Politics and Panics

For many, many years, history has repeated itself, and in this particular instance of parties and panics it is universally known that the party in power has to "stand the cussing". This being true, and no one can conscientiously dispute it, then what difference does it make to this great country of ours who is president; will not corn grow just the same, will not the sun shine and rain fall as in times past? We don't propound these questions thinking that no one has an answer, for it matters not what question may be asked, some one will have ready a reply, be it sane or otherwise.—but at this time in the light of all that has transpired in the past, can anyone truthfully say that if this party or that is not elected, this country is going to the bow wows?

Chauncey M. Depew returned to New York Saturday last from his customary summer's stay in Europe, and reported that "English and continental experts no longer fear a financial cataclysm from Bryan success in the American presidential game. Accordingly they are as little interested in the contest this year as large sections of our own people appear to be".

Along this line, after using a clipping from Republican authority, it is certainly not out of place to quote from an out-and-out Democratic authority—the Boston Post—just to give both sides of the matter:

"Mr. Bryan's retort to Mr. Taft's alarmist cry that we must get a Republican president in order to prevent commercial depression next year is characteristic. 'How can Mr. Taft prevent panics?', he asks, 'when Mr. Roosevelt already has one on his hands?'"

Flippant humor is the only treatment of Mr. Taft's prognostications. The prosperity of the country is not in the balance with Mr. Taft's election. The absurdity of such a pretense must be obvious to Taft himself, for he is a very sensible man.

The fact is that Mr. Taft does not believe it. Were he to entertain the belief that his election alone can save the United States from commercial disaster, that would stamp him as utterly incompetent intellectually for the position".

It would have been the best thing that could have happened to Maine, apart from the prohibition question, if the democratic candidate for governor had been elected. They sorely need a new broom in the state-house up there. The existing republican regime has been in power far too long. The natural result has followed—looseness of administration and downright corruption. The inquiring stranger cannot stop a week anywhere in that state without being filled up with stories of graft and plundering on the part of state officials, game wardens and agents, and they are quite as apt to come from republicans as democrats. Everywhere one can hear the "state-house ring" referred to in terms of criticism if not abuse, and the younger generation of republicans are not the least among the critics. Democracy under such conditions becomes possessed of all the weaknesses of oligarchy—Springfield Republican.

Such a report at this day and age is to be regretted, for it must be that conditions warrant its circulation. If this be true in the Pine Tree State, from reliable reports it would seem there is trouble of a like nature in other New England states. Existing conditions prompt one to question within himself: Is there such a thing as purity of politics?

Our Presidential candidates are much hampered in their political fight by the fact that both are gentlemen and that both have lived like gentlemen. Their fight seems about as half-hearted as that of two small boys who have to pummel each other to escape a licking from the older boys.

Henry B. Quinby—The Choice of the Convention

It is our opinion with others that the nominee of the Republican state convention last Thursday is a most deserving gentleman and would greatly honor the state in the high office of chief executive; but it was not the man that so large a number of the state delegates voted against that made it necessary to take the second ballot to decide the matter. If these men were the only ones in fact that appear to have a grievance, it might be a comparatively easy matter to "fix things" with them, but to inject soothing syrup into the thousands and thousands of men within the party who have wearied of the old way of doing things and desire a change is a vastly different proposition.

It is to be hoped that certain planks in the Republican platform will amount this year to more than they did two years ago—presumably owing largely to so ponderous a body as the legislature.

The one plank that should receive immediate attention from the incoming session of the general court is the one relating to the direct primary law, than which there is nothing that will prove more beneficial to the friends of reform throughout the state. The desires of these people will have to be taken into account,—they are growing in number from year to year and are now a factor to be reckoned with, however much they may be ridiculed. One man and his ideas in this free American country is just as good as those of his neighbor so long as the principles are right and the same and they only differ in the ways of doing things. What has made so much trouble among our people in the past is the idea so many self-appointed and would-be leaders seem to possess that you must do a certain thing their way or you'll not do it at all. It is this that chills the blood of a true and free American!

Fire in Antrim Village

Just 5 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon the fire alarm was sounded and volumes of dense smoke were seen rising from the barn of Abram A. Ramsey in the heart of the village. The firemen were immediately on the scene and hard at work, and after a short and vigorous fight succeeded in mastering the flames before the barn was destroyed. The upper portion of structure was gutted by flames and much of the hay burned or ruined by the smoke and water.

Had the fire taken place in the night or when a heavy wind was prevailing, the surrounding section which is one of the principal residential portions of the town, would have been in great danger.

The N. H. Horticultural Society

The preliminary program of the 14th annual meeting of the New Hampshire Horticultural society, which holds a three days session in Milford October 20, 21 and 22, is a most interesting one and will certainly prove beneficial. Fifteen hundred premium lists have been printed and circulated. Copies of which can be secured of the president, C. C. Shaw.

A painful accident occurred on the school grounds just before the opening of afternoon session last Thursday. Two boys, Harold Stearns and Wilbur Clary, had a head-on collision, which resulted in both being knocked out for a few minutes. Stearns was "under the weather" for a few days afterwards.

Mr. Taft and Mr. Bryan

The Presidential campaign is not lacking in interest and variety. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft are having many joint debates not on the same platform as did Lincoln and Douglas but each is daily answering or parrying the thrusts of the other and the press furnishes such up-to-date reports that the whole country is as much edified as though it heard from all the candidates simultaneously. Mr. Bryan says that Mr. Taft flees from his platform and Mr. Taft retorts that Mr. Bryan is afraid of his record. When Mr. Bryan makes a point about injunctions Mr. Taft wants to know something about Mr. Bryan's plan for government ownership of the railroads. President Roosevelt flung himself into the campaign last Monday when he printed a letter in advocacy of his candidate and Secretary Root made a speech on Tuesday for forceful and persuasive logic unexcelled in American oratory. Mr. Bryan has invaded the enemy's country and if the fervor and admiration of his friends can decide the issue he will certainly be elected. The whole country is to be congratulated on the spirit and decency of the campaign. Except for the efforts of Mr. Hearst it is free of mudslinging, muck raking and Billingsgate rhetoric.

Almost everyone who knows much of public men has learned that Gov. Hughes of New York is of about as large calibre as any one man to-day in public life. Here is a sample extract from a little Sunday talk he made during the reunion week at Troy that is being copied by many newspapers:

Don't follow the man who thinks it is American to be slick. There may be many illustrations that will occur to you of cases of successful sharpness, but they are so exceptional as to prove the rule. The old way, the steady way, is the right way; put a little more in the measure than you need to give a good basketful of fruit, and don't simply have a little display on top of superficial attention and industry; give a little more work than you are asked to give, and it will show, on one hand, that you are unpurchasable, and, on the other hand, you esteem it an honor to give more than is required at your hands in every department of life's effort.

In speaking of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, an exchange has this to say:

It would have been the best possible course for Mr. Cannon to have refused a renomination to Congress this year, after the failure of his presidential candidacy, and have retired from public life. Such a step would have been a blessing to the republican party. As matters stand, Mr. Cannon's prospective speakership, combined with his notorious lack of sympathy with certain progressive policies to which Mr. Taft has pledged his support, puts him under suspicion among a large number of voters.

Dr. F. O. Webber's house on Sunset Heights has been completed by the builder, Mr. F. A. Woods, and the doctor's family have taken possession. It is a fine roomy house superbly located on the hill east of the village commanding a view of the valley and the hills and mountains beyond.

Mrs. Nellie F. Hayward is moving from Miss S. E. Brooks' cottage to a tenement in F. A. Woods' house. Miss Brooks who has recently returned from a year abroad will resume housekeeping soon.

The fountain being put in at the eastern end of the village is nearing completion. The water having been turned on. When the ornamentation is completed it will be a great attraction to the village. Dr. Webber, a constant summer resident, was the prime mover in the enterprise. Bearing the expense with him are E. K. Upton, G. W. Goodhue, H. J. Davis, Orlando Fogg and C. M. Sheldon.

Horace H. Davis of Salem, Mass., a native of this town, visited relatives here last week after an absence of 40 years. He is a brother of the late James Davis and is 91 years old. He feels that there is little danger of a lumber famine in this vicinity as to him the great change in 40 years of absence is in the great increase in the acreage of wood and lumber.

The news of the sudden death of Dr. Jacob F. Holt of Philadelphia, Pa., was received here last week by his relatives and friends. He died at his residence, on Sunday, August 30, after a short illness of heart failure. Dr. Holt was born in Greenfield, N. H., July 24, 1831. There he was educated in the common school. After graduating from Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard, he studied medicine at the University of Pennsylvania from which he received his degree of M. D. in 1859. From that time till 1866 he was a member of the faculty of the Philadelphia Polytechnic college. It was in 1867 that he was made professor of anatomy, physiology and hygiene and head professor of biology at the Boys Central high school, which he held until ill health compelled him to resign. The funeral services were held in the Central Congregational church of which Dr. Holt was a charter member. Interment was made in Westminister cemetery. Dr. Holt is survived by his widow and one daughter, Miss Lucy Holt.

A fire at the east part of the town in H. Whiting's woods was burning Saturday. Mr. Whiting does not know how it caught. As dry as it now is, fires are something to be afraid of.

Sunday, a telephone call for help to fight the forest fire at Mr. Whiting's; 250 cords of wood burning; at last account the fire was thought to be under control. At 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, bells were ringing to call for help as the fire at the Whiting farm was again raging, going north-west towards Mr. Lord's and Mr. Jones' farm houses. Hardly a man left in the village; all responded to the fire call.

A fire that might have wiped out the business part of the town was that which caught in Frank Colburn & Company's store from a fire set to burn rubbish near the store. But for Mrs. Johnson at the hotel, who saw it and gave the alarm about 2 o'clock in the morning, nothing could have saved it a few moments later. Mrs. Hanlon at the hotel and Willis Foote, just across the street from the store, were the first to get to work and did effective work in carrying water and the fire was soon under control.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

ANTRIM PHARMACY

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

State and County News

Joseph E. Langlais, aged 24, was accidentally shot and killed Sunday morning by Herbert Pelon in Brentwood.

Seated at the bedside of his wife over whose illness he had become despondent, Charles F. Manson, a railroad section employe of New Boston, aged 56, committed suicide Sunday by firing a bullet into his right temple.

Fish and Game Commissioners Wentworth and Clark went to Norwood Friday and caused the arrest of S. K. Berry and C. B. Waite of Boston on a charge of hunting without a license. They pleaded guilty before a local justice and were fined $50 and costs.

The will of Henry W. Wright was offered for probate Monday. By the will the town of Newport has received the bulk of his property, which he has left in trust to be used for a free hospital to be known as the Carrie F. Wright hospital. The homestead property is to be the site for the new hospital. It is one of the most beautiful places in the town.

At a meeting of the board of trustees in Manchester Friday of the proposed state sanatorium for consumptives, to be built at Glencliff in the town of Benton, bids were opened and contracts awarded for the construction, plumbing and heating of the building and the laying of 4000 feet of water main and building a dam for the water supply. The construction work, which will include an administration building of two stories and a basement, a main ward and a boiler room was awarded to E. J. Cross of Worcester. The heating and plumbing was awarded to Triff-Raiche of Manchester for $11,350. The building of a dam and the laying of 4000 feet of 10-inch main pipe was awarded to the Osgood Construction company of Nashua for $7000.

The annual convention of the Merrimack County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Congregational church in Franklin Thursday.

The contract for the Armory building in Concord has been awarded to the J. H. Mendell company of Manchester, at $19,473 for a drill shed 70 feet in width.

Sara E. (Field) Stowell, wife of Col. George H. Stowell, a director of the Concord and Claremont railroad, died Monday at her home on Pleasant street in Claremont, aged 74.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Martin observed Sept. 14, in Manchester, the 68th anniversary of their marriage. Mr. Martin is 95 years and his wife 85 years. Both are in good health.

William G. Broadhead, physical instructor of the Manchester Y. M. C. A., during the past 5 years, will shortly sever his connection with the institution, having accepted a similar position in New York.

George E. Wallace of Rochester must pay to his former wife, Mrs. Nellie Hoyt Wallace of that city whom he divorced 23 years ago, $6500 additional alimony unless exceptions are taken and the decision is reversed.

The two-day session of the Salisbury Baptist association closed Friday, addresses were made by Rev. W. J. Clouse, Rev. O. C. Sargent, Miss Parsons, Atlanta, Ga., Rev. W. F. Beaman of China, Rev. D. S. Jenks, Rev. J. B. Wilson and Rev. Thomas Cain.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
"Digests what you eat."

Health for the Sick Without Medicine or Drugs.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

Vigorous health for the sick, by a new Rational and Effectual Method, discovered by Dr. Hercules Sanche, scientist and physician of long practice. No medicine, electric battery, or "faith cure"; but the application of an inexorable Natural Law. No matter what disease you have, if no vital organ is irreparably destroyed, and you apply at any reasonable hour, in all probability you will be restored to health. By the use of Oxydonor, the human body is revitalized by oxygen from the air. Oxygen is a Vital Necessity. Oxygenation of the whole organism reaches and remedies all diseased conditions. Oxydonor has brought health and happiness to hundreds of sufferers with Nervous Prostration, and all Nervous Trouble, Rheumatism (Sciatic, Muscular, Inflammatory), Stomach trouble, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Bright's disease, Liver Kidney, Bladder Trouble, Bronchitis, Throat and Lung Trouble, La Grippe, Colds, Spinal Disease, Blood Poison, Dysentery, All Fevers, Diseases of Women and Children.

Rev. Joseph A. Ticknor writes the following strong endorsement after many years' successful use of Oxydonor.

Rheumatism, Tonsillitis, Grippe.
Claremont, N. H., Feb. 11, 1901.
Dr. H. Sanche & Co., New York,

Dear Sirs:—

I rejoice to have the chance given me to answer your question. Has Oxydonor given entire satisfaction? It has!

I hold it to be one of the greatest discoveries of the 19th century. For three years I have used it with ever increasing sense of its value. At the start it wrought a permanent cure of Rheumatism in my left shoulder; next of Tonsillitis in my youngest child, and it has since easily and successfully combatted whatever ills have assailed my family. Its potency in dissipating an attack of Grippe is especially to be noted.

Wishing that every family in the land might have an Oxydonor, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
Joseph A. Ticknor,
Rector of Union Church.

Seven Years Later.
47 Park Avenue, Athol, Mass., Nov. 20, '07
Dr. H. Sanche & Co., New York

Dear Sirs:—

It gives me great pleasure, after a further use of nearly seven years, to again testify to the worth of Oxydonor. Two of the instruments are kept on hand for family use. Having learned to apply Oxydonor at the first signs of serious trouble (without knowing oftentimes what such may indicate) we keep free from disease, and this is about all that there is to it now, so far as we are concerned.

Very sincerely yours,

Joseph A. Ticknor,
Minister in charge St. John's church

Oxydonor is made for Self Treatment at home. All members of the family from the youngest to the oldest can use it safely. Easily applied. Plain directions accompany each Oxydonor. Lasts a lifetime.

Nothing Equals Pe-ru-na For Serious Kidney Trouble.

MR. W. F. CLOW

Kidney Affection, Asthma.

Mr. W. F. Clow, 428 E. St. Vrain St., Colorado Springs, Col., a retired real estate man, writes:

"I am a man of over seventy years and feel that I owe my present good health entirely to Peruna. I began using it about a year ago for asthma and kidney trouble, and took several bottles. I have not felt better for years.

"Different members of my family have used it also, and have only words of praise to speak for Peruna."

Attributes Health to Pe-ru-na.

William Bailey, 58 I St., N. E., Washington, D. C., Past Col. Encampment No. 69, Union Veteran Legion, and prominently identified with many of the great labor protective associations in Chicago and New York, and Secretary of one of the largest associations in the former city, had for nearly thirty years been afflicted with kidney troubles.

Within a short period he has been persuaded to try Peruna, and his present healthy condition is attributed to his judicious use of that great remedy. He considers himself now quite cured and in excellent physical condition.

People Who Object to Liquid Medicines Should Buy Peruna Tablets

MR. JOHN N. WATKINS.

Internal Catarrh.

Mr. John N. Watkins, 3133 Shenandoah Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"Among all the greatly advertised medicines for kidney and bladder trouble there is nothing which equals Peruna. I suffered for several years with this trouble, spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicine and all to no purpose, until I took Peruna.

"One bottle did me more good than all the others put together, as they only poisoned my system. Peruna cured me. I used it for four months before a complete cure was accomplished, but am truly grateful to you. The least I can do in return is to acknowledge the merits of Peruna."

WORTH KNOWING.

To remove Pimples, Blackheads, Blisters and all forms of Skin eruptions, is, according to a well known Physician, a very easy matter; he says that many are afflicted with some one of the above ailments, and are subject to a great deal of embarrassment on account of the unsightly appearance which they present, and recommends the following simple harmless and inexpensive treatment. Go to your druggist and get this prescription filled: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces; mix, shake well and apply to the parts effected night and morning, allowing it to remain for at least ten minutes, then wipe off the powder from the skin. Use a soft cloth or sponge in applying the mixture and in from ten days to two weeks your face will be smooth and clear as a marriage bell. Get the Pure Clearola, which is only put up in one-half ounce packages. Ask to see it.

Hester Ann's Thanksgiving

"THERE, so much done!" said Aunt Kate Evans, slamming the oven door. "Hester Ann, haven't you finished those potatoes yet? I never saw such a slow child! And look at all you've wasted by your careless paring! Give me the knife!"

Hester Ann meekly surrendered the knife and stood watching her aunt as the thin brown parings slipped through the quick fingers. She wished Aunt Kate didn't work so fast—it seemed as if it would be easier to speak to her if she did not, and there was something she wanted to much.

"Aunt Kate," she said shyly. "Well?"

"Are we going to have any Thanksgiving?"

The last potato dropped into the pan of cold water with a splash, and Aunt Kate turned her handsome gray eyes on her niece.

"I'd like to know what put such nonsense as that in your head," she said. "As if I didn't have enough to do taking care of a great growing girl like you without getting up any fancy dinner! Perhaps you'd like turkey and mince pie?" she added sarcastically.

"Yes, I would."

Aunt Kate almost gasped at Hester Ann's audacity. She sat down in one of the wooden chairs and looked severely at the child.

"Hester Ann, look here," she said. "Yes," answered Hester Ann humbly. There was a sorrowful curve to the childish mouth and the big brown eyes were full of tears as she raised them obediently to her aunt's face.

"Haven't I taken good care of you these two years?"

"Yes'm."

"Haven't you always had good whole clothes and plenty to eat?"

Hester Ann looked down at the queer old fashioned green dress that reached below her shoe tops. "Yes'm," she repeated.

"Then I'd like to know what call you have to be teasing for anything more. We'll have our regular boiled dinner next Thursday, just as usual, and, now mind, I don't want to hear another word of this nonsense. Now you can go and sweep off the front steps and the walk."

Hester Ann went to the shed for the old broom and then out to the front walk. She shivered in the chilling wind as she worked. The whole world seemed very cold and desolate.

The next morning the sun shone brightly, and Hester Ann in her brown middie walked to church beside her aunt.

After church was over Aunt Kate went home, but Hester Ann stayed at Sunday school. As she slipped shyly into her place in the class the girls nodded to her good naturedly and went on with their talk. They liked Hester Ann in a way, but they could not understand her. The quiet little figure in the queer old fashioned dress might almost have been a visitor from some other world, so little had they in common with her. Hester Ann was used to this. She settled back in her corner and watched admiringly the pretty girlish faces. She noticed the way the sunlight seemed tangled in Flossie Arnold's fluffy golden hair and how pretty Jessie Benton's dark eyes and glowing cheeks looked in contrast to her crimson dress. Hester Ann could never have curly golden hair, but when she was rich she was going to have a dress like Jessie Benton's—a warm dark red, like a June rose in the sunlight. The girls were chattering about Thanksgiving. "Orsters and turkey and every kind of pie and ice cream and fruits!" exclaimed one.

"Oh, we're going to have a real old time party in the evening and roast apples and popcorn and make candy. Of course we have a big dinner—everybody does," said Jessie.

Suddenly Flossie turned to Hester Ann. "What are you going to have Thanksgiving?" she asked.

Hester Ann's face grew rosy red. Her lips trembled and then set themselves in a firm line. She was so long in answering that the girls all stopped talking and looked at her curiously.

"A boiled dinner," she said at last quietly.

"A boiled dinner," repeated Flossie in a puzzled tone. "What is that? I don't believe we ever had one. What—Oh, here comes Miss Alice! Hester Ann says she's going to have a boiled dinner Thanksgiving day. Isn't that funny? Did you ever eat one?"

Miss Alice understood at once. She put her hand lovingly on Hester Ann as she answered Flossie: "I shall never forget a boiled dinner I once ate when I was a little girl. It seemed to me I had never tasted anything so delicious."

"But Thanksgiving means a great deal more than dinner, you know, girls. I wish you would make out a list of the things you have to be thankful for and give it to me Thanksgiving morning at church. You may think there are so many things you want that there isn't much on the other side, but if you are honest you will be surprised at the result. Write both sides if you want to. I should like to see which is my most thankful girl."

After dinner Hester Ann studied the lesson for the next Sunday. Then she found a bit of pencil and piece of brown paper and began to write her list. Aunt Kate looked suspiciously at her once or twice, but asked no questions. It was 5 o'clock when Hester Ann began. At 6 her aunt called her to supper. She laid the paper and pencil carefully aside and ate her bowl of bread and milk and two molasses cookies. She washed the dishes and then went back to her paper, but it was too dark to see.

"Can't we light the lamp a little earlier tonight?" she asked timidly.

"You can wait until the usual time, Hester Ann," responded her aunt. "If I can sit in the dark, I guess you can."

The old clock counted the minutes as they slipped away, and the two silent figures sat there in the darkness. At 7 precisely Aunt Kate lighted the glass lamp and set it in the middle of the table. Hester Ann had thought of so many things that she had to write in very fine lines to get them all on the paper. The pencil was dull, too, but she did not dare ask for pen and ink.

Once or twice she looked anxiously at the clock. At 8 she had to read to Aunt Kate, and at half past she must go to bed.

That night as soon as Hester Ann had gone upstairs Aunt Kate took the paper from the mantelpiece and began to read it:

Dear Miss Alice—I am glad most of all because I can remember mamma and am named Hester, like her, and have her Bible. Then I am glad about you and Aunt Kate, you because you are so pretty and sweet and let me love you. Aunt Kate doesn't let people love her, but she has been good to take care of me two years and sends me money to the heathen than any one in the church—I heard Mr. Lovell say so. I am proud and glad about Aunt Kate.

Then I have plenty to eat and wear and have such nice times at school, and if my hair isn't pretty and curly like Flossie's I'm glad it isn't red, and I'm glad Aunt Kate's so handsome to look at and that there are so many pretty people to watch.

And I'm glad for spring and summer and parts of fall and winter and my lovely walk to church and the violet I found under the fence yesterday.

Aunt Kate laid the paper down. There was an odd sensation in her throat. She felt as if she was being smothered. Bits of the letter kept saying themselves over and over to her: "Aunt Kate does not let people love her." "She has been so good to take care of me two years." "I am proud and glad about Aunt Kate." Mechanically she turned the paper over. There was more writing:

I'm afraid I'm not your thankfullest scholar, Miss Alice. I want so many things. I want to look like other girls and not have my dresses so long or my hair in pig tails and tied with black ribbons. I want a red dress like Jessie Benton's.

But my thankful list is larger, as you said it would be, and I guess it's better for the heathen to have things than for me to have a red dress and a Thanksgiving dinner. I wish I didn't forget things and wasn't a trouble to Aunt Kate. I wish she'd call me Hester, not Hester Ann.

For a long time Aunt Kate sat with the bit of paper in her hand; then she rose, put the paper back on the mantelpiece and went around locking doors and windows, as usual.

Thanksgiving morning was clear and pleasant. Hester Ann braided her hair and tied on the black ribbons with a feeling that something good was going to happen. She ran downstairs and then stopped in surprise, for Aunt Kate was still in her morning dress and green checked apron.

"Aren't you going, Aunt Kate?" she asked, with a sudden sinking of her heart.

"No, I'll stay home and get dinner. You go long. Don't forget your paper for Miss Alice. It's on the mantelpiece. And fix your dress. It's hitched up behind."

Aunt Kate hurriedly began work on a pumpkin pie.

Hester Ann walked very soberly through the gate and down the street. She could not understand it at all; but, anyway, Aunt Kate was not cross and she would see Miss Alice—two things to be glad about.

Two hours later she came slowly up the road and closed the gate behind her. She did not feel glad or thankful just then. Every step made her rebel more against the boiled dinner. Slowly she opened the door and went into the house. Aunt Kate, with a fresh white apron over her best dress, was just placing a crisply browned turkey on the table. Hester Ann stood in the doorway, her color changing from red to white and her eyes round with amazement.

"Why, Aunt Kate," she gasped, "is the minister coming?"

"The minister? I guess it's likely he'd leave home today, don't you? No; it's only for you and me, and everything's ready, so run up and take off your things. You'll find new hair ribbons on the bureau."

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of

to conquer all female diseases. Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

MOSBY WAS THERE.

A Cavalry Regiment Found Him, but Didn't Make a Capture.

General John S. Mosby, the Confederate cavalryman, used to tell of a comic incident which happened in the Shenandoah valley in 1864. Near Mill wood a regiment of cavalry halted one night and went into camp. One of the men, who was hungry, slipped away and went off in the neighborhood to get something to eat. He rode up to a cabin on a farm in the dark and called for the person inside to come out.

A negro woman, known at that time as an intelligent contraband, opened the door and asked him what he wanted. The soldier wished to be assured of his safety before dismounting and while eating his supper, so he inquired of the woman if any one but herself was there.

She replied, "Yes; Mosby is here."

"What?" said he in a whisper. "Is Mosby here?"

"Yes," she said; "he is in the house." The soldier put spurs to his horse and dashed off to his company to carry the news. When he got there he informed the colonel that Mosby was in a house not far away. The regiment was soon mounted and went at a fast trot, thinking they had Mosby in a trap.

When they arrived at the negro woman's house the colonel ordered his men to surround it to prevent Mosby's escape, while he went in with a few to take him dead or alive.

The woman again came to the door of the cabin. The colonel inquired, "Is Mosby here?"

She innocently replied, "Yes," so he walked in.

After the colonel got inside he looked around. But the woman seemed to be all alone and utterly unconscious of having so important a person for a guest.

In a loud voice the colonel demanded, "Where is Mosby?"

"Ere he," answered the terrified negro, at the same time pointing to a candle on the floor.

The colonel looked into the candle and saw a little African picaninny at its paw.—Youth's Companion.

Bulls and gentlemen," said an orator to an audience of three, "nobody here I'll disemble the performance of this night performed, but will be a sorrow evening."

TAYLOURS AND SMYTHS.

They Were the Commonest Trades in the Thirteenth Century.

The manufacture of leather in the thirteenth century seems to have been important, showing that leather jerkins and breeches were commonly worn. We have 10 skynners, 40 barkers, 6 saddlers, 3 cordewainers, 187 souters (shoemakers) and 8 glovers. The surname feuster is a trade name denoting a maker of pack saddles.

The commonest trades are taylour and smyth, since one lived in almost every village. The taylours number 407, of whom 140 are called by the Latin name of cleator. In addition to 201 smyths, several are specialized. There are two arm-smyths, three loks-smyths, three gold-smyths, five fferours (shoeing smyths) and six marsballs (farriers).

The wryght wrought both in wood and metal. The number catalogued is 186, of whom 81 are called by the Latin name faber (French faivre), one of the few cases in which the Latin translation of a trade name has become a common surname. The wryghts' trade, like that of the smyths, was specialized. The arkwryght made the great arks or chests in which the clothes or meal were stored, and we find a plewryght, a wheelwryght, two shippewryghts, eleven cartwryghts and two glasswryghts (glaziers), who were probably concerned with the windows of churches. Glass windows in houses were rare.

The baksters are few (fifteen), suggesting that families baked their own bread. There are twenty-six butchers (flesher, bocher or carliffe), whence Labouchere, while the surname potter shows that this trade was in existence. The fysshers (forty-three) were opulent, being taxed twelve times as much as laborers.—London Notes and Queries.

Utterly Selfish.

Nellie—That Clara Sharpe is just the meanest, most utterly selfish girl I ever saw. She never thinks of any one but herself. Dora—Tell me about it. Nellie—I ran in there the other evening for a few moments, and while I was there Mr. Spooner called. It wasn't long before he requested her to play. He's passionately fond of music, you know. Well, what do you think that girl did? She asked him to come to the piano and turn the music for her, so that I couldn't talk to him.

The Old and the New.

Little Johnny's father is a physician, and his mother is a Christian Scientist. Recently the little boy was threatened with appendicitis. His sister, going into the room where Johnny was in bed, found a very indignant little boy, who made this complaint:

"Father and mother won't let me talk slang, but when I told mother how sick I was she said, 'Forget it,' and when I told father he said, 'Cut it out.'"—Judge's Library.
