In the Attic.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Miss Cynthia's attic was fragrant with aromatic herbs. Little bags of lavender and of dried rose leaves hung from the rafters and mingled their delicate perfume with the coarser aroma of sage and sweet marjoram and thyme and summer savory.

On autumn afternoons the attic was golden with sunshine, and from the little peaked window one could see the long white road and the blue hills beyond.

It was to this fragrant and gold lighted attic that Miss Cynthia would come when the summer rush was over and in its peace and quiet try to forget that she was worn and worried and withered.

At thirty-five one should not be worried and withered. But hard lives do not make for youth and freshness, and Miss Cynthia had always drudged. Work had been the watchword on the farm, and when prosperity had come in later years the habit of keeping summer boarders had become fixed and even after the death of her parents Miss Cynthia had continued it.

But with September came rest and freedom, and it was then that Miss Cynthia sought the attic and wrote in her diary.

The diary was a safe outlet for her woes. There were pages blotted with the tears she had shed when she had closed the volume of her first romance, and two leaves on which she had penned a poetic swan song of affection were pinned together with a black pin.

Miss Cynthia had old fashioned ideas about love. She had loved once, and hence there could be no other affair. It mattered nothing that the man in the case was married and had grown fat and puffy and uninteresting. It was not the man, but the idea, and to that idea Miss Cynthia was true.

To be sure, no second suitor had entered her life, so that there had been no severe tax upon her constancy. But the roses had gone out of her cheeks when she was twenty, and she had twisted her hair in an unpromising knot, and had at that early date given herself up to mourning and to memories.

"You're silly," Martha Ann told her one bright September morning as Miss Cynthia, with her black diary in her hand, prepared to ascend to the attic. "Why don't you go out and visit and have a good time instead of writing in that dark old place?"

Martha Ann was an old and privileged servant, but Miss Cynthia would brook no interference with her acts of affliction.

"I don't think good times are my portion, Martha Ann," she said and went up the stairway thoughtfully.

Halfway up she paused to say: "Make a good vegetable soup for lunch, Martha Ann. I'll throw down a bunch of my herbs. Soup will taste good on a cool day."

"Love," wrote Miss Cynthia in her little book, "is of man's life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence!"

When she had rounded off the last prim letter she bit the end of her pencil and sighed and looked out of the peaked window.

Far down the road she could see a cloud of dust. Coming nearer, the cloud showed itself the forerunner of an automobile.

The big machine swerved out of the road and into Miss Cynthia's own drive. It stopped at her door, and she had to lean far out of the peaked window to see Martha in her gingham apron speaking to the occupant.

Miss Cynthia could not hear a word, and she almost fell over the sill in the effort to satisfy her curiosity. She saw Martha Ann go in, and presently she felt a pull at the back of her dress.

"Goodness," Martha Ann said crossly, "I called and called, and I couldn't make you hear. That man wants something to eat."

"What?" Miss Cynthia gasped. "But he doesn't look like a tramp, Martha Ann."

"Tramps don't ride in automobiles,"

Martha Ann sniffed. "He says he's been riding all the morning, and he just couldn't find a place to eat, and he would be glad to pay for a meal. He understood that we took boarders, he said."

"Well, you go down and hurry the soup and make an omelet and some hot biscuits, and I will talk to him, Martha Ann."

"You'd better stop in your room and primp a little," Martha Ann advised. "He's awfully good looking."

"The idea!" said Miss Cynthia, with dignity.

She was a little sorry, however, when she reached the sitting room that she had not taken the girl's advice, for the man that she greeted was big and blond and prosperous looking. It developed that he slurred his grammar, but as he leaned back in the biggest rocking chair and talked in his hearty voice Miss Cynthia decided that he was very attractive.

"I expect you think it's queer my droppin' in on you this way?" he said as Martha announced lunch. "But I couldn't pass the popples and the peonies in the yard. My mother used to have an old fashioned garden, and there was something about yours that reminded me of it, and I felt as if you'd give me a home cooked meal. A man gets tired of hotels."

Over the steaming, savory soup he expanded still more.

"This is the kind I like," he said. "With all the vegetables in it and herbs. I'll bet you've got a lot of herbs tied up in your attic. My mother had. She said the attic was the pleasantest place in the house, and I used to think so too."

Miss Cynthia felt that at last she had met an understanding soul.

"Would you like to go up after lunch?" she asked eagerly. "There is a fine view from the little dormer window."

"My, how nice it smells!" said the big man as he seated himself in Miss Cynthia's favorite corner. The black diary lay open by his side. His eyes caught the lines:

Love is of man's life a thing apart;
'Tis woman's whole existence.

"Oh, tommyrot!" he said. "Did you write that?"

"Yes," Miss Cynthia admitted. "Byron said it, you know."

"Well, he didn't know what he was talking about. Why, if I loved a woman I should just love her all over—no halfway business for me."

"Oh!" Miss Cynthia gasped. There was something in his tone that made his statement next door to a declaration—a fervency that positively thrilled her.

"I am awfully glad I came," he said as they went downstairs. "I am a stranger in this neighborhood, but if you will let me come again I will be mighty glad. It seems like my owu folks."

"You must come real often," Miss Cynthia urged, and hoped that Martha Ann would not hear her invitation.

"Gee! This is the way to live," said her visitor as he stood on the steps and surveyed the quiet garden, the family of gray pussy cats in the sunny porch corner, the gray horse in the paddock.

"I should think traveling around in your automobile would be interesting," Miss Cynthia ventured.

"Well, 'tis," he agreed. "Do you like it?"

"I have never been in one," Miss Cynthia admitted.

"What?" he asked. "Oh, look here! You run right up and put on your hat, and I'll take you."

"Oh," said Miss Cynthia, all a-flutter. "I wonder if I can?"

"Of course you can," said the gentleman securely. "I won't run away with you."

Safe in her own room, Miss Cynthia consulted Martha Ann.

"You'd better go with us," she said. "I don't think it's quite proper, Martha Ann, do you?"

"I wouldn't go in one of them things if you'd give it to me," Martha Ann said, "and he's all right. I saw his name on a bundle of papers he left in the automobile. He's Andrew Briggs, the millionaire that's bought the factory. He is building a church and a library for the town, and I guess he's respectable."

Miss Cynthia dressed in a whirl. Of what account was that little romance of years ago when at her gates was a prince like this?

She came down with four yards of white chiffon tied around her hat. It had been bought for a waist, but, worn as a veil, it made a fascinating frame for her flushed little face. She had loosened her hair, and the soft brown curls gave youthfulness to her expression.

Mr. Briggs eyed her with appreciation.

"I'm awfully glad I met you," he said again as he helped her into his car.

Martha looked after them as they whirled down the long white road.

"Well, I never!" she remarked to the pussy cats. "Did you ever see two people take to each other like that? I bet it will be a match!"

And it was.

Both Won.

That the average Broadwayite is a "natural born gambler" was well illustrated the other morning. Two men met, and one confessed the want of breakfast. The other "made good" the deficiency, and during the meal No. 1 remarked that he had received notice that there was a registered letter in the postoffice for him.

"Nobody would send me money," he added, "so it's a waste of car fare to go after it."

"I'll give you a dollar for a half interest," said No. 2.

"You're on if you pay care fare," was the quick reply.

After breakfast the pair went to the postoffice, got the letter, opened it and found a five dollar bill.

"Anyhow I'm $3.50 ahead," said the owner of the letter as he "split the bill." "That's from a man I never expected to make the loan good."—New York Globe.

Could Not Cure Himself.

Something of the irony of fate is exemplified in an anecdote related by the New York Times concerning Professor Poirier, who until his death was the most famous cancer expert in France.

Professor Poirier gave much of his time without pay to aiding poor people afflicted with cancer. One day there came to him a woman on whom he had operated and who feared the growth was coming again.

"Fear nothing," said the physician when he had made an examination. "It will be some years before you will need a fresh operation—which, by the way, I shall not be able to perform."

"But, doctor, you will not refuse to treat me?"

"No, my poor woman, but I shall not be there to do it. I also have a cancer, and it will be more rapid than yours."

A Counter Charge.

An elegant young man seized a thief on the platform of a train, saying, "Are you not ashamed to follow so disgraceful a profession?"

"And are you not ashamed," demanded the other, "to go so well dressed without a pocketbook about you?"

Full Faith in the Doctor.

A young farm laborer called one market day at the registrar's office to record his father's death. The registrar asked the date of death.

"Well, father ain't dead yet," was the reply, "but he will be dead before morning, and I thought it would save me another journey if you would put it down now."

"Oh, that won't do at all," said the registrar. "Why, your father may take a turn before morning and recover."

"Ah, no, he won't," said the young laborer. "Doctor says he won't, and he knows what he's given father."—Liverpool Mercury.

Irish Wit.

As Sir Walter Scott was riding with a friend near Abbotsford he came to a field gate, which an Irish beggar, who happened to be near, opened for him. Sir Walter was desirous of rewarding him by the present of sixpence, but found he had not so small a coin in his purse. "Here, my good fellow," said he; "here is a shilling for you, but mind, you owe me sixpence." "God bless your honor!" exclaimed the Irishman. "May your honor live till I pay you!"

Lots of It.

"Initiative is the great thing that we all need and that most of us lack."

"Well, my husband has lots of it," replied Mrs. Gottawadde. "He's initiated in something nearly every night."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sensitive.

"Willie is so sensitive."

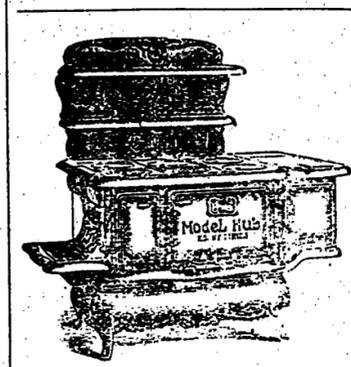

"Really?"

"Exceedingly so. When papa kicked him down the steps the last time he didn't call again for three weeks."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Contest Ended.

On Monday evening of this week, as near 8 o'clock as it was possible to make the announcement, it was stated at the REPORTER office the result of the voting contest for the Hub Range which has been on exhibition in one of our show windows for several weeks past. The announcement included something that was wholly unexpected, and was that while only one contestant could win the range, the REPORTER desired, in appreciation of the good and faithful work done by the other two in the contest to present to them each with its compliments a fat turkey for their Thanksgiving dinner.

All through, this was a good natured contest and participated in by all contestants alike in a most friendly spirit, and to the very last all realized that only one could get the coveted prize and to this end they worked; all felt that whichever one won, they deserved it for she had worked for it.

The result of the vote stood as follows: Mrs. W. F. Smith, 19,100; Mrs. Eugene Woodward, 30,400; Mrs. J. A. Balch, 24,000.

Recipe Mixed Often.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture writes one authority in a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcements in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

The druggists in the neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or symptom tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

"Evangeline" Nov. 29.

For the second attraction in the Citizen's Course of Entertainments, will appear "Evangeline," on Friday evening, Nov. 29, at the town hall. This is one of the famous Kempton lectures and will be sure to please. All our people should arrange to attend this lecture, as well as the others in the course; they are all fine.

Nov. 20, Friday evening, Kempton; Evangeline; illustrated lecture.

All Made of the Right Kind of Material.

There has seldom been anything funnier than the confusion into which "practical politicians" have been thrown by the situation between President Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes of New York. There has been every endeavor to make these two out the deadliest enemies and to say that the fight for the control of the next Republican convention will be between the two. This is true far enough to be misleading. Practical politicians do not seem able to understand two men being honest and having opposing ambitions. President Roosevelt has made up his mind that he wants to control the nominating convention, not in favor of Secretary Taft, though that would be pleasant, but in the interest of the policies that he has mapped out. And these policies simply spell clean and honest government, a thing that this country has not suffered from to any extent for a good many years.

Gov. Hughes can see the nomination close enough to him to be tantalizing even to a man without any great political ambition in his makeup. It is no small thing to be President of the United States and still greater to be selected on your merits. Now Mr. Hughes as Governor of the Empire State is in a very fair position to control the destinies of the Republican party. One of the most laughable things that has been said in print recently was that Gov. Hughes "did not seem to be trying to strengthen himself politically but was devoting himself very closely to the duty of administering the office of governor." This is a truly remarkable state of affairs. Possibly Gov. Hughes has a notion that proving himself a good governor who can attend to his business will have the effect of strengthening him politically with the public. If things came to the point where Gov. Hughes got the nomination, President Roosevelt would be disappointed, on account of Secretary Taft, but so far as any personal rancor is concerned, there would be none of it.

Now a lot of conservative mollycoddles are talking because the president had a little wrestling match pulled off in the East Room of the White House. They just ought to see some of the stunts that are done at a Diplomatic Reception.

President Roosevelt said that he removed the motto "In God we trust" from the coins because people had made fun of it. Wonder if he ever thought how much additional fun would be made of it when it was removed?

Kaiser Wilhelm, speaking in London this week pointed out that he had never had a war in his entire reign. But it could be noted that there was a undertone of regret in his voice.

Mr. Harriman is rather stretching it when he insists that the constitution guarantees him the right to use a sand-bag on the other fellow if he chooses.

It will be noticed that Mr. Livermore was not disburging that advice about keeping out of Wall Street till he had made $3,000,000 at it himself.

These international marriages seldom last, but there is always enough of them while they do.

The most inexplicable thing about the panic was why it should have occurred at all.

FRANCESSTOWN.

George F. Pettee, a life long resident of this place, died Monday, Nov. 18. Mr. Pettee has been quite feeble for some time; he was the son of Abner and Polly Dean Pettee, and was born April 9, 1828. He married Miss Maggie L. Hardy of Francesstown, Feb. 14, 1861, who died May 7, 1890. Mr. Pettee has held several town positions; he represented the town in the state legislature, and for many years served on the Board of Selectmen, and also in the capacity of a teacher, he was school committee and trustee of the academy. He was a charter member of Oak Hill Grange, and when failing health prevented his attending the meetings he was greatly missed. He leaves four children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father: Walter F. Pettee of Norfolk, Neb., Mrs. George Cummings of Peterboro, Miss Mary A., a teacher in Milford, and George E. Pettee, upon whom the loss will come the hardest as for several years he has been blind and depended on his father for company in the many lonely hours. Miss Helen Parten, who has so faithfully cared for father and son for several years, has done her duty and given them the best of care. Funeral was held at the Congregational church Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. A. G. McVay officiating. The flowers were many and beautiful. Interment in the family lot in No. 3 cemetery beside his wife.

Schools closed Friday for Thanksgiving vacation.

Arthur Miller is driving team for James Woodbury while his son is away.

S. E. Bryant has been making repairs on his barn and is building a shed.

Beware of Quacks for Catarrh that Contains Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. F. J. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and taken internally, acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, 75c. One of the events of the season was the Drama Willowdale presented by the "Fire Department" on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, to a full house. The play was full of interest from beginning to end and the specialties between the acts consisting in part of wire walking by William Haywood and balancing of chairs by Charles Wood, were especially fine. The Peterboro Philharmonic Singing Orchestra furnished music for the occasion and dancing later in the evening. Many were present from adjoining towns and all report a fine time. The proceeds will be devoted to purchasing equipments for the Hancock Fire Department.

The fish and game commissioners came to town recently and carried away the deer that was found shot in a field near Levi Spaulding's, in Stoddard.

THE WHOLE system feels the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla—stomach, liver, kidneys, heart, nerves are strengthened and SUSTAINED.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle Home of Swamp-Root by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

PAIN Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least so says Dr. Shoop, and he prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation. If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure. Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense. We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend Michael J. Nevius has been nominated for mayor by the Democrats of Franklin.

The Keene Chorus club has fixed the date of its mid-winter festival for Friday afternoon and evening, Feb. 7. The principal work will be Gounod's "St Cecilia."

While driving to the railroad station in Meredith, Friday, Mrs. Edward F. Wiggin of that town, aged 52 years, was struck at the crossing by a train and killed. Her husband had left the carriage but a short time before the accident.

The Rochester Oratorio society will give a concert, Nov. 29, at which the members of the chorus will include a lyric cantata, "The Sun Worshippers" by A. Goring Thomas.

Four fatal accident cases were investigated by the state railroad commission at the office of Chairman Henry M. Putney in Manchester last week. They were: G. W. Chase, a two-year-old child, killed at Seabrook station, Aug. 31; Louis Caron, killed at Nashua, June 30; Mrs. Harriett Chaffe of Manchester, killed Aug. 9; unknown man, killed Oct. 27, near Hancock.

Confusion exists as to the winner of football championship in the New Hampshire Interscholastic Triangular league which includes eleven in Nashua, Manchester and Concord. Concord high has defeated Nashua twice and Manchester once, while Manchester high has won a game from both Nashua and Concord, and played a tie game with Nashua.

Local and Personal Mention

Alonzo George and Micajah Smith are visiting relatives in Granville, N. Y., for the holiday.

Thanksgiving Union Service at the Methodist church Thursday evening; Rev. O. E. Wendall of the Baptist church preaches the sermon.

The annual roll call and banquet of the Baptist Society on Thursday last, though a very stormy day, it was a decided success in every way and enjoyed by a large number of the church people.

The death of Mrs. Isabelle Jameason Hirsch occurred in Keene Saturday last; she was sister of N. W. C. Jameason of this town and 92 years of age. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Ester died one week ago Saturday.

TO MY FRIENDS!

This is a copy of a letter now in my hands, to which there was no signature, sent to a business man in Boston this summer. I recognize the writing and have copies of the person's writing in my possession:

"If Charles R. Jameason owes you, the only man that can collect for you is _____, an honest lawyer of _____ and the quicker you do this the better."

Twice I have been sued when I was about getting on my feet again financially, which put my back four years, by such letters, (this one was by a different party) and the parties who sued me were sorry for doing so and would not if things had not been misrepresented to them. I have been aware for some time that a certain number of persons were going out of their way to misrepresent my affairs. To these parties, I wish them to understand that I am no quitter and if I live a day of reckoning is coming (and to this party in particular and those connected with their affairs, soon) and I will not be bulldozed or seat, even if they should have a large amount of money and in high standing with the ares or ams.

A Wonderful New Invention!

The O-hi-o Combination Steam Cooker and Hot Air Oven.

By which it is possible to roast and brown meats, bake cakes, pie, bread and biscuits, in the lower compartment, while in the upper part it cooks by steam. All of this is accomplished over one burner, at the same time, and makes a wonderful saving in fuel and time. The oven part of it will cook quicker than any stove oven and throw out more heat. Potatoes will bake in 30 or 40 minutes and other food in same proportion. There has never been anything on the market like this before. The oven part is lined with heavy metal. There are three shelves in oven, adjusted to different spaces. Two shelves in steam compartment. The partition separating the two compartments is perfectly tight. Always fill cooker with warm water to get best results. This combination cooker can be used on any style stove.

Will be For Sale at Cram's Store, Antrim, for week beginning Dec. 2.

The Press and Pulpit.

We do not hold a license to preach! We never did, nor do we feel that we were ever called upon to preach—as people generally understand the term! However, there are times when it becomes our duty, altho' not always a pleasant one, but because it is our duty we do it, to remind our audience that while not a preacher in the pulpit yet we are a newspaper from the press and command a much larger congregation than any preacher for hundreds of miles around.

Not many years ago, a certain person who was pleased at times to swell up with great pride, and of himself was somewhat of a boast, made the statement that his kind of religion was the kind that kept him in the rut where it was possible to mind his own business and have little or nothing to do with his neighbor. This person went farther than to make the above statement, and in his wise (?) way gave his invaluable (to him) estimation of the human soul. As much as to say that his opinion settled the whole thing and henceforth there was no reason for anything more to be said along this line; little did he realize the truth of the story, or its moral, of the parrot and the cat: after the bird had tormented the cat by talking, and as a result had lost all her tail-feathers, she looked herself over and concluded by remarking that she talked too much!

To return to that peculiar kind of religion described above. Can anyone tell where the idea originated or if it has any great following? To be sure there are those who live in a rut; there are those who have little or nothing to do with their neighbor; there are also those who apparently mind their own business, but is all this or any of it religion? If it is then there are millions upon millions of people who have not yet been brought into the light; and the one strange thing about the whole matter is that so few seem to understand it aright! A question that naturally arises is: Are such exclamations safe ones to be followed?

After due reflection and some thought in the matter, one arrives at this conclusion: The thought conveyed by the above mentioned gentleman was certainly not the spirit of the Good Samaritan, neither was it contained in the teachings of Christ while he was here upon the earth. When we consider the teachings of Him "who spake as never man spake," and have followed with great interest the story of the Good Samaritan, the consideration of such statements as made by would-be leaders in some special line of thought sink immediately into utter insignificance.

The pocket diary issued this year by C. A. Snow & Co., Patent Attorneys of Washington, D. C., is one of the most useful and complete books of the kind we have seen. It contains besides ample space for daily memoranda and cash account, information about patents and other data of value to the business man, the mechanic and the general public. Nowhere that we know of can such a complete memorandum book be obtained for so little. Copies may be had by sending a two-cent stamp to C. A. Snow & Co., Patent Attorneys, Warde Bldg., Washington, D. C.

ANXIOUS WAGNER.

The First Performance of "Rienzi" at Dresden.

In Ludwig Frankenstein's Wagner year book Gustav Kletz tells this story in connection with the first performance of "Rienzi" at Dresden: "On the day of the first performance Wagner asked me to meet him in front of the theater after the box office had been opened, so that he could give me and my friend Schuster, the butcher, tickets for the performance. Wagner was in a state of great excitement, and when he gave me the two tickets Heine whispered to me, 'Take some one with good big hands with you. He watched the people as they came toward the theater, and every time one went in he would make some remark to his wife which showed his satisfaction. I had to go with him, but I shall never forget the childish joy of the composer when he saw groups enter the house and the disappointment when others passed the open doors. I thought of it even that evening when the enthusiasm was the greatest. How happy Wagner and his wife must have been at the following two performances, when the house was so filled that even his relatives, who had come to Dresden for that purpose, could not be admitted to the theater!"

THE DESERT SANDS.

Why the Arabs of Sahara Lose the Use of Their Eyes.

"I shall winter in the Sahara," said a traveling man. "With a caravan I shall traverse under a blinding sun and an endless plain of snow white sand, but none of my Mohammedan attendants will wear any kind of shade over his eyes. Against that dazzling glare the backs of their necks will be swathed in white linen, and even their ears will be protected. Nothing, though, will keep the sun out of their faces.

"Wondering about this, I said one day to the kaid of an Algerian village: 'Why don't you Arabs wear a cap of some sort? You live in the world's worst sun glare, but neither fez nor turban under any circumstances has a peak.'

"The Koran," the kaid answered, 'forbids all true believers to shade their eyes. Obeying the Koran implicitly, we dwellers in the desert avoid like poison briars to our headgear. In consequence there is more blindness among us than among any other people in the world.'—Los Angeles Times.

The Bone.

"Say, paw," queried little Tommy Toddlies, "what is the bone of contention?"

"The jawbone, my son," answered the old man, with a side glance at his wife.—Chicago News.

A Blunder.

Customer—I must say, waiter, this is the first time I've ever had a really tender steak here. Waiter (aghast)—Good gracious, I must have given you the proprietor's steak!—London Standard.

His Awful Threat.

Mother—Why did you not scream when Hans kissed you? Daughter—He threatened me. Mother—How? Daughter—He said if I did he'd never kiss me again.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Worry.

He—You know, if you worry about every little thing it's bound to affect your health. His Wife—Yes, I know. That's one of the things I worry about.—Town and Country.

How She Rests.

In Germantown there dwells a family of ancient lineage which for years every summer has employed a colored woman named Liza as a cook while the family was at the shore. Sons and daughters have married and migrated, reared children and added to the branches of an already luxuriant family tree. On one occasion a number of these signified a desire to assemble again under the old roof. The old lady who now is the head of the family, seeing that special help was necessary, sent for Liza to come and help cook the dinner. Liza's answer was brief and dignified. "De winter am my vacation," she said, "an' den I doan' cook for nobody. In de winter I rests, an' all I does is washin' an' ironin'."—Philadelphia Record.

A Curt Reply.

A story is told of Professor Masson when editor of Macmillan's Magazine. It refers to the days when Kingsley and Newman were engaged in their famous pamphlet war. Conscious of the excellence of an article on the subject of the controversy which he had written in the magazine, Masson ventured to bring it under the notice of Newman, but he was not prepared for the reply he received, although he afterward spoke of it with philosophic humor. Newman's laconic message was in words such as these: "I have not heard of your magazine, and your name conveys no impression to my mind."—Westminster Gazette.

Heartfelt.

Lord Carrington when governor of New South Wales made his first public appearance at the mayor's dinner at Sydney. Having committed a few words to paper, he delivered them in reply to the toast of his health and then sat down, feeling very much satisfied with himself. Opposite to him there sat an M. P. who had suffered long from the abundant eloquence of the new governor's predecessor. When Lord Carrington sat down the man filled his glass to the brim and said, "Thank the Lord, he can't speak!"

Just a Spill.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the awkward waiter, "but was that last meal on you?"

"Not all of it, garcon," replied the guest as he meekly rubbed his much spattered trousers; "only the soup."—Pittsburg Press.

Hydro-Carbonite Paint

For use on Tin, Iron, Feil, Canvas, or Shingle Roofs. Especially suitable for iron or Steel Buildings, Bridges, Machinery, Tanks, etc.

ELASTIC, INEXPENSIVE DURABLE

Stops Leaks, Prevents Rust, Checks Decay, Guaranteed for 6 years. Made in BLACK only.

This is the old original roof and iron paint placed on the market by us many years ago. It is the pioneer of roof paints, and we are the parents of the roofing paint industry in this country. Through all these years this paint has sold in greater quantities each season, despite the fact that hundreds of imitations, represented to be "just as good" have flooded the country with advertising similar to ours in an attempt to divert our trade.

For use on Roofs, Iron or Metal Buildings, or any surface where a thoroughly good paint is required, Hydro-Carbonite Paint is unequalled as time and experience and thousands of imitations prove.

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth. Note what Mrs. James Chester of 437 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women. It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

scullery maids, a kitchen maid and three housemaids in my employ there is no policeman in my kitchen? It is indeed a miracle, and our prisoner shall reap the benefit. Turner, let the man go instantly!"—London Standard.

True to Nature.

"Are you satisfied with your dentist?"

"Perfectly. He's a real artist. His false teeth are perfect jewels."

"Can't you tell the difference?"

"They are exact imitations of nature. There is even one that's so good an imitation that it aches sometimes."

—Paris Journal.

Many Sides.

"That's the way the thing was told to me, but of course there's always more than one side to a story."

"Of course. There are always as many sides to a story as there are people to blame."—Philadelphia Press.

Quits a Difference.

"What does Vernon do for a living?"

"He works in a paint shop."

"Why, I understood he was a writer for the magazines."

"Well, you asked me what he did for a living."—Bohemian.

It isn't so that woman is at the bottom of all trouble. It's money.—Manchester Union.

A Popular Play Indeed.

Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" has been translated into German nine times, into French seven, into Italian six, into modern Greek three, into Latin and Swedish twice and into Croatian, Danish, Dutch, Frisian, Polish, Roumanian, Russian, Magyar, Portuguese and Yiddish. There are seven or eight English acting editions of the tragedy. But one attempt actually to alter and improve it has ever been made. This was in 1722, when John Sheffield, duke of Buckingham, divided it into two parts at the death of Caesar, calling it "The Tragedies of Julius Caesar and Marcus Brutus," and made many other changes. To enrich this poor play, or, rather, these poor plays, Pope furnished some choruses, but they had the usual effects of ill-adjusted ornaments—they served only to make the meanness of the thing they bedecked the more conspicuous.

accepted articles, it wouldn't have been quite so bad, for," said he, "we might with some grace ask the writers for fresh copies. But how can you tell a self-respecting contributor that his manuscript has been not only rejected, but sent to a watery grave?"—J. T. Trowbridge in Atlantic.

A Domestic Breakdown.

A well known lord discovered a thief in his London house. Aided by the butler, he secured the man and then rang the bell. A servant appeared, whom the peer requested to "go into the kitchen and bring up a policeman or two." The domestic returned and said there were no policemen on the premises. "What!" exclaimed his master in incredulous tones. "Do you mean to tell me that with a cook, tw

THE GREATEST WEDDING.

Over Twenty Thousand Persons Were Married by One Ceremony.

The biggest wedding ever known to history was when Alexander the Great and over 10,000 of his soldiers took part in a wedding in the court of Darius, king of Persia, after the latter's conquest by Alexander. Twenty thousand two hundred and two persons were made husbands and wives in one ceremony.

The facts are these: After conquering King Darius, Alexander determined to wed Statira, daughter of the conquered king, and issued a decree that on that occasion 100 of his chief officers should marry 100 women from the noblest Persian and Median families. He further stipulated that 10,000 of his Greek soldiers should take to wife 10,000 Asiatic women.

For this purpose a vast pavilion was erected, the pillars being sixty feet high. One hundred gorgeous chambers adjoined this for the 100 noble bridegrooms, while for the 10,000 soldiers an outer court was inclosed. Outside of this tables were spread for the multitude.

Each pair had seats and ranged themselves in a semicircle round the royal throne. As it would have taken several weeks for the few priests to have married this vast number of couples had the ceremony been performed in the ordinary way, Alexander invented a simple way out of the difficulty. He gave his hand to Statira and kissed her, and all the remaining bridegrooms did the same to the women beside them, and thus ended the ceremony that united the greatest number of people at one time ever known.

Then occurred a five days' festival which for grandeur and magnificence never has since been equaled.

MAN AND HIS HORSE.

The Way to Show Approval That the Animal Will Appreciate.

Careless plays no small part in developing the best in any horse, but this is never to be by word of mouth. You may as well curse as bless for all your horse knows or cares. The caress of the hand addressed to the part with which the animal has just performed some feat is always appreciated—the expression shows that—and one loves to see a good man as he lends safe over a big place just reach back and give the clever horse a loving pat or two on that swelling muscular loin which has been the chief agent in negotiating the obstruction.

Do not pat neck or shoulder or any part not actively engaged in the undertaking. Caress may do no good, but it is pleasant to believe that it does, and we are quite positive that the voice simply diverts attention. The former mode of address is at least worthy of trial if only as a mark of appreciation between two gentlemen. The threatening tones appear sometimes serviceable, but this is so only when horses have been abused and associate punishment with the stern voice. The wild horse is as indifferent to the voice of affection as to that of rage.—From "Schooling the Hunter," by Frank M. Ware in Outing Magazine.

Drowned Manuscript.

James Russell Lowell, the first editor of the Atlantic, was walking across Cambridge bridge when his hat blew off and fell into the Charles with half a dozen or more manuscripts with which it was freighted and which he was returning to the Boston office. A boatman recovered the hat, but the scattered manuscripts perished in those waves of oblivion. "If they had been
