DEATH VISITS ANTRIM

This Time Removes a Prominent Citizen and One Much Respected

THE towns people were greatly shocked on Saturday morning to learn of the very sudden death of George F. Perry, at his home on Concord street. Mr. Perry was apparently in his usual good health when he retired Friday night. Between 10 and 11 o'clock at night he passed away, almost without warning, the cause of death being kidney disease.

Deceased was born in Bellows Falls, Vt., March 11, 1860, and came to Antrim when two years of age; he has since lived here. As proprietor of the Mt. View House, in East Antrim, upon which farm he spent most of his life, he conducted an extensive summer boarding business and formed acquaintances throughout New England. He was a successful cattle trader and farmer.

Mr. Perry was always interested in the town's welfare and did all he could to promote its interests. He was a prominent Democrat and served the town for several years as selectman, supervisor, and in other offices; and on the Democratic town committee. In 1904 he was elected to the Legislature from this town and served one term.

Deceased was generally known throughout the town as one of its most upright and honorable citizens, square in his dealings with his fellow-men, of sound judgement, and in a word one of Antrim's substantial and reliable men—that kind of a good citizen of which every town has too few. His friendship was worth much, and many will miss his genial and jovial greetings. The immediate family and its connections have met with an irreparable loss, for here he was a true husband, a loving and indulgent father, and as kind a grandfather as any child could wish for.

GEORGE F. PERRY

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Abi Perry, and two daughters, Mrs. Myra F. Young of Warner, and Mrs. Etta Rokes of this town; there are also four grand-children. These have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their deep affliction.

The funeral was held from the Presbyterian church, of which deceased was a member, on Monday afternoon, his pastor, Rev. F. A. Arbuckle, officiating. Many friends were present to pay their respects to a departed friend, and a profusion of floral tributes bore silent testimony of "ties that bind." Interment at Maplewood.

Much is said concerning the railroad crossing death traps along the many roads, especially after some serious accident like the North Rochester one of last week. It matters but little if the railroads do plead poverty as an excuse, enraged public opinion will not stand this sort of thing much longer.

The hazy railroad situation does not seem to clear up to any great extent; rather, the mist is appearing to settle more heavily with every forward step.

Selected Poem

Summer Thoughts

Farewell, farewell, dear wife of mine!
'Tis best that you should go away;
But oh, drop me a little line
Each day—or every other day.
Yes, I shall tend the rubber plant
And feed the clock and wind the cat;
When lonely I'll call on your aunt—
Yes, I'll take good care of the flat!

Oh, yes, of course, I'll lonely be,
But you must have your summer joys,
And then, some times, I'll have with me
Joe Jenkins and the other boys.
There, there! Of course I did but jest;
Those rowdies never shall come near!
Go and enjoy a perfect rest—
I'll manage to get on, my dear.

We'd better go and catch a car;
It fills my heart with grief and pain;
But, then, it isn't very far—
For heaven's sake, don't miss that train!
Good by, my love, a farewell kiss.
There! She is gone! Oh heart, be strong!
My loved one's presence I shall miss;
But, say, I think I'll get along.

Day's Hike by Boy Scouts

Troop No. 1 of the Antrim Boy Scouts enjoyed a hike Saturday to lake George, in Bennington, a distance of about four miles from here. Scout Master G. Bennett VanBuskirk was with the boys and had the outing in charge. A basket lunch was enjoyed at noon. During the day there were athletic contests and games of various kinds, boating, bathing and swimming races. This is the second hike which the troop has made this summer. The Scouts plan to go on a hike every Saturday for the entire day, and put in practice several of the customs of their order, and prepare themselves for further advancement and examinations in Boy Scout work.

Obituary

J. Langdon Reed has passed on from this earth to his reward, where pain and sickness are never known, and the weary are at rest. He has been in failing health for the past few years and had not engaged much in the activities of life outside the home, and there is where he will be greatly missed.

He was a member of the Ephraim Weston Post, G. A. R. in which he took a great interest. He was in Co. G, 14th N. H. Vols., enlisting August 18, 1862, and served until the close of the war. A brave soldier, never shirking his duty and always loyal to the flag which he loved.

He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. James R. Ashford and three grand-daughters, Mae, Olive and Florine Ashford, of Antrim; one brother, Benton H. Reed and two sisters, Mrs. James E. Gould and Miss Belle A. Reed of Somerville, Mass. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Interment was in Maplewood.

To the Voters of Hillsborough County

I have filed my application with the Secretary of State for re-nomination at the primary election, Sept. 1, for the office of County Commissioner from Nashua, on the Republican ticket.

I am now completing my second term of office in that capacity, and have endeavored to perform the duties of the office honestly and faithfully, for the best interests of the people, without regard to sect or party.

I invite the attention of the voters to my record, and if it meets with approval, will be pleased to receive the honor of a renomination and election. And if elected I pledge myself to give my best efforts to the service of the county.

JAMES H. HUNT.

Announcement

During the months of July and August we will deliver Ice Cream around Gregg Lake and Clinton village on Saturday mornings.

Orders for anything else from the Drug Store telephoned in not later than Friday p.m. we will be glad to deliver.

Very truly yours,
E. M. Lane.

THE HIRING OF TEACHERS

An Undesirable Duty Which Only a Few Would Care to Perform

IF the general public has any idea that the hiring of new teachers for our High-graded and district schools is a matter of small concern, they are very much mistaken. Even the matter of re-hiring the old teachers is sometimes as much of a task as hiring new; some may want the old, some may not—and the school board is elected and paid by both these factions. They feel in duty bound to please all if possible. Some may say that the school board should go right ahead regardless of what people say and hire whoever they think best to teach in our schools; this sounds sensible, but everyone who has had experience knows that so much advice (?) of various kinds is offered the school board and superintendent, that it does have (if only in a slight sense) some influence, and it is often extremely difficult not to be warped a bit in one's judgement in selecting a teacher for any one of our schools.

Yet, the job of hiring new teachers is one of the most difficult tasks the school board has to face, whether it be accomplished in a satisfactory manner or not; if they themselves are satisfied with their selection so much is gained. Their judgement should be relied upon wholly, nothing whatever be said concerning their choice of teachers till such teachers prove themselves unfit for the position. Good money is spent for the support of our schools and the school board do their best to spend it wisely—in hiring teachers as in everything else. It may be that now and then a teacher proves to be inefficient or deficient along some certain line—this is not a fault of the school board, but to continue to keep one of this kind is an injustice to the pupils and a poor use of the town's money. It is then time to mention the fact to the "powers that be." Our school officials are conscientious men and are doing their utmost to get the best that can be found to instruct our youth, and they have the hearty support of all our people in their endeavors. What has been done can't be helped, and it is hoped their labors hereafter will be crowned with success.

This year a new principal of our High school had to be obtained, and the authorities have secured the services of A. J. Davis, a graduate of New Hampshire college, considered to be one of the best agricultural men in the state. He will have charge of this department and the assistants will be lady instructors who have not yet been hired. Mr. Davis comes highly recommended; has had experience; has a wife and one child. It is the hope of our entire town that he will prove the right man for the place. Other new teachers will have to be hired; we trust the services of the best will be procured, and that our High school, and all others as well, will rise to the standard they ought to and there be maintained. Good schools act as a thermometer for a town and may they be kept to a high standard of efficiency. Take our advice: don't bother the school board over much in this matter; but when you have reason for considering with them the welfare of the schools, do so in a business fashion. (they meet regularly once each month.) and you will receive proper attention. Our school board are men of courtesy and best of intentions, and with the help they should have from our people will do much for our schools; let's try it, and see how much more can be accomplished than by just talking around.

Build Up Your Business!

A prominent writer on this vital subject says: "Build up your business with the aid of the country publisher. You will find him the best salesman in the United States. And build up the power and the prosperity of the country publisher with your business, and you will be building up the United States and its best interests."

This bids fair to be one of the best lay seasons for quite a number of years.

HENRY HAD COURAGE

By JANE PHAR.

"He said," Carkle admitted defiantly, after being pressed to helplessness, "that I'd better have it out. Said it wasn't possible to save it."

"That's too bad," sympathized Mrs. Carkle. "I'd have it done right away—today."

"Yes," said Carkle, casually. "No use putting it off."

When he returned home that evening Mrs. Carkle met him tenderly. "Did it hurt you much?" she inquired.

"Huh?" asked Carkle, blankly.

"Why, your tooth—you had it extracted, didn't you?"

"Oh," murmured Carkle, as though recalled from a long distance. "No—I didn't. I have been too busy, Emily, to think of myself. I didn't have any time. I'll go tomorrow."

"Well?" inquired Mrs. Carkle, the following evening. "How do you feel, Henry? Was it painful?"

Carkle paused in the act of removing his overcoat and gazed at her reproachfully. "I wish, Emily," he said, "that you would recollect that I am a business man and not free to follow my own whims and inclinations. You may be able to consult your own pleasure, but you needn't think I can drop a $20,000 deal for the sake of a mere tooth! I—"

"But the dentist said for you to have it out!" persisted his wife inexorably. "It wouldn't take half an hour! You're just trying to put it off, Henry Carkle, and I must say that I am surprised at you!"

"No such thing!" cried Mr. Carkle, with immense indignation. "A baby wouldn't mind having a tooth out nowadays with their modern methods! If you think I am afraid of a trifling unpleasantness—pooh! I'm as hungry as a bear!"

"Henry," said Mrs. Carkle, the following morning as he left for the city. She spoke very distinctly. "Remember, you are to go today and have that tooth out!"

"They Were Telling Him to Wake Up."

That afternoon Carkle phoned he had to stay down town to dinner with a client and that Mrs. Carkle was not to sit up for him. She had got as far as asking, "Did you have—" when the receiver at his end hung up with a click.

At the breakfast table the next morning he got in ahead of her. "No, don't start telling me about that tooth!" he said, with infinite and weighty sarcasm. "I am quite aware, my dear, that I possess a molar which has to be extracted, according to the dentist, in whom, by the way, I haven't any too much faith! I intend, however, to abide by his decision—I can't afford not to when a man is such a plate in his charges as Jenkins—and I shall have it done today."

"You are a coward," stated Mrs. Carkle, distinctly and unpleasantly. "I never thought my husband would be—"

The front door banged heavily after Carkle. Twice that morning Mrs. Carkle got him on the telephone to make inquiries. The second time he was so violent that she did not wait for him to finish, but hung up the receiver. She gathered that he was engaged in settling the fate of LaSalle street, Wall street and possibly Europe, and if she thought—

Immediately before noon Carkle's office door opened abruptly and looking up he beheld on the threshold his wife Carkle was alone, feet on his desk, cigar in mouth, magazine in hand, an aura of immense leisure surrounding him. He turned pale.

"Henry," said Mrs. Carkle, "at great inconvenience to myself, I have come down here to accompany you to the tooth extracting bee. If you can leave Wall street and your numerous clients for a short time, I should like you to come with me—at once!"

Carkle got on his feet hurriedly and before he knew it was in the fatal chair.

They were telling him to wake up before he was sure that anything was happening to him. Everybody was quite cheerful and casual and acted as though nothing had occurred. In the outer office he met his wife, a little anxious and pale.

"Well?" she asked.

Carkle smiled at her in a superior way and shrugged into his overcoat. "Why, Emily," he said, "you really act as though you were nervous!"—Chicago Daily News.

ATTACKED BY VENOMOUS RAT

"Banana" Rodent From South America Drives Clerks Hurriedly From Store.

Its tongue darting venomously, tail lashing and eyes bloodshot with anger, a banana rat, which came to this city by stowing away in a shipment of fruit from South America, rose to her full imperious height of three inches and drove two woman clerks and two salesmen from the William Weisman company's fur store, 508 Nicollet avenue, says the Minneapolis Journal.

The small creature, whose bite is poisonous, had been confined in a glass jar and was to be used as a window display. Furious in imprisonment, it leaped at the glass stopper, bowled it over and escaped.

With the bravado of a mouse making for a quaking elephant, it dashed at four persons. Sol Brennan and William Katzmann formed a rear guard, while Mrs. E. M. Sutherland and Miss Buge Evanson fled the place. With an umbrella Mr. Brennan sent the rat flying toward a corner. Undismayed by being catapulted through the air, the fighting rodent paused a moment to "get set" and renewed the attack. The salesmen leaped through the door and closed it just in time to block the onslaught.

For some time the work of repairing the store, which was recently damaged by fire, was held up while the rat remained in possession. To warn anybody who might go unsuspecting into the store a sign was hung up at the entrance reading, "Dangerous. Stay Out."

Heavily gloved and armed with a cane, William Weisman, proprietor, ventured through the front door and prepared to lay the foe low. The battle didn't occur, for the animal escaped under a counter.

ONE PHASE OF MARRIED LIFE

Seeming Unhappiness Most Probably Due to Lack of Something to Talk About.

It is the eternal tete-a-tete of married life that most critics of that blissful condition find fault with. From it spring boredom and dull, sodden silence, assert these cynics. Therefore, a hint for escaping this one depressing quality of marriage should have our best attention.

To illustrate, you will see it frequently on the trolley, when a man and his wife are sitting side by side. It is almost perpetual silence. They have nothing to say to one another. Perhaps the wife will emit a cheerful peep, but the husband will respond with a nod of the head or a hesitating yes or no. It is most always that way. No common interest observed. In fact, it looks as if they are mad at one another as if they were bored. A prudent man or woman looking on the couple would be apt to say: "O, you married life."

But they are not mad. Let some charming lady acquaintance come in and sit down by the husband and he'll all smiles and has plenty to say. Then he is a cordial companion. He is a changed man. And the same it would be with the woman. Now, don't misinterpret the scene. When that man and wife get back home they drop their trolley manners and act sensibly and lovingly again. Mad—he would just as likely be mad at the evening star or a bush full of roses. But you wouldn't think it on the trolley.—New York Tribune.

A Bit Hasty.

Husband—Did that dress suit case come?

Wife—The one full of dreadful clothes from the store? Yes, and they came just in time to give away to the missionary society.

Husband (in a sepulchral voice)—It belonged to an Englishman I have invited home to dinner. (Doorbell rings.)—Life.

Historic.

"Say, waiter," said the traveling man to the hotel waiter, "what kind of chicken do you call this?"

"That's a Plymouth Rock, I believe," replied the waiter.

"I am glad it has some claim to historic mention," said the man. "I thought it was just an ordinary cobblestone."

NOONE FILES DECLARATION

Councilor Addresses Note to the People and Promises Fight

HON. ALBERT WELLINGTON NOONE of Peterborough, member of the governor's council and exceedingly popular Democrat, threw his hat into Secretary of State Pearson's ring the other morning. He paid his $100, declared himself as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, and filed with his declaration a brief, earnest address to the people of New Hampshire.

Councilor Noone has just returned from a motor trip with Mrs. Noone through the northern counties, where he had satisfactory interviews with prominent Democrats, and gathered a large amount of data on taxation matters, for use in the campaign.

Secretary of State Pearson made public Mr. Noone's communication to the people. It is as follows:

To the People of New Hampshire:—

Formally declaring as a candidate for governor, I respectfully urge consideration of my platform, announced several weeks ago. In this platform I have set forth my views on political matters and suggested numerous reforms which I deem vitally necessary for the economical and beneficial administration of the state government.

I stand behind my platform promises in every particular. I shall work to have taxes more equally assessed. At present many wealthy interests are escaping their fair share of taxation. This will be made clear, so the burden that now rests on men of limited means may be removed and put where it belongs.

I seek legislation to further prevent labor troubles, for the better protection and care of insane wards and other dependents, and to make improvements in the fish and game code, whereby funds received from licenses may be used to carry on the work of the fish and game department, and to reimburse farmers suffering from depredations caused by game.

Peterborough, N. H., July 9, 1914.

ALBERT W. NOONE.

Every loyal Democrat throughout this section of the state of New Hampshire is speaking a good word for Candidate Noone, and they feel confident that he will be successful at the primary; and having landed the nomination, every supporter of the Democratic ticket feels sure of his election. The superb business ability of Mr. Noone, together with his legislative experience, and the fact that he does things, combine to make him an exceptionally strong candidate; the readers of the Reporter are gratified to know that a man of Mr. Noone's ability and standing aspires to the high and honorable office of governor of the state.

In the turmoil of politics and the days of big businesses, it is refreshing to know that a manufacturer from a country town has consented to occupy the governor's chair, provided the people of the state will give him their votes. Since being on the governor's council, Mr. Noone has made an extensive study and examination into state affairs, his position offering him a most excellent opportunity, and here is a grand chance for every Democratic voter to perform a duty to their state by voting for him; he will not prove a disappointment to you.

At the primary in September, vote for Albert Wellington Noone for governor.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain, the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medical preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Antrim Reporter.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

THANKS TO HIS PRESERVER

"Luckily for me I wasn't bald-headed," Exclaimed Man Rescued From Swimming Tank.

A well-known athlete says that on entering a Turkish bath one night he found a stranger struggling in the swimming pool. There was nobody near, and the man was evidently unable to swim, having jumped in probably without ascertaining whether the water would be above his head.

The athlete swam to the assistance of the struggling man. Grasping him by the hair, he towed him to the side of the tank and assisted him to hang on until he recovered his breath.

What were the first words uttered by the rescued one? Did he stammer out thanks to his human preserver? No. The human mind is a curious affair. As the half-drowned man struggled back to consciousness, memories of an old jest seemed to fit through his brain, for he said: "Luckily for me I wasn't bald-headed!"—New York Mail.

No Comparison.

An Englishman and an American were standing before the wonders of the Victoria Falls, in darkest Africa, when the Englishman said:

"Surely you must concede that these falls are far grander than your Niagara Falls."

"What!" replied the American. "Compare these to our Niagara Falls? Why, man alive, they are a mere perspiration."—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Policeman's Business.

Nervous Lady (in whose street there have been several burglaries)—How often do you policemen come down this road? I am constantly about but I never see you.

Policeman—Ah, very likely I see you when you don't see me, mum. It's a policeman's business to secrets himself!—London Punch.

Bird Lore.

"I'm going to quit talking about the dove of peace," said the patriotic orator.

"Going to recite about the eagle for awhile?"

"No, I want to emphasize the comfort and prosperity that accompany peace. I'm going to raise the emblem of the goose that lays the golden egg."

Policy.

"You're not going to publish that awful rubbish, are you?"

"Do you mean this poem on spring?"

"I mean that atrocious libel on the English language."

"I guess I've got to publish it."

"Eh! Why?"

"Well, you see, it's written by my tailor's daughter."

Quick Shifts These Days.

"Why are you going around in that horrible coat?"

"My wife needs a new gown."

"You shouldn't spend all your money on her."

"Well, if she doesn't get that new gown I'm afraid she'd get a new husband."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Artificial Wood From Straw.

Information has been made public in Lyons, France, concerning an artificial wood which, it is stated, will be of great value as a substitute for natural wood. The new product has been found, after years of study and practical experiments, the most recent of which have given eminently satisfactory results.

The process consists in transforming straw into a solid material having the resistance of oak. The straw, after being cut into small pieces, is reduced to a paste by boiling, to which certain chemicals are added. When the paste has been reduced to a homogeneous mass it is put into presses, and planks, beams, laths and moldings of all sizes are readily made. This new material can be sawed like natural wood. As a fuel it emits a bright flame and little smoke. It is further stated to be adaptable to the manufacture of match stems.

THE OTHER ALICE

By KATHERINE HOPSON.

"It's all the fault of my abominable hand-writing, and careless habit of never crossing my t's," reflected Owen Barton, as he reread the prim little note of acceptance from a girl he had never invited.

"And I've no one but myself to blame," he added in acknowledgement of the fact that Alice Bari and Alice Bart did look very much alike.

"Of course, there's nothing to do but carry off the situation as if I had intended it that way, and take Miss Bari to the dance. I might have known she would be invited to the Darwin's dance on Tuesday. The Baris are an old family here—older, even, than the Barts, and the Darvins belong to the conservative set.

"But—why, the situation is ridiculous! I hardly know the girl." He searched his memory for recollections of Miss Bari.

It was fanciful fate that caused him to meet Alice Bart, the one of his choice, on his way home from the office that afternoon. She was standing in front of a jeweler's window.

"You are late," greeted she. "Guy Pilson has been before you, and I've promised to go with him to the dance Tuesday night." There seemed to be no doubt in her mind that he had intended to invite her.

"Procrastination has defrauded many a better man," retorted he regretfully. "Oh, well, we'll all be at the same place," she returned lightly. Then the expression of her blue eyes changed to glittering hardness as her glance returned to the jewels.

"I must have them—the diamond and sapphire necklace!" He could see the slim fingers grind together. "Father has more than half promised me—"

Barton's eyes shone in responsive understanding. She seemed born for things like these, and it was his idea of serving the woman he loved to deck her with glittering jewels.

"Some time—some time, Alice, I hope to be in a position to buy things like these, and have the right to give them to you—" He spoke with hurried eagerness.

She laughed in response, but something in its quality disappointed him; there was more calculating appraisal than tenderness in her eyes.

As he presented himself at the old Bari homestead on the evening of the dance, he was met by Alice's mother.

When Alice appeared, dressed in a simple white dress, she exerted himself to please, and acknowledged to himself that though she was not the type he would have chosen, she was a girl any man might be proud to escort.

Yet when he arrived at the Darwin's and saw Alice Bart, his ardor for her flamed afresh. In a filmy chiffon gown over blue satin, she gave an effect not often seen in Edgetown, and about her throat was the necklace of diamonds and sapphires she had coveted in the jeweler's window.

During the evening Barton wandered out on the veranda for a cool breath and a quiet smoke. At first he thought he was alone, but in a few moments he discovered two men seated on a bench around the corner.

"For months I've foreseen this crash coming in Bart's affairs," said one. "For old friendship's sake, I'd have been willing to give him a loan to tide him over, if he'd shown any disposition to retrench in his personal expenditure. For with care and economy this might have been averted. But at his present rate of living I knew I might as well throw my money out in the street for all the real good it would do him."

"Yes, that's true," responded the other, and Barton recognized the voice of Matthews, the senior partner in the firm where he worked. "He's the sort that never denies his family anything—whether he can afford it or not. Why, only yesterday he bought his daughter a diamond and sapphire necklace."

"The one she's wearing tonight?"

"Yes, and the thing's caused much comment. Young Barton's been beaming her around a good deal lately. But I noticed tonight he brought Paul Bari's daughter—Alice, her name is, too, I believe. A fine little girl!"

"The other girl would ruin any man," returned the other lightly, as he threw away his cigar and they returned to the ballroom.

A couple came out on the veranda and occupied the bench around the corner left vacant by the two men.

Then sudden perspiration stood out on his forehead, for the couple was no other than Alice Bari and Guy Pilson, a wealthy young fellow who was visiting in Edgetown.

And before he knew it, Barton was made witness to the latter's proposal of marriage. There was not much sentiment about it. It was evident that Pilson wanted a beautiful, accomplished woman to grace his millions.

and Alice wanted millions to back her beauty and accomplishments.

Presently they returned to the ballroom, but Barton still sat in his shadowy corner—cutting dance after dance—and thinking. At last he noticed the guests were leaving and went in to find Miss Bari.

During the ride home, her quiet, gentle presence acted as a balm on his overwrought nerves.

"Matthews is right—she's fine and—would be a true helpmate to any man," and something in her soft, dark eyes as she said good night gave him hope. (Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

and ability to portray a wide range of characters have gained for her a host of admirers in the film world. She has played leading roles in such recent productions as "The Girl at the Curtain," "Through the Storm," "The Love Route" and many others.

Villa in the "Movies."

Motion pictures of General Villa and the constitutionalist army in Mexico, taken at the front and under fire, are being shown. The films are martial enough to satisfy the keenest taste, and that Villa, usually accepted in the United States as a bandit, is made to look a pious hero, detracted little from their thrilling quality.

"The Battle of Torreón and the Life of General Villa" is the title of the films. The first reels are given up to various views of the fighting which preceded the constitutionalist victory in the north. One gasps at the temerity of the camera men who made the pictures, for there are actual scenes on the firing line, and bullets and shells are getting in their deadly work.

In the second part of the entertainment what purports to be the true history of Villa's life is given. A pious orphan, with two sisters dependent upon him, he is the victim of the federals, and swears revenge. His rise to power is shown step by step, until, at the head of the rebel army, he wins victories over his foes and completes his vengeance.

The acting in this latter part is done, not by the general himself, but by an actor made up to look like him. Some of the scenes are overdrawn, but the setting always is good.

Little Mary Lou was eager to get back to her new doll and didn't know there was going to be any dessert. She slipped quietly from her chair, hoping she would not be observed.

Out in the hall she met the cook with the ice cream, and as quietly as she had left it she slipped back to her accustomed place at the table.

"Mary Lou," said her mother reprovingly, "I thought you had finished your dinner. It isn't polite to come back."

"But I didn't excuse myself, mother," the little girl said quickly.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak, nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite, and everyone thought I would not live.

Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEAVEY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

And the "Undesirables" Are Increasing in Numbers in Mercantile Marine.

To what extent Chinese are becoming the world's sailors we are reminded, not in the happiest way, by two mutinies on our eastern coast. Recently, remarks the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, the liner Comus reached New Orleans from New York with a thrilling story of the rescue of the first officer by a stewardess, just as mutinous Chinese sailors were about to throw him overboard. In an issue of the Lookout, published by the Seaman's Institute in New York, was given an account of a fight between the English and the Chinese sailors on the steamer Bonar Law in New York harbor, in which the Englishmen were driven ashore and had to send policemen to get their clothes. "They're a bad lot," reported the cabin boy who told of the affair. "Don't ye ever trust a Chinese sailor; 'e ain't got it in 'im to play fair." His view is biased, no doubt, but it may be noted that while the Chinese are a peaceful race, Chinese sailors, like "tong men," have a reputation for belligerency—no doubt sea life has developed quite different traits from agriculture, and it may be noted that about the only pirates now left in the world are Chinese. China has for ages produced skilled if conservative sailors, and the modern tendency in the age of steam and forced economies is fast increasing the large proportion of Orientals in the world's mercantile marine. In the large Japanese fleet they have, of course, a monopoly, and China is already beginning to subsidize a merchant fleet. But in English ships, too, the proportion of Chinese sailors grows, and it is hard for white sailors to compete. If the tendency continues it will have an important bearing upon sea power.

FACTS ABOUT SAVING MONEY

Figures Seem to Show That Americans Are Not as Extravagant as Has Been Supposed.

The size of a man's income has little or nothing to do with the amount of money he saves. Some interesting statistics have recently been gathered by the United States labor bureau showing the portion of the income saved by men in a variety of professions and trades. Incidentally, more than one-third of the men examined confessed to having saved nothing.

The average saving among the bankers and brokers was found to be surprisingly high. With an average income of about $7,000 a year, the expenditures of a family were found to be about $5,000, thus leaving practically 30 per cent to the good. Among lawyers with an average income of $4,000, the average amount saved was nearly $1,500 a year.

The figures relating to physicians were particularly surprising. The average income was $4,000 a year, and the average savings only $700.

Among railroad officials the proportion of the income saved was under 20 per cent. About the same proportion was found among men employed in manufacturing concerns, with incomes of $3,000 a year. The class that saves the least, according to the investigation, were the clergymen. From the experience of several clergymen with an average income of $3,000 a year, it was found that less than 10 per cent of the incomes was saved. Among professors and teachers, the proportion saved was considerably better, averaging over 25 per cent.

Youthful Ingenuity.

One afternoon a very stout woman was rambling along a country road when she suddenly noticed a little boy walking closely beside her. Not knowing the youngster, she was naturally somewhat surprised.

"Look here, little boy," she heatedly cried, "why are you following me along like that? Go away from me instantly!"

"I ain't doin' nothin', lady," pleaded the little fellow. "Please don't send me away."

"You must go away at once," repeated the perplexed woman. "Why do you wish to follow me?"

"Because," was the startling rejoinder of the youngster, "you are the only shady spot along the whole road."

Typical Freshman.

The college president was entertaining a freshman at dinner, when the conversation turned upon football. To the student's surprise, the president displayed a thorough familiarity with the game, and proceeded to discuss it as earnestly as though it had been Greek or mathematics. Indeed, his treatment of the topic brought out so many points that the freshman had overlooked that the youth was moved to remark to his hostess: "Well, this talk with President Blank has showed me how true it is we never meet any one from whom we can't learn something."

ATTENTION!

Don Hercules!

For Service.

Here is a chance to breed to one of the Best Percheron Stallions in New England.

Don Hercules, No. 71805, is 4 years old, sound, good disposition, handsome as a picture, weighs 1900 lbs., is bred way up in the purple; 8 red crosses on Side a side and 11 red crosses on Dam's side. Register papers and pedigree can be seen at stable.

We have been very careful in selecting this Stallion to get one of the best that could be bought, regardless of cost. Breed your good Mares and raise some horses that will sell from three to five hundred dollars each; the country is short of this kind of horses and there is always a market for them.

The regular service fee for this kind of Stallion is $25, but to advertise Don Hercules and make it an object for every farmer to raise a nice pair of horses, we will make the fee $15 to warrant, $5 payable at time of service, balance when Mare proves in foal. All Mares disposed of are considered in foal, and fee is payable at once. All Mares bred at owner's risk; Colts holden for fee. Stable board $2 per week. Visitors welcome.

Also have a French Coach Stallion for service.
Call us on the 'phone to make arrangements for breeding, as it might save waiting.
