Makes Timely Notes of General Interest to Readers

If Uncle Joe is really determined never to quit under fire won't everybody please suspend firing and give the country a chance!

It is said that the President of Nicaragua has the modest salary of only twelve hundred a year but it must be remembered that after he resigns and goes to Paris he can draw on his bank account for about twelve hundred a day.

As was expected the effort to change the Inauguration date from howling Fourth of March to smiling Thirteenth of April has been foiled by two or three provincial statesmen who cannot see beyond the horizon of their pent-up districts.

Current reports of the treatment of tuberculosis patients at sanatoriums in various states show marked differences of efficiency but on the whole give abundant encouragement for perseverance in the campaign against the "white plague". In New York there were treated 577 patients, of whom 2 were cured, 43 had the disease arrested and 88 showed improvement. In New Jersey 319 were treated 27 were cured and 38 showed improvement. In Massachusetts 1,280 were treated 197 were cured, 195 arrested and 279 improved. The total of all states recorded shows that 3,849 were treated, 276 cured, 452 arrested and 629 improved or 1,357 substantially benefited. There were therefore 8.2 per cent of the whole number cured, 13.5 per cent had the disease checked and 18.8 per cent were improved. Such a percentage of benefit applied to the whole nation would mean an enormous saving of life and an enormous increase in industrial efficiency. It is, on the whole, a hopeful and an inspiring outlook which the world now enjoys for the mitigation, if not the actual extinction, of the most destructive of diseases.

Unfortunately for the movement started in Cleveland among the workmen, who are pledging themselves not to eat meat for a month in order to bring the price down, meat is not the only thing that is dear. While they abstain from flesh will they eat bread? Flour is about as high in proportion as meat. Eggs are relatively even higher and so humble an article of food as beans shows a larger percentage of advance in cost in ten years than almost anything else on the list. However, such a movement as that in Cleveland may not be without advantage. Just as the prosperity of Florida is said to date from the great frost that killed the orange groves and forced the farmers to raise early vegetables so there may be a real economic gain from high prices if they send consumers in search of substitutes for the more costly articles of food. The people of this country seem to know little about the economies in diet which are practised by European peoples. If the Cleveland workmen abstain from meat for a month perhaps they will learn how to substitute for it other foods which cost less than beef or mutton.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble not beyond the reach of medicine. It invigorates the entire system and strengthens the kidneys so they eliminate the impurities from the blood. Backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles are all cured by this great medicine.

ANTRIM BOARD OF TRADE

Assumes Definite Shape by Perfecting an Organization--100 Members

Again it was a stormy night when the interested ones met for the purpose of naming officers and perfecting the organization of the Antrim Board of Trade. The meeting was held in the firemen's hall which was comfortably heated and seated, and about forty men were present.

After reading the record of the previous meeting, it was voted to proceed to the election of officers for a permanent organization. The report of the nominating committee was read and accepted; voted that balloting be proceeded with and this was the result:

President--Wilbert D Farnham
Vice President--Will E Cram
Secretary--Edmond M Lane
Treasurer--H W Eldredge
Directors--Pres't. Vice Pres't.
Sec'y. B F Drake, W W Merrill,
C F Butterfield, S M Thompson,
W E Gibney, R C Goodell.

Representatives to meeting of State Board of Trade in Concord Saturday, Jan. 29--John B Jameson, Edmond M Lane.

Letters were read from absent townsmen regarding their inability to be present but wishing the new organization all possible success.

It was voted that two of our venerable townsmen be made honorary members: Rev. Wm. Hurlin aged 95 years, Rev. W. R. Cochrane, D. D., who was pastor of the Presbyterian church forty years. Matters of importance to the town which ought to be accomplished through this organization were discussed and a very profitable meeting was the result. It seemed to be the mind of all present that the matter of summer boarders should receive first attention, and to further this object it is desired that anyone who will or desires to take summer boarders in their homes leave their names and number they can accommodate with the Secretary, at the Antrim Pharmacy, and the advertising will be attended to by the Board of Trade.

State Trade Report

Trade conditions, as reported to Bradstreet's are good as a whole, but there is not the life and snap to business that there usually is when everything is favorable. There is enough snow for teaming in all parts of the state and this always tends to make business good, as there are many of our industries which need snow in order to get their raw material. Some manufacturers are bothered by lack of water for power but all the large ones have steam or other auxiliary power and this keeps them along but adds to the expense. Lumbermen are working to the limit, taking advantage of the fine conditions. Retail trade is slow as usual at this season.

These are names added to the membership list since our last week's issue, there being now one hundred members: it was voted, however, that the charter list be kept open for members till the date of the annual meeting in February:

The REPORTER is extremely gratified in announcing that after constant efforts on its part the Antrim Board of Trade is a reality; it joins hands with Wilbert D. Farnham in this feeling for he was the one man to finally set the wheels in motion. There are many other interested parties, and with everyone working together to make Antrim "Busier, Bigger and Better," we feel sure that there are brighter prospects in store for our good old town. Try altogether to work for the best interests of the town for a time and see what remarkable things can be accomplished—it certainly will surprise you!

The President, Mr. Farnham, is one of our most enthusiastic business men, having been previous to his residence among us connected with large business interests in Boston. He will find his associates in office men of the right sort and ready to do every possible thing in bringing something to pass.

Interred at Antrim

Frank H. Baldwin, a well known resident and business man of Keene, died Saturday last at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry F. Howe in Gardner, Mass. He had been in poor health for the past three years and had sold the carriage and sleigh repository which he owned.

Mr. Baldwin was the son of Eli M. and Betsey (Jewett) Baldwin, who lived in Hancock. He was nearly 62 years of age. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Henry F. Howe of Gardner and Mrs. Arthur B. Nims of Keene, and one sister, Mrs. Otis Tuttle of Malden, Mass. The funeral services were held in Gardner Monday afternoon and the burial took place in Antrim Tuesday noon. Mr. Baldwin married Fannie NeSmith of this town who died several years ago.

High Water the Past Week

The "January thaw," beginning Friday and continuing through Saturday, extended nearly all over the state. It did most damage along the Pemigewasset river. At Plymouth and vicinity the rivers, noted for their rapid rises in freshest seasons, flooded the intervals and threatened bridges.

Farther south, in the vicinity of Franklin, the damage was more serious.

The Ammonoosuc river at Woodsville was out of its banks, and in Cheshire county damage was done to railroads.

There was some apprehension at Nashua of damage to the new railroad bridge now being built to replace the one burned last summer.

Trains were held up Saturday morning on the Boston and Maine line between Keene and Chesham, and on the line between Keene and South Vernon. It was necessary to "carry by" passengers and mail at Marlborough where a 70-foot trestle about a mile below the depot was washed out, so traffic was stopped, and would require nearly two days to fill the washout. There was a hole nearly twenty feet wide excavated by the high water. The trouble near South Vernon occurred on the main line, and the passengers had to walk by to a train on the other side, the tracks there were repaired in a short time so that the traffic was not long delayed.

Worse Than White Slavery

Under the above caption appeared an article in the Boston Globe recently, announcing the manner in which Bishop Mallieu denounced dancing in the public schools. Here is what he said:

"Dancing in public schools in Boston is responsible for conditions of immorality that are almost as bad as the white slave traffic," declared Bishop W. F. Mallieu of the Methodist church in Tremont temple at the memorial service for the late Charles Nelson Crittenton, founder of the Florence Crittenton missions.

"There ought to be a state law against dancing in any public school," he declared. The theater is a school of vice and a destroyer of morals, and the nude statues and improper pictures sold on our street corners and the vile literature which some journals publish, all these are corrupting the morals of the young and lowering the standard of morality among the older people and leading to the white slave traffic.

"We ought to lead a relentless warfare to the death against the things which lead to these conditions."

Saved at Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Violent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine Electric Bitters cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Lane & Weeks, Antrim Pharmacy.

The Political Crisis in Great Britain

From what I said last week it will be readily seen that in the election which will be nearly ended when this is printed, the great question is the veto power of the House of Lords; and Mr. Asquith, the premier, Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and other leading members of the Cabinet, have positively declared that whatever may be the result of the present election, neither they nor any other Liberal members will either hold or take office again unless this veto power is either abolished or so limited that a government can within a single Parliament carry any measure to success on which the House of Commons is determined, as without this the experience of the last four years has proved that it is impossible to carry any measure of reform; and the House of Commons might as well be abolished, if the House of Lords is to continue to exercise its present power. Two or three weeks ago a leading Boston daily said that the government had compromised on this matter, and had consented that a general election should take place before the House of Commons could make a law contrary to the veto of the House of Lords. But this cannot be, as it would be absurd to throw the country into the confusion of a general election every time the House of Lords and the House of Commons disagreed on an important measure.

At the time I am writing this, it is impossible to tell how the election will end; though the indications seem hopeful. On the one side there is a majority of the House of Lords, and other proprietors of the land and their dependants with the brewers, the distillers, and the liquor dealers, and those connected with them, and also a large majority of the bishops, clergy, and other members of the established church. On the other side there are the members of the Liberal party, including the non-conformists, and all who desire that education shall be under the control of the tax payers, that the intoxicating liquor question shall also be under the control of the tax payers, and that the immensely rich land owners shall bear a fair share of the taxes. It is hoped that the new and growing Labor party will join with the Liberal party in this contest. Their persistence in nominating a third candidate has enabled the Conservatives to elect their candidate in a number of cases.

The government have not stated how they will limit the power of the House of Lords. The only way that I see is that if the present election decides in favor of the present government the king must create enough life peers to form a majority in the House of Lords large enough to carry any measure in which the House of Commons may agree by which the veto of the House of Lords will be abolished, or sufficiently limited.

Auction Sales

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim

Henry I. Raleigh will sell a lot of Personal Property at Public Auction, at his residence on Grand street, on Saturday of this week, Jan. 29, at 1 o'clock p.m. sharp. See posters.

On Tuesday, Feb. 1, 1910, commencing at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Stock Hay and Farm Auction, 3 Casino Hotel, at his residence in the east part of Antrim. This is an exceptional sale of 19 head cattle, 8 horses, 18 tons hay, and large lot of farming tools, all in best of condition, and should attract many buyers. Agent for the parties in interest, Geo. F. Perry is selling the goods. For particulars read posters.

The Olive Club

Held Gentlemen's Night on Wednesday last at the pleasant home of C. F. Downes and wife, corner of Summer street and Highland avenue. There were present some sixteen members and a most delightful evening was passed. Refreshments of Welsh rabbit, cake and coffee were served.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine, you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.
You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

"Digests what you eat."

STANLEY AS A FIGHTER.

His Revenge on the Africans For Attacking His Forces.

In the following language Sir Henry M. Stanley describes an attack of natives upon his party during one of his African expeditions: "The levathau bears down on us with racing speed. Its consorts on either flank spurring the water into foam and shooting up jets with their sharp prows. A thrilling chant from 2,000 throats rises louder and louder on our bearing. Presently the poised spears are launched, and a second later my ribs respond with a ripping, crackling explosion, and the dark bodies of the canoes and paddlers rush past us.

"For a short time the savages are paralyzed, but they soon recover. They find there is death in those flaming tubes in the hands of the strangers, and with possibly greater energy than they advanced they retreat, the pursued becoming the pursuers in hot chase. My blood is up. It is a murderous world, and I have begun to hate the filthy, vulturous shoals who inhabit it.

"I pursue them upstream, up to their villages. I skirmish in their streets, drive them pell-mell into the woods beyond and level their ivory temples. With frantic haste I fire their huts and end the scene by towing their canoes into midstream and setting them adrift."

RAVENOUS EATERS.

Gluttony of Soliman and the Appetite of Louis XIV.

Touching the matter of eating, the stories told by the old chroniclers and historians of the abnormal appetites of certain Roman and oriental men of note fairly stagger belief.

Gibbon tells of Soliman, a caliph in the eighth century, who died of acute indigestion in his camp near Chaldis, in Syria, just as he was about to lead an army of Arabs against Constantinople. He had emptied two baskets of eggs and figs, which he swallowed alternately, and the repast was finished with marrow and sugar. In a pilgrimage to Mecca the same caliph had eaten with impunity at a single meal seventy pomegranates, a kid, six towels and a huge quantity of the grapes of Tayef.

Such a statement would defy belief were not others of a similar character well vouched. Louis XIV. could hardly boast of an appetite as ravenous as Soliman's, but he would eat at a sitting four platefuls of different soups, a whole pheasant, a partridge, a plateful of salad, mutton hashed with garlic, two good sized slices of ham, a dish of pastry and finish this ample repast with fruit and sweetmeats.—London Saturday Review.

Victorian Gods.

If Thackeray, with a brain weighing fifty-eight and one-half ounces, had the biggest head among Victorian writers who had the best features? The choice would seem to lie between Tennyson and Henry Taylor. "That man must be a poet," remarked one of his Cambridge contemporaries when he first saw Tennyson come into the hall at Trinity, and another friend describes him in his undergraduate days as six feet high, broad chested, strong limbed, his face Shakespearean, with deep eyelids; his forehead ample, crowned with dark wavy hair; his head finely poised, his hand the admiration of sculptors. But time dealt none too gently with Tennyson, whereas Henry Taylor, always a distinguished looking man, seems to have grown singularly majestic with years. Grant Duff, meeting him when he was over eighty, notes that "Taylor looks more like Jupiter than ever," and contemporary memoirs are full of references to his Jove-like appearance.—London Standard

No Chance In History.

Mazzini said that he did not believe that chance existed in history. "A cause must necessarily underlie every event, although for the moment it may appear as the result of apparently accidental circumstances. An Alexander, a Caesar, a Napoleon, are not the results of accident, but the inevitable product of the time and nation from which they spring. It was not Caesar who destroyed the Roman republic. The republic was dead before Caesar came. Sulla, Marius, Catiline, preceded and foreshadowed Caesar, but he, gifted with keener insight and greater genius, snatched the power from them and concentrated it in his own hands. For there was no doubt that he was fitter to rule than all the others put together. At the same time, supposing he had appeared 150 years earlier, he would not have succeeded in destroying the republic. When he came the life had already gone out of it, and even Caesar's death could not restore that."

Comforting the Sick.
Louise Jebb—And tell Tom not to worry about me.
Mary—I did. He said he wouldn't. "The horrid brute!"—Life.

The song that nerves a nation's heart is in itself a deed.—Tennyson.

THE PLANET VENUS.

Night Eternal Reigns Over One-half of Her Globe.

To have the same hemisphere exposed everlastingly to sunlight while the other is in perpetuity turned away must cause a state of things of which we can form but faint conception from what we know on earth. Baked for aeons without letup and still baking, the sunward face must if unshielded be a Tophet surpassing our powers adequately to portray. And unshielded it must be, as we shall presently see. Reversely, the other must be a hyperborean expanse to which our polar regions are temperate abodes, for upon one whole hemisphere of Venus the sun never shines, never so much as peeps above the star studded horizon. Night eternal reigns over half of her globe. The thought would appall the most intrepid of our arctic explorers and prevent at least everybody from going to the pole, or, rather, what here replaces it, "through the dark continent." It exemplifies the eventual effects of a force in astronomical mechanics the importance of which is only beginning to be appreciated, tidal friction. It has brought Venus as a world to the deathly pass we have contemplated together. Starting merely as a brake upon her rotation, it has ended by destroying all those physical conditions which enable our own world to be what it is. Night and day, summer and winter, heat and cold, are vital vicissitudes unknown now upon our sister orb. There nothing changes while the centuries pass. An eternity of deadly deathlessness is Venus' statuesque lot.—Dr. Percival Lowell in Popular Science.

OLE BULL.

Not a Classical Player, but He Bewitched His Hearers.

The truth is that Ole Bull was not a classical player. As I remember him, he could not play in strict tempo. Like Chopin, he indulged in the rubato and abused the portamento. But he knew his public. America, particularly in the regions visited, was not in the mood for sonatas or concertos. "Old Dan Tucker" and the "Arkansas Traveler" were the mode. Bull played them both, played jigs and old tunes, roused the echoes with the "Star Spangled Banner" and Irish melodies. He played such things beautifully, and it would have been musical snobbery to say that you didn't like them. You couldn't help yourself. The grand old fellow bewitched you.

He was a handsome Merlin, with a touch of the charlatan and a touch of Liszt in his tall, willowy figure, small waist and heavy head of hair. Such white hair! It tumbled in masses about his kindly face like one of his native Norwegian catarracts. He was the most picturesque old man I ever saw except Walt Whitman, at that time a steady attendant of the Carl Gaertner string quartet concerts in Philadelphia. (And what Walt didn't know about music he made up in his love for stray dogs. He was seldom without canine company.—James Huneker in Everybody's Magazine.

Nicely Graded.

It is still a tradition that the people of Manchester, England, should gibe at Liverpool with the proverb, "A Manchester man, a Liverpool gentleman," but it is said, classification is not so strongly marked in Lancashire as in the old days. When stagecoaches were running a guard was once asked, "Who has that gotten inside, Billy?" Billy consulted his list and replied, "A gentleman fra Liverpool, a mon fra Manchester, a chap fra Owdham and a fellow fra Wigan."

Words of Different Size.

—Good News

The Antrim Creamery will be ready to receive cream from the farmers Tuesday, March 1. This creamery in Antrim will be of sufficient interest to the farmers of this section, to induce them to furnish the creamery with all cream possible.

The Corporation would be pleased to receive communications from all farmers in Antrim and adjoining towns, in regard to supplying the creamery. Arrangements will be made to gather the cream.

This new industry has been started for the good of the farmer: it is not individual business, but a corporation in which all in this section should become interested.

It is the aim of the Board of Directors to make this business of mutual benefit and your hearty cooperation is asked.

D. Whiting and sons of Wilton with a large force of men are filling their ice houses at Zephyr lake.

At the annual meeting of the New Oak Park Fair association, the following officers were chosen: President, Edson H. Patch, Frankestown; vice president, Fred A. Richardson, Lyndeboro; secretary, George D. Gould, Greenfield; general superintendent of the grounds, Fred A. Atherton, Greenfield; superintendent of the races, F. W. Duncklee, Lowell, Mass.

Dea. Alfred Newton Hardy died Jan. 19 of heart failure. He was born in 1829 at the Hardy home near Zephyr lake. His father Benjamin Hardy and his mother Maritima Holt were among the pioneers of Greenfield. Dea. Hardy attended school at Frankestown and Meredith academies, then went to Bridgewater Normal school and graduated there in 1854. He taught in the states of New York and New Jersey, also in the high school in New Boston and Hancock.

In 1850 he married Letitia Gregg of New Boston. She died in 1868, and in 1869 he married Labria Wood of Hancock and returned to the old home in Greenfield to care for his aged father.

In 1890 Mrs. Hardy died. The only surviving members of his family are his brother, Dea. John Hardy of Holyoke, Mass., and his only child, Miss Ella M., who has faithfully cared the greater part of her life in caring for her father.

The 7th and 8th Grades were closed Tuesday owing to illness of the teacher, Miss Colburn. Mrs. Rice is acting as substitute.

If people driving past the school house would go more slowly or muffle their sleighbells there would perhaps be less commotion among those who have command of the front windows.

Antrim won a fast game of basket ball from Wilton High last Friday evening. Good work was shown by both teams but the shooting of Stearns and Farrant's guarding of Barry, by all odds the fastest man on the floor, deserves special mention. The score: A. H. S. 28, W. H. S. 15. Goals from floor, Stearns 5, Clement 2, Elliot, Farrant, Tewksbury, Gibney, Barry 3, Draper 2, Stanton; goals from foul-line, Tewksbury 5, Gibney, Barry 2, Stanton.

FOLLOWING THE BAND.

Pageantry Appeals to the Negro's Tropical Imagination.

Once upon a time a Philadelphia lawyer came south. He had a pair of big spectacles, an inquisitive mind, and he wanted to know, says Harris Dickson in Success Magazine. With his southern friend he was hurrying to the courthouse. A negro parade blocked the street—negroes in carriages, on horseback, on foot; negroes with swords and axes, stumpy negroes with Masonic banners, lean negroes with Pythian devices, fat negroes with Odd Fellows' insignia, miscellaneous negroes with miscellaneous emblems.

The Philadelphian pushed through the crowd and ran back in great excitement. "What's it all about? What are they doing?"

The southerner couldn't explain, but beckoned to a very intelligent young negro—who, by the way, was a prominent politician—and asked, "Tom, what's the occasion for all this parade?"

The young negro laughed. "Now, fudge, you ought to know dat a nigger don't need no 'casion for a parade."

Tom had spoken a mouthful. Pageantry appeals to the negro's tropical imagination. Churches and lodges furnish most of the social life that he knows. He does not ask why the brass band is playing. He keeps step with the fellow that beats the drum and is happy.

DANCING ROLAND.

A Scotch Shepherd's Remedy For All Kinds of Maladies.

A highland shepherd, one Donald McAlpin, a famous dancer, was reputed to have cured his mistress of a mysterious malady by means of dancing a reel with her, and this story being nosed abroad gained him the reputation of being a successful physician. His humble cottage in Stockmuck, overlooking Strathspey, was besieged with crowds of patients who hoped to get rid of their ailments by a dance with Donald. The shepherd did not hesitate to take advantage of this stroke of good luck and soon had a large and thriving practice.

The treatment adopted was very simple, the main features being as follows: In cases of indigestion moderate doses of medicated "agua" were taken, followed by the ceum shuil, or promenade step. For catarrh Donald prescribed in order to produce perspiration a large dose of gruel mixed with honey and butter, followed by ceum crask, or highland fling. All the different processes terminated in the patient being well wrapped up in warm blankets, and the doses of medicine and dancing were repeated, according to the patient's constitution and the nature of his disease.—British Medical Journal.

The Telephone and Julius Caesar.

Julius Caesar missed a great deal in not knowing the telephone or at least in not using it if he knew it. One can see the telephone engineer attached to the Roman postoffice endeavoring, but without avail, to get an instrument installed at the capitol and at the palace. "I am instructed by the emperor to say that he does not desire these barbarian novelties, and so Thomas Alva Edison need not call again with his magician's apparatus." A signal blunder! We can imagine what would have happened. "Hello, 2187 Tibert! Is it thou, Artemidorus? I understand thou hast met me up this morning. What? Details of a plot? Go not to the senate today? Beware of Brutus! Do not near Caesar? Right and I thank thee, Artemidorus. I will have an eagle stand on my instantly and the conspirators arrested." And so the plot was foiled. But was it not a grand use of the telephone? And what a valuable aid and what the fortune of Rome were saved. So, Julius, the zettie.

A Gloomy African Pool.

There is a large, deep and mysterious pool in the valley of the upper Kafue river, northwestern Rhodesia. This wonderful pool lies in that country, and one comes to it quite suddenly, its banks being concealed by dense forest. There is a small native village near the pool, and the inhabitants have a superstitious dread of it. They refuse to drink the water or use it for any purpose whatever. To sit beside this still, pellucid pool of unknown depth, surrounded by precipitous walls in the heart of the tropical forest, would induce a feeling of awe in the breast of even the most civilized man. —London Mail

Poetic Justice.

"Pa, did you ever hear of a real case of poetic justice?"
"Yes. A man who once swindled me out of $600 in an irrigation scheme died of water on the brain."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not a Bit Conceited.

Husband—How conceited you are, Edna! You're always looking at yourself in the glass. Wife—I'm sure I am not. I don't think I'm half as pretty as I really am.—Illustrated Elks.

Demand for Investigation

No competent investigation of the increased cost of living can be made unless investigating board has scope to cover the entire country in its research, to seek information beyond the national boundaries if necessary and to inquire into every factor which has to do with the cost of food-stuff to the consumer. A board of trained experts drawn from the federal service and from the ranks of eminent sociologists and economists should be endowed by Congress with the authority to carry on an investigation. There is an insistent demand for such an investigation from all parts of the country. A constructive reform is needed. Partial, incomplete and unrelated investigation will be of little service to a burdened people. The various factors must be probed to bottom facts, must be considered in their inter relations. No investigation will be adequate without the scope and authority which Congressional action alone can confer.

The following story hails from Missouri, where people have to be "shown," so says an exchange. An evangelist asked all the men present who were honest and paid their debts to stand up. All arose but one. On being asked his reason for remaining seated he said he was the local editor and couldn't pay his debts because the men standing were his delinquent subscribers.
