Fire and Water

By LOUISE J. STRONG.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

The fever scorched him physically and befogged him mentally. He tossed in a hot, restless haze, at times babbling childishly of "mother"—the mother whose loss three years before had sent him to the far west to try to forget his homelessness. The struggle to master the new conditions attendant on ranch life had taken him out of himself and done him good, and as success crowned his efforts dreams of a home again, made so by the presence of a sweet faced girl wife, lighted his toil.

They were only dreams as yet, for he held himself humbly and had hesitated to offer his love until he felt that his affairs were on a firm basis financially, as they would be when his present abundant crop was harvested.

In his partial delirium and hazy wandering he muttered now the long repressed confession, whispering it eagerly with feverish impatience for the response his heart hoped for.

At length the silence which lay like the pall of desolation upon the lonely little shack was broken by heavy footsteps on the planks at the door, and a burly fellow strode in with a noisy greeting: "Hello, Harris! Laid up, hey?"

The sick man roused to consciousness and smiled feebly: "How do, Lamson. Glad you came in. Yes, I've been laid up a bit—can't remember how long—fever muddles my head." His speech was broken and dragged thickly.

"Ain't wanting to eat much, I s'pose, and good thing that is, too, for an old back that's got nobody."

Harris winced. Mother had been in his sick fancy so much and with such vividness that his bereavement seemed but a few days back. With an effort he replied:

"I want nothing but water, and Slade brings me a painful mornings, when he doesn't forget, as he did today." He gestured toward the empty bucket on the chair beside the bed, but the visitor did not notice it—nor the longing in the fever red eyes and the cracked lips. "Doctor, of course?" he intimated briskly.

"No; Slade wouldn't go for him, and no one else's been in."

"Slade wouldn't go? Ha, ha! Guess not much! You don't get the old ground hog that far from his hole back of the hill. Everybody's busier than in sheep shearing time, you know, harvesting their grain. Reason no one's been along, I reckon, I'm through in fine shape, I tell you, and I've promised myself and gang to Snyder for a week. And, man, you'd ought to be looking after yours. It's spoiling fast, I noticed." He laughed at the startled expression that widened the hollow eyes. "Forgot it, had you? Well, you want to see to it right away. I must mosey. I'm out on a sweet errand. Got my new house done. It's a beauty, too, and furnished tiptop. And now the cage is ready I'm going up to settle the date of taking home my bird. Lizzie's fought shy, but she'll pull steady when we're tied all right. Ha, ha!"

"Lizzie?" Harris repeated vaguely, his voice hesitating and troubled.

"Sure! Lizzie Bradley-Lamson. Kind o' tidy name, I take it; something like those swell New Yorkers. Ha, ha!" He roared boisterously at his flash of wit. "Well, hope you'll pull up soon. So long!" He stamped away, whistling, leaving the door open.

In the silence that again closed upon him Harris lay and stared out at the quivering heat waves and little dust eddies that whirled in at times, aggravating his burning heat and thirst. But he did not notice them. He was striving to steady his throbbing brain and analyze the torturing inner sense of pain and loss which now intensified his bodily distress.

The crop—the crop—that was all right. It was great. He could put up the dainty cottage he had planned so often these last months, since the promise of early summer had shown such abundant fulfillment in the ripening fields. The crop—the crop! Who said it was spoiling? It was all right. He would begin on it today, when he had a drink. He could drink the well dry. He fumbled clumsily with the bedding and essayed to rise, but fell back inertly, a little foolish smile on the parched lips. His head was so big! He had not known one's head could be so big and heavy. And the crop? The crop was all right. He would build the cottage—for Lizzie. Lizzie! He cried out hoarsely, with a pang of anguish at the sudden dull recognition of his loss. There was no Lizzie for him—none—none—nor had been: What mattered the crop? Let it spoil. What mattered anything now? Lizzie—Liz-z-i-e—bird—cage—Lizzie Brad—Liz? He scowled impatiently. He could not get the name right. His head was so big. He was so hot—burning.

"Mother! Where was mother? Was she in the fiery lake that Elder Watson had so scared the little boys with? He hadn't meant to be a bad boy—mother knew—she would keep him, but he was so hot—burning! Water, water! Lizzie—Liz-z-i-e Brad—ley-Lamson! Lizzie Bradley? Lamson! The perplexed look deepened to a frown of pain and trouble. He had found her name, and as he drifted further and further from consciousness he carried her name with him back to little boyhood, tangling it with his brother's, but never losing it entirely again. Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—be careful Davy—mother said not to go so near the bonfire—but he did, Joe, the careless one—and now he was burning, burning—mother—Lizzie Bradley-Lamson.

"Oh, you poor, poor boy! Bring some water, quick!"

Did some one speak, or was it—again the little, foolish smile cracked the parched lips. He had known mother would come—she always did when her boys were hurt, even if they did it carelessly themselves—but she did not know how big his head was or she would not try to lift it. Oh, he was at the old spring drinking—drinking!

"He must not have too much at once, the poor boy!" A warm rain fell upon his face; the cup vanished; his groping, trembling hands could not find it. How could he have too much when he was burning? That wasn't fair, Davie, when his head was so big that he couldn't run.

"The brute—the perfect brute, to go off and leave him like this! Never even get him water!"

Was that father? No; Tige had not hurt him. It was the fire—and heedless Joe—where was the spring—and the cup. There! Mother was bathing his burning head and face and neck, his hands and arms. He smiled at her and whispered "Good," and again the warm rain dropped upon him, and his big, heavy head was lifted and laid—why, it must be the cool, damp moss above the spring! It was heavenly! If it was not for the dreadful something that hurt so about Lizzie—Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—he could—Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—Liz.

"I don't know that any of us can say much for ourselves. Let such a sick man lie here alone for days—never come near him, so busy hustling for the dollars—but all the same, Lamson's a brute, with less feeling than a hog! And the thought that Lizzie'd—laugh!" Lizzie—Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—Liz.

"Don't say that, Joe Harris! Can't you understand? Lamson lied!" Lizzie—Bradley—Lamson—

"Oh, never mind, mother. He's too light headed yet. But the fever is cooling, and the doctor'll be here soon. Look out yonder. Ben's got a crowd, all right! Joe's grain 'll be in the stack in short order, and it isn't hurt yet, not an atom, in spite of Lamson's know it all verdict!"

Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—he was hurt. Did Lizzie Bradley-Lamson—no, he wouldn't—wouldn't put out his tongue. It was too stiff and big like his head. And he wouldn't have a spoon in his mouth.

"Here, young man, you take this! Swallow it. Do you hear? Some one shook him slightly, with the other, and he swallowed and grinned and said it was Davy's cough drops, and it was Lizzie Bradley-Lamson who—the fire. Was that little Sis who'd died out sharply and sobbed? Davy must have hurt little Sis. He, Joe, was all right, only Lizzie.

"Oh, shut up!" the gruff one commanded. "I'm the doctor, and I say for you to drop it and go to sleep."

It was late the next day. The sun was sending its level rays across the door when Joe Harris came to himself and looked about with a calm and growing consciousness.

There was a faroff, cheery sound of busy machines. Through the open window he could see his fields swarming with men and teams. The food wagon and eating tent stood back by the well, the important cook bustling over a fire. His room was cool and fresh. Flowers stood upon his little homemade table with the doctor's medicine glass.

Bit by bit he studied it out, and as he recognized Mr. Bradley and the boys and other neighbors and Mrs. Bradley herself putting his freshly washed shirts upon the line his eyes filled, and he murmured a faint "God bless them!"

At the sound there was a stir by the head of the bed, and a girl with anxious eyes leaned over him and touched his forehead with a shy little hand.

He looked at her a moment; then he muttered feebly, questioningly. "Lizzie Bradley-Lamson?"

With a rush of tender tears she laid her warm pink cheek against his, murmuring: "No, Joe, dear; no! Lizzie Bradley Harris!"

The Apathy of the Chorus Girl.

The ambitions of a chorus girl, as a rule, die young and as many refuse lines as accept them. There was a girl, one of four sisters who were all in the chorus of various musical organizations. One night at the Grand Opera House in New York the soubrette of the company was too ill to appear, and her understudy was also absent. In his predicament the stage manager appealed to this particular chorus girl to go on and read the lines as well as she could. The girl said she would not only read the lines, but could sing the songs as well, all of which she did, and did with confidence and ability, and for the first time in her life had a spotlight follow her about the stage and heard waves of applause rush over the footlights which were intended for her and her only. After it was all over she said quite casually to the admiring throng that surrounded her: "There's nothing in it, girls. I've been a chorus girl eight years, but I'm too old to be a principal. I hope it'll never happen again."—From "Behind the Scenes," by Charles Belmont Davis, in Outing Magazine.

Scotch Bulls.

Two Scotchmen were discussing the relative merits of churchyards and cemeteries when one of them boldly expressed his aversion to the latter burial places in the remark, "I'd rather no dee ava than be buried in sic a place." To which his companion retorted, "Weel, if I'm spared in life an' health, I'll gang naewhere else."

Novel Competition.

A somewhat original competition between typists has been decided in Paris. The condition was that competitors had to type from dictation for four hours. There were 157 competitors. They came from all parts of France, and three bailed from London. The favorite was Mile. Gabrielle Revert of Bordeaux, whose fingers simply flew over the keyboard. Now and again a friend slipped a chocolate between her lips in order to sustain her. At the end of three hours she had typed 15,000 words and was 300 words in advance of her nearest rival. A longhand writer entered the competition, but he wrote only 9,000 words.—London Tit-Bits.

Our Hustling Brazilian Cousins.

In three years the streets of Rio Janeiro have been paved in most modern fashion, the city lighted with electricity, a great boulevard system financed, started and finished, a whole group of new public buildings built, ranging from a $3,000,000 opera house, the most beautiful on earth, to a public library. Plans, the result of a competition, have just been approved for a great national capitol to equal our own great edifice in size and beauty. A great system of docks capable of entertaining the largest steamers is being finished at a cost of $40,000,000.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Reception Was Chilly.

"Hammet, the tragedian, had his ears nipped by the frost."
"Coming up from the train?"
"No, during a performance."—Atlanta Constitution.

Making a Good Deal of Noise.

"Is Har-ol still waiting for his rich old uncle to die?"
"He is waiting, but I can't say that he's very still about it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Gambling at Palm Beach.

At Palm Beach alone in all America can women gamble "decently"—that is, not simply play bridge, but roulette and such, in temples dedicated particularly to chance. One must dwell on such dreadful sin hereabout, since how can we claim a Riviera without a Monte Carlo? The Florida legislature allows it for a proper price and in proper hypocritical fashion. The place is called the Beach club, run by two brothers well known to the New York Tenderloin and several district attorneys. Election to membership is extremely difficult. The qualifications are a dinner coat and an acquaintance who has bucked the wheel in the "club" at least once before. You enter with him, sign your name and his to a slip of paper, and receive a yellow "membership" ticket, "not transferable," "to be shown when requested," bearing the autograph of the clerk at the desk. A book of bylaws tossed at you provides, among much Hoyle: "No gentleman under twenty-five years will be admitted to this club." "Article 3, section 7, regarding evening dress, will be waived in the case of members taking their departure on evening trains."—From "The American Riviera," by Robert Dunn, in Outing Magazine.

Electricity From Water.

The annual fall of rain and snow represents a layer of water in this country that would vary from two to five feet in depth. This rainfall, if eventually reach the oceans, and its flow downward swells streams and rivers to overflowing. Stored in proper reservoirs this waste rainfall could be converted into electrical power that would banish dirty coal from our homes. Then when used for turning the turbine wheels of great electrical power plants it could be used also for irrigation and distributed over wide areas for increasing the fertility of our farms. More than this, electrical pumps, operated by the power which the flow of the water from its reservoirs generated, could distribute the water to new regions, where ordinary irrigation ditches could not conduct it. In other words, the water could be used twice, first for generating electric power and second for irrigating our farms. Electricity could be made to light and heat the homes of the city and country population and run the thrashing machines and reapers of the farmer as well as turn the wheels of the cars and factories.—George Ethelbert Walsh in St. Nicholas.

Delivering Meat Abroad.

A Philadelphia woman who has just returned from a two years' residence abroad says that in one small but not insignificant particular this country is far ahead of the countries in Europe where she has kept house. This is in the matter of the way meats and fish are delivered at the purchaser's house by the dealer from whom they have been ordered. Here they come home neatly wrapped in paper kept on hand for the purpose. In London they are delivered without any wrapping at all and are thus exposed during all of the trip to the dust of the streets and whatever disease germs may be abroad. Lately some of the London retailers have got as far as wrapping in old newspapers, which is nearly as bad as no wrapping at all, and in Berlin some of the more careful ones are now using cabbage leaves as wrappers, but in the great majority of cases the old style of not wrapping still prevails.—Philadelphia Record.

The United States "Afloat."

What will strike the average reader as a singular conclusion has been reached through the observations of the coast and geodetic survey on deflections of the plumb line in this country. From a study of the results of a combination of these deflections, throwing light on the density of the underlying rocks, it is concluded that "the United States is not maintained in its position above sea level by the rigidity of the earth, but is in the main buoyed up, floated, because it is composed of material of deficient density." It is deemed probable that the defect of density is limited to a depth of seventy-one miles. A report reciting these facts and conclusions was presented at the Budapest meeting of the International Geodetic association. — Youth's Companion.

A Rival's Opinion.

Easter Sunday.

At the churches in this town there were special addresses by the pastors and special music by the choirs. The audiences were large, as the weather was most favorable. The decorations of potted and flowering plants were beautiful, and the fragrance and beauty of the Easter lilies were grand.

The concert by the Methodist society was held at the evening hour of service, and about 350 people were present. The program consisted of recitations, singing, appropriate exercises, etc.: the assistance of W. R. Musson with violin, and Ray Taylor, cornet, added much to the musical part of the program.

To Our Customers.

Antrim, April 1, 1907.

We are soon to adopt the McCaskey Account Register System for keeping our accounts. While this system is new to us, it has been in successful operation for a number of years among the leading merchants of the country who are unanimous in their endorsement of the same.

Fuller particulars will be furnished our customers in circulars which will be put in your hands during the present week. This system goes into effect Monday, April 8, 1907.

After May 1st, we shall run no accounts over 30 days.

We thank you for past favors, and hope by careful attention to your wants and by strict adherence to honorable business methods, to merit a continuance of your trade.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Diplomacy.
The late Thomas Nolan, a well-known member of the bar of New York, was once retained as counsel for a poor widow named Mulcahy. She was suing a construction company for damages by reason of her husband's death resulting from injuries sustained in the company's service. The case had been frequently postponed, so that it was in a very disturbed state of mind that the widow sought the lawyer just before the suit came up for the eighth time. In court the next day Nolan's rich brogue was more than usually fervid as he fought against the further adjournment of the case.
"I am sorry," said the justice presiding, "but, Mr. Nolan, your opponent has shown good cause for adjournment. The case will therefore go over till next week."
"Very well, sir," said the lawyer sweetly, "but might I ask your personal favor of this court?"
"Certainly," replied the judge.
"Will your honor kindly step down to my office and tell Mrs. Mulcahy that you have again adjourned the case?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

STONING A TIGER.

The Punishment of a Man Eater That Killed a Tibetan.

Fifty years ago tigers were very common even in the high hills of western Tibet, writes C. A. Sherring in his account of that country. At the present time, however, owing to the increase of population and the general spread of cultivation, they have become rare, and the appearance of a man eater who carried off a poor old woman on the slope of Chulpa created consternation.

On the following day there were gathered together a hundred grim men, armed only with axes and stones, for they had not a gun among them.

Fortune favored the brave, for the tiger was found asleep under a rock. At once each man dropped silently into the cover of the brushwood and piled a heap of stones near to his hand, while one of the most trusted of the party was commissioned to stalk to the top of the rock and drop a huge stone on the sleeping brute.

So well was the work done that the stone fell true on the tiger's back, and immediately, with a roar, the wounded beast sprang up, and, seeing his enemies, who leaped from their cover, charged the line.

But a hundred men, desperate as to consequences, throwing stones with might and main, are not to be awed or turned from their purpose lightly. The stones broke the tiger's teeth and went into his mouth, and his body soon became a mass of wounds.

Turning, he tried to escape and took his pursuers up hill for a mile, but wherever he paused and whatever he did he could not escape the pitiless rain of missiles. The blow on his back, first given, effectively checked his speed, and finally, worn out, he came to bay under a great cliff.

The rest was easy. He was immediately hemmed in, and the stones were showered on him thicker than ever and hurled with redoubled energy. As he sank down the villagers rushed in and dispatched him with their axes.—Youth's Companion.

His Error.

"So you're going to marry Miss Flipspleigh? I thought you said you were merely having an innocent little flirtation with her."

"Yes, I had an idea it was that, but it appears that she took it more seriously."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Comparison.

"The climate is very uncertain," said the man who worries over his health.

"Yes," answered the weather bureau man. "A climate is like a race horse; you can figure out exactly what it ought to do, but not what it's going to do."—Washington Star.

The Logic of the Case.

The Young One—The old man, said he wanted to get her off his hands, and yet he wouldn't listen to me when I spoke of marrying her.

The Wise One—Probably that's the reason he wouldn't listen to you.—Judge.

Snowy Belt.

"Now, Tommy," said the teacher during the lesson in geography, "tell us how Alaska is bounded."

"Please, ma'am," replied Tommy after a moment's thought, "I think it is snowbound."—Detroit Tribune.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.
Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

State and County News

At one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings the special school district of Hillsboro ever held, took place last week Monday night, 300 being present. It was voted to continue the present supervisory district in vogue. This was passed with no opposition whatever and was the only thing to do.

At the adjourned meeting of the School district Saturday afternoon in Peterboro, it was voted "That the School Board be authorized to unite with one or more districts or special districts to form a supervisory district for the purpose of employing a Superintendent of the public schools therein, under the provision of Chapter 77 of the Session Laws of New Hampshire, 1899, and that $350 be raised and appropriated to pay the expenses incurred."

The Manchester common council held a special meeting Friday night and adopted the report of the finance committee, which calls for an appropriation of $931,558.47 for the expenses of the various municipal departments for the present year. The estimated receipts of the present year. The estimated receipts of the present year. The estimated receipts of the present year.

Capt. E. Z. Sanderson of Company G. N. H. N. G., dropped dead at 6:30 o'clock Monday night while at his work in the baggage room at the passenger station in Keene. Death was caused by heart failure. He was 48 years old and unmarried.

The stockholders of the Amoskeng Manufacturing company of Manchester voted unanimously to accept the act passed by legislature, which provides for an increase in the company's stock, not exceeding $2,000,000.

The Perkins Inn in Hopkinton, a large three-story wooden structure owned by E. P. Guerin, was destroyed by fire Friday night. The place was used as a summer hotel by Mr. Guerin in the warm season and as a residence in the winter. The house was well furnished through its 52 rooms and most of the furniture was saved. The main building and ells were practically destroyed by fire. The loss will probably reach $15,000, partially covered by insurance.

Claremont was visited by a freak storm Friday morning. First a light fall of snow, then drops of rain, followed by vivid flash of lightning and a deafening roar of thunder that shook buildings, followed by a bright sunshiny afternoon. The lightning struck in the thickly part of the town splitting the flagstaff and demolishing the cupola on the Dr. Tolles house on Trinity street.

When the terrific gale of Wednesday picked up 150 feet of roof from the big warehouse built by Spaulding Brothers, North Rochester, and carried it 230 feet away, two women and four men narrowly escaped death.

Proprietors of 11 stores against whom complaint has been made to Chief Healy of Manchester by a teacher of the Spring street school, were arraigned before Judge Heath in police court Wednesday morning on the charge of selling cigarettes to minors. Eight were bound over to superior court.

Mascoma lodge, No. 20, I. O. O. F. observed its 58th anniversary Sunday by a special service at the Methodist Episcopal church of Lebanon. The address was given by the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Simpson.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys, like the heart, and the stomach, and their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

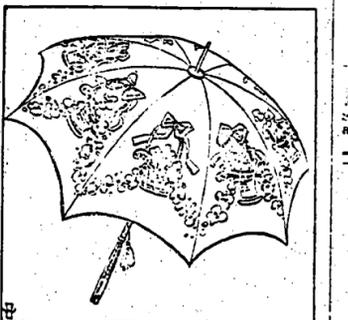

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell.

Modes in Parasols.

Linon parasols are to be even more generally used than heretofore, and these come in a very wide range of styles, in excellent designs that will retail at from $2.50 to $50 and over.

The cheaper ones are of quite heavy linen, with embroideries that counterfeited hand work excellently. These have handles of natural wood in simple forms and are remarkably good looking specimens, neither cheap nor common in appearance notwithstanding.

A NEW PARASOL.

ing their reasonable price. Delicate embroideries on fine handkerchief linens. In patterns artistic and elegant in the extreme, decorate the parasols at the other end of the scale.

These are lined with delicately tinted silks in many cases, and the handles are fetching examples of the best that is turned out by designers who make these a specialty.

Carved ivories with gold mountings, pearl in naere tintings, insets of semi-precious stones or of clever French imitations are some of the handles used.

The empire parasol with the handle reversed from the usual position, so that when closed it is carried with the top of the shade toward the hand and when open the hand is near the ferrule, is said to be a coming winner in its class. The parasol illustrated is of this style.

Fakirs.

Fakirs is the name given to a celebrated class of fanatics found in many parts of the east, but more particularly in India. Some of them will make a vow to continue all their lives in one posture and adhere to it strictly. Others never lie down, but remain in a standing position all their lives, upheld only by sticks or ropes under the armpits. They pretend to have subdued every passion of mortality.

Might Be Worse.

When the poet Wordsworth died an old lady at Ambleside lost no time in telling the mournful news to an old and confidential manservant. "Ey, ey!" quoth Thomas. "It's a gre't loss nae doot, but after a' it may not be sic a parish loss as ye're countin' on. Mrs. Wordsworth, they say, is a rey, clever body, and she'll be carryin' on the business, we may be sewer."

A Live Wire

Every nerve is a live wire connecting some part of the body with the brain. They are so numerous that if you penetrate the skin with the point of a needle you will touch a nerve and receive a shock—pain it is called. Aches and pains come from a pressure, strain or injury to a nerve; the more prominent the nerve the greater the pain. When the pain comes from a large nerve it is called Neuralgia.

whether it be the facial nerves, or the heart, stomach, sciatic or other prominent nerve branch. To stop pain, then, you must relieve the strain or pressure upon the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this.

"I suffered intense pain, caused by neuralgia. I doctored and used various medicines without getting relief until I began taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They did me more good than all the medicines I ever used. They never fail to cure my headaches, and their use never leaves any bad after-effects."

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
"Digests what you eat."

Two Dyspeptics
If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.
Lean, thin, stringy people do not have enough Pepsin in the stomach, while fat people have too much Pepsin and not enough Pancreatina.

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat
Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send our good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

The News—No Pure Drug Cough Cure Laws would be needed, if all Cough Cures were like Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers and others should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison-marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be, by those who know it best, a truly remarkable remedy for a cough. Take no chance, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison-marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by W. F. Dickey.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hutchinson are delegates to the S. S. Convention at Bedford, with Pastor Wildey on Wednesday of this week.

Easter Sunday the church was beautiful with flowers and evergreen. Pastor Wildey preached from John 20-16. He baptised two young men, propounded three names for church membership and administered the communion. Miss Lord was organist, and of great help in carrying out the Sunday School Concert at 4 P. M.

Several infants were in the Congregation at the Concert, to the delight of the children and some folks a trifle older. A butterfly also graced the church by its presence; an unusual sight at this season.

Rev. Wildey has a Sunday vacation next Sabbath. The Congregational church will be closed.

The Congregational S. S. Concert programme was as follows.

- Opening Chorus—Choir.
- Scripture Reading—Sup't Wood.
- Prayer—Pastor.
- Song—Choir.
- Recitation—Kate Brooks.
- Recitation—Nina Boutell.

Neighborhood News

CLINTON VILLAGE.

The birds, crows and robins, the harbingers of spring, have come.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Butterfield were guests of friends at Hillsboro on Saturday.

Mrs. C. D. Sawyer came very near being the victim of a surprise on Wednesday, March 27. Some of the neighbors tried to see how near they could come to a genuine surprise; they came so near that the fun was all on one side. However we are glad it was no worse.

Frederic Whittemore and daughter, Addie, were Keene visitors Friday and Saturday.

John Tenney was out of town on business Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Prescott entertained friends at their pleasant home on Friday evening Feb. 29, it being the second anniversary of their marriage.

The school at the Center began its spring term April 1st.

Joseph Brooks has sent to market the past week fifty barrels of apples.

G. D. Young of Gardner, Mass., was a recent visitor here; he at one time lived here and worked in the shop.

Frank Brooks has twenty-five pair of pigeons; is going to try raising squabs for market.

The first thunder shower of the spring came March 28.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contains Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

WANTED — by Chicago wholesale and mail order house, assistant manager (man or woman) for this county and adjoining territory. Salary $20 and expenses paid weekly; expense money advanced. Work pleasant; position permanent. No investment or experience required. Spare time valuable. Write at once for full particulars and enclose self addressed envelope. Address GENERAL MANAGER, 134 E. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

BLOODINE BUILDS UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM.

Miss Agnes Gertrude Keefe of No. 328 Main St., West Everett, Mass., says: About six months ago I had no appetite, no ambition, no strength, and in fact seemed to be generally all run down and worn out, and my physician advised me to give up working and take a few months' vacation, but as this would necessitate giving up my position as stenographer for one of Boston's leading wholesale houses I did not care to do that, and one day a friend of mine advised me to take "Bloodine," as it had built her up and given her a good appetite. In fact she said she picked right up from almost the first dose; so I finally tried it and it did just as she said it would. It gave me a good appetite, strength and energy, and I shall recommend it to all my friends.

Bloodine Cures Dyspepsia.

Mrs. Mary E. Grondon of Natick, Mass., says that she suffered for years with Dyspepsia, Indigestion and General Debility, until she could not eat any solid food, and had no ambition to work until she was advised to try "Bloodine." After using three bottles she can eat anything and do a good day's work without feeling all tired out.

Mrs. A. M. Ruffe, Claremont, N. H., says:—I have used three bottles of Bloodine and it has helped me marvelously. Have had Indigestion and Kidney trouble for over two years and occasionally a slight attack of Heart trouble, with these I can assure I can recommend it for I have given it a thorough trial. I do most heartily recommend it to any one in like affliction.

SOUTH LYNDEBORO.

April came in like a lion. The going had got to be quite good in March.

A. W. Putnam has about 850 young chicks in his new brooder house and three incubators full of eggs hatching, each holding between 8 and 4 hundred eggs.

Clintie Emery is home for a weeks vacation from her school in Winthrop, Mass., and Bessie Dolliver has been home from Rochester, this state.

Myrtle Richards is to teach the school in the Kimball district in Wilton this spring. It is near Greenville.

Mrs. Addie Putnam and Pauline returned from a visit to Frankestown and New Boston last week. Miss Clement the teacher is boarding with her.

Miss Harriett Brown and Mrs. Beals are sick with grip and Carl Bishop is suffering from rheumatism following an attack of diphtheria.

Mrs. Frank Curtis is moving into the Byron Putnam house. Her son Lester has taken the farm to carry on and report says he is soon to be married.

Mrs. Will Cheever spent a day recently with her son Harry in Lynn.

George Tirrill has been clearing the brown tail moths from A. W. Putnam's trees. He gathered over 1500 nests. We can imagine what the effect would have been if they had all been left to grow.

The Christian Endeavor Society held a sociable and supper last Tuesday evening. They had so much food left they gave a 10 cent dinner the next day. They had a fine program Tuesday evening. They cleared a little over 10 dollars.

Letter to Selectman Robb,

Antrim, N. H.

Dear Sir: Here's honesty for you! North Dakota has a pure paint law. Prof. Ladd, the state chemist analyzes a certain paint labeled "contains only lead and zinc and is strictly pure," and finds it no lead at all, a resinous oil, and benzine. It is, however, full measure and contains no water.

That's like the man on trial for killing his grandmother; proved that he didn't set fire to the house.

No lead, but zinc and barytes, resinous oil and benzine—strictly pure lead and zinc paint.

Pure paint is lead-zinc and oil; but that isn't all; there is such a thing as proportion and make. The strongest paint is Devos.

North Dakota is a handsome thing in holding these confidence-people up to scorn. She gives their names as well as their works.

Yours truly,

WOMAN AND FASHION

Lingerie Frocks.

White is steadily gaining in favor for children's frocks, but the wise mother will not forget to plan some colored ones for morning wear. For these plain gingham, linens and ducks are the most serviceable materials.

For more dressy frocks, white batiste, lawns and India linen are used. One piece dresses are usually made from heavy linen, or canon cloth, also known as Indian head. The material is in general use throughout the south, but is practically unknown in the north and west, which is much to be regretted, since it has all the good qualities of linen, without the objectionable one of becoming easily tumbled. It costs only 15 cents a yard.

Frocks made from the sheer materials are of entirely different design, and except for a very young child are of the two piece variety, having a full skirt fastened to the waist. These always show some touch of hand embroidery and inserts of real lace. The short, puffed sleeves and broad collar, such as are shown in the illustration, are considered the proper finish for little dresses of this character.

The Proper Sleeves.

The matching hat is essential, and there is a distinct tendency to show in the spring hat just a touch of the material employed on the gown, either in silk, velvet or lace.

Only the strictly tailored gowns with absolutely straight lines and stitched finish show the long, plain sleeves. The natty short coat suits continue to demand a three-quarter sleeve or less.

The three-quarter sleeve is most economical, as it requires only a twelve button glove instead of sixteen. The shorter glove can be bought at sales as low as $1.25, while $2.50 is the standard price for the longer glove in good quality.

The New Neckwear.

Embroidered linen collars, the high turned down style, are extremely smart and are worn with all kinds of waists. They are fastened in front, and the favorite finish is the tulle bow or rosette fastened with a bar pin of diamonds or pearls. One style has buttonholes through which are put link cuff buttons or a velvet ribbon that is tied in a stiff bow. A hemstitched edge, a narrow line of hand embroidery, or some small design in embroidery just at the corner, is the current fashion.

Women troubled with fainting spells, irregularities, nervous irritability, backache, the "blues," and those dreadful dragging sensations, cannot hope to be happy or popular, and advancement in either home, business or social life is impossible.

The cause of these troubles, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs. It acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms. No other medicine in the country has received such unqualified indorsement or has such a record of cures of female ills as has Four hypotheses for telepathy have been suggested: That telepathic communications may be due—first, to some kind of vibration, etheric or otherwise, emitted by one brain and impinging on the other; second, by direct action of the mind on another's brain in such way as to evoke the desired thought; third, by insight of the receiving mind into the brain when the thought arrives (clairvoyance), or, fourth, by some direct and incomprehensible communion of mind with mind.

THE FALL OF NATIONS

How Great World Powers Have Passed Into History.

MOST HAVE DIED FIGHTING.

The Struggle Between the Empire of the East and the Empire of the West. Venice, Its Secret Three and Its Long Reign of Terror.

Most countries which have died have gone down fighting. The Roman empire perished like that, and by the irony of fate the power of the Caesars came to an end far away from Rome.

After it had existed for centuries the Roman empire became so vast and unwieldy that it had to be divided into two, the empire of the west and the empire of the east. The capital of the former was Rome.

The empire of the west became so weak at last that it could make no stand against its enemies. Rome was sacked by the barbarians and eventually became not the capital of a vast empire, but the city of the popes, over which the pontiffs reigned as kings. The temporal power of the popes lasted till 1870, while the capital of Italy was first Turin and then Milan. Finally the city was taken without a real fight by the soldiers of the king of Italy.

The empire of the east had its capital at Constantinople. For centuries it was the greatest power in the world. But it became honeycombed with vice and enervated with pride and luxury; also it grew old and weak. Then in 1422 the Turks made a tigerish spring on Constantinople and took it by storm. The last of the Greek emperors died sword in hand, and his descendants are living in England today in very tumble situations.

Egypt, once so powerful and so famous under the pharaohs, was conquered by Rome and was afterward swamped by the Moslems. The crescent was supreme in the land of the Nile, and the aforesaid haughty Egyptians were slaves for a thousand years.

The great moguls used to reign in India. In the days of Queen Elizabeth the mogul—or emperor of Delhi, as he was sometimes called—was so powerful that he thought it a vast condescension on his part to receive an embassy from the maiden queen. But as time went on the great rajahs, or tributary kings, rebelled against the moguls. India was rent asunder by the wars between rival rajahs. This gave the Europeans a chance.

France at first held the upper hand and nearly conquered the land, but then England drove France back and seized the empire of the great moguls for herself. The heir of the moguls, by the way, still enjoys a pension given by the British government as a compensation for the throne lost by his ancestors.

Poland used to occupy a big place on the map of Europe. At one time it was much larger and stronger than Russia. The czar of Russia and the emperor of Austria were only too glad to be on good terms with the king of Poland, and there was no king of Prussia in those days.

Noble adventurers from all parts of the world flocked to the Polish capital at Warsaw, eager to serve in the Polish armies. The Duke of Monmouth, son of King Charles II. of England, thought of doing this.

But Poland perished through her own faults and follies. The mass of the common people were slaves in all but name. They were not allowed to move from one part of the country to another without leave, they could not own a foot of land, and they could never be sure that they might not be sold by the great noble they served to a new master; hence the nobles and the people never stood together in times of danger or disaster.

Poland was a big country, but it was divided against itself, and Russia, Prussia and Austria combined were more powerful. They all three joined hands, and each took a large share of Poland in 1772. That was the "first partition of Poland." The Poles submitted tamely, for they were still divided.

In 1793 the trio of robbers made a second swoop. Only the ghost of Poland was left. Another year saw the end of the liberty. The last remnants of Poland were swallowed up by Russia, Prussia and Austria.

The fate of the republic of Venice is one of the most dramatic in all history. For hundreds of years the City of the Lagoons was one of the most powerful states in the world. Its doges ranked as the equals of the proudest kings. Its alliance was coveted by the greatest powers. Its government was one of sheer terrorism. The doge was hardly more than a splendid figurehead. All real power rested in the hands of the dreaded council of ten and the secret three. The latter were a trio of living mysteries and were known by name to practically no one in Venice.

Sometimes a man was one of the secret three and his own wife and children never dreamed it. Their most dreaded servants were masked mutes. If a Venetian, no matter how high his rank, was denounced by the council of ten or the secret three, he knew he was no better than a dead man. So the government of Venice was a terror to its own people and the outside world. Then Napoleon came upon the scene, and "the lion of St. Mark licked the dust."—Pearson's Weekly.
