National Night

A patriotic service in honor of Ephraim Weston Post, No. 87, G. A. R., the Woman's Relief Corps, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and George H. Chandler Sons of Veterans, will be held in the Woodbury Memorial M. E. church on Sunday evening, December 12th.

Colonel E. C. Paige will preside, and there will be brief addresses by members of Ephraim Weston Post.

A special feature of the evening will be the singing of national hymns and old time war songs.

Patriotic solos and duets will be given under the direction of W. A. N. Scott.

The church will be elaborately decorated for the occasion, and it is expected that each organization will march to the church in a body.

A warm welcome to this national service is extended to the entire community.

It is hoped that a gathering of this nature may be held in Antrim each year. Time and place to be settled upon by a committee appointed at each yearly gathering.

Service begins promptly at 7 o'clock. At this coming service a collection will be taken for the benefit of Ephraim Weston Post.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner N. Ball of Washington celebrated their 25th anniversary Thursday, Nov. 25. He was born in Washington 1834, went to Antrim in 1875, was manager of ex-Gov. D. H. Goodell's stock farm for 5 years; established the Antrim Reporter in 1880, was editor and proprietor for 5 years. Married Miss Carrie B. Brooks in Nov., 1884. Returned to Washington 1886, purchased the old homestead farm where he lived for 12 years. In 1900 opened the Capital House, of which he is at present proprietor. Is a member of Waverley Lodge, I. O. O. F., Antrim, and Lovell grange, Washington, of which he was master six years. Has been member of the School Board in Washington 10 years and Selectman 15 years; is now serving his 3d term as County Commissioner of which board he is clerk.

32 members of the family were present at the Thanksgiving dinner, and a large number of the town's people assembled in town hall in the evening to show their respect and appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Ball as neighbors and citizens. Many valuable presents were received from relatives and friends, also a generous sum of money from the citizens of the town.

"BOOM" YOUR TOWN!

And in a Few Short Years See What Happens!

It is always wise and commendable in any man to speak well of his own town. It is good policy even to "boom" your home town. It is easy enough to find fault, but it will be found easier still to speak of some of the good things in town, and to praise the efforts of the men who are trying to build up the town. The following from a Tulsa, Indiana, daily, will be found good advice for Antrim people as well:

"Good citizens always have a good word to say for their home town. They know its good points, and if there are other peculiarities, they do not present them.

The grumbler who knows all the bad features of a town and mentions them at every opportunity is not only a poor citizen, but he is one who does nothing to improve the town he lives in. It is good enough to provide a home for him and perhaps a place of business or an occupation, but that is forgotten in the general flow of complaint.

Every resident can do something for the betterment of his town. If he cannot improve property for lack of means or ownership, he can at least keep his own home neat and clean. He can have a clean yard, a grass plot or something to add to the appearance of the place, and above all, he can say a good word for the place at every opportunity.

The grumbler should take a trip out west and hear the boomers there talk about their town. It may be only a string of shacks, the most pretentious being one story high with a dashboard front but the enthusiastic citizen will tell you how long it is since the first settler located and how the place is growing. He will point out the places which have acquired local fame or notoriety, will tell of the prospects of the things they are going to have and the room for expansion which is bounded by the horizon. It isn't New York, he will say, but come back in ten years and we will show you a town that won't be hurt by comparison with any city on the footstool.

The visitor can't help smiling, but he feels that the resident has the right spirit. He is doing the things which will make good times. And even in a small community, where all are imbued with the same spirit, wonders are accomplished."

THE SOOTHING SPRAY of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. The thick, foul discharge is dislodged and the patient breathes freely, perhaps for the first time in weeks. Liquid Cream Balm contains all the healing, purifying elements of the solid form, and it never fails to satisfy. Sold by all druggists for 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

Auction Sales

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim

Will be sold on Monday, Dec. 6, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, 24 head of cattle comprising a lot of good cows, the property of Andrew D. White & Son; sale at their residence in the East part of Antrim. For further particulars and description read auction bills.

SUNDAY AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Special Services Were Held Both Morning and Evening. With Large Audiences Present

What was much of an innovation in Sunday services in this town, was held at the Woodbury Memorial M. E. church, of which Rev. Alba M. Markey is pastor, on Sunday morning last. The hour of service was practically given over to the choir, under the efficient leadership of W. A. N. Scott, who had faithfully drilled his choir for this special service; in addition to the regular choir he was assisted by E. G. Dearborn and C. W. Prentiss; also an orchestra of five pieces. Miss C. E. Balch presided at the piano. The

An orchestra of five pieces was composed of George Appleton, Ray Taylor, Fred Faulkner, Carroll Martin, W. R. Musson.

A union meeting of the village churches was held at the Methodist church at 6.30 o'clock, the hour of the regular Sunday evening service. It was under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in recognition of the day appointed for the World's Temperance Sunday. The program consisted of following program was listened to with intense interest by an unusually large audience for a Sunday morning service, some over one hundred and fifty being present:

M. E. CHURCH AND PASTOR, REV. A. M. MARKEY

Processional Hymn, Come ye thankful people, come.
Prayer, Rev. A. M. Markey.
Anthem, The Lord is my Rock, Choir.
Hymn 711.
Remarks, Pastor.
Bass Solo, Ope thou mine eyes, W. A. N. Scott.

Anthem, The Lord is loving unto every man, Choir.

a sermonet to the children by Rev. Duncan Salmond, vocal solos by Mrs. Nims and Mr. Scott, selections by the choir, scripture reading and prayer by Rev. O. E. Kendall; the president of the local union, Mrs. C. B. Cochrane, presided. The principal number on the program was an address by the President of the State W. C. T. U., Mrs. Ellen R. Richardson of Concord. A large audience showed their interest in the speaker and her subject by being present. The address, though long, was interesting.

Four Evenings with John Bunyan's Pilgrim

Beginning next Sunday evening and continuing through the Sundays of December the immortal allegory, "Pilgrims Progress" will be presented in the Baptist church, and illustrated by the use of the stereopticon with colored views. For two hundred and fifty years this book has by universal consent occupied a position of honor and importance exceeded only by the Holy Bible. The author in the chaste English diction of his day describes Christian in the City of Destruction, his natural abode, awakened to his impending doom: Christian's departure from the city, his progress through the conflicts and trials of life, and final arrival at the Beautiful Gate of Heaven, is briefly the subject matter of the allegory. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Antrim Lovers In Winchester, Massachusetts

It was a merry party of "Antrim Lovers" gathered together Thanksgiving evening by Miss Laura Tolman at her residence in Winchester. The rooms in the house were tastefully decorated with pine boughs and red berries, and at the extreme end of the large parlors the following sentiment in white and green quickly met the eyes of the guests as they assembled:

"I love my Winchester,
but oh you Antrim!"

An amusing feature of the evening's entertainment was a recital by Miss Evelyn Parker of a future trip to Antrim by the Winchester guests in 1915 to attend an auction sale. The adjectives describing this trip were previously supplied at random by the guests, and then the whole story was read by Miss Parker, with the adjectives arranged in the most original way. This diversion was the cause of much merriment. It was peculiarly fitting to the occasion that Mr. Harry Richardson of Antrim with his bride, Miss Edith Duncan, were present.

During the evening, some beautiful musical selections were rendered by Mr. John Park's new Victor machine, and at the close, after partaking of most delicious refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, candies and nuts, with coffee, the guests all united in singing the following Antrim song to the tune of Fair Harvard:—

To Antrim our thoughts are returning to-night,
To Antrim among hills so green;
Oft our mem'ry recalls with the keenest delight
The charm of thy many fair scenes.
We remember Fair Acres, Mt. Campbell, and all,
And the Outlook so fair and serene,
And thy sweet woodland roads we will never forget—
Tho' we wander 'mid far distant scenes,
Fair Antrim, thy sons and thy daughters tonight,
Adopted though they may be:
While old Winchester still holds the first place by right,
Yet we offer our tribute to thee.
Then in clear sparkling water, this toast we will quaff,
To Antrim, the fairest of fair—
Of thy joys and thy beauties we could not tell half,
Yet we're thankful we all have been there.

Among those present were J. L. Parker and wife, John Park and wife, W. G. Richardson and wife, Harry Richardson and wife, J. W. Tabbert and wife, E. A. Bigelow and wife, Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Tolman; and the Misses Adelaide, Ethel and Flora Richardson, Martha Hamilton, Evelyn Parker, Laura Tolman, Constance Park and Helen Marshall; also the Rev. P. I. Osborne, and Messrs. Harrison Parker, Kenneth Park, Robert Hamilton, Arthur Belville and Harry Bigelow.

When the late General Edward M. McCook lived in Pike's Peak he once presided at a dinner in honor of a famous Indian fighter.

Mr. McCook, as he then was, concluded his introduction of the Indian fighter with the words:

"I can find but one fault with the colonel's methods. I allude to his well known custom of enlisting in his regiment only baldheaded men. To aggravate the Indians' feelings so cruelly as that is carrying war too far."

Cheerful.

A certain philosopher used to thank God when he had the gout that it was not the toothache, and when he had the toothache he gave thanks because he had not both complaints at once.

"That is too bad," sympathized the friend. "Which one was it?"

A MERCHANT OF FEZ.

Description of His Rise and His Ignominious Fall.

The merchants of Fez are to be found all over Morocco. In due course All Mahmoud launches out into business on a large scale. He prospers exceedingly and presently purchases a black female slave to assist his wife in her duties. All Mahmoud takes a house in the Medina quarter of Fez, overlooking the pleasant olive groves. In course of time he buys two more slaves and is fairly set up as a householder.

When his first daughter is born there is great rejoicing. The baby is immediately staided all over its little body with henna and then smeared liberally with butter and wrapped in woolen cloths. On the seventh day these are removed, and the child is washed for the first time. When the girl has reached her first year her head is shaved, leaving a little tuft by which Mohammed could catch her up to heaven if he were so disposed. In her seventh year her hair has grown long again. She is then veiled, and her proud father sets about looking for a husband for her. It is still the custom to betroth children from infancy.

All Mahmoud prospers, and, save for a few domestic troubles, his life runs smoothly. In the evenings All will sit and smoke in the bosom of his family. On Thursdays and Saturdays he visits his friends. They pass the time in simple games of cards or in listening to the weird efforts of itinerant musicians. Our merchant gets stout as he approaches middle age. One day his world tumbles about him. Such is the uncertainty of fate in Morocco.

He was serving in his shop when the customer suddenly raised his voice and cried out that he was getting false weight. The accusation was terrible, and All vehemently protested his innocence. It was an arranged charge by an enemy of the merchant, who philosophically bowed his head with the saying: "Kismet! Mine enemy has found me, and the serpent requires milk." The arbitrators are called, and, having been bribed previously, they find Mahmoud guilty and sentence him to the usual punishment meted out toivers of false weights. He is dragged to the southern wall of the city, to a place where a tall gibbet is erected. By the irony of fate it is within sight of his own house. A rope is made fast to his right wrist and hoisted up until his toes can just touch the ground. Here he is left till sunset. The idlers jeer at him, and the gamins of the quarter pelt him with stones and refuse. At sundown his friends carry him home, a poor, bruised and senseless body. Broken and disgraced, thus ended his career as a respectable merchant.—Morocco Cor. London Graphic.

Oil Bathing.

Oil bathing is a regular institution among the Hindoos. An experienced masseur rubs the oil on his patrons, friends or relatives generally once a week. And it is a fact that moles, warts and such faults of the surface of the skin are very rare among them. The newborn infant gets the oil bath daily for forty days. The intervals are then gradually lengthened, but he will be considered a very naughty boy who during his school days tries to shirk the oil bath at least once a week. As a youngster he yells all the time he is being bathed. Perhaps it is good for his lungs. Anyhow, nobody thinks of finding fault with the nurse for the hallooing of her charge, and generally speaking it may be said that Indians have better lungs and better pectorals as compared to the body weight than the Europeans, and the feminine bust is decidedly fuller and more perfect.—C. N. Saldanha in Lancet.

How to Carry Books.

The Philadelphia free library permits patrons to take out six books at a time during certain months. "If you are not going to wrap those books up let me show you how to carry them," said one of the assistants at the library recently.

Then the young woman slipped a cover of one book inside of a cover of one she placed on the top of it, building up a pile of six books in this fashion, and the man addressed, who was carrying the volumes home to please his wife, the reader of the family, found his difficulties were much lessened.—Philadelphia Press.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY PILLS

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A Medical Opinion as to the Tradition of a Feline Danger.

Several physicians have investigated the ancient story that cats suck the breath of babies, and Dr. J. Rice Gibbs declares that the theory is ridiculous. Cats occasionally kill children, he declares, but they do it in a different fashion.

"It has been stated that a cat's nostrils are so formed as to make a perfect juncture with the nose of a baby," said Dr. Gibbs, "and that a little pressure would push them upward and make them a perfect fit. Then the cat's chin would rest over and below the baby's mouth, preventing it from opening to relieve the strangulation while the cat sucked its breath. That is all rot. The manner in which little children are killed by cats is this: A cat looking for a warm place to curl up and sleep lies down upon the chest of a little child, and, being quite heavy—many cats are as heavy as little babies—simply crushes the breath out of the child's lungs, and strangulation takes place, but not through sucking of the child's breath.

"The idea that only black cats kill little babies is equally ridiculous. It is simply because black cats are considered unlucky. In former times the black cat was considered the very genius of witchcraft. In those days when a baby died the blame was often fixed upon some hag who, the judges said, had sent a black cat to suck the baby's breath. And often hag and cat suffered death at the stake.

"Evil omen is still the cry in many parts of the world whenever a black cat approaches a cradle. Many persons are so superstitious that the appearance of a black cat in a sick room is considered equivalent to an announcement of approaching death. What could be more absurd?

"Mothers need not be afraid of cats, black, white or green, sucking their babies' breath and murdering them. It is time that this popular fallacy should be exploded."—New York World.

THE BASEBALL UMPIRE.

Very Different From the Fight Referee or the Race Judge.

Good umpires are rare. In the whole country there are not more than ten first rate ones. The combination of the keen eye, nimble brain and cold nerve is not a common one.

The umpire is the chain lightning of baseball. His decisions are rendered in the fifth part of a second. He renders them knowing that he must stand by them afterward, no matter what happens. Every man inside the fence, whether blinded by prejudice or loyalty to the home team, sees the same things and therefore feels that he has a right to his own opinion, but the umpire is the one man who is paid to know what he sees.

The prizefight referee sometimes has to decide which boxer won a hard battle. He has had time in which to review the situation. The whole moving picture of the fight stretches backward in his memory. Should the choice prove a difficult one there is always the comfortable middle ground—the draw decision, in which neither man wins or loses. The baseball umpire can render no draw decisions. The man is safe or he is out.

When two race horses come nodding down to the wire and two noses dash by the post so close together that a finger breadth means thousands of dollars to the backers, the race track judge may fall back on the dead heat. The baseball umpire has no dead heats. Watching foot and ball, he must know which one was first. He can confer with no one. Right or wrong, the judgment must be made in the twinkling of an eye.—C. E. Van Loan in Munsey's Magazine.

The Piano Virtuoso's Hands.

Contrary to popular belief, the piano virtuoso as a rule has extremely unattractive hands. "The artistic hand" is a phrase peculiar to the hysterical young woman who haunts musical recitals, but in reality the hand of the pianist is not at all artistic or beautiful when judged by the usual standards of the artist, the painter or the sculptor.

Constant, vigorous practicing overdevelops the hand and makes it actually ill shaped. The fingers do not taper, but are blunt and round, ending often in what appears to be a cushion of hard flesh.—New York World.

Good Precedents.

The two precedents which the colonial governors had to guide them in ordering a day for thanksgiving were the national Thanksgiving held by order of good Queen Bess after the defeat of the Spanish armada and that of King James of England because the gunpowder plot failed to materialize.

The mean things done by those we dislike never surprise us.—St. Louis Republic.

The fool wanders; the wise travel.—French Proverb.

RELIEVED HER MIND.

Mr. Terry Upheld His Better Half in the Umbrella Matter.

"Mercy me!" said Mrs. Terry. "Your father's left his umbrella! Here, Willie, run quick and catch him before his car comes!" She thrust an elegant gold handled umbrella into Willie's hands, and he raced off after his father, arriving at the car track barely in time to see his ponderous figure swing itself up the steps. And the car moved on.

As Willie stood there a man approached.

"What's the matter, son?" he inquired. Willie elucidated.

"Well," said the man, "that's easy. I'm going downtown on the next car, and I'll take it to him."

When Willie returned without the umbrella his mother rejoiced.

"You caught him, did you?" she smiled. Willie shook his head.

"But I did the next best thing, mother," he said. "I gave it to a man who was going downtown to give it to him." Mrs. Terry stared at him.

"Who was the man?" she asked. Willie looked foolish.

"I don't know," he said at last. "But he looked honest."

"That umbrella cost $12," said Mrs. Terry sternly. "Come here to me." And shortly thereafter people passing wondered who was being slain.

That evening Mr. Terry returned bearing the umbrella. Mrs. Terry gazed at it, fascinated.

"Where did you get it?" she asked.

"Why," said Mr. Terry, "our neighbor Mr. Wilkins brought it to me—said you sent it."

"And to think," said Mrs. Terry, "I whipped Willie for giving it to a strange man."

"Well," said Mr. Terry judicially, "I don't think it will hurt him. True, he gave it to the right man, but he didn't know that."

"That's right," said Mrs. Terry with relief.—Galveston News.

FLYING ANIMALS.

The Bodies of All of Them Are Comparatively Small.

When you increase greatly the size and the weight of any moving body, whether it be traveling on the ground, floating through the air or swimming under the water, you alter in a most serious way the proportionate effect on the moving body of what is called "friction."

It is a noteworthy fact that there are no large flying animals—large, that is to say, as animals go. It is true that there is a great range in the size of flying animals, from the minutest flies up to the condor vulture and the albatross. But the bodies of those birds are small, not larger than that of an ordinary dog, and the stretch of the wings is only about ten feet, while their weight in proportion to size is reduced by great internal air sacs, which extend even into the bones.

Even when we examine the records of "extinct monsters," among which are some huge creatures as big in body as the biggest elephants of today and longer by reason of their great lizard-like tails, we find no instances of very big flying creatures. The extinct group of the flying reptiles—called pterodactyles because the wing was supported by an enormously elongated finger—are mostly small creatures, not bigger than eagles and usually of less size. The largest known had an expanse of wing giving eighteen feet from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other, but its body was a little thing, not bigger than that of a swan. This is the largest pair of wings known, and we must remember that in these larger pterodactyles and birds the bones are thin walled, hollow cylinders filled with air, so that these creatures are not only small, but have a small specific gravity.—Sir Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

The Kat Plant.

In parts of Abyssinia and Yemen the natives use a plant called kat (Catha edulis), the effects of which are similar to those of the Peruvian coca. The freshly cut leaves have a rather pleasant taste and produce a kind of intoxication of long duration, with none of the disagreeable features of ordinary inebriety. Messengers and soldiers are enabled by chewing the leaves to go without food for a number of days. Among those who abuse the habit the body tends to dry, the visage becomes emaciated, and nervous trouble follows, the most usual being a trembling of the limbs, but these cases are rare. At times a too copious absorption of kat produces a state of drunkenness, particularly when the large leaves are employed.—New York Post.

Error of the Types.

The editor wrote that the speaker's address was "notable," but the printer spaced it wrong and it read "not'able."—Kansas City Star.

SMITHSON'S BEQUEST

Origin of the Famous Smithsonian Institution.

THE CONTROL OF ITS FUNDS.

Uncle Sam's Treasury Holds Its Money, Which Can Be Used Only on Appropriation by Congress—Its Peculiar Relation to the Government.

Although the name of the Smithsonian institution is a common household word in America and millions of persons have visited the great buildings in Washington where are stored the contributions of science which have been gathered under its auspices, few understand the real relation of the institution to the national government. Most persons believe that it is a part of the government.

The Smithsonian institution, says the Washington Times, occupies a peculiar relation to this government. It is a part of it, and yet it is not a part. Its moneys are in the United States treasury and can be used only on appropriation by congress, and yet this money does not belong to the government. It is to the government only as the money of a ward is to a guardian.

James Smithson, who contributed the bulk of the fund in the hands of the institution, was an Englishman, the son of a peer of the realm. He was a man who could trace his ancestry back to royal blood. He never visited America and was never known to have any particular partiality for America until he wrote his will in 1828. He died at Genoa in 1829, and when they opened his will this is what they read:

"I bequeathed the whole of my property to the United States of America to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

This property amounted to about $500,000, which was in that day a princely fortune. Six years after his death the United States legation at London was informed that there was about $500,000 in the possession of the adjutant general of the British court of chancery awaiting claimant.

Immediately there arose in America all kinds of opposition to the acceptance of the money. John C. Calhoun and William G. Preston urged with all the fire of their eloquence that it was beneath the dignity of this government to accept such a gift. But John Quincy Adams and others prevailed, and Richard Rush was sent to England to prosecute the claim of this government.

He was successful, and on Sept. 1, 1838, the money was delivered at the mint in Philadelphia in the shape of 104,960 gold sovereigns, which were minted into $508,318.46 in American money.

This sum by careful management and by additions from other charitably inclined persons has now become about $1,000,000, which the government keeps and pays interest upon for the maintenance of the institution.

For the first eight years the money lay in the treasury while plans were being formulated for the permanent establishment described by Smithson in his will. Thousands of letters were received, and there were schemes enough proposed to bankrupt several governments. Congressmen debated over this fund repeatedly, and hundreds of pages of the Congressional Globe were given up to it.

The institution has been worked out on such broad lines as to be one of the greatest forces in scientific research in the world.

The board of regents is composed of the vice president of the United States, the chief justice of the United States, three United States senators, three representatives and six citizens of the United States at large.

The National museum, the weather bureau, the zoological park at Washington, the fisheries bureau and the astrophysical observatory have been developed by the institution.

The objects of the institution, as described by its first secretary, Joseph Henry, have been adhered to through the years of its existence. They are to increase knowledge by original investigations and study either in science or literature and to diffuse knowledge not only through the United States, but everywhere, especially by promoting an interchange of thought among those prominent in learning in all nations. No restriction is made in favor of any one branch of knowledge.

The leading features of the plan of Professor Henry were, in his own words:

"To assist men of science in making original researches, to publish them in a series of volumes and to give a copy of them to every first class library in the world."

Books, laboratory accommodations and apparatus have been supplied to thousands of investigators throughout the United States.

Life of the Red Deer.

According to an old Gaelic legend, a red deer might live for 210 years, an eagle for 630 and an oak tree for nearly nineteen centuries. Nowadays, however, hundred-year-old deer would be difficult to find. From twenty-five to thirty-five years apparently may be about the range of their existence.—London Country Gentleman.

THE 1909 MODEL UNITED STATES Cream Separator

bowls are greatly reduced in diameter and prove by their clean skimming records, durability and the superior excellence of their work, the correctness of the principles upon which they are built and the perfection of material and workmanship which produce them.

You can buy a separator for less money than the United States—that every dairyman knows. But consider this:

When a U. S. is bought and paid for, it is paid for.

A cheap machine is never paid for. Every cent expended for repairs must be added to the original cost—it's an endless system of instalments. These instalments, added to the first cost of the machine, soon exceed the cost of the U. S., and after each successive repair, (if you can get another part) the cheap machine grows more and more second-hand—one step nearer the junk heap.

The loss of cream, cost of repairs, time lost, the trouble and worry outweigh many times over the difference in cost between the "cheap" separator and the clean skimming, Reliable, Substantial United States Cream Separator. Examine the U. S. yourself and see its good points.

Agents { JOHN TENNEY, South Antrim, } Agents AND
{ FRED N. CLARK, Hancock. }

Would be pleased to quote prices and give an actual demonstration of what the U. S. Separator will do.

Remember: The U. S. Separator was the ONLY SEPARATOR to win the GRAND PRIZE at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, Seattle, this year. The highest award of all.

An Earlier General Fast Day

Cholera prevailed in this and other countries in 1849. I arrived in New York with my family on Friday, Aug. 3, of that year, and found that the stores were all closed and business generally suspended, because President Zachary Taylor had appointed a fast day throughout the country to be observed on that day.
