CAMP LIFE

As Enjoyed On The Southwest Shore Of Gregg Pond

Two weeks ago, in these columns, we made mention of the "Thayer Reservation" on the east shore of Gregg pond. On this side of the pond mention might also be made of "The Ladies," or the Robinson cottage; "Stillbelle," the summer home of Stillman H. Baker, Esq., of Hillsboro; "Peterwagh," the property of Charles R. Jameson. At all these places much comfort is taken during the heated term, the breezes and shade being just as desired. Mr. Baker will soon erect a cottage on the hill across the road from Stillbelle, outlook from which will be grand. It is probable other cottages will be erected in the not far distant future, as some good shore lots are available both on the property of Mr. Baker and Mr. Jameson.

But the intent of this article is to present to our readers the conditions as they exist on the opposite shore of the pond. Beginning with what has been known as the Noy cottage, now owned and occupied for the most part by E. V. Goodwin, altho in addition others have been enjoying camp life there this season, be it said that to many this location is not surpassed by any on the pond. Here a view of this entire sheet of beautiful water is had, the breezes and shade are lovely.

A distance below on the water front is the cottage of Andrew Cuddihy, just completed and let for the season to Mr. Reese, of Southboro, Mass., who has recently purchased a tract of land of George Rogers and will soon erect a cottage near the shore. It is understood he will improve the rest of his property but has not yet made definite plans.

Near here is the new cottage of Miss Myrtle Brooks which will be completed in a very short time and we are told is let for the month of August to the city solicitor of Lawrence, Mass., who will occupy it with his family. This cottage is probably the most expensive and elaborate of any yet erected on the shores of the pond and is built for rental mainly. It contains fireplace, roomy apartments on the first floor, chambers with roof windows, broad piazzas, and when entirely finished will have a cellar which will be used for storage and be a fine thing.

With what has already been done around this pond and the prospect in view of several other cottages being erected this season and another year, it is safe to predict that ere long this spot will become a much sought for camping ground, and surely a more beautiful or more attractive place could not be desired. And in closing this brief description, be it said that more beautiful sunsets do not present themselves anywhere in this section of New England than on the shores of Gregg pond.

The Annual Field Day meeting of Hillsboro County Pomona Grange is to be held at Lake Baboic, Amherst, on August 10. The Columbian Orchestra of Greenfield will furnish the music. Past master George B. Ladd of Mass. State Grange will give an address, and several of the state grange officers will speak; a short literary program will also be given. The public is cordially invited. Read posters.

AS USUAL

Antrim Wins Its Saturday Game of Ball 9 to 2

The much expected ball game between Antrim and Warner on the home diamond last Saturday failed to materialize, the Warner team not being on hand as per agreement, so a game with Hancock was put on in its place. The non-appearance of the Warner team was a disappointment to the local fans and many stayed away from the grounds. Such action on the part of Warner is reprehensible to base ball interests and we are sure the team from that town in the future will be given the go-bye by all teams in this section.

However, the game with Hancock was worth the money and there was something doing from the start. If it was not ball playing, it was finding fault with the umpire, or temporarily injuring the players. Otis, the first baseman for the visitors, started the kicking when the very first ball was pitched and kept it up until the game was finished. The work of Freeman at second, Woods at center field and the pitching of Harrington for the visitors was about all worth mentioning, the latter being poorly supported.

For Antrim the stick work of Gilroy and L. Cuddihy were all that could be desired while Pitcher Cuddihy made no special effort to do any stunts beyond the ordinary. Mercer was laid out twice and Bickford was the recipient of a thrown ball by A. Cuddihy, which hit him on the side of the head. The score:

HANCOCK

Death of Dexter D. Dickey Who Dies Very Suddenly

Dexter D. Dickey of Hancock died very suddenly last week Wednesday afternoon. He was engaged with other men in loading lumber for Chas. Upton at the side track at Coolidge's mill. As he was standing upon a car waiting for a load of lumber to be brought along he was seen to clasp his forehead with both hands and immediately toppled from the car. He struck heavily, his head hitting the rail. His fellow workman, Jerry Gilman, hurried to his assistance but found him unconscious. He was immediately taken to his home a mile distant in the village. Everything possible was done for the unfortunate man, but he was beyond aid and passed away about three o'clock without gaining consciousness. It was found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull near the base, as well as otherwise being hurt. He had complained of the heat but a few moments before the accident and it is supposed that he fell in consequence of being prostrated by the heat. The funeral service was held Saturday afternoon by Rev. F. Person.

G. E. Fogg was unfortunate in losing by sickness recently a valuable team horse for which he paid $290 but a short time ago.

A silver plate marked "In Memoriam. A. E. Eaton, 1907," has recently been placed on the public drinking fountain on the common.

Harold Thompson was the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Maryetta Titus over Sunday week and returned with a younger brother Monday to their home in Fitchburg.

Pigeon Adopts Chickens

Two fledgling chickens, hatched only a few days were found by James J. Nedley of Bryam Shore, under a mothering pigeon a few days ago, when he drove her off the nest. The mother still takes care of her foster children as to giving them warmth, but she has not acquired a hen's knack in feeding them.

Mr. Nedley is a pigeon and chicken fancier. Both kinds of fowl are kept in the same house, the pigeon nest being in the top. One of his hens has shown strong flying proclivities, and recently its wings were clipped. It is believed that this hen flew to the nest higher up and laid its eggs. A brooding dove seldom selects anything but its own eggs to set upon, but this patient dove took the task and stuck to it until two chickens appeared. Mr. Nedley says it was hard work to drive off the bird when the chicks were already several days old.

Everyone would be benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative for stomach and liver trouble and habitual constipation. It sweetens the stomach and breath, gently stimulates the liver and regulates the bowels and is much superior to pills and ordinary laxatives. Why not try Foley's Orino Laxative today? Lane & Weeks.

MEMORIAM

Sudden Death Of Mrs. Morris H. Wood.

The sudden death of Mrs. Morris H. Wood took place at her home at the Center on Monday night, July 12, at 10 o'clock, the cause of her death being due from abscess of the bowels after a very short illness. Her age was 47 years, 1 month, 13 days.

Mrs. Wood was born Emma E. Holt, in Antrim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Holt.

She was a member of the First Congregational church of Antrim a constant and regular attendant, was a Sunday-school teacher of a boy's class. She had never missed a communion service since she joined the church, thirteen years ago. She buried her only daughter three years ago last May. To mourn the loss of a loving wife, are left a husband, feeble mother, one sister and one brother.

The bearers were former school-mates: Arthur Smith, Chas. Butterfield, Geo. Sawyer, Will Hills.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the church, Rev. John E. Willey of Manchester, a former pastor, and Rev. Mr. Oshorn, present pastor, officiating, with choir from the Methodist church which sang two of her favorite selections. Burial was in the family lot in North Branch cemetery.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful: spray of 47 white pinks from Morris H. Wood, same from Mrs. S. A. Holt, Mrs. Cora B. Brooks and Frank A. Holt; spray pinks, Mrs. Ella S. Carey; spray of roses, Frank W. Wood and lady; crescent of sweet peas and roses, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Wood; roses and lillies, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Bullard; lillies and roses, Mrs. John M. Hutchinson; daisies, Otis Pike. Nine other bouquets of roses sent without cards.

Card of Thanks

We desire to thank all our kind friends and neighbors who in any way rendered assistance during our late bereavement; especially to the singers, bearers; for gifts of flowers, and to everyone who in their kindness of heart offered words of sympathy. May God bless you all.

MORRIS H. WOOD,
MRS. SAM'L A. HOLT,
MRS. CORA E. BROOKS
FRANK A. HOLT.

For Sale at a Bargain

Bay family horse, 15 3-4 hands high weighs 1040 pounds, afraid of nothing, great roadster, 9 years old and safe for anyone to drive; also one rubber tire surrey, one piano box rubber tire carriage, surrey harness and driving harness. Equize at Hillsboro Bargain Store, Hillsboro.

If people with symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble could realize the danger they would without loss of time commence taking Foley's Kidney Pills. This great remedy stops the pain and the irregularities, strengthens and builds up these organs and there is no danger of Bright's disease or other serious disorder. Do not disregard the early symptoms. Lane & Weeks.

Twentieth Century Egg Machine

Why do we breed "White Leghorns?" We will answer the question with another. Why did we go into the poultry business? To make money is the answer. There is more money in a flock of pure bred Leghorns than in double the number of any other breed known for the reason that they, with decent treatment, will live and thrive on half the feed and lay twice as many eggs as any heavier bird. They are easy to raise, and being pure white are not so difficult to keep up to the standard as a colored bird. They are hustlers from the jump. Who ever saw a lazy Leghorn? On a good grassy range they will find half their feed, hatch out a bunch of Leghorns at the same time as any other breed, and in four months time they are laying, while bigger ones are eating their heads off. In the winter when hen fruit is scarce your White Leghorns are hustling and laying right along; while your other hens are sitting up in a corner huddling to keep warm and only move at feeding time. Of course by "White Leghorns" I mean pure bred stock. Some people buy a lot of scrubs that would put a decent Leghorn to shame, and then give the name a bad name; but for either the amateur or professional if the best stock is obtained you never hear a kick unless it is from a crank who expects to be a millionaire or buy a city lot in a year. If they were not all they are claimed to be, why do all the big egg farms raise them exclusively? Why do most of the specialists in other breeds part off a corner of their places for White Leghorns? Why! for the reason that no matter what luck they get with others, the White Leghorns are there with the goods all the time.

USE SIGNALS OF INDIANS.

Army Experts Adopt Many Ideas of the Aborigines.

Just as the fighting men of the United States army many years ago took lessons from the Indians and from their methods of warfare devised and perfected the system of extended order or skirmish drills which have proved so effective, so the signal corps of the army has followed to a large extent the red men's methods of conveying information from point to point where there is not time to string telegraph or telephone lines or where wireless telegraph is unavailable.

As the Indians since prehistoric times have used columns of smoke in various combinations to signal the approach of an enemy or to transmit other messages, so the army signalmen have found—most effective—what are known as smoke bombs or smoke rockets. The former are fired from a small mortar, the latter in the same way as Fourth of July fireworks. Each when reaching a desired height, regulated by a fuse, bursts and liberates a picric acid compound, which ignites and burns colored fires, one after the other, so arranged in the cartridge as to convey a message to those who may be watching for it. These cartridges are made in sections, each containing its own different colored fire, and threaded to screw together in a fraction of a minute.

These military fireworks, as they might aptly be called, are packed in hermetically sealed cans, much in the same manner as tinned meats, with the same sort of thumb-screw attachment for opening them quickly. In this way they keep indefinitely in any climate and have been found particularly effective in the campaigns in the Philippines.

While the navy does not employ so complicated a system of rocket and bomb signaling as does the army, every warship carries a supply of powerful rockets, which liberate on bursting a series of brilliant white stars for the purpose of calling attention to other signals which are transmitted by a system of combinations of colored electric lights strung from a masthead and operated from a switchboard much on the plan of a typewriter, called the Ardois system. But both branches of the service employ an odd sort of pistol, the invention of a naval officer, which shoots from cartridges "stars" similar to those of a roman candle of any color. The combinations which can be made in this manner practically are numberless.—Popular Mechanics.

FATE OF THE BRAAKE.

A Treasure Ship That Lies Buried Off Cape Henlopen.

Somewhere in deep water off Cape Henlopen lies over half a million in British gold, and how much more in gold and silver bars and plate and other treasures can only be guessed at. In 1708 the British privateer Braake sailed for the west Atlantic bearing enough gold to pay off all the English troops stationed in various parts of the new world. As the soldiers had not been paid in many months the sum was a large one.

Whether the captain of the Braake decided to turn pirate or whether he merely was showing excessive zeal in making war on all the enemies of England that he met on the high seas and intended to turn over his loot to the crown on his return will never be known, but the fact that the Braake took no prisoners and sank every prize goes a long way toward proving the piracy theory. The Braake captured a Spanish merchantman coming up from South America ports laden with rich tribute from the Spanish colonies there, transferred the precious cargo to her own hold and burned the vessel. Another Spanish ship bringing a church service of richly jeweled gold plate to a new world cathedral encountered the privateer and suffered the same fate. The next to fall a victim to the Braake's rapacity was a Frenchman carrying silks, spices, brandy and bars of silver. That, too, was sent to the bottom after it was despoiled.

The Braake was overtaken by a hurricane when nearing the American coast, was blown far out of her course and sank off Cape Henlopen. Several of the crew escaped in a small boat and reached land. Their tales of the treasure on the sunken ship caused several expeditions to be fitted out the following year, but nothing was brought up save pieces of the anchor chains and a cannon or two. During the last hundred years every effort to raise any part of the treasure has failed.

The last attempt was made by Captain Charles Adams, who fitted out a ship under the auspices of the navy department, but was unable to locate the wreck, which is probably by this time deeply submerged in the ooze and mud of the ocean bed.—New York Press.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

WOES OF THE PURSER

He Has Troubles of His Own on the Trip Across the Atlantic.

MUST HAVE A GOOD TEMPER.

His Time Wasted by Foolish Questions and Trivial Appeals, Mainly by Women Passengers, Yet He Has to Be Always Polite and Agreeable.

"Yes," said the purser on one of the big liners recently to the writer, who happened to be taking a trip from Liverpool to New York. "We have our own troubles, I can assure you, and I sometimes envy the captain his solitary enjoyment of the bridge, even during a sixty-mile gale. Passengers seem to think that the purser is put on a ship simply to answer foolish questions."

"Of course there is a good deal which we have to put up with as being part of our legitimate duties, though when a passenger brings us a hundred dollar yellow back and asks to have it changed into English, French, German and Spanish money and stipulates that there must be twice as much French as German and half the remainder in English silver coins, presumably for tips, is it any wonder that we occasionally lose our tempers?"

"And then, again, the purser is always appealed to for the most trivial things. A woman passenger comes to the window, and if it is closed she will bang on it till it is opened, no matter if the sign is there as large as life that the office hours are from 11 to 2 and 4 to 6 o'clock, and she is honoring me with a call at 3 p. m. Then, when the window is raised for fear she will smash it to smithereens, she says, with a sweet smile: 'Oh, Mr. Purser, I am so sorry to disturb you. I know it is not your hour of business, but could you tell me if we will really land next Thursday, as I told my brother we would, and I know he will be waiting for me on the dock.'"

"Of course I am polite, but I have some difficulty in persuading her that I am not running the ship, and neither can I control the elements. She goes away with an expression that clearly shows she thinks I am keeping something back and it will be my fault if we do not arrive at the time appointed."

"I remember on one trip when the weather was particularly stormy a woman passenger knocked at my door—after office hours, of course—and begged that she might speak to me for a few minutes. I politely asked her to enter, and then, her eyes starting out of her head with the excitement of suppressed emotion, she implored me to draw up her will. I protested that I was not a lawyer, but do you think she would be satisfied with that excuse? Not much! There and then I had to draw up a document in the best legal phraseology I could muster."

"When it was finished and I and my assistant had signed it she gave the young fellow a sovereign for his trouble, and as for me—well, she took off a very handsome ring and insisted on my accepting it. I have that ring yet, but what became of the donor I never knew, for when the storm abated and we were safe in port she never so much as bade me goodbye, though I had repeatedly asked her to take back her ring. She was a very rich woman evidently, and the 'bequests' in that will I drew up made my eyes bulge."

"Most passengers when we have been a day or so out bring the purser all their valuables, for which they receive a receipt. Some nervous women seem to think that a 'strong room' at sea is not a very secure place for their jewels, and they insist on seeing their treasures at least every day. One woman passenger made my life a burden during a recent voyage by taking her valuables out and putting them in again three times a day until I told her that the next time she called for them I would not take them back again, whereat she told me, with a sour look, that I was impertinent and she would inform the captain. I believe she did so, but the captain gave her a word or two of advice regarding the implicit trust which should be placed in a purser, and this quieted her. In fact, she afterward came to me and apologized for her seeming rudeness."

"As a rule, I conduct church service on board, as the captain does not enjoy the work, but prefers to remain on the bridge. Many a funeral service also has fallen to my lot, and I have even officiated at a christening. I am usually the one to whom a passenger flies when he is dissatisfied with his cabin, though the duty of changing a stateroom really rests with the head steward. Then, again, it is the purser who is appealed to when the passengers elect to hold a concert, and the young folks usually rush to him also when they want to have a dance on deck. A purser can be very popular or the reverse, and unless you have an excellent temper you stand a good chance of being the reverse."

"The funniest experience I had was on a recent trip, when there was on board a little girl about twelve years old. She struck up a warm friendship with me and would walk the deck for miles if I would only accompany her. She fell very ill during a storm and refused to be comforted. Her mother asked her if there was anything she could do which would ease her suffering, and the young lady said there was. If she would only 'skidoo' and let the purser read a book to her she would feel better. And the indulgent mother came to me, stated the case, and—well, I complied with her request and read to the child for a little while each day until she was well enough to come on deck again."—London Tit-Bits.

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemic. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons and probably the chief reason why public executions were abolished in England was that instead of acting as a deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder."

Some years ago a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice."

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Crawford's Care as a Writer.

Mr. F. Marion Crawford, we are told, once agreed to write for the London Sphere a novel with Dante for its hero. "The Harvest of the Sword" was to have been its title. The letter which he wrote to Mr. C. K. Shorter explaining his failure to fulfill his promise testifies to his conscientious care in authorship:

"I can only say that it is in no sense my fault if I cannot give you the book after all at the time appointed and that if I succeed in writing it you of course have the first claim to it for serial publication if you still wish to use it next year. I have worked at the manuscript unremittingly for months. I began it four times. I have done everything in my power to write it and have done no other work since Aug. 1, and the result is so utterly unsatisfactory that after allowing the first three chapters to be sent to you I decided to cable and throw up the contract. It is the first time I have ever done such a thing, and I am driven to it by the great difficulties of the subject and not by any neglect. I decline to allow a book so imperfect to go before the public, while feeling that by renewed labor I may succeed in the end. That is my whole and only excuse. Make it public in any way you please, together with the great regret I feel at disappointing you."

Literary Aid.

"So you make your wife do all the carving at dinner?"
"Sure! Isn't it a wife's duty to be a helpmeet?"—Baltimore American.

His Shrewd Idea.

"Who is that sour looking girl with the heavy underjaw?"
"That is the only daughter of old De Milyuns."
"And who is the dainty bit of sweetness with the blue eyes and golden hair?"
"That's the chaperon."
"What's the explanation?"
"Why, it's old De Milyun's clever idea. He thinks his Jane will be perfectly safe as long as Miss Blossom is around."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

College Foolishness Barred.

"John," said the farmer, "I've given you the best education the college had in the shop."
"Yes, sir."
"Never stood back fer expense?"
"Never."
"You speak six languages?"
"Perfectly."
"So far, so good. Now, listen. Don't swear at the mule in Greek. Don't use no Latin terms to him, an' fling no French his way. Use the Georgy dialect that you an' the mule wuz raised to. It's my opinion that the mule won't stand no college foolishness."—Atlanta Constitution.

"Nobody realizes the immensity of space."

"Except the man who has to fill a daily half column with alleged humor."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

St. Swithin's Day

Thursday last was St. Swithin's day, and according to the old tradition if it did not rain that day it will not rain for six weeks. On the other hand, if the skies should be overcast and a nice little shower come we shall have rain for the next 40 days. The weather man's promises that the day be fair was carried out, altho in different localities not far from here showers were in evidence. St. Swithin was one of the teachers of Alexander the Great, and in 552 he became bishop of Winchester. He was buried at his death in the church yard of the cathedral. About a century later it was decided to place his bones inside the church. The tradition says that it rained for 40 days, beginning with July 15, the day that the first attempt was made to disinter the body. As a result of this it took nearly six weeks before the bones were finally placed in the church. That is the origin of the legend of St. Swithin's day. It is not clear why if it does not rain on the day of the saint, it should not rain for 40 days after except by contrast.

Paper Suspends

The Milford Daily Pointer, Edward Stanyan, proprietor, after a career of 15 years, suspended publication last Thursday evening. For several years of late the editor has run the paper alone, doing all the work on it, and he has not been absent from but six or eight days of its issue during the 15 years. The Pointer was the first Socialistic daily paper ever published in the United States.

NORTH BRANCH

There will be a social dance in town hall, Antrim, Friday evening, July 23. Music by Appleton's orchestra. Read posters.

Our readers will be pleased to read of the observance of the 50th wedding anniversary of a couple known to many here.

It was fifty years ago that Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Bennett began their journey in life together, and was it not such a union of hearts and interests as theirs that inspired Tennyson to write, "Marriages are made in heaven?"

Saturday was the day which marked the rounding out of the half century, and it was also the 72d anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Bennett, although those who know her as a bright, active, energetic woman of affairs, who with ready smile and cheery words is ever ready to smooth the pathway of those about her, find it difficult to realize that so many years have been placed to her credit by Father Time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett had planned to observe the day by receiving their friends informally at their home, 205 Laurel St., and incidentally there were other plans of which they knew practically nothing, the outcome of which was an ingathering of their patriotic friends and associates at the headquarters of Louis Bell post, G. A. R., in the evening, at which they were the guests of honor.

The first intimation of something out of the ordinary about to transpire was when a carriage drew up in front of their door, just previous to 7 o'clock, a messenger notifying them that they were wanted at Grand Army hall. Past Commander Bennett learned to obey orders back in the days of '61 and '63, and Mrs. Bennett, believing that a woman's place is at her husband's side, accompanied him.

Arriving at headquarters they found there a company assembled in which were represented not only the Grand Army and Woman's Relief corps but the Sons and Daughters of Veterans and Uncle Sam's forces at the public building where Mr. Bennett is employed.

Another pleasant surprise of the evening was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Abner B. Crombie of Antrim, who were with Mr. and Mrs. Bennett as their attendants on their wedding day. Their arrival was the signal for all to greet them standing, and abundant congratulations and general expression of good-will and best of wishes for the future followed. A program had been arranged, including music, readings, impersonations, together with the presentation of a purse of $100 in gold which was contributed by the Grand Army, Woman's Relief corps and Daughters of Veterans and postoffice employees, the Sons of Veterans having given a handsome picture.

Then came the march which led to the banquet hall, where great preparations for a feast had been made. The tables were daintily decorated, and prominent among the appointments was a wedding cake bearing fifty lighted candles. There was also a loaf of the wedding cake made in 1859 at the time of their marriage.

The union of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett has been blessed by a son, Moodybell S. Bennett, one of Manchester's most promising young attorneys.

True friends visit us in prosperity only when invited, but in adversity they come without invitation.

EAST ANTRIM.

It was reported on the street that G. A. Cochran's family met with a serious accident, caused by an automobile. This is not true; the accident was only slight and nothing more than anyone might have on the highway.

George Wilkins, a former resident, and his family, visited at the Wilkins homestead over the Sabbath.

Casimer Hafeli purchased a good share of the grass on the Appleton place at auction Saturday.

Mrs. Mae Rakes White, who has been visiting at Bellevue farm, was taken ill suddenly the first of last week; she improved under the care of a physician and returned to Lynn, the middle of the week.

J. Dow Clement and wife have returned from their outing at the sea shore.

Last week's paper said that a Mr. Hosley visited at Mr. Hafeli's; this item was not given by the regular reporter and is not correct.

Many people with chronic and lung trouble have found comfort and relief in Foley's Honey and Tar as it cures stubborn coughs after other treatment has failed. L. M. Ruggles, Reunion, Iowa, writes, "the doctors said I had consumption, and I got no better until I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped the hemorrhages and pain in my lungs and they are now as sound as a bell." The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Refuse substitutes. Lane & Weeks.

Women Who Are Envied

The attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. Fifty cents.

Catarrh and La Grippe.
Rev. Geo. A. E. Troutman, Mt. Washington, Mo., writes: "My wife and I are strong believers in Peruna."

with a peculiar spasmodic affection of the throat. It would seize me suddenly, and for a few minutes I would be unable to speak audibly, and my breath would be greatly interfered with. I would be obliged to gasp for breath.

"I finally concluded that it was some catarrhal affection which probably excited the spasm. It interfered with my vocation as a preacher, attacking me occasionally in the pulpit.

"I had heard so much about Peruna as a catarrh remedy that I determined to try it. After taking two bottles, my trouble has disappeared. I feel sure that Peruna has greatly benefited me."

Rev. P. E. Swanstrom, Swedish Baptist Pastor, Box 228, Grantsburg, Wis., writes that from the use of Peruna he is perfectly well, entirely cured of chronic diarrhea and catarrh.

Peruna in Tablet Form.

For two years Dr. Hartman and his assistants have incessantly labored to create Peruna in tablet form, and their strenuous labors have just been crowned with success. People who object to liquid medicines can now secure Peruna Tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

I was cured of a bad case of catarrh when nothing else that I tried had any effect. My wife was cured from a severe case of la grippe, and we feel that the least we can do is to gratefully acknowledge the merit of Peruna.
"My wife joins me in sending best wishes for your success."

The Reason Why Economy Jars

Are The Best For You

They have proven themselves

1. Easy to Seal. Simple and sure, no screw top, no burnt hands, no effort necessary. A child can seal and open it.
2. Easy to Open. Puncture a hole in cap to admit air, then pry off. No twisting, no wrench.
3. Sure Seal Airtight. Every jar sure to seal; once sealed and contents sterilized, remains airtight forever.
4. Wide Smooth Mouth. Hand and large fruits and vegetables slip easily into it.
5. No rubber ring to become porous, leak air, taint and spoil food.
6. Most economical. No loss, not even mould. Pay for themselves in the food they save.
7. Retains flavor of the fresh, natural food. The piquancy and lusciousness of fruit and vegetables preserved for years.
8. Sanitary in every detail. No hidden corners to gather and cultivate disease germs.
9. Crystal white flint glass reduces breakage both in use and in shipping to the minimum.
10. Straight sides, for asparagus, corn on cob, etc. Makes a more beautiful package than a wedge shaped jar; renders contents more appetizing.
11. Caps are old lacquered, impervious to any known food acid, as clean, sweet and hygienic as the glass itself.
12. Permanently attached to the cap is a tiny, pure, everlasting composition, tasteless, odorless, guaranteed airtight, unaffected by any food acid and remains airtight forever.
13. Meat and vegetables, fish, game, etc., are kept perfectly in Economy Jars.
14. The Economy is the only jar known of which all the above mentioned facts are true.

Positively no other Jar like it

These jars will be demonstrated at our store the week beginning July 26. If you are in doubt about them ask someone who has tried them. Be sure to come to our store the week beginning July 26th.

Hits the Nail Right on the Head

HON. NORMAN E. MACK,
Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—I herewith enclose you my check and ask my name to be enrolled as a regular subscriber to your National Monthly. I have just finished examining the first number. It is a publication of stupendous merit, and it will exert a great influence for good in our country. It ranks with the best magazines that are printed in all respects, and its genuine Democracy gives it distinctive superiority. It will succeed for the Democracy is not dead, but very much alive. It will help save the country from capitalistic greed on the one hand and from the dangers of socialism and anarchism on the other. I am heart and soul with you in your new enterprise. Yours truly,

FRED J. KERN,
Mayor of the City of Belleville, Ill.

ANNE'S GREAT DISCOVERY.

A Call That Made Her Sure About Her Own Heart.

By EMILY HODGES.

(Copyright, 1906, by Associated Literary Press.)

"You're very foolish and very headstrong, Maudie, and you're going to be sorry some day," Anne said severely.

She was sitting before the glass, putting cold cream on her face, and Maudie was watching her from the bed.

It was to pretty Maudie a very funny performance—Anne's nightly comforting of her complexion with cold cream. She wondered if she would do the same when she was thirty-six and unmarried. But she would not be unmarried at thirty-six. Of course not. There was Dick, and she was determined to marry Dick, no matter what Anne or Aunt Hannah said. It was about Dick that Anne was talking now.

"You know as well as I do," Anne went on, "that you are too young even to think of marrying, and, anyway, Dick Launt isn't a person you should consider for one moment." Anne closed the cold cream box, with a sigh. "When you do marry I want you to have some one who is worthy of you."

"Is that the reason you've never married?" Maudie asked innocently.

Anne flushed under the cold cream.

"That was the reason," she returned steadily.

"Haven't you ever been sorry?" Maudie persisted. She wished Anne had not blushed but face by turning out the gas—the voice, Anne's voice, told so little.

"I—I don't know that I have been. Good night, dear." And Maudie had nothing to do but answer obediently. "Good night, Anne."

But long after Maudie was asleep Anne lay awake thinking.

Sixteen years—what a long time that was! She was twenty that summer, just out of school, and she had a pink dress about with ruffles. One day when she had been wearing that dress she had met Dwight Marshall. He was a good deal like Dick Launt—big, clear eyed, ready to laugh. Like Dick, too, he was a plain working man and had come from a long way off to find work in Hallowell. It did not take Dwight long to fall in love with the pink dress and her, and it did not take her long to see it. He was her first beau, and straightway the world was made over for her.

But her mother was watch and ward. She had had to make many sacrifices in order to educate Anne, and she was worthy of the best. Mrs. Hall did not by any means consider Dwight Marshall the best, and she was determined that he should not have Anne. She appealed to Anne's pride and reason and after a time had the satisfaction of seeing her arguments prevail. Anne gave up her lover. He was hurt, disappointed, bitterly angry.

"This is your mother's doing," he said.

"No," Anne lied proudly. "It's mine. You aren't good enough for me."

"You'll be sorry for this some day," he returned. And that was his last word to her. She had never seen or heard from him since. She probably never would again. And now here was Maudie in the same boat in which she herself had been. But Maudie's heart would not be broken. Hers had not been. There had been times, indeed, when she was glad that she had come to feel the same way about Dick.

Anne scarcely slept all night.

"That cold cream makes you pale," Maudie said next morning. "What makes you use it, Anne? Are you afraid of wrinkles?" Anne winced, and Maudie went on wickedly. "Mrs. Warner says it doesn't make any difference how a woman looks if she isn't married or doesn't intend to be."

Mrs. Warner was the young matron who lived across the street. Because she and Maudie were very friendly and she was known openly to sympathize with Maudie's love affair Anne and her mother had not called upon her, though she had lived in the town almost a year. Now of a sudden Anne felt almost hatred for the gay little woman who seemed so happy in her married life and obviously had no need of cold cream or any other preparation for her charming face.

Anne was out of sorts all day. Her painting class did badly, her head ached, and she tore her walking skirt by stepping upon it in her hurry to take a car. Tired and utterly forlorn, she was sitting in her room trying to repair the skirt when Maudie came running upstairs and entered panting with her haste.

"Oh, Anne," she gasped, "there's a man in the parlor waiting to see you! I told him you'd be right down."

A man in the parlor to see Anne was almost an unheard of thing. Yet she took three stitches deliberately.

"Aren't you going to fix your hair or—or anything?" Maudie demanded.

"Why should I?" Anne said. "It is only some one to see about lessons probably."

The parlor door was open, and she went in softly. The man was waiting with his expectant face turned toward her. She gave him one glance and turned as white as her linen collar.

"Dwight—Dwight Marshall!" she said. Then she seemed to remember nothing more until she found herself on the sofa, with him close beside her.

"You never expected to see me again, did you?" he demanded. "And I didn't expect you would, but ever since my little cousin, Maud Warner, has lived here she and Dave have been teasing me to come and make them a visit. So I made up my mind I'd come. And here I am. You don't know Maud, do you?"

"No," Anne said feebly, wishing she did.

"Maud told me you hadn't acted very neighborly. You should know Maud. She's one of the best little women that ever lived."

He had been talking rapidly. Now he stopped and drew a long breath.

"Do you remember the last time we saw each other? I was right mad that day. It had never occurred to me that I wasn't the equal of the best girl living—and you were that, too—until you said what you did. So I swore I'd make myself good enough—and make you sorry? But now that I've seen you I only want to make you glad, Anne. You see, I like you just as well as I ever did, though I didn't expect to. And if you like me—"

"Oh, Dwight," Anne sobbed. "It's I who am not good enough! I'm homely and old and soured and—disagreeable and narrow minded—and you're worthy of some one better." Maudie had been in bed three hours when Anne came up and woke her with a kiss.

"Why, Anne, you look real pretty," Maudie said, yawning. "But your hair is mussed up awfully."

"Maudie," Anne said solemnly, sitting down upon the edge of the bed and taking hold of Maudie's hand in a most unusual way—"Maudie, I want to tell you something. I've been a fool for years and never found it out until tonight. And I don't mean you shall be the same kind of fool. That man who came tonight was the one I might have married sixteen years ago—and didn't. But I'm going to marry him now."

"And—and, Maudie, I've been talking to mother, and you can have Dick any time you are ready. Dick's all right. He—Dwight knows him; they come from the same place."

"I thought I could forget," Anne went on gently after Maudie's ecstasy of surprise and joy had somewhat subsided, "and I've tried hard for sixteen years, but when you really love there's no forgetting in this world. I've been loving Dwight right straight along, and the minute I saw him to night I knew it. I've missed a good many years of happiness, and I mean to make you miss a good many years of happiness in the same way. It wasn't because I was wicked, dear, but because I didn't know. I do know now."

Maudie smiled wisely.

"I knew all the while," she said.

In a Safe Place.

"We have a man in this prison who never tried to escape," declared the head keeper.

"What's he in for?" inquired the visitor.

"Bigamy," replied the head keeper.—Bohemian.

It is said that the Parisian gives up about 20 per cent of his income for taxes.

TUMOR OF FOUR YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindley, Ind. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removed a cyst tumor of four years' growth, which three of the best physicians declared I had. They said that only an operation could help me. I am very glad that I followed a friend's advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for it has made me a strong and well woman, and I shall recommend it as long as I live." — Mrs. MAY FRY, Lindley, Ind.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy — tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and such unquestionable testimony as the above proves the value of this famous remedy, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

ALL NIGHT BAKERIES.

Where New Yorkers Can Have Wants Supplied at Any Hour.

Among the many places of business of one and another sort that in a great city are kept open all night are bakeries.

The bakery is a peculiarly domestic business establishment, supplying mostly home wants, and as most people work days and sleep nights it might be supposed that there would be no occasion to keep bakeries open nights, but here, where with the city's manifold industries there must be a large number of people working at all times to keep things going, there are bakeries that do keep open, and find trade at all hours.

Some of these all night bakeries have lunch room attachments, where people stop in to eat going to or from work, while others do a bakery business only. At either customers come in at all hours of the night to buy things to carry away, just as people do at any hour of the day, for the people who go to work at midnight or at 1, 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning want bread and bakery stuff before they go, just the same as do those who begin their labors at 7, 8 or 9, and there is likely to be in their neighborhood an all night open bakery where they can regularly supply their wants.

From 2 to 5 a. m. are the hours that mark low ebb in the all night bakery trade, but customers are dropping in all night long. —New York Sun.

ANCIENT GUNS.

Remarkable Weapons That Were Used by the Turks and Chinese.

At the siege of Rhodes the Turks constructed mortars by hollowing out cavities in the solid rock at the proper angle, and in the arsenal at Malta is a trophy of the long and glorious defense of Valetta in a Turkish gun, about a six pounder, composed of a copper tube coiled over with strong rope and "jacketed" with rawhide. In the same collection are some antique "quick firers," breechloaders, with small bores and immensely long barrels, like punt guns. The Malay pirates put great trust in the long brass swivel guns called "lela," and in Borneo these lelas were used as a kind of currency, large sums being estimated in guns.

The Chinese cast excellent bronze guns (there is a fine specimen of them in Devonport dockyard), but so little did they understand gunnery that in the so called "opium war" the forts of the Bocca Tigris, defending the Canton river, had the guns built immovably into the walls. The Sikh gunners opposed to England in the two Punjab wars, though they loaded with amazing recklessness, shoveling in the powder from open boxes, stuck to their guns to the last. The blood of the first man killed was smeared on the gun, and the whole detachment died beside it sooner than retreat. —Chambers' Journal.

Too Much of a Tonic.

When Mr. Chinchin returned home from Chinchin & Chinchin's the other day he found his wife lying worn out upon the sofa.

"Nothing wrong, I hope," he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid I shall have to stop that tonic the doctor prescribed for Tommy," Mrs. Chinchin faintly murmured.

"Why? Isn't he any better?" asked Chinchin.

"Oh, yes, but I think the tonic must be too invigorating. Why, he has slid down the banisters six times this morning, broken the hall lamp, two vases, a water jug and a looking glass, tied a tin can to the cat's tail and scribbled his name on the drawing room paper. Of course it's very gratifying, but I don't feel I could stand much more, so I think I'll stop the tonic."

Bats Inside Bamboo.

The cutting down of a clump of bamboos in the royal botanical gardens, Singapore, shows that the hollows in the stems of these plants may afford a dwelling place for bats. On the splitting of a joint three bats flew out, and it was perceived that others were within. Care was taken to prevent further escape, and later examination of the joint revealed the presence of twenty-three bats in the hollow. Four of these were adult females and nineteen young ones. Other bamboo joints were also found to contain a number of bats. The species is known as Vesperugo pachypus. —London Scraps.

The Proper Question.

The man with the glassy eye and preternaturally solemn demeanor put down a sovereign at the booking office at Charing Cross and demanded a ticket. "What station?" snapped the booking clerk. The would be traveler steadied himself. "What stations have you?" he asked, with quiet dignity. —London Globe.

A Criticism.

"He said this skirt of mine was a perfect symphony."
"Maybe, but it's not well conducted."
"What do you mean?"
"It drags." —Cleveland Leader.

IDLY WANDERING.

When the Overwrought Worker Cuts Loose From Care.

When a business man suffers from overstrain or a student from overwork sometimes, instead of taking to bed, he disappears. Suddenly he is missing, all trace of him lost. His family and friends invariably fear the worst. They imagine he has met with accident and is lying unconscious in a hospital or has parted with his wits and is confined in an asylum or has even taken his own life.

These things are all possible, but the probable thing is none of them. The probable thing is that the overwrought man has yielded to a natural impulse and instinctively has sought a cure by becoming a wanderer for the time. He has put the cares of the old life behind him and with them the people that recall the old life and has given himself up to the healing of the road. To drift with no well defined object, to see strange places and faces, ever to answer the call of the beyond — "differne," as the Germans call it — is more than a dream lying somewhere in the back of every man's mind, where it was lodged by some ancestor of the nomad period; it is one of nature's own remedies for the worries of life.

For the man with a troubled conscience, for the man whose nerves are not treating him right, travel, change of scene, is one of the things the wise physician will prescribe. If it be a veritable tramp afoot the cure will be speedier and more complete and may work physical regeneration into the bargain. —New York Mail.

A FLOWER AND A WISH.

The Romantic Marriage of De Lesseps of Suez Canal Fame.

Sir Henry Brackenbury tells in Blackwood's Magazine the story of the romantic marriage of M. de Lesseps. A Frenchman living in Reunion was compelled by the illness of his wife to take her to France. He sailed with his wife and two young daughters, but the wife died on the voyage. Some time afterward the Frenchman called on M. de Lesseps, told him of his misfortunes and of his sufferings on the long sea voyage and expressed the wish to dedicate the remainder of his life to the furtherance of the construction of the Suez canal. De Lesseps gave him an appointment at Ismailia, and employment was found in one of the workshops in the city of his daughters.

One day De Lesseps' attention was attracted by these two girls, with whom he entered into conversation. He came again next day and gave to each of them a flower, saying that they should frame a wish the last thing at night and that if in the morning they found that the flowers had opened the wish would be granted.

On the following morning he went to their house and found one of the girls smiling, the other in tears. He asked the cause of the latter's sadness. "My flower has not opened," she replied.

"Tell me your wish, so that if possible it may be granted," responded M. de Lesseps.

"Ah, to you least of all men I can tell it," was her answer. The great engineer married her.

The Real Want.

"What we want is a square deal."
"Oh, we'll compromise on that in a pinch. What we really want is a shade the best of it." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Insincere.

"Oh, John, don't you wish we could sit here and spoon forever?"
"Yes, dearest. But let's go now. I think I hear the dinner bell!" —Boston Post.

It costs the devil little trouble to catch the lazy man. —German Proverb.

Skeptical.

"I kind of agree with the folks who say that story about George Washington and the cherry tree is a myth," said Farmer Cornstossel after a thoughtful silence.

"For what reason?" inquired his wife.

"Well, human nature is purty much the same in all generations, and if I had a boy who picked up an ax and voluntarily went out to chop wood I wouldn't chide him. I'd hand him a medal." —Washington Star.

"So you think it is an advantage to a man to go to congress for awhile?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "It gives the people in his own town a chance to think he is a great man in Washington and the people in Washington a chance to think he is a great man in his own town." —Washington Star.

A charming wedding of interest to all the neighbors of Towns Hill, Walpole, took place Tuesday, July 6, at the home of W. E. Wilbur, when Miss Hattie R. Heath of Walpole and Ralph E. Messer of this town, were united in marriage by Rev. G. H. Kent of Christian Hollow church. The church was daintily decorated with ferns, evergreen and white roses. The couple were married under the American flag, a most appropriate scene, the groom being of such a patriotic spirit, having been captain of the S. of V. of this town. The wedding march was played by Miss J. E. Marsh. Music was furnished by the Christian Hollow band. A supper was served to all the guests.

A Thrilling Rescue

How Bert R. Lean, of Cheney, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am well as ever." For Colds, Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and Asthma, Croup and Whooping cough its supreme. Fifty cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Rotten Egg Placed on File

WASHINGTON, July 19—"Why and when is a rotten egg" is the issue formally laid before the department of justice today with a view to government prosecution in the northwest. With the egg came this complaint:

"I this day send you a boiled egg which I believe is rotten. I have had them served several times. Therefore I send this sample to you to test it. I am not acquainted with the federal inspectors. The offending cafe was named.

The egg, still unexposed, with the formal complaint, was referred to the attorney-general. It is docketed "No. 147,563. Subject: Transmits a boiled egg which he believes is rotten. It seems so. File." One official endorsed it: "Don't blame the hen."
