Selected Poem

Home

A man can build a mansion
And furnish it throughout;
A man can build a palace,
With lofty walls, and stout;
A man can build a temple,
With high and spacious dome;
But no man in the world can build
That precious thing called home.

It is the happy faculty
Of woman, far and wide,
To turn a cot or palace
Into something else beside—
Where brothers, sons and husbands, tired,
With willing footsteps come;
A place of rest, where love abounds,
A perfect kingdom—home.

CORDIAL WORDS OF INVITATION

To the Permanent and Summer Residents of Antrim and Contiguous Territory

THE WHITE BIRCH POINT ASSOCIATION was formed not only to promote the social life of its members but with the hope that it might also help in the social welfare of the whole town during the summer season, and with that object in view they have extended through the Board of Trade a most hearty invitation to all summer and permanent residents of our town to meet with them next Saturday at their 2d annual picnic. Those who attended last year will need no urging to be there this year. It is the desire of the association to make these gatherings of mutual benefit to all who attend—a gathering where pleasant acquaintances may be formed, and the friendly and cordial relations that already exist between the town's people and their summer visitors may be strengthened.

The future of Antrim to a large extent depends on business that our summer visitors bring us; it is increasing every year; they like the town when they first come, and later learn to love it; this is shown by their return every year, and either adding to their present homes or bringing some friend with them; and in view of this our town's people cannot do less than show their appreciation by turning out in great numbers on occasions like this.

A very interesting program of sports has been arranged, which will include all classes, men and women, boys and girls, with suitable and tasty prizes for the winners.

Transportation will be furnished at 35c. the round trip; all desiring such please leave their names with J. Elroe Perkins, Will E. Gibney or at W. E. Cram's store, by Friday noon, 7th inst. Teams will start at 8.30 a.m., from Cram's store or the post-office.

W. E. GIBNEY, Sec'y Board of Trade.

In this connection it is not out of place to give a list of the sports as arranged for the picnic and furnished us by the committee for our columns today:

Wheelbarrow Race, for Men, for Boys	Potato Race, Men, Boys, Girls
Quoit Pitching	High Jump, for Men, for Boys
25-yard Dash, for Boys, for Girls	Broad Jump, Men, Boys, Girls
Swimming Races, Men, Women, Boys	Canoe Races
Diving Exhibition, for Boys	Elephant Fight
Leap Frog	Sack Race
Three-legged Race	High Kicking
	Foot Races

Money Talks Loudest

The foremost financiers of the Old World—those groups which control vast sums of money—never care to glance any war which is not expected to reap profits for them. This moneyed class look on war purely from a business standpoint. They will finance one side or the other only after the most careful consideration. Jingoism is ignored by them.

It is safe to assume that in the financial centres there are conferences of bankers more potent than the discussions of statesmen. Money talks the loudest when wars are suggested and it usually settles what countries shall have war and what shall abstain from it.—Boston Globe.

Nor do we think this idea is wholly confined to the Old World, and not alone when war clouds gather. From observation it seems plain that this class of men has as much to do with the business of the country as anything else, or more than almost every other cause combined. The tariff and politics in the broadest and largest sense do not appear to play the part in good or bad business that money does; and if so, then it must be the men who control the money. Just sit quietly down in your most sane moments, with all the information on the subject you can possibly gather, and see if you can come to any other conclusion.

IS QUITE DIFFERENT

The Direct Primary Makes a New Order of Things

UNDER the former way of doing "politics" (this is not from experience) when a man was a candidate for office involving more than one town, he slipped into a town, called upon the politicians and was introduced to a few of the leading citizens, shook hands vigorously and assured his newly made friends that he was very pleased to make their acquaintance; then hiked off to the next town to repeat this part of the program. The town he had just visited was left "in the hands of his friends," for a consideration of course.

The passing of that day however has been reached, and today a new order is in vogue, altho' it seems hard to get away wholly from the former style. It is not that we feel badly for not being called upon by these men who are so pleased to make our acquaintance, for the newspaper office is usually the first place towards which they steer (publicity being one of the things they must have) but under the new way of doing it, more than just the few selected ones must be seen to accomplish much.

It is doubtful if Hon. Robert P. Bass would ever have been elected Governor of New Hampshire if he had not covered the state thoroughly and allowed everybody the opportunity who wished to become acquainted with him; this is true today more than ever, and the candidate for office must be known by his constituency and they in turn must have faith in the candidate. True, announcement must be made by the candidate to the people through the newspapers and various other ways, but the people want to see the man, meet him in a friendly way, and have him talk to them personally; the idea of political speeches is fast being relegated to the archives of the past—they have but little use today in the new order of things.

When the candidate is able to impress upon the people his honesty of purpose, ability to do things, and is able to convince them that he is not being pushed forward by any man or company of men with some selfish end in view, then his candidacy will be hailed with delight and he will have the people with him in large and sufficient numbers.

2d Annual Basket Picnic

The committee in charge of the second annual picnic at Gregg lake, on Saturday, August 8th, have arranged a varied program of sports for both young and old. This year there will be many aquatic sports, canoe races, swimming races, exhibition of diving. Those who attended last year remember the good day spent at the lake.

The White Birch Pointers are arranging for a larger attendance. The success of the picnic last year has prompted them to make this an annual event, and it is hoped the citizens of Antrim as well as the summer residents will attend. Busses will be run from the town to the lake. Those who drive will find a man to look after the horses. Ice cream and soft drinks can be had at the booths.

There will be no charge for boats or canoes; make your request of the superintendent of boats. All visitors will please register their names at the beach; these are wanted for future reference.

Tents will be on the grounds for those desiring to go in bathing.

Make this a gala day. Come early and stay late; and bring all your friends.

Charles Gale Shedd of Keene and George L. Whitford of Warner, Republican candidates at the primary for the nomination of Congressman in the second New Hampshire district, were in town the past week calling upon a few of the voters; oh yes, they were both sure of the nomination. Hon. Edward H. Wason of Nashua, another candidate, and quite popular throughout this section, will no doubt give our people a chance to see him soon.

OLD PETER WAS CONTENTED

Nothing Disturbed Serenity of Baseball Umpire Until Little Son Told Wife of Mistake.

Old Peter was feeling like one big, contented smile as he stood in the glorious sunshine, arrayed in a long coat of dazzling whiteness, umpiring the first match of the season.

Looking up he noticed that the hands of the big clock on the pavilion had crept to ten minutes past twelve, and he realized that he was getting "peckish."

His right hand felt for the packet of sandwiches which his wife had insisted—much against his will—on putting in his pocket.

Salmon and shrimp paste plastered between slices of a new bread and butter make a pleasant meal, and old Peter felt happier than ever.

But on a sudden his brow became clouded, for, walking calmly out into the sacred field, came his small son, Billy. Heedless of frowns and warnings, Billy walked up to his parent.

"Mother says she wants them sandwiches back."

"Back?" roared the indignant umpire. "I've eaten them half an hour ago!"

"Then you must clean your boots with salmon and shrimp paste tomorrow! Mother put the polish in your sandwiches!"

Effective Substitute.

Tourist—You have an unusually large acreage of corn under cultivation; don't the crows annoy you a great deal?

Farmer—Oh, not to any extent. Tourist—That's peculiar, considering you have no scarecrows.

Farmer—Oh, well, you see, I'm out here a good part of the time myself. —New York Mail.

No Longer Plain.

"Of course you can depend on the wisdom of the plain people?"

"I used to feel that way," replied the member of congress. "But after looking over the clothes and the dancing I can't help fearing that the people out home are getting rather fancy."

The Anti Type.

"Show me an anti-suffragette and I'll show you a woman of the Mrs. Mallory type," said Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont at a luncheon in New York.

"A suffragist slim worker visited Mrs. Mallory in her wretched East side home. With Mrs. Mallory bent over her washbasin she was a washerwoman by trade—and while three small Mallorys sprawled at her feet, she talked with contempt of the English militants. What woman wanted to vote for Mrs. Mallory couldn't see. "It unsexes 'em," she said.

"The talk turned then to Mrs. Mallory's home troubles, and the visitor asked:

"Does your husband drink regularly?"

"No'm," the anti meekly replied. "My wages ain't steady."

His Needs.

"Do you want a southern exposure in this new house?" asked the architect of the railroad magnate.

"I don't want any kind of an exposure," answered the nervous magnate, with a shudder. "What I need principally is not an exposure, but a getaway."

Explaining the Trouble.

Yeast—Ever notice at different times of year how some things expand and other things contract?

Crimsonback—Sure. I've noticed how the ketchup contracts and the night-key expands.

Willing to Warble.

"I don't want any real estate."

"But you can buy this property for a song."

"Oh, all right, if you'll take my notes." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE VILLAGE MILL

Is It Passing?

There is no industry on earth that has played such an important part in American history as that of wool manufacturing. The village mill has been responsible for the wonderful development of this branch of industry. In these small mills many of our past and present captains received their schooling and in hundreds of New England towns everything American from the cradle to the grave centered in the little mill that gave employment to grandfather, father and sons, as well as mothers and daughters, and in these same towns Americanism was bred and lived.

The passing of these small mills is a calamity. It is unwarranted because it is due entirely to the acts of the present administration at Washington, particularly on account of the tariff. Hundreds of these small mills are going to be forced out of business. They represent the life work and the entire investment of hundreds of men, and thousands of loyal Americans are going to be driven out of employment.

The small town operatives cannot go to the big centres. They have invested their savings in homes in the small towns and are in most cases beyond the competitive age. They know how to handle wool as has been handled successfully for years in their home mill, but they cannot and will not mix with the floating foreign population filling up the big centres.

The tariff that has made wool free as to duty and more costly than ever to the mills has at the same time reduced the duty on foreign cloth and the small town manufacturer is the hardest hit.—From Fiber and Fabric

HIT SOME ONE MIGHTY HARD

Originator of Most of Settlements Gossip Is Not Dismayed by Minister's Scathing Remarks.

The minister of a large parish who had for some time been much troubled by the scandalous gossip that seemed to be occupying the minds of a portion of his flock, after exercising a great amount of tact and perseverance, at last succeeded in running to earth the originator of most of the settlement's society slander.

The guilty one was a regular attendant at the schoolhouse services, and the minister knew that should he take him to task personally and individually, he would inevitably lose a sheep, albeit a black one, so he decided to sermonize him.

Accordingly, a special discourse was prepared, and the following Sunday afternoon literally hurried at the offending member as he sat on a desk in the corner of the schoolroom.

Everybody present appeared fully to appreciate the situation, and at the close of the service departed quietly and thoughtfully for home.

All except the black sheep, who remarked to the minister:

"That wer' a fine sermon, ser; I'll bet that hit some of 'em pretty hard."

Extravagant Conqueror.

"Ikey, vat is dot book you're readin'?" asked Ikey's father.

"About Chullius Caesar fader."

"Und vot business vas he in'?"

"He was a soldier and ven he won a battle he wroted home, 'Vedi, vedi, vici.'"

"I bet he vent bankrupt—such extravagance! Vy he could send seven more vords for a kvarter." —Livingston Lanes.

DEALING IN FUTURES.

Mr. Acker—That's right; calculating how much you have spent on your spring outfit, are you?

Mrs. Acker (calmly)—I am making up my appropriation for summer dresses and hats.

"What most interested you in Rome?"

"In Rome? Say, I'll never forget Rome as long as I live. They had the sweetest little manicure girl in the hotel where I put up that ever trimmed a nail."

What a Man Says.

"You can't," says one of the philosophers, "tell what a man knows by what he doesn't say." But you can generally tell by what he says what a man doesn't know.

Present all the Facts

The Reporter is now being furnished, through our plate association, material which is doubtless prepared by someone within the Granite state, designed to be of a political nature. This we are publishing from time to time as sent us but we cannot say we wholly approve of this class of writings or this way of doing things. Today more than ever the voters are an intelligent class of people and take pains to inform themselves upon almost every subject concerning their welfare. When they read anything that contains a degree of doubt or exaggeration, they go to extremes to ascertain the truthfulness or falsity of the statement. For this reason, we believe that writers of such articles cannot be too careful in their preparation of the facts they are compiling to put before the voters,—carelessness along this line is apt to cause trouble and create a feeling of disrespect for the party issuing it. There is plenty of sound doctrine which can be dressed up and put into attractive shape for campaign purposes, and when the managers get down to business it is hoped they will conduct the coming campaign along honorable and straight-forward lines.

WIFE OF THE AMBASSADOR FROM ARGENTINA

In Mrs. Romulo S. Naon, wife of the ambassador from Argentina, a figure seldom seen at close range may be studied with excellent advantage. That distinguished writer on South America, James Bryce, says Argentina is the one country remaining in the world where all that is good and worthy of the feudal system mingles harmoniously with modern progress. So vast are the estates that feudal ideals could prevail in their management. Mrs. Naon is like some stately figure of romance in the days when the knights went forth clad in armor to win new tenures or to defend the old. She is simply the grand dame, the chateaus of a sumptuous home, the mother of many lovely children and the guardian of her husband's happiness in the domestic sense. Like the matrons of the sixteenth century who sat among their handmaidens, robed in velvet, laces and brocade, she is entirely removed from all domestic cares, which even queens and empresses assume in these days of leveling ideals. She is a superbly handsome woman with clear olive skin, soft, dark eyes and masses of shining black hair. She is tall and matronly, with slow, graceful movements and an air of leisure and composure which seems as much a part of her as the tapered fingers or shapely foot. To her husband it would seem inconceivable that she would be troubled with paltry worries like homekeeping or the details of dressing, beyond the mere selections of material or suggestions as to her desires. Her children consist of three daughters and two sons, who are among the best-known foreign children in Washington.

HARRIMAN'S SON, 23, AN "OLD" RAILROAD MAN

W. Averill Harriman, eldest son of the late E. H. Harriman, whose appointment as vice-president of the Union Pacific railway has just been announced, is but twenty-three years old, but nevertheless he has had five years of railroad training.

He has been a member of the board of directors for some time. Mr. Harriman's knowledge of the railroad business has, however, not been gained entirely from the executive end.

LONG RECORD OF SUCCESS

In the Legitimate Field and in Photography Richard Travers Has Proved Himself Able.

Mr. Richard Travers brings an enviable record of success, both as a leading factor in the legitimate field, and also in the movies, for two years. He left to accept engagements in "Paid in Full," "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "Shubert's Girls," and William A. Brady's "Making Good," and "A the purchasing department, of which he will now have charge.

E. H. Harriman took a personal interest in the training of his elder son in railroad work and made him his companion on many trips of inspection over the lines he controlled. Since the death of Mr. Harriman the chief executives of the system have helped the son of their old chief to master the intricacies of their various departments.

The new vice-president of the Union Pacific is a Yale man. While in college he was most interested in rowing. He was in the boat in his freshman year and later became coach of the varsity crew.

Compromise.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "what do you think of Sunday baseball?"

"Well, so long as you're interested in thinking, what do you think about it?"

"It would never do. But they might hire a band, forbid the players to appear in costume and call it a Sunday concert."

Who Can Doubt Sworn Testimony of Honest Citizens

Some time ago I began the use of your Swamp-Root with the most remarkable results. For years I was almost a wreck and was a great sufferer. The doctors who treated me made me believe that my great sufferings were due to female trouble. I was so bad at times I would faint away and had sinking spells. Finally a new doctor was called in and he said that I had kidney trouble and gave me medicine, of which I took several bottles. I obtained some relief from this but I was getting weaker all the time. I could not sleep and suffered so much pain that my husband and children had to lift me in and out of bed. After this time two friends sent me word to try Swamp-Root, which I did, and I am glad to state that the first dose gave me great relief. After taking the third dose I was helped into bed and slept half of the night. I took several bottles of Swamp-Root and I feel that I owe my life to this wonderful remedy. The two family doctors said that I could not live three months. I would have to be helped in and out of bed ten to twenty times every night. After taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for two days I was entirely free from getting up and could sleep soundly.

The TWO FLYERS

John Jenkins was a poor young man who had to earn his bread. He had no friends at court, but there was gray stuff in his head; He shunned the haunts where foolish men their precious leisure spent, And people gave him praise, because it didn't cost a cent.

Van Buren Spriggs was fortunate; he was his uncle's pride And got a lot of millions when that childless miser died; Society then took him up; he dined with dukes and earls, And in a little while he knew a score of chorus girls.

John Jenkins figured out a plan whereby, with spreading wings And bags of gas and pulley wheels and many other things He would enable men to soar above the tallest trees, To navigate the atmosphere with safety and with ease,

With rule and chalk he worked it out; he labored night and day; He spent his hard-earned savings and from pleasure turned away; He died and sawed and spliced and grooved for months with soaring hopes And wrought, at last, a miracle of canvas, rods and ropes.

In later years John Jenkins and Van Buren Spriggs, downcast, Sat by the wayside, hungry, and conversing on the past; It seems that Jenkins couldn't get his ship to cleave the sky, While Spriggs, upon the other hand, had made his money fly.

What He'd Say.

"What, sir," asked the large man with the bulging biceps and the ponderous fists, as he glared at the slim gentleman who had accidentally stumbled over his toes, "would you say if I were to tell you that you were an awkward ass and an annoying chump?"

"I should at once say," replied the other man, who had enjoyed the advantage of a course in the diplomatic service, "that you had the courage of your convictions."

Weak Minded, Undoubtedly.

"I think that man intends to do something desperate, and that he is deliberately trying to arrange it so that he will have little trouble in showing, if it shall become necessary to do so, that he is insane."

"What has caused you to form such an opinion?"

"When he was taken into court yesterday for exceeding the speed limit he admitted right away that his automobile was going 40 miles an hour at the time the policeman called on him to stop."

Not All Fun for Photoplayer.

"The life of a moving picture villain grows somewhat strenuous at times," says Joseph Levering. "Not long ago I was forced to climb out of a fourth story on a wire cable, have a desperate combat with one of my kind in midair, and fall to the ground below. I did well for the first two times, but I gradually lost my enthusiasm for the occupation. Because of a ruined negative the scene had to be repeated each time. On the third and last time I was to be dashed into the waiting blanket below. But the waiting blanket had ceased to wait, and I had a chance to find out how hard the ground is."

THE BLESSED GIVER

In Watching Course of Somebody Else's True Love, Keep Out of Rough Spots.

(Copyright.)

"Well, I'll be hanged!" said Colton, as he nervously fingered the envelope the postman had left. "A wedding invitation; I can tell them intuitively."

He was right. Bobby and Mabel, two of his warmest friends, had at last decided to discard the yoke of single blessedness for a new sort of yoke. Not the slightest doubt as to what was expected of him, either. Hadn't he promised Bobby once, as the pair stood with their feet on the rail of a certain thirst emporium, that he would do his share to make the great event a worthy one when the time rolled around? The "great event" had seemed far in the future, which only goes to prove the old adage that time flies.

Colton stood before the pier-glass, a sneer curling the corners of his lips.

"You're about the biggest fool I know," he said, addressing his image. "Here you are without a red cent in your pocket—or anywhere else—expected to attend a swell wedding, which, in plain every-day English, means, cab, flowers, and a present which can't cost less than a hundred dollars."

"Bobby's your good old pal—you know that, don't you? And you're not going to send him something you're ashamed of—you know that, don't you? Yes, you do; so get busy!"

"There's no use putting things off. Who was the duck that wrote 'procrastination is the thief of time,' and so forth?" he mused, as he left the house.

"Well, never mind; I've forgotten his name. The great and pertinent question is, 'What first?' I've got to have an even hundred. I suppose, on a pinch, that could cover cab and flowers as well as the present. Might soak my watch; case alone's worth a cool two hundred. But I won't; I think too much of it. I have it; I'll see Billy Martin! He said once that if ever I was in trouble to call on him. All right, Bill—here I come!"

The elevator soon landed him on the twelfth floor of the office building where Billy worked.

Billy received him cordially, and heard his tale of woe. Of course Colton said nothing about the wedding.

"Sorry, old man," he said; "but I had a note fall due unexpectedly yesterday. You know how these things are. I'd like to do this for you, but—" He shrugged his shoulders in a way that said plainer than words: "Nothing doing!"

"I need it bad," confided Colton.

"Well, I'll tell you what to do, Dick. You go over to see Tom Noddington. You know where Tom is—in the Commercial Bank building. He often accommodates the boys without a bit of security. I'm sure he'll fix you up."

"All right. Thanks, old man," Colton responded, and took his leave.

"Well, now, I'll tell you," said Mr. Noddington, when Colton had explained the object of his visit, "I've lost so much by loaning out small sums indiscriminately that I've quit. No personal affront intended, Mr. Colton. I'd like to accommodate you, but—"

"No, you couldn't very well under the circumstances, could you, Mr. Noddington? Good day, sir."

"Doggone Billy Martin!" snarled Colton, as he found himself again in the street. "Sending me to a man like that! He might have saved me the humiliation. But the hundred—I must have that!"

The incident slipped from his mind, as new thoughts crowded into his brain.

"Ah!" he exclaimed suddenly. "There's Newt Billings over there. I'll hail him. He's always been a good friend of mine."

"Hey, there, Newt! Wait a minute, can't you?"

"Sure," responded Newt. "Where in the world have you been keeping yourself? Haven't seen you in a dog's age."

"Been a little under the weather. Say, old man, I've got to raise a hundred dollars. Don't know where I can get it, do you?"

"No, I don't, Dick. I was about to strike you for a tanner myself. I'm broke; played the ponies yesterday and got swabbed out as clean as a gun-barrel. You might go see Dan Turner. He's an accommodating sort of a fellow—let me have two hundred on my note last spring."

"You think he'd do it, Newt?"

Colton recalled his experience of a few minutes previous. He had no inclination to have the dose repeated. "Sure! You won't have a bit of trouble."

"All right—Thanks for the tip. Where will I find him?"

"He'll be at the club about this time. He always dines there."

Yes, Mr. Turner was there—a cool, debonaire individual of uncertain age—sipping his coffee, as he slowly munched a Welsh rabbit. He was very glad to see Mr. Colton again; remembered their little jaunt together in the mountains the previous summer with a great deal of pleasure—but, really, he could not lend money to anyone without gilt-edged security. Mr. Colton would understand—purely a business proposition, you know.

Yes, Mr. Colton understood, and withdrew after exchanging a few commonplace words, his face flushed with shame, not unmixed with indignation.

"Pretty blamed hard—this asking people for money," he told himself, when he had, in a measure, regained his composure, and felt duly humiliated for the sulphurous phrases he had allowed to escape him.

"Guess I'll have to fall back on the watch," he added ruefully.

He took it from his pocket, caressing it fondly. It was a beauty—solid gold case, studded with diamonds, 17-jeweled movement, and all that.

"Ought to be worth three hundred to any pawnbroker. Heaven only knows when I'll get it again, though. But a fellow's got to sacrifice something for his friends. Bobby'd do as much for me. Well, here goes!"

He crossed the street to where the sign of the three balls was prominently displayed, and entered.

"Well, uncle, I want three hundred on that for sixty days," he said, laying the watch on the counter.

"Tree hundred!" exclaimed uncle, holding up his hands in despair. "Vat do you tink I am—a gold mine? Gott in Himmel, no! I vill gif you a hundred and a quarter."

"Oh, come now, uncle!"

"Dot's all."

"Well, I'll take it—I need it!"

And pocketing the money, Colton hurried out.

"Ah, but it feels good to finger a bunch of the long green again!" He laughed gleefully. "But it won't last long. I might as well have this business over with."

So he sought a jewelry store, from where he soon emerged with a silver ice-pitcher under his arm. The one-twenty-five had dwindled to eighteen-eighty—which he discreetly held out for cab hire and flowers.

"Now I'll go home and write a nice little note of congratulation. It will please Bobby, and get this whole business off my mind. As for the pitcher—Mabel will go into ecstasies."

As he was waiting for a car, who should jump out of a near-by hack and dash for the curb but Bobby!

"Here!" cried Colton. "Where are you going in such a hurry?"

"Oh, is that you, Colton? I'm going to catch a train. Old man telegraphed me to come to Denver at once. I may not be back for a year. Sorry I didn't see you before."

"But the wedding—"

"Forget it!" interrupted Bobby. "Postponed indefinitely—invitations called in—write you about it next week—got to get this train—so long!"

He wrung Colton's hand, and hopped on the rear platform of a depot tram-car.

Colton looked first at the present, tightly clasped under his right arm, then at the receding form of his friend.

"Well, I'll be——" he said.

Planned by Ben Franklin.

Now that the Yale University Press has become an established fact it is interesting to learn of the number of men who suggested the idea without being able to follow it up as did President George Parmly Day. Among the earliest suggestions is that of Benjamin Franklin, in a manuscript letter owned by the Yale University library. Benjamin Franklin outlines his plan to William Strahan. Under date of October 27, 1753, from Philadelphia, he writes:

"I am now about to establish a small printing office in favor of another nephew at New Haven in the Colony of Connecticut in New England; a considerable town, in which there is a university and a prospect that a book-seller shop, with a printing house, may do pretty well."

The plan was afterward abandoned, but not until a lot for the Press had been purchased on the college campus and the printing press and materials ordered had arrived in New Haven.

Fought Fair.

"Did her father kick when you asked for her hand?"

"Oh, no. He had taken lessons in boxing and had different ideas about fighting."

Too Much Risk.

"The artificial hussy! I'd like to kiss her complexion off."

"Well?"

"But that would disarrange my lip paint."

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOSCAP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

WHAT OF MEXICO TODAY?

Is It Peace or War? Has the United States Gained by Substituting Carranza and Villa for Huerta? Will the Former be Amenable to Our Influence? Are we Still at the Threshold of Our Problem?

President Wilson has succeeded in his purpose to eliminate Huerta, but is he any nearer than he was sixteen months ago in solving the Mexican problem? Bad as Huerta is, are Carranza and Villa any better? Have we advanced a single step in our efforts to restore peace in Mexico? In spite of the sympathy shown by the administration at Washington to the Constitutionalists, it has signally failed every time that it has tried to influence the rebel chiefs. When a demand for an explanation of the murder of Benton, the Englishman, was made, it was ignored. The request of the Secretary of State that Spanish residents in Mexico be protected was treated with contempt. No action was taken following our calling the attention of Carranza and Villa to the atrocities committed by the rebels upon American and foreigners residing in Mexico.

Arbitration Falls.
 After both the United States and Huerta had accepted mediation, Carranza refused to be a party thereto. He protested against the United States taking Vera Cruz, although its capture prevented the shipment of munitions of war to Huerta. According to his request, the embargo on arms was raised, thus enabling the Constitutionalists to obtain war material. When Huerta undertook to blockade Tampico to prevent the rebels from receiving arms shipped from this country he was warned from his purpose by the administration at Washington. While denying Huerta the opportunity to obtain war material, the United States has suffered the rebels to supply themselves with impunity. From the time that President Wilson early declared that he would not recognize Huerta to the day that the latter left the Mexican capital, Carranza and Villa have been constantly indebted to the United States for the success of their cause.

Ingratitude of Rebels.
 Huerta having departed from Mexican soil, all efforts of the administration at Washington to secure from the triumphant rebel chiefs some guarantees that foreign creditors be protected in their rights and that amnesty follow the entry of the Constitutionalists into the Mexican capital have failed. Carranza announces that all debts contracted by the Huerta government will be repudiated and that the leading officers who stood by Huerta are to be tried by military tribunals as traitors and shot.

Foreign Complications.
 By the protocol signed by the United States and representatives of Huerta at Niagara this country waives all right or claim to indemnity or satisfaction of any sort or kind from the government or people of Mexico. The United States could not waive the claims of foreign governments to both indemnity and satisfaction. The President has asked other nations to keep hands off while the United States established peace in Mexico. Having driven Huerta out and established Carranza and Villa in his place, the United States cannot escape responsibility for the acts of the latter. The time has now come when foreign governments will demand reparation for injuries done to their subjects. There can no longer be watchful waiting. A definite policy must be pursued.

The Future.
 The character of the Mexican people has undergone no change by the success of the revolution. In that country it has ever been the rule of the strongest. We must now rely upon Carranza and Villa who have not been in accord except in refusing the requests of the United States. They have been held together by fear and hatred of Huerta. Villa is the stronger character. There is no assurance that Carranza's fate will be that of Madero and that Villa will not step into Huerta's shoes as dictator. Who can say that the United States is not still at the threshold of its troubles with Mexico and that intervention is postponed and not averted.

He Enjoyed It.
 Mrs. Bacon—So you and your husband went to the musicale?
 Mrs. Egbert—Oh, yes.
 "Did you enjoy it?"
 "Well, I didn't, but my husband seemed to; you know he can't hear hardly a thing."

Appropriate Action.
 Shoestore Proprietor—So Miss Jones on that last trip did not select for us a dancing slipper of proper style?
 Manager—No, sir. In selecting the slipper she did, she put her foot in it.

The Ideal.
 Patience—For keeping a woman's hands warm in a muff there has been invented a nickel cylinder which will retain the heat for several hours.
 Patrice—What's the matter? Think all the wise men have gone out of town?

German and Austrian Goods

The war has raised the cost. We are extremely fortunate to have just received a large shipment of Austrian White Toilet Ware, and the largest shipment of the Stransky-Enameled Kitchen Utensils we ever imported. We are now unpacking a direct shipment of our Munich Stock Pattern of German China. We are advised that our import purchases of German Christmas China are afloat. Had the war come a few weeks earlier it would greatly have increased the cost of shipments.

We shall share our good fortune with you. While other stores have already marked up their stock of German and Austrian Ware we shall give you the old prices as long as the stock lasts.

It is anticipated that both Germany and Austria will place an export duty on all goods leaving the country in order to raise war revenue. The factories will make sharp advances to cover their losses by curtailment owing to the help taking up arms. The cost in this country will be nearly doubled.
