SCHOOL BOARD

Outside Member Needed at This Time

High Range, Mch. 3, '13.
Antrim Reporter:

Noticing that Mrs. Harvey resigns from the School Board, and being the one most active in securing her election, unbeknown to her, and a position which she did not covet; but as a daughter of Antrim she accepted the trust (with many disadvantages, especially with sick and feeble parents to care for and living at the extreme end of the town) she has worked faithfully for the schools and very satisfactory to her supporters, especially in the outside districts.

We are aware it takes a particular party to do justice as member of the board from the outside; and one is wanted who is knowing to the needs of these sections and resides among them. If the salary of the School Board was cut in two, so that persons would take the position for their interest in the schools, as of old, rather than the money inducement and politics in our mind it would be much better.

By right one member of School Board should be from the west part of the town, and one of the others from Clinton or the two from the South village.

A Bit of History

High Range, Mch. 3, '13.
Antrim Reporter:

In the year 1800, Samuel McAdam lived on Holt's hill, his brother, William McAdam, lived on Patten hill and lived there some seven years after Patten had moved. The road from Antrim Center, then on Meeting House hill, to Hancock was via Gregg's mill, where the Gregg pond dam is now, and it was that way for at least fifteen years; there was no road or houses from C. F. Butterfield's via Clinton to the former Miriam French place. Both history and former old residents' testimony warrants us in saying that the dam as it is today encroaches on the highway at the south and west end.

ARTICLES CONSIDERED

By Members of the Board of Trade All Parties Have a Separate Ticket at a Public Meeting

The Board of Trade held a public meeting on Friday evening last, at town hall, to consider the several articles in the Town Warrant. President F. E. Bass presided, and F. C. Parmenter acted as secretary. A few less than a hundred were present.

There was a little misunderstanding at first, whether this meeting had anything whatever to do with the advisory committee which had been for the past several years appointed by the Moderator—sometimes by vote of the town and at other times without authority; there being no vote of the town on this matter at the last annual meeting, it was the sense of this public meeting that the nine directors of the Board of Trade perform the duties of such committee, and that the secretary have the recommendations ready for use Town Meeting day.

There were a number of articles in the warrant which were not considered at any great length, and some not touched on at all; those considered and passed upon for recommendation at the annual meeting were:

Under Art. 3, the Trustees think that $250 will be a sufficient appropriation for the "James A. Tuttle library"; this sum was recommended.

It was thought best to recommend the usual sum of $50 for use of G. A. R. on Memorial Day.

Quite a bit was said in regard to cutting of bushes along side of main highway; where some favorable remarks were made in reference to the way the cutting of bushes was done in certain places, other instances received very adverse criticism. It was the minds of some that linemen both on the electric and telephone lines in town do not use proper care in the way of cutting tops and limbs of trees, not only spoiling the looks of shade trees but injuring them permanently.

There was not much talk in favor of appropriating sufficient money to secure State aid for the permanent improvement of highways; although it was thought best to recommend that $125 be raised for the maintenance of the State highway we already have, for by raising this amount the State furnishes a like sum to use for the same purpose.

For the extermination of the brown tail moth, it was thought best to recommend the same sum as last year, $300.

Selectman Merrill read the engineer's report on needed repairs to town hall, stating that $200 would be needed for this purpose; such recommendation appeared favorable.

The matters of chemical engine and fire alarm system were considered, some favoring one and some both; a few thinking our present facilities and alarm system sufficient for our needs. The installing of these good things do cost money and during the past few years several instances have been seen where something better than we already own would doubtless have saved thousands of dollars' worth of property; this is not saying one word against our firemen or the apparatus we have—it is simply saying that with improved appliances our firemen can do much better and more effective work. The time when these precautions are needed is not after we have had the fires but before. In other words, the large army is not of so very great importance after the battle is over; they are THE thing with which to face the enemy. A hand chemical engine for use in country towns is now on exhibition at the engine house. Our present fire alarm system is a good one of its kind, and the bell is quite easily heard in the daytime; but we have known of members of the fire department reporting after a fire at night that they did not even hear the alarm. The telephone fire alarm system appears to be a most satisfactory one.

It was not thought best to recommend any change from the present system of highway districts.

The article in regard to land damage to the Clinton & South Village Water Company was gone into somewhat; the referees' report was read, and the history of laying out the road and building the new bridge was rehearsed. Both sides of the story were told. Our stenographer was not present, so we are unable to give to our readers a verbatim report of all that was said pro and con on this subject; it is evident, however, that it will be quite generally and thoroughly discussed in annual meeting. There was no recommendation made on this matter.

It was a unanimous vote to leave the matter of fixing a certain per cent on the valuation to defray town charges, pay existing debts, etc., with the Selectmen, according to the appropriations; they to make the tax rate to the advantage of the town and her tax payers.

As stated above, the hand chemical engine is on exhibition at the engine house, and on Saturday noon of this week the workings of the machine will be demonstrated; everybody who can should witness this try out.

ALINE'S SOILED GOWN

By J. N. NOWLAND.

"Oh, I've ruined it! What shall I do? Virginia, do come here! Oh, Virginia!"

Virginia came running from the dining room of the little flat where she and Aline Carr had been keeping house for two years. Her face was flushed, and her eyes were wide with fright.

"What in the world is the matter, child? Are you hurt? What is it?" she exclaimed as she rushed into Aline's tiny bedroom and found that small person in a sobbing heap on the bed.

"Aline, what have you done? Come, dear, you mustn't cry. Aline, speak to me."

Aline lifted her tear-stained face and brushed back a mass of thick golden curls. "Just look at it! See what I've done to my dress—it's ruined! Oh, Virginia I can't go to the ball. What will Win think? What will his mother think?"

"Ink all over the front of my gown—my pretty new gown! Isn't it just terrible? There's no time to get anything else. It wasn't a fancy dress party, I could manage, but I can't go in just an evening gown, and there is no possible way for me to get even a domino to put over my pink frock."

Again the pretty head was buried in the pillow, and the slight form of the girl shook with sobs.

Virginia looked with alarm and interest at the lovely fluffy frock flung over a chair back. All over the front and side was a dark blue stain, a big blotchy stain that completely spoiled the pretty laces and chiffon.

Virginia knew that she looked on a tragedy. Aline had been engaged to Winston Scott just two weeks. She was to meet him mother for the first time that evening—the mother who would be critical, who was giving a costume ball for Winston's sister, and would expect great things from her daughter-in-law-to-be.

Virginia knew that Mrs. Scott was not the sort of a woman to look with favor upon her son's marriage with a girl who earned her own living; but she knew Aline could win even the sternest woman's heart with her gentle manner and sweet, loving disposition if she only had a chance.

"Don't cry, little one. I think we can fix it all right. Come along with me. I may have something that will do as well as this shepherdess dress."

Wonderingly, Aline followed Virginia into her room, where the older girl had hidden a large trunk taking things out of it until she drew forth a kimono wrapped in tissue paper. Opening it, she held up a lovely, crisp kimono, a real Japanese garment of the palest pink, pink with cherry blossoms embroidered over it so that they looked as if some happy woman had been scattering them there. It was lined with creamy satin.

Aline gazed with joy. She could wear the lovely robe over her pink slip and represent a daughter of Japan.

Virginia helped her to arrange her hair with tiny fans and pretty pins. Her brows and eyes were penciled; a little rouge applied daintily to her cheeks and lips gave her the pleasant, graceful look of a dainty girl.

"Where did you get this lovely kimono, Virginia? How sweet of you to lend it to me!"

"I went to a party—give your name—called Virginia, and then I really enjoyed the subject."

She sank down in a secluded corner of the room to get a fresh breath and think for a minute. She had been a success. Mrs. Scott had received her most graciously. Winston had told her over and over how lovely she was, and his sister had admired her. Aline had seen the prettiest girl in the ballroom. It was almost time to unmask.

She laid her head back on the cushions of the divan and closed her eyes behind their satin mask. Suddenly she was conscious of some one standing behind her; then—

"Virginia! At last I have found you! I came late, and only caught sight of you in the crush. Why have you hidden your self from me, Virginia?"

I beg your pardon. I am not Virginia. I suppose you mean Virginia Taylor. And Aline quickly pulled off her mask, revealing her face to the man in monk's costume seated by her side.

Pardon me. I'm sorry I made the mistake—but surely, that is—it was your kimono that led me to think you were Miss Taylor. She has, or had one just like it.

"This is Miss Taylor's kimono. She let me wear it tonight because I spoiled my own dress."

"You know Virginia? Tell me, is she here?"
