CURRENT TOPICS.

Treated by The Reporter's Special Correspondent, and Served in a Pleasing Manner.

MR. JAMES HILL, who is called by some the foremost business man of his generation, and probably the greatest business man of all ages, recently made a speech in Chicago that had some ponderous thinking in it. He said that the Panama Canal was designed to conserve trade of only fifty-four millions, while our trade with Canada is 200 millions, and he asked why something is not done to improve relations between our good English-speaking northern neighbor and ourselves.

THE Pennsylvania and Reading railroads have increased wages 10%. Amalgamated Copper and Standard Oil have done the same, and it is reported that the great steel corporation with its 187,000 employees will grant an increase of 10% in wages. Other great concerns and corporations will possibly follow suit in an effort to make wages commensurate with the increased cost of food, board, rent and extras. Prices of food, rent and clothing have gone up considerably in the last ten years. There would be more cause for alarm if it were not for the fact that with this increased cost work was never so plentiful and the country never so prosperous. Prosperity and plenty are in part the cause of increased prices.

POLITICAL prophets are entertaining themselves and the public by prognosticating the President's message—a thing not very difficult to do, since the President's policy or policies are pretty well known by this time. He has not hid his light under a bushel or been reticent with reference to his views and intentions. It was months ago that he indicated in a public address the necessity of an inheritance tax. An income tax is a necessary corollary. The Supreme Court some years ago during a democratic administration, pronounced an income tax unconstitutional, but the Court itself has been somewhat reconstructed since then, and it is thought that if the question should again come up, the majority of five to four, as the court then stood, will be reversed.

It is well known from what the President has said and from what those in close political relation with him are saying, that he is in favor of supervising the affairs of corporations engaged in interstate commerce with a supervision somewhat analogous to that which the Government maintains over the national banks of the country. This plan in operation would doubtless increase the power of the functions of the bureau of corporations of the Department of Commerce of which Mr. Straus will have charge after March 4 next and doubtless a larger corps of expert examiners such as are now employed in the Treasury Department will be appointed. Probably the result will be to put an end to the bad habit of over-capitalization which has been so obnoxious both to the law-makers and executives of the states and of the United States. To stop the issuing of watered stock and to tap off the water from stock already saturated, will be a drastic preventative and curative remedy, but the condition requires heroic surgery, and the patient will be better in the end.

The Apple Crop of 1906.

The apple crop in the United States has just been estimated at 36,120,000 barrels. This is 12,625,000 barrels more than the crop of 1905.

The estimated crop in New York state is 4,900,000 barrels, or larger by 1,000,000 than the production in any other state.

The estimated New York crop equals the crop in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee combined, and if equally distributed to the people of the state, would give half a barrel to each man, woman and child.

Regarding Matters Political.

Since 1875, the Republicans have elected every governor that has presided over the affairs of the state of New Hampshire. Several times the margin has been a narrow one, for securing a plurality vote and in some instances a majority vote has not been obtained so that the election has gone to the legislature. This happened in 1875, 1878, 1886, 1888 and 1890. Since 1890 until this year the Republicans have elected their governor by the people. The smallest Republican plurality in the past 30 years was in 1890 when Hiram A. Tuttle led his Democratic opponent, Charles H. Amsden, by only 93 votes, and fell about 1800 votes short of a majority.

This year the official count as given out by the Secretary of State from his tabulated gubernatorial figures are:

Total number votes cast	81,513
Necessary for choice	40,757
Charles M. Floyd, r, had	40,581
Nathan C. Jameson, d, had	37,662
Edmund B. Tetley, p, had	2,212
William H. McFall, s, had	1,011
Winston Churchill had	30
Scattering	7

A little figuring will show that while Mr. Floyd had 40,581 votes, his opponents had a total of 40,932 against him. To overcome this opposition vote and obtain a majority Mr. Floyd would have to have 40,933 votes out of a total vote of 81,865 or 352 votes more than he received on election day.

Complete returns show that the Republicans have elected all five of the members of the governor's council, and eighteen out of twenty-four members of the state Senate. The House of Representatives will contain 259 Republicans and 128 Democrats. The Republicans will, therefore, have a majority of 143 on a joint ballot.

In commenting on the outcome of the election, the Portsmouth Gazette says:

"That Mr. Floyd ran behind his ticket was due to unfair, scurrilous, personal, eleventh-hour attacks made upon him by personal enemies, incited and spurred on by the Democratic organization. It is unfortunately true in this year that the popular mind has been so inflamed from a variety of causes, that it runs away with its reason and permits things to be done that its sober reflection will cause it to regret.

"Mr. Floyd not being elected by the people will be elected governor of this state by the next Legislature, in which the Republicans have their usual overwhelming majority.

"Mr. Floyd was born in Rockingham county, has always been a citizen of this state, has made his way in the world among us, is known of all men as a sturdy, honest, able and upright product of the state and will make a worthy governor."

In regard to one of the important planks in the Republican platform, one which greatly interests the people generally of the state, one of our exchanges has this to say:

"There seems to have been awakened in New Hampshire a disposition to disregard caucus and convention choices and to vote for whom they please regardless of party affiliations. The people prefer to make their own nominations, rather than have party bosses dictate the 'slate.' There are coming to more and more dislike and resent the methods practiced by professional politicians to carry caucuses and conventions. The people are in favor of a change in political ethics. In fact, we believe the voters of New Hampshire will become increasingly independent in their views on political questions until a direct primary law is placed upon the statute books of this state.

"One of the most important planks of the Republican platform to which the party is pledged is to change the caucus laws of the state. The people of New Hampshire have become tired of the way nominations are effected at caucuses and conventions. Keeping the voters in line for candidates who are distasteful to a majority of the people is becoming a harder task for party managers in each election campaign. The Republican party will be making a serious mistake if something akin to a direct primary law is not enacted at the legislative session this winter."

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
"Digests what you eat."

To the Democratic and Reform Voters of New Hampshire.

Gentlemen:

I take this method to express to you my appreciation and thanks for your support in my candidacy for Governor as expressed at the polls on November 6.

I regard this not so much as a personal endorsement, as I could be known to but few of you individually, but I consider it an endorsement of my public record, and an endorsement of the proposed reforms for which I stand, as enunciated in our platform.

Among these are:

A law to eliminate the buying and selling of votes and to punish the briber and the bribed.

A law to regulate town and ward caucuses in the interest of fair nominations.

A law to make balloting more secret by providing suitable and protected booths so that the briber cannot watch his victim while he is marking his ballot.

A law to eliminate railroad passes.

A law in opposition to the maintenance of a corrupt lobby to influence legislation. The abolition of useless State commissions.

The passing of a fifty-eight hour bill in the interests of labor and various other matters of general utility with which you are familiar.

From the returns it would appear that the voters in the State are really in earnest to make a change and a reversal of the policy heretofore pursued by the dominant party.

The returns also show that a large number of influential and self-respecting voters put principle above party and voted for the Democratic candidate for Governor.

I appreciate the high compliment that has been paid me by these Reform Republicans, Independent voters, Union Labor men and Prohibitionists as well as by the Democracy in casting their ballots for me in this contest.

The compliment is an unusual one in this State and the more highly appreciated by me in that it must have come from every class of true reformers in New Hampshire.

I do not care to make further expression at this time, but I feel it due to myself to express my gratitude for the large and exceedingly complimentary vote that I have received at your hands.

With respect, I remain,
Yours very truly,

NATHAN C. JAMESON.

Election Echoes.

No Election of Governor by The People—
The Legislature Must Decide.

The friends of Hon. Nathan C. Jameson are much pleased with the large vote he obtained in the State, and the very creditable gain made.

The result was quite a surprise when it was found that the election had been carried to the Legislature.

Among the most conspicuous gains, was the carrying of every ward in Concord and the city by 992 (which was 500 against the Democratic candidate at the last election), and the cities of Manchester, Nashua, Berlin, Franklin and Somersworth, and the large and strongly Republican towns of Milford, Peterborough, Goffstown, Derry, Claremont, Lebanon, Henniker, Marlborough, and Hanover (the home of Dartmouth college), as well as gains made in Antrim, Bennington, Hillsborough, Deering, Wolfborough, etc.

This was a very gratifying result to the candidate and his friends.

The last time the election was carried to the Legislature was in 1890.

The new Pure Food and Drug Law will mark it on the label of every Cough Cure containing Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying or poisonous drug. But it passes Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure as made for 20 years, entirely free. Dr. Shoop all along has bitterly opposed the use of all opiates or narcotics. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is absolutely safe even for the youngest babe—and it cures, it does not simply suppress. Get a safe and reliable Cough Cure, by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's. Let the law be your protection. We cheerfully recommend and sell it. Wm. F. Dickey.

An Earnest Appeal.

Membership in the Grand Army of the Republic is not a matter of sentiment, but of duty. Organized to promote the highest and best interests of the survivors of the Army and Navy of the Union in the War of the Rebellion, during the forty years of its history it has broadened its work and exemplified the best qualities of American citizenship. With scarce an exception, every community in which a Post exists has felt the quickening inspiration of that loyalty to country and to home which saved the Union and made this Republic a world power among the Nations of the earth. Quickly responsive to the magnanimous words of the great soldier our-combatant, General S. Grant, in his last days at Mount McGregor, the Grand Army has given vital efforts to the divine sentiment "Let us have Peace." We have helped to bind up the Nation's wounds, we have not failed to hear the cry of the widow and the orphan and throughout the land we have upheld in practical form the glories of Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty.

The Commander of Ephraim Weston Post, No. 87, Dept. of N. H., invites or urges all Soldiers, Sailors or Marines, who are not members of any Post, to join them. Your assistance is needed, and the time may come when the Post can be of service to you. "Close in on the Colors" and keep the "Colors Guard" full for years to come. "Fall in!" "Fall in!"

State Trade Report.

Reports received by Bradstreet's show that manufacturing conditions were never more favorable, many concerns being unable to fill their orders and there is a universal complaint of inability to get goods of any kind properly. Labor is exceeding scarce, from the most skilled to the common laborer, and wages are correspondingly high. In retail lines business is good except in the very heaviest lines of clothing and boots and shoes. Wholesale trade is good and collections are about as usual at this season.

The strike at the paper mill in Berlin has been settled and the men are back at work; the other mills are very busy and labor is scarce. The chair concern at Conway is erecting a large sawmill and employing more help than ever before; other industries are very busy, and trade is good in all lines. Wholesalers report a good business. Merchants are having a good business and it is improving every day.

Plurality and Majority.

How many thousands there are who do not fully understand the significance of the words used in connection with every State and Presidential election especially plurality and majority.

Plurality in elections is the excess of the vote given for one candidate over those given for another, or for any other candidate. When there are more than two candidates the one who receives the plurality of votes may have less than a majority.

Majority is the number by which the votes for a successful candidate exceed those for all other candidates.

An ingenious Ruse.
Herodotus tells of an ingenious ruse employed to carry an important message through the lines of the enemy. Elitaius, being anxious to give Aristagoras orders to revolt, could think of no means to send the message to his ally, as all the roads were carefully guarded. Finally he hit upon a scheme. Calling his trustiest servant to him, he ordered that the man's hair be shaven off. He then prickled the desired message on the scalp of the slave and, waiting until his hair had grown out, dispatched him upon the errand. The messenger passed safely through the lines, and when he reached Aristagoras his head was again shaved and the message read.

Perfumes.

Perfumes exercise a peculiar influence over one's nervous system. A faint, subtle odor is nearly always pervading, while a pungent, rich perfume often has a bracing effect. Civet induces drowsiness, a faint breath of musk invigorates and the perfume of the aloe and the citron is positively soothing and comforting. The delicate, spicy odors of pinks, carnations, apple blossoms and sweetbrier are thought to be beneficial.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember this name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Dry Farming.

The part of our Prairies, west of the one hundredth meridian, between Montana and Texas is a semi-desert. This land is used almost entirely for grazing. The reason that it is not used in grain production is that the little rain which falls here evaporates so quickly that crops cannot mature. What will turn this country into flourishing farms is a system which will retard evaporation. This system has been found in Campbell's Method of Dry Farming.

This consists in deep ploughing sub-surface packing, and constant stirring of the top soil. These fertile plains have lain so long under the parching sun, with no forest to protect them, that the surface has become crusted and cracked. Through these cracks the water vanishes and is so easily evaporated. The deep ploughing breaks the soil and covers the cracks, but that is not enough; the earth over the cracks must be packed, to hold the water and to make a firm bed for plant roots. This is done with a machine called the sub-surface packer, which consists of heavy toothed rollers or wheels. It packs the earth just plowed and with the teeth, loosens the top soil. Then every week, and after every rain, this top soil is stirred with harrows and spiked drags, keeping constantly a dust coating of two or three inches over the reservoir of packed earth. The rain sinks quickly into this reservoir and after the rain the top soil, having been stirred, forms dust again and retards the evaporation. As the sun through this coat slowly draws the moisture up, it is taken in by the plant roots. By this economy, twelve inches of rainfall a year is sufficient to mature crops. Every year, from fifteen to twenty inches of rain falls in most parts of this region.

Like every inventor, Mr. Campbell, has found it hard to convince other people, and as yet his system is used but little. By the experiments of several years, he has proved that larger crops can be raised on good land, than by ordinary farming as well as large crops on poor land. This if it proves a benefit, will not be for North America alone, for, since the plains of eastern Europe, southern Africa, Australia, and the pampas and llanos of South America, suffer in a like manner from lack of rainfall and are otherwise in the same condition as our Prairies, they can be treated the same.

R. G. HURLIN, A. H. S., 1907.

It Takes Nerve

Everything depends upon your nerves. It is nerve force that causes the brain to direct the motion of your body; it is nerve force that causes your heart to pulsate, and send the blood through your veins; it is nerve force that causes your stomach to digest food, your kidneys to filter the blood, and the liver to secrete bile.

In fact, nerve force is the power that runs your body, so if you feel worn-out, irritable, nervous, cannot sleep, or eat well, have pain or misery anywhere, your nerves are weak, and your system run-down. To restore this vitality take Dr. Miles' Nervine which will strengthen and build up the nerves. You cannot be healthy without strong nerves.

"For eighteen years Dr. Miles' Nervine and Anti-Pain Pills have been my close companions. Early in married life, while raising children, my nerves became all worn-out—could not sleep, had no appetite, indigestion very bad, and had such awful dizzy spells. Then I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine, and at once I began to improve, and soon found myself in perfect health."

MRS. S. L. YOUNG, 324 Pittsburg St., New Castle, Pa. Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Indigestion
Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Restorative—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend it.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Springing from the worthiest of motives and sanctioned by centuries of appropriate observance, Thanksgiving Day has become one of the most hallowed and honored of our festivals.

Today we have much in the past and present of state and nation for which to thank God; and we look forward to much in the future which should lead us to ask for His continued guidance and protection.

In the hope that this primal purpose of the day may be chief in its observance, notwithstanding the joy of family gathering and the zest of out-door sports, I hereby appoint Thursday, November 29, as Thanksgiving Day.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this thirteenth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-first.

John McLane, Governor.

berthia. The pattern provides for short puff sleeves if the model should be developed for a party or dressy frock. For ordinary wear the dress might be most attractive in serge, with cuffs and yoke of a contrasting color. Braid arranged in Greek border design trims the cloth portion.

Coat Trimmings.

It is quite a fad to have velvet collars, cuffs and sometimes trimmings upon coats of other materials, and this simplifies matters, since one does not require the exact shade of color or frequently even the same color.

One of the season's whims is to braid the cuffs and collars with designs worked out in soutache, to which chenille is often added.

About Feathers.

Ribbon and wings are the two prominent adjuncts of the millinery world at present with the exception of ostrich feathers, which are always in fashion, and marabou to be used this autumn in the form of huge, soft pompons. Some of the turbans with their pointed fronts and draped crowns need nothing more than a sufficiency of ribbon to trim them.

About Belts.

Embroidered belts of heavy linen are worn with woolen tailored suits. They usually match the suit in color and are embroidered in exactly the same tone as the linen. It is possible nowadays to get linen in all the fashionable tailored shades.

Earrings in Favor.

Jewelers are jubilant. Earrings are in vogue again. The fad has been revived in Europe and is taken up by New York society. Pearls are ahead of diamonds, and studs are accepted as good taste in the ears.

For the Neck.

There is a strong revival of the vogue of jet ornaments, such as dog collars, brooches, necklaces, long chains, bracelets, combs and belts.

Guy Fawkes.

When I was a boy, the fifth of November was a great time in London, and in the other cities and towns of England, and was called "Guy Fawkes Day." When James I became King in 1603 there was very strong feeling between Protestants and Roman Catholics, and some of the latter had made several attempts to regain the power and influence they had lost in the Reformation. A few desperate ones resolved to make such an attempt in 1605. The parliament was to meet on Nov. 5, and on that day the King was to go to the House of Lords where the Commons also were to be present, and formally open the session. Catesby and his companions resolved to blow up the building while they were thus assembled and they hired a man named Guido Fawkes to carry out their plan.

The cellar under the House of Lords had been used for the storing of coal, and as it was to let, the conspirators hired it, ostensibly for the storing of wood, which was then generally used in London for fuel. But they managed, probably by night, to carry into it twenty barrels of gunpowder; which they hid from sight by covering it up with billets and fagots of wood, and everything was in readiness for carrying out their plot. But a few days before the time, one of them sent an anonymous letter to Lord Montague, advising him as he valued his life not to attend parliament on that day. He took it to the government, who made light of it; but the King thought there might be something in it and ordered that a diligent search be made. This was done on the morning of the day on which parliament was to meet, and on removing part of the wood in the cellar, the barrels of powder were found, with a train of powder from them, and touchwood laid to it.

On further search Guido Fawkes was found in the cellar and arrested. In his pockets were found a tinder box, and more touchwood, with which to accomplish his purpose. He refused to give any information. But another man was arrested on suspicion, and he confessed the whole plot, so that other conspirators were arrested, and with Fawkes were tried, found guilty, and executed. This was thought to be such a manifest display of the providence of God, that a service of prayer and thanksgiving was arranged to be observed in the parish churches on every succeeding fifth of November: and this "Form of prayer with thanksgiving" is printed in my copy of "The Book of Common Prayer," which was published in 1835.

The boys in London used in the morning of Nov. 5, to carry about effigies of Guy Fawkes, and at night used to make bonfires in some of the back streets, and especially in the back yards of their houses; and let off fireworks, which many of the boys made themselves, consisting of popguns, crackers, blue candles, serpents, and sometimes flower pots; while others purchased them at the stores, with the addition of pin wheels and Roman candles, and sometimes a few sky rockets.

An entertainment in Congregational church vestry last Wednesday evening.

It has looked the past week as if winter had come to stay, the bad travelling and trees bend to the ground made travelling anything but pleasant. The fruit trees were badly broken in some places by the heavy snow.

Rev. McFay has accepted a call to the Congregational church and commenced his work here last Sabbath.

Everyone is sorry to have Rev. Oscar Smith and wife leave us. In the short time that they have been with us they have endeared themselves to our people. As he is still a student, and had a much better chance offered him close to his school work, it seemed best for him to go.

On account of the severe snow storm S. E. Bryant did not go to Henniker as was reported last week. After having his team engaged, on account of the storm and bad traveling, he concluded to stay in Frankestown for the winter.

Infantile Precocity.

"A child I heard about talked when it was three months old," said one gentleman present.

"A certain mother had a very sick child, and, fearing the worst, she went to the doctor and asked him if he could do anything for the child. He said, 'Nothing.' The mother wrung her hands and repeated, 'Absolutely nothing, doctor?' and he answered, 'Absolutely nothing.'"

"Then the child, looking up into their faces, said absolutely nothing too."—Houston Post.

benefited as she was. Miss Goode is president of the Bryn Mawr Lawn Tennis Club of Chicago. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:-

"I tried many different remedies to build up my system, which had become run down from loss of proper rest and unreasonable hours, but nothing seemed to help me. Mother is a great advocate of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles, having used it herself some years ago, and in less than a month I was able to get out of bed and out of doors, and in three months I was entirely well. Really, I have never felt so strong and well as I have since."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration, can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

A Good Change

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Copyright, 1906, by Ruth Douglas

"Billy Batson! That settles it. I don't hold with circus no mighty much anyway—not unless there's animals and children that oughter know about 'em. But you might 'a' went to this'n in the wagon along with Uncle Jim's folks, if that would 'a' done you. Go with a Batson, indeed! Remember, miss, your grandfather went to the legislature!" Mrs. Hicks said wretchedly to her daughter Amelia, who pouted and answered sullenly:

"I wish he'd died first. Then you couldn't be always throwing him at everybody until we're laughingstocks. And Billy Batson has got the finest horse and the nicest buggy around here. Any girl—Sophy Weidon even—would jump at the chance to ride in it. You'd want me to jump, too, if it wasn't for that sneaky preacher. I tell you right now you needn't try to make me marry him. I won't do it! I won't! I won't!"

"Hain't you better wait till you're asked?" Mrs. Hicks asked, with her finest sarcasm.

Amelia laughed—a laugh not pleasant to hear. "I ain't a fool—not if I am your daughter," she retorted. "I know what you're plotting, you two, and that you want him for a son-in-law, so you can boss the church, as you've always bossed things here."

"Amelia Hicks! I am ashamed of you!" Mrs. Hicks cried severely, then, with a sniffe: "But maybe I deserve it. I took your father rather 'n listen to my missionary call. And this is what I get for it—a thankless tooth sharper 'n a serpent's child."

Amelia giggled. "That's about the way you commonly get things," she said irreverently. "Now, you listen to me, ma. You hate old maids—so do I—and Billy Batson is the best chance I'll ever have in my life. He's going to court me this trip—I know it—never mind how. If you don't let me go, he'll court somebody else."

"Lord grant it!" Mrs. Hicks broke in fervently. Amelia frowned. "You think, then, I might put up with your Brother Gillam," she said bitterly. "But I'd die—I'd even be an old maid first, the soonest, ugliest that ever turned sweet milk."

"Oh, do hush!" Mrs. Hicks interrupted fretfully, but turning away her head to hide a flickering crafty smile. "If nothin' will do you but to sink to the level of the Batsons, why, I suppose you'd start with Amos, the simple-minded fellow. Her mother laughed scornfully. "For no great matter," she said. "You may hear every word I say. Does that satisfy you?"

"Looks like it ought to," Amelia said ungraciously. "But, understand, you ain't going to mention Gillam!"

"Of course not. Pearls ain't to be cast before swines," Mrs. Hicks said, with a toss of her head.

Amelia eyed her distrustfully for a long minute, then walked off, muttering to herself, "If only she sticks to her word, she can't do any great harm."

Amelia thought she knew her mother, particularly as regarded the depths of her deceit, but she stared in dumb amazement at Billy Batson's reception. No May morning ever smiled more engagingly on him than Mrs. Hicks. She shook hands with fervor and asked in her sweetest voice after the health of his family. She was also hearty in admiration of his spanking turnout and wished him all sorts of a good time—the full worth of his money in pleasure. Then she added artlessly that she herself had never seen a real circus. A menagerie of one elephant power was as near as she had come. A pity, to be sure! No, she had no scruples. It just somehow never quite suited for her to go when circus day came round. Somebody had been sick or there was work to do. Mr. Hicks had gone—mean always went—but that didn't mean stopping a plow, 'as would have been the case had she insisted. Of course she would have had to have the mules and rockaway. Now that she was a widow she had not felt it was just the thing to do. A circus seemed somehow to require having a man along. Maybe she would go next time—her nephew Freddy Drawne was growing up so fast.

Then Billy said boldly, with a sheepish glance toward Amelia. "Oh, maybe you'll have a son-in-law, and if he don't take you, why, ask me to thrash him for you."

"If you're willin' to do that for me, maybe you won't mind doin' something easier—lettin' me go 'long with you and Amelia today. It's dreadful lonely stayin' at home and watchin' all the neighborhood go by," Mrs. Hicks said, with a plaintive smile.

Billy gasped, but could not refuse. Amelia stood thunderstruck. She turned half about, meaning to say she would not go, but a glance at her mother's face stopped her. Her mother was counting upon rebellion in her daughter. If Billy saw her fly into a tantrum he might well be scared off. So she controlled herself and clambered up into the buggy, outwardly smiling, but inwardly gritting her teeth.

The buggy was high and the seat so narrow it barely held two persons. Billy had to kneel upon the floor, steadying himself with the reins as best he might. It was more than aggravating. He had the fastest horse on the road and had counted on giving dust to everything else there, no less than on having the prettiest face in the county at his side. Now he drove at almost a foot pace, partly because of the added weight, but much more because he wanted to keep away from sight of his acquaintances.

Naturally conversation languished. For awhile Mrs. Hicks kept up a sprightly chatter, but after a mile or two even she fell silent. Amelia sat with clinched hands, ready to cry between anger and mortification. Of course Billy would be angry. He had a right to be. Not with her, to be sure—but, then, how could she expect him to discriminate? Her mother, she knew well, had the name of being proud and a schemer. There would be plenty of folks to tell Billy, if he did not think of it himself, that the whole thing had been planned between mother and daughter on purpose to make him ridiculous.

Being self-made, he was keenly sensitive. Unless she could make him understand her innocence she had lost him, and she did not want to lose him. She loved every fiber of his six foot ruddy comeliness as she hated the oily languish of Brother Gillam.

Her heart leaped when Gillam drew up alongside the buggy and said, trying to speak jocularly: "Why, Batson, don't you know there are laws against monopoly? Here I'm driving to town without a soul to bear me company. Divide, man, divide! I know it's hard to choose, but you must give me a passenger."

"I have to mind the preacher, don't I, Mrs. Hicks?" Billy asked over his shoulder, making way for her and checking his horse as he spoke. He of course could not choose, but she must understand that she was in the way.

But Mrs. Hicks sat tight, giggling and saying airily: "Indeed you do, Miss Batson! Cut the wheels the least mite more, then Amelia can step across—no need in the world of your gettin' out to help her—and Brother Gillam can meet us at the Mathewses. Their yard is such a good place to see the parade."

There must have been fate in it, else Amelia would have refused. But some power beyond herself compelled her to obediency. In a wink almost she was whirling forward beside the man she talked to. The woman beside him, his heart was so sore, his mind so angry, it was almost a miracle that he did not drive into or over somebody. But by good hap he got safe to his journey's end and found himself a little later, with Mrs. Hicks at his elbow, wedged into the throng which lined the street on either side.

Amelia and the minister were just across the way. Neither couple had had time to reach the Mathews haven. The parade was already moving when they came to town, so they had made what shift and haste they might.

It was a piteous parade, something tawdry throughout, and in spots dusty and threadbare. But the lady riders had superb horses and sat them wonderfully, especially Sandra, queen of amazons, who in green and gold lace blew kisses right and left from her finger tips, the while making her milk-white Arab keep time with the band blaring ahead.

Sandra was slight and round, with everywhere about her the suggestion of supple strength. She carried a crop to flourish what time she was not throwing kisses. Every man along the line uncovered to her, and here or there she got hand clapping and cheers.

As she drew near Amelia's stand Brother Gillam said uneasily: "You won't mind if I leave you, the others are so near? And it has just occurred to me that I ought not to be here. Not that there is any harm in it, but we must avoid the very appearance of evil."

"Go, if you can," Amelia said dully. She was too angry to feel relief in his absence.

Billy's face had told her things—all she had been fearing. Since he was lost to her beyond question, she had a mad wish that the world might end. Gillam made a pace away, found the human wall impenetrable, then turned irresolutely again toward her.

Thus he drew to himself Sandra's keen gaze. Those watching saw her jaw set, her eyes sparkle, her cheeks whiteen underneath their rouge—saw her ride straight at the tail, black clad figure and lash it furiously, crying high and shrill:

"You thief! You robber—villain! You murderer! You are a murderer—the money you stole from me might have saved—our little child."

"Of all the brazen things! To quit a circus and turn preacher," Mrs. Hicks said a week later. "But no wonder he took us in—the deacons—and me and everybody—such beautiful letters as he had. Forged, of course—and that poor creature he left behind, playing on—with the baby just buried—by charity too. Amelia, it makes me creep to think how near you came to marrying such a scamp. He might 'a' done it if I hadn't put my foot down that he must wait till Christmas, when you'd get your grandpa's legacy."

"That was what he wanted," Amelia said, laughing.

Amelia was too happy to resent her mother's inconsistency. "Billy is another sort," she added after a pause. "He wants that $5,000 put in trust so he can't even touch it—along with another thousand from him."

"I always said Billy was a mighty good chance," Mrs. Hicks said, plausibly casting up her eyes.

Hopeless Case.

"Papa says," remarked the dear girl, "that he will never give his consent to our marriage until you are able to support me."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the poor but otherwise honest young man. "Does he want his only daughter to die an old maid?"—Chicago News.

Over Eight Feet Tall.

King James I. had a gigantic porter eight feet six inches in height, but he was not perfect, being round shouldered, knock kneed and lame in one foot. Of a similar height was Charles Munster, a yeoman of the Hanoverian guard who died in 1670, and seven years before there was being exhibited in London a Dutchman eight feet nine inches high named whom in Pepys' diary we find the following entry on Aug. 15, 1680: "Went to Charing Cross to see the great Dutchman. I did walk under his arm with my hat on and could not reach his chin with the tips of my fingers."

Whipped Cream.

"Look here," shouted the irate neighbor over the fence, "your youngest son has been stoning my cats and pilfering my apple trees! He is a scamp!"

"Don't talk that way about my son," blurted the fond parent. "Why, he is considered the cream of our family."

"The cream, eh? Well, I'd like to see him whipped."—Chicago News.

Work For Nothing.

First Crook—I'm getting tired of work. Second Crook—What's the matter now? First Crook—I raised a check from $10 to $1,000 and tried to get it cashed, and the cuss didn't have that amount of money in the bank.—New York Press.

A Year of Blood.

The year of 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett, of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood; which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near.
