the requirements of the climate or so cumbersome that packing and conveying it to its destination will amount to half the value of the present.

If the recipients will not be particularly well off, it is only kind to select some useful present. In these days, when artistic taste is shown in all the necessities of life, this should not be difficult.

If the happy couple are likely to receive many presents, it is safe to give something which will not be amiss if received in duplicate, such as silver sweetmeat baskets for the dinner table or a set of afternoon teaspoons or a bronze or china ornament.

The Poison of Saliva.

The poison of saliva of the common and also some of the most loathsome diseases are frequently conveyed in the mouth. In such case anything that is moistened by the saliva of the infected person may, if it touches the lips of another, convey disease. The more direct the contact the greater the danger. It is believed that much can be done to prevent contagion by teaching habits of cleanliness. But if such instruction is to be effectual it must be continuous. The teacher in the public school should notice and correct violations of these rules as habitually as violations of the more formal school rules are corrected.

Enough Said.

Two Boston ladies strolling along a road just outside of the borough came upon the first milestone. On it was written, "1 m. from Boston." Having never ventured so far from their native place before, they mistook the stone for a sepulchral monument. "How touching!" they exclaimed. "How simple! How human! 'I'm from Boston.' What more needed to be said? So the dead speak!"—Rochester Post-Express.

Carelessness is responsible for many a railway wreck and the same carelessness makes human victims of suffering from throat and lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Crigg of Dorchester, Mass. is one of many who testify that Dr. King's New Discovery is the great remedy guaranteed by Dr. King's Dispensary, 1000 and 1010, Trial bottles free.

A DANCE IN THE KLONDIKE

Joaquin Miller's Story and the Way He Clashed It.

At one of his lectures just after his return from the Klondike Joaquin Miller told the following story: "One night I was invited to a dance in a miner's cabin, and while Bill Dalton scraped away on his fiddle we just hoed it down. But the miners tramped in and out so much between dances that before midnight the ladies declared the floor was so slippery they couldn't dance another step unless something was done. Then something was done that never was possible in mining days in California. Each miner gallantly opened his buckskin powder pouch and sprinkled gold dust on the floor! And this was repeated throughout the night. And in the morning, ladies and gentlemen, those miners never troubled themselves about sweeping up that gold dust. They just hitched up their dog sleds and rode away."

At this point of Miller's narrative there was a slight agitation in the audience, an ominous sign of incredulity, but Miller was equal to it. With a wave of his hand toward one of the boxes, he said, "And my old friend up there in the box, Captain John Healy, will substantiate what I say."

It was a master stroke of the poet, for the house burst into applause and greatly embarrassed the modest millionaire mining and railroad promoter of Alaska, who unsuspectingly had accepted Miller's invitation to attend the lecture in the afternoon.

Farnell's Superstitions.

Charles Stewart Farnell was one of the strongest men that ever lived, but he had numberless superstitions. Once a colleague of his brought him the draft of a bill to the cell he was then occupying in Kilmainham. It was in thirteen clauses. Farnell was horrified. He insisted that somehow or other a fourteenth clause should be added. Once Farnell saw a colleague with three lights in his bedroom. He was quite uneasy until he saw one of the lights put out. I traveled with him once when he had a scarf that had been presented to him by a lady admirer. There was some green in the scarf. One of his superstitions was that green was an unlucky color. He used to say, half joke, whole earnest, that all the misfortunes of Ireland came from the fact that her color was green. He was very much put out by this scarf. It was in the days when the habeas corpus was suspended in Ireland and we were sleeping on the mail boat at Kingstown and were not to start for Holyhead till next morning. He was quite sure the green scarf would have us arrested before we left in the morning.—M. A. P.

Beauties of Red Tape.

A typical instance of the war office methods is furnished by a correspondent on one of our stations. An officer having occasion for the use of a screwdriver made application for the supply of that humble but handy implement from the government stores. His application was bandied about in the usual manner from officer to officer and finally reached the upper authority, from whom a reply filtered back by the same devious ways to the effect that screwdrivers were only supplied in tool boxes and not singly. Nothing daunted, the officer at once applied for a box of tools and after the usual circumlocutory tactics was informed that boxes of tools were only supplied to carpenter's shops. By this time the officer, who had quite forgotten what he had wanted the screwdriver for, had thoroughly entered into the spirit of the campaign, and his next application was for a carpenter's shop. He got it.—London Tit-Bits.

A King's Warm Bath.

When King Edward II. of England was among his torturers, who hurried him to and fro that no man should know where he was, they set him down upon a bank and the more to disguise his face shaved him and washed him with cold water from a ditch. The king said, "Well, you will have warm water for my beard," and so shed abundance of tears.

She Settled It.

"Sir," began the youth, "I have come to ask for your daughter's hand in"—
"No, sir!" snorted her father. "You can't have her! What could possibly have prompted you to ask?"
"Why—er—she did, sir!"
"Oh, that's different! Also, that settles it!"—Philadelphia Press.

Anxious.

Alice—How did you feel while Fred was proposing to you?
Mildred—Two or three times I felt like supplying the words I knew he was groping for, but of course that wouldn't have been the thing to do at all.

A Good Word.

Ferdy—I put in a good word for you, old chap. I told her you had more money than brains.
Algy—And what did she say then?
Ferdy—She asked me if you had any money.—Puck.

It cannot be too often repeated, "To innovate is not to reform."—Burke.

LEFT MINDED PEOPLE.

The Way the Brain's Orders Are Announced and Obeyed.

Both sides of the brain are capable of performing the duties of giving commands to the limbs, but the orders only come from one side, either from the right or left, but if the side upon which the speech center lies gets injured and is rendered incapable of performing its duty then the other side takes up the work, though it requires some time before it can do so properly.

Supposing a man meets with a bad fall or accident of any kind which damages the speech center on the left, he becomes dumb for the time being. Then the right side slowly learns how to give orders, and the man gradually regains power of speech after some years, but in many cases he becomes left handed because now the orders from the brain are transmitted more rapidly to the left than to the right.

You have often experienced, I suppose, the curious feeling that you have done something or met some one at some time or other when in reality you have not done so at all.

Supposing the left side of your brain conceived the idea that you were going to tie your boot lace and that the right side was, say, a thousandth part of a second behindhand in grasping the same idea, the result, when the right side did grasp it, would be that you would imagine that you had already tied your boot lace.—Dr. Withrow in London Answers.

Dreams of Peace Allure to Death.

Dreams of peace have always allured mankind to their undoing. Human destiny has been wrought out through war. The United States is an illustration. Little of the soil which now acknowledges the sovereignty of the Union has not been subdued by arms. The first settlers slew the Indians or were themselves slain; next the Americans and English conquered the French; afterward the Americans turned on the English and, with the aid of France, ejected them. In 1812 we again fought the English to defend the national unity and subsequently took California from Mexico by the sword. To consolidate a homogeneous empire we crushed the social system of the south, and lastly we cast forth Spain. The story is written in blood, and common sense teaches us that as the past has been, so will be the future. Nature has decreed that animals shall compete for life, or, in other words, destroy or be destroyed. We can hope for no exemption from the common lot.—Brook Adams in Atlantic.

London's Whistles.

A boy was charged at a London police court the other day with blowing a whistle in such a way as to cause three policemen to come toward him. The fact that such a thing is possible suggests the questions: How do the police distinguish between a cab whistle and a police whistle? What is there to prevent any one from blowing a whistle in such a way as to call a policeman?

A representative of the Graphic who put these questions to a high official of the city police learned that in the matter of attending to whistles, as with his many other duties, the policeman uses his discretion. Any shrill whistle will attract a policeman, but such a whistle blown at night outside a restaurant or any place where people congregate and cabs are wanted would not bring a policeman to the whistle. The same whistle blown in precisely the same way in the middle of the city at midday would bring a policeman on the scene at once.—London Graphic.

Lakes of Blood.

The name Lake of Blood or its equivalent has been given to places as far apart as England and South America. "Sanguelac"—i. e., the Lake of Blood—was the name given by the victorious Normans to the battlefield at Hastings, where the Saxons were overthrown and slain with terrible carnage. For a similar reason Lake Trasimene has borne the name "Sanguineto" because its waters were reddened during the second Punic war by the blood of some 15,000 Romans who fell before the troops of Hannibal.

Yet another Lake of Blood, called also "Yaguar Cocha," is situated in the state of Ecuador. It is one of a series of lakes formed by the extinct craters of volcanoes on the towering heights of the Andes range of mountains.

MacMahon and Grévy.

In Paris in the revolution of 1830 a law student was soundly kicked by one of the king's officers for tearing down a copy of the ordinances placarded on the wall. The officer was armed, the student was not; so the latter ran away. Nearly a half century later, in 1870, the officer called upon the student to bid him goodbye, having just resigned the presidency of the French republic on account of a radical difference with the majority of the national assembly on questions of state policy. He combined with his adieu also a graceful word of congratulation on the student's election to succeed him in the presidential chair. The student was Jules Grévy; the officer was Patrice de MacMahon, who died ripe 70 years and honors.

HIGH NOON

Originally It Was 3 o'Clock in the Afternoon.

The word "noon" is originally derived from the Latin word hora, the ninth hour of the Romans; the 3 o'clock of today, but no day is given us to when or why the change took place which made "noon" mean midday, or 12 o'clock.

This will be discovered if we go back to early times, for then great deference was paid to Saturday afternoon as a preparation for the Sabbath, when work was ceased all over the land. In 938 King Edgar in his ecclesiastical laws laid it down that "Sabbath shall be observed from Saturday 'noon' till light appears on Monday morning," Johnson, commenting upon this, says "noon" is 3 o'clock, and remained so till the reformation.

How, then, came it to mean 12 o'clock? In this way: Monks, by their rules, were not to dine till they had sung their "nones," or noontide service. When midday, 12 o'clock, began to be the time of eating and drinking the monks, who were also the masters of language in the dark ages, anticipated both their devotions and their meals by singing "nones" immediately after the 12 o'clock service. Thus the "noon" of old was merged into the "noon" of today, and for a time distinction was made between the two by calling 12 o'clock noon and 3 o'clock "high noon," as it appears in "The Shepherd's Almanack."

Animal Barometers.

The tortoise is not an animal one would naturally fix upon as likely to be afraid of rain, but it is singularly so. Twenty-four hours or more before rain falls the Galapagos tortoise makes for some convenient shelter. On a bright clear morning, when not a cloud is to be seen, the denizens of a tortoise farm on the African coast may be seen sometimes heading for the nearest overhanging rocks. When that happens, the proprietor knows that rain will come down during the day, and, as a rule, it comes down in torrents. The sign never fails. This presentation, to coin a word, which exists in many birds and beasts, may be explained partly from the increasing weight of the atmosphere when rain is forming, partly by habits of living and partly from the need of moisture which is shared by all. The American catbird gives warning of an approaching thunderstorm by sitting on the low branches of the dogwood tree (whether the canine is invariable the deponent saith not), uttering curious notes. Other birds, including the familiar robin, it is said, give similar evidence of an impending change in the weather.

Followed Directions.

A clergyman in New Jersey hired a man to act in the capacity of coachman and gardener. One day the clergyman bought a bottle of horse liniment and told the man to apply it to a lame horse according to the directions on the bottle.

About an hour afterward he went to the barn and found Silas industriously dipping a spike into the liniment and then rubbing it against the horse's leg. "What are you doing that for?" he asked.

The man looked up with a smile of assurance. "Because," said he, "twas what it said in the directions on the bottle, but it's slow work."

"You must have made a mistake," said the minister.

"I have not," answered the man in an aggrieved tone. "It says here on the bottle, 'Apply with a large nail or tooth brush,' and as I had no tooth brush, I thought I'd better use this spike."

The Memory of Ants.

A remarkable fact in the physiology of ants is their memory. The number of ants that go to make a nest is enormous, yet they are all personally known to each other and are able to recognize members of their own community after a prolonged absence. Sir John Lubbock kept one of these remarkably intelligent insects from his home for a year. On its return the relatives from whom it had been so cruelly separated recognized their wanderer and welcomed it back, while an ant introduced from another nest was most inhospitably treated, even murdered and thrown out.

Conditional.

A Scotsman was on his deathbed, and his friends persuaded him to forgive a neighbor with whom he had had a standing feud for some years.

The neighbor came to the dying man's bedside.

After they had shaken hands and made peace the Scotsman exclaimed:

"If I get better, Donald, remember all this goes for naught."—Pearson's Weekly.

Baby Slubber.

"Fat babies," said the eminent scientist, "are unhealthy. You may think because a baby is fat that it is in the pink of condition, but the fat is simply so much blubber."

"My baby isn't fat," said the dejected father, "but we can't sleep at night because he has too much blubber."
