WHAT TO FIND AND WHERE

Annual Fair and Entertainment.

Preparations are still in progress for the annual Fair of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist society. In the afternoon of Wednesday, August 7, 1907, at the Town hall, will occur the usual sale of useful and fancy articles, and in the evening will be given an entertainment. This latter portion of the prepared program will be of unusual merit and will surely be enjoyed by every one. Outside talent has been engaged, and that which is well recommended, and those interested feel assured that something nice and pleasing will be presented.

Gregg Pond a Delightful Spot.

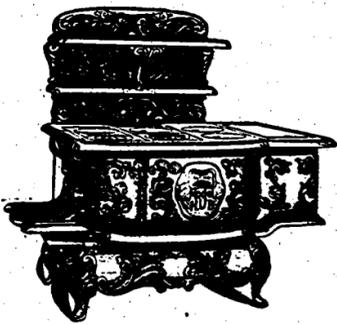

Those of our people who have all their lives resided within a short distance of this beautiful sheet of water, doubtless do not appreciate the beauties of the pond and its surroundings. It is certainly a lovely spot at this season of the year, pleasantly situated within a short distance of the village, and has all the attractions of a cool and refreshing place where one or more can take "a day off" or go and spend a longer time. The location and scenic attractions are all that could be desired, and that people are a bit slow in building cottages here does to one from outside seem very strange.

There are a few cottages now on the shores of the pond, prettily located, and some handsome lots along the shore, which if built upon might be occupied much of the time. There is no doubt but that these lots could be purchased at a reasonable price and the cost of a small desirable cottage would not be very heavy. Life on the shores of this delightfully cool pond, where at all times if there is any breeze at all it is here, at this season of the year would certainly be worth the living.

It seems unnecessary to even mention bathing or fishing, for of these there is not a pond in this section that we know of which offers anything superior along these lines.

An Excellent Range to be Given Away.

This week opens a contest for a new $65.00 Model Hub Range; it is of a late pattern, one of the best on the market, and in a short time will be on exhibition at the REPORTER office. Once before have we given away a Range in a similar and satisfactory manner, and the Hub will surely please the one who is fortunate enough to secure it; it is an article worth many times what it will probably cost the one who gets it, and is well worth working hard to secure. The conditions of the contest are published on another page in this paper, and are made very plain. Any one who wants such a valuable article of furniture, and to the mistress of the kitchen an up-to-date Range with the usual attachments is always most pleasing, the time is now ripe to get into the field and hustle for the REPORTER, results of which will be announced from time to time in these columns.

BASE BALL.

Another defeat from Bennington, although it was the best game of the season. Neither team was sure of the game until the last man was out. Both pitchers did good work, allowing but five hits apiece.

The features were the fielding of Whitney and Cody.

Sudden Death of Miss Bertha H. Whittum.

The death of Miss Bertha H. Whittum of ptomaine poisoning, after an illness of only five days, has brought deep sorrow to her many friends.

Miss Whittum was born in Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 13, 1873, but much of her early life was spent in Antrim and Boston.

For some years she has lived in Wakefield, Mass. Everywhere she lived she gained and held the respect and loyal love of a large number of friends. She had held a responsible position in the Baptist Missionary Rooms in Boston for more than five years and her clear judgement and unusual business ability made her services of great value.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church and Sunday School of Wakefield and entered into the varied activities of each, oftentimes going beyond her strength. She leaves a widowed mother, Mrs. Mary F. Whittum, to mourn her loss, and a large circle of friends.

Funeral services were held at her late home on Wafe Ave., Wakefield, conducted by Dr. H. A. Heath, her pastor, assisted by Rev. F. P. Haggard of the Missionary Rooms, who paid a beautiful tribute to her strong character, her unselfish life, and her valuable services in his office. There was a profusion of choice flowers, which told of the love and esteem in which she was held by many friends. The interment was in the family lot at Maplewood cemetery.

Living Beyond One's Means.

Under the above caption, the Derry Enterprise published the following very timely article in a recent issue:

Harry Orchard, who has made probably the most remarkable confession of crime ever told on an American witness stand in the Haywood trial, lays his downfall primarily to trying to live beyond his means.

It is a common failing. It has never before, so far as any one can say, led to such a horrible course as Orchard followed, but this is very far from being the first case in which it has led to crime. Embezzlements, forgeries, thefts, and burglaries without number, and occasionally murder, have been traced to this very source, as the records of the court and newspaper files will show.

It is, perhaps, an inevitable result of democratic spirit of this country and the ease with which whatever vague class lines exist here may be crossed, that every man is anxious to live as well as his neighbor. Each one feels himself "as good as the next man."

Yet it stands to reason that the man who earns $15 per week cannot have the same things as the one who draws twice that amount. It is absolute foolishness to attempt it. Notwithstanding this fact, many a man tries to put on the same "front" as his associate who has a larger pay check for his work. In this he is too often aided, and frequently urged and led, by his wife, who cannot bear to see Mrs. So-and-so wear a better dress than she does, even though she knows that Mr. So-and-so gets a salary several times as large as her husband's.

This is the rock on which thousands of domestic crafts have wrecked themselves. As a cause of family discord it is hard to find its equal. It makes sour, pessimistic, discontented men, and ages them prematurely. It makes hard, grasping, selfish and unhappy women.

And it is all so useless, so foolish. So much money will buy so much. It is impossible to make it do more. The wise man and woman, knowing this, earns what money he or she can honestly, makes it go as far as possible, and lets it go at that. Happiness does not consist in what one can buy and that is a saying absolutely true even if it is hackneyed. Those who calmly settle themselves down to get enjoyment out of what they have, and seek the happiness to be found in the love, respect and content of their own families, are getting very much more out of life than all the imitators who pattern after others who are richer than themselves.

ANTRIM'S EARLY HISTORY

From this time on, as we have opportunity, in this column will be given some of our town's early history, being mostly extracts from Dr. Whiton's History, covering a period between the years 1744 and 1844.

Extract Number Eighteen

OF THE REPORTER'S SPECIAL SERIES.

munity so small and poor. They obtained the services of Mr. Aaron Hutchinson, then a candidate for the ministry, afterwards an attorney at Lebanon, N. H., and of the Rev. Mr. Clarke, a native of Ireland, each a few Sabbaths. Mr. Clarke was a learned and good man, but full of eccentricities and oddities. In 1779 they voted to procure eight Sabbaths' preaching, and obtained the services of Mr. James Miltimore, afterwards minister of Stratham, N. H., and Newbury, Mass. Mr. Miltimore was again engaged here for some Sabbaths in 1780, when the people gave him a unanimous invitation to become their pastor, offering him a lot of land as a "settlement," and an annual salary of $233. This was a truly liberal offer for so small a people. For reasons not appearing on the town records, Mr. Miltimore declined an acceptance; but preached in town some Sabbaths in each of the years 1781, 1782, 1783. He was a worthy man, and possessed in a high degree the confidence of the people. The reasons of his declining the invitation are supposed to have been, that the Portsmouth proprietors were not inclined to give the town a lot of land for the first settled minister; an impression on his part that his support might overburden his friends, and that he might be more useful in a larger field.

In 1782, Daniel Nichols was chosen by the town "to read the Psalm." This vote may refer to religious meetings when no minister was present, and lends probability to the inference that the early settlers sometimes held meetings for prayer, singing, and reading sermons, when they had no ministerial aid.

Rev. Mr. Whipple preached here a few Sabbaths in 1785, and it was then that, at a meeting of Mr. Miltimore's, the flooring gave way and precipitated the assembly into the cellar. Up to this date, the religious as well as the town-meetings had been held in private dwellings and barns.

As the transactions in relation to the building of the first meeting-house, 1785, were matters of town business, the details have been already given in the civil history of the place.

From this period, onward, for six or seven years, the annual grants by the town for the supply of the desk were from fifty to eighty dollars. It was the day of small things; seed was however being sown, destined to yield much fruit afterwards. In 1780-7, the Rev. Aaron Hutchinson, father of the aforementioned Aaron Hutchinson, formerly minister of Grafton, Mass., preached here a part of each summer: a man of many singularities, but possessing a memory surprisingly retentive. It has been said that were the Greek Testament lost, he could have restored it from memory, word for word; doubtless an exaggeration; but that he was in a remarkable degree familiar with the Greek cannot be questioned.

Though many of the first settlers and their wives were persons of piety, they had hitherto retained their relation to the churches with which they had originally united; attending sacramental seasons in those places when it was practicable, and often carrying their children thither for baptism. They, with a considerable number of new communicants, were organized into a church, 1788, consisting of about sixty members. It is singular that the preliminary steps toward this important transaction were taken by the town in legal meeting. They appointed Isaac Cochran their agent, to apply to the Presbytery of Londonderry to authorize a minister to visit Antrim, and organize a church. They designated to this service the Rev. Wm. Morrison, of Londonderry, who preached here August 3; organized the Presbyterian church, and ordained a board of elders elected by the church and congregation; viz: Deacons James Aiken, Isaac Cochran, and Jonathan Nesmith. He came a second time the same month and administered, Aug. 24, for the first time in Antrim, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Mr. Morrison, afterwards D. D., repeated for many succeeding years, at the request of the people, his annual visits for the administration of christian ordinances; was held by them in the highest respect, and, indeed regarded by them as their spiritual father. He was a native of Scotland; educated for the ministry in Pennsylvania; a man of ready talent, winning manners, and excellent reputation; one of the most popular and useful ministers of that day, in New-Hampshire. He died, 1818.

The original members of the church, being chiefly of Scottish descent, educated in the Presbyterian faith and discipline, were strongly attached to the principles and usages of their fathers, and placed themselves from the very first under the care of the Presbytery of Londonderry. No other ecclesiastical connection would have been equally acceptable; it was a connection which has subsisted ever since. They, however, maintained a most fraternal intercourse with all the neighboring churches, freely uniting with them in all acts of christian fellowship. Between Antrim and Londonderry there was for many years a great deal of intercourse, social as well as religious; numerous ligaments of consanguinity connected them. If, through lapse of time and change of circumstances, the mother and daughter are now partially estranged, it is only one of those mutations to which earth is subject.

The sacramental services of the church in Antrim were modeled after those of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland. They had a sacramental season annually at least; semi-annually if practicable. The Thursday or Friday preceding the

PATIENCE and HOPE

It is not reasonable to assume that any chronic malady—even though attended by no dangerous symptoms—can be cured at once. And any preparation said to do this may well be dis-trusted. But it is the experience of intelligent people all over the land for over 30 years, that a persevering use of according to directions, will soon relieve and ultimately cure cases of Fever and Ague, Biliousness, Rheumatism, Debility of the Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys and Bladder, and all disorders arising from an impure state of the Blood, when no other medicine or treatment has been of any permanent benefit. Sufferers may properly be reminded that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is no speculative preparation, placed upon the market to fill the pockets of a proprietor who is ignorant of the first principles of medicine, but a prescription used with uniform success by Dr. Kennedy long before he ever dreamed of making it public. State Trade Report.

Reports received by Bradstreet's show that the summer hotel business is fully up to the average, and prospects are very bright for the largest business ever done in this line. Seaside resorts are generally very well filled, and there is a large number of guests in the lake and mountain section; trains have continued to be exceptionally heavy.

Farmers are generally busy haying and what at one time promised to be a poor crop, is said to be above the average; weather conditions for the last month have been all that could be desired, and crops of all kinds have grown very fast. Manufacturers are generally very busy, and labor of all kinds is well employed. Retail trade is slowing down in the cities, but in the country sections the arrival of summer people makes it very good. Collections are rather slow. Lakeport reports the industries fully employed and retail trade brisk; the resorts in this section are filling up fast, and it helps business in nearly all lines.

At Littleton the manufacturing interests are well employed, and the summer hotels and boarding houses have more than the usual number of guests; retail trade is brisk, being helped by the summer trade. Crops are looking well and growing very fast.

Nashua reports retail trade quieting down, as many people are going away for vacations. With the exception of the shoe industries manufacturers are well employed, and business is good in other labor employing lines.

Colebrook reports retail trade rather quiet as farmers are busy and as yet not many summer visitors have come; crops which have been backward, have come along fast and are nearly up to the usual state at this season.

Retail trade at Concord is fairly good, but will drop off from now on, as the people go away for vacations. Manufacturing industries are generally busy and granite trade is good.

Dover reports retail trade good and labor of all kinds well employed.

One of the shoe factories at Rochester has closed for the week for stock taking; the other shops and mills are well employed, and there is a good retail trade. Crops are said to be a little behind, but promise to be up to the average.

At Claremont business is good in all lines, as all mills and factories are fully employed and considerable building is being done.

The mills at Gorham are busy and retail trade is good; crops backward, but the weather is right for them and they are growing fast; the hay crop will be about an average one. Summer resorts in this section are not as well filled as usual at this season, but bookings promise full houses later.

At Manchester the shoe factories are fairly busy, the mills are fully employed and industries are working full time; retail trade is good, but will fall off from now on. The present year is a good one in building lines, the value of the permits issued being much ahead of previous years.

FEAR OF GHOSTS.

Harmless Visitors From Whom We All Shrink in Terror.

Deep down in the heart of man there abides a firm belief in the power of the dead to walk upon the earth and affright, if such be their pleasure, the souls of the living. Wise folks, versed in the sciences and fortified in mind against faith in aught that savors of the supernatural, laugh ideas of the kind to scorn, yet hardly one of them will dare to walk alone through a graveyard in the night, or if one be found so bold he will surely hasten his footsteps, unable wholly to subdue the fear of sheeted specters which may rise from the grass grown graves or emerge from moonlit tombs and follow on, for, strangely enough, the dead, if not actually hostile to the living, are esteemed dangerous and dreadful to encounter.

It used to be the fashion, says a writer in Lippincott's Magazine, to sweep away all such notions by saying that they had their origin in the childhood of the race and that they sprang from fear of the unknown. This unquestionably was the easiest way to dispose of them, but was it fair? The subject possesses intense interest for a great majority of mankind, and, though the existence of ghosts is unproved, there is undeniably a vast deal of testimony in their behalf that deserves serious and respectful consideration. Fortunately, within the last few years the attitude of science toward the problem has altogether changed, and, actuated by a new spirit of inquiry, the wise men have been engaged, thoughtfully and without prejudice, in studying it out.

While it cannot be said that any final and definite conclusions have as yet been reached, an immense amount of evidence has been sifted, enough to show pretty conclusively for one point that the traditional specter of the Cook Lane school, with clanking chain and attributes disagreeably suggestive of the grave, has no basis in fact. On the other hand, there are certain phantoms, altogether different in their characteristics, in whose behalf a mass of testimony is adduced far greater than would be required to establish complete proof in any ordinary case in a court of law. Nothing short of absolute demonstration in such a matter can be satisfactory, but the evidence in question certainly staggers incredulity.

Our fear of phantoms appears to spring from a dread of the unknown, the mysterious and the intangible. That it is a groundless terror is proved by the fact that in many thousands of cases of alleged spectral appearances subjected during the last few years to painstaking investigation not a single instance has been found in which an injury was inflicted by the ghost upon the person or persons to whom it presented itself. So that, even if we are to accept apparitions as veritable, we ought to regard them with curiosity rather than with apprehension, and instead of trying to avoid such supernatural visitors we should eagerly seek an opportunity to be haunted for the sake of observing for ourselves phenomena so intensely interesting.

Exchange in Neckties.

A South Penn square business man has evolved a plan of how to dodge wife, but there is merit attaching to it in this case. His wife insists on buying his neckties and dotes on lavender and red or green spots or a pale shimmering Nile green shot with purple. Rather than cause her anguish by seeming to deny her taste in cravats, her husband most deceitfully starts for the office every morning wearing a tie of her selection. Once in the office, however, the traitor quickly exchanges the offending necktie for something quieter which he keeps under careful lock and key in his own private desk. It would be interesting to find out his wife's sensations should she pay him a visit some day in office hours or should he forget to make the exchange again before his trip home.—Philadelphia Record.

Hats With Tempers.

There are hats with tempers, as every woman is aware—the hats that "go on" beautifully one day (for preference in the hat shop five minutes before they are bought) and which in the next refuse to assume the right pose and poise for love or money. There are few conditions more trying than to fall under the ban of a hat's displeasure. The only thing to be done is to put it away for a week or so and wait till it has recovered from its temper, like a naughty child. One cannot argue with a hat and smacking is not to be recommended.—London Queen.

Mentally.

"You have been abroad, haven't you, Mr. Snipleigh?"
"No, Miss Sharp. What made you think I had been abroad?"
"Why, I heard papa say you were 'way off'."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Candor.

Mabel (aged six)—Ain't you afraid of our big dog? The Parson (very thin)—No, my dear. He would not make much of a meal off me. Mabel—Oh, but he likes bones best.—Chicago News

The freedom of the city of Dublin has been presented to Mr. Croker. The people perhaps thought it was better to give it to him than to have him take it for himself.

A western Judge has decided that a trade organization in this instance the Typographical Union, may be sued and made responsible in damages, whether incorporated or not. When this Union pleaded that it was not a corporation and could not be sued, he held that they were a partnership and responsible in that aggregation.

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

The most written about law appears to be the unwritten law.

The fashions say there will be nothing new in bathing suits this year, that is nothing new but the new woman.

A Chicago physician says that hot water will cure the most aggravating troubles. Unhappily, our statesmen think that hot air is a specific for political disorders.

The general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church is to convene in Baltimore in May 1908, and the work of getting ready for the great gathering is already in progress.

San Francisco does not like General Funston's remarks about the "unwhipped mob" but has decided not to make much fuss about it for fear of being alluded to as a "whipped mob."

In this country we hear little of a man wanting to marry his deceased wife's sister, but in England where it is against the law, they all seem to want to do it, even to a number of Members of the House of Commons and several Peers.

The striking ice men of New York have graciously granted permission to the drivers who deliver ice to the hospitals and the sick, that is, they will not interfere with such delivery. They however, take no account of the much greater number who will suffer and perhaps die from lack of ice.

The annual Fourth of July battle with sad sequelae of sad and wounded is past, and we are reasonably assured of a year of peace with the dread certainty, however, that the noisy carnage will be repeated on July the Fourth, 1908, and on successive Fourth's for years to come. There appears to be no cure for the murderous folly of this method of celebration. Millions of dollars are wasted, the fatalities are equal to those on some battle fields, while the annoyances, in some instances, fatal to the sick, the weak and the nervous, add greatly to the general suffering.

How often has it been said that the boasted prosperity of this materially favored country is only a synonym for unparalleled extravagance. It is a truth, and it cannot be repeated too often if indeed by repetition there may result an impression. Favored in material things beyond all other lands, we are wasteful of forest, of stream, of strength and of life. We know little of petty or even of gross economies, but there is indication in legislation and in periodical publications that we are becoming aware of the necessity of conserving our material resources and if we can only take necessity to heart and make frugality a national characteristic as the French have done, it will be worth to us more than many years of the fattest prosperity.

Voting Contest For a Model HUB Range.

THE ANTRIM REPORTER has purchased a handsome $65.00 Model HUB Range and will give it away absolutely free to the lady receiving the largest number of votes.

The Model HUB Range is unexcelled as a sure and easy baker and cooker, and an economical consumer of either coal, coke or wood. The Model HUB Range is world-famous, and is well known to the good cooks of New England, who have always led and will lead the world. This Range is made by the Smith & Anthony Co. of Boston, which, in itself is a guarantee of good faith, and is sold by leading dealers everywhere.

This Range will be given to the lady in the town of Antrim or any of the neighboring towns who receives the most votes.

Conditions of the Contest.

The Model HUB Range will be given to the lady receiving the highest number of votes. There must be two or more contestants.

Vote coupons can be obtained only by payment of yearly subscriptions, old or new, at the Antrim Office, or sent in by mail. To prevent trading among contestants, those receiving coupons should fill them out at once, preferably with pen and ink. No coupon will be counted upon which two names have been written, even if one of these have been erased.

Any contestant, or friend of contestants, is at liberty to canvass for subscriptions, no matter where they may reside.

Collections may be made on old subscriptions by contestants or their friends and a 100 vote certificate will be issued for 1-year renewal, 250 vote certificate for 2-year renewal.

Changing from one member of a family to another will not be accepted as a new subscription. Receipt blanks and other printed matter will be furnished the contestants for use in making a canvass or for making collections, as well as lists of old subscribers, free of charge upon application.

The Range to be given away is a full size Model HUB Range, of the latest pattern, and will be delivered at the freight depot nearest the residence of the winner. The value of this Range, at retail, is $65.00. The Model HUB Range will be on exhibition and can be soon seen and examined at the REPORTER OFFICE.

Don't wait for somebody else, but send in your votes at once and hustle for a Range that is well worth your effort! Begin today!!

One of the principal objects being the securing of new subscribers, we will give increased value or 300-vote certificate for every year paid on all new subscriptions; and 700-vote certificate for 2 years. No Coupons will be printed in The REPORTER. The only way to get votes will be by payment of subscriptions. If you pay at The REPORTER OFFICE ask for your coupons. If you send by mail request that the coupons be sent you.

The date of the close of the contest will be announced later.

Address all enquiries or coupons to Contest Department,

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys, Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claims to keep the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for a sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The restorative is sold by W. F. Dickey.

HOW WE ARE FORMED.

A Few of the Many Marvels of the Human Body.

On an average man's body there are 840,000 hairs. Plucking one every second it would take him twelve eight-hour working days to pull them all out. In his blood there are 25,000,000,000,000 red corpuscles. Laid out side by side they would cover a surface of 3,130 square yards.

The whole of the blood passes through a man's heart nearly twice in every minute. It weighs one-thirteenth of the entire body weight, and it moves in different parts of the body at speeds varying from ten feet to 1,000 yards (nearly one mile) an hour.

The fat of your body is fluid. It becomes solid only when the body cools after death. It is one of your most useful constituents, forming a non-conducting sheath to protect you from cold, acting as pads to preserve from shock, on the tips of the fingers, the toes and the heels and lying always ready as a reserve food supply when you can get nothing to eat.

A little artery passes from your brain through the skull into the scalp, which acts as a safety valve when the brain is congested with blood.

The skin cannot grow again once it is destroyed; hence the unsightly scars left by burns and severe wounds. Only the surface layer can renew itself. When the whole thickness is destroyed, it never reforms. This is the more curious as muscles, nerves, blood vessels and bones, all less liable to injury than the skin, can grow again.

You are really a water rather than a land animal. Although as a whole you live on dry land, your body consists of countless millions of separate living particles, and these are all immersed in the water which constitutes four-fifths of your substance.

Within the inner part of your ear, deep in the bone, is a quantity of fluid which acts as a spirit level and enables you to keep your balance.—Chicago Record-Herald.

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done."
In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless needed, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures Inflammation, Ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides, I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

MRS. AUG. LYON

at midnight the body was placed in a house in Walnut street, where vigil was kept by the seconds, who drank heavily to support them in the terrible strain under which they had been placed.

Miller's father said that he held no malice against Hunter, but the midshipman, who was suspended for a year for punishment, was haunted by the specter of the dead man lying on the bank of Naaman's creek, slain by his hand, and died a prematurely old man after a lonely life, shut off from all hope of preferment in the navy. He was buried by the newspaper men of New York, who erected a tombstone over his grave.—Philadelphia Ledger.

How Inconsiderate!

"Young Ruggles did a very thoughtful thing."

"What was that?"

"He wrote a poem in honor of a certain young woman who had just completed her twenty-first birthday and published it in the college paper."

"Wasn't it a good poem?"

"Very good."

"What's the criticism then?"

"Why, everybody who wants to find out can look back any time and discover how old the young woman is."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not Even the Clock

Two ladies were being shown through the State Hospital For the Insane. As they entered a ward one turned to the other and said, "I wonder if that clock is right?"

An inmate standing near overheard her and instantly replied: "Great Scott, no! It wouldn't be here if it was!"—Lippincott's.

The Difference

"Pa, what's the difference between the meaning of prepared and ready?"

"Well, there's many a person who may be prepared to die, but I never saw one who was ready."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A WISE BRITON.

He Half Suspected at the Start That the Feathers Weren't Edible.

A Brooklyn man who entertained an English relative tells this without the quiver of an eyelid:

"My cousin from London reached New York last summer, along with a hot wave. The crowds were deep before the soda water fountains on lower Broadway. He remarked that he did not comprehend how Americans could swallow that 'nasty slush.'"

"A mere preference," I explained. "We have many curious examples of that kind in this country. One of the most remarkable evidences of insatiable appetite for froth rather than substance is that of the American poultry lover who daily advertises in our New York papers for 1,000 feather beds. As you may well imagine, he is said to have entirely lost his taste for the flesh of the fowl."

"Oh, really?" exclaimed the Englishman in quiet surprise. Nothing more was said till nine months later, when I opened my mail one day and found a marked copy of the London Times, which he had sent to me. He called my attention to this extract in an article on mob rule and lynching in America. "It can hardly be possible that the supply of tar and feathers in the United States will be sufficient at the rate the mobs are covering the bodies of the poor wretches who are tortured and humiliated before they are drawn and quartered or burned at the stake."

"I fancy you will see your error after reading this," he wrote. "It is quite plain the man wanted the beds for another purpose and not, as you believe, to eat."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Youthful Financier

This really happened in New York the other day:

Displeased Parent—Molly, I find you have been buying three pairs of gloves without my permission. Why did you do so? Miss Molly faced twelve—Why, daddy, I was obliged to have some gloves; I hadn't a pair to wear! Displeased Parent—It was wrong of you to buy the gloves without the permission either of your mamma or myself. Miss Molly—Well, never mind, daddy, dear; they won't cost anything. I had them charged.—New York Post.

DUELING IN THE NAVY

The Tragic Affair That Put an End to the Practice.

A MIDSHIPMAN'S CHALLENGE.

It Was Accepted by the Lawyer, and the Battle Was Fought in Delaware. Sad Fate of the Two Principals in the Unfortunate Meeting.

That settlement of quarrels by appeal to the code of honor was no longer to be the unwritten law of the American navy was determined by a duel in which William Miller, Jr., a Philadelphia lawyer, was slain in a personal affair fought along the northern circle of Delaware. The man who fired the fatal shot was Midshipman Charles G. Hunter, and the encounter took place along Naaman's creek on the afternoon of Sunday, March 21, 1830.

Singularly enough, neither Miller, who lost his life, nor Hunter, who killed him, was principal in the original quarrel that led to the meeting on the bank of the little creek in Delaware. Neither had seen the other until a few hours before the challenge was sent and accepted.

Simply a misshot in a game of billiards played at Third and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, led to the tragedy that plunged two homes into sorrow and embittered the life of the man whose pistol shot causelessly shed human blood.

Henry Wharton Griffith and R. Dillon Drake, prominent society men of Philadelphia, played the game of billiards, and Griffith made the misshot which called forth a taunt from Drake, who was immediately struck in the face with a cue by Griffith. A challenge to a duel was sent by Drake, but Griffith declared that the challenger was beneath his notice and that he would not demean himself socially by consenting to meet him.

Then followed a long and wordy warfare in which each posted the other as a coward. Lieutenant Duryee of the United States navy was called to make an effort to settle the dispute, and it was then that Miller, the lawyer, and Hunter, the midshipman, became involved in the quarrel. In the heated discussion Hunter accused Miller of publishing a confidential letter, and a challenge was at once sent by the midshipman and accepted by the attorney.

It was decided that the duel should be fought early on Sunday morning of March 21, but it was nearly 10 o'clock before carriages containing the principals, seconds and surgeons left a house that stood on Chestnut street above Sixth. The presence of the company excited some suspicion at Chester, where the party stopped for lunch, but they hurried down the post road, tied their horses close to the highway and proceeded 200 yards behind a clump of trees that would shield them from observation.

As the sun was setting two pistol shots rang out simultaneously as one of the seconds counted "One, two, three—fire!" Hunter stood unharmed as the ball from his opponent's pistol struck at his feet, but Miller cried out that he was shot, placed one hand on his breast and fell with a bullet lying close to his heart. In a few minutes he died, while pale and anxious faces watched the convulsive breathing of the dying man.

"Gentlemen," said Hunter, "I had no enmity against this man. I never heard of him until two days ago. Let those whose quarrel embroiled him be responsible for his death."
