Foretelling Fertility

E. T. B., Lebanon.

It would be a great advantage if we were able to determine in some manner whether an egg is fertile or sterile before being incubated, as then all those that did not contain a germ could be sold as new-laid. There have been a great many theories in regard to this matter, but they nearly all fail when put to the practical test. I was once gravely assured by an old farmer that every egg laid before mid-day was fertile, and every one after this time sterile. The theory which seems to contain a grain of common sense was that related by an old Irish woman. She stated that if the broad end of a new laid egg was held to the mouth and enclosed with the lips, and gently breathed upon, it gave back heat if it was fertile, whereas if it was infertile it remained quite cold. There seems sense in this, for where there is life there must be heat, and out of a large number she tested she was right in every one.

The Delineator For June

Summer from many points of view is reflected in the beautifully illustrated pages of The Delineator for June. "The Seven Stages to the Stage" is a feature of special interest because the writer, Louise Closser Hale, expresses her opinion concerning the responsibility of mothers who teach their children to lip verses and thus to occupy the first of the seven stages to the stage. Another article that will cause readers to think is entitled "The Useless Tragedy of the Farmer's Wife." The first instalment of Richard Le Gallienne's account of his tramp across New York State appears in this June number. "October Vagabonds" is an exquisite piece of literature that will appeal to every lover of nature. The fashion pages are, as usual, sumptuously illustrated. Mrs. Simcox gives hints in the latest modes, and the Paris letter contains much of interest to women.

The Designer for June

The Designer for June presents with its clever fiction and late fashion news a number of articles of exceptional interest. One of these is "What We Women of the World Find Out" by Mrs. Donald McLean, who has won national fame as president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Anna Sturges Duryea writes about the "New-Found Realm of the Subconscious" and describes what is being done by mental therapeutics. Charles Frederic Goss contributes a fine essay on "Missing Opportunity," and "Vacation Camps for Boys and Girls" is a timely feature. The fiction for the month includes, "Eve," a short story by Owen Oliver and "Polly of the Circus," a serial by Margaret Mayo.

All the latest fashions are reviewed. Mrs. W. Harrison Black describes "Novelties in Dress the Summer Will Bring" and Katherine Clinton discusses "The Economics of Dressmaking."

The owner of some turkey eggs at Denton, Tex., was unable to get a turkey to set on the eggs, so he secured a gobbler. To make the gobbler content the owner is feeding him on whiskey-soaked corn, keeping the gobbler so jugged that he is unable to walk off and leave the eggs.

State Trade Report

As reported to Bradstreet's the cold, rainy and unseasonable weather of the past week has held up retail trade which has been generally quiet. In the southern sections, where the buds on the trees had started, fears are expressed that the extreme cold will seriously affect the same; this is the dull season in some lines and they are quiet. Farmers have been unable to do much work the past week, as the ground has been too wet to work. The rains, however, have filled all the lakes, which had been unusually low to the limit, and have assured water for power purposes until late in the summer.

Miss Bertha Webster of Haverhill, Mass., is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. George Appleton's.

Bright Sayings of New England's Babies

Realizing that many parents are sure that their child has said "the brightest thing you ever heard," The Boston Journal has opened an interesting department in which it is printing daily some of the funny saying with which young New Englanders are amusing their little circle of relatives and friends.

Many of these are already coming to the "Bright Sayings" Editor, who will, each week, give one of the new toys—the Billy Possum—to each of the five children whose wits seemed the brightest. Here's what some of the little ones have said:

Little Miss Denely of Somerville was preparing for bed one night and when her mother asked that she make her usual prayer she declined and was put to bed without it. "Very soon afterwards" writes her mother, "she called and said that she was ready to say her prayer, and this is what she said: 'Father, Father, Father, play the hose on me.'"

Mrs. J. J. Deneby,
320 Lowell St., Somerville.

When a distant relative was making a prolonged visit Master George Stanley of 185 Bellevue street, Boston, refused one night to remember her in his prayer, but when reminded by his mama he added, "Well Lord, there's Jennie; she is a silly little thing, but I guess you had better bless her too."

"Baby" Jordan, a Roslindale 2 year-old fell out of his go-cart one day and cut his face. His grandfather asked: "Why, Baby, what happened to your face?" to which baby replied, "I dropped it."

Augustus Lee Jordan,
11 Arden St., Roslindale.

Hasn't your baby said something which made you laugh, and which you told your friends as "the best ever?" If so, send it in to the Bright Sayings' Editor, and let others know how funny the remarks of our future citizens are.

Mrs. Eliza Young

The death of Mrs. Eliza Young occurred on Wednesday evening of last week at the home of her son, Charles H. Boutelle, on High street, where she has resided for some time previous to her death and where she was very tenderly cared for in her last illness. She suffered much from cancer and from which cause she realized she must sooner or later bid adieu to dear ones. Up to about forty-eight hours of her death, when she became unconscious, she was in remarkable possession of her faculties and enjoyed much the presence of her family and friends; her last were hours of suffering, but at the very last she passed quietly away as if in a sleep. Her age was 71 years.

Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon from the Methodist church, Rev. A. M. Markey officiating. Interment was at Maplewood.

To the only son and other near relatives of the deceased extended the sympathy of all in their affliction.

HILLSBORO BRIDGE

The funeral of Charles H. Lacey occurred at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. John L. Cairns, a former pastor, now of Littleton, officiated. Appropriate selections were beautifully rendered by George Boynton and by Misses Bessie and Frances Danford. There were many beautiful floral offerings. The bearers were six shopmates. Interment in Deering cemetery. Mr. Lacey was born in Bristol, England, 50 years of age and came here from Blackington, Mass., 28 years ago, and has since been employed by the Hillsboro Woolen Mill company the greater part of the time as loomfixer. He is survived by a wife and six children, besides his father and two brothers, Arthur and Albert Lacey of Plymouth, Mass. Mr and Mrs. Arthur Lacey, Albert Lacey and the aged father, all from Plymouth, Mass., were here to attend the funeral.

Fire at North Bennington.

The house and barn belonging to James Colby, just across the town line in Bennington, were burned to the ground Wednesday night with their contents. The fire is supposed to have been caused from a defective chimney, as Mr. Colby, who lives alone, had built a fire in the kitchen stove and on returning from the barn discovered the house in flames. Help from Antrim and nearby responded. The flames quickly spread from the house to the barn and in a short time both buildings were in flames, besides most of the contents of the house, three cows, one hog, chickens and farm implements were burned. A small insurance was carried on the place.

Dustin—Fitts

The following marriage notice of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dustin of Pittsfield, this state, is reprinted from the Manchester Union of May 1. Miss Dustin has relatives in town, her family being connected with the family of Alvin Brown:

Miss Agnes Brown Dustin, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwin Dustin was united in marriage with Robert Brooks Fitts. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride Thursday evening, and took place on the birthday of the groom. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Joseph B. Lyman, pastor of the first Congregational church and the double ring service was used. The bride was attended by her two sisters, Harriet and Ruth Dustin, while the groom was attended by Fred Buffum and Ralph Jenkins. Only a few of the immediate family and invited friends witnessed the ceremony.

The interior of the house was prettily decorated for the occasion and the wedding march was played by Miss Lena Snow. A grand march, in which the bridal party and all of the guests participated, was played by Miss Madeline Hutchins. Following the wedding there was a reception, during which dainty refreshments of ice cream, cake and lemonade were served. Mr. and Mrs. Fitts were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Fitts are deservedly popular, the bride being one of this town's most accomplished young ladies, while the groom up to a short time ago was a resident of the adjoining town of Northwood. After a short wedding trip, they will make their future home in this town. Last evening the bridal couple was tendered a serenade by about a hundred of their friends, and they did the honors by passing around refreshments to the gathering.

Transfer of Business

W. C. and L. E. Carpenter have disposed of their drug business and stock to Lane & Weeks of the Antrim Pharmacy; their jewelry business and stock, together with the stationery and school supplies, to Scott & Co., who will continue it at the old stand. The new firm will probably take possession Monday next; all interested are at present taking account of stock.

W. A. N. Scott, the new proprietor, is well-known here having resided in town since last October; for several years he has been connected with the Waltham Watch Company and knows much about the jewelry business. We bespeak for him success in this new enterprise and know he will meet with a hearty reception by all our people.

Presented a Bible

The James A. Tuttle library has been presented by Miss Frances Christie Sawyer of Orange, Mass., with a copy of the bible printed in Edinburg, by Adrain Watkins in 1752 and formerly the property of Miss Sawyer's father, Deacon Tristram Sawyer, who was an Antrim man of prominence.

High School Department.

Esther Sawyer '09, substituted for a short time Friday afternoon in the intermediate room.

Principal Handy made a business trip to Rutland and Wallingford, Vt., Saturday of the past week.

The honors for graduation have been assigned to the Senior class. Miss Amie Perrett Smith has the valedictory and Henry Burr Eldredge the salutatory. Miss Smith's average for four years is 91% and Mr. Eldredge's 87.2%.

Antrim High met defeat at the hands of Hopkinton High at Con-toocook Saturday last. Only five innings were played because of the delay caused by the late arrival of the six runners from Henniker. Deacon pitched a fine game, with good support, fanning seven men from a possible fifteen. Pretty catches were made by Gibney and Crampton. The score was 5 to 4. Capt. Elliott made two of the four runs that Antrim secured, he was the star runner of the day!

The postponed Road Meet took place at Henniker last Saturday forenoon. Eighteen contestants entered for the two mile run from the High schools of Warner, Antrim and Henniker. Clarence Elliott from Antrim took the lead at the start and by his indomitable will and perseverance he succeeded in keeping that coveted position to the finish. With a mighty spurt he crossed the line and fell, well nigh exhausted but victorious, into the arms of his enthusiastic schoolmates, making the course in 12 minutes and 16 seconds. Peaslee and Kilburn of Henniker won second and third places respectively. Clary and Gibney of Antrim were respectively fourth and fifth. The mile relay was won by Warner High. The relay team from Antrim consisted of Deacon, Downes, Farrant and Elliott. Antrim and Henniker had an equal number of points for the handsome silver cup, which was offered as the trophy by the Henniker school to the school securing the most points. It has not yet been decided how the cup shall be awarded, as the tie was wholly unexpected.

The Concord Lumber Company a New Advertiser

In another column will be found a new advertisement of the Concord Lumber Company, telling of some of the several things they deal in; also their specialty, novelty siding for summer cottages. This is one of the most reliable companies in the state to deal with and their goods are first class in every respect. It will be to your advantage to correspond with this firm when in need of any article in their line. Mason C. Butterfield, until recently a resident of Antrim, is connected with this company, and it will give him great pleasure to be of service to any of his former townsmen who desire to patronize this firm.

A meeting of the directors of the Poultry Association will be held Friday evening at E. W. Baker's office.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ALONG THE BANKS OF THE Contoocook River

Mrs. T. L. Bennett, Will and L. J. Bennett, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived in Peterboro last Tuesday and are stopping for a few days in the family of Charles C. B. Quinn, 32 Pine street.

It is with regret that East Jeffrey leaves of the resignation of Superintendent of schools there the position in Norwood, Mass.

Aaron F. Stevens Post 6, G. A. R. of Peterboro are making arrangements for Memorial Day, which will take place Monday, May 31st. Rev. Edward Anderson of Quincy, Mass., colonel of the 12th Indiana Cavalry, will deliver the oration.

Frank M. Parker bought at auction recently in Hillsboro the McGreevy store and tenement property located on Depot street, paying $3000. Mr. Parker now owns the property from John B. Tasker's store to the Whittemore block at the top of mill hill.

Friday, April 30, closed up the places in Hillsboro licensed to sell intoxicants. The saloon practically closed Thursday night as its stock of goods gave out, and the store was cleared Saturday. It is the general feeling now that the town shall go dry for two years at least and give a chance to compare with the several years of license. The town has been a license town ever since the law was passed.

The two largest tax payers in Peterboro are Union Mfg Co., $1142 50; Mary Morrison, $1060 60.

Abbott H. Thayer and family, who have been spending the winter in Europe have returned to their home in Dublin.

Miss Margaret Parker has arrived at her home for the summer. A Miss Cushing of New York has secured the contract to carry the mail from the post office in Hancock to and from the station. Her term of service commenced April 26th.

The storm in Dublin of Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1, proved to be one of the worst of the winter. Ice collected on the trees and telephone wires three-fourths of an inch in diameter, doing much damage to the trees. Some of the roads were nearly impassable until cut out. It is probable that the ice has damaged the buds in some fruit trees to a greater or less degree.

Miss Lillian Wilder of East Jeffrey died on Tuesday of last week. Miss Wilder's health has been quite poor for several months but until almost the very last was able to be about, and last Wednesday attended a meeting of the Eastern Star. She was a devoted member of the Congregational church, a member of the Eastern Star and the Golden Cross. She leaves a mother, who seems doubly bereaved, as her husband died less than a year ago.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A LEPROSY TRAGEDY.

The Sacrifice of Kaomouna, the Hawaiian Beauty.

HER LIFE FOR HER MOTHER.

A Story Which Sheds a Bright Light Upon the Filial Devotion of Kanaka Women—The Reason a Baby's Advantages Were Not Returned.

The usual Honolulu crowd was down at the dock when the steamship from San Francisco pulled alongside the pier on a brilliant, balmy afternoon in January some years ago. American women in summer afternoon costumes, a few English and a few German women of society, arrayed also for steamer day, leaned back languorously in their carriages and phaetons, under the shade of parasols, listening to the lazy complimentary talk of the duck clad, lei entwined young business men who combined duty with pleasure in thus waiting for the great steamer to slip laboriously into her measured berth beside the pier.

All of the Kanaka women had bare feet. They stood about in little groups as silent as the men of their race. A few of the Kanaka women carried tiny brown babies—silent also. The young women were of varying degrees of beauty, their figures showing a uniform excellence of proportion.

One of these Kanaka women at the dock on this brilliant January afternoon was particularly beautiful. She was clad like the rest of the women of her race. She was fully five feet ten inches in height, and the white silk cord with which, unlike the other Kanaka women, she drew her white dress about her waist emphasized the splendid heroic proportions of her figure. Kaomouna seemed quite unconscious of her beauty. The young shipping clerks, hurrying to and fro on the dock with their pencils behind their ears, stopped suddenly when they caught sight of her. The women in the carriages, who had not been long down from the States or from Europe, saw Kaomouna and asked the woman of longer Honolulu residence, "Who is that glorious creature?" Kaomouna, with a very sad face, spoke only an occasional word to one of the Kanaka women.

The steamship was made fast to the pier, and the passengers began to troop over the gangplank. There was one man with his pretty young wife and three-year-old little girl. The little girl was the first to catch sight of Kaomouna as she reached the bottom of the gangway. She quickly freed her hand from her father's grasp and ran toward Kaomouna with baby words. Kaomouna smiled at the little girl, but did not offer to take her up. Instead she folded her arms, looking down at the little pink faced child pleasantly. When the mother had taken the little girl she raised her eyes to look at Kaomouna.

"Did you ever in your whole life see such a perfectly beautiful woman?" asked the young wife of her husband in a whisper when he came up. "And Tita seemed to take to her immediately. If we could only have her for a nurse for Tita!"

Kaomouna heard her. "Kaomouna would love to be that," she replied in a soft Kanaka accented speech, smiling. Then a look of pain came into her face. "But it may not be—it may not be!" And, with her hands at her eyes, Kaomouna turned suddenly and disappeared among the departing men and women of her race.

Three months later the parents of the little girl were at the dock together to witness for the first time the saddest of sights—the departure of the lepers for the island of Molokai. The Kilauea Hou, the leper steamer, was out in the stream, and the lepers were being carried out to her in barges. A litter was borne through the roped enclosure for the lepers. On it lay a very old Kanaka woman in the final stages of the disease. At the side of the litter walked Kaomouna. Her face was very sad. The parents of the little girl wondered. She spoke to an official of the Hawaiian board of health, who was busy in the task of embarking the lepers.

"Surely," they said, "she does not accompany the lepers?"

"Who—Kaomouna?" replied the health official. "Oh, yes, she does. But it is her own choice. Kaomouna, you know, has been secreting her old mother for a number of years. We always knew there was something mysterious about Kaomouna—that is, we have known it for the last five years. She had made queer visits to a palm hut far over in the Nuuanu valley. Last week we followed her. We felt there was leprosy in it. We found her mother in the hut. Kaomouna had had her in hiding, trying to save her from Molokai, ever since the disease became evident. Kaomouna is not infected in the least. She has been careful. But she elects to follow her mother to Molokai. Extraordinary? Why, not at all! You do not understand the filial devotion of Kanaka women—men, too, for that matter. Such cases are common enough."

The parents of the little girl looked at each other. There were tears in the mother's eyes.

"That is why she folded her arms and would not touch Tita!" she said. "In this world of God, civilized or uncivilized, could there be anything more noble?"

All was ready, and the Kilauea Hou, with Kaomouna and her mother on board, slowly started down the harbor, the Kanakas on the dock setting up the weird, plaintive death wail.

CANNIBAL CHICKS.

A general complaint came from all over the country last year that chicks pulled off each other's toes and literally "chewed each other up."

Some declared the cause was want of meat.

Their argument was not accepted by some whose chicks turned cannibal when fed meat daily. We lost our share with the rest, and here are our conclusions for what they are worth:

Where brooders have steps or other obstacles where chicks can tumble when there is a rush the little fellow that falls is at once pounced upon; he is dragged by the toe, blood starts, and that's his finish.

A crack in the floor or any place where a toe can catch to be mutilated is a death trap.

A wire screen with a raw edge on top or end where chicks may hang or scratch themselves is another cause. A wound on slow feathering birds or a taste of the tender quills and the cannibals begin.

The dry weather destroyed the bugs and insects in many sections last season; where this deficit was not supplied—cannibalism.

Where it was made up with adulterated, spoiled or very poor quality meat product, chick butchery again. Where meat scrap or raw meat or green bone was so placed that chicks could get it on their feet, mobbed and murdered again. Where chicks were mutilated with a foot punch, ditto. Our chicks did the bloody murder stunt mostly on days when calf plucks were fed, and the trouble was confined to the White Leghorns.

FEATHERS AND EGG SHELLS.

Those Rip Van Winkles who still light their way with lard lamps and tallow dips and boast of the superiority of the age of hoop skirts and cowhide boots should view a 50,000 egg incubator hatch by electricity and be treated to an American bred, celery fed, fat green duck. That would finish their foolish fossil cry. "Incubators are no good."

One argument in favor of thoroughbred poultry on the farm is uniformity of color and sizes. Many hucksters in Pennsylvania are offering several cents more for fowls of uniform appearance. Birds of all colors and sizes do not sell so well.

The combination incubator and brooder is an impracticable affair. The brooding part is generally over the incubating apparatus. It is always better to do one thing well than to bungle both.

The baggage smashers of Pennsylvania have been very anxious to see the law pass requiring storage eggs to be labeled. Have you ever seen them throw a crate of eggs across a car? Not much. Too dangerous. Explode. Storage eggs should be classed with dynamite and hauled on a freight car marked "High Explosives."

If the old cluck samples that prepared chick feed she is only doing what you should have done before buying. She is particular about the feed her babies eat if your are not. Throw down some musty feed and watch her reject it. Don't be too "easy" in buying—that testimonial may be lying—unless you want your chicks to be dying.

If you haven't the cash to buy trap nests you may very easily catch the noulayers by this simple plan: Drive the hens into a coop beside an empty one. As the hens go on the nest simply catch them and put them in the vacant pen. Three days and you have them sorted with only a small expenditure of time.

Wild setting hens that fly off the nests like firecrackers and crack their eggs or cluckers that get the "high strikes," trample and mistreat their chicks, fly into the hair and scratch the spinal column of their owner aren't conducive to success or religious advancement.

It is natural for a cock bird to protect his harem. You may expect him to spur you when catching his hens or passing through his pen. Now, don't be a mule and kick him and don't let your helper "lick 'im."

There are many who do not count the cost of a rooster fight. Of course we don't refer to a main nor to that fine that caused a pain, but to a bout when birds get out. It mutilates a show specimen, weakens a breeder and often brings blindness, brain fever and death.

We read of the interment of a seventeen-year-old hen at Wesson, Miss. She was buried in a rosewood casket, which a hundred women and girls followed to the grave, where her life's record of 3,650 eggs was read.

Reports received at the Navy Department from officers who had charge of provisions on the Atlantic fleet during the circumnavigating cruise, express satisfaction with the dehydrated vegetables issued to the vessels by way of experiment during the long voyage. It was found that this class of preserved food will be acceptable under circumstances when it is not possible to obtain fresh vegetables. The dehydrated preparations were not intended as substitutes for fresh products, but it was desired to know whether in an emergency, when fresh vegetables are not obtainable, it would be possible to have a palatable article which would serve the purpose of the lacking provisions.

That the business conditions are improving and that the government's income is being benefited thereby is shown by the Treasury's report for April. During the month there was a gain in receipts over receipts for April 1908, of $8,100,000, practically all of it in customs collections. The Treasury's expenditures for April were $4,840,000 less than the expenditures for April 1908; so that, instead of facing a deficit for the month, of $1,597,000, as it did last year, the Treasury's net loss this year was only $2,974,000. In spite of April's good showing, however, this year's net deficit is larger than last year.

The promotion of William Woodville Rockhill, at present Minister to China, to the Ambassadorship to Russia, is a most happy one. The post at St. Petersburg is recognized as one of the most important in the diplomatic service because of the great part which the Russian government has played, and doubtless will continue to play, in the evolution and development of the far East. Mr. Rockhill is a close student of Far Eastern affairs and has gained his knowledge of conditions in those countries at first hand. He will be an invaluable representative for the United States at the Russian court.

REV. ROUTMAN SENDS BEST WISHES FOR PE-RU-NA

Rev. George A. E. Troutman, Mt. Washington, Mo., writes,

"My Wife and I Are Strong Believers in Pe-ru-na."

Catarrh and La Grippe.
Rev. Geo. A. E. Troutman, Mt. Washington, Mo., writes: "My wife and I are strong believers in Peruna."

REV. GEORGE A. E. TROUTMAN

I was cured of a bad case of catarrh when nothing else that I tried had any effect. My wife was cured from a severe case of la grippe, and we feel that the least we can do is to gratefully acknowledge the merit of Peruna.

"My wife joins me in sending best wishes for your success."

Throat Trouble.
Rev. H. W. Tate, 920 Lincoln Avenue, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "For several years I have been troubled with a peculiar spasmodic affection of the throat. It would seize me suddenly and for a few minutes I would be unable to speak audibly, and my breath would be greatly interfered with. I would be obliged to gasp for breath. "I finally concluded that it was some catarrhal affection which probably excited the spasm. It interfered with my vocation as a preacher, attacking me occasionally in the pulpit. "I had heard so much about Peruna as a catarrh remedy that I determined to try it. After taking two bottles, my trouble has disappeared. I feel sure that Peruna has greatly benefited me." Rev. P. E. Swanstrom, Swedish Baptist Pastor, Box 228, Grantsburg, Wis., writes that from the use of Peruna he is perfectly well, entirely cured of chronic diarrhea and catarrh.

Peruna in Tablet Form.
For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form; and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna Tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Poultry Secrets Disclosed!

THERE are secrets in the poultry business, as in any other; the best methods and newest discoveries seldom reach the amateur poultry raiser and the general public for years after they are originated. A new method of absolutely insuring the fertility of setting eggs, for example, has

and its discoverer is not to be blamed for keeping it to himself. Now, for the first time, the secrets of many of the most successful poultrymen are made public. No confidential trade secrets; every secret has been

Obtained in an Honorable Way

(1) by outright purchase; (2) by free permission given the author, Michael K. Boyer, by the collectors, reliable, but little known methods; (3) by Mr. Boyer's own experience covering 22 busy years. Since this book was first published four or five months ago, it has been necessary to print eight editions, and many new and valuable secrets have been added to the original book.

Is this cock properly held? "Poultry Secrets" tells you how to carry fowls, and scores of secrets far more important and hitherto unrecorded.

A Few of the More Important Secrets

Boyer's new system for insuring fertility of setting eggs.

Wood's ingenious method for saving the weak incubator chicks.

J. K. Felch's System of In-breeding without the least loss of vitality.

Selecting the laying hens—the central thought of the so-called Hogan, Potter and Palmer Systems.

The Philo System, a brief outline telling what it is and for what it is valuable.

Several new food formulas, many of them the same as expensive "patented" foods.

The "15-cents-a-bushel" method of producing green feed.

Greiner's Corn Feeding System; and other new rules for feeding corn and grain.

Truslow's Secret of obtaining high market prices for poultry stock.

The Angell method, admirably adapted to the small flock in village or suburb.

Grundy's method of obtaining bulky food at a cost of 8 cents a bushel.

Dr. Wood's Secret of Laying Food for producing eggs.

Professor Rice's Fat Hen Secret explaining why lean hens don't lay.

AND MANY OTHERS, NOT ENUMERATED HERE

It would be absurd to expect every bit of this information to be unknown to everyone; we make no such claim. But to the great majority of poultrymen it will be absolutely new, and of great value.

ABOUT FARM JOURNAL—Farm Journal has for thirty years made a specialty of poultry; this department is fully edited and more valuable than many specialized poultry papers. This is only one section, however, of a remarkable magazine—monthly with 600,000 subscribers. NOT a dry, technical farm paper, badly printed on cheap paper, full of medical and trashy advertisements, but a magazine for the home—town, village or country; well printed and illustrated, clean, clear, quaint, and always cheerful; intensely practical; equally at home on a thousand acre farm or on a suburban back garden; and in a clean way UNLIKE ANY OTHER PAPER.

Said the big brown hen to the little yellow chick: "You need Pratts. Regulator to grow big quick."

Chickens know what makes them grow—

Pratts Poultry Regulator

(For 24 years called Pratts Poultry Food)

helps them digest and get full benefit from their food. That's why it makes hens lay regularly. Often the quantity of eggs from a flock of hens is doubled by using Pratts Poultry Regulator. Why not see what it will do for your poultry? Costs less than 1c. a month per hen.

Pratts Roup Cure will quickly restore a "roupy" bird to health. Other so-called "roup cures" may cure mere colds, but you need Pratts to cure a genuine case of roup. Sold in 25c and 50c packages.

Pratts Lice Killer (Powdered Form) will promptly rid poultry and houses of lice. Safe and easy to use and most economical. 25c and 50c a package. Try Pratts Lice Killer on little chicks.

There's a Pratts Remedy for every animal and poultry ailment—remember that—all reliable guaranteed preparations ready to use. Full directions with every package. Ask about them.

We have just received a new line of the above named goods.

The Return Of Gypsy.

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

In the amethystine haze of an April morning on the Arizona foothills the cowboys of Circle II wheeled their bronchos into the gray dust of the trail.

There was a wild jangle of spurs, a clatter of restive hoofs, and they were off like one of the brown whirlwinds of their own desert to meet Gypsy and "the boss," who were coming to the ranch to spend a week.

They had derisively hurled "Arlos, Layne!" at the bronzed young foreman as he leaned against the corral gate. They could not understand why he had persistently refused to join their reception committee.

It really was not the coming of Herington, "the boss," that was calling forth the unusual demonstration, but the return of Gypsy, their little comrade of the range, whom they had not seen for four years. It never entered their simple heads that two years of school in France, followed by two more of travel and society, might have changed their merry, fun loving little pet.

She was coming back as she had promised—that was the dominant consideration—and off they went, whooping.

Ned Layne, however, knew differently. He had seen her a year ago, and the knowledge had come to him then. She was a young lady, and they—and he—were only cowboys. As he leaned against the gate he thought of the old days. He remembered her eyes and voice on the evening before she departed into the world, and he remembered how she had said to him:

"Goodby, Ned. Father is going to give you the place of foreman. Make the most of your opportunities and buy out the Bar T. Don't forget me, Ned," and her eyes had been moist when she suddenly dropped them.

"I'll never forget you, Gypsy," he had promised stoutly, pressing the hand that fluttered in his.

"When I come home to the ranch I want you to be here to meet me," she added.

"I'll be sure to meet you," he returned. Then the train had borne her away to the new life, so different from that among the boys on her father's ranch.

Ned Layne and Gypsy Herington had been great comrades in those care free days, and if now he was the only one not riding out to meet her it was because he felt that those old days were gone forever and would best be forgotten. There should be nothing on his part to remind her of old promises and old thoughts that could have no place in her life any more.

Just a year ago Layne had seen her once at a great hotel in New York, where the wealthy ranchman and his daughter were stopping. He had gone all the way to the far eastern city for no other purpose than to see her, but the result had been a sadly discouraging one, and he had said farewell to his dreams. Gypsy, dressed in a bewildering gown and moving with bewildering ease and elegance among the elegant throng that oppressed the ranchman, was on her way to the opera under escort of an immaculately clad young Englishman possessed of a big title, and Layne was left to be entertained by her father.

She had asked him to come back and breakfast with them, but her changed bearing and the cool treatment accorded to him by the condescending nobleman had nettled Layne. He took the very next train back to the land of sunshine, where people were not proud and stuck up and did not forget old friends.

On his return the cowboys of Circle II had besieged him eagerly for news of their little chum of the ranch.

"Yes, I saw her," he answered, veiling the bitterness in his heart, "and she's a great belle in her society togs. She has a beau, Lord Percy Ellington, one of those plug hatted chaps, and she seems to like his attentions all right. The boss says he followed them back from Europe."

Having imparted this information to the news hungry men, Ned had gone off by himself under the starlight and finally abandoned all his old plans and hopes.

Ever since that night the young man had been formulating a plan for his future which he kept strictly to himself, resolved to execute the first step toward it when the owner of the ranch returned to his own again. Accordingly he mounted Muggins, his own pony, and rode rapidly away across the brown mesa before the party could arrive.

From an eminence his well trained eyes caught the blur of rising dust far up the trail. Nearer approach enabled him to recognize the ranch buckboard driven by Bob Cat Nick. Seated by the driver was the trim figure of Gypsy, while the stout form of Herington and a slender man wearing a derby occupied the back seat. Trailing behind or galloping proudly on either side of the vehicle rode the adoring cowboys, chatting merrily with their old friend.

At sight of the derby hat a frown crossed Ned's face, and, putting spur to the unoffending Muggins, the disgruntled young horseman rode off down the gulch.

"Ellington along!" he exclaimed. "Yet what right have I to be surprised or care for that? No doubt Herington wants to show his prospective son-in-law what a fine ranch he has for his daughter."

When he had reached the live oak thicket quite a distance away he let Muggins rest. Throwing himself upon the ground, he surrendered his mind to a train of miserable thoughts.

He had lain there a long time, when suddenly he was aroused from his bitter reflections by the clatter of hoofs pushing back his sombrero from his eyes, he looked up into the smiling face of Gypsy, seated upon Slap Dash her favorite pony.

"And this is the way you keep your promise?" she said reproachfully.

He scrambled to his feet and, throwing one arm across the saddle on his pony's back, leaned there till he could summon self mastery.

"What do you care, Gypsy?" he finally interrogated, his eyes stubbornly refusing to meet hers.

Some of the brightness left the girl's face as she noted the misery on his.

"Tell me what it all means, Ned," she begged. "Why are you not yourself? Why do I find you so changed?"

"Changed? Heavens!" and he could not forbear a gesture of impatience.

"You!"

"Here," she interrupted in the scolding tone of her privileged girlhood. "We come all the way from New York to pay you a visit at Circle II, arrive and find this on the table," and she held up a letter. "What do you mean by resigning? Why do you want to leave father's ranch? He is wild over it and sent me to find you."

"I should think Ellington might object to your riding after me," he remarked, his bronze cheeks reddening with scorn.

"Ellington?" Then a light broke over her face. "That funny lord? Why, Lord Percy is in England long ago. Finding me too loyal an American to buy a foreign title, he ended the long siege and departed."

"Who came with you and your father, then?" he inquired.

"Oh, that was Cousin Cyril, who is just out of college and needs the tonic of our mountain ozone."

Slipping lightly from the back of Slap Dash, she came over to Ned and in her old way put both hands on his strong young shoulder.

"Now, Ned," she said, "you won't leave Circle II, will you? Father needs you."

"Why did you treat me as you did in New York?" he moodily demanded, evading the question.

"Before a stranger—and Lord Percy at that?" asked she, laughing roguishly. "If, sir, you had come to breakfast next morning, I—I might have treated you otherwise."

He turned, facing her squarely. With one of his strong hands he imprisoned both of hers and held them against his breast.

"What would you have done if—if I had come?" he said breathlessly.

Her lovely face went very crimson under the searchlight of his eyes, but she answered bravely. "Ned, I'd have kissed you right out."

The foothills looked natural again. The sun shone with its old time glint and shimmer upon the gray desert sand. He had no longer the feverish desire to get away to fresh scenes.

"I'll stay at Circle II always, Gypsy, since you wish it," and, taking his written resignation from her, he tore it into fragments. "Say, sweetheart," he added, putting an arm tenderly round her waist, "I'll buy out Bar T tomorrow, and we'll run both ranches together."

Selfishness.

Jones worked so hard and denied himself so much in order to pay his life insurance that he had neither the time nor the means to be sick, and he outlived all the beneficiaries, who were meanwhile engaged in the relatively unhealthy business of lying back and waiting for him to die. Moreover, in thinking of the matter he became convinced that he had a good deal of fun, after all—more fun, indeed, than most. "I'm a terribly selfish fellow," exclaimed Jones guiltily.—Puck.

Politely Bounced.

A good example of the extremely courteous in public correspondence was the notice sent to Charles James Fox that he was no longer a member of the government of George III. It read thus: "His gracious majesty has been pleased to issue a new commission in which your name does not appear."

To cast away a good friend is like casting away one's life.—Aristotle.

Oddity of Dreams.

"Nobody ever feels pain in a dream," said a psychologist. "Rage, terror, joy, grief—these emotions stab us as poignantly in dream as in reality. But physical pain, no. I have interrogated 2,000 persons, and none of them ever suffered dream pains. Yet they have dreamed of dreadful motor accidents, tortures, death. One young girl, indeed, dreamed time and again of being eaten alive by cannibals, yet even in that horrible nightmare she felt no pain."

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial. This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial. Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

In the Rose Garden.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

Copyrighted, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.

It was on the third night of the new moon that Beverly Alden, musing on his sermon in the darkness of his study, beheld from the window something white moving in his garden.

As the Rev. Beverly's garden was a vegetable garden, he thought fearfully of something sinfully trampling on his succulent salads—and he rose hastily. Standing just behind the window shutter, he decided, however, that a horse would be shorter, a dog taller, and he did not believe in ghosts.

He went into the hall, took his hat from the rack and stepped softly over the threshold.

As his footsteps sounded on the gravel of the path the white object moved from the middle of the garden and fled. He heard the click of the gate and then silence.

"Hum!" mused the Rev. Beverly and bent over his lettuce bed. "A thief," he said as he straightened up.

The next morning a fuller investigation showed that there had been depredations of onions and radishes. But the minister said nothing to his housekeeper. Common thieves did not come garbed in white, nor were they of slender outline and graceful.

The Rev. Beverly had no unusual powers of penetration, but it had not taken him many moments to decide that the speller of his garden was a woman.

"But why"—he debated the next night as he finished his sermon—"why should a woman steal—a lady, I am sure, by the grace of her carriage—why should she steal my little onions and my lettuce?"

But all the wisdom of the Scriptures did not answer his question. And after his sermon was finished he again turned out his light and sat in the darkness of his study.

And again, as he mused, he saw a patch of white at the end of the garden. Breathless he watched, and closer and closer came the ghostly figure until it stood just beneath his window.

Then a voice said, "I have come to pay you for the vegetables."

"Oh!" His usual readiness of speech had forsaken the clergyman. "Oh, I beg your pardon!"

"No, you needn't beg it," the voice said again. "I picked some lettuce and things last night, and here is the money. It wasn't a very conventional way to go to market, but we wanted a salad, and"—

The Rev. Beverly, peering over the sill, caught the sparkle in her eyes as she made her half apology.

"You needed your salad late," he said dryly.

"Ah"—her little laugh rippled out—"think of my predicament! Some people came from the city hungry, and there was nothing in the house but eggs. You see, I am such a new housekeeper—we came only yesterday—and Susanne, my maid, forgets to tell me when things are out, and the shops are so far away—so, while she made an omelet I flew into your garden—and— and flew back and no one was the wiser."

"I saw you," the Rev. Beverly informed her, "and I thought you were a thief."

"Oh!" There was a little gasp. "It did look like it, didn't it? But, you see, I have brought the money." And the silver glittered on the sill as she spread it out before him.

"No," the Rev. Beverly protested; "you are perfectly welcome to anything you care to take."

"Oh, but you must"—there was a note of alarm in her voice—"because I should feel as if I had stolen if I am not allowed to pay."

He was smiling down at her. "You can pay me by giving me a rose from your garden," he said.

"Why don't you have roses of your own?" she demanded.

He sighed. "I hardly dare allow myself the luxury. It is cheaper to raise one's vegetables than to buy them, and a clergyman in a small town has to think of expenses."

"I suppose," doubtfully, "that your salary is not large?"

"No, but there are donations." His eyes twinkled.

"Such as roses?" She was laughing up at him. The moonlight touched her hair with gold. The pulses of the Rev. Beverly began to beat.

"May I come over some time and walk with you in your rose garden?" he asked.

"Come now," was the quick response.

He went, and it was the beginning of friendship.

"He is lovely," Constance confided to her aunt, who had come up to her niece's colonial mansion for the purposes of chaperonage. "And he's here in this little town because he feels that he is needed more than in a city charge where he could get much more money."

"Constance," her aunt warned, "don't get romantic over a country parson."

"He has the dearest little cottage," Constance mused, "with a vegetable garden. He sends over tomatoes and parsley, and I put roses in his button-hole. It's very interesting," she sighed. "It may be tragic for him."

"Why?"

"If you make him love you—what then?"

"Well?" Constance's tone was defiant. "You can't marry any one but Warren Olmstead."

"Constance's eyes flashed. "I can't! If I don't marry Warren, I merely lose my inheritance. I don't deny that I love this old house, Aunt Anne. But did it ever occur to you that I might prefer a man to a fortune?"

"You would miss the fortune," was the quiet answer. "You were not made for love in a cottage, Constance."

But Constance was down the path. She bent over a pink rose bush and plucked a bud just as the Rev. Beverly Alden came in.

"Roses red and violets blue," she quoted. "Can you tell me the rest of it?"

"If you love me as I love you." He hesitated. "You mustn't make me say such things."

"Why not?"

"Because I have nothing to offer you but a cottage and a vegetable garden." He was looking down at her with somber eyes.

"And if I don't marry one Warren Olmstead," she informed him, "I lose my fortune. And I won't marry him, so I am really homeless—and—please, I'd like to come and live in your cottage."

Aunt Anne's chagrin over the engagement found an outlet in a letter to Warren Olmstead. "Come up and rescue Constance from her country parson," was the theme.

But when Warren's answer came it was a revelation.

"Of all things!" Aunt Anne ejaculated when she had read it.

"What's the matter?" Constance asked.

"Read that," said Aunt Anne tragically.

It was a brief epistle, but it was very extraordinary, no doubt, for Constance danced with joy and waved the letter, crying "Hurrah!"

"Of all things!" Aunt Anne ejaculated again.

Constance caught her breath quickly. "You mustn't tell Beverly," she said.

"Why not?"

"He won't marry," Constance said mysteriously. "If he knows it."

So they were married quietly and went to live in the cottage, and Aunt Anne went home, and the big colonial house was closed, and the winter came, and the roses were wrapped in winding sheets of straw.

"You will miss the rose garden next summer," said the parson as he and his wife walked up the snowy path. "I wonder who will live here then?"

"The new tenants," said Constance, who, wrapped in a big red cloak, was leaning on her husband's arm. "Are lively. There will be a young clergyman, a very handsome young clergyman, and a very, very loving little wife, Beverly."

"Constance!" He bent down over her.

"The house is mine, Warren, wrote to say that he loved some one else. He married first and forfeited his right, and I didn't want to tell you because you hated to have me rich. But don't you think it will be nice—for Beverly junior to—to play in the rose garden, dearest?"

Soliloquy of the Engagement Ring.

I am considered a brilliant success in literature, though many people accuse me of plagiarism, the popular criticism of my work being "that old, old story."

It is a pity I am so bright, however, considering the conversations I have to listen to every evening. Last night he remarked sixty-five times, "I love you so, dear," and sixty-five times she replied, "Do you, dear?"

He tells them all "I love you as man never loved before." Isn't he clever to find so many new ways of doing something so old?

Personally I can see no difference in his methods myself.

They held on to me with both hands last evening, but I insisted upon cutting them.

The man and I can always get around a pretty girl.

The man owes all his happiness to me. Only through my influence is he able to hold her hands in his and taste the sweetness of her lips, yet already has he forgotten me in his longing for a wedding ring.

Men are so ungrateful, but I will bide my time. Methinks I will soon be avenged.

I am the "best seller" on the market. —Puck.

The hours we pass with happy prospects in view are more pleasing than those crowned with fruition.—Goldsmith.

The executive committee of the State Baptist convention has been making arrangements for the anniversary meetings in the Pleasant street church Concord, on Oct. 4, 5 and 6.

Stratham is the first among New Hampshire towns in arranging for its Old Home day. The town at its annual meeting voted $100 to be used for the observance, to which will be added $60 in the Old Home association treasury.

After a shutdown of three months the Cobeco woolen mills of East Rochester resumed operations under a new management. The former superintendent, W. H. Bagley, has been succeeded by Steven C. Meader, who is also agent of the Gothic mills there, which are controlled by the same company.

Louis Wood, aged 10, of Claremont, who was accidentally shot by his playmate, George Dumas, a few weeks ago, has recovered sufficiently to be taken to the Cottage hospital, where his left eye was removed Friday.

The repairs on the Nashua supreme court room authorized by the last legislature will be for improving the acoustic properties of the room in accordance with a report made by Prof. Wallace C. Sabine of the Jefferson school, Harvard University, filed with Chief Justice Parsons some time ago. It is probable that the work will be done during the summer recess.

After a careful consideration of the various sites suggested for the location of the new jail in Manchester, the county commissioners have reached the conclusion that the best interests of all concerned will be served by erecting the new building on the same lot occupied by the present jail. Originally this land was given to the county by the Amoskeag corporation with the understanding that it was not to be used for any other purpose than a jail site, and if it ceased to be such, the land would revert to the company. There seemed to be some objection to each of the other sites which had been considered, but no one came forward to find fault with the Valley street location. Hence the building will be erected there. It will be just south of the old structure, and work will be commenced breaking ground in the near future. It is now confidently expected that the new jail will be ready for occupancy within a year.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Hillsborough.

Your petitioner, George S. Wheeler of Antrim in said County, administrator of the estate of Elizabeth A. Wheeler late of said Antrim, deceased, respectfully represents that the personal estate of said deceased is not sufficient to pay the demands against the same; that the said deceased at the time of her death was seized of certain real estate situate in said Antrim containing about one hundred acres, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the northwest corner of the premises on land of Lizzie A. Hills and A. A. Ramsey; thence southerly, crossing the highway by said Ramsey's land and land of William Manning to land of David K. Goodell; thence easterly on said Goodell's land to a large rock near the brook thence southerly on said Goodell's land to land of Nathan C. Jameson; thence easterly in said Jameson's land to the southeast corner of the premises on land of Charles E. Jameson; thence northerly on said Charles E. Jameson and Frank Frary on said highway; thence westerly by said highway to a point opposite Morris Burnham's west line; thence northerly across said highway and on Morris Burnham's west line to the northeast corner of the premises on land formerly of Alvah Dodge; thence westerly by said Dodge land and land of Lizzie A. Hills to the bounds first mentioned, reserving all land used for a highway. Being the premises formerly owned and occupied by said Thomas H. Wheeler late of Antrim, deceased and that the same be more than sufficient for the demands, but it is so situated that a part cannot be sold without injury to the persons interested therein: Wherefore he prays that he may have license to sell at public auction, or private sale, the whole of said real estate agreeably to the laws of said State.

Dated the 17th day of April A. D., 1909.
GEORGE S. WHEELER, Adm'r.
