RESERVE WEDNESDAY

Evening, October 7, for the D. A. R. Date

This entertainment will be held in the town hall, Oct. 7, at eight o'clock, under the auspices of the Melly Aiken Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Churchill of Lebanon who will speak on "The Indians as I Knew Them," accompanied her husband, the late Col. F. C. Churchill, on all his trips as Indian Inspector for the U. S. Government for ten years, and visited nearly one hundred tribes from Arizona to Alaska (few women have ever been as far North).

Her choice collection of Indian curiosities will be on exhibition and Indian songs will be sung by a lady dressed in costume impersonating Nam-pe-o a Hopi Indian.

Mrs. Churchill has given this address in several larger places with splendid success and you may expect an interesting and instructive evening.

You are urged to buy your tickets in advance at 25 cents each from the school children who have them for sale. adv.

No Time for Unsafe Methods

Two years ago about this time, mention was made in these columns as well as in the columns of other state newspapers that the sarcastic language indulged in by a few representative papers in the state, that think they are the mouth-pieces of the Republican party, have very much to do toward the opposition being elected. The men at whom such uncalled for remarks are directed are as conscientious in their actions as are these self-appointed advisers—and many times are much more so. These who assume to be the mouth-pieces of the Republican party are doing it more harm than they think and thus early in the campaign ought to be "tipped off" by those who need every vote at the coming election. There is enough good that can be said in favor of the principles of the Republican party to convince the voters without resorting to the fruitless practice of getting ahead by tearing something else down. A clean-cut, common sense argument put before the voters in a straight-forward and honest manner—open and above-board—will make the votes. The man who believes in his own argument and presents the facts to bear out his argument will convince more men to his way of thinking than all the sarcasm and insinuations that can possibly be used.

The Republican party in the campaign just opening has some excellent leaders, men who have the confidence and respect of the people; they are sure to make the best of officials. So we say again: let the ones who are peculiarly fitted for this special task (and not those who think they are) do the advising; it will then be done in a gentlemanly manner,—thus elevating our political life to a higher plane and inviting only men of a high moral standard to be our leaders in governmental affairs.

Judicious Handling Necessary

Present indications are that the commercial apple crop of the United States this year will be far in excess of that of last year, but less than that of 1912 by several million barrels, according to announcement made by the Department of Agriculture. The Department officials say the problem of distribution will be somewhat complex owing to conditions resulting from the European war.

Yes, Maine had an election and the funny thing about it is that all parties see the bright side in the result. However, it don't prove anything; for today there are just as many independent voters in New Hampshire as there were two years ago.

Selected Poem

She is Not Mine

By Sarah K. Bolton

A child stood waiting before the gate,
Poorly clad, and of humble mien;
Worse than orphaned, a waif of fate,
She asked from hands unseem.
The lady paused in the busy whirl
Of a life of ease, from the book she read;

"I cannot care for the little girl;
She is not mine," she said.

A homeless puppy lay on the street,
Tired and famished, and asked to live;
A starving kitten was dropped at her feet
Because she had wealth to give.

"I have no room for the speechless through;

No time to see they are warmed and fed;

My life is crowded with joy and song;
They are not mine," she said.

Death came; the lady was called away
From her beautiful home, and jewels rare;

Thousands of voices bade her stay;
"Too lovely, she is, too fair."

She stood where we all will stand at last,
When the record of life is closely read:

The angel paused, as he scanned her past;

"She is not mine," he said.

C., and a world renowned pomologist from the west. The meetings and exhibitions are free to everybody. Any person, a resident of New Hampshire, may exhibit and compete for the prizes without restriction.

Premium lists and entry blanks may be secured of the secretary-treasurer, Stanley K. Lovell, Goffstown, N. H.

New Home a Total Loss

Fire broke out at 11.30 Friday night in the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Putnam in Bennington, and destroyed the buildings. The loss is estimated at over $2000, and the cause of the fire is generally supposed to be of incendiary origin.

The house and ell were totally destroyed, together with a little furniture. The flames were discovered by William J. Gorman and Robert Wilson, who live nearby. When they first noticed it the building was all afire. The Bennington hose company responded promptly but were unable to check the flames as they had made too great headway.

The house was not occupied, but was just nearing completion, and Mr. Putnam and family were planning to move their household goods into their new home in about a week.

About two months ago Mr. Putnam's buildings were burned down, together with several thousand feet of lumber, eight hen houses, barn, ell and shed, and furniture of the homestead. Mr. Putnam at once made preparations for rebuilding, and before he was able to complete his new residence it was burned to the ground. The authorities are making investigations as to the origin. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Newburyport Presbytery in Antrim

These services being of special interest will be largely attended by the town's people.

There was something said editorially in the Concord Patriot last Saturday regarding a "Machine Convention," referring to the Republican convention. Well, if that were true, another one has now been held, meaning of course the Democratic convention.

Here is a statement made by an exchange which comes regularly to our desk, and no truer statement has it ever made: "The churches are the only places in New Hampshire where better business methods are more needed than on the farms."

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Adopted at the State Convention of the Party Held at Concord Friday, September 25, 1914.

In every crisis in our national history since 1865, the Republican party has stood courageously and resolutely for policies upon which history has placed its stamp of approval. Covering a period during which the United States has emerged as a leader in world affairs, the Republican party has produced both the men and the policies which made that leadership possible.

We are today in the midst of another grave crisis, and again the country looks to the Republican party for constructive leadership. In the business world there is doubt and uncertainty. Capital is apprehensive of the future, and labor, its co-partner, finds the opportunity for employment curtailed. The leaders in industry and finance, following a period of agitation, including a radical change in the tariff policy of the country, await definite and conclusive declarations as to the future.

A Constructive Programme.

True to its history, the Republican party alone offers a constructive programme which insures a return of prosperity. We affirm our support of the principle of co-operation in the field of capital, no less than in that of labor. With the immense growth of business and the broadening of our commercial horizon, we regard the development of big business as inevitable and appropriate; but we hold that there always shall exist an agency for regulation and correction whose dominancy cannot be challenged—the federal power. We believe in the regulation by the government of big business and we would substitute hearty approval and co-operation with honest men engaged in business pursuits for the present spirit of hostility and suspicion with which apparently all business is regarded by the Democratic party.

Loss to Capital and Labor.

Through the division of the Republican party two years ago the Democratic party secured commission to administer the affairs of government. They promised a reduction in the cost of living, through the abolition of the protective tariff principle. A tariff for-revenue-only law designed to bring American labor into direct competition with the labor of Europe and sacrificing the farmer on the altar of free trade has been placed upon the statute books. Sufficient time has since elapsed to test the Democratic promise of lowered cost of living. Two years subsequent to the entry of the Democratic party into absolute power finds substantially every item which enters into the cost of living as high as, or higher, than it was before they were commissioned with power. The sole result has been a lessening in production, a falling off in demand, with consequent loss both to capital and to labor. Under such conditions as these, the Republican party of New Hampshire reaffirms its faith in the protective principle and pledges itself to aid in the re-enactment of a tariff law which will equalize labor costs, protect the American standard of living, foster and promote the growth of American industries and agriculture and insure the employment of American labor at the highest wages paid anywhere in the world.

With the re-establishment of the protective principle, there should also be created an expert tariff commission with the fullest constitutional authority to revise tariff schedules, in order that future tariff revisions shall be removed as far as possible from the realm of politics and treated as purely economic problems.

Merchant Marine.

The present grave crisis in Europe, with the consequent interruption of trade, has emphasized in sensational manner the acute need of an American merchant marine. Republicans of New Hampshire recall with pride and satisfaction the persistent and aggressive fight which has been carried on by Senator Gallinger in support of such a policy. Rarely have the predictions of any public man upon any public question in the present generation been so fully and completely fulfilled as those of Senator Gallinger, who has shown conclusively that leadership in industry and trade will always lack complete achievement until the bulk of American goods designed for the world's markets are conveyed to their destination in ships flying the American flag.

The Republican party pledges the support of its candidates for United States senator and for congress to a policy which shall permanently restore the American flag to the high seas and re-establish American supremacy in the ocean carrying trade.

Democratic Extravagance.

We commend the Republican minority of the senate for its aggressive and successful contest against the river and harbor bill. The $20,000,000 eliminated from this iniquitous measure demonstrates that the extravagance of the Democratic congress is responsible for the war tax which the Administration now proposes to levy to meet a deficit in revenue.

State Affairs.

In state affairs the Democratic party has further demonstrated its incapacity and deceit. The legislative session was prolonged to unusual length for the enactment of purely partisan measures. Its many errors of commission and omission carry their own comment and condemnation. The executive department has subordinated the interests of the state to the personal preference of its members. The impetuosity, not to mention the illegality of councilors appointing themselves to offices of profit and trust, together with excessive expense of their sessions, shows their unfitness for official position.

The success of the Democratic party in this campaign would be an endorsement of its utter failure of conception of the responsibility of government.

The Contrast.

In contrast with this the Republican party of New Hampshire by its achievements in legislation has demonstrated its responsiveness to the progressive principles which animate the rank and file of our people. Our statute books bear witness to this. Beginning with abolition of the free pass and the removal of railroad influence in political activities, both of which ends were achieved under Republican rule, there has been a constant and consistent response to every feasible suggestion for the enactment of social justice and the advancement of the material prosperity of the state, which upward movement was halted only by the accession of the Democratic party to power.

In confident anticipation of Republican success in the coming election, we pledge the party to no backward step from the advanced policies already undertaken. On the contrary we pledge ourselves to preserve and if necessary to improve and strengthen all advance legislation which Republican initiative has written into our law.

The Primary Law.

In accord with a demand forcibly expressed a direct primary law was enacted. We recognize the need of such an amendment of this law as will make possible the candidacies of men for office who are not financially able to meet the strain to which they would be subjected under present methods and secure to the rural towns their proportional voice in nominations. We believe that some harmonious applicants of both the direct primary principle and the delegate convention plan can be evolved and we pledge our representatives in the legislature to such an end.

Among other questions that appear to require immediate solution and to which we pledge the attention of the incoming Republican legislature are:

Fish and Game.

The amendment of the fish and game laws to the end that the money now received from hunters' licenses shall not be diverted from the use of the fish and game department.

Workmen's Compensation.

The perfection of the present employers' liability and working man's compensation law, so as to include all employees, except agricultural labor and domestic service and giving immediate and adequate relief to the injured under conditions equitable and just to both employer and employee, thus avoiding the expense and delay incident to litigation.

More important than compensation for industrial accidents is their prevention. We favor the enactment of a law requiring reasonable safeguards upon machinery and appliances dangerous to life and limb.

Railroad Fares.

While the present financial condition of the New Hampshire railroads requires that careful consideration be given to their applications for relief, we are not in favor of an increase of existing mileage book rates without further investigation and an adjustment of all railroad rates.

We declare for fidelity to all pledges of the party to reduce the evils of the liquor traffic and for the enforcement of prohibition in no license territory.

The establishment of a highway department to have permanent supervision of the construction and maintenance of highways built with state funds.

The absolute estoppel of members of the governor's council from appointing themselves to any office of profit or emolument during their own terms.

Business Management.

With the return of the Republican party to power in this state will come also a return to that wise system of finance under which for forty years Republican legislatures and Republican administrations confirmed expenditures to revenue without seeking to expand the latter in order to attempt futile experiments to create offices for party henchmen or to indulge in wasteful extravagance. To insure this we pledge ourselves to the adopting of a complete and methodical budget system in planning for public expenditures.

Co-operation.

The Republican party recognizes the present as pre-eminently a time for toleration and cordial good feeling towards those who for what seemed to them good reasons left the party in 1912. We hold that there is not and cannot be permanent grounds for disunion of these two elements, in essentials they think alike. In essentials they are opposed to the Democratic party. Traditionally liberal and progressive, the Republican welcomes and invites all men who entertain views in harmony with the declarations of this platform to rally to a single standard in a stalwart and well-contested effort to defeat the common enemy.

Upon this basis we appeal to those men to return to the Republican party, and to co-operate with it, helping to keep it true to the highest standards, in order to relieve the state of Democratic misrule and to secure for the nation that industrial and commercial independence and supremacy on land and sea which is its greatest need and which can only come through the policies for which the Republican party has always stood and still stands and to which the Democratic party is and has always been opposed.

When one has a china umbrella stand it is a wise plan to place a sponge in the bottom of the jar to keep it from being cracked or broken. The sponge not only prevents it from being broken, but also absorbs the water which drips from the umbrella.

CODE FOR MANNERS

Rules of Propriety Changed in Reign of Victoria.

Betrothed Girls in 1810 Forced to Endure Embarrassing Jests, Says
Writer—Sees Decline in Taste for Good Literature.

What manners had the early Victorians beheld in their youth? asks Annie Winsor Allen, in the Atlanta Monthly. According to her, in 1810 a young woman in New York's best society refused to spend the winter in New York because, being lately betrothed, she must wear a large miniature of the young gentleman around her neck and endure coarse and embarrassing jokes whenever she appeared.

General Washington may be seen, in the pencil sketches by John Trumbull, comfortably sitting in church with his arm around a young woman's waist, nor was she kith or kin to him. Read the familiar memoirs of the reign of George IV, infer carefully what the manners and conversation must then have been and ask yourself seriously how comfortable you would have felt in the midst of them.

The early Victorians thought these manners unfit for the presence of a young girl. They adjusted their demeanor to shield her. In consequence there arose from the court of Victoria an expectation of decorum, serene and assured, for every man or woman of sensitive fiber. A winnowing wind, with quiet, gleaming hand of selection and rejection, passed over all England and America, through every drawing room, across every printing press, gently up and down the thoroughfare. No one even smoked on the streets. Without outcry or indignation the change was wrought, and decent people could go about unabashed. Of course, indecency and cruelty, barbarism and selfishness did not suddenly die. They lived, and thought the change an awful bore. Delicacy, sympathy, civilization and generosity were the accepted standard, and those who by nature had them or longed to have them, found encouragement all about. So the early Victorians impressed propriety upon the rising generation of mid-Victorians.

Do the surviving late Victorians, the present still young generation of grandparents, realize that around them moves and works a whole generation which does not know Emerson, never read Tennyson, has not heard of Mrs. Gaskell and despises George Elliot? Every book which inspired the mid-Victorians is "outgrown." It is "a back number" to post-Victorians. What have they read? They may have read Trollope, George Meredith and Thomas Hardy, those doubting late Victorians. Many of them have read nothing published before 1890, and practically none go back of 1870.

This means that they have read chiefly what is expounded by Wells, Shaw, Chesterton, Galsworthy and Masfield, not to mention Robert W. Chambers. Now, such literature, coming into the reader's mind after what preceded it, frequently took its place as refreshing and novel. But suppose you have never read anything else, what has Meredith or Hardy to tell you about the conduct of your own affairs, what precious secrets of civilization do they transmit? How will Wells, Shaw and Galsworthy do for rulers of life? What laws do they expound? What inspirations do they offer?

Representative C. R. Sloan of Nebraska is from the land of big farms—farms whose corn-Reminded Sloan of his big quarter sections out in the bounding prairies. So he rose to his feet.

During this warm weather the securing of a good attendance in the house has been a difficult job, and the frequent three rings for a call to the chamber is common over in the offices. One day recently Sloan went over to the chamber to find but few men there. All around were rows on rows of empty seats, with only a few cases of members in a desert of desks. It reminded Sloan of his big quarter sections out in the bounding prairies. So he rose to his feet.

"Mr. Chairman," he said, "I have looked around on the vast unoccupied area in this house, and, not desiring to raise a question of no quorum, wish to submit a parliamentary inquiry."
"The gentleman will stand," responded the chair.

"I wish to ask, Mr. Chairman," continued Sloan, "if it would be proper to make a filing for a homestead on the great unoccupied public domain in this chamber?"

Fine Footwear and Hosiery

A LARGE SHIPMENT of Fall Styles of Shoes for Men Women and Children has arrived.

We wish to invite your inspection of our large assortment of Men's Shoes. Never before have we shown such a variety of styles, and range in prices of both every day shoes and dress occasions.

The lines are made by some of the best and largest manufacturers. Among them are Endicott, Johnson & Co., J. T. Wood, P. B. Keith and others. We buy direct from makers and save you the middleman's profit. Our prices are the lowest when quality is considered.

85 per cent of the Calfskins used in this Country have been imported from Europe. 40,000,000 pairs of fine shoes manufactured in this country each year are made from imported Calfskins, which are produced by those countries now at war.

The United States imports every month in the year, 26,000,000 pounds of Cattle Hides, 8,000,000 pounds of Calfskins, 7,000,000 pounds of Sheepskins, 6,000,000 pounds of Goat skins. The supply of these materials has been practically cut off, which has caused the price of finished skins to advance very rapidly during the past few weeks. There is no question but what shoes will be materially higher in price, and if the present war extends a very long period of time, it may not be so much a question of price as a question of whether the manufacturers can produce hides enough to supply the demand.

We are prepared to give you shoes for Fall and Winter wear at the old prices. We have a large, fresh stock and have not advanced the price on a single pair.

Below you will find a list of a few styles and prices which we trust you will take advantage of. Look for the large display in our windows, over 100 pair.

Hoping all my customers will realize my position with a continuance of their patronage, which will prove in a short time a great advantage to us all, with better prices and a stronger friendship between us all.

not a theory confronts us. It ever that was true in the history of this nation, it is true today. The voters are willing to leave to President Wilson the theorizing as to just how the business disasters of the present year came about. They know that they are here, as they always have been, following a period of Democratic supremacy. They will adopt the cure which has never failed to work, the election of a Republican congress in November.

As to the Senatorship
It is not my province, as your candidate for governor, to deal with national affairs; but I may be permitted to say in passing that while we have four members of the national congress from New Hampshire—two in the senate and two in the house—the attention of the people of this state has been focused on only one of the four, and he the senior senator. To him the citizens of the state have looked for the defense of their industries and for the expression of their convictions on both national and international questions. The policies he has championed are our policies, and the words he has spoken are our words. The interest and pride of New Hampshire are at stake in his re-election.

In Sympathy With Platform
I have had submitted to me your platform, and I cordially indorse its utterances. You have declared for an economical state administration. I interpret economy to mean living within our means and making expenditures conform to our income. This is not to be attained by neglecting the needs of the state or by pursuing a niggardly policy of expenditure. Economy consists in a well defined and scientific expenditure that looks to the future as well as to the present and that considers the income of the state not for one year, but for a series of years. In developing the resources of the state, in work for humanity, in all public improvements, the undertaking should be considered with a view of continuity. Haphazard expenditures are all too frequently wasteful. However desirable progress may be, we must count the cost not only to ourselves but to future generations. In municipalities, state and nation the tendency in recent years has been toward an extravagance that burdens the present and mortgages the future. My sympathies are enlisted in every work that makes for progress, but I would have that work carefully planned with a view to our conditions. It is always well to bear in mind that it is not first cost of establishing new undertakings that counts, but the continued cost of maintenance that imposes a burden upon the tax payers.

A large number of men before me will be elected to the next legislature. If the Republican party has a majority in both branches, as I believe it will, you will share with the governor the responsibility for the work of the next administration. The initiative of legislation is with you. If I am to share with you the responsibility I shall gladly co-operate with you in giving the state a business administration. In this joint work you will have my confidence and I shall invite yours. Less legislation and better, fewer laws and those more general in their application should be our aim. A short session of the legislature is demanded by the people. I believe that with earnest application to business on the part of legislators, the session can be brought to an early close with no vital interest of the state neglected. But this can only be attained through members' devotion to their work and each week to the duties devolving upon them. Let the service of the state and all its people, without discrimination or picaresque politics, be ever before your minds.

Exercise of Veto Power
The governor is entrusted with the veto power by the constitution. It is intended to be exercised in checking hasty and ill-considered legislation. This responsibility, as it may be needed to guard the welfare and financial interests of the state, I shall not hesitate to assume should occasion arise for the exercise of this prerogative of the executive. Such action will not be necessary if both legislature and the executive are moved by a common purpose to conserve the interests of the state.

Nothing that we can do will so thoroughly re-establish the Republican party in the confidence of the people as to make a record for legislation and administration that will be reflected in the continued growth and prosperity of the state. Ours is a government of parties, and that party best succeeds whose achievements become its future rallying cry. To the single aim of giving New Hampshire a constructive yet economical administration I shall dedicate myself if your nomination is ratified by the people, and if our joint efforts are successful I know of no better service that we can render to the Republican party.

During a political campaign a candidate for the legislature was driving through the country seeking votes among the farmers when he met a young man in farmer's garb walking by the roadside.

Having in his mind a prospective vote, he stopped his horse and, saluting the farmer in a familiar manner, inquired:

"Are you paying any attention to politics nowadays?"
The young man stopped, looked at him suspiciously and drawled out: "No, stranger. That don't happen to be my gal's name, but if it was I wouldn't think it was any of your business."

This ended the interview as well as the process.—National Monthly.

Proved He Was Wrong.
In December, 1925, Relief, the Russian nihilist litterateur, was condemned to death by hanging. The hangman's rope failed, and Relief was thrown to the ground. In these circumstances a man's life is often spared even in Russia, and the emperor was inclined to mercy. But he asked a question. "Did the condemned say anything on retaining consciousness?" "Sire," was the reply, "he said that in Russia nothing could be done properly, not even the twisting of a rope." "Prove him to the contrary," answered the Muscovite ruler. And it was done.

Welfare Work.
"Have you any part of an automobile that you don't want?"
"I might give you an old tire. What's the idea?"
"You know how our grandmothers used to make crazy quilts for the needy?"
"Yes."
"On the same principle I am trying to assemble an automobile for a poor woman who has none."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

VICTORIOUS FIGHT PREDICTED

Rolland H. Spaulding, Candidate For Governor, Endorses Utterances of Party Platform and Gives Assurance of Sympathy in All Work That Makes For Progress

Following is the speech of Rolland H. Spaulding, candidate for governor, at the Republican state convention:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:
I am delighted to have this opportunity to say a word to you in my own behalf, as well as in behalf of the Republican party. I wish first to express my deep gratitude for the great honor conferred upon me by the Republican voters of New Hampshire and the marked confidence they have reposed in me, by selecting me as their standard bearer in the coming fight. While I accept this honor with a due sense of the responsibility it entails and I hope with a proper degree of modesty, yet I do confidently assert that we are to fight a victorious battle and the good old Republican party is to emerge a victor once more at the election in November.

I yield to no man in my allegiance to the principles that have made the Republican party great in historic achievement, and I have ever been content to use the instrumentality of that party as a means to further progress. No valid reason has yet been shown for the party's destruction. We have sometimes differed among ourselves as to details, but as we review the immediate past we find that our actual differences have been largely over the question of the rapidity of our forward movements. So much has been accomplished in New Hampshire in the last few years that there no longer exists occasion for division in our ranks. Once more united, there is to be no retrogression and no retreat from the advance we have already made.

People Looking to Republicans
The Democratic party has again demonstrated its incapacity as a governing party, and the people are looking to the Republican party to contribute once more vitality to policies that have given to New Hampshire a proud standing among sister states and to the country a foremost place among the nations of the world. A former Democratic president,...

RECORD OF BOOKS

Uncle Sam Will Catalogue Any Kind of a Library.

Library of Congress is Able to Do it at Low Cost—One Card or a Complete Set Can Be Bought Now.

Washington.—Over two thousand libraries, institutions and individuals throughout the United States and abroad are having their books catalogued for them by the government.

Catalogues of books in the library of congress were first printed in book form. About 1864 cards were substituted. Not until numerous experiments were made and cards of various sizes, texture and thickness were used was the present simple card, 7½x12½ centimeters, adopted as the "standard size." In 1897 the library of congress, with the support and indorsement of the American Library association, conceived the idea of printing its own cards, and at the same time printing enough cards for any library that might want them. In 1900 a branch of the government printing office was installed in the library, and within a year cards were being printed for all the current accessions to the library and for all books that were re-catalogued from the old cards.

In October of 1901 a circular was sent out announcing that the library would sell any card which it had printed or might print. In the beginning orders for cards were restricted to libraries; now there is no restriction whatever.

When a volume is received by the library of congress, either by purchase or gift or through copyright, it is catalogued in the latest and most approved manner. If a book catalogued is popular, desirable, or liable to be found in other libraries or purchased by them, from one hundred to fifteen hundred cards are printed for it, and the extra cards are kept in stock.

What are called "depository sets" (one copy for each card printed) are now found in over fifty libraries, chosen for their location, accessibility, etc.

A number of bulletins and handbooks have been issued, giving detailed directions for ordering cards and the classes of books for which full sets are available.

Thousands of copies of the same book acquired by hundreds of libraries must go through the same process in each library. Now all this work and expense is saved to those institutions. It has been estimated that the cost of getting a single book into a library catalogue is from twenty-five to thirty-five cents.

In addition to printing and distributing cards for other libraries, the library of congress has been printing since 1910 a few thousand titles per year from copy obtained or books borrowed from other American libraries. It also maintains a number of "traveling catalogues"—collections of cards on history, government documents, agriculture, etc.—that are sent about the country to assist libraries in cataloguing their books.

If a card is ordered by number (which entails the least labor) it is two cents, and for each additional card four cents. The proofsheets which are first struck off cost $25 a year or $2.50 a month. The entries on these sheets are classified by subject, so that it is possible to order any one class at a cent a sheet.

The number of different titles in the collection is approximately 800,000. During 1913, 45,000 new titles were added. The stock of cards now on hand is over 4,000,000. The subscribers have increased from 200 in 1901 to over two thousand in 1914. About three hundred individuals and firms are now ordering cards for bibliographical purposes. The returns to the government from the sale of cards have increased from about $4,000 in the fiscal year 1901-2 to about $55,000 in 1913-14.

His long fight for life has not only made him celebrated as a prisoner, but has made his legal counsel famous.

Pope has been sentenced to hang in five separate trials for murder. Several gallows have been erected for his execution. While a prisoner in the Birmingham jail he watched from his cell window the building of two scaffolds for himself.

For more than five years he has been fighting for his life. The supreme court has ordered five new trials for him, and in every one the lower court convicted Pope and prescribed the death sentence. Seven different days were set for the hanging. But Pope never believed he would be hanged. He said no court could resist the charmed influence of a left hind foot of a rabbit killed by a cross-eyed, red-headed Ethiopian in a graveyard in the dark of the moon on Friday, the 13th day of the month. Such a charm he carried constantly, and attributes his longevity to it.

Pope is charged with the murder of J. B. McClurkin of Calhoun county, in April, 1901. McClurkin was a miller, and was awakened about midnight by the noise of some one robbing his cotton gin. He followed the robber's wagon tracks. The following morning his body was found horribly mutilated in a cotton patch near the town of Oxford. He had been knocked on the head with a heavy club and his skull crushed with a large stone found near the body.—Birmingham (Ala.) Dispatch to the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Gazette-Times.

Oversome. "Is Mr. Blobb at home?" asked a voice over the telephone.

"No," answered Mrs. Blobb, "but I expect him home in half an hour."

"Then I'll call up later."

"I'm afraid it won't be worth your while. Two friends are bringing him."

Anna Luther is another picture player who recently showed her skill in the latest steps. Miss Luther took the cup offered by the Hotel Rudolf, Atlantic City, and, emboldened by her success, is now entered in the Hotel Shelbourne contest. The prize is to be a Paige runabout.
