Recreation and Reading Rooms

The liberal patronage bestowed on this institution by the young men of Antrim last winter encourages Our Brotherhood of the Baptist Church to open the rooms again this winter.

The formal opening will take place on Wednesday evening, Dec. 1st. The vestry rooms of the church will be opened every Wednesday evening during the winter between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock.

The reading table as heretofore will be generously equipped with papers and magazines of every kind as far as demand requires. A full supply of table games new and old are being provided and others will be added as occasion requires.

The privileges of these rooms are freely extended to the men of Antrim and vicinity, and to all boys of twelve years and over. Further information will be gladly supplied by any member of the Brotherhood or by applying at the rooms any evening.

Weather Proverbs—Animals and Rain.

If the bull leads the van in going to pasture rains must be expected; but if he is careless and allows the cows to precede him, the weather will be uncertain.

When the ass begins to bray, Be sure we shall have rain that day.

When cats sneeze, it is a sign of rain. When cats are snoring; foul weather follows.

When a cat scratches itself or scratches on a log or tree, it indicates approaching rain.

Expect rain when cattle low and gaze at the sky.

When cows refuse to go to pasture in the morning it will rain before night.

When a cow stops and shakes her foot, it indicates that there is bad weather behind her.

When dogs or cats eat grass in the morning, it will certainly rain before night.

Dogs digging or making deep holes in the ground is said to indicate rain.

If a dog howls when some one leaves the house it indicates rain.

Dogs refusing meat is an indication of rain.

When a donkey blows his horn, 'Tis time to house your hay and corn.

The goat will utter her peculiar cry before rain.

The hair of a horse appears rough just before rain.

When horses and cattle stretch out their necks and sniff the air it will rain.

Horses foretell the coming of rain by snorting more than ordinary, and appearing restless and uneasy in the road.

When horses assemble in the corner of a field with heads to leeward, expect rain.

When the moles throw up the earth, rain follows soon.

Much noise made by rats and mice indicates rain.

Cats climb table-legs, tree trunks, etc., before a storm.

When storm threatens, if cattle go under trees, it will be a shower; if they continue to feed, it will probably be a continuous rain.

When cows fall their milk, expect stormy and cold weather.

Domestic animals stand with their heads from the coming storm.

Foxes barking at night indicates storm.

When oxen or sheep collect together as if they were seeking shelter, a storm may be expected.

Prairie dogs bank up their holes with grass before a storm.

Rabbits seek the woods before a severe storm.

Wolves always howl more before a storm.

Deer and elk come down from the mountains at least two days before a storm.

ALL GIVE THANKS!

Everybody Has Something to be Thankful For!

As we have remarked at different times in the years we have conducted the REPORTER, it is not within our province to preach a sermon—from a pulpit—yet occupying the desk that we are proud of, it becomes our duty to occasionally deliver to our readers a few thoughts that perhaps are read by a larger number of people than would care to listen to us if we delivered the same orally, and probably to a much larger audience than gathers in all the churches in Antrim on any one Sunday or possibly a number of Sundays.

At present, the thoughts of Thanksgiving are uppermost in our mind: what a great lot we have, even in our most humble condition, to be thankful for; health, happiness, comfort, friendship, home, and so many things when one stops to enumerate them,—they come to us faster than we had thought.

In earlier years, Thanksgiving sermons contained much of this trend of thought which was very helpful to all hearers; the seed was sown on good ground, sprang up and bore fruit. It is too often that the set proclamations contain little to instill into the minds of the rising generation; and also to be regretted in a measure that too many speakers in the pulpit drift altogether too far away from this thought at this season of the year and in fact all seasons. Our readers will understand that the REPORTER does not wish to dictate in this matter, but finds it impossible to refrain from stating the case as it appears to us.

The one great thought in the minds of our forefathers, possibly the greatest, was that of thankfulness. It is most probable that the many and increasing blessings to this land and her population—individuals if you please—have come as a result of much thankfulness in years gone by. How sad and narrow to reap the benefits of all this and not have in ourselves that which responds in acts or even thoughts of thankfulness; for if we have the thoughts the acts are sure to present themselves!

Some may say that a newspaper is overstepping its bounds in presenting this matter, but we must say that the pulpit and press in this respect have one and the same duty to perform.

No Case on Record

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure.

Bert Paige left Saturday for Connecticut Lake to join a hunting party consisting of Benj. Cochrane of this town, James Ross and others from Bennington. They will return in about two weeks.

Results of Prohibition

Leaving the question "Does Prohibition prohibit" to be best answered by the fear of the liquor dealers who claim it does not, it is interesting to note that many states report an appreciable decrease in tuberculosis and that the Department of Vital Statistics at Washington asserts the crusade against the White Plague is already showing unmistakable progress, and results. The United States was not the first by any means to attack in a general way the march of this dreaded disease but it is probable that there is no country in which so much popular attention has been directed toward its prevention or in which education on the subject has been so widely diffused. Nearly every state in the Union has state and local societies organized to distribute information about the disease and to look after those cases among the poor and ignorant which owing to the singular character of the infection are the greatest public menace. With the spread of the benignant gospel of fresh air as a cure for tuberculosis came the opening of houses and especially sleeping rooms to the outside air and a new enthusiasm for the out of door life. To be sure these are running into fads and hobbies and wild manias but the beneficent result is apparent in the statistics of all but three in the Union which report lowered mortality from tuberculosis. The three states referred to are those best known as health resorts for consumptives and draw their increased quota of sufferers from other states. It is not too optimistic to believe that the time is not so far distant when tuberculosis will have ceased to be a scourge.

THE SOOTHING SPRAY of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros, 56 Warren Street, New York.

"History shows that the high cost of living is the beginning of every national decline." In these words according to advices from Washington, James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, describes what he considers to be one of the greatest menaces to the United States. He insisted that the great statesmen of our day should turn their attention for a moment from intricate legislative questions to the prices which are being paid for articles of food and dress. These prices he claims are exorbitant and fall entirely on the masses while the rich do not suffer from them. His words will no doubt be listened to with attention throughout the country.

THE EDITORIAL PEN

Makes a Few Timely Dashes of a Readable Nature

This motto of an exchange is a pretty good one: "Kick the kickers and boost the boosters!"

"Consistency, thou art a jewel!" How many, many times in the course of a twelve-month one is reminded of this; and in looking about us, how rare these jewels are!

President Taft thinks women should not marry except "for a life looked forward to with unmixed happiness". Looking forward to a life of unmixed happiness is an easy job for any girl. The rub comes when they try to realize it.

This country by having no postal savings bank allowed the neat sum of $431,956,623 to slip through her fingers in a single year. This is the amount of savings sent home for safe keeping last year by our foreign born citizens who have government savings banks in their own land.

If the Cook—Peary controversy could have taken place a year ago it might have all been decided in half the time. We had Mr. Roosevelt with us then. Still it keeps us from being too lonesome to see that even in his absence the Ananias Club continues to secure new members of distinction.

That which is hardly explainable is the fact that the water in the Contoocook river is considerable higher than it was two weeks ago; also, in digging down in the earth moisture is found quicker now than at that time, and some say that there is now more water in their wells than there was two weeks ago. We have had a small amount of rain and considerable damp weather.

Resolutions

Adopted by Antrim Grange No. 98 P. of H. upon the death of George W. Butterfield.

Whereas Our Heavenly Father has in his infinite wisdom removed from our order our brother George W. Butterfield, and whereas our intimate relations, held with him in our society makes it befitting that we record our appreciation of him, therefore

Resolved, That his faithful attendance and service to our organization be held as a grateful remembrance.

Resolved, That the removal of such a life leaves a shadow deeply realized by his friends and neighbors in the community in which he lived.

Resolved, That with deep sympathy with the bereaved wife and children of the deceased we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the records of this grange, a copy printed in the Antrim Reporter, and a copy forwarded to the bereaved family.

High School Department.

Miss Agnes Newey was a visitor in school last Wednesday.

The schools will close this Wednesday afternoon for the remainder of the week.

Now watch for the posters of the play to be given early in December by the members of the High school.

The entertainment last Friday evening proved to be a very enjoyable affair, especially to the children, and a good sum was netted the Senior class.

Don't forget the basket-ball game Thursday evening. This is the annual Thanksgiving game with the Alumni and a fast time is anticipated. Paige, Clement and Martin of the fast '06 five will be in the lineup for the Alumni.

The following item was not furnished by the regular correspondent but is a fairly well authenticated report: A certain person was made to very forcibly realize the existence of the new wire fence bordering on the school grounds, when he abscondingly ran into it on Friday afternoon of the past week! We trust that such a serious catastrophe may not happen again!

State Trade Report

As reported to Bradstreet's manufacturing interests are well employed and there is a decided trend toward a better business, there being more orders and more inquiries. The high price of raw material in some lines is somewhat of a disturbing element and cotton mills will quite generally curtail; this will be only an hour or so a week and will not materially affect the amount of wages earned. With cool weather, especially the first of the week, retail trade has improved and is generally of good volume. Wholesale trade is good and collections fair. Lumbermen have begun operations, are already yarding the logs. There will probably be a good cut, but it will depend largely on the kind of winter weather we have. Lack of rain continues to be a very serious problem, and lakes and streams are compelled to use their auxiliary power.

Forced into Exile

Wm. Upchurch of Glen Oak, Ct., was an exile from home. Mountain air, he thought would cure a frigid lung-racking cough that had defied all remedies for two years. After six months he returned, death dogging his steps. "Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery," he writes, "and after taking six bottles I am as well as ever." It saves thousands yearly from desperate lung diseases. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. It dispels Hoarseness and Sore Throat, Cures Grip, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, 50c and 1.00, trial bottle free, guaranteed by Resist Melancholy.

Never give way to melancholy. Resist it steadily, for the habit will encroach. I once gave a lady two and twenty recipes against melancholy—one was a bright fire; another to remember all the pleasant things said to and of her; another to keep a box of sugar plums on the chimney piece and a kettle simmering on the hob. I thought this more trifling at the moment, but have in after life discovered how true it is that these little pleasures often banish melancholy better than higher or more exalted objects; that no means ought to be thought too trifling which can oppose it either in ourselves or others.—Sydney Smith.

As Exemplified.
Having given the order twenty minutes before and seeing no indications that his driver was ready, the man with the sparse whiskers beckoned to a waiter.

"My friend," he said, "perhaps I have made a mistake. Is this a pay as you enter restaurant?"
"No, sir," responded the young man in the white apron yawning. "This is a dinner cooked while you wait restaurant."
Thereupon he resumed his dreamy, contemplative attitude, and the man with the sparse whiskers waited some more.—Chicago Tribune.

THEIR OWN DOCTORS.

Remedies That Animals When Sick Instinctively Select.

With the brute creation the simple remedies of nature generally suffice for their few ailments, and they are guided to them by instinct. We have been told how the mongoose cures himself when bitten by a cobra by eating a certain plant, and many country residents have seen a sick dog bury himself in the dirt.

Animals instinctively choose such food as is best suited to them. A large number of animals wash themselves and bathe, as elephants, stags, birds and ants. In fact, man may take a lesson in hygiene from the lower animals. Animals get rid of their parasites by using dust, mud, clay, etc. Those suffering from fever restrict their diet, keep quiet, seek darkness and airy places, drink water and sometimes even plunge into it.

When a dog has lost his appetite he eats that species of grass known as dog's grass (Elyonema). Cats also eat grass, catnip, etc. Sheep and cows when ill seek out certain herbs. An animal suffering from chronic rheumatism always keeps as much as possible in the sun. The warrior ants have regularly organized ambulances.

Lattre cut the antennae of an ant, and other ants came and covered the wounded part with a transparent fluid they secrete in their mouths. If a chimpanzee be wounded it stops the bleeding by placing its hand on the wound or dressing it with leaves and grass. When an animal has a wounded leg or arm hanging on it completes the amputation by means of its teeth. —Philadelphia North American.

HER CHOICE OF BOAS.

The Question That Is Now Puzzling the Man in the Case.

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair and the other a fine, expensive one.

Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa, and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is really very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word, but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident or—

Girls and Outdoor Games.

Women in their ambition to be athletic contend against innumerable difficulties. One of these difficulties is skirts, a second is waists and a third—almost insuperable—is hair, including hairpins. Watch a girl playing tennis or cricket, and after a more than usually brilliant effort she invariably puts her hands to her head, as if she expected something to fall off; if she did not. Energetic play is usually attended by dishevelment of the curly locks and a shedding of hairpins that cause the pretty athlete distress. Her pleasure in the game is marred by a sense of insecurity and a constant fear of consequences. No woman can wield a racket or essay a run with an undivided mind. Half her brain is occupied by the fearful surmise that her hair is coming down—a surmise, by the way, which is probably too painfully justified by the fact.—London Black and White.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR BAGNACHE KIDNEY AND BLADDER

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours: a brick dust sediment, or setting, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

I COULD dream tonight
That a world of light
Is round about me: a presence bright
Is poised above,
Like a brooding dove,
From whose wings rain
Over me
Peace and love.
Like a breath
Of balm
Is the nameless
Calm,
And my soul
Would sing
An eternal
Psalm
In a happiness
That is limitless
And a glow of faith I cannot express.

I could almost dream,
Past the things that seem,
I can see a country eternal gleam
As I raptly stand
On the borderland
And feel about me an angel band.

My soul awake
Its thirst would slake
At a fount immortal; its bread would break
At a feast sublime
In a fairer clime
This hallowed and happy Thanksgiving time.

So wafted o'er
To a shining shore,

I greet the loved ones who've gone before
And take my seat
At a banquet sweet
Where the fruits and viands of life we eat.

'Tis not afar,
Like a distant star,
The kingdom in which the eternal are.
'Tis here—its light
To an inward sight
Is gleaming—for heaven is mine to-night.

An Extra Thanksgiving.
A very notable proclamation independent of the regular autumnal Thanksgiving day, though in the official records it is designated not as a proclamation, but as "the president's address to the people for thanksgiving and prayer," was McKinley's promulgation of July 6, 1893. The president addressed his words "To the People of the United States of America." He referred to the fact that "to the yet fresh remembrance of the unprecedented success which attended the operations of the United States fleet in the bay of Manila on the 1st day of May last are added the tidings of the no less glorious achievements of the naval and military arms of our beloved country at Santiago de Cuba" and asked the people upon next assembling for divine worship "to offer thanksgiving to Almighty God, who has watched over our cause and brought nearer the success of the right and the attainment of just and honorable peace."

Overstocked.
Madge as the oldest of a family of girls has evidently heard and taken to heart the disappointment of her parents over the excessive femininity allotted by the fates to the family quiver.

When recently the fifth little daughter was born Madge was playing in the garden with one of her sisters and, as a neighbor considered, was decidedly rough with the child.
"Madge, don't treat your little sister so," remonstrated the neighbor. "You might kill her."
"Well, if I did," was the cool response, "there's plenty more in the house."—Philadelphia Ledger.

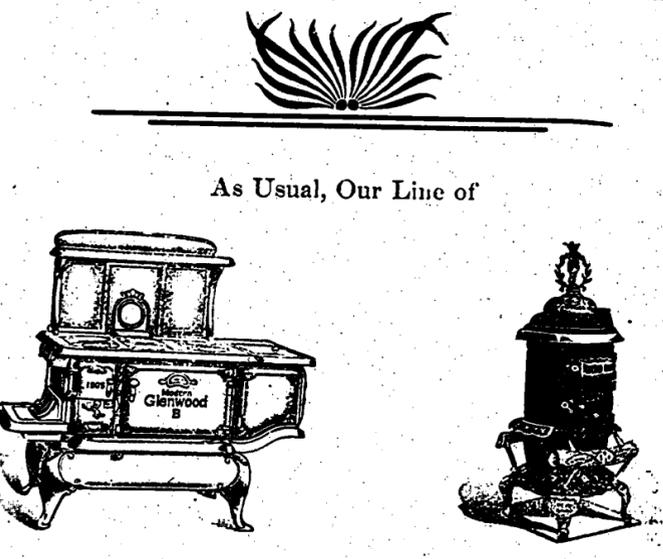

Unchanging Sport.
The sport of deerstalking is still the most natural and most nearly allied to the hunting of primitive man that is to be found in the British islands. The difference between the actual hunting of the hungry Pict and the stalking of the owner of a modern deer forest is little more than the weapon.—Field.

As the births of living creatures at first are ill shapen, so are all innovations, which are the births of time.—Bacon.

Personal and Local Gossip From a Nearby Community

Mrs. Anna Currier has returned home after spending several weeks in Boston.

Rev. W. R. Ward preached his farewell sermon Sunday. He and his mother left Monday afternoon for Plainville, Mass.

Mrs. Horace R. Hubbard is with her mother, Mrs. Hazeltine, who is sick in Campton.

Miss Minnie Tobie, a teacher in Milford, was at home for over Sunday.

Dr. Barrett of Peterborough was in town one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrell from Pittsfield visited Mrs. Morrell's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Henderson.

Fred Epps and family left Monday for Mississippi where they are to spend the winter.

Milton Starrett of New York is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Starrett.

Mrs. Mary Reed and Adam Snell, both of Manchester, were united in marriage at the home of Mrs. D. B. Tobie; ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. R. Hubbard, in the presence of several friends. The couple left town the following morning for Manchester, where they are to make their home.

Arthur James Miller and Mary Ella Woodbury were married last Thursday at the home of the bride's father by the Rev. H. R. Hubbard. The bride was becomingly gowned in white. The home was prettily decorated with ropes of evergreen for the occasion. There were thirty-two of the relatives of the bride and groom present. After the ceremony the guests enjoyed a wedding breakfast, after which the couple left for a short wedding trip amid the congratulations of those present.

Base Ball

For the base ball season just passed we raised by subscriptions $59.50, from private individuals $28.00, making a total of $87.50 which enabled us to pay the ground rent and buy the necessary supplies such as bats, mask, protector etc., and leave a small working capital which is very necessary, as there are very few games outside of holiday games that the gate receipts pay the expenses of a game. Those who have had any experience with a ball team know what the expense is to play a game, there are many who probably do not. Will state for the benefit of the latter that it costs from twenty to thirty dollars for a single game. The gate receipts usually would be from fifteen to twenty-two dollars. In order to stand an even chance with teams in surrounding towns we have had to have extra players from out of town. This is what every town has to do as there are some positions which otherwise could not be properly filled.

We have been fortunate in having more home players than most of the teams in other towns. Our boys have been loyal and have stood by the home team when some of them could have got pay for playing out of town. We have never paid a town player a dollar for playing, and we could not have a ball team if we had to. There have been several teams that have disbanded this year for this very reason. Peterboro has not had a team for the past three seasons for this reason, they had to pay four of their home players, and they could not stand the expense.

We are not going to ask for a dollar by subscription for the season of 1910, but we wish to raise, by giving two entertainments, a sufficient sum to start us going. The team is very much in need of new base ball suits and we hope to be able to get them before the season opens.

The first entertainment will be given by Miss Marion Wilson of New York, in Character Studies in Costume. Miss Wilson comes very highly recommended by those who have seen her entertainment. During the time required by Miss Wilson to change her costumes will be occupied by our best local talent under the direction of Mr. Scott.

Everybody wants to see a good ball team in Antrim, so come and enjoy a first class entertainment. You will get your money's worth and at the same time help us.

FRAUD ORDERS.

The Way Our Postoffice Inspectors Protect the Public.

When a person or firm that is unknown to the postoffice inspectors begins to receive large quantities of letters the inspectors begin to investigate. They visit the office of the concern and learn what they can. If it is a legitimate and honest business it is not interfered with. But if it looks "shady," if it happens to be a mining or land scheme that offers large returns upon the investment of money, the inspectors abstract a dozen or so of the incoming letters from the mail, get the names and addresses of the writers and then reveal the letters and permit them to be delivered.

The next move for the inspectors is to visit the persons whose names and addresses were taken from the letters and to get from them the correspondence of the supposed fraudulent concern. With this the inspectors "make" a case and either cause the arrest of the dishonest person or cause a "fraud order" to be issued against it.

A "fraud order" is simply an order made by the postal authorities at Washington declaring that such a business is fraudulent and warning the public against sending money to it. After that each letter coming addressed to that concern is stamped "fraud" in red ink across its face and returned to the sender.

Thousands of schemes for defrauding the public has been stopped by the postal authorities, and they are always on the watch for them.—Kansas City Star.

LANDES SHEPHERDS.

French Peasants Who Are Experts in Walking on Stilts.

There is a vast district in France where the entire community goes about and transacts its business on stilts. This district is called "Les Landes."

The inhabitants, who are among the poorest peasants in France, gain their subsistence by fishing, by such little agriculture as is possible and by keeping cows and sheep. The shepherds make use of their stilts for two purposes—first, because walking is quite impossible on account of the sage and undergrowth of brush, and, second, because the height of their stilts gives them a greater range of vision.

The stilts generally are about six or seven feet high. Near the top there is a support for the foot, which has a strong stirrup and strap, and still nearer the top a band of leather fastens the stilt firmly to the leg just below the knee. Some stilts, especially those made for fancy walking and for tricks, are even higher than seven feet, and the man who uses these—and he must be an expert—can travel as fast as ten miles an hour. The lower end of this kind of stilt is capped with a sheep bone to prevent its splitting.

Some of these Landes shepherds are wonderfully clever in the management of their stilts. They run races, step or jump over brooks, clear fences and walls and are able to keep their balance and equilibrium while stooping to the ground to pick up pebbles or to gather wild flowers. They fall prone upon their faces and assume their perpendicular without an effort and in a single moment after they have thus prostrated themselves.—Technical World Magazine.

A VICTIM OF WORRY.

The Man Who is Always Expecting Some Kind of Trouble.

There is always a cloud on his face because he is constantly expecting that something unfavorable is going to happen. There is going to be a slump in business, or he is going to have a loss, or somebody is trying to undermine him, or he is worried about his health, or fears his children will be sick or go wrong or be killed.

In other words, although he has achieved quite a remarkable success, yet he has never really had a happy day in his life. All his life this man has been chasing rainbows, thinking if he could only get a little farther on, a little higher up, he would be happy, but he is just as far from it as when a boy.

I believe this condition has all come from the habit of unhappiness which he formed during his hard boyhood and which he has never been able to overcome. He has learned to look for trouble, to expect it, and he gets it.

I have been his guest many a time. He has a beautiful home, a very charming wife, a most delightful family, but there is always the same cloud on his face, the same expression of anxiety, of unhappiness, of foreboding.

A little properly directed training in his boyhood would have changed his whole career, and he would have been a happy, joyous, harmonious man instead of being discordant and unhappy. There is everything in starting right. What is put into the first of life is put into the whole of life.—Success Magazine.

Self Control.

The self control of the Japanese, even in times of the utmost stress, and their courtesy, which begets quietness and discretion, are both brought out by a writer in St. Paul's Magazine.

"Cry. It will do you good," I said once to a poor Japanese woman who, crouching beside her dying husband, was controlling herself with an effort that would, I feared, make her ill.

She laid her little slim brown finger upon her trembling red lip and shook her head, then whispered, "It might disturb him."

"Cry. It will do you good," I said the next day, when the man was dead and she seemed almost prostrate with grief and overstrained self control.

"It would be most rude to make a hideous noise before the sacred dead," came the soft reply.

Bread and Pipe Baker.

The lecturer at the cooking school sometimes enlivened her remarks with an anecdote.

"The eighteenth century baker," she said, "was a pipe cleaner as well, just as the barber a little earlier was a surgeon. Everybody in those days smoked clay pipes, provided the same as cups or spoons by the coffee houses. Well, each morning a waiter carried his master's stock of pipes, some hundred perhaps, to the nearest bakery. The baker would boil them, then dip them in liquid lime, then bake them dry. They came out of the oven as sweet and white as new."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE.

The Discovery Made by a Poor French Peasant Boy.

A shepherd boy with a poor appetite discovered the secret of making Roquefort cheese. True as gospel! They swear by that story today in Roquefort, France, and if they only knew the lad's name they'd raise a monument to him. He was out tending sheep, and the sun smiting down hard, he went into a cavern to eat his cheese and rye bread. He failed to get away with all of it and threw a hunk of the cheese off to one side. It happened to drop on a natural shelf, and a few months later the boy found the cheese still there. He saw that it had undergone a constitutional change, for instead of being dry and hard it was moist and creamy. Besides, there were veins of greenish mold running through it. The boy took a nip, and the taste was so pleasing he carried a crumb home to his mother. She must have been a woman of intelligence, for no sooner had she tasted than she took one of the largest rolls of cheese from her dairy, had her son guide her to the cavern and placed it on the shelf. In due time the same change was wrought, and Roquefort cheese had arrived as an article of commerce. All the natural caverns around the quaint old town now are used for ripening cheese, and the women work in them with small oil lamps strapped around their chests.—New York Press.

Hood and His Aunt.

While still a boy Thomas Hood went to Scotland for a holiday trip and stayed with his aunt, who was a rigid Sabbatarian. He describes how upon one occasion the old lady was too indisposed to go to her beloved Kirk, but found entertainment in the description of the passersby furnished by her irrepressible "nevy." "Tammy, my man, keek out—wha's that?" "That's Ballie So-and-so's daughter, aunt, and isn't she making desperate love to young 'Somebody, who's walking by her side?" "The graceless hizzie! I'd wauk her, gin I were her mammy. Keek out again, Tam." "There's Mrs. Blank, aunt, and she's got on a grand silk gown and such a velvet mantle!" "Set us up, laddie! She, indeed, the sille wasterife bodle! She'd better far pay a' she's owing. Wha's neist?" "And so they would go on, the crabbid old Scotchwoman little suspecting half the 'stour' proceeded from the active imagination of her "nevy" to heighten the fun and draw her out.

PRESIDENT BUCHANAN'S DAY OF FASTING.

The first general proclamation appointing a fast day was issued by President James Buchanan Dec. 14, 1860, and reads as follows:

"Numerous appeals have been made to me by pious and patriotic associations and citizens, in view of the present distracted and dangerous condition of our country, to recommend that a day be set apart for humiliation, fasting and prayer throughout the Union. In compliance with their request and my own sense of duty I designate Friday, the 4th day of January, 1861, for this purpose and recommend that the people assemble on that day, according to their general forms of worship, to keep it as a solemn fast.

"The union of the states is at the present moment threatened with alarming and immediate danger. Panic and distress of a fearful character prevail throughout the land. Our laboring population are without employment and consequently deprived of the means of earning their bread. Indeed, hope seems to have deserted the minds of men. All classes are in a state of confusion and dismay, and the wisest counsels of our best and purest men are wholly disregarded.

"In this the hour of our calamity and peril to whom shall we resort for relief but to the God of our fathers? His omnipotent arm only can save us from the awful effects of our own crimes and follies, our own ingratitude and guilt toward our Heavenly Father.

"Let us, then, with deep contrition and penitent sorrow unite in humbling ourselves before the Most High in confessing our individual and national sins and in acknowledging the justice of our punishment. Let us implore him to remove from our hearts that false pride of opinion which would impel us to persevere in wrong for the sake of consistency rather than yield a just submission to the unforeseen exigencies by which we are now surrounded. Let us with deep reverence beseech him to restore the friendship and good will which prevailed in former days among the people of the several states and, above all, to save us from the horrors of civil war and blood guiltiness. Let our fervent prayers ascend to his throne that he will not desert us in this hour of extreme peril, but remember us as he did our fathers in the darkest days of the Revolution and preserve our constitution and our Union, the work of their hands, for ages yet to come. An omnipotent Providence may overrule existing evils for permanent good. He can make the wrath of man to praise him, and the remainder of wrath he can restrain. Let me invoke every individual in whatever sphere of life he may be placed, to feel a personal responsibility to God and his country for keeping this day holy and for contributing all in his power to remove our actual and impending difficulties.

"JAMES BUCHANAN."

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—“I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.”

“I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.”—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letters strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

and loveliness as evidenced in the summer life of the place.

“We ought to make Bennett's by noon and get back here by chore time,” was the schedule announced by old Jacob.

“If it gets any worse later in the day don't try to get back tonight. Just bed at the Bennett farm and dig toward us in the morning,” was the uncle's parting advice.

The storm did grow worse and grew worse so rapidly that by the time they had covered three-quarters of the distance to the Widow Bennett's Lawrence and old Jacob considered it advisable to detach the horses from the snowplow and, mounted one on each horse, make their way to the Bennett farm.

“Worst storm ever!” said the widow as she welcomed the two. “It doesn't look as if we should get out for days. I was telling Gertrude it was mighty lucky for her that she came yesterday, for she couldn't possibly have escaped a snow blockade had she taken a train later.”

Lawrence was all attention. “I say, little Gertrude isn't here, is she?” he asked.

“Well, I don't know as she is,” quizzically replied the grandmother. “Little Gertrude hasn't been in evidence for some years, but Miss Gertrude isn't far away.”

Soon there was a quick step and a laughing “Hello, Uncle Law!” as Gertrude came forward with a greeting that for its simplicity and heartiness and but for the ripened flower of womanhood before him might have carried him back a half dozen years.

Lawrence Greer was not one easily to be carried off his feet, but he was too evidently in the air this time even to disguise the fact cleverly.

“But I say, Gertrude, how on earth did it all happen?” looking her over from head to foot.

“Years, Uncle Law, just years and the getting into touch with new kinds of life. You said it would be just as I've found it and also that I would some day forget my Uncle Law and that he told me so. But, you see, I haven't forgotten either.” And she smiled as frankly as in the days when he told her, sitting on his knee, of the world that she would go into, through the gateways of school and experience and of the society, whose doors had not then opened to her.

That she hadn't forgotten him and those talks to the child Gertrude gave Lawrence a thrill of real pleasure.

That afternoon and evening was a rare day in Lawrence's experience of life. The storm raged furiously, and Lawrence, relieved of duty, gave himself up to the spell of a renewal of acquaintance that had all the novelty, piquancy and delight of a rare and agreeable discovery.

What astonished Lawrence most were the frequently recurring and flatteringly delightful evidences that wherever she had been and however occupied during these intervening years Gertrude had kept close tab on his own career and, furthermore, had found a certain inspiration therein. To be sure, that career had not been hidden under a bushel, for he was already sufficiently in public life to make him a marked man among influential men.

Gertrude's discriminating allusions to his work as commissioner, delegate or president of the board, to his work in correcting civic evils and in his other public activities brooked a particularly personal interest such as Lawrence had not before met and such as he least expected in any woman. His own mother and sisters had shown no such intelligent interest in his work, and even his brother, he was willing to wager, knew far less of his career than did this mere girl whom but yesterday, as it were, he had amused as a child, but a child that he loved.

Was it possible that in shaping the ideals of life for a child he had unwittingly offered himself as an ideal to the heart of that child? If so would she find him worthy or not now that the years had proved him? Was her admiration only admiration? If more than that might it not yet be that some one else already forestalled him in her affections? How was he to know?

It was near the close of the second day and drifting winds had made necessary a still further delay in breaking out the roads that opportunity offered itself to Lawrence to gain some light on the ever more tantalizing question of possible rivals in Gertrude's affections. As for himself, Lawrence felt that his entire world was already revolving around this one young woman. Gertrude was showing him some photographs accumulated during the years of her girlhood.

“But where is his picture?” asked Lawrence, interrupting her description of the photographs.

“I have never asked him for one.”

“Why so?”

“I preferred the picture in my heart to any other.”

“Does he know that?”

“He must know it—by now,” with a baffling smile.

“Can't you give me any idea of what he looks like, some picture of him before you consigned him to your heart? Of course you must have had a tintype experience on some early excursion, been snapped on the lawn or kodaked somewhere.”

An amused smile and a mischievous look came to her face as Gertrude took from its separate envelope a carefully protected little kodak picture of a youth not yet out of his teens and a girl just entering hers. He was bending down the branch of a mountain ash that the girl might pick the red berries. She was trying by standing on her toes to reach yet a little higher.

“Here is the gem of my collection, if you will see it. Perhaps you will recognize the subjects and recall the occasion. I have never become reconciled to the fact that you failed to bring those berries within my reach.”

With Lawrence's look of recognition and laugh at the all but forgotten circumstances of the time thus recalled came a puzzled expression, as if he were trying in some way to connect this picture with the question he had asked. At the same instant Gertrude's face assumed the expression of one who fears she has said a word too much, and she hastened to call Lawrence's attention to the writing on the back of the picture.

“You wrote that line above, ‘It's the reaching upward that counts.’ You asked me to write my own interpretation on the picture at some later time. I have never done so. I suppose I might do so now. What do you suggest?”

“Will you write what I suggest and as your own?” He was now watching her face with intensest look.

“Try me.” And she returned his gaze as directly.

“Write. It takes two together to capture the higher prizes of life.”

And Gertrude so wrote and underscored it besides.

Our Noblest Bird.

The noblest of birds is the turkey. As the baldheaded eagle is king, And now when the weather grows murky, With politics out of the lining, Other birds we may look at and long for While our hearts are with thankfulness puffed. But the bird of our hearts is all ready And waiting, poor dear, to get stuffed.

To the Cranberry.

Let others praise in fervent lays The plump Thanksgiving bird, And let them sing of leg and wing, With old Pegasus spared. Until his speed is great indeed And all is blithe and merry, But let me sing that splendid thing, The succulent cranberry.

O humble fruit, we've long been mute Upon thy many charms! With tipping zest you do your best To ward dyspepsia's harms. Both sour and sweet you sauce the meat, Your flavor does not vary. Retiring, coy, yet full of joy— O marvelous cranberry!

About you haunts a taste that tames The food that would be harsh, Your plump skin's filled with dew, distilled Above the sun kissed marsh. No grape, I'll say, of old Tokay Or from Oporto airy Drips with a wine as rich as thine, O excellent cranberry!

Of ruby hue, a jewel, too, To grace the festive board, With lavish heart you give your part— Give all your spicy hoard. When eager lipped we've sat and sipped The juice that vies with sherry, Ah, of the feast you're not the least, Mellifluous cranberry!

So let them praise in fitting lays The turkey and the pie, But let me sing that splendid thing That makes the heart beat high. I would not waste one shade of taste, I'd drain the dictionary To find more ways to sing the praise, Of thee, O rare cranberry!

A SNOWED-IN THANKSGIVING

By EFF HATCH

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

LAWRENCE GREER, looking from his bedroom window, could see nothing but snow as far as his eye traveled. It was snow on the window panes, snow on shrub and tree and hill, snow everywhere in all sorts of fantastic shapes and with yet more coming. The first big storm of the season was descending on the region whither he had come but two days before to spend his Thanksgiving vacation from city office duties in his uncle's home. Already roads and even fences were obliterated.

“Hello, Lawrence!” came the voice of his uncle from below. “Guess we'll have to dig out our end of the gully road this morning. Breakfast ready in ten minutes. Get on your heaviest togs. It's a snifter this time.”

This wasn't the first time that Lawrence had lent a hand in snow plowing and shoveling out the snowed-ins of his uncle's district. Ever since he was a boy of fifteen, ten years before, he had been making annual winter visits to this best of all his uncles and aunts, and he would have returned home sorely disappointed had he not encountered at least one deep drift experience.

At breakfast it was arranged that Lawrence, with old Jacob, should undertake the breaking through of the gully road as far as the Widow Bennett's. At that point they would undoubtedly meet the Pearson boys from a mile beyond.

Now, Lawrence had pleasant recollections of Widow Bennett's hospitable home. As a boy it had opened its arms to him, and it was there he had spent many an hour with Mrs. Bennett and her granddaughter, the brightest, black eyed, alert little girl that ever wore short skirts, rode on snowplows, called him “Uncle Law” and insisted on his own grownupness and his fitness to advise her on her reading, her studies and even her ambitions. Gertrude, however, had been away at school these later winters and Lawrence had caught no glimpse of her, although his aunt and even his uncle had much to say of her attractiveness

BENNINGTON

Oscar Starrett is in town. Mrs. Fred Sargent is suffering with a quincy sore throat. Mrs. Will Ware of Hancock was calling on friends here recently. Miss Irene Alcott of Hillsboro spent last week in town with relatives and friends.

Miss Maria Taylor has gone to Needham Highlands, Mass., to spend the winter.

It is reported that the young child of Mr. and Mrs. George Hunt has pneumonia.

F. A. Taylor spent Sunday at Needham Highlands, Mass., with his sister, Mrs. W. H. Carter.

Several of the children have been out of school during the past few weeks with bad throats.

Mrs. J. S. Woods is stopping for a season with her daughter, Mrs. James Pierce, at Northampton, Mass.

Miss Welch, who was obliged to give up her school at North Bennington for several weeks on account of illness, has returned to her duties.

Rev. Roger Thompson, secretary of state Sunday school, occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday morning and evening.

A class of eight ladies was taken into The Sons of Veterans Auxiliary at the regular meeting last Wednesday evening. The Order was inspected by the state officers, Mrs. Waters, pres., and Mrs. E. M. Nutt, treas., both of Nashua. The work was highly complimented by the visitors. A bountiful supper was served in the S. of V. hall.

The Antrim Base Ball Association will give an entertainment in town hall on Wednesday evening, Dec. 1. The attraction will be Marion Wilson presenting Character Studies in Costume, assisted by the best local talent. Further particulars given later.

SOUTH LYNDEBORO

Mrs. Sarah Moulton is much improved in health.

Harley Emery is on the sick list and under the care of Dr. Elizabeth Rice of Wilton.

Water is very low and some have to go to the neighbors for their supply. The rains we have had have not helped fill up the wells, but have reached some springs.

The buildings owned by Arthur Spaulding at Lyndeboro Centre were burned recently. The fire was discovered in the hen house about three o'clock. The house, barn and hen house were burned; also a cow and two heifers. Most of the furniture in the house was saved. The place was known as the Nelson Kidder place. Mr. Spaulding has owned it but a year or two and had spent a good deal of money in making it an attractive home.
