Her Lesson

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis

There was but one passenger to alight at Snow Hill, on the Southern Pacific road, and in the cattle and Indian country, and that was Miss Bessie Vaughn of Chicago. Her schoolmate, Nettie Long, whose father owned and managed the big Long ranch and who was now living with him out in the wilds, had written that a person would meet Bessie at Snow Hill with a buckboard and bring her safely to the ranch. The "person" proved to be a young man of twenty-five, dressed as a cowboy, but having rather a distinguished look about him. While he was hastening along the platform and yet thirty feet away the girl acknowledged to herself that his features were good and that his face showed character and ambition. Perhaps it was for these reasons that, while he was covering the other thirty feet, Miss Bessie suddenly decided that he ought to be snubbed.

"This is Miss Vaughn of Chicago, I presume?" he said as he lifted his hat and smiled a welcome.

What right had he to presume? By what right did he smile a welcome and seem ready to shake hands? The girl looked coldly at him and slightly nodded her head, and that was snub No. 1. The young man took it so; but, though he colored up, he did not lose his smile. "You will give me your checks, please, and I will put your trunks aboard, and we will be off."

There was a touch of authority in his tones that nettled the girl, and she turned away and delivered up the checks with her own hand. She would also have loaded the trunks on the vehicle if she had been strong enough. Snub No. 2 had followed fast on the heels of snub No. 1.

"We have fifteen miles to drive, and the road is rather rough," observed the young man as they got seated.

No reply. Snub No. 3.

"I take it that you have never visited this section before?" was remarked after the silence had lasted for a mile.

"No."

"But I trust you will find novelty and pleasure."

Miss Bessie looked straight ahead and shut her teeth hard. What was it to one of Colonel Long's hired men whether she enjoyed the west or not? The man was presumptuous, and she meant her silence to be another snub. Whether it was so taken or not, it was not more than five minutes before a voice which had a touch of the paternal in it remarked:

"You don't look overwell, and a couple of months of this bracing atmosphere will do you a world of good."

"Sir, are you a practicing physician?" asked Miss Bessie as she turned to look the young man square in the eyes.

"Well, no," he slowly replied.

"Then you need not bother to take charge of my health."

That was what the boys would have called a settler, and it hung the young man up for the next ten minutes. When he spoke again, however, it was as if nothing had happened.

"It was on that hill over there," he quietly said, as he pointed with his whip, "that four of our men were surrounded by fifty Indian warriors two years ago."

Miss Bessie deliberately turned to look in the opposite direction, and she felt that he was smiling as he continued:

"One of the boys was killed, but they killed twelve Indians and held their ground all day."

What was it to her whether one or the whole four cowboys were killed? Indeed she found herself almost wishing that all had been wiped out. She hadn't the slightest interest in the

"And over there in that valley is where a drove of steers ran over and trampled the life out of two of our men last spring. We didn't even find their boots."

Miss Bessie looked straight ahead and made no reply.

"And you wouldn't believe, would you, that this insignificant creek we are crossing was a mile wide and ten feet deep last May? We lost a thousand head of stock in that flood."

Still no reply. It was snub after snub, and she meant to tire him out. This time the silence lasted for fifteen minutes, and she it was who broke it at last. The horses had shied at a coyote dodging for cover and started away on a tearing gallop. The young man kept them on the trail, but made not the slightest effort to check the pace. On the contrary, he hummed a popular air as they laid down to their work. The visitor stood it as long as she could, and then turned and exclaimed:

"Can't you see that the horses are running away?"

"I have seen it for some time past," he quietly replied.

"Then why don't you stop them?"

"I will if you so wish, but a run of a few miles won't hurt them any."

She did wish it from the bottom of her heart, for the vehicle was jumping like a goat, and it took both hands to hold her hat on her head, but she gritted her teeth and decided to be smashed into jam before she would prefer the request. The horses ran for three or four miles and then sobered down, and the young girl felt that she had snubbed the young man again by not being afraid.

"Who is that man you sent to the depot after me?" she asked of her schoolmate almost before she had taken off her hat.

"Who? Why, that's Tom. My schoolmate introduced you some day."

"You needn't mind. I found him rather presumptuous and had to snub him."

"Tom presumptuous? Why, he's the nicest!"

And then she suddenly skipped to some other subject, and Tom was forgotten till the next day, when he was bold enough to approach Miss Bessie as she was alone for a moment and ask:

"What sort of a gait do you prefer in a horse—a trot or a lope? I am to select one for you today."

"Thank you, but you needn't go to any trouble on my account," was the reply, and Tom ought to have felt duly crushed as he walked away.

He was not seen again for four days, duty having called him away. The two girls rode out every day on ponies selected for them, and on the fourth occasion something happened. The pony ridden by Miss Bessie suddenly bolted, and when she found him beyond control she could only cling to the saddle and hope he would tire himself out after running a couple of miles. But he didn't. He kept a straight course and a headlong gallop for mile after mile, and the girl was thinking of throwing herself from the saddle when a cow pony ranged up beside her, a hand grasped her loose rein, and a voice said in her ear:

"Keep your head, Miss Vaughn. I could pull him down and end his run here, but there is need of even more speed."

"What is it?" she asked as she turned her head and saw Tom beside her.

"Indians! There are five or six in chase of us, and I am racing for that hill with the rocks on it. Cling tightly, and don't be afraid."

After a terrific race for another mile both animals were suddenly pulled up, and, dismounting and lifting the girl from the saddle, Tom half pulled her up the steep side of the hill to the shelter of the rocks.

"We are all right now," he cheerfully said. "But you keep crouched down till I have a little talk with these noble red men."

The "talk" was his Winchester, and before it was over he had killed one and wounded another. Their loss, together with the alarm of the firing, sent the remaining Indians scurrying away.

At the ranch house, after the story had been told, Miss Bessie asked for the second time:

"Who is this man Tom?"

"Why, he's an old Yale man and belongs to one of the best families in the east. He came out here for his health, you see. Did you have to snub him again today?"

"I—I don't think so."

"But are you going to some other day?"

"No, never again. I'm so sorry and ashamed—and I think—think—"

"Well, there's a rumor about, and it may be true."

A Carlyle Letter.

Carlyle's letter declining to give a valedictory address as lord rector of Edinburgh university is in Dundee museum. It is a mournful, kindly letter of little general interest, except perhaps in its somewhat conventional advice to the students:

"Bid them in my name, if they still love me, fight the good fight and quit themselves like men in the warfare to which they are as if conscript and consecrated and which lies ahead. Tell them to consult the eternal oracles (not yet inaudible, nor ever to become so, when worthily inquired of) and to disregard, nearly altogether in comparison, the temporary noises, menaces and deliriums. May they love wisdom, as wisdom if she is to yield her treasures must be loved—piously, valiantly, humbly, beyond life itself or the prizes of life, with all one's heart and all one's soul. In that case (I will say again) and not in any other case it shall be well with them. Adieu, my young friends, a long adieu."

Hunting With Falcons.

Hunting with falcons was revived in Scotland some years ago by Sir Henry Bethune. A writer on field sports says: "The falconers had an old setter dog which hunted till he found a covey of partridges. The falconer then threw off a hawk, which rose in circles till very high, then hovered above the dog. The dog looked up to see if the hawk was ready and then ran in and roused the birds. Swoop went the hawk. If he missed, the birds generally went into a hedge and the hawk soared again and hovered over the birds. The old dog then went off after them and got another point. If the hawk killed its bird, the falconer went gently to it and picked it up; if not, he had to fetch the bird with the lure, a dummy bird with a bit of pigeon on it. He called the hawk 'Killy, killy, Voivook,' a sort of vialloo, and hurled the lure in the air. The hawk stooped to it and began to eat the pigeon, and he then succeeded in picking it up."

An Empty Invitation.

An Englishwoman traveling in Mesopotamia tells this experience of her party: "The cook came in with a pleasing expression. 'What will you have for supper?' he asked. 'What can we have?' we answered, with the caution arising from long experience of limited possibilities. 'What you wish,' he said, with as much assurance and affability as if he was presenting a huge bill of fare. I knew what one could expect in these places. 'Get a fowl,' I said. 'There is not one left here,' he answered. 'Eggs, then,' I suggested, with the humor of desperation. 'No fowl, how eggs?' he answered, with pitying superiority. 'Well, we will have what there is,' I said faintly. 'There is nothing,' he answered."

If You Would Live.

If your name is to live at all, it is so much more to have it live in people's hearts than only in their brains. I don't know that one's eyes fill with tears when he thinks of the famous inventor of logarithms, but a song of Burns' or a hymn of Charles Wesley's goes straight to your heart, and you can't help loving both of them, sinner as well as saint. The work of other men lives, but their personality dies out of their labors. The poet who reproduces himself in his creation as no other artist does or can goes down to posterity with all his personality blended with whatever is imperishable in his song. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

BANNER SALVE

the most healing salve in the world.

BENT BACK FOR THE PURSE.

Salesman Used an Empty Wallet to Study Humanity.

Picking up a wornout, empty pocket-book, a salesman in one of the large dry goods stores the other day thought he would have a little fun with it. He therefore placed it on the counter, half concealed by the goods lying on it. Presently a shopper entered. Her eyes lighted on the wallet as by instinct, and while pricing half a score of articles she endeavored to cover it—quite artlessly, of course—now with her handkerchief, then with her satchel and again with her umbrella. The salesman, without appearing to notice her actions, each time removed the pocketbook out of danger and into light. Finally she adopted new tactics and picked it up, with the remark:

"Yes?" replied the clerk interrogatively. "Thank you." And he took the leather and disappeared with it for a moment. Upon his return the woman asked, with a slight show of interest:

"Was there much in it?"

"Only $3," replied the salesman carelessly, with the ease of one who has been used to lying all his life.

"And who will get it if it isn't called for?" asked the shopper.

"The firm," is the epigrammatical response.

The woman went out. In ten or fifteen minutes a boy came in and asked:

"Was a pocketbook with $3 found here this morning?"

"Yes," replied the salesman, "but it has been called for."

"Oh," said the boy and retired.

And the salesman smiled audibly.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SUGAR CANE.

We Have Borrowed It From India, Its Native Home.

The sugar cane and its uses have been known in India, its native home, from time immemorial. It is perhaps the earliest source from which sugar was produced, and all other modes of manufacture have been borrowed from or based on it. The early classical writers knew sugar vaguely as "honey of canes." To the Greek-Roman world the sugar cane was the most which the swarthy Indians delighted to elow and from which they extracted a mysterious sweetmeat.

It was the Arabs—these great carriers between the east and west—who introduced the cane in the middle ages into Egypt, Sicily and the south of Spain, where it flourished abundantly until West Indian slavery drove it out of the field for a time and sent the trade in sugar to Jamaica and Cuba.

Early in the sixteenth century the cane was taken from Sicily to Madeira and the Canaries. Thence it found its way to Brazil and Mexico, to Jamaica and Haiti. Cane sugar was well known in Italy about the second century and has been common in England since the Tudor period. The strenuous days of great Elizabeth had sugar for their sick, and ginger was hot for the mouth, too, as we all well remember.—Cornhill Magazine.

Some Chinese Baths.

A traveler in Mongolia writes: "There are some hot springs by the road about twenty miles north of Chingping. The place is named Tang-shan. The arrangements for those anxious to benefit by their healing properties are very primitive. A row of twenty or thirty wooden boxes the size of an ordinary packing case are ranged beside the road. In these sit bathers of every age and both sexes, with their heads protruding. Attendants with buckets continuously refill the boxes from the springs. For less luxurious bathers there is accommodation in a pile of boxes on dug out close by. In this they squat, scooping up the water and pouring it over their heads with brass basins. It is curious to reflect that establishments like Homburg and Aix-les-Bains have had their origin in such beginnings."

Beetle Soldiers and Sailors.

There are beetles in England, and of the family known to scientists as telephidæ, that are popularly called soldiers and sailors, the red species being called by the former name and the blue species by the latter. These beetles are among the most quarrelsome of insects and fight to the death on the least provocation. It has long been the custom among English boys to catch and set them fighting with each other. They are as ready for battle as gamecocks, and the victor will both kill and eat his antagonist.—St. Nicholas.

Looking on the Bright Side.

The lesson which I have learned in life, which is impressed on me daily and more deeply as I grow old, is the lesson of good will and good hope. I believe that today is better than yesterday and that tomorrow will be better than today. I believe that in spite of so many errors and wrongs and even crimes my countrymen of all classes desire what is good and not what is evil.—Senator Hoar's "Autobiography."

When a man has been taken with his mind, he is not a man any more. He is a machine.—Theodore Roosevelt.

THE YOLKS OF EGGS.

Those of a Reddish Hue Better Than the Pale Yellow.

There is most probably an important dietetic difference between two eggs the yolk of one of which is a very pale yellow color and that of the other a rich, almost reddish color. It is a notorious fact that the country produced egg may usually be placed under the latter description, while the egg produced by the hen that is under an unhealthy and limited environment shows an anemic color, generally a very pale yellow. The eggs of wild birds—as, for example, the plover—show a yolk of a rich reddish color.

The substance which contributes color to the yolk of the egg is iron, just as it is iron which gives color to the blood, and there seems to be little doubt that the iron compound in the yolk of the egg is of a similar nature to that of the blood. It is easily assimilated, and eggs are regarded as a suitable food for the anemic person, as they present a concentrated and generally easily digested form of nutriment rich in iron. The iron compound of the egg has, in fact, been termed a "haematogen," because it is probable that from it the blood of the chick is derived. The amount of iron in the yolk of an egg would appear to increase with the intensity of its color, and there can be little doubt that the maximum is reached in the richly colored yolk of the egg produced by a fowl existing in healthy surroundings, for then its processes of nutrition would be working under very favorable conditions. As an article of diet, therefore, the egg should be judged not by the color of its shell, but of the yolk, which should be of a rich reddish rather than of a pale yellow color.—Lancet.

THE ENGLISH TAILOR.

He Used to Be Humble, but Now He Is a Haughty Vampire.

Of late, be it noted, the tailor has become quite an unreasonable and gratuitous drain on all men's purses.

Formerly you were his patron. He was very civil and gave you no intermittent opportunities for seeing the top of his head and the back of his neck. He rubbed his hands and crawled before you for 5 guineas a suit. If you paid any time before the death of the senior partner in his business he bowed you to your equipage and said in his heart that you were a great gentleman.

Today he is a vampire, he sucks your blood, he wrings erect, he chooses cloth for you, you must have what he tells you to have, his terms are cash on delivery, his credit will last you six months, and as often as not he is a member of your friend's club.

He is the person who makes you or mends you. With his bit of soapstone he can turn you out just so or not just so. Be civil to him, I assure you. You are only a poor, soppy, brainless, driveling misanthrope of a man. If you be not well dressed you will become a wreck, a hulk, a derelict, a castaway on the misty shores of business and society.—London Gentleman.

The Telltale.

That was an embarrassing position in which a fashionable New York woman found herself recently. She was invited to a wedding, but did not think either of her hat or was good enough for the occasion. So she visited her milliner's and had an exceedingly costly affair sent home on trial. She wore it at the wedding and the next day drove to the milliner's and returned it, saying it did not suit. It happened that the betatron, who quite understood the situation, had been similarly tried several times of late. "Did you not wear this hat at the bank wedding yesterday?" she asked bluntly. Taken by surprise, the society woman owned up, but asked, "How did you know?" "Oh," it was quite easy. I see several grains of rice in the folds of the lace."

A Growsome Kaffir Custom.

A writer on the Kaffirs of South Africa says: "A Pondo chief in very olden days on accession to the throne would kill one of his brothers and wash in his blood to strengthen himself and then would keep his medicines in the skull of the dead brother, a practice which raised the power of the medicine to the 'nth' as mathematicians would say. If a warrior of conspicuous bravery is killed in war his body is made into medicine and administered to the young men to make them brave, a practice which may well have been the basis of cannibalism."

The Conclusion.

"What conclusion did your literary and debating society reach last night?" "Oh," answered Miss Cayenne, "the conclusion was as usual, chicken salad, ice cream and Good night. Had a perfectly lovely time." Washington Star.

Of More Interest.

Nell-Jack is always talking to me about the depth of his love. Belle-Theleph would not interest me so much as the length.—Philadelphia Record.

It supplies the kidneys with the substances they need to build up the worn out tissues.

It will cure Bright's Disease and Diabetes if taken in time, and a slight disorder yields readily to the wonderful curative power of this great medicine.

It soothes and heals the urinary organs and invigorates the whole system. If your kidneys are deranged, commence taking Foley's Kidney Cure at once. It will make you well.

TWO SIZES 50c & $1.00

A Physician healed, now prescribes it daily.

Dr. Geo. Ewing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky., for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Foley's Kidney Cure: "For years I have been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostate gland. I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced to use Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles, for I can honestly state I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success."

Baccalaureate Sermon.

Last Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church Rev. E. S. Collier of the Methodist church delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the Antrim high school.

The gathering was presided over by Rev. Dr. Cochrane, Rev. O. M. Lord read the scripture, and prayer offered by Rev. W. E. Braisted.

Mr. Collier took for his subject, "Human Progress" his text being, Ecc 7:10, "Say not thou what is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this." In his remarks he kept close to his subject and showed that the world is growing better instead of worse, that the world in every department is advancing, the improvements of today are but a forerunner of to-morrow's greatness. In the individual there is progress, especially in these better days. It was a timely subject and ably delivered. With the singing of the baccalaureate hymn and benediction by Dr. Cochrane the services were brought to a close.

BENNINGTON

Harry Nourse has gone to Manchester and entered the employ of the Swift Co.

"Rebecca's Triumph" was presented at the Town hall on Wednesday evening by the ladies of Bennington Grange in a most acceptable manner. There was a good sized audience in the hall. After the entertainment a season of promenading was enjoyed.

George Cheney's house is in course of building.

J. J. Griswold is slowly improving in health.

Frank Keeser is confined to his home by illness, suffering with rheumatism.

Rev. W. T. Bartley is attending a clergyman's gathering at Windham.

Rev. F. E. Wion of No. Bridgeton, Me. a former pastor here, was in town last week.

Harry Hibbard has taken up the life insurance business.

Mr. Gifford of Boston is in town.

The Hancock team won here last Saturday by a score of 12 to 6.

The social dance on Friday evening was well attended.

The members of Troop A, are at camp in Concord for this week.

Mrs. Josie O'Neil is home from Mt. Holyoke.

Mrs. F. M. Hill is seriously ill.

Frank Taylor lost a valuable cow one day last week.

The town line between this town and Greenfield has recently been resurveyed by the Selectmen of both towns and a rather curious condition of affairs exist as a result of their finding. The small railroad station, known as South Bennington, and for which this town paid the Manchester & Keene road some $10,000 annually, over 30 years ago is not in Bennington but in Greenfield, the line being about 200 ft. this side of the station.

It was also found that the cottages of Messrs. Freeman and Ward at Lake George are in Greenfield and that the recent fire at the Lake burned over some of Greenfield's territory.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Roberts, June 20, a son.

Of interest are "Women Sculptors of the World's Fair," "At the Sign of the Copper Kettle," "The Monarch Butterfly" and other interesting matter. This issue is an interesting one.

SEA SHELLS.

The Way They Are Formed From the Mantle of the Fish.

A sea shell, whether in one piece (univalve), as in periwinkles, or in two pieces (bivalve), as in mussels and cockles, is formed in much the same way. It consists of a colored outer horny layer, a middle layer of prismatic structure and an inner pearly coating of innumerable very thin plates, the edges of which break up white light into its constituents, so as to give rise to a beautiful play of iridescence.

The body of a shellfish is invested in a soft flap of skin known as the "mantle." By the activity of this the shell is secreted, a sticky fluid exudes from its surface and quickly hardens to form horny or calcareous matter. The salts of lime are chiefly in the form of carbonate, but there is also a percentage of phosphate.

Only the edge of the mantle is able to manufacture the two outer layers of the shell, and repair of injuries is entirely carried out in nacre, or mother-of-pearl.

The Engines of War.

At a dinner during the Franco-German war Disraeli did not open his mouth till near the end of the entertainment, when he observed in his most sententious manner: "The French embarked in this war because they conceived that they had the superiority in arms of precision: they had the chassepot and they had the mitrailleuse (which he pronounced 'mitrailleuse'); but of the third engine, called a man, they did not possess even a single specimen." This said, he relapsed into perfect silence.—Diary of Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff.

The Need For Water.

Water constitutes about two-thirds of the weight of the body and enters into the composition of all the tissues and fluids. To keep the necessary proportion, a large quantity needs to be ingested. One of the great dietetic errors is the neglect to take a sufficient quantity. The amount found in foods is insufficient, and about five cupsful should be taken daily in beverages. A vegetable diet diminishes the need of water, while one composed largely of animal food increases this need.

Altitude and Voices.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus in America among the Indians living on the plateau between the ranges of the Andes at an elevation of from 10,000 to 14,000 feet the men have voices like women and women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

Hadn't Seen Him.

The Vicar—Did you see a pedestrian pass this way a few minutes ago? Farm Hand—No, sir. I've been workin' in this fatter patch more'n a nower, and norter thing has passed 'cept a solitary man, and he was trampin' on foot.—London Telegraph.

A Royal Compliment.

Mrs. de Nismund, archbishop of Toulouse, when preaching one day in the private chapel of Louis XIV. lost the thread of his discourse, so that he had to remain silent for some time. The king came to his lordship's relief with this graceful remark: "I am very glad, my lord, that you are giving me a little time to digest all the good things contained in the former part of your sermon."

How She Took It.

Harry—How is our grandmamma? When is two an' a half in the summer? Col. You know I've been messin' around. Harry—When two are made one, Col. is Oh, Harry! This is so sad!—Town Topics.

Life is the finest of the fine arts. It has to be learned with lifelong patience, and the years of our pilgrimage are all too short to master it triumphantly.—Ingram.

Three Meddlesome Ladies.

The most celebrated warlike women among the ancients, apart from the fabled amazons, were the Helotian ladies. Caesar praises highly their military achievements. In more than one instance the legions of Rome turned their backs on the fair ones of Switzerland. During the crusades women often performed the most romantic and chivalrous deeds, dying cheerfully by the sides of their lovers and husbands.

MYSTERIES OF NATURE.

Some of the Many Things That Find No Ready Explanation.

Whatever opens up new doors or windows for us into the world about us, whatever widens the field of our interests and sympathies, has some sort of value, says John Burroughs in Country Life in America. But much of the so-called nature study opens no new doors or windows. It affords no mental satisfaction or illumination or aesthetic pleasure. It is mainly pottering with dry, unimportant facts and details. Do you know the edelweiss flowers or our own matchless arbutus after you have merely analyzed and classified them? No more than you know a man after having weighed and measured him. The function of things is always interesting. What do they do? How do they pay their way in the rigid economy of nature? How do they survive? Why do the roots of trees flow through the ground like "tunnels of molten metal," often separating and uniting again, while the branches are thrust out in right lines or curves? Why is our common yellow birch more often than any other tree planted upon a rock? Why do oaks or chestnuts so often spring up where a pine or hemlock forest has been cleared away? Why does lightning so commonly strike a hemlock tree or a pine or an oak and rarely or never a birch? Why does the bolt sometimes scatter the tree about and at others only plow a channel down its trunk? Why does the bumblebee complain so loudly when working upon certain flowers? Why does the honeybee lose the sting when it stings a person, while the wasp, the hornet and the bumblebee do not? How does the chimney swallow get the twigs it builds its nest with? From what does the hornet make its paper?

I have never been greatly interested in spiders, but I have always wanted to know how a certain spider managed to stretch her web squarely across the road in the woods about my height from the ground.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

The aimless life cannot be the end-less life.

A rough diamond is worth much polished dirt.

There is no comfort where no compassion is.

They who put pleasure first are the last to find it.

Awkward deeds are better than eloquent dreams.

The finest music heard in heaven is made on earth.

No man ever reached a joy by jumping over a duty.

Wandering afar is not essential to the welcome of home.

Finding flaws in the sermon is easier than following it any day.

People who advertise their troubles never clear off their stock.

There is no promise of pardon for confessing the sins of others.—Chicago Tribune.

Living on a Few Cents a Day.

The problem of living on a few cents a day is not so difficult of solution if one comes to limit oneself to the actual necessities. For instance, we could point to the workers in the turpentine forests, who labor hard from sun to sun on a bit of fare that costs not more than 5 or 6 cents per meal. The average ration of a turpentine "hand" in the woods per week is five pounds of ham or pork, one peck of cornmeal, one quart of molasses and a pint of salt. The value of this ration is about $1.50.

The ration, then, is not really how cheap any one live, but how many of the extras of eating one is willing to do without.—Savannah News.

Where He Made His Start.

A squirrel in a certain town had just finished marrying a young couple and proceeded in a paternal way to give them good, solid advice. Turning to the bridegroom, he said:

"Never spend your money extravagantly and be saving in every way possible."

The bridegroom listened respectfully and then remarked:

"Well, judge, we might as well begin on you." And he proceeded to give the squirrel 50 cents for tying the knot.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Stonewall's" Comment.

At a council of generals early in the civil war one of them remarked that Major — was wounded and would be unable to perform a certain duty for which he had been suggested. "Wounded!" said old Stonewall Jackson. "If that is really so I think it must have been by an accidental discharge of his duty."

A Doubtful Compromise.

"I've worn out six pairs of shoes," said the collector, "coming after you with this bill."

"Don't let that bother you," replied the editor. "I've got an old pair that'll last a row."

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy I seldom need it, as it has cured me.

SHORT WINDED.

Why Some Persons Become Breathless With Severe Exercise.

Breathing consists of two rhythmic alternating processes—inspiration, in which the muscles of the chest play their part, and outbreathing, in which the elasticity of the lungs and the weight of the chest force out air. The number of breaths, which varies with the age, is one to every three or four pulse beats. In ordinary breathing only about one-sixth of the air in the lungs is renewed, but in exercise the amount is considerably increased and the number of breaths multiplied.

In disease such as reduction of lung area the blood is in danger of becoming overcharged with carbonic acid, and the lungs struggle to get rid of this and to bring in more oxygen. Exercise causes a similar change, and if of the right sort and not too long continued the circulation and breathing are quickened, and the result is good.

In severe exercise, such as long continued speed trials, the quickened breathing can no longer cope with its task, so carbonic acid accumulates faster than the heart and the lungs can deal with it, and breathlessness results.

HABERDASHER.

The Word Is Supposed to Mean Things of Little Value.

The word haberdasher first appears in the language as coming from haper-tas, the name of a fabric mentioned in the Liber Albus along with wool, canvas and felt, as subject to customs duty, about 1410. A parallel and almost contemporary list has habertassherie.

The word is supposed to mean things of little value—small wares such as buttons and tapes. Skeat derives it from the Icelandic haperbask—trumpery, pedlars' wares. In a register of burials of Ware in 1635 we have one entry: "Michael Watkins, London, haberdasher of hatts," probably this being the first material of which hats were made.

Chambers gives another meaning to the word. He says it is derived from the ancient name for a neck cloth, berdash, which is derived from beard, and tache, a covering.

Hapertas was originally a cloth of a particular kind, the width of which was settled by Magna Charta. Hence a haberdasher was the seller of haper-tasserie.—London Answers.

THE LUDDITES.

Authors of the Famous Stocking Frame Riots in England.

Early in 1811 bands of distressed stocking knitters in Nottinghamshire began a long series of riots, marked by most wanton mischief. Assembling in parties of from six to sixty under a leader styled general or Ned Ludd, disguised and armed with swords, pistols, hammers and axes and bound together by illegal oaths, they succeeded in smashing stocking frames in all parts of England, and their daring outrages continued even when a large military force was brought into the neighborhood and two London police magistrates came down to assist the civil power.

To such a pitch had this dangerous disturbance grown that a royal proclamation was issued offering a reward of £50 for the apprehension of any of the offenders. Not until October, 1813, did this wholesale destruction and violence cease, by which time more than a thousand frames and many lace machines had been broken up and the mischief had spread into neighboring counties.—London Chronicle.

Five Thousand Distinct Languages.

Mr. J. Collier, writing on the subject, says that over 5,000 distinct languages are spoken by mankind. The number of separate dialects is enormous. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil, and in Mexico the Nahuatl language has broken up into 700 dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo. In Australia there is no classifying the complexities, and generally the number of dialects is in inverse proportion to the intellectual culture of the population. Assume that only fifty dialects on an average belong to every language and we have the colossal total of 250,000 linguistic varieties.—Pearson's Weekly.

Mummy Paint.

Ground up mummy makes a brown of a certain rare color that nothing else can give. It is on account of the asphaltum in the mummy that this is so. The Egyptians wrapped their dead in garments coated with asphaltum of an incomparably fine and pure quality. This asphaltum as the centuries passed impregnated the tissues of the dead themselves. It turned them into the best paint material in the world. Being exceedingly expensive, it is used only by portrait painters in depicting brown hair.
