Official Visitation

The occasion of the annual visitation of an official from the Rebekah State Assembly was observed last Wednesday night by Hand-in-Hand lodge of Rebekahs, at their regular meeting. The official visitor was Mrs. Sarah Lang, of Manchester, a past president of the Rebekah Assembly of N. H.

There was an unusually large attendance of members present, several coming from Bennington and Hancock. The Rebekah degree was exemplified on a class of three candidates. After the meeting a banquet was served in the banquet hall connected with the lodge room.

Woman's Missionary Alliance

Held an especially interesting meeting last Thursday afternoon in the Baptist church. The program included solos by Miss S. Josephine Wing, of Peekskill, N. Y. Roll call was answered by quotations from well known immigrant writers. "A Balancing contest for and against Jews and Bohemians as Immigrants" was opened by Mrs. W. J. B. Cannell, Mrs. Clark B. Cochran and Mrs. G. Bennett VanBuskirk. Mrs. Archie Swett read a paper on "What I Remember about the Beginning and Development Chapters of the New America." A paper on "Balkan Races" by Mrs. Harold Farnham was a feature of the afternoon.

HOW AMERICAN WOMEN KEEP HOUSE IN THE GREAT PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Housekeeper Not Entitled to Commission Quarters Has Her Troubles—Public Market a Redeeming Feature Where Rents Are High and Accommodations Are Very Poor—Furnished Flat in the City.

Washington.—Much has been written about the comfortable quarters and well managed commissaries which Uncle Sam maintains for his employes in the canal zone, but one never hears about the hundreds of American women keeping house in the city of Panama without these advantages, says a writer in the Washington Post.

With few exceptions, no one can live in the zone excepting those entitled to commission quarters. There are hundreds of Americans in business in Panama who do not enjoy this privilege. To this list are added several hundred Americans awaiting their turn for government quarters; many of them have been waiting for two years.

The first thing such people have to contend with is the difficulty of getting rooms. There is only one house in town used exclusively as a residence, and there is no such thing as a residential district. Even the most fashionable people live over stores. We lived over one of the most notorious saloons in town. It might have been a dry goods store or a bakery, but it just happened to be a saloon or cantina, as the Panamans call them. The rents are very high, and the aries only, and it is cheaper to buy these if one is going to live in Panama more than a month or two.

The next thing is food. If your husband is an I. C. C. employe he draws commissary books for you; if not you have to manage as best you can at the local market. As a matter of fact, there is hardly any one in Panama who has not some friend who will get him commissary books. This abuse of the privilege has made it very hard for those who are really entitled to it, for recently the commissary has stopped all deliveries in Panama.

The market in Panama is a great institution and a woman can do very well if only she knows how. The tropical fruits and vegetables are good and the fish is delicious.

In the early morning, before daylight, the natives come from up the coast in their dugouts or "cayucas," as they are called. They come in on the high tide, and when the tide comes sight of an American looking for a home is the signal for the rents to soar even higher. The majority of Americans live in from two to five rooms. All of the buildings have showers, a kitchen sink and little other plumbing.

Before the Americans came there were no sewers and no plumbing, and the improvements when introduced had to be put wherever space could be found in the old houses. As a result the kitchen sink is generally on the back porch and the shower invariably in the front hall. There is only one bathtub in Panama. An added inconvenience is the fact that several families frequently have to share the same shower and the same sink.

Having engaged a room, the next thing is to make it habitable. Four walls, and dirty at that, are about all the tenant gets for his rent. There are no such things as closets, cupboards or shelves, and the place is sure to need paint. But feminine ingenuity has done wonders with cotton cretons and packing boxes, a few matting rugs, a white iron bed, and a kitchen table, some kitchen chairs and perhaps a rocker or two.

The distinguishing feature of an American home in Panama is the kerosene stove. Every one is doing it—cooking on a kerosene stove.

There are a few furnished rooms, but the rent is much too high for the majority of people living in Panama. "Furnished" means the bare necessities for comfort and blessing.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be printed in the Antrim Reporter and a copy be sent to the family.

out they sell their produce on the beach. This market on the beach is one of the sights of Panama, and in fact, one of the most interesting things of its kind in the world.

By daylight, or soon after, all the cooks are there with their market baskets, and then such a babel! Every country in the world is represented—Jamaicans, Barbadians, Italians, Greeks, the tall and picturesque Martinique negroes, the Chinese and the Panamans.

On the beach are piled yams, coconuts, papayas, plantains, coconuts, pineapples, bananas, mamays and little native oranges, full of seeds but sweet.

The yam is perhaps the most common of the vegetables. It tastes very much like a sweet potato.

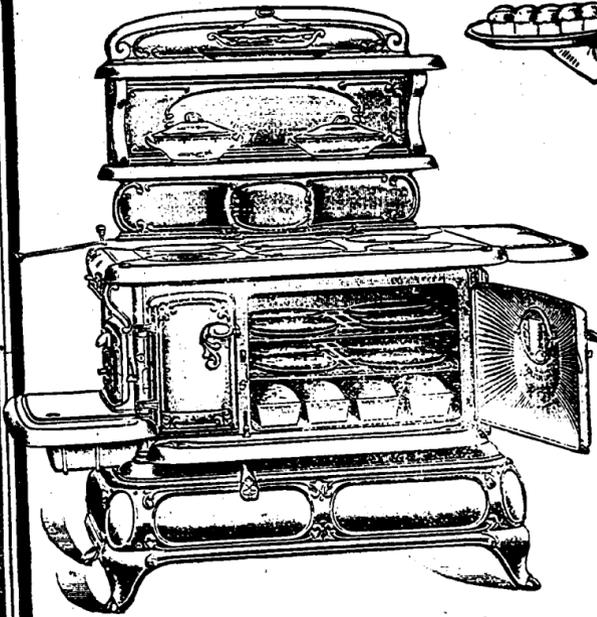

The plantain looks like a huge banana, but has to be cooked and is generally served as a vegetable. This, too, tastes like a sweet potato. Fried plantain and bacon is a favorite dish.

And speaking of meat, that is what the average American stops in marketing in Panama. The meat is either very fresh or tainted. At this point the cold storage is a blessing. The meat is brought down from the United States and is tested, so that it is safe.

Another thing upon which householders in Panama are dependent is cold storage. The only other Three Birthdays Yearly.

There is apparently plenty of fun for the child in Sweden in the matter of birthdays, but the parent can hardly be expected to feel the same, for the children there do not confine themselves to one birthday, but they must have three.

Of course, the first one is the real birthday, and the other two are those whose names the Swedish boy or girl bears.

For every day in the year of the Swedish calendar has its own separate name, besides the weekly names which other nations have. Sometimes if the parent gives the child a second name or a first one that cannot be found in the calendar the child loses out on one birthday. And considerable protest must follow, too, when the child becomes old enough to realize what he is missing.

In the German calendar every day has a name also, but the observance of these days is not at all common in the latter country.

Following Up the Fads.

Sharp-Draper—What are you at now?

Bookkeeper—Making out Mr. Bullon's bill.

"All right. Charge him an extra $20 for sundries."

"Hadn't I better put in the items?"

"There are no items. They weren't bought."

"My goodness; He'll say we're swindlers."

"No, he won't. He won't say a word."

"Why not?"

"Well, you see, kleptomaniacs are very fashionable now, and he'll think his wife has got the sundries."

Self-Esteem.

The successful merchant is never too modest to advertise his goods as the best. The man who declines to recommend his own talents is not likely to get a high rating.

Reliable.

"Is your chauffeur a reliable man?"
"Oh, yes. We can always rely on him to hit every hen or pig that happens to be in the road."

FOR THE GRIP
Peruna Is Sometimes Used With Good Results

Mrs. Jane Gift.

A great many people use Peruna for the grip. Some use it as soon as the grip begins, taking it during the acute stage of the disease, claiming for it great efficacy in shortening the disease, and especially in shortening the after stages.

Many people take it after they have had the grip. Their convalescence is slow. They have suffered along for a month or two, without any signs of complete recovery. Then they resort to Peruna as a tonic, with splendid results.

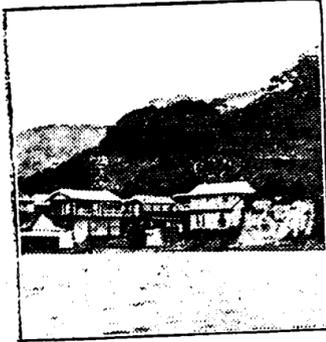

Mrs. Jane Gift, R. F. D. 1, Athens, Ohio, whose portrait appears above, writes: "I think I would have been dead long ago if it had not been for Peruna. Six years ago I had a grippe very bad. The doctor came to see me every day, but I gradually grew worse. I told my husband I thought I would surely die if I did not get relief soon."

"One day I picked up the newspaper and accidentally found a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. I told my husband I wanted to try it. He went directly to the drug store and got a bottle of Peruna. I could see the improvement in a very short time and was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was entirely cured."

Mr. Victor Patneaud, 328 Madison St., Topeka, Kas., writes: "Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength, but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work."

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again. This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider it a household remedy."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

Residential Architecture of Canal Zone.

Kind to be had in Panama is tin butter, costing a great deal and tasting like lard.

The dry goods stores are really very good, and many things are much cheaper than they are at home. Lace, silk, linen and French trimmings are inexpensive. On the other hand, shoes are expensive. In fact, this is a place of cheap luxuries and expensive necessities.

One of the difficulties a housekeeper has to contend with is the endless variety of entomological specimens. In our rooms we have five varieties of ants, from the little red ant that cannot be discouraged by water to the flying ant, which was always attracted to the dinner table by the light above. Scorpions were daily visitors and, of course, cockroaches. Every trunk, bureau drawer or box made a home for cockroaches. It was never wise to put on a hat that had not been worn for a few days without first looking inside.

It seems strange.

One sometimes wonders why it is that the first words of some people's babies do not happen to be: "Get the cot."

HUNTING TROUBLE

When you start out to inquire Whether Brown called you a liar,
You may in your indignation
Think you're doing something bravely
To preserve your reputation,
But give heed a moment gravely,
When you start on such a mission Wildly threatening to send Your defender to perdition
You are not a hero, friend—
You are merely hunting trouble.

When you start out, gentle lady,
To discover naughty, shady
Things your husband has been doing,
Or of which he is suspected,
You may think you are pursuing Sins that ought to be detected,
But the truth you seek may hurt you
And in seeking fail to get Sweet revenge for outraged virtue
You may find to your regret
That you've merely hunted trouble.

Those who search for sorrow find it;
Every door has hid behind it
Trouble in some shape or guise;
It may be imaginary,
This inconsequential, airy,
But he finds it there who tries,
What a world of useless sorrow
Might be headed off tomorrow
If by prayer or through pity
'Twere arranged so that suspicion
Should have neither ears nor eyes.

Rice as Food.
Rice forms nearly one-half of the cereal food of the world and wheat is the chief cereal food of the other half. The quantity of these two cereals produced is approximately the same, the latest estimate placing the world's rice crop at 175 billion pounds and the world's wheat crop at 190 billion pounds.

Culvert of Cement.
The culvert made of cement is more often seen now than in years past. The good road with good drainage and good culverts is a joy in every season.

"Whatever are we going to do with nine chafing dishes?" exclaimed the bride when she and the groom had at last been permitted to look at the presents.

"We might exchange two or three of them for a couple of skillets and perhaps trade the rest in on a sack of flour and a peck of potatoes."

He May.
"A man who deliberately avoids marriage so that he may not be called on to support a family is the personification of selfishness."
"He may be that, but he may also be sparing both the public and himself a lot of unprofitable trouble."

A Penalty.
"Beautiful married women," says one of the philosophettes, "are not happy."
This is one of the penalties of a social code that makes it ungentlemanly to tell a married woman that she is beautiful.

HOPEVILLE'S BOOM

Town Failed to Get the Railroad, but Prosperity Came Another Way.

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.
"We've missed it! We're nothing but a way-back settlement now."

Thus Jared Bross, of the board of trustees of the neat, picturesque, but isolated town of Hopeville.

"You mean the railroad has missed us," corrected Phillip Dawes, president of this same board of trustees.
"Well, gentlemen, that shall not prevent Hopeville continuing to do itself proud, I trust, as a model village without a blemish."

Very proud of the community he had helped build up was Phillip Dawes, and he spoke with enthusiasm.
He had always predicted great things in store for Hopeville. Never a village of fairer location and environment.
A rare trout stream bounded one of its limits, a dream of a lake bounded another. There were hills, dales and lovely undulating meadows, a thrifty farming community surrounding, and the town people ideal, morally, socially and as to their municipal harmony.
"Some day Hopeville will forge to the front," was his optimistic slogan —"some day values will go up, and each man come into his own."

When the new railroad was talked of, old residents began to boost their acres and town lots as to values.
Enormous fortunes were figured out.
In fancy they saw a busy traffic, crowds of summer visitors, picnickers from the city, scattered farm trade centered at the new shipping

"Trying to Get a Railroad into Hopeville?"

point. Hopes rose high, then they were correspondingly depressed, for the railroad made a detour, and Byron, quite a busy little city eight miles distant, was made the terminus of the new branch line railway.

"Wish I'd settled there as I intended to ten years ago!" grumbled disloyal and disagreeable Jared Bross.
"There's some go to Byron. I don't care if they do encourage a riff-raff crowd—stir and sensation bring in the dollars, don't they?"

"But we don't want the dollars that way," insisted Dawes. "We go in for schools, and rational amusements, and clean, healthy children. Do you ever find any riotous crowds in Hopeville?
No, sir!"

Bross had a strong personal reason for being disgruntled with Hopeville.
He was a man of some means and his son, Bradley, had married a poor humble girl. The old man had railed at the secret match, and had promptly discarded his disobedient son.
Nellie Horton, whom Bradley had married, was an orphan, but her parents had left her a small farm just out of town. There the wedded pair settled down. It was a poor place, however, situated near a sterile ravine, soil not fertile, and affording a bare living.

"That boy will rue the day he disregarded my advise!" the elder Bross had said one day to Dawes.

"Oh, nonsense!" retorted his neighbor, "Bradley is a good boy. The poor young pair have hard scratching, perhaps, but they're happy and contented as two birds in a nest."

"Humph!" commented the iron-hearted father, and went his way sullen and unlovely.

So Byron got the railroad and what went with it, both good and bad.
There was a good deal of grumbling in Hopeville, and in a measure Phillip Dawes looked upon as a disappointing founder and builder. The pride and ambition of the old man were touched. Then he began to plan to retain his prestige. Neighbors noticed that he went to a city fifty miles distant a great deal. Also, that he brought distinguished-looking business men back with him, whom he showed all over the district.

"Trying to get a railroad into Hopeville?" inquired Bross, somewhat sneeringly.

"Not at all," retorted Dawes, with an enigmatical smile. "We don't want one—why, I intend to explain to you weak sister growlers at the annual."

The "annual" was a time honored institution of Hopeville, and now again close at hand. Every year Phillip Dawes had insisted that the representative residents of the place meet at the town hall to celebrate the founding of the village. Speeches, congratulations, suggestions for civic improvements comprised the features of the program. Then a banquet. Dawes was always the chairman of the functions, and so felicitous was his handling of the various toasts proposed, that he had won the title of "The Cheer Master."

They could hear the distant echo of an engine whistle across the valley as they sat in the town hall on the present occasion. It reminded some of the sore ones of their disappointment. Dawes, however, was in great fettle that evening, and when the banquet board was reached his buoyant, optimistic air communicated itself to others.

They never had anything stronger than clear, sparkling water at these celebration functions. They had nothing stronger, because in the first place no one seemed to want it, and furthermore the big artesian well that supplied the town ranked third in the state as to purity of outcrop, so, as a matter of local loyalty, the toasts were drunk in aqua pura.

"Hopeville—her splendid past and her glorious future," was the toast read.

"Humph!" grumbled Bross, "I think Dawes will have to take a back seat this time."

But Phillip Dawes arose, looking brighter and prouder than he had ever seemed. He took no back water on the buoyant predictions of past years. He looked quite dazzled as he spoke of the golden stream of good fortune now knocking at their doors. And then most everybody made a grimace, set down the unfinished libation, and looked queer.

"Something the matter with the water, friends?" smiled Dawes. "That's the merit of it. It is Hopeville water, though not from the home well. Gentlemen, you have drank of the soon-to-be-celebrated Lithia-Magnesium water, specially presented to you to introduce the last requirement this beautiful district needed to make it famous."

"Say, what are you driving at, anyhow?" inquired Bross bluntly.

"Just this," explained Dawes. "I reasoned from the first that the new railroad would open up a popular outing resort somewhere along its line. The noisy railroad has spoiled Byron. Besides, they have no such magnificent scenery as Hopeville, nor a lake, nor a trout stream, nor the model town. Again, tourists like to ride from terminus in a stage—think they're diving into the primeval wilderness. Well, gentlemen, for two months I have been negotiating with wealthy promoters in the city. The deal is closed, a big hotel is to be built at the head of the lake, and people will come to Hopeville next season, dead loads of them."

Voices arose in eager demands for more detailed information. Property and rents would go up! The town stores would quadruple their business! The rich golden harvest was coming at last!

"But what about this horrible tasting water?" queried Bross, with a wry face.

"Pronounced by chemists the most healthful beverage in the world," boasted Dawes proudly, "a true mineral water. When the promoters learned that, they offered ten thousand dollars cash for the spring it came from."

"And where is that?"

"Down in a forgotten corner of that poor, neglected farm your boy lives on over in the ravine. Now, Neighbor Bross, as all the town is happy over the grand general prospects ahead of us, suppose you go down to the ravine farm and congratulate your son, Bradley, and his wife on their share in the general good luck?"

And thus it was that the name of the popular Cheer Master became a household word in Hopeville for all time to come.

HENRY HOWLAND

THE QUICK and THE DEAD

Caesar's dead and turned to clay,
Alexander's drifting dust;
Let us hope King Arthur may Be at present with the just;
They were great and they were grand,
Fame they gained which will not die,
Splendidly they wrought and planned,
Still we praise them, you and I;
But behold you harkmen pass!
He may never win applause—
Yet he lives, while they, alas!
Are but parts of all that was.

Galileo is no more;
Ferdinand and Isabel,
On some far celestial shore,
May with sainted Colon dwell;
Never shall their glory fade,
Fame that shall endure for aye;
At their graves men humbly bow,
Praise to them we gladly give—
Ah, but do they know it now?
Who would not prefer to live
As a Robert Bridges, e'en,
Than to be a Shakespeare dead?
Luckier than a lifeless queen
Is a housewife baking bread.

Supreme Greatness.
"Well, my little man, I hope you have the ambition to become a useful citizen when you grow up. Wouldn't you like to become as great as President Wilson?"

"Yep, I'd like to be greater than him. I wish I would be so great that all the clubs would play double-headers on my birthday."

Rough on Handel.
"Did you attend the recital given by Miss Hammersley last night?"

"Yes."

"How was it? I believe she was to confine herself almost exclusively to Handel."

"Well, if she did, all I have to say is that Handel was mighty roughly handled."

Reached His Limit.
"Well, what are you complaining about?" grumbled Richard Rockingham. "I've made my million. Now why can't you be happy?"

"Yes, you've made your million," his wife bitterly replied, "but you can't dig up any of your ancestors and get them to make a family tree for us."

NO HOPE.
"No, my dear, I have decided that we will never have an automobile until I can afford to pay $50 or $100 for repairs without noticing it."

"Oh, then, I suppose I may as well give up hope. With your stingy disposition you'd notice it even if your income were as large as that of a union bricklayer."

Of Value to Country.
Good roads may not be the whole solution for prosperity and happiness of country life, but they are a part of it, and a very necessary and important part of it.

Good Road Advocates.
It is gratifying to observe that every owner of an automobile immediately becomes an advocate of good roads.

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since." — Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

ROAD BUILDING

EFFECTUAL REPAIR OF ROADS

Continuous Maintenance Keeps Highways Always in Good Condition—Advantage Self-Evident.

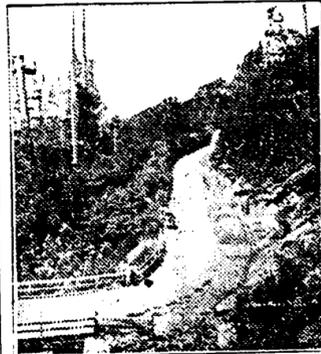

The need of effectual repair and maintenance of highways has now become well recognized. The resulting demand for better methods and more certain results is insistent. The office of public roads of the department of agriculture is making a strong effort to focus the mind of the country on the fact that maintenance and effective repair are of equal importance with the actual improvement of bad roads. Investment of money in new roads does not become real economy until provision is made for keeping these new roads in condition after they are built. If a new road was built and then allowed to fall into disrepair, much of the original investment is simply wasted.

Europe, generally speaking, is ahead of the United States in the matter of road improvement, but Great Britain is struggling with a problem similar to the one that confronts the people of the United States. In England, Scotland and Wales there are no fewer than 2,140 separate authorities who between them administer 175,487 miles of roads, or an average of only 82 miles apiece. In Scotland, apart from the big cities there are over 200 burghs, one-half of which have 10 miles of road apiece to maintain. Needless to say, such a minute mileage is insufficient to keep the road plant fully occupied all the year around, and renders the employment of a skilled engineer impossible for economical reasons.

Officials of the office of public roads, when called upon for assistance by the various states, are pointing out that road building is an art based on a science, and that trained men and experienced men are necessary to secure the best results from the expenditure of road funds.

Statisticians have found that although the average expenditure on the improvement of roads exceeds one million dollars a day, a large portion of the money in the United States is wasted because of the failure to build the right type of road to meet the local requirements or the failure to provide for the continued maintenance of the improvement.

During the last two decades there has been a remarkable development of road building which is intimately associated with state aid and state control, especially in the region north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi river. The evolution of present day conditions in this section is particularly important in its bearing on highway repair and maintenance. The rapidly increasing automobile traffic on highways has greatly stimulated interest in road improvement and profoundly modified methods of construction and maintenance.

At the beginning of the year 1913, 90 per cent. of approximately 2,000,000 miles of the roads in this country were earth. The repair and proper maintenance of earth roads are therefore of great importance. To preserve a properly built or repaired earth road, it has been repeatedly demonstrated that the best method is some system of continuous maintenance. The operations involved in maintenance are in one sense small repairs. The economy in small repairs over extensive periodic repairs is largely due to the fact that defects in a road develop at an increasing rate if allowed to continue, and the cost of restoring the road to the normal condition is consequently made greater than the actual sum of the costs of repeated minute repairs. The split-log drag, or some of its modifications, has proved beyond doubt the best tool for earth-road maintenance.

WHEN YOU THINK OF YOUR SPRING SUIT, DRESS OR COAT!

Think of the store of H. H. Barber. The store that suggests Spring on every hand. Wherever you turn Spring Styles greet you. From the recognized fashion centers we have carefully selected the most authentic Spring Styles. The Suits and Coats which we show are stylish and elegant. Many of them without sacrificing any style are made on more conservative lines for ladies who do not appreciate the very extremes of fashion. We are doing a big business with customers of refined tastes. In regard to prices you will find we mark our Suits, Coats and Dresses very much less than city stores. We believe in straightforward dealing with our trade, not marking an article unreasonably high for the purpose of advertising a big mark down later. We mark goods the first of the season as low as we can, in most instances less than city store prices after their so called mark downs.

We can make it an object for you to come to Milford. If you can not come let us send you our catalogue. No matter what you want, write for samples.
