W. R. C. FAIR

And Entertainment a Decided Success

On Wednesday last the W. R. C. gave their Annual Fair, and Entertainment in the town hall. In the afternoon was held the Fair. Fancy articles, aprons, etc., were offered for sale, from neatly arranged tables and stands. Nicely trimmed booths, from which were sold cake, home-made confectionery and fancy cookies, attracted many buyers of these toothsome delicacies.

The interior of the hall was decorated for the occasion. Large quantities of tri-colored bunting and a profusion of flags being used with good effect. The display of autumn foliage, potted plants, red, white and blue crepe paper, was very pretty.

At eight o'clock in the evening the entertainment was presented before a large house. The characters were local, assisted by talent from Hillsboro. The drills, solos and songs were well and justly applauded. The two-act novelty, "A Musical Bouquet" was interesting from start to finish, and from the many complimentary remarks heard during the evening, one would rightly judge that the presentation of this play was a great success. Those taking prominent parts were Mrs. Emma Hutchinson, Misses Cornelia Templeton, Vera McClure, Ethel Ellinwood, Annie Templeton, May Ashford, Winnie Smith, Alice Markey and Susie Curtis, Paul Colby, Milo Brill and Forest Boutelle.

The many participants each did themselves credit and the whole affair, under the able direction of Mrs. M. M. Watson of Hillsboro, was admirably done.

Promenading until twelve o'clock concluded the evening's enjoyment. A generous sum will be netted for the Corps.

Final Services

The funeral services of the late George W. Wilson were held Friday afternoon last from the Presbyterian church, his pastor, Rev. Duncan Salmon, officiating. A good delegation of Red Men, of which order deceased was a member, was present in a body. In respect to the deceased, who was for twenty years a business man of our street, the business houses in the village were closed during the services, and the merchants contributed a nice floral piece. The other offerings were as follows:

Pillow, I. O. Red Men; pillow, Frank DeSilva and wife; mound, Mrs. George W. Wilson; basket, Miss Beale Wilson; heart, business friends; spray of roses, Miss Elizabeth DeSilva; spray of pinks, Antrim Fire Department; spray of pinks, Mrs. John Munhall and Mrs. Wm. Munhall; spray of pinks, Francis Grimes and wife; spray of pinks, Mark Hartwell; spray of pinks, Mrs. Ambrose Drew; spray of asters and roses, Mrs. David Badger.

The burial was in Maplewood cemetery; services and burial in charge of F. Grimes & Co., funeral directors.

A Son of the Revolution

Antrim was for several years the home of Samuel Downing, the last survivor of the Revolutionary war. Possibly the last survivor of the Sons of the Revolution may have been a citizen of Antrim, should his life be spared for a brief period.

Isaac F. Walker, a son of Jas. Walker, who was in the war of '76 at an early age, was born in Antrim Jan. 16th, 1820, where he claimed his home until 1862, when he moved to North Weare, where he resided several years. For a few years he has been living at Concord, — the plains — this state, with a married daughter. For a year or more previous to his moving from town he lived in a house nearly opposite Ervin Thompson's, and was in the employ of the writer of this sketch. He is certainly one of the last surviving sons of the patriotic boys who went forth to battle in the war of 1776. Isaac F. Walker was an honest man, and it has been quoted that "an honest man is the noblest work of God." James Walker, the father, lived in a log house about one fourth of a mile west of the Ira Holmes place.

State Trade Report

Reports to Bradstreet's show that the heavy rains of the past week, while damaging crops to some extent have filled up rivers and lakes and will be of great assistance in making water power good throughout the winter. Conditions in manufacturing lines continue to improve and some plants are working overtime. There is also considerable building going on in the state and there seems to be a general confidence that business is to be very good in the future. Wholesale trade is good and collections much better than for the past two years at this time. Retail trade is still quiet, but this is usual at this time, and already it has picked up to a considerable extent, and with cold weather a good business is looked for.

Antrim Creamery Corporation

At a meeting of the directors of this new corporation on Friday evening last, a building committee was selected, comprising D. B. Dunham, John E. Tenney and Harlan E. Young. Steps have already been taken towards erecting the building and besides putting up the building another duty of this committee will be to equip it with the necessary machinery and tools ready for business.

At the Grange

The first and second degrees were conferred on a class of nine at the last regular meeting of the Antrim Grange and the same class will receive the third and fourth degrees at the next regular meeting on Wednesday evening, Oct. 20. At this time will be the usual harvest supper, and District Deputy Orren Dow of Weare will be present.

New State Road

The work on Main street is progressing rapidly and operations were commenced on Concord street first of this week.

High School Department.

Reports for the month of September were given out Tuesday morning.

French II students are now reading "La Croisade des Enfants," apres Alfred des Essarts.

Miss Beatrice Lang of Boston and Miss Nannabelle Buchanan of Peterboro were visitors during the past week.

The Sophomore class has finished reading "Sohrab and Rustum" and are now studying "Pilgrims Progress" by John Bunyan.

A quite considerable portion of the Latin III and IV class held a private meeting in the laboratory Monday night after school.

Miss Jessie Willson, vice president of the Sophomore class, has discontinued attending school here. She intends to devote her time to a special study of music.

The Mediaeval History class is quite small on Fridays as several of its members are also geologists whom Miss Markey takes out for instructive strolls on that day.

The class of 1913 have held their business meeting and as officers for the present school year have elected the following:

President, Ralph Eaves.
Vice president, Mae Harris.
Treasurer, Wallace George.
Secretary, Susie Curtis.

The class colors are crimson and white.

On last Wednesday afternoon the teachers of the building met in Miss Childs' room and presented the retiring superintendent of schools, F. C. Johnson, with a fine gold-mounted fountain pen. The presentation, together with a few words of well wishing, was made by Principal Handy and briefly responded to by Mr. Johnson.

Monday afternoon a meeting of the boys was called to discuss the advisability of having a basket ball team. The feeling seemed to be that we should have a team and Clarence Elliott was elected manager with C. N. Gibney as captain. Challenges were presented to the manager from Wilton High school, the Milford Alumni and the Crescents of Peterboro. Action will probably be taken on these challenges at once.

ON NATURE

Nestling in a hollow between two mountains lies a small lake, whose clear sparkling waters reflect the delicate blue of the sky, and the white fleecy clouds, that float through the heavens, like ships on the ocean.

Along either shore rises an almost impenetrable barrier of mountain ranges, whose rugged peaks stand out like sentinels. The dark blue shadows of the mountains and the green of the pine trees, are set off by the many colored leaves of the trees nearer the lake.

Not a ripple disturbs the calm repose of the waters and the scenery reflected in them seems to form another world, even more beautiful than this.

Facts of Early History

Reading the extracts from the first issues of the Antrim Reporter, made me think that perhaps the following statistics might be of interest to some of our readers.

The first printing press in this country was established at Cambridge, Mass., in 1639. This was but six years after the first news journal was issued in England.

The first publications in America were a pamphlet called "The Free mans Oath", and an Almanac. In 1640, the "Bay Psalm Book" was printed, a popular work which ran through many editions in England as well as America. The second book was a volume of poems by Mrs. Anne Bradstreet, wife of one the first governors of Massachusetts. This was the first original composition printed in America.

In 1664, the first Bible was printed at Harvard College, it being John Eliot's translation of the bible into the Indian language. In 1743, the first German Bible was published at Germantown, Pa. In 1752, the New Testament and in 1782 the whole Bible was printed in English at Philadelphia.

The first paper mill was erected at Roxborough, Pa., near Philadelphia, in 1690; the paper was made of linen rags.

On September 25th 1690, the first newspaper in America was printed in Boston, Mass., and was called "Public Occurrences"; it was intended to appear monthly, but was immediately suppressed. In 1704 "The Boston News Letter" was published by John Campbell and continued until 1706.

In 1725, William Bradford began to issue the "New York Gazette" which was the first newspaper published in New York.

In 1728 "The Pennsylvania Gazette" founded by Benjamin Franklin was published in Philadelphia. It has continued through all these years and is now known as "The Saturday Evening Post". This has been called Franklin's first business venture. His second successful enterprise was the "Poor Richard's Almanac" which was first issued in Oct., 1732, and ran through three editions before the close of the year. In 1748, it was enlarged and became known as the "Poor Richard Improved" and still continues to be published.

In 1775, there were thirty-seven newspapers in the United States. The first daily newspaper printed in America was published in Philadelphia, and was called the "Pennsylvania Packet or the General Advertiser"; it continued to be published from 1784 to 1837.

The first religious paper called the "Boston Recorder" was published in Boston, Mass., by Nathaniel Willis, in 1814, with Edward Morse as editor.

The first agricultural paper was published in Baltimore, Md., by John Skinner, in 1819; it was called "The American Farmer" and is still in existence. The "New York Sun" was printed in 1833, and was the first penny paper published in this country.

Special Town Meeting

In the near future a special town meeting will be held to see what action the town will take in regard to the exemption from taxation of the property and business of the Antrim Creamery Corporation. It is hoped a large number of our townsmen will attend and thereby show their interest in new enterprises.

THE PUBLIC

Will Celebrate on Wednesday, October 20, 1909

This is the date set for the formal opening of the large new electric power plant of Goodell Company on the North Branch river. The power is already on and everything being in perfect adjustment, the whole thing is working with entire satisfaction. The committee of citizens having in charge the observance of the formal opening up of this power plant, are now busily engaged making the necessary arrangements for the above date.

The program as arranged is that in the afternoon the plant at the Branch will be inspected, from 2 to 5 o'clock; and all wishing transportation, at 50c each, can have same by notifying J. E. Perkins & Son. In the evening, at town hall, at 8 o'clock, there will be speaking by Gov. Quinby and other prominent men, besides an informal reception to His Excellency the Governor of New Hampshire. Music will be furnished by Appleton's orchestra.

This being a public celebration, arranged and backed by the citizens of the town, it is hoped and confidently expected that every one will join in and enjoy the day with enthusiasm; this means much to the town of Antrim, and how much depends largely upon the people of our town. Opportunities of this kind are rare, and if the most is made of it by all our people a vast amount of good will be the result.

The most optimistic ones see bright prospects in store for Antrim in the not far distant future, and the more moderately optimistic can see much of encouragement; the "pull altogether" is what will do it. The time is now ripe; it can be done; it's now "up to you; will you do it?"

The Designer for October

"The passing of the Red Schoolhouse" is an article of wide interest in The Designer for October. The writer, the Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, who has made wide fame as a reformer, traces the history of the consolidation of district schools from its beginning in Massachusetts in 1874.

The fiction for the month includes "What's in a name," by Louise Forslund; "The World Wonderful," a short story, by Sara Lindsay Coleman; "The House on the Hill," a serial, by Theodosia Garrison.

The fashions for autumn are described and illustrated in color. The magazine contains discussions on various economic questions, suggestions for the house-keeper and advice about all sorts of things in which women are interested.

The Delineator For October

"What is the Matter with the Churches?" is answered by many distinguished men of many varying errors in The Delineator for October. The question asked by Theodore Dreiser, the editor, has brought out responses that will be of widest interest. One of the timely features of the magazine is an article embodying the "Recollections of a Woman Campaigner." Twenty superintendents employed in twenty cities point out "Improvements I Would Make in the Public Schools." The Delineator is superbly illustrated and beautifully printed. It appeals to every member of the family.

ABSEMTMINDED.

The Dinner to Which Wills, the Artist, Invited a Friend.

Mr. Wills, the artist, was renowned for his absentmindedness, and the following story, says Henrietta Cockran in her book, "Celebrities and I," was told of him by a friend: "Wills invited me to dinner one afternoon when I met him in the Strand. I accepted, reminding him that as he was absent-minded he had better make a note of the evening. As he had no paper in his pocket, he wrote the date on his shirt cuff."

"When the appointed evening arrived I went to his studio. The door was opened by Wills, and I could see that he had forgotten all about the appointment."

"'Ah, old fellow,' he exclaimed, 'do not be too hard on me. The cuff went to the wash and the date with it. But there is a fowl in the pot boiling here,' continued Mr. Wills. 'Just come in and wait a few minutes.'"

"I had my misgivings, but walked inside and sat upon the only chair not crowded with paint brushes and palettes."

"After waiting for about twenty minutes, feeling decidedly hungry, I groaned. This had its effect."

"He exclaimed in a dreamy voice, 'The fowl must be boiled by this time,' and, coming forward, he lifted the lid of the pot and peered inside. 'It is very odd,' he remarked, 'but I cannot see the fowl. Extraordinary! No one has been here, so the bird cannot have been stolen.'"

"Well, the long and short of it is that a week or two later I called again at the studio, noticed a peculiar odor and discovered the fowl wrapped up in a piece of paper."

"'Ah,' said Wills. 'Now I know how it all happened. When the fowl was brought in there came a smart visitor—Lady G.—about sitting for her portrait. I must have thrown the fowl behind a canvas and forgotten about it.'"

THE "REGENT."

A Diamond That Restored the Fortune of the House of Pitt.

Men have never collected great crystals for personal adornment. Even that "fribble in lace and spangles," the rival of Beau Brummel and afterward George IV. of England—even he sought them simply for some perdita he was pursuing.

Louis XIV., le grand monarque, purchased twenty-five large diamonds, mostly for La Valliere, Montespan, Fontanges, Maintenon. Among them was the wondrous "Pitt." A slave in India found it. Having found it, his heart soared for liberty. Cutting the calf of his leg in order to hide the diamond within the slit, he leaped to the coast. To an English ship captain he offered it for passage to any country where men were free.

The captain, quite casually and with nice-tanor, took the gem and threw the slave into the sea.

The gem of such jesting release from servitude was sold to a dealer for $5,000 and through him reached Sir Robert Pitt, governor of Fort St. George, for $102,000, who shipped it home to England to be faceted.

A Scotch financier, John Law, then doing business in France, negotiated for a fee of $25,000 the sale of the diamond to the regent (afterward Louis XIV.) at $775,000.

It is pleasant to remember that thereby the fortunes of the house of Pitt were restored and that the seller's son, William Pitt, and his grandson, the Earl of Chatham, were assisted to high place and service by opportunities made possible through the profit on the diamond for which a poor slave, seeking freedom, was thrown into the sea.—Everybody's.

AN IRISH DUEL.

Rules Were Ignored and the Meeting Had a Happy Ending.

A duel with a happy ending seems an anomaly, yet one is commemorated in Blackwood's Magazine in an article on Irish "fire eaters." The duel was arranged was between John Egan, a county judge, and Roger Barrett, master of the rolls. Both men were humorous, and the meeting upon the fair ground of Donnybrook was characteristic.

Upon the combatants taking their ground Barrett, who was the challenger, promptly fired without waiting for the signal to be given and then walked coolly away, calling out:

"Now, Egan, my honor is satisfied!"

The judge, however, was by no means contented and shouted: "Hello! Stop, Roger, till I take a shot at your honor!"

Barrett thereupon came back and, planting himself in his former station, said composedly:

"All right, then. Fire away."

Egan presented his pistol and, taking most deliberate aim, first at one part of the anatomy of the master of rolls and then at another, seemed determined to finish him outright. At last, however, he cried out:

"I won't honor you! I won't be bothered shooting you! So now you may go your own way or come and shake hands with me, whichever way you like best."

Barrett chose to shake hands, and amidst the plaudits of the crowd the antagonists departed from the field in much good humor, the best of friends.

His Head For Trifles.

They were sitting in the gloaming, planning the home to be—at least, she was planning. George merely listened, pondered, listened and sighed.

"And we'll have one of those lovely velvet Turkey carpets for the dining room, George," she coaxed.

"Oh, my pet," he lifted, "what a trouble the crumbs and cigarette ashes would be on a Turkey carpet. I can't bear the thought of my sweet-heart brushing and brushing, and making those dear, sweet little hands touch like the hands of any common housemaid!"

"What a head you have for trifles, dear!" she loved softly.

"Tell you what we'll do, dear," cackled George. "We'll toss for it! Tails for the Turkey carpet, heads for linoleum!"

Click! And the linoleum had it.

"How lucky!" murmured George as he picked up the double-headed penny. "How lucky it is to have a head for trifles—two heads, in fact!"—London Tit-Bits.

THE DIGESTION.

Treatment That Will Be Found More Helpful Than Medicine.

Digestion is seldom improved by the taking of medicines, declares an old family physician. "We all know plenty of old bodies of both sexes who have taken medicine enough to float a battleship—taken it as a sort of pious duty," he says, "but these old bodies hang on to life in spite of their dosing, not through it."

A large glass of water taken in the morning directly after rising and cleaning the teeth are worth all the aperient mixtures in the world. The juice of one or two oranges, taken as long before breakfast as possible, is excellent for cleaning out the digestive tract and giving the appetite a fillip. It is well to follow the morning tub with ten minutes or so of exercises which will stimulate the stomach and liver.—Stand upright, with the hands above the head, then bend down, keeping the knees straight, until the tips of the fingers touch the floor. Repeat this eight times, then put the hands on the hips and bend from side to side. This massages the liver and stimulates the digestion. For breakfast eat porridge and brown bread and some fruit. Prunes are the best if there is a tendency to constipation. A glass of water taken just before going to bed is excellent for flushing out the stomach and keeping the digestion in order.—New York Tribune.

NAPHTHA.

The Natural Products and Those Obtained From Petroleum.

Naphtha is an inflammable liquid which exudes from the soil in certain parts of Persia. Subsequently the use of the term spread to include some volatile oils found in Europe and even America. The product of the oil fields of southern Russia is usually called naphtha, although it differs in no way from the ordinary grades of petroleum.

Naphtha properly includes the lighter oils which pass off first in the distillation of petroleum, the gravities ranging from 50 to 62 degrees Beaume. Pennsylvania crude oil contains from 8 to 20 per cent of naphtha. In the refining of such naphtha several products are obtained by fractional distillation. Those which pass off first—namely, rhigolene and cymogene—are gases at ordinary temperatures and are seldom saved. The next product is known as gasoline, a material largely used in machines and for illuminating purposes. After this come stove naphtha and gas naphtha, the latter being the base of much of the illuminating gas now made.

Petroleum naphtha is often treated with chemicals to deodorize it. Naphtha may also be made in the distillation of wood and coal tar.—New York American.

A Judicial Reproof.

A mellow old lawyer who used to live on the banks of the Androscooguin was famous for his fine distinctions. But often after the shades of night had fallen the squire might have been seen struggling home so boozy that he apparently could not split a shingle, to say nothing of a hair. One night when he was drunker than usual he staggered completely out of his course and could not find it. Realizing that he was lost and drifting into unfamiliar regions, he called at a house to ask for information. "Madam," he gravely said to the lady who came to the door, candle in hand, "can you tell thier me wher is Squire Blank lives?"

"Certainly," she said and gave him full directions. But as she talked and looked and as her candle gradually brought out the features of the man before her a puzzled expression came into her face, and she finally said, "But isn't this Squire Blank?"

"Madam," replied the old lawyer, assuming a judicial air, "that is entirely (his) immaterial."

The particular classes of stone used in sharpening edge tools, such as razors, knives, scythes, etc., are hard, compact and so very silicious that they readily wear down the hardest steel. They are varieties of slate derived from argillaceous schists of the paleozoic. These stones are found in Turkey, Bohemia, Persia and the Harz mountains, in Styria, in the United States, Spain, Peru and Siberia. One of the best American stones for hones comes from Arkansas.

Gobelins.

The Rise and Decadence of the Art of Tapestry.

Each year the problem of finding recruits to keep alive the glories of Gobelin becomes more difficult. It is the converse of one of Adam Smith's "canons of wages," the difficulty of attainment does not in this case secure a corresponding remuneration, and youths, or their parents for them, think of occupations which permit their children to become wage earners at a much earlier age than if they settled down as artists of Gobelin.

Gobelin takes its rise from the time of Henry IV. of France, who brought workers from Bearne, near the Pyrenees, as Henry of Navarre. His edict is dated 1607. In their infancy the ateliers produced "Moise sauve des eaux" and "Artemise" and "La fille de Jephthe." The zenith of the glory of Gobelin was under Louis XIV. This was under the direction of Colbert.

Under Lebrun marvel succeeded marvel, which found place in the palaces of the kings or princely dwellings. Among the masterpieces, says the London Globe, were "Les Elements" and "Les Saisons," "L'Histoire du Roi," "Les Enfants Jardiniers," "Les Mois" and "L'Histoire d'Alexandre." Suddenly there was a change. The workers no longer created, they copied pictures, and with the diffusion of pictorial copies commenced the decadence of the art of tapestry.

THE STOLEN BICYCLE.

An Exciting Chase That Ended in an All Around Capture.

A cyclist had left his machine outside a shop, and he emerged just in time to see a man riding away on it. Three other cyclists had put up for refreshments close by, and one of their machines, a tandem, was seized by the victim of the theft for the purpose of pursuit. This last act was observed by a passing pedestrian, who instantly and indignantly mounted the remaining machine and dashed after the cyclist who was chasing the thief.

A second later the owner of the last mentioned bicycle rushed wildly out, and, seeing no other bicycle handy on which to give chase, jumped into a cab. Here there were three men on stolen cycles and the fourth man in a cab all racing as if mad. The man on the tandem finally caught the thief, the next man caught him and the next caught him, and so on, until there was a very complicated row.

In the end there was an explanation. The thief was locked up and ultimately sentenced for two months. Evidently his pride was more wounded by the street episode than by the sentence, for he boastfully declared that no single man on a tandem ever would have caught him had he not been riding in long trousers.—Exchange.

The Wealth of Croesus.

Croesus was the king of Lydia, a state in Asia Minor, and ascended the throne about 562 B. C. His name has ever been a synonym for wealth, "as rich as Croesus" having been a proverb from his own time, but the most liberal estimates of his property, so far as descriptions of it have come down to us, make it worth in our money about $10,000,000. His riches were derived from gold mines near Sardis, the capital of Lydia, and from the plunder of numerous surrounding states. The kingdom of Lydia was overrun by Cyrus, the Persian conqueror, and, according to the best authorities, Croesus was taken prisoner and kept in the train of Cyrus. The court of Croesus was considered one of the most refined and elegant of ancient times, and the ruins of the royal palace and the other magnificent buildings are still to be seen on the site of Sardis.

A Costly Experiment.

An enterprising Australian millionaire named Leonard took a trip to Peru some years ago. He saw great flocks of the alpaca wandering on the Andes. Being a woolgrower himself, he was struck with their splendid fleece. He resolved to buy some and take them home. He found that the Peruvian government absolutely prohibited their export. He tried by chartering a special ship to smuggle some off, but was unsuccessful. Then the idea occurred to him of taking them out of the country eastward. He bought a large flock, engaged trusty men and had the creatures driven over the passes, 18,000 feet above sea level, and then clean across the continent to Buenos Aires. This little expedition cost him $15,000. But the long march had so weakened the alpacas that they all died on the voyage.

BREAD SHEETING.

The Sun Dried Dough of the Land of the Pyramids.

In the land of the pyramids whenever coffee is brought into a visiting guest the sun cooked bread sheeting is always served therewith. It looks like so much chamomile leather and is of sweetish taste, being compounded solely of flour and the expressed pulp of sultana raisins. It is clearly to handle and can be crumpled up in the hand without fracture.

This bread sheeting is a most important article of interior commerce, per camel caravans, among the Asiatic kaffirs and bazaars. It has for thousands of years been their combined bread, cracker and cake all in one.

The bread sheeting is used in the countries of origin as minor articles of furniture and furnishing, just as the natives of the tropics make a bewildering variety of uses of the coconut palm and its products, as sun blinds, awnings, lanterns, cashiers for holding papers and so on through a dozen uses. In their dry climates these uses are practicable, but in rainy seasons the goods if wetted collapse like paper almost.

Even in Manhattan among the Italian bakers you see the peculiar trolleys work hardtack bread (made in big ringed sheets about a yard square) made to do duty as temporary shelving. It will not stand much weight, but is used for drying out light articles, as the air strikes the objects both from below and above.—Bakers' Weekly.

Use and Ornament.

Mr. Newrich, the multimillionaire, was furnishing the library of his magnificent mansion. "Let me see," he mused. "You've got the order for that $5,000 edition de luxe of Dickens bound in levant?"

"Yes, sir," replied the bookseller.

"And the $10,000 set of Shakespeare?"

"Yes, sir."

"And the standard authors bound in calf—Thackeray, Scott, Washington Irving, Cooper and all them there other fellows?"

"Yes, sir; I have a memorandum of the entire list."

"Well, then, that's off my mind," said Mr. Newrich of Pittsburg, with a sigh of relief. "Now, what I want is something to read. Say, have you got a complete set of 'Old Scent'?"—New York Times.

A Hero.

Tommy's mother had made him a present of a toy shovel and sent him out in the sand lot to play with his baby brother. "Take care of baby now, Tommy, and don't let anything hurt him," was mamma's parting injunction. Presently screams of anguish from baby sent the distracted parent flying to the sand lot. "For goodness' sake, Tommy, what has happened to the baby?" said she, trying to soothe the wailing infant.

"There was a naughty fly biting him on top of his head, and I killed it with the shovel," was the proud reply.—Lippincott's.

Because.

She—I tell you the moral superiority of woman is recognized in the language itself. There isn't any feminine for "rascals," is there?

He—Of course not, but that's because—

She—That's because there are no feminine rascals!—Chicago Tribune.

They Were Shady.

Bung—So you have succeeded in tracing back my ancestors? What is your fee? Genealogist—Twenty guineas for keeping quiet about them.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Knew All Their Tricks.

"Gentlemen," said Frederick the Great, "I am entirely dissatisfied with the cavalry. The regiments are completely out of hand; there is no accuracy, no order; the men ride like tailors. I beg that this may not occur again and that each of you will pay more attention to his duty, but I know how things go on. You think I am not up to your dodges, but I know them all and will recapitulate them."

"When the season for riding drill comes on the captain sends for the sergeant major and says: 'I have an appointment this morning at —. Tell the first lieutenant to take the rides.' So the sergeant major goes to the senior subaltern and gives him the message, and the latter says: 'What! The captain will be away? Then I am off hunting. Tell the second lieutenant to take the men.' And the second lieutenant, who is probably still in bed, says: 'What, both of them away? Then I will stay where I am. I was up till 3 this morning at a dance. Tell the cornet I am ill and he must take the rides.' Finally the cornet remarks: 'Look here, sergeant major, what is the good of my standing out there in the cold? You know all about it much better than I do. You go and take them.' And so it goes, and what must be the end of it all? What can I hope to do with such cavalry before the enemy?"—History of Frederick the Great.

ADVERTISING. When Properly Employed, When Truthfully Done and placed in the Right Medium—THE NEWSPAPER—carries a man more safely and more certainly to the heaven of wealth than commercial genius.

Genius without advertising is apt to limp about on crutches in this age of enterprise if it should attempt to eschew printers' ink and well-written advertising copy.

No man can exist without food—no business can survive to any noticeable extent without publicity.

The little store of ten years ago, that did not advertise in some form, is the little store of to-day—doing business in the same crude way, making no progress.

The little store of ten years ago, that did advertise is not the little store of to-day—it is a great establishment, glowing, throbbing with life and activity—doing business in the modern way, keeping time with enterprising ideas and constantly forging ahead.

A business that does not grow is going backward. For the backward business there is but one safe and sane remedy—advertising done in the right way in the home newspaper, whether its circulation be large or small.

The very fact that a newspaper exists is proof that it is read by somebody, and these somebodies will read advertisements if they are in the paper.—Newspaper-dom.

HARD NAMES.

Some in Scotland That Aroused a Lady From Schenectady.

Few Americans have trouble in pronouncing the name "Schenectady," although the spelling of it is not always so easy. In "Talks In a Library" Lawrence Hutton tells of an old Scotch laird whose guest one summer was a young lady named Miss Cunningham, who came from Schenectady. "Skinney-taddy" and "Skenk-ter-addy" were as near to it as the laird usually came.

In his eyes the orthographic and orthoepic beam of his own titles and appellations was entirely eclipsed by the marvelous more known as Schenectady, and he never realized that the inhabitants of the counties of Schenectady, Cataraugus and Chemung in the state of New York might safely bite their thumbs at the residents of the shire of Fife in the kingdom of Scotland until his eyes were opened somewhat rudely and his sight was in a way restored.

"Uncle John," I said to him suddenly one evening when he was in convulsions over Schenectady—"Uncle John, what is the name of your place?"

"Baldutho."

"And of your parish?"

"Aroncranch."

"And of your postoffice?"

"Pittenweem."

"And of your railway station?"

"you, as laird of Baldutho (the vernacular form), elder of the kirk of Aroncranch, receiving your letters and papers at Pittenweem and taking your trains at Killnocker, think Schenectady funny!"

"How children do coin words and phrases for a household!" exclaimed the young mother. "When my little boy first began to talk he called every sort of opening a 'door.' It was an association of ideas for him, and he applied it to everything. One night as his father took off his shoes a hole in his stocking was disclosed. 'Funny door, funny door!' exclaimed the little chap gleefully. And now in our family a hole in the stocking is always a 'funny door.'"—New York Press.

PEARY'S EVIDENCE AGAINST DR. COOK

Alleges Cook Did Not Reach North Pole.

PROOF OF STATEMENT.

Witnesses Quoted Are Cook's Eskimo Boys.

NATIVES LAUGH AT CLAIM.

Point Out Limit of Explorer's Jour- ney on Carefully Prepared Map.

New York, October 12.—The following statement of Commander Robert E. Peary, which he submitted, together with the accompanying map, to the Peary Arctic Club in support of his contention that Dr. Cook did not reach the North Pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic Club.

(Entered according to Act of congress, in the year 1904, by the Peary Arctic Club, in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.)

INTRODUCTION BY PEARY.

Some of my reasons for saying that Dr. Cook did not go to the North Pole will be understood by those who read the following statements of the two Eskimo boys who went with him, and who told me and others of my party where he did go. Several Eskimos who started with Dr. Cook from Anoratok in February, 1908, were at Etah when I arrived there in August, 1908. They told me that Dr. Cook had with him, after they left, two Eskimo boys or young men, two sledges and some twenty dogs. The boys were I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah. I had known them from their childhood. One was about eighteen and the other about nineteen years of age.

On my return from Cape Sheridan and at the very first settlement I touched (Nerke, near Cape Chalon) in August, 1900, and nine days before reaching Etah, the Eskimos told me, in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had wintered in Jones Sound and that he had told the white men at Etah that he had been a long way north, but that the boys who were with him, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, said that this was not so. The Eskimos laughed at Dr. Cook's story. On reaching Etah, I talked with the Eskimos there and with the two boys and asked them to describe Dr. Cook's journey to members of my party and myself. This they did in the manner stated below.

(Signed) R. E. PEARY.

SIGNED STATEMENT OF PEARY, BARTLETT, McMILLAN, BORUP AND HENSON, IN REGARD TO TESTIMONY OF COOK'S TWO ESKIMO BOYS.

The two Eskimo boys, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who accompanied Dr. Cook while he was away from Anoratok in 1908 and 1909, were questioned separately and independently, and were corroborated by Panikpah, the father of one of them (I-took-a-shoo), who was personally familiar with the first third and the last third of their journey, and who said that the route for the remaining third, as shown by them, was as described to him by his son after his return with Dr. Cook.

Notes of their statements were taken by several of us, and no one of us has any doubt that they told the truth.

Their testimony was unshaken by cross-examination, was corroborated by other men in the tribe, and was elicited neither by threats nor promises, the two boys and their father talking of their journey and their experiences in the same way that they would talk of any hunting trip.

To go more into details: One of the boys was called in, and with a chart on the table before him, was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, pointing out with his finger on the map, but not making any marks upon it.

As he went out, the other boy came in and was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, also without making any marks, and indicated the same route and the same details as did the first boy.

When he was through, Panikpah, the father of I-took-a-shoo, a very intelligent man, who was in the party of Eskimos that came back from Dr. Cook from the northern end of Nanzen's Strait, who is familiar as a hunter with the Jones Sound region, and who has been in Commander Peary's various expeditions for some fifteen years, came in and indicated the same localities and details as the two boys.

Then the first boy was brought in again, and with a pencil he traced on the map their route, members of our party writing upon the chart where, according to the boy's statement, they had killed deer, bear, some of their dogs, seal, walrus and musk-oxen.

The second boy was then called in and the two went over the chart together, the second boy suggesting some changes as noted hereafter.

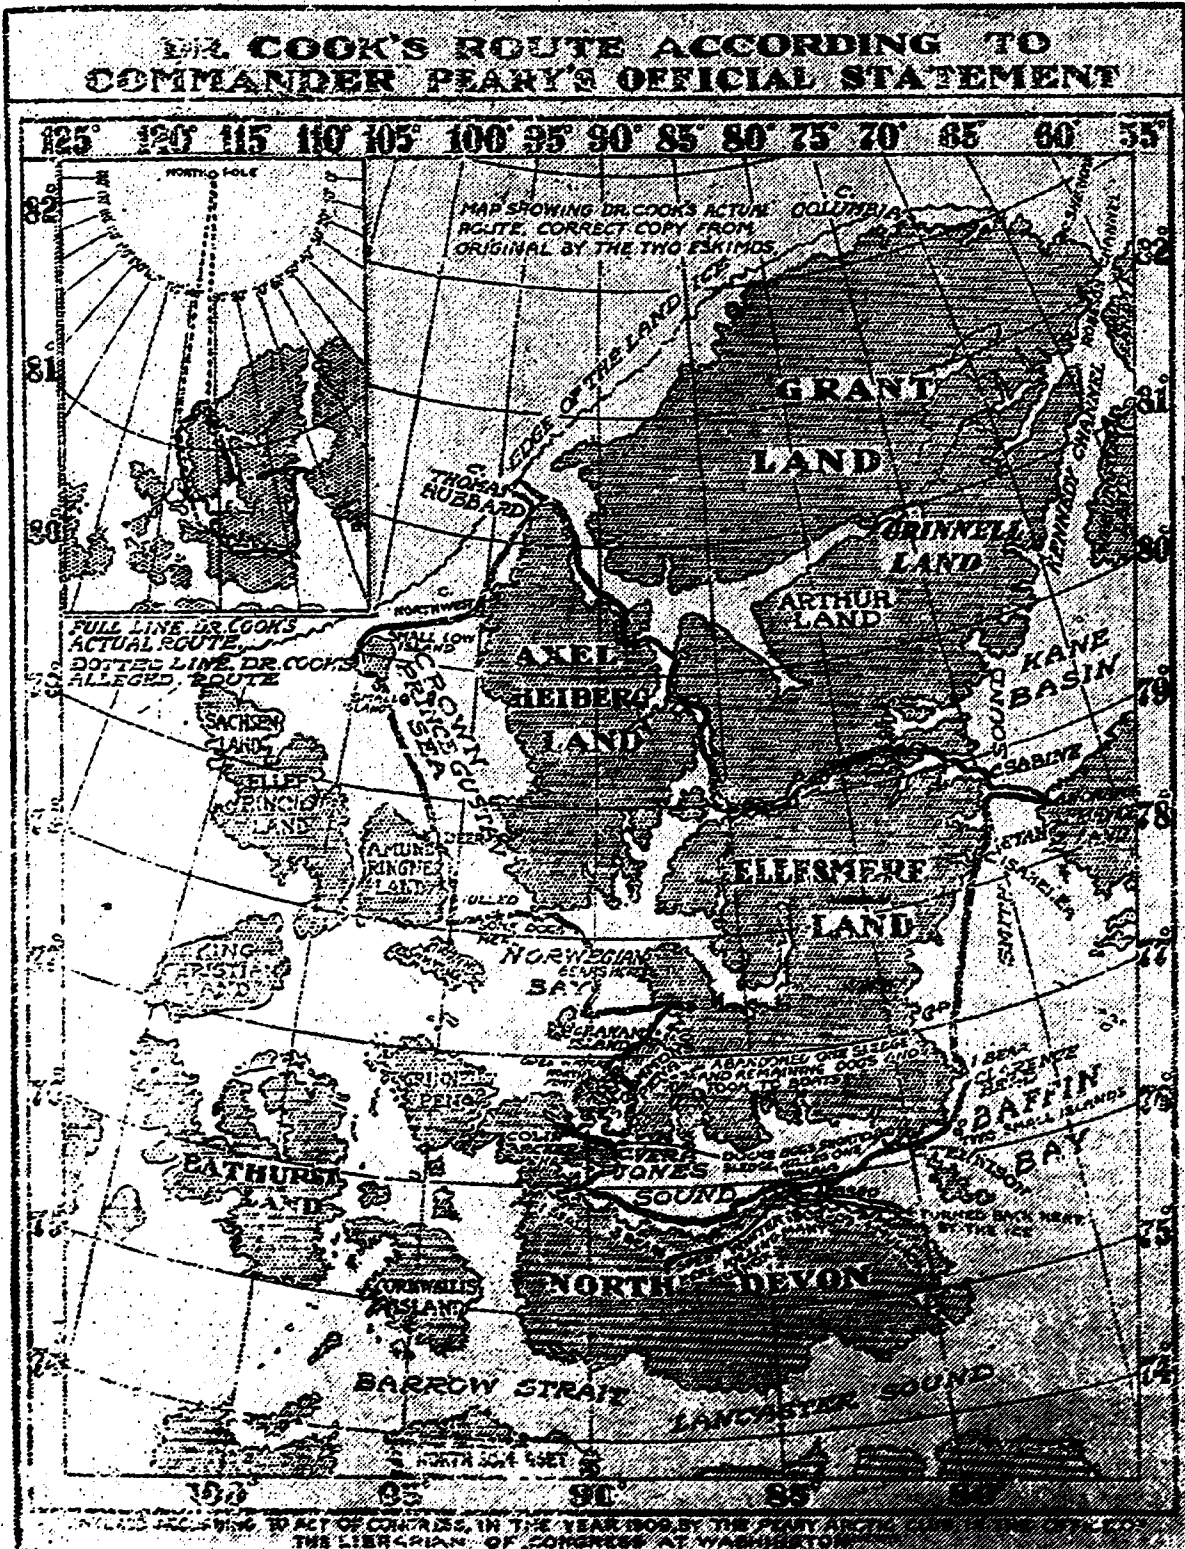

Finally, Panikpah, the father, was again called in to verify details of the portions of the route with which he was personally familiar.

The bulk of the boys' testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were awed by him.

Certain questions on independent lines from the direct narrative of the Eskimo boys were suggested by Commander Peary to some of us, and were put by us to the Eskimo boys.

Still later, Commander Peary asked the Eskimo boys two or three casual questions on minor points that had occurred to him.

During the taking of this testimony, it developed that Dr. Cook had told these boys, as he told Mr. Whitney and Billy Pritchard, the cabin boy, that they must not tell Commander Peary or any of us anything about their journey, and the boys stated Dr. Cook had threatened them if they

The accompanying map is reproduced exactly from the original submitted by Commander Peary with his official statement by which he hopes to prove that Dr. Frederick A. Cook never reached the north pole. The map purports to have been traced out in the presence of the two Eskimos who were with Dr. Cook and, according to Peary, is based upon their actual statements as to Cook's entire journey. The dotted line in the small map in the upper left hand corner is the route which Dr. Cook says he took on his journey to and from the pole after leaving Cape Thomas Hubbard. The irregular line extending northeast from Isachsen Land is the edge of the land ice, beyond which, Peary declares, Dr. Cook did not venture.

Facts For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Minneapolis, Minn.:—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women, I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. Within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefits to be derived from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. John G. Moldan, 2115 Second St. North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

should tell anything.

The narrative of these Eskimos is as follows:

They, with Dr. Cook, Francke and nine other Eskimos, left Anoratok, crossed Smith's Sound to Cape Sabine, slept in Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor, then went through Rice Strait to Buchanan Bay. After a few marches Francke and three Eskimos returned to Anoratok.

Dr. Cook, with the others, then proceeded up Flagler Bay, a branch of Buchanan Bay, and crossed Ellesmere Land through the valley pass at the head of Flagler Bay, indicated by Commander Peary in 1898, and utilized by Sverdrup in 1899, to the head of Sverdrup's "Bay Flord" on the west side of Ellesmere Land.

Their route then lay out through this flord, thence north through Sverdrup's "Heuerka Sound" and Nansen Strait. On their way they killed musk-oxen and bear, and made caches, arriving eventually at a point on the west side of Nansen Strait (shore of Axel Heiberg Land of Sverdrup, south of Cape Thomas Hubbard).

A cache was formed here and the four Eskimos did not go beyond this point. Two others, Kooioothwah and Inughtio, went on one more march with Dr. Cook and the two boys, helped to build the snow igloo, then returned without sleeping.

(These two Eskimos brought back a letter from Dr. Cook to Francke, dated the 17th of March. The two men rejoined the other four men who had been left behind, and the six returned to Anoratok, arriving May 7th. This information was obtained not from the two Eskimo boys, but from the six men who returned and from Francke himself, and was known to us in the summer of 1908, when the Roosevelt first arrived at Etah. The information is inserted here as supplementary to the narrative of the two boys.)

After sleeping at the camp where the last two Eskimos turned back, Dr. Cook and the two boys went in a northerly or northwesterly direction with two sledges and twenty odd dogs, one more march, when they encountered rough ice and a lead of open water. They did not enter this rough ice, nor cross the lead, but turned westward or southwestward a short distance and returned to Heiberg Land at a point west of where they had left the cache and where the four men and turned back.

Here they remained four or five sleeps, and during that time I took a shoe went back to the cache and got his gun which he had left there, and a few items of supplies.

When asked why only a few supplies were taken from the cache, the boys replied that only a small amount of provisions had been used in the few days since they left the cache, and that their sledges still had all they could carry, so that they could not take more.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it.

These questions and answers were as follows:

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out on the ice? Ans. No.

Did they kill any bear or seal while out on the ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard? Ans. No.

Did they kill or lose any of their dogs while out on the ice? Ans. No.

With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many dogs did they have? Ans. Did not remember exactly, but something over twenty.

How many sledges did they have when they got back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they have any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes: the sledges still had about all they could carry, so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they then went southwest along the northwest coast of Heiberg Land to a point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going, to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

The size and position of this island, as drawn by the first boy, was criticized by the second boy as being too large and too far to the west, the second boy calling the attention of the first to the fact that the position of the island was more nearly in line with the point where they had left Heiberg Land (Cape Northwest) and the channel between Amund Ringnes Land and Eller Ringnes Land.

This criticism and correction was accepted by the first boy, who started to change the position of the island, but was stopped, as Commander Peary had given instructions that no changes or erasures were to be made in the route as drawn by the Eskimos on the chart.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Eller Ringnes and Amund Ringnes Lands). From the island they journeyed toward the left hand one of these two lands (Amund Ringnes Land), passing a small island which they did not visit. Arriving at the shore of Amund Ringnes Land, the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above italicized portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the Pole and back, and the entire time during which he could possibly have made any attempts to go to it.

The answers of the Eskimo boys to Commander Peary's series of independent questions, showing that they killed no game, made no caches, lost no dogs, and returned to the land with loaded sledges, makes their attainment of the Pole on the trip North of Cape Thomas Hubbard a physical and mathematical impossibility, as it would demand the subsistence of three men and over twenty dogs during a journey of ten hundred and forty geographical miles on less than two sledge loads of supplies.

If it is suggested that perhaps Dr. Cook got mixed and that he reached the Pole, or thought he did, between the time of leaving the northwest coast of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest, and his arrival at Ringnes Land, where they killed the deer, we must then add to the date of Dr. Cook's letter of March 17th, at or near Cape Thomas Hubbard, the subsequent four or five sleeps at that point, and the number of days required to march from Cape Thomas Hubbard to Cape Northwest (a distance of some sixty nautical miles), which would advance his date of departure from the land to at least the 25th of March, and be prepared to accept the claim that Dr. Cook went from Cape Northwest (about latitude eighty and a half degrees North) to the Pole, a distance of five hundred and seventy geographical miles, in twenty-seven days.

After killing the deer they then travelled south along the east side of Ringnes Land to the point indicated on the chart, where they killed another deer. They then went east across the south part of Crown Prince Gustav Sea to the south end of Heiberg Land, then down through Norwegian Bay, where they secured some bears, but not until after they had killed some of their dogs, to the east side of Graham Island; then eastward to the little bay marked "Eid's Flord" on Sverdrup's chart; then southwest to Hell's Gate and Simon's Peninsula.

Here for the first time during the entire journey, except as already noted off Cape Thomas H. Hubbard, they encountered open water. On this point the boys were clear, emphatic and unshakable. They spent a good deal of time in this region, and finally abandoned their dogs and one sledge, took to their boat, crossed Hell's Gate to North Kent, up into Norfolk Inlet, then back along the north coast of Collin Archer Peninsula to Cape Vera, where they obtained fresh eider duck eggs. Here they cut the remaining sledge off, that is shortened it, as it was awkward to transport with the boat, and near here they killed a walrus.

The statement in regard to the fresh eider duck eggs permits the approximate determination of the date at this time as about the first of July. (This statement also serves, if indeed anything more than the inherent straightforwardness and detail of their narrative were needed, to substantiate the accuracy and truthfulness of the boys' statement. This locality of Cape Vera is mentioned in Sverdrup's narrative as the place where during his stay in that region he obtained eider ducks' eggs.)

From Cape Vera they went on down into the southwest angle of Jones Sound, where they killed a seal; thence east along the south coast of the Sound, killing three bears at the point noted on the map, to the peninsula known as Cape Sparbo on the map, about midway on the south side of Jones Sound. Here they killed some musk-oxen and, continuing east, killed four more at the place indicated on the chart, and were finally stopped by the pack ice at the mouth of Jones Sound. From here they turned back to Cape Sparbo, where they wintered and killed many musk-oxen.

After the sun returned in 1909 they started, pushing their sledge, across Jones Sound to Cape Tennyson; thence along the coast to Clarence Head (passing inside of two small islands not shown on the chart, but drawn on it by the boys), where they killed a bear; thence across the broad light in the coast to Cadogan Flord; thence around Cape Isabella and up to Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor near Cape Sabine, where they found a seal cached for them by Peary. I took a shoe's father. From here they crossed Smith Sound on the ice, arriving at Anoratok.
