Antrim's Strip of State Highway

Two years ago this coming summer a strip of state highway was put in on our main street in the village, under the instruction of state authority, in a manner which to them seemed at the time most proper. This piece of new road cost good money; but up to about a week ago, it has been enjoyed by everyone who had the pleasure of riding over it. Hard and nice as it was, and so much appreciated, the town has decided to have an equal amount of state highway put in this year, continuing up street from where it now ends opposite Jameson block.

It was mentioned in these columns at the time the road was building that it was surprising how many there were who knew all about building roads, and since the breaking up in different places of our new road many of us (and we guess some of the higher authorities) realize that the older residents of the town come very nearly understanding the condition of things as they here exist. Underneath drainage was recommended by several and the plan did seem feasible, and it now appears as if in further road building in the village something of this kind will be a necessity. The present road will doubtless be repaired in a satisfactory manner, when the proper time comes, and we hope in a permanent way.

A gentleman from the state engineer's office in Concord was in Antrim Tuesday in consultation with the Selectmen regarding the present condition of our state highway: they went over the road, examined the bad places in the road, and gave his opinion how repairs should be made, as well as giving some information about the care of such a road.

It is with regret that our people find themselves in the present condition in regard to our state road, it being possibly a feeling of disappointment almost as much as of the great cost of the undertaking, for a town the size of Antrim. Our people want good roads, think they are the proper thing for an up-to-date town, and are not slow in going ahead along this line, but too costly experiments no town can stand. The experience gained however will prove a great benefit in road building in the future within our borders.

In Case Of Fire

Shut every faucet, as every outlet reduces the water pressure, and if any faucet or valve leaks kindly have them attended to at once.

We have a good water system here and its value as a fire protection depends largely on the way it is maintained. The matter was discussed at the recent annual Precinct Meeting and E. W. Baker and R. C. Goodell were appointed a committee to inspect the system especially in regard to the unnecessary leaks. The committee is planning to call at each place where Precinct water is used and inspect the faucets and valves as instructed.

Aurora Borealis

One of the finest displays of aurora borealis, or northern lights, ever seen here, were witnessed last Wednesday and Thursday nights, when innumerable streamers lit up the sky converging to a point in the heavens directly overhead. The whole landscape was illuminated as brightly as by a full moon and the lights shone in at the windows of houses making quite a reflection on the walls and floors. While it lasted it was a rare sight, and the oldest inhabitants have no recollections of anything just like it.

Owing to the bad condition of the highways just at this time, the old road from Mrs. Mariam French's residence to the residence of William Congreaves has been closed to travel by Road Agent Whittemore.

An exchange says that "there is not nearly as much controversy over the fall in the price of milk as there was a year ago when it was going up."

The law goes off on trout to-day, April 1st, but unless the weather changes, there won't be much use trying to catch them.

Just as the Senate was settling down to a tolerably peaceful condition, somebody woke up Senator Tillman.

All the smokeless powder and noiseless guns do not seem to bring war any nearer being a costless past time.

Grover Cleveland can at least be congratulated on showing better staying qualities than any other ex-president.

If Senator LaFollette is not to be found in his accustomed haunts just now, it is safe to assume he is around the corner somewhere preparing to further manœuvre the Aldrich bill.

General Fock and General Smirnoff shot four rounds in their duel over the surrender of Port Arthur. If that is a sample of the garrison's marksmanship no wonder the Japs got the place.

A modification of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law is one of the measures almost certain to pass. Several of the big corporations would feel safer if they were exempted from the operations of this law in more unmistakable terms than they are at present. Of course there is no thought in any quarter that they might feel free to give campaign "support," far be it from anyone to say "contributions," if such a law were on the statute books. Still they might feel that way, and there will be no harm in giving them a chance.

The submarine boat controversy seems to have narrowed down to a "Yes you did" "No I didn't" controversy between Capt. Richmond P. Hobson and ex-constructor Spear. There is no question but that the Electric Boat Company had a big lobby before Congress, and there was easy money around for anyone who was capable of earning it. Congressmen and correspondents alike. But the mere fact that they were so many suspicious circumstances and so few tangible facts developed before the investigating committee shows to what refinement the system of lobbying has been carried.

Both Congress and the President now deprecate the widespread tendency to make them out at odds with each other. Congress perhaps deprecates this more than the President. Both Congress and the President are fishing for the support of the labor unions with rods, nets and haulines. It is needed in the coming campaign, therefore it is reasonably certain that an employers' liability bill will be one of the few measures almost certain to pass out of the mass that are now dragging a snail-like way through the halls of a reluctant Congress. The President will have no need to send in a red hot message on the subject as was predicted in some quarters he would do. Congress is anxious to have the credit of passing such a measure, and it will be passed.

D-Zerta Foods Are Guaranteed

When you want something for a quick dessert whether it is Quick Pudding, Jelly Dessert, Ice Cream or Pie, insist on getting from your grocer the products of D-Zerta Food Company, Rochester, N. I. O. O. F. District Meeting.

The seventh annual meeting of the Contoocook Valley District, No. 12, was held in the Opera house, Peterboro, on Thursday evening of last week, March 26, with Peterboro Lodge, No. 15. There were present from the lodges in the district, comprising Peterboro, No. 15, Peterboro, Kearsarge, No. 23, Contoocook, Valley, No. 43, Hillsboro Bridge, Waverley, No. 59, Antrim, Crescent, No. 60, Henniker, Monadnock, No. 90, East Jaffrey, nearly 300 brothers, including several from jurisdictions outside the state.

Waverley Lodge exemplified the work of the first degree—the Degree of Friendship—with Leander Patterson as Noble Grand.

Criticisms, suggestions and remarks were offered by Grand Master Ernest E. Craig of Woodsville, Past Grand Representative Charles S. Emerson of Milford, and Deputy Grand Master C. H. Canney of Dover. It was gratifying to all and especially to members of Waverley Lodge to hear the Grand Officers speak of the unwritten and ritualistic work of this degree as having been delivered letter perfect.

Special trains were run to accommodate all in the district. Of all these lodges, the banner lodge in attendance was Waverley lodge. A grand good time was enjoyed, and District Deputy Grand Master Charles W. Thompson of Hillsboro is to be congratulated on the success of the occasion.

Shake In a Bottle

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the Kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Valley Lodge, No. 43

I. O. O. F., of Hillsboro, will have a double celebration on Thursday evening, April 9, the occasion being that they are fifty years old on that date; they will also observe at this time the anniversary of Odd Fellowship. There are several lodges that were the outgrowth of Valley Lodge, among them Waverley Lodge, and these are all invited to assist in celebrating this occasion.

There will be present several Grand Officers of the order and efforts are being made to have present Past Grand Master Pinkerton of the Sovereign Grand Lodge. A large gathering is expected and an excellent time anticipated.

ANTRIM'S EARLY HISTORY

From this time on, as we have opportunity, in this column will be given some of our town's early history, being mostly extracts from Dr. Whiton's History, covering a period between the years 1744 and 1844.

Extract Number Twenty-five OF THE REPORTER'S SPECIAL SERIES.

who was a Steele, removed to Allegany County, N. Y., and died there, 1848, aged ninety-five. Thomas, brother of Hugh and Alexander, settled in Antrim, about 1755, on the farm inherited from him by his son, the present Alexander Jameson; was known as Capt. Jameson, was an active and valuable citizen, and died, 1839, aged seventy-nine. The Jameson families, though immediately from Dunbarton, originated from Londonderry.

Those names in the preceding list, printed in small capitals, comprise the resident freeholders in the town at the date of the incorporation, 1777.

JONATHAN NESMITH, son of James, who was born before the emigration of the family to America, or as some say on the passage, and the grandson of Elder James Nesmith, an early and respectable settler of Londonderry, who emigrated 1718, from the valley of the river Bann, in the north of Ireland; settled in Antrim, 1778, having previously labored on his land a part of two or three preceding summers. He was among the most respectable citizens, was selectman, one of the first board of elders, and representative for four years. Deacon Nesmith, was eminently social and hospitable, had a great flow of spirits, and withal a sound judgement and a blameless reputation. No man enjoyed a larger share of public confidence. He was present as an elder in the church at each communion, save one, for half a century; died, 1845, aged eighty-six. His son, Capt. Thomas D. Nesmith, inherited the paternal estate, but died in the prime of life, leaving the old homestead to his son, the present Jonathan Nesmith. Another son of Dea. Nesmith, George W., is a distinguished attorney at Franklin, N. H., and was for some years President of the Northern Railroad.

JAMES NESMITH, a cousin of Dea. Jonathan N., began, 1778, the farm now owned by Chandler Boutell, and lived afterwards on the north declivity of Meeting-house Hill. He had been in the revolutionary service; was an honest useful man, an elder of the church, selectman for some years, for twenty-seven successive years town-clerk, generally chosen by a unanimous vote, even in times of high party excitement, and would have been continued longer in the office, had he not become legally disqualified by ceasing to be a freeholder. He used pleasantly to remark that the perquisites of his office about found him in tobacco. Intentions of marriage were not then, as now, posted in writing, but published orally by town clerk in the church. A multitude of such publications were made by Dea. Nesmith, in his loud and sonorous voice. He died, 1845, aged eighty-seven.

ARTHUR NESMITH came to Antrim a few years later than his brother James, and began to subdue the farm at this day owned by Jonathan Carr. The mother of the two brothers, Elizabeth Reid, sister of Gen. George Reid of Londonderry, an officer of distinction in the revolutionary war, and a frequent correspondent of Washington. Arthur was a man of good talents, amiable and unassuming in his manner; was frequently chosen selectman; was an elder in the church; led the church music more than a quarter century, by annual reelections by the town, and succeeded in preserving in the choir an almost uninterrupted harmony of feeling. To the regret of the citizens he removed to Ohio, 1816, under the impression that a milder climate would be more congenial to his health. He was the subject of deep religious impressions in early life, but association with thoughtless companions almost effaced them for a time. The remarkable northern lights in the revolutionary war, and the dark day of 1780, recalled these impressions, which happily resulted in an abiding moral energy. His cheerful and uniform piety was an ornament to the christian profession. In 1823, on his way to church on Sabbath morning, in apparent health, he fell down in the road and immediately expired, at the age of sixty-three.

It will be seen from the above, that at one time there were three Deacon Nesmiths here, who were distinguished in common parlance as Deacon Jonathan, Deacon James, and Deacon Arthur.

DANIEL MILTMORE, from Londonderry, established himself on the John Blanchard farm certainly as early as 1778; perhaps a year or two sooner. He was a man of capacity, had much influence among the early citizens, was selectman and town clerk. After some years residence, he returned to Londonderry, was well known afterwards as Col. Miltmore, and died there many years ago.

JAMES CARR, afterwards known as Deacon Carr, was the son of John, an emigrant from Ireland, 1722, who married Isabella Walker, a domestic who came to America in the family of Rev. James McGregor, and settled in Merrimac. John had a brother James, killed by the Indians at Bow, 1748, whose faithful dog, though stunned by the blow of a hatchet, revived, guarded the corpse of his master all night, and the next day would hardly allow his neighbors to remove the body. Deacon Carr came to Antrim, 1778, and began the farm now his grandson's, Reed Carr's. Though his parents resided in Goffstown, yet he was born in Litchfield, his mother happening to be there at the time on a visit. He was a kind, cheerful, good man, respected for his exemplary life; died 1834, aged 80. His sons have deceased or emigrated; only a daughter Mrs. Brackett remains here.

Two brothers of Dea. Carr settled in Antrim: David, who

How They Are "Set Off" and How They May Be Blended

There are two ways in which an explosive may be set off, by burning and by detonation. The former process is progressive from one particle to another, as of fire in a gun, and is infinitely more rapid. This process is adapted to gunpowder, requiring, as it does, a very short time for the burning up of the explosive body. The other form of explosion, the detonative, being at once throughout the mass, is unfitted for use in guns, which would be smashed to pieces, but is adapted to shattering or breaking purposes, such as blasting rocks in mining operations and bursting charges in shells, torpedoes and submarine mines. Substances of the latter sort are termed high explosives. Some examples may be given of the safety with which the most dangerous explosives may ordinarily be handled. For instance, a considerable quantity of gun cotton, such as pure cotton treated with nitric acid, may be set afire and will burn quietly, but if a sufficient mass be set afire the heat and pressure on the surface of the burning body will cause the whole to be exploded. A torpedo filled with wet compressed gun cotton will not explode if a shell from a cannon should penetrate it and burst in the mass of gun cotton. Even nitroglycerin will burn like oil in small quantities, and a stick of nitroglycerin may be set on fire without danger of harm.—St. Nicholas.

Its Refusal to Work and What Might Have Happened.

You may be interested to hear of a thing which happened to me in Brittany last summer. I had to sign some railway transfers before the nearest British consul, who was at Brest. I locked up the papers and railway stock in a Breton cupboard as high as the ceiling and very solid. I kept the key in my pocket.

When my cousin and I were ready to start, I took out the key, and it would not open its own explosion. The servants came in turn and tried in vain. We had to miles our train to Quimper, which was our first stage to Brest. Now, our village locksmith was very rough and ready, so the next morning I said I would try the key myself once more before he perhaps ruined my lock.

The key fitted perfectly, the cupboard opened easily, we got the papers, and we went. But, imagine, we found at the station placards posted up telling of the awful wreck of the Forest train the day before, and it was the train in which we should have been but for the obstinacy of the boys. We saw the carriages all fallen into the river, and the dead lay dying were in the hospital at Quimper. Avoigh this to be a preservation wrought from the next world that is so near.—Mrs. Hodgson Pratt in Light.

The most savage specimen of the grab species is found in Japan, seen ing to draw of nothing but fighting, to delight in nothing half so much. The minute he spies another of his kind he brings his claws together in rage, challenging him to the combat. Not a moment is wasted in preliminaries, but at it they go, hammer and tong. It sounds like two rocks grinding against one another. The scud flies as the warriors push each other hither and thither until at last one of them stretches himself out in the sun, tired to death. But he does not beg for mercy or attempt to run away, only feebly rubbing his claws together in defiance of the foe. That foe comes closer, and, with his claws trembling with joy at his victory, the conqueror catches hold of one claw of the vanquished crab, twists it until it comes off and bears away the palpitating limb as a trophy of his prowess. Such is a battle between warrior crabs.

Nowhere in the world has the dog such unrestricted right of way as in our most northerly possession—Alaska. In winter, when the more than 600,000 square miles of territory are sealed up in solid ice, dogs are almost the sole means of getting from place to place—in fact, they seem necessary to life itself.

The aristocrats of arctic dog life are the mail teams in the service of the United States government. They are today a superior breed to the dogs employed some half dozen years ago before great gold discoveries demanded increased mail service.—Lida Rose McCabe in St. Nicholas.

The carnaubá palm of Brazil may be said to be the world's most useful tree. Its roots make a very valuable drug, a blood purifier. Its timber will take a high polish and is in demand among cabinetmakers for the fine work. The sap becomes wine or vinegar, according to the way it is prepared, and starch and sugar are also obtained from this sap.

The fruit of the tree is a cattle food, the nut is a good coffee substitute, and the pith makes corks.

Shall We Have An "Official Society?"

The social ambitions of the wife of the mayor of Philadelphia threaten to arouse a national problem. Shall America have an official society? Shall we follow in the steps of Europe and establish municipal social circles? Mrs. Reymann says we should.

Shortly after the mayor entered upon his official duties, says the April DELINEATOR, Mrs. Reymann endeavored to secure a box for the opera. To her indignation she was refused not only a box, but even the privilege of paying for two orchestra chairs. The reasons for the snubbing were not stated, but all Philadelphia knew that they were two—first the blood of the mayor's wife is red not blue and second, she lives above Market Street.

Then Mrs. Reymann enlisted the efforts of the daily press in her behalf. Certain it is that the Philadelphia Press answered Mrs. Reymann and she went merrily on. Mrs. Reymann established "at home" days. Nobody came. Then she announced her intention of establishing an official society, composed of the municipal officers—similar to that at Washington. This proved too much for the charmed circle. They relented and invited her to act as one of the hostesses at a reception at the Academy of Fine Arts.

HOLLAND MUSTARD.

Some of the Virtues Ascribed to it and One Way to Make it.

Hollanders use enormous quantities of mustard and thrive on the condiment. There is a small spot in Overijssel, I think it is near Goor, where the land slopes gently down to the river IJssel and is a brown gray clay. This is fashioned into the cutest little jugs you ever saw, holding about a pint each, and the genuine Dutch mustard, made only in that pocket borough, according to a secret process handed down for many generations, is hermetically sealed therein. It will keep for years and is as delicious as the finest condiment. It is butter, cheese and condiment to the Hollanders who can afford it. And there is no other place on earth where that mustard can be bought.

You might ask, "Why do the Hollanders eat so much mustard?" The answer is: The Holland mustard is a most delightful stomach stimulant. "It makes the food slide down." It cures the worst cases of dyspepsia. It keeps the liver in fine shape. It is an antidote for the most deadly poison—corrosive sublimate. It is in large doses a non-nauseating emetic. It is the only condiment handed down to us by our grandfathers—the mustard plaster. The English girls use it sparingly to give a touch of color to the face, a comparison when a person is down and nearly out a drink made of pure mustard and oil will fetch him around. A mustard "stoup" is a certain cure for catarrh in the nasal cavity.

Here is one of the methods of preparing mustard for the table: Mix equal portions of black and white seed and grind them in a mortar. Roll out in the fat of a piece of butter, add some fresh horse-radish, squeeze out the juice and add to the mustard. Then put in a little salt, a little sugar, a little turmeric, a little fenugreek and a little white honey. You will eat this on your bread, cake, pie, butter-cakes, and with your meats, fish, game and poultry.—New York Press.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A "Madhouse Doctor's Experience With His Crazy Cooks."

A celebrated Scotch physician tells a story of a madhouse doctor whose presence of mind alone saved his life. "A great friend of mine was for a considerable time the medical superintendent of a lunatic asylum near Glasgow.

One night in making his customary rounds he had occasion to visit the patients in the kitchen, who were preparing the dinner. There were seven of them, all big, sturdy fellows, who were believed to be harmless. The keeper only looked in upon them now and again, feeling that his constant presence was unnecessary.

"The doctor unlocked the iron barred door of the kitchen and went in among the inmates.

"There were five large boilers containing scalding water ready for making the day's dinner for the patients.

"One of the inmates pointed at the boilers, full of hot water and laying his hand upon the doctor's shoulder, said, 'Doctor, you'll make a fine pot of broth.' And the words had no sooner been uttered than the other six madmen shouted in a voice of delight, 'Just the thing,' and, seizing the doctor, were in the very act of putting him into one of the large boilers of scalding water when the doctor had the presence of mind to say, but not a second too soon:

"'Capital broth! But it would taste better if I took my clothes off.'

"The madmen, with a yell of delight, said 'Yes,' and the doctor asked them to wait a moment while he went and took his clothes off. But as soon as he got out of the kitchen he turned the key in the door and ordered the keeper to see to the inmates lying put under restraint.

"The doctor's presence of mind saved him, it is true, from a terrible death, but he died shortly after having made the experience had destroyed his reason."

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific requirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is it fit for the post?"

Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can."

"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so. I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

"Do you believe that all things come to him who waits?"

"They may start for him, but usually some man who hustles overtakes them before they get to the man who waits."—Houston Post.

SHOPPING IN CAIRO.

Where Bargaining is the Poeture, the Poetry of Trade.

"I entered Sidi Okba's shop in Cairo," said the man with the oriental labels on his luggage, "and a handsome carpet caught my eye. 'What is the price of that?' I asked.

"That carpet is not for sale," Sidi Okba answered. "I bought it at great cost for my own decoration only. How beautiful it is! But will not mousieur partake with me of coffee and cigarettes?"

"I partook. The next morning I was in that neighborhood again, and Sidi Okba came forth and saluted me. He had changed his mind about retaining the carpet. Allah forbade selfishness among the true believers, and since I desired the thing he'd let me have it for $1,000.

"I'll give you $10," said I.

"He fell back, almost fainting; then in a weak, pained voice he offered me coffee again.

"Next day when I turned up he came down to $900, and I went up to $15, and we drank more coffee and smoked. Next day he dropped to $800, and I rose to $17.50. We were very cheerful over the coffee and tobacco that day. We had the carpet spread before us to admire. It was evident that we would strike a bargain yet, and just before I left Cairo we did strike a bargain. The carpet became mine for $50. It would have cost $250 at home. As we shook hands in farewell Sidi Okba said:

"I love a good bargainer like yourself. Bargaining is the bloom, the perfume, the poetry of trade. I adore it."

—Exchange.

Another Kind of Guest.

"Won't you please write in my guest book?" said a woman to the friends she had entertained at dinner. And she brought out the treasured volume, with its record of hospitality. The names were inscribed.

"Why, what's this?" said the modern Eve as the pages were fluttered before the book was returned to its owner. "There are lots and lots of names in the back and all in your handwriting too."

The hostess laughed. "Do you want to know what these names are?" she asked. "Well, I suppose I might make a confession. They are names of guests, all right, but of another kind. It's the list of the servants I have had since my house-keeping experiences began."—New York Press.

Apply It to Your Life.

Have you ever watched the exceedingly delicate and yet firm pressure of the hand of a skillful tuner? He will make the string produce a perfectly true note, vibrating in absolute accord with his own never changing tuning fork. The practiced hand is at one with the accurate ear, and the pressure is brought to bear with most delicate adjustment to the resistance. The tension is never relaxed, and never becomes a strain, but the patient strikes the note again and again, and the note is true and the ear is in tune, and then the muscles relax and the pressure ceases.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

SHOPPING IN CAIRO.

Where Bargaining is the Perfume, the Poetry of Trade.

"I entered Sidi Okba's shop in Cairo," said the man with the oriental labels on his luggage, "and a handsome carpet caught my eye. 'What is the price of that?' I asked."

"That carpet is not for sale," Sidi Okba answered. "I bought it at great cost for my own delectation only. How beautiful it is! But will not monsieur partake with me of coffee and cigarettes?"

"I partook. The next morning I was in that neighborhood again, and Sidi came forth and saluted me. He had changed his mind about retaining the carpet. Allah forbade selfishness among the true believers, and since I desired the thing he'd let me have it for $1,000."

"I'll give you $10," said I.

"He fell back, almost fainting; then in a weak, pained voice he offered me coffee again."

"Next day when I turned up he came down to $800, and I went up to $15, and we drank more coffee and smoked. Next day he dropped to $800, and I rose to $17.50. We were very cheerful over the coffee and tobacco that day. We had the carpet spread before us to admire. It was evident that we would strike a bargain yet, and just before I left Cairo we did strike a bargain. The carpet became mine for $50. It would have cost $250 at home. As we shook hands in farewell Sidi Okba said:

"I love a good bargainer like yourself. Bargaining is the bloom, the perfume, the poetry of trade. I adore it."

—Exchange.

Another Kind of Guest.

"Won't you please write in my guest book?" said a woman to the friends she had entertained at dinner. And she brought out the treasured volume, with its record of hospitality. The names were inscribed.

"Why, what's this?" said the modern Eve as the pages were fluttered before the book was returned to its owner. "There are lots and lots of names in the back and all in your handwriting too."

The hostess laughed. "Do you want to know what these names are?" she asked. "Well, I suppose I might make a confession. They are names of guests, all right, but of another kind. It's the list of the servants I have had since my housekeeping experiences began."—New York Press.

Apply It to Your Life.

Have you ever watched the exceedingly delicate and yet firm pressure of the hand of a skillful tuner? He will make the string produce a perfectly true note, vibrating in absolute accord with his own never changing tuning fork. The practiced hand is at one with the accurate ear, and the pressure is brought to bear with most delicate adjustment to the resistance. The tension is never exceeded, he never breaks a string, but he patiently strikes the note again and again, and the tone is true and the ear is satisfied, and then the muscles relax and the pressure ceases.

Barnum's Ready Retort.

Barnum once visited a school to lecture on "Efficiency." The noisy students would not give him a hearing. At length, in a momentary lull, he shouted, "What do you want to hear anything about?"

"We don't," was the answer in a roar.

"Well," retorted Barnum, "I've got your money, and there's no humbug about that!"

The disturbance was a sudden finish, and Barnum proceeded in peace.

FOUR GIRLS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Read What They Say.

Miss Lillian Ross, 530 East 84th Street, New York, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcame irregularities, periodic suffering, and nervous headaches, after everything else had failed to help me, and I feel it a duty to let others know of it."

Miss Marie Stoltzmann, of Laurel, Pa., writes: "I was in a run-down condition and suffered from suppression, indigestion, and poor circulation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong."

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Keokuk, Ia., writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, side ache, and established my periods, after the best local doctors had failed to help me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, fatulency, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

WHEN THE EARTH DIES

And When Our Other Planets and Our Sun Are Also Dead.

STILL THE HEAVENS BLAZE.

The Infinite Space Shall Always Be Filled With Suns and Worlds and Souls, For in Eternity There Can Be Neither Beginning Nor End.

The earth was dead. The other planets had died, one after the other. The sun was dead, but the stars were still twinkling. There shall always be suns and worlds.

In the immeasurable eternity time, which is essentially relative, is determined by the movement of each of these worlds, and in each world it is felt according to the personal sensations of their inhabitants. Each globe measures its proper period of time. The years of the earth are not those of Neptune. Neptune's year equals 104 of ours and is no longer in the absolute. There exists no proper common measure of time and eternity.

In the empty space time does not exist. There are no years, no centuries. There is a way of measuring time in a revolving globe. Without periodic movements one can have no conception of time whatsoever.

The earth existed no longer; neither did its celestial neighbor, Mars, nor beautiful Venus, nor the gigantic Jupiter, nor the strange universe of Saturn, its rings gone, nor the slow planets Uranus and Neptune, nor even the sublime sun, whose rays had for centuries made fertile the celestial countess suspended in its light.

The sun was a black globe, the planets were other black globes, and this invisible system continued to course in the starred immensity at the bosom of the cold darkness of space.

From the viewpoint of life all these worlds were dead, existed no longer. They survived their antique history as do the ruins of the dead cities of Assyria, which the archaeologist discovers in the desert and revolved dark in the invisible and unknown. Everything was covered with ice, 273 degrees below zero.

No genius, so sage, could have brought back the days of old when earth sailed through space bathed in light, its beautiful green meadows awakening with the rays of the morning sun, its rivers flowing like serpents through the green fields, its woods reverberating with the songs of the birds, its forests enveloped in majestic mystery.

Then all this happiness seemed eternal. What has become of the mornings and evenings, the flowers and the lovers, the harmonies and joys, the beauties and the dreams? All have disappeared.

The earth is dead, all the planets are dead, the sun is extinct. The solar system gone. Time itself even annihilated.

Time flows into eternity, but eternity remains, and time revives.

Before the earth existed, during a whole eternity, there were suns and worlds, humanites filled with life and activity as are we today. For millions and millions of years our earth did not exist, but the universe was no less brilliant. After our time it will be as before. Our epoch is of no importance.

The dead and cold earth carried in itself, however, an energy not lost, its movement around the sun, which energy transformed into heat would suffice to melt the whole globe, to reduce it to vapor and to begin a new history for it, which, it is true, would not last long, for if this movement around the sun should suddenly cease the earth would fall into the sun and cease to exist. It would rush toward it with ever increasing speed and would reach it in sixty-five days.

When the earth is dead, other worlds will come. There will be other humanites, other Babylonians, other Thebans, other Athenians, other Romans, other Parisians, other palaces, other temples, other glories, other loves, other lights.

And these new universes will disappear in their turn, to be followed by still others. At a certain time far away in the future eternity all the stars of the Milky Way shall rush toward one center of gravity and form an immense formidable sun, center of a system, whose enormous worlds shall become populated by beings living in a temperature which would seem red hot to us.

The infinite space shall always be filled with worlds and stars, souls and suns, and eternity shall last forever, for there can be neither beginning nor end.—Camille Flammarion.

Only Wanted a Chance.

She—I see where a fellow married a girl on his deathbed just so she could have his millions when he was gone. Could you love a girl like that? He—Sure I could love a girl like that. Where does she live?—Puck.

Discretion.

Singleton—Have you decided what you are going to call the baby, old man? Wedderton—Certainly. I am going to call him whatever my wife names him.—London Tit-Bits.

HE DIDN'T SWEAR.

But a Court Record Quoted Him as Using Strong Language.

One day during a term of court at Macon, Mo., Judge Shelton was running through a stenographic record of a trial, detected a sentence which reflected upon the piety of appellant's senior counsel, Major B. R. Dysart, an elder in the Presbyterian church.

"Major," he said, "I have just been reading this record. I was inexpressibly pained to note in it some very disrespectful language you used in the presence of the court."

A funeral solemnity would fall short of describing the appearance of Dysart's features.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"Of course you may have been excited a bit during the trial, major. I know those other fellows were worrying you like everything, but that is hardly an excuse for using cuss words. You should have waited until you got outside. It won't do."

"Does your honor mean to intimate that I swore in your presence while trying a case?" demanded the major sternly.

"I don't intimate anything, major, but you just look at that." And he handed the transcript to Dysart. There, nestled in the midst of a long argument over an objection, printed as plain as day could make it, were the words:

"It is a damned obscure injury."

It required nearly five minutes for the major to think out how it happened. Then he grabbed a pen, shoved it into the ink bottle and viciously scratched out the ribald sentence, over which he wrote:

"It is a damnurn abscure injuria," meaning a damage without an injury.—Kansas City Star.

Broke the Law.

"What got me into trouble? Failure to ignore the law."

"That seems odd."

"Not at all. I couldn't resist the temptation to give the law a swift kick."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"They say her conversational powers are immense."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, sir. They tell me that girl once talked clear through 'Parsifal.'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A PROMPT, EFFECTIVE REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF RHEUMATISM

Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble, and Rheumatic Diseases.

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. S. D. BLAND

Of Brewton, Ga., writes: "I had been a sufferer for a number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could gather from medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from '5-DROPS.' I shall prescribe it in my practice for Rheumatism and kindred diseases."

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes: "A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pain. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients and use it in my practice."

BENNINGTON

George Myhaver was in Concord Monday.

Dr. Work of Manchester is calling on friends in town.

Mrs. Trask has been visiting her daughter in Walpole of late.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Keaser visited in Boston and vicinity last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Whitney are entertaining their niece from Vermont.

George Gray of Boston was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Burnham last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow and son, Harry, are stopping for a short time at the Knight farm.

Quite a large delegation of Odd Fellows attended the District meeting at Peterboro March 26.

The auction at the residence of the late B. F. Martin was largely attended. Only the personal property was sold.

A second attempt within a few weeks to break into the store of Geo. Joslin occurred last Saturday night. It seems that the fathers of the town would be justified in spending money for night patrolman to protect property. Something should certainly be done in this direction.

Rev. Dr. Kneeland of Winchester, Mass., Secretary of the New England Sabbath Protective League, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church last Sunday morning. Owing to the inclement weather and the beastly walking, there were not many to listen to him.

Watch for posters, for the drama, "A Noble Outcast," at Antrim, April 15.

Mass next Sunday in St. Patrick's church at 9 a. m. Confessions the Saturday before at 8 p. m. The Sunday following will be Palm Sunday. The palms will be blessed and distributed on that day at the 11 o'clock Mass. The Catholic church celebrates this feast in memory of the day on which our Saviour triumphantly entered the city of Jerusalem, and when the people with palm branches in their hands came out to meet Him as their King.

In December last—the 30th day—a horse belonging to Calvin Brown of this place was taken from a shed by two men, driven through Bennington and Antrim and then left near Loveren's mills on the Holmes farm so called, where it was later found; the horse was tired out from hard driving, and the wagon somewhat demolished. Steps were at once taken to apprehend the guilty parties, but no trace of them could be found. On Friday last, one Agnus McGuinness put in appearance at Hillsboro who was suspected as one of the pair; Deputy Sheriff Dutton was notified, he went to Hillsboro, where the fellow was detained, arrested, a hearing was held, and he was put under $600 bond to appear at May term of court. Failing to furnish bond Deputy Sheriff Dutton took McGuinness to the county jail in Manchester Monday.

NORTH BRANCH

Silas Taff's brother is paying him his annual visit.

Hardin Ford has moved into the Bartow place.

We understand the Prescott (Bryer) farm is again for sale.

The remains of Mrs. Clarinda (Brackett) Little were brought here on Monday last for burial; she formerly lived in this village. She is the last (excepting Henry Brackett) of the Brackett family, once so numerous in this place. Her last years have been spent with her daughter, Mrs. Emory Russell, of Providence, R. I. She was past 88 years of age; and a woman greatly respected by her numerous friends in this part of the town.

Mr. Babb, one of the steam mill employees, has been under the doctor's care the past week.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than a alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup, bringing dread to the household. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. Foley's Honey and Tar has saved many little lives and it is the only safe preparation for children as it contains no harmful drugs.

Opening of New SPRING SUITS!

FROM New York's Foremost Designer come these Stylish Suits, selected with much care, made to our order from the newest, latest and most fashionable fabrics, with the highest grade of tailoring. There is a DISTINCTIVENESS and QUALITY to the styles we show, also an exclusiveness in most of our fine grades of suits, as we study to avoid having several suits of any particular style. This feature of our business has proved most satisfactory to our customers. We also make a specialty of having suits made to order from any of the models which we show.

IN REGARD TO PRICES—Our policy of pricing our suits is all in favor of our customers. We do not adopt the city store custom of putting on an exorbitant price for the first few weeks so that we can have a "Great Mark Down," but our First Prices are as low as the city prices after the so-called "mark-down." Then we make alterations free and guarantee a perfect fit. This is a saving of some $2 to $3 on a suit. The above and many other reasons, which we will be pleased to explain to you, we think would make it for your interest to select your suits from this first elegant showing, at prices as low as $10.98 for a handsome Tailored Suit, then you can select a better grade for $12, $15, $17 and $19, which are from $2 to $5 under city store prices.

Spring Coats for Misses and Children

Of course in a few days these garments will be in great demand, as the almanac says spring is here, and undoubtedly it will be but a few days more that a winter garment can be worn. We have the most complete and extensive line of Children's and Misses' Garments for early spring that we have ever shown. Would it not be a good idea to select now and have a coat ready for the first warm days?
