CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Preliminary Business Out of the Way and Resolutions a Plenty

The Constitutional Convention met last Wednesday morning, quickly organized and got right down to business. Hon. Edwin F. Jones of Manchester, was unanimously elected president and A. Chester Clark of Concord, secretary. Rules for the method of procedure were adopted and the drawing of seats completed. In the afternoon the convention attended to the introduction of proposed amendments to the constitution. Some half dozen or more were introduced relating to the reduction of the size of the House, woman's suffrage, on taxation, also on the initiative and referendum and the short ballot. The convention adjourned at about 4 p. m., after the introduction of a resolution relating to the recent decease of Hon. Henry M. Baker, of Bow.

On Thursday, the convention came in at 10.30 in the morning and attended to routine business; received other resolutions regarding various matters, and several times during the day going into the committee of the whole, considered certain of these resolutions and they were then referred to the proper committees. Friday, not much business was transacted other than the appointment of the various necessary committees.

Tuesday morning saw the opening of the second week of the convention. This week it is expected that much progress will be made with the business in hand, as the time limit for presenting resolutions is nearly passed.

Baccalaureate Sermon

The annual sermon before the graduating class of the Antrim High school was given on Sunday evening last at the Presbyterian church to a large and appreciative audience. Rev. C. H. Frost of the Baptist church read scripture and offered prayer, and the sermon was delivered by Rev. W. J. Atkinson of the Methodist church. He took for his text words found in Matthew, 25th chapter and 10th verse, "And they that were ready went in." The singing was by a union choir with a duet by Mrs. Nims and Miss Jameson.

The Antrim Reporter.
Mr. Editor:

We were approached this afternoon by a man in the employ of the B. & M. R. R. with a petition to the state legislature against the admission of the G. T. R. R. to the state. The petition cited what a great advantage the B. & M. had been to the state, what a lot of the people's money was invested in its stock, etc. Should we grant this to be true, would not the advent of a competing road be of additional advantage?

What has the B. & M. done for us in this valley? Nothing! We can't go out after dark, we can't go anywhere except to Boston and Concord and get back the same day. We must wait from one to four hours at connecting points to north, south or east. We can't go to Gardner, Mass.—30 miles away—on a straight track and get back the same day. The train and crew coming north from Winchendon, Mass., get so tired at Peterboro that they all have to lay off and take a rest of an hour and a quarter before they can proceed. Let the B. & M. get on to itself and put on a few gasoline combination cars if it can't afford locomotives, and give us a service whereby we may visit the neighboring towns in the evening and return as late as ten o'clock. We are not all chickens, nor yet old hens.

Let us know you are alive and up to date before coming out with a petition to squelch competition.

BASE BALL

Antrim Defeats Milford 8 to 7

Antrim won her third victory in four games this season Saturday afternoon here, winning from Milford A. A. in a close contest, 8 to 7.

The local boys appeared on the grounds in their new uniforms and were determined to do themselves credit. They gained a lead at the start and held it until near the close of the game, when Milford came in strofing and tied the score. It commenced to look like a 10-inning game, or more, when Whitney came to bat. He landed a safe single and gained first. Harry Brown was next at bat; and made the best hit of the game, it being a 3-base hit and nearly a home run, thus allowing Whitney to score the winning run.

Both teams put up a good game and were out to win. Antrim found the ball for 16 hits and only one of the boys struck out.

County W. C. T. U.

The thirty-second annual convention of the Hillsboro County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was entertained by the local W. C. T. U. June 5th in the Baptist church, Antrim. The various towns were well represented, Peterboro sending the largest delegation. Dinner was served by the Antrim W. C. T. U. Mrs. Cochrane with words of good cheer welcomed the delegates and Mrs. Wheeler of Nashua gracefully responded.

The annual address by the president presented some of the year's work. Reports were given by delegates for the several unions represented. East Manchester received the banner for the greatest per cent gain in membership.

OBITUARY

Former Antrim Lady Passes Away

Mary Eliza Tuttle, widow of the late William Buchanan, passed away at the residence of her son, Charles, in South Boston, Friday, May 7.

Mrs. Buchanan was the oldest daughter of the late Jonas and Mary Dinsmore Tuttle, and was born in Antrim Jan. 22, 1838; her parents moved to Newbury, Mass., when she was two years old. March 12, 1859, she married William Buchanan of that place. They made their home in South Boston for 25 years, then moved to Antrim Center, remaining there several years, thence to Rockingham, Vt.

Mrs. Buchanan's health has been poorly for several years and about two weeks before her death she suffered a shock of paralysis. She was a true wife, a loving mother, a kind friend, and a good neighbor, never turning a deaf ear to a call of sickness or distress.

She leaves three sons, Charles H., of South Boston, George T., of Saxtons River, Vt., William M., of Dorchester, Mass., five grand children, Helen and Edith, Charles C. Esther M. and Ruth Buchanan; her only daughter, Vienna, dying in infancy; she also leaves one brother, Samuel Tuttle, of Newbury, Vt.

Funeral services were held at her late home in Saxtons River Sunday afternoon. Many beautiful flowers attended the love and esteem in which she was held. Mrs. Buchanan was a member of the Congregational church at Antrim, also a charter member of the Antrim Grange, and a member of the Daughters of Rebekah of Saxtons River.

Mrs. Josephine S. Colby.

Obituary

Vienna P. Dickey, wife of J. Dow Clement, died at her home, "The Maples", Memorial Day, at 8.15 a. m. Mrs. Clement was born in Deering May 14, 1833. On June 11, 1853, she was united in marriage with J. Dow Clement.

The immediate surviving relatives are a husband and five children: Frank O. Clement of Manchester. Mrs. Mary C. Atwood of Hillsboro, John D. Clement of Waltham, Mass., Mrs. Charlotte C. Harvey of Antrim, and Will D. Clement of Waltham, Mass.

Mrs. Clement was generous and considerate of others, devoid of envy, of a sunny disposition, a true friend, a charming companion, and every where and always a loveable woman. Living beyond the allotted three score years and ten, the time which was given to her, was used to good purpose and the world is better by her having lived in it.

The funeral was at the home at 1 o'clock Monday, June 3. Rev. R. W. Wallace of Hillsboro was the officiating clergyman. There was a large attendance at the service and also at the committal exercises at the grave.

REPORTER PIANO AWARDED

Grand Prize Is Won by Miss Lela Young of Antrim

The result in the final count of the Reporter Grand Voting Contest was held on Monday evening of this week, June 10, at the Reporter office. The polls closed at 8 o'clock in the afternoon and our office was a busy one most of the day, especially in the afternoon.

At seven o'clock in the evening the judges, Fred C. Parmenter and Arthur B. Howard, assisted by two representatives of the Publishers' Music Co. of Chicago, commenced the counting of the hundreds of thousands of votes.

As was expected, this was the largest collection of merchants' coupons, bonus votes, etc., received during the entire contest, and the judges were kept busy.

The final result gave Miss Lela Young as the winner of the grand $400 piano, awarded as capital prize in the greatest contest which the Reporter has ever held.

The total result of the contestants, which includes the three different counts, is as follows:

Lela Young	502,850
Mrs. Ray Taylor	332,975
Elinor Gibney	61,425
Edna Cutter	56,500
Nina Boutell	38,800
Mrs. C. Robertson	33,075
Dora L. Craig	10,025
Ethel Underwood	7,225
Eileen Harrison	1,075

The winners in the contest aside from the grand prize take their prizes as offered by the merchants according to their choice; the second highest in votes taking first choice, the third highest second choice, and so on. The prizes are now ready for distribution; the successful ones will present themselves in person and get them, taking with them a copy of Reporter to prove their claim.

Charles H. Prentiss

Sunday morning at his home in North Branch, Charles H. Prentiss died of apoplexy; aged 69 years, 11 months.

He recently moved here from Arlington, Mass., where he resided for many years. For over 25 years he was head book keeper at the Quincy House, Boston, retiring from active service last March.

Deceased was a Past Master of Hiram Lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Arlington; also past Commander of Post 36, G. A. R. of Arlington. He was much interested in the work of these two orders.

He is survived by his son, Charles W. Prentiss and two grandsons, Paul W. and Cecil H. Prentiss, of Antrim.

Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, West Medford, Mass., in the family lot.

Supper and Social

Several from the village attended the supper and social at the Congregational church, Antrim Centre, Friday evening.

The entertainment consisted of songs by the church choir, reading by Miss Amy Butterfield and a humorous farce, "Hiring a Teacher." This farce was written by Mrs. J. L. Larrabee for the occasion and was well received.

A social hour followed the presentation of the program.

How strange it is that so many people who know how to run a newspaper are always in some other line of business. Nine chances to one the publisher knows his own business, and besides, that of his "fault finder" probably much better than he himself does, even if he does not say so. Some can tell to certain ones what he thinks; it is repeated; sounds funny and flat; but let a newspaper say exactly what it thinks—does it fall flat? hardly! Perhaps sometime we'll try it, if certain ones persist in telling how little we know about running a newspaper.

Gregg Pond Notes

The Chamberlain Family has returned to Kozy Korner Cottage, after two weeks' visiting in Hancock and Peterboro. Mr. Chamberlain has given up his job with the Smith steam mill and for the present will work about the Pond.

Larry Cuddily contemplates going to Worcester, Mass., where there is a chance to play ball.

Don Robinson shows his appreciation of the Pond by the frequent visits and the advantage of same which he takes with his canoe. Gregg Pond was a very favorite place to his father, the late Samuel R. Robinson, he being the first citizen from the village to purchase a summer cottage here.

J. C. Butterfield's buildings are going fast toward completion, we at the Pond hope to see him and Mrs. Butterfield there, and that they will make it permanent. The milk and eggs from his farm have always been appreciated and all occupants of the cottages have mentioned the delightful walk down the old road to his place, and many wonder why the town does not have it opened for summer travel at least.

Howe's meat cart will soon make trips to Gregg Pond as will Butterfield's grocery team, and with that of Grant & Boyd which is now making trips here will well supply the cottages.

The highway in bad condition on the north side of the Pond, it is not only dangerous but a disgrace to the town, and with the fact that money was not expended which was appropriated to place this road in proper shape last year we hope the selectmen will see that the Agent attends to same at an early date, and have it in shape before the summer people arrive. With the many people who drive over them and new cottages being built on the west side the town is taking great risks in allowing the conditions remain as they are, as any little accident will cost dear. It wants a lot of dirt carted on and should have been done last year. The people nearly unanimous in this part of the town at Town Meeting voted virtually to do away with the road scraper and have some work done and we hope that the Agent will heed same. Traveling as my business calls me to many parts of the state I have yet to find roads leading to Ponds which are being developed for summer villages neglected as Gregg Pond is.

I met a party, a well to do man, last week who had money to buy a good farm who said he had been here within a few weeks and looked about with another Agent, that he would not come here that he found two families who had come here in recent years that wanted to sell very badly. I am as interested as any man in town with all the interests I have and where I expect to always live, and know there is good reasons for these conditions which ought not to be, as we have an attractive town and natural advantages which few have, and in writing this it is only because as a citizen of the town that I realize we must all recognize the situation in order to correct same, and make a change if possible, if we want to place our town on equal footing with others.

CHARLES R. JAMESON.

The woman of today who has good health, good temper, good sense, bright eyes and a lovely complexion, the result of correct living and good digestion, wins the admiration of the world. If your digestion is faulty Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will correct it.

LAND OF DISTURBED SLUMBER

India Also is the Abode of the Festive Mosquito and the Sleepy Punkah-Wallah.

You cannot circumvent the mosquito to as you can the fly. She has too many brains, wherever she may stow them. But she is frail and feeble on the wing, and you can get her there. For example, in India it is well known that mosquitoes will not bite under the punkah, therefore exiles in that land of the twelve plaques sleep under a swishing punkah for the six summer months, and under a mosquito net for the rest of the year, for there is no closed season for mosquitoes in India. One sleeps as sweetly as may be in that hot, intermittent gale, lulled by the creaking ropes as the punkah flops and sags; sleeps fairly well until the punkah-wallah, who sits outside on your veranda and pulls the punkah by a string through the wall, himself begins to doze, and finally nods as the punkah flags, and slowly, after a spasmodic jerk or two, sinks to rest. The hot air settles down upon you. The mosquitoes settle down on you, too, not singly, but in battalions. I have counted seventeen separate bites on a single finger. And then you wake, slowly, confusedly, as souls will awake in purgatory, wondering what is wrong. Finally you awake enough to discover what is wrong, and realize that the punkah has stopped, and that in consequence you are threatened with an accumulation of heat apoplexy, malaria and blood poisoning complicated by approaching nervous prostration. You might as well resign yourself and make your will. But if you are unresigned and choleric you take a cork screw from the shelf, as the White Knight said to Alice, and go to wake him up for yourself. Then, for the rest of that night and for several nights to come the punkah blows a gale. Or if you are diplomatic rather than choleric you calculate that the punkah-wallah has almost certainly gone to sleep with the punkah-cord in his fingers. You reach up in the mosquito-haunted dark for the slack of the cord on your side of the wall, pull in the slack as cautiously as if you were playing a salmon in a pool, not a punkah-wallah on a veranda, and when the cord is fairly taut you give one long, quick pull that whirrs the punkah-wallah half way across the veranda, where he wakes in a cold sweat, thinking the long-nailed demons have got him at last. Your sotto voce remarks carry just that meaning you hope they have.—Harper's Weekly.

Drab China.

Not a single little Chinese hat with a button is to be seen in Wuchang to day, but such an assortment of caps upon badly barbered heads—caps of ordinary English make and strange varieties made from native fabrics; felt hats of every description, from the soft green, called Alpine, to England's familiar billycock. One coolie was seen carrying water with his bamboo over his shoulder glorious in a silk topper. Nearly all the queues are gone.

I hear of Chinese gentlemen on all sides hastening to discard their charming silk gowns, white socks and picturesque shoes for ordinary prosaic European dress. I begin to fear that I may never see a gorgeous mandarin in all his grandeur of robes and umbrellas and lovely, buttoned peacock feathered hat again. It seems possible, and even probable, that mandarin—oh, and the pity of it! they were so beautiful—may become just ordinary mortals. Fancy a mandarin in frock coat and black silk hat!—Wuchang correspondent Pall Mall Gazette.

Poisonous Snuff.

All sorts of odd ways of being poisoned by lead are recorded in medical history: The man who regularly took the first glass of beer each morning in a saloon, the beer standing over night in the lead pipe running from the keg to the bar pigot; the maid using the first glass of water from the tap supplied by a lead service pipe; the painter who ate his luncheon every day with paint-covered hands; the painter apprentice who slept in the back room with the paint pails and white lead kegs. It might reasonably have been expected that the possibilities in the way of surreptitious lead poisoning had been exhausted. No so. It was recently discovered, after the death of a woman who had been suffering from a mysterious case of lead poisoning not affecting any other members of her family that she was an inveterate snuff taker. The snuff was examined and found to be badly contaminated with lead from the foil in which it was wrapped.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder—and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

TUNE THAT STIRRED M'KINLEY

President Forgot Habitual Dignity
When He Listened to the Famous
Air of the South.

Leopold Bracony, an Italian sculptor, once spent six weeks at the White House engaged in modeling a bust of the late President McKinley. Engaged in similar work he has been in close association with many famous men, both in this country and in Europe, but he declares he never met a more kindly man than Mr. McKinley, and at the same time a more dignified man.

"Only once," he said the other day, "during my long stay at the White House did I see the late president in an attitude that was not dignified, but it was only for an instant. We were in a room in the White House which opened onto a balcony. The president was to address a delegation of southern men and was waiting near the door leading to the balcony for the delegation to draw up in front. Besides the president there were in the room two army officers, Mrs. McKinley and myself.

"Presently we heard the band that was leading the delegation. Mr. McKinley threw back his shoulders, stood erect and placed his hand upon his breast between the buttons of his frock coat and was ready to step out at a signal to be given him by one of the army officers when all was ready.

"The band drew closer and then the air it was playing could be distinguished. It was 'Dixie.' When the president heard the music he listened intently a moment, and then, waving his arms in time to the music, he began to prouette around the room, humming the air as he went.

"Well, well, well, William!" exclaimed Mrs. McKinley, in a semi-humorous, semi-shocked tone. At once Mr. McKinley stopped, assumed the stately, dignified position that was his habit, and then, getting the signal, stepped out on the balcony with his hand thrust into the breast of his coat."

Apt Reply.

A laborer contracted with a farmer to work during the summer, but he tired of the job and walked off.

Later he returned and demanded the balance of his pay. The farmer had been unable to get another hand, all being engaged elsewhere, and he claimed his crop was injured from lack of attention more than the wages due amounted to, and he refused to pay him.

The laborer sued him, but lost the case. He was very angry, and openly said he would get even.

The farmer owned a bunch of fine cattle and was amazed and indignant one morning to find their tails had been cut off. He sued the laborer and brought witnesses who had heard him threaten revenge, but the evidence was circumstantial and the case was dismissed for want of proof. Later the farmer and a neighbor were looking at the cattle, and the farmer remarked he did not know what to do with them.

"Well," said the neighbor, "I think you better dispose of them by wholesale, for it is certain you can never retail them."—Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Willing to Accommodate.

A New York justice got a jolt the other day, and he is telling the story of it yet. He said that late one afternoon he gave a case to a jury and that it was 4:30 o'clock the following morning before the jury agreed upon a verdict.

"I waited for the verdict," said the justice, "and after it was returned I told the jurors that as it was possible that most of them were married men if they desired I would give to each a certificate that he had been detained until 4:30 o'clock in the morning on jury service.

"The jurors consulted together for a few minutes," continued the justice, "and then the foreman arose and said: 'We thank you for your consideration and appreciate the kindness of your offer and desire to say that if your honor needs a certificate to the effect that you were detained until 4:30 o'clock in the morning waiting for our verdict we will gladly so certify.'"

The justice hastily declined this kind offer with thanks, and just as hastily adjourned court.—Law Notes.

One Bugbear of Family Life.

"The thing I just hate about being at home," said a young business woman, "is that you never have anything of your own at home. Everything seems to belong to the whole family."

It is unfortunate that in many families that the members are not taught to respect each other's property or privacy. It adds to every day annoyance and irritations to have some one else write with your personal pen and spoil its point, or some one else to borrow your new kimono, or your last envelope, just when you need it yourself.

BOSTON & MAINE RAILROAD

To the Manufacturers and Industrial Workers of New Hampshire:

At a hearing before the Public Service Commission at Concord on Friday, June 7th, the counsel for the Commission intimated that the commodity rates which were not advanced in 1903 were not bearing their fair share of the burden of transportation.

The inference was plain that if the railroad desired to maintain its present revenue and the Commission should order the class rates reduced, the railroad could make up for this loss of revenue by increasing these commodity rates which are enjoyed by practically every manufacturing industry in New Hampshire.

That the railroad cannot suffer any loss of revenue without seriously impairing its service is too plain for argument.

If these commodity rates are too low, we ought to have the additional revenue. We have given them to assist in developing the industries of New Hampshire. If we have erred in giving too low rates it is our duty to increase them. They are practically the only rates which can be increased under the restrictive statutes of 1883 and 1889.

If, on the other hand, you require these rates to enable you to compete with manufacturers in other states you must convince the Commission of this. You, better than anybody else, know whether this is so.

The importance of the question is seen by the fact that more than sixty thousand persons are employed in five hundred different establishments which enjoy these rates. These represent more than two hundred and fifty thousand persons in New Hampshire—more than half the population—and in addition to these the farmers, storekeepers and others are indirectly but just as seriously affected because of the market which these industrial workers afford for their products. The industries represent an investment of $80,000,000.

The position of counsel in a case would not ordinarily be entitled to weight as indicating how an issue may be determined, but it must be borne in mind that the counsel making these statements is counsel for the Public Service Commission and necessarily and properly occupies intimate and confidential relations with it.

The Commission has fixed upon Monday, June 17, at 11 o'clock A. M., as a time when it will afford manufacturers an opportunity to be heard upon the question whether their rates are lower than necessary.

A failure on your part to appear at this hearing will be properly regarded by the Commission and by the Railroad as evidence that the contention of the counsel for the Commission is sound.

Boston and Maine Railroad.

family are would lose many of its bugbears if children in early life were taught to respect each other's private belongings. If the home is to be cheery, pleasant and altogether worth while there must be some restraint put on the sense of common property.

Revenge.

"Say, alderman, I wish you'd get me a job as a dog catcher."
"Are you out of work?"
"No; but I'll quit the work I'm doing now if you'll get me that job."
"Ever had any experience. I've got the incentive—I'm a letter-carrier."—Chicago Tribune.

Germans Buy Nothing on Credit.
"People in Germany have much more money to spend than here in America, even though the ratio of population there is much greater than in the United States," said William R. Steynway, just before sailing for Germany the other day.

"The German way is to pay cash for what one can afford, and there is absolutely no such thing as living beyond one's means, as we do here. Moreover, there are very clearly defined class distinctions, recognized by the people themselves, who never dream of trying to go above their station."

The Man With the Umbrella.

A sculptor's adventure during the taxi strike is told by a Paris contemporary. The artist is renowned for his resourcefulness and his humor. Over-taken by a downpour of rain near dinner time, he took refuge in a doorway.

There was no taxi to be obtained, the facres that passed were full, and there was no prospect of the rain abating. At the moment a gentleman passed, well dressed and carrying a large umbrella. The sculptor saw his opportunity, shook hands with the stranger and installed himself under the umbrella. It was a coincidence that they should have met; he had been looking out for his acquaintance for the past fortnight. He talked incessantly about a hypothetical family and other matters until they reached the studio.

Then the sculptor discovered his mistake and apologized. The apology was accepted coldly, so the man with the umbrella was invited to inspect the studio. He declined and bade "au revoir." The sculptor entertained his family with the ruse. One member remarked that his tie was disordered. He put up his hand. His pin was missing. So were his watch and purse.
