Hustling Zebediah.

By LUCY STEWART.

Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parcels.

"Jabez Strong, I'm not going to stand this thing another day!"
"Shoo, ma, how you talk!"
"And you've got to help me."

The cows had been milked, the hogs fed, and Jabez Strong, farmer, had taken his seat beside his wife on the veranda. He didn't ask what it was she would not stand, for the matter had been the subject of numerous conversations before. He had always assumed a neutral position and argued that things would come out all right if left alone, but now he realized that a crisis had arrived.

"If she had a mother it would be different," continued the good wife as she fanned away the mosquitoes with a folded paper, "but she hasn't one. She's only got a father, and he's the biggest old poke in six counties. Just the last thing Melvina Williams said to me on her dying bed was to be a mother to Emeline, and now I'm going to be or know the reason why. I'm going to call her over here tomorrow for a talk, and I'm going to have a talk with Zebediah. It ain't right, and you can't make it right."

"It ails makes things wuss to mix in," answered her husband after a minute.

"It might if Emeline had a mother, but she hasn't got. I've let it go on and on, thinking maybe I hadn't better say nothing, but I shan't let it go another day. I may want you to help me. If I do, you've got to pitch right in."

Across the highway from Farmer Strong's was the farmhouse of Farmer Williams. The two families had been neighbors for fifteen years. Farmer Williams was a good man, but it was also true that he was a "poke." That is, he worked from morning till night, and then after reading his county paper for half an hour he would up the clock and went to bed. When his wife had died, she left a daughter Emeline, eighteen years old. That was two years before the opening of this story. Just about that time Zebediah Henderson had been taken on as a hired man. Zeb was twenty-three years old and well thought of, but he was slow and conservative by nature.

Some hired men would have fallen in love with Emeline inside of a week, for she was a bright, attractive country maiden, but Zeb waited three months. It came to be a case of love on both sides, and three months later he proposed and was accepted. It stopped short at that, so far as Zeb was concerned. He meant to marry some day, but that day was indefinite. Farmer Williams came to know of the engagement, but he had no opinion to express. He went on with his plowing and cutting hauled dinners and left matters to fate.

It was this state of affairs that had provoked the indignation of Mrs. Strong. She didn't think it right on the part of Zebediah to keep Emeline "on the hooks," as she expressed it. While all other young men were driven away by knowledge of the engagement, Zebediah continued to "poke around" as if he had fifty years to get married in. On one or two occasions, when he had come over to borrow a hoe or sit on the veranda and discuss crops with her husband, she had spoken her mind pretty plainly. She had hinted that she knew of farmers' sons who were looking about for wives and that there were more windmill and wire fence men coming along than she could shake a stick at, but Zebediah was unmoved. She had made Emeline own up to the engagement, and she had advised her not to make a long engagement of it, but when the girl blushing asked her what she could do Mrs. Strong had no plan at hand and didn't know where she was to get one.

Fortune favors the conspirator as well as the brave. Two or three days after her talk with her husband on the veranda Mrs. Strong's brother came on a visit from Illinois. He was a jovial, hustling young man. If he hadn't had a sweetheart back home he would have fallen in love with Emeline Williams. It was while he was praising her that Mrs. Strong got her plan. It was as simple as sliding down a cellar door. She crowed and giggled over it for half an hour and was still crowing and giggling when the girl from across the road came over to borrow a drawing of tea. Mrs. Strong brought out the tea and then motioned her pretty neighbor to take a chair and began:

"Emeline, Williams, you have no mother."

"No?"

"Your mother asked me to be a mother to you after she was gone."

"I know it, and you've been awful good to me."

"Emeline, it's a dreadful thing for a girl to be in love and have no mother and an old poke of a father, and I can't stand it any longer. I've got to be your mother and advise with you."

"But father is kind and good, and Zeb is—"

"Zeb is what? Been engaged for a year and a half, and he hasn't asked you to set the day yet. He may go another year and a half. He may go five years. You can't tell nothing about such a critter. He'll keep poking along till he's bit by a rattlesnake or falls off the roof of a barn. I'm going to talk to you just as if you were my daughter. Something's got to be done."

"I—I can't do anything," stammered the girl as she turned her face away to hide the color.

"But you can, and you're going to. That's where you need a mother; that's where a mother's plans come in. If I had five daughters I'll bet I'd marry the last one of 'em off in two years. Now, Emeline Williams, stop twiddling your thumbs and blushing and hitching around and listen to me."

And inside of ten minutes she had developed her plan and guaranteed its successful working. There were objections, but she overruled them. There were protestations, but she silenced them. Half an hour after the girl had run back home with her tea the plan had been communicated to Bert, Mrs. Strong's brother, and entered upon in the heartiest manner. He had been introduced to the Williams household, and, following out the plan, he crossed the road and spent four hours talking to Emeline on the veranda. Zebediah saw them from the cornfield. During the first hour he was easy in his mind. During the second he wondered a bit. Before the third was ended he was feeling the gnawing pangs. He came up to supper sullen and morose, and now and then during the evening he flung out something about "that squirt from Illinois."

Bert came the next day and the next. He also came in the evening. He almost ignored Zeb, while he made every effort to entertain Emeline. He even aroused her father from his wonted lethargy. Zeb wanted to do some kicking, but fear of the law restrained him. He wanted to talk to the girl and tell her what was what, but pride forbade. He was mad and jealous, but there seemed nothing for him to do. He lay in his bed one night thinking things over and gritting his teeth and wondering why girls made fools of themselves, when Farmer Strong roused him up and told him he'd better go to the barn and see if the horses were all right. Farmer Strong thought he had seen some one prowling around. A trip to the barn showed that the gray horse and top buggy were missing. When the Williams household was alarmed, the discovery was made that Miss Emeline was not in her room. Her wardrobe had been overhauled, and she had evidently fled. The discovery was not a minute old when Mrs. Strong came over to report that her brother was missing.

"By gum, but it's an elopement!" exclaimed Zebediah as he made for the barn. "It's an elopement, and I'll kill that squirt from Illinois if I have to follow him to Africa!"

There was another horse in the barn, and, waiting only long enough to slip on a bridle, Zeb mounted and was off for the nearest village. As he went clattering through the midnight darkness he saw red. In his heart he was a murderer ten times over. He did not have to go to the village. Three miles from home he met a boy driving the old gray mare homeward. He had been paid half a dollar by the "squirt" to do so after the young man had taken the train. The boy was positive that there was no one with him. The old mare was put on the gallop for home, and the farmhouse was reached to find the father and daughter at the gate. Emeline had explained that she had sat up late fixing over a dress and had finally gone up to the garret to hunt for some pieces of cloth. Elope? She had never even dreamed of it. In love with the young man from the west? She couldn't say she even liked him.

At this point Mrs. Strong came into the discussion to say that her brother was very erratic and sometimes did strange things and that when he took sudden resolves to go home he sometimes borrowed even a horse and buggy without consulting the owner. She hadn't heard him say he was going home, but he didn't always let her into his confidence. Zeb heard her out and then climbed into the buggy.

"Where are you going?" asked the farmer.

"After Jim Smith, the justice."

"What for?"

"There's going to be a wedding here in less'n an hour."

And there was, and though the groom was grouchy for awhile he soon got over it and acknowledged that he was glad of it—that is, he was glad he had married five or six years sooner than he had intended to, but if the "squirt" ever returned to that neighborhood let him look out for a broken neck.

In Regard to R. W. Pillsbury.

Rosecrans W. Pillsbury formally announced his candidacy for the nomination as republican candidate for governor in the Manchester Union of Saturday, Aug. 10. Mr. Pillsbury has many friends who would be glad to see him in the governor's chair, but it is altogether too early to seriously consider the successor of Governor Floyd.

On the other hand, here is what the Berlin Reporter has to say about the matter. "The people will remember his antics at the convention when he asked his followers to turn their strength over to Charles M. Floyd—and it is probable that the people will know how to act another time respecting the ambitions of the gentleman from Londonderry. Mr. Pillsbury in 1906 was supposed to be what he claimed to be. Mr. Pillsbury in 1908 will have a big handicap to over-come as a result of his course in 1906 which is looked upon by many of his at-that-time friends as an out and out betrayal of his trust."

A Change of Parties.

Our Maine brethren of the press take sort of a seizable though perhaps homely view of the political situation in that state, but really when one stops to consider the matter isn't it about so in every state? Here is what the Lisbon Falls (Me.) Enterprise has to say about it:

"As things are at the present there isn't but little honor in being classed either as a Republican or Democrat in Maine. About the only good thing that might hope to be accomplished in the state by giving the Democrats the reins of government, would be in the fact that by so doing the Republican rascals now in office would have to get out of office, and we believe the state would be benefited thereby. Of course two years of Democratic rule in Maine would be enough at a time, and when the Republicans would again win out at the polls a new lot of fellows would be at the head of the organization, and all the old chronic grafters would be down and out for the time being at least."

A Card

The undersigned wish to extend heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so kindly remembered their mother through her long sickness, and especially to the bearers, singers and kind neighbors who assisted at the time of her death with flowers and kindly service.

William H. Munhall.

An accident which shocked our community befell the subject of this article on Friday evening last at about 8.40 o'clock. In descending the stairs in the Cochrane block on Main street, Mr. Munhall in some unknown way fell against an open door and cut himself in a frightful manner on a glass panel of the door. He was at once attended by physicians and surgeons but the extent of the wounds was too much to hold with stitches of the surgeon's needle and the serious nature of the same, coupled with the great loss of blood, could not be overcome by any human agency. He lived till Saturday afternoon about two o'clock when he quietly passed away, regaining consciousness but once and then for but a very short time.

William Henry Munhall was born in Antrim March 22, 1863, son of John and Eliza (Fitzgerald) Munhall, and always resided in town. He married Miss Nellie Welch of Hancock, and resided in a pleasant home of their own on West street. Besides a widow, an aged father and mother, deceased leaves three sisters, Mary Elisabeth, Annie Josephine and Adeline Theresa Munhall. The community extend sympathy to the bereaved family in their affliction.

The funeral procession formed at the house at 8.15 o'clock Tuesday morning and the line of march was through Main street to Bennington for the service, and the remains were taken to Peterboro for interment. The members of the Antrim Fire Department of which deceased was an officer, acted as escort to a large number of members of Court Bennington, No. 35, F. of A., of which organization deceased was also a member. Of these two organizations there were about 65 in line.

A list of floral tributes:

Pillow, lilies, roses and asters, with word "Husband," from wife; lyre with broken string of roses and lilies, with word "Son" from father and mother; mound of roses and maiden-hair fern, with word "Brother" from sisters; pillow, leaves and red roses, with two bugles and cap in white asters, from Antrim Fire Department; crescent on stand, from shop mates; sheaf of wheat, with "At Rest" from Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson and Bessie Wilson; spray of asters from Mrs. Frederick Doe, M. E. Munhall and Mrs. Wm. Averill; large wreath of white lilies, from Mr. and Mrs. W. T. A. Fitzgerald; spray of sweet peas from Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Muzzey; wreath of roses and asters from F. of A.; bouquet of sweet peas from Mrs. Wm. Shoults; white sweet peas and ferns from Mrs. Wm. Mudge; sweet peas and ferns from Mrs. Woodward; nasturtiums and ferns from Mrs. Fluri.

A Contribution.

The right wing of the "Army of Observation"—Cox's Army—arrived in camp Monday, 19th inst., which is pitched on the western slope of Mount Crooked; the left wing will soon join them at Camp Laughing Waters, which is the name of the Camp. The officer in command of the camp is Past Commander Milton H. Dickey; this Division is officered as follows: Major General, Fred McDade; Brig. General, Edward Dickey; Colonel, Geo. H. Dickey; Aide-de-camp, Lawrence Morrill.

Three members of the Antrim ball team, Carpenter, Hobart and "Andy," played with the Peterboros Tuesday—"Old Home Day"—and were a great assistance in defeating the strong Greenville team two games.

Morris Poor was in Worcester, Mass., over Sunday.

Early Lamb Production.

The conditions afforded by New Hampshire offer an excellent opportunity for the production of early lambs for the Boston market. The demand for early or "hot house" lambs is increasing every year and the prices paid for them should encourage our sheep raisers in this phase of the industry. The advantages of early lamb production are, first, that the lambs are prepared for market at the season when farm work is slack; second, that being necessarily housed during the period, there is no danger of their being killed by dogs, or affected by parasites, and third, that the maximum return is secured from the minimum of feed consumed. The price will depend upon the weight and quality of the lambs and the season at which they are marketed. Small lambs of a blocky shape in extra good condition bring more than large lambs only moderately fat. The best prices are usually obtained during the months of February and March, lambs dressing 25 to 30 lbs. bringing from $8 to $10 per head. Through the months of April, May and June from $4 to $3 per head is obtained. Lambs are sold by the carcass, until about July 1st, after which they are weighed and sold by the pound.

We have found that the early lambs shrink a little over 50 per cent in dressing so that they weigh from 50 to 60 lbs. at the time of slaughter. The age required to attain this weight will depend upon the care and feeding and upon the breeding. Our best lambs have weighed 50 lbs. at the age of ten weeks, while others have required 14 or 15 weeks.

For early lambs breeding season should begin in August, at which time ewes should be in good condition, not fat but in medium flesh. The number of ewes allotted to a mature ram should not be over 50 and to a lamb ram not over 25. It is always well to give the ram a little grain such as oats and bran just before and during the breeding season. If the pasture is poor the ewes should have a small allowance of grain. The proper food for pregnant ewes during the winter is clover hay and 2 or 3 lbs. of roots or a good quality of corn silage. About a month before lambing time begin feeding grain at the rate of a handful per day, gradually increasing the amount to a pound or more per day. Weak lambs and ewes without milk at the time of parturition are frequently the result of not having the ewes prepared for the lambing season and the lack of succulent food and grain in their ration. The ewes should also have plenty of exercise during pregnancy.

It is also important that a ram of good breeding be used, preferably a pure-bred. The lambs are half the blood of their sire and he should be a good one. Although grade ewes may be used successfully for early spring lambs money put in a pure bred ram will be well invested. After the breeding season the ram should not be allowed to run with the ewes.

The leading factors for a strong and vigorous crop of lambs are good care, proper food and plenty of exercise for the ewes, and a strong thrifty pure-bred animal used as a sire. If you are interested in the matter of early lambs, now is the time to think and act about it.

OLD TIME CALENDARS.

The Saxon Clogg, Whence Comes the Name "Almanac"
In these days, when printed calendars are in evidence everywhere, the question as to what device the elder folk employed to help them mark the progress of time is not uninteresting. "They," says Verstegan, alluding to the Saxons, "used to engrave upon certain squared sticks about a foot in length, or shorter or longer, as they pleased, the courses of the moons of the whole year, whereby they could always certainly tell when the new moons, full moons and changes should happen, as also their festival dates, and such a carved stick they called an al-mon-aht—that is to say, al-mon-head, to wit, the record or observation of all the moons, and hence is derived the name almanac."
An instrument of this kind was also called the clogg, from its form and matter, and had a ring on the upper end of it to hang on a nail somewhere about the house. On each of the four sides were three months, the days being represented by notches. Every seventh notch, being of a larger size, represented Sunday. Issuing from the right side of the notches were inscriptions and figures marking the festival days by some endowment of the saints or illustrating the season of the year by some work or sport characteristic of it.
Thus against June 29, St. Peter's day, were carved his keys. On Feb. 14 a true lover's knot appeared, and against the notch designating Christmas day was the old wassailing or carousal horn that the forefathers used to make merry with.
The Danes, Swedes and Norwegians used these almanacs under various names, such as Reinstocks, Runstocks, Runstoffs, Annales, Staves, Stakes, Cloggs, Runick, and so forth. Before printing was introduced and when manuscripts were rare and dear these Runic almanacs were made the instruments of instruction and regularity. That they might be more serviceable they were often carved on the tops of pilgrims' staves or stakes so as to regulate their time of assembling at particular places. They were also cut on sword scabbards and implements of husbandry. These cloggs are not entirely unlike the Egyptian obelisks, which have been called fingers of the sun and which may be regarded as a species of almanac.
One of the first printed almanacs or calendars was that of John Muller, who opened a printing house and published his almanac at Guremburg in the year 1472. It gave not only the characters of each year and of the months, but foretold the eclipses for thirty years in advance.
In England the year book of Henry VII. gives the first recorded account of almanacs.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.
Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who consent themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys, Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claims to keep the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for a sample and free Book. $5,000 Reward will be paid to any person who can find one atom of opium, chloral, morphine, cocaine, ether or chloroform or their derivatives in any of Dr. Miles' Remedies.

This reward is offered because certain unscrupulous persons make false statements about these remedies. It is understood that this reward applies only to goods purchased in the open market, which have not been tampered with. Dr. Miles' remedies cure by their strengthening and invigorating effect upon the nervous system, and not by weakening the nerves.

"I consider that there are no better remedies put up than Dr. Miles' Nerve, Anti-Pain Pills, and Nerve and Liver Pills. We have used them for years, and recommend them to many others. My wife is using the Nerve, and considers it the best medicine in the world. A lady friend of mine, who was almost a total nervous wreck, through my earnest solicitation has used several bottles of the Nerve with wonderful results." WM. CROME, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With other coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this strikingly true with regard to Constipation. The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to the end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., in some Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Dandy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenious and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying. No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box. A Tribute to the "Old Home Paper."

Though I love the daily paper
With its columns full of news,
And the comic Sunday weekly
Often drives away the blues,
Yet, it is the old home paper
That I never can refuse.

Yes, the cherished country weekly
Of the village of my birth,
Filled with interesting happenings
Of the dearest spot on earth,
Is to me a cherished treasure—
One of true intrinsic worth.

Always standing with the people,
With their interests at heart,
Advocating, struggling, striving,
Some new message to impart,
And to give dull enterprises
A fresh impetus and start

Is the enterprising weekly
Published in a country town,
Quite unlike the yellow journals
Of the city bare and brown,
With its hurry and confusion
That life's pleasures seem to drown.

Oh while in some distant city,
Longing for the news of home,
Thinking of my friends and loved ones
Does the welcome message come,
In the little country weekly
Printed in my native home.

How its bright and newsy columns,
As I read its pages o'er,
Bring to me some recollection
Of the ones I knew of yore,
Or tell me of some companion
That I never shall see more.

—ARNOLD H. BELLOWES.

A Good Result

Under the operation of the new Pure Food Laws, baking powders now generally bear on the labels a statement of the ingredients. This is of utmost importance because of the harmful ingredients used in many cases.

Royal Baking Powder is known to be the only baking powder made of Royal Grape Cream of Tartar, and this no doubt explains its greatly increased sale here.

Careful housekeepers are taking advantage of the protection which the Laws afford and are examining all the reading matter on the back of the label before adopting any brand for use in the home.

When in place of the words Cream of Tartar the words "alum" "aluminum" or "phosphate of lime" appear among the ingredients, they heed the warning and avoid baking powders containing these substitutes.

GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

ELLEN M. OLSON

CLARA E. DARMSTADTER

The responsibility for a daughter's future largely rests with the mother. The right influence and the information which is of vital interest to the daughter imparted at the proper time has not only saved the life but insured the success of many a beautiful girl.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, with headache, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pains in back or lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude; when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, will at this time prepare the system for the coming change, and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities. It has been thus depended upon for two generations. Hundreds of letters from young girls and their mothers, expressing gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for them, are constantly being received.

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Kewanee, Ill. writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I have had the best doctors in our town for my sickness and they all thought that an operation was necessary. I had headache,

No other remedy has such a record of actual cures of female ills. Thousands of women residing in every part of the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it has done for them. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Circus Families Dying Out.
In this country the circus families are fast dying out. The reasons are many. Primarily circus parents instead of bringing up their children to become performers encourage them to adopt some other calling because the opportunities for success are greater in business or the professions and the danger is less, for in most of the acts a circus performer is constantly risking life and limb. Moreover, salaries are not commensurate with the long years of preparation, the hard work and the brevity of a performer's active life. Furthermore, the big circuses, with more than one ring, do not tend to develop really finished performers, since no act has the undivided attention of the spectators. All these influences are diverting circus people from their hereditary employment.

So we go to Europe for the big acts. There a child may be apprenticed at six, and there is still a high standard for the fine points, since they have but one ring. Also, and this is highly important, the rule is to give only one afternoon performance a week, thus allowing the performers the whole of the day for practice. — Everybody's Magazine.

Red Riding Hood's Wood.

Jack killed his giants in Cornwall in the days of King Arthur, and Tom Thumb flourished at about the same time, while at much later date the babes were left by their wicked uncle to die in the wood in Norfolk—distinctly in northwest Norfolk. Northwest Norfolk also contains "Little Red Riding Hood's Wood." Twenty years ago it was a lovely haunt for the nature lover. In the heart of the wood was a lake, in the middle of the lake an island and on the island a tiny uninhabited cottage. Flowers were everywhere in profusion, especially spring flowers, wild in the wood, cultivated in the cottage garden, which was kept in order by the owner's bailiff. It would have been unkind to tell the villagers, who firmly believed that the episode in the life of Little Red Riding Hood actually occurred, that Germany claimed to have sent us the story.—London Chronicle.

CALLING IN PARIS.

The Concierge is a Peculiar Institution in Several Ways.

You leave your card at the door of the person to whom you desire to present yourself, and there it is taken in charge by that peculiarly French functionary, the concierge, says Professor Barrett Wendell in Scribner's. At least in Paris, the greater part of French people live in large houses containing a number of apartments with a common entrance and staircase. Close to the entrance door, on the level of the street, are some stuffy little rooms inhabited by the concierge, or porter, with his family. Their duty, among other things, is to keep strict watch on whoever goes in or out, and at least one of them, often the porter's wife or half grown daughter, is always at hand.

The chief peculiarity of their temperament seems to be insatiable appetite. At whatever hour of day or evening you call on a concierge you are sure to find somebody eating or just risen from table, and the atmosphere inhabited by this bustling personage seems immortally laden with the fumes of something recently boiled.

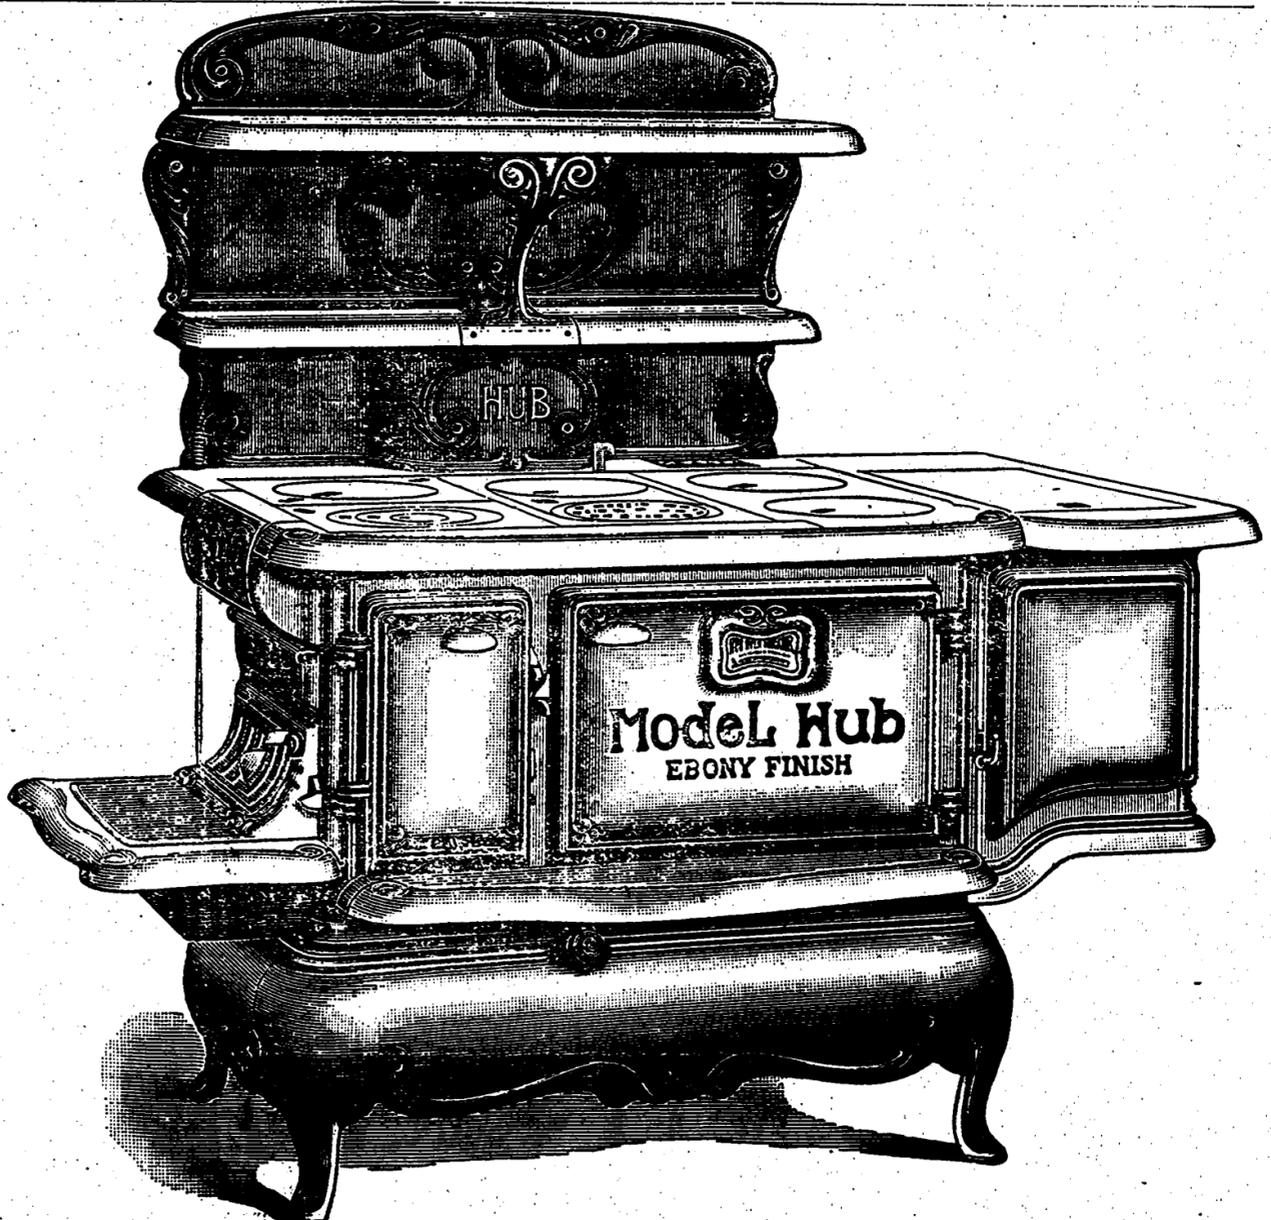

No matter whether you call on a friend who lives in some unpretentious out of the way place or on one who inhabits something like a palace, the concierge is always about the same. You can detect little difference between those in charge of important doors and of insignificant. They are as like as house flies. Of course there are private houses in Paris, with regular domestic servants such as you would find anywhere, but these, grand or simple, are so unusual that you remember the concierge as everywhere standing between you and further human intercourse.

In response to your card, which the concierge duly sees delivered, comes a card, often with a note, in return. If, as is generally the case, this acknowledgment of your existence contains an intimation of when your French acquaintance may be found at home, either habitual or for your special benefit, you make your second visit at this appointed time and thus enter into real personal relations.

Otherwise, your intercourse has limited itself to a polite exchange of cards. Generally speaking, you never expect or attempt to see French people socially except when they have asked you to one of their regular days of reception or have made a definite appointment. To call on a person at any other time—to do more than leave your card with the concierge—would be an intrusive pretense to intimacy.

Every brave heart must consider society as a child and not allow it to dictate.—Emerson.

Letter to C. R. Jameson,
Antrim, N. H.

Dear Sir: Every job Devoe is done with less gallons than ever before with any other paint.

S. J. Field, Indianola, Fla., says: "All the houses here are painted Devoe. The hot air is too trying for other paints. One coat Devoe is better than two of any other paint, so far as we know."

Less gallons, less cost.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & Co.
