STATED MEETING

Of Newburyport Presbytery at Antrim This Week

THE fall stated meeting of the Newburyport Presbytery opened at the Presbyterian church in Antrim Tuesday evening with a Sunday School Institute. The Presbytery continues for a three days' session.

Tuesday evening, 7.30 o'clock, Rev. Calvin W. Laufer, of Philadelphia, Pa., of the Board of Publication and Sunday School Work, spoke on "The Conquest of New England by the Sunday School." The four local churches and congregations were especially invited to attend this meeting, as well as all the other meetings during the session, they being open to the public.

There was a goodly number present to hear the very able discourse of Dr. Laufer and felt well repaid for the effort. From the remarks of the speaker one would conclude that the home field was large missionary territory. Vocal music was furnished by Mrs. Robert Jameson and Rev. Arbuckle, with Mr. Farnham at the organ.

The roll-call, reception of new members, reports of committees and appointing of new committees, together with reports of Moderators from Barre, Litchfield, New Boston and West Barnet, will occupy the Wednesday afternoon session. Rev. Richard R. Lange, of Lawrence, Mass., pastor of the largest German Presbyterian church in New England, will speak on "Efficient Methods in Building up a Sunday School." Rev. Bernard Christopher, on "Knowledge of the Bible in the Sunday School," and Dr. Laufer will conduct a forum on "Needed Vision in Sunday School Work."

Dr. Alexander Jackson, from Portland, Me., of the Committee of Narrative, speaks this Wednesday afternoon on "The Call for Mission Work in Europe and Asia and Africa after the War is Over," and Rev. A. McD. Paterson, of Newburyport, Mass., pastor of the oldest Presbyterian church in the U. S., will speak on "The Demand to be Made on America as a Missionary Nation." Rev. John Kamm, pastor of a German Presbyterian church in Manchester, speaks on "The New Intellectual Life likely in Europe and America when the War is Over." The discussions of the future outlook in religious circles when the War is over are especially interesting, as Rev. Lange and Rev. Kamm are Germans and particularly well informed on their subjects.

Rev. Bernard Christopher, from Londonderry, will deliver the sermon on Wednesday night, followed by the sacrament of the Lord's supper. On Thursday forenoon, the sessions will be devoted to business.

The interior of the church about and around the chancel and choir loft is neatly decorated with autumn foliage.

The general chairman of the various committees is Rev. F. Albert Arbuckle, pastor of the Antrim Presbyterian church; he is very ably assisted by members of his own church and society.

The convention is well attended by many delegates from all over this section of New England. The meetings are signally successful, and the convention will prove instructive and among the most beneficial ever held.

Few Amendments Needed

With a large number of other people, the publisher of the Reporter has always been in favor of the Australian ballot system, which is working out so nicely in every section; likewise we have favored the direct primary way of voting. It is certainly the thing in principle, and with a little amending by the next legislature will be put in excellent condition for more practical use by all parties. No aggregation of men will be found who would attempt in this progressive age to take away from the people anything that appears to be for their best interest—such an act would not be good politics. Consequently, in place of any backward step being taken along this line, an improvement is expected in the present system.

Selected Poem

"The Prince of Peace"

Isaiah ix, 6

By Reginald H. Howe,
Rector of the Church of Our Saviour,
Longwood, Mass.

[With the thought of "World Peace" in mind, the following seems a most fitting poem for our columns this week. —Editor.]

The Prince of Peace! O that Thy Name
Its promise might fulfill,
And o'er the stormy hearts of men
Be heard Thy "Peace, be still."

By seer beholding from afar,
The gracious Name was given,
And at His birth angelic host
Reechoed it from heaven:

"Let glory be to God on high,
And on the earth be peace,
Good will to men who have good will"
Begin and never cease.

The world has waited long to see
His star of empire rise,
Yet still the nations arm for war,
Weapons of death devise.

But so it shall not ever be,
The promise cannot fail,
Its own destruction war shall work,
And law, not arms, prevail.

When on this earth some day we see
Good will of men toward men,
Christ's spirit ruling every heart,
No war there can be then.

O Prince of Peace! Let now Thy name
At last its pledge attain,
Arise! Arise! and in Thy might
Ascend Thy throne and reign.

Auction Sale

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim.

A lot of personal property belonging to Aaron G. Waite will be sold at public auction at his residence on West street, on Saturday, Oct. 10, at one o'clock in the afternoon, consisting mostly of household goods; in the lot are a number of pieces of old fashioned furniture and crockery. Prizes Awarded

The vegetable and flower garden contests conducted under the auspices of the Antrim Woman's Club have drawn to a close and the successful contestants are as follows: 1st prize vegetable garden won by Lindsey Elliott, $5; 2d prize, Donald Madden, $3; 3d prize, Sheldon Burnham, $1; 1st prize flower garden won by Miss Ruth Temple. The 2d and 3d flower garden prizes were not awarded, as prizes were not given except to gardens of merit. The contest was in charge of the public service committee: Mrs. J. L. Larrabee, chairman; Mrs. H. W. Eldredge and Miss Susie Swett.

Happy Surprise

The pleasant home of Fred Colby was the scene of a jolly gathering of young people on Monday night, the occasion being a surprise party in honor of the 17th birthday of their daughter, Miss Gladys Colby. About 25 of Miss Colby's school friends and classmates were present. The evening passed with games and music. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, candy and sandwiches were served. In behalf of those present, Miss Colby was presented with a nice manicure set.

Real Estate Changes

S. S. Sawyer and Frank J. Boyd have sold, through the office of Roscoe L. Chamberlain, 1033 Old South Building, Boston, the hotel property for Ex-Gov. D. H. Goodell, consisting of all the real estate and furnishings connected with Maplehurst Inn. In part payment Gov. Goodell receives apartment houses in Dorchester, Mass.

They have also sold for the Downes heirs their wood and lumber lot on West street to George W. Farwell, the owner of the Austin place.

Cuddihy-Holmes

A wedding of interest to Antrim people was recently solemnized at the Presbyterian parsonage when James Cuddihy was united in marriage to Miss Elsie Holmes, by Rev. F. Albert Arbuckle. The groom is well known in this section as he has played base ball for many years and was catcher on the Antrim nine for many years. The bride is a Bennington lady who has been in town for a few months. They will make their home in Clinton where he has employment.

Keep Stomach and Liver Healthy

A vigorous stomach, perfect working liver and regular acting bowels is guaranteed if you use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They insure good digestion, correct constipation and have an excellent tonic effect on the whole system. Purify your blood and rid you of all body poisons through the bowels. Only 25c at your druggist. adv.

FIRST MEETING

Of Woman's Club, after the Summer Recess

THE Antrim Woman's Club met Monday, October 5, at Maplehurst Inn. Members voted to observe Book Day at the next regular meeting: all who can to bring books and magazines, to be sent to the "Glencliffe Sanatorium for Consumptives."

Prizes in the Children's Garden Contest have been awarded,—as per list in another column.

The ladies told their experience in earning a dollar for the Club. The subject of the afternoon was "Short Talks on Ancient Art." The following program was given:

Vocal Solo—Miss Achesah Wilson
Paper, Egyptian Art—Mrs. Maude Hanscom
Paper, Greek Art—Mrs. Beatrice Cooper
Paper, Roman Art—Mrs. Hattie Peaslee
Paper, Construction of Stones and Circles at Stonehenge, England—Mrs. Amy Goodell

It is expected now that the new Club room will be in readiness for the next meeting, Oct. 19.

The Reporter Plays Fair

The Reporter has been publishing weekly material sent us by order of the Republican State Committee, and of course this has pleased our Republican readers. It would not be fair to all our readers unless we should also publish material pleasing to our Democratic and Progressive readers. This we shall do, and this week there appears in our columns the first installment of another class of reading. In publishing any of these articles, it is generally understood that the publisher does not necessarily put his stamp of approval on every statement made by either lot of campaign managers, but having all classes of readers, it is the business of the newspaper to publish the news and such matters of general importance as will interest and instruct all its readers. It is our intention, however, to publish nothing but what is strictly reliable (even in the heat of a political campaign) and we feel sure our readers are all reasonable men and broad enough to look at this matter in just this same manner.

Many of the temperance people had hoped to find something concerning national prohibition in the Republican platform, but it appears not to be an issue in the present campaign. And little that means anything is contained in the Democratic platform. The Progressives, however, have a strong plank in their platform declaring in no uncertain sound for national constitutional prohibition.

Very likely the matter of increase of railroad mileage books and freight rates will be one of the big "hollers" with the speakers during the current campaign. Our candidates for representative will doubtless have to be "out and out" on this question for or against, and the people will decide it on election day. This is a time when hesitancy on the part of a public man is not admired.

One guess is about as good as another! The Democrats guess they will win because of the Progressive vote; the Republicans guess they will win because enough Progressives will vote their ticket to insure their election; the Progressives guess they are as strong as they were two years ago. And we all guess there will be some surprises after the votes are counted!

An authority of note has this very wise saying to put forth: "In these days of fierce Mail Order competition, merchants cannot depend on reputation and show-windows to attract customers. . . . The merchant who fails to advertise regularly and liberally in his home paper makes a grave mistake."

ENTIRELY TOO EASY

Some Folks Are Like "Tar-Baby," So Soft Their Simplicity Makes Them Dangerous.

By IVOR M. LOWRIE.

(Copyright.)
Ned Thompson looked up from the ledger upon which he was working. A customer had entered the store.
"How do you do?" The one and only clerk of the Elite Hardware Emporium greeted the prospective buyer.
"How can I serve you?"
"I want to get a hunting-knife. Something with a good-sized blade."
"Yes, sir."
Ned placed an assortment of such cutlery before the customer for inspection.

"Here's one that I can especially recommend. It is of an exceptional quality of steel, finely tempered. The handle is well constructed. In fact, we had this article manufactured for our exclusive trade."

The "we" referred to Mr. Thomas Hadley, sole proprietor of the "emporium." Being situated in Portland, the gateway to the Maine woods, Mr. Hadley thought it expedient to carry a full line of sportsmen's goods, and had, indeed, a special hunting-knife of rare excellence made. It pleased him greatly, the more so in view of the fact of its having the name of his business establishment stamped upon the blade.

"How much?" inquired the customer.

"Three dollars, and it's good value for the money."

"I'll take it," was the abrupt reply, the purchaser tendering a twenty-dollar note in payment.

"Have you nothing smaller?" asked Ned.

"No, I really haven't," the man replied, whereupon Ned placed the note in the drawer of the cash register, handing back the change.

As Ned was wrapping the package, the man reached into his trousers pocket and drew forth several notes.

"Why, I have some smaller notes after all," he exclaimed. "Just let me have that twenty, and I'll give you the exact change."

Ned reopened the drawer and handed the man the twenty-dollar note, together with the wrapped knife, receiving in exchange three one-dollar notes.

"Good day, sir." The man hurried away, and Ned resumed his work upon the ledger.

Some time later that morning Mr. Hadley entered.

As was his infallible custom upon entering the store, Mr. Hadley unlocked the cash register and balanced the cash on hand with the amount on the printed slip.

"You are seventeen dollars short!" were the electrifying words of the proprietor.

"What!"
"Seventeen dollars short. I have counted the cash several times. Here, you count it."

In a dazed state, Ned staggered to the cash register. His nervous fingers verified the other's statement.

"But, I can't fathom it. I gave out no change. Mr. Lang paid me a twenty-five-cent piece for the key, and the stranger, three one-dollar notes for the knife. At first, he presented a twenty-dollar note, but later discovered that he had the exact amount of the purchase, so gave me it, and I returned him his twenty. Oh! I see it now!"

Mr. Hadley sadly shook his head.

"No, he didn't forget—or rather, he did forget intentionally. It's an old game, Ned. I'm rather surprised that a customer should be so easily duped by

"I'll repay you," agreed Ned.

"That's not the question just at present. What we want to do is to catch the fellow and jail him."

Mr. Hadley was true to his New England idea of justice.

"You would know him if you saw him?"

"Yes, sir," assured the still perturbed Ned. "He's tall—dark hair and mustache—heavy eyebrows—dark eyes—wore a dark-blue suit and a derby hat."

"Well, I'll go over to police headquarters and have them look out for him. Chances are, though, that he has left for Boston, or else the woods, by now."

Arriving at headquarters, he acquainted the authorities with the particulars of the theft, and was descending the stone steps to the sidewalk, when a policeman rushed up, almost colliding with him.

"Excuse me, Mr. Hadley, the officer called."

"You are the very man I want to see. Come on and let me hear the details."

Hadley followed close.

In the captain's office the policeman reported:

"A man attempted suicide in Green's Hotel. Lieutenant Scott called the City hospital ambulance. They've got him there by now."

"Shoot himself?" queried the captain.

"No, stabbed himself with a hunting-knife!"

A hunting-knife! Mr. Hadley and the captain exchanged glances. It was a striking coincidence.

"And," continued the policeman, "the knife is from Mr. Hadley's store!"

"How do you know it is?" demanded the "emporium's" proprietor.

"Because it's got 'The Elite Hardware Emporium, Portland, Me., stamped on the blade.'"

"Then he's the fellow that swindled my clerk out of seventeen dollars, for that's the first knife of that style we've sold. Say, is the man tall?"

"Rather."
"Got dark hair, eyes and mustache?"
"Had his eyes closed when I saw him, but he's got dark hair and a dark mustache."

"Wear a dark-blue suit?"
"Lieutenant Scott took the description, so I didn't take particular notice of the man. He had some sort of a dark suit on, though."

Mr. Hadley turned to the captain.

"He's the fellow. My clerk can identify him."

"Lieutenant Scott's at the hospital?" the captain asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the policeman. Then he added:

"It's a clear case of attempted suicide. The man left a note saying that he was tired of life and trouble, and that sort of talk."

"Kindly have your clerk go over to the City hospital at once, Mr. Hadley. I'll phone over for them to admit him."

In compliance with the captain's request, Mr. Hadley hastened back to his store, and, after explaining matters to Ned, sent the latter to the hospital.

A crowd of curious people thronged the sidewalk in front of the building. Pushing his way through these, Ned entered and presented himself at the office. His mission known, he was taken to the ward in which the patient was receiving medical attention, being met at the door by Lieutenant Scott.

"You are the clerk from 'The Elite Hardware Emporium?'"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you recognize this knife?"

"Yes, sir. I sold it to a gentleman about nine o'clock this morning."

"Is this the man who bought it?" and Ned was permitted to approach the cot upon which the still form rested.

Reclining over, he scrutinized the man's face.

"He is not the man!" Ned declared.

"Not the man!" cried the lieutenant, who felt that Ned would identify the man.

"He resembles the other very much, the mustache adding materially, but the man who purchased the knife was coarser-looking. His features were decidedly heavier."

"Then it's not suicide! It's assassination!" ejaculated the lieutenant.

Several days passed and no light was cast upon the case. A description of the suspected would-be assassin was telegraphed to all near-by cities and towns, and a search of Portland and the surrounding country instituted, during which time the wounded man vacillated between life and death.

The victim of the stabbing had registered at the hotel as Philip Wingate, of Chicago. Moaning had attracted the attention of a guest in an adjacent room, who immediately informed the hotel attendants.

Upon entering the room, Wingate was found lying on the bed, a hunting-knife at his side and the note asserting suicide upon the dresser. That the note had been written by the assailant to cover his crime, the police thoroughly believed although no one of his description had been seen about the hotel.

Hadley received a phone call from Captain Shaw of police headquarters.

"The authorities of Augusta wire us that they have a man under arrest who tallies with the description furnished by your clerk. He was caught passing a counterfeit note." Mr. Hadley was informed when he reached the captain's office in response to the call.

"They will turn him over to us, if your clerk can positively identify him. He'll have to go to Augusta to do it, though."

"All right," assented Mr. Hadley. "Anything to get the fellow."

That forenoon, Ned Thompson, in company with Captain Shaw, left by rail for Augusta, and several hours later stood confronting the prisoner.

"It's he. Yes, he's the man who bought the knife and did me out of the money."

The prisoner merely smiled.

"You were altogether too easy," he declared, "for my own good."

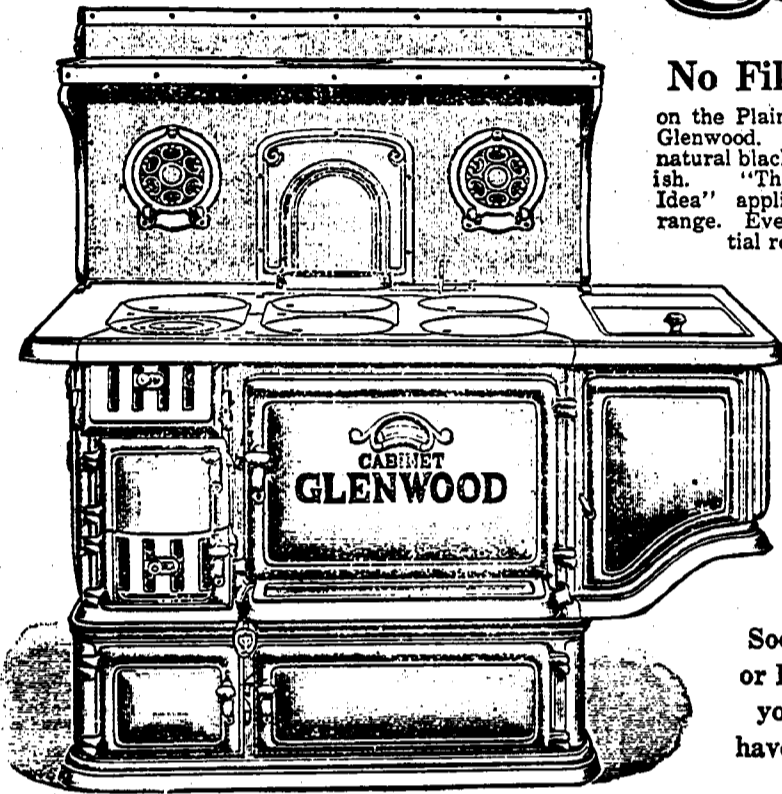

"I don't understand," replied Ned.

"Allow me to explain. You didn't return me the same twenty-dollar note I originally gave you."

Perhaps not. When I came to think of it, I remember that two from the drawer, one of which I handed you, the other I replaced. But what

Secretary of the Interior Lane very severely disciplined a young patent attorney the other day. The documents in the Patent Office are rated among the government's most valuable possessions. They are inadequately housed, most of them on wooden shelves, setting along a wide-open corridor, where a tiny spark from a cigarette or cigar would fire the papers almost ready for spontaneous combustion and send the whole blooming thing up in flames. One of the severest rules of the patent office, that for the protection against fire, is always rigidly enforced. This particular young man who knew the rule, but who wanted to evade it, just exactly as we want to evade all rules and regulations, struck a match, lighted his cigar, and left the building. The Washington report of the matter to Secretary Lane and he did the rest. He ordered that the attorney be denied the privilege of the building for 30 days, and if he had made it 30 years nobody would have objected.

Suffered Twenty-one Years-- Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hopes of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new woman. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours,

A DVERTISE
In THE REPORTER
And Get Your Share of the Trade.

The ONLOOKER BY HENRY HOWLAND

A DESCRIPTION

Her eyes are big and soft and brown;
Her fingers white and slender;
Her brow is stranger to a frown;
Upon her dimpled cheek the down
Is very short and tender.

Her rosebud lips would tempt a priest
Or lure the gravest stork;
Her smile would charm the savage beast,
Her cry for help would make the least
Courageous man heroic.

Her face is fairer than the dawn,
She's purer than the lily;
She is as gentle as a fawn,
As graceful as the stately swan—
And praise has made her silly.

Gratitude.

"My friend," said a good-looking, well-dressed man, when William Henry Younghusband went to the door, "I have called here today to offer you my thanks. A year ago I passed this way. Luck had been going against me. I was down and practically out. A dozen people had turned me from their doors. You heard my story and instead of reading me a lecture gave me a piece of mince pie. By your kind act my confidence in humanity was renewed. I went on my way, rowing that I would yet succeed, and I have done so. I wish to offer the sincerest expression of my gratitude."

"I am mighty glad to see you again and to hear that you have made good. In case you happen to be in need of any more pie, I think we still have the one from which the piece you got was cut. My wife, who loves me dearly, has never been willing to let me tackle it."

A Possibility.

When war clouds shall be seen no more,
When suffragettes may vote at will,
When no lad needs to walk the floor
To keep his teething offspring still,
When men who toll are glad to know
That they earn more than they receive,
When gossip, sitting to and fro,
Say nothing we may not believe,
When no man shall attempt to take Advantage of his fellow man,
When most trusts shall for mercy's sake,
Still make us miserably as they can;
When publishers shall eagerly
Bill for the poet's latest songs,
When rulers everywhere shall be
Held blameless for their people's wrongs,
When these things all shall come to pass,
When men have learned to safely fly,
When no class hates another class,
And it is never too wet or dry—
Then surely men and wives who seek
Helps little when one longs to hold
The love that frets to get away.

MERELY WISHED TO KNOW.

"Mother, did father have to ask you more than once to be his wife?"

"Why, dearest, what makes you ask such a question?"

"I just wanted to know whether you always answered no before you thought, the same as you do to me now."

At a recent meeting of the Younger Set Suffrage club, a member made a sensational announcement.

"Girls," she said, "have you heard the news? Well, Bobbie is going to be married."

"Bobbie who?" chorused the others.

"Why don't you know? Robert Hicks LeBonnie."

"No? When was it announced?"

"It wasn't announced. It's only a rumor. But it must be true."

"What do you mean it must be true?"

"He has started taking lessons at a cooking school."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

Henry Morgan, of Winchester, Mass., is stopping at Belleview farm.

Edgar Whipple, of Hillsboro Centre, spent the week-end at Brookside farm.

Ferdinand Haefeli has many friends in this section as was evidenced by the number who turned out last Thursday evening to celebrate his 17th birthday. It came as a complete surprise to him, but he quickly grasped the situation and made every one feel at home. Games and social intercourse helped to pass the evening, with music on the phonograph. Cake and coffee were served as usual. Ferdinand received a sum of money and many other gifts, which will be appreciated by him as the days go by. Twelve o'clock saw the guests homeward bound after wishing the host many more birthdays.

A Card

I wish to extend my most sincere thanks to the Brothers and many friends for their notice of my birthday with kindly greetings; also the Grange for the lovely flowers. The cheerful and cordial remembrances were fully appreciated and gave me great pleasure.

Lewis A. Knight, Bennington.

FIGURES IN MOVIES

Two-Headed Trout a Feature of the Films.

Curiosity in the Piscatorial World to Be Shown in New York in an Educational Series—A Rare Specimen.

Bill, the famous two-headed trout of the Yama farms hatchery at Napoleon, N. Y., has been so pleased with himself that his twin heads threaten to swell up to the bursting point. The reason is that Bill had his picture taken for the "movies" and will appear in an educational series to be shown in New York.

Bill is seven months old, a husky, beautifully marked specimen of brook trout. He is perfectly formed, according to experts, but just forward of the dorsal fin he displays a tendency to lead a double life. His heads are as separate and distinct as if there were two Bills instead of one. Dr. William D. Hornaday, curator of the New York Zoological park, examined Bill with interest a short time ago and pronounced his case unusual. John Burroughs, the naturalist, has also admired Bill. Mr. Burroughs says that a two-headed fish is not unusual, but it is very rare to find a specimen

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:

CLOQUET, MINN.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints."—Mrs. JENNIE AKERMAN, c/o Rev. K. AKERMAN, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. MURDOCH, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

that survives for any length of time.

When Bill was very young his twin heads had some trouble in agreeing. When one would wish to feed the other insisted on swimming about, and vice versa. But lately they seem to have formed an alliance, and now United Trout, Inc., gets along finely.

In common with the other trout in the hatchery, Bill was fed finely strained liver until he was two months old. Since then he has subsisted upon chopped beef. The moving picture camera man took Bill in all stages of his daily routine.

Serving the People.

"So you wish to be elected senator from this state?"

"Yes, sir. I desire to be of service to the people."

"I understand that you have expressed a willingness to spend $50,000 to bring about your election. Do you think that's a proper way to be of service to the people?"

"Why not? Can you think of any way in which the money might be given a wider circulation?"

Too Much.

"How do you like our new minister, Mrs. Metcalf?"

"Well, he seems to be an awfully good man."

"Yes, I really believe he tries to practice what he preaches."

"And he is quite eloquent at times."

"I think he has preached some of the best sermons I have ever heard."

"But I just can't imagine an angel with such whiskers as his."

WHY HE QUIT EDITING.

"You say you were once the editor of a newspaper?"

"Yes, lady, and it was a very bright little sheet, if I do say it."

"How does it happen then that you are forced to ask at back doors for meals?"

"It is merely a case of the irony of fate. I had a printer who was near-sighted, and one afternoon when he made up the paper he got a wedding notice and a murder trial mixed, so that after describing the costume of the bride it said the condemned man almost collapsed when sentence was pronounced."

The only way to get the genuine New Home Sewing Machine is to buy the machine with the name NEW HOME on the arm and in the legs.

This machine is warranted for all time. No other like it. No other as good. The New Home Sewing Machine Company, ORANGE, MASS.

Albert W. Noone, Democratic Candidate for Governor, is Highly Esteemed by All Factions

(From the National Monthly)

Councilor Noone is the sort of man which a party is mighty fortunate to have as its candidate for public office, and especially for the office of Governor of a State. He is a business man who has made a notable success of his own enterprises and is amply qualified to make a success of the State's business. He has always lived in New Hampshire, and that has been for sixty-three years—in fact he was born in Peterborough, the town which is now his home, and where he owns a large and prosperous woolen mill. He knows the State, its people, its needs and the sentiment and feelings of its citizens. He is a Jeffersonian Democrat brought down to date. That is, he believes in the old Jeffersonian doctrines and applies them to modern needs and conditions. That makes the very best sort of a Democrat and the best sort of a man for any State to have as its executive.

You get a pretty good line on the character of a man like "Hi" Noone—that's what they call him in New Hampshire—when you stop to realize that he is a manufacturer of woollens, that he lives in a State where Democrats were mighty scarce and always in the minority for fifty years, and that he has ever adhered to the faith of the party and voted its ticket. It has required some courage to stick to the old party all these years in a State like New Hampshire. You get good proof, too, that the Republicans are falsifying when they say that the Underwood tariff bill has injured industries when a man like Mr. Noone, himself a big manufacturer of woolen goods, tells you that the Underwood measure has not injured his business. He is prospering under it and so are his employees. If any one doubts that let him ask any man who works for "Hi" Noone. Also, wherever there is a woolen mill in the State, and there are many of them, the workers will tell you that they would rather work for him than almost any man in New Hampshire. They get fair treatment when they work and when they are unable to work he has established the reputation of caring for those who have been faithful to him. He lives and associates with his employees, and they never feel the slightest embarrassment when he is about the plant superintending its operation. He pays the best wages, has the most modern working conditions and short hours and gets the best results. A Democratic tariff neither frightens him nor his employees.

Although always a loyal Democrat he never aspired to enter politics until two years ago when he became a candidate for member of the Governor's council. He failed to receive a majority of the votes cast, although he did get a plurality, and the Legislature elected him. His careful judgment, his wide business experience and his capacity for doing things have made him an invaluable adjunct to Governor Polker's administration. Once having had a taste of politics he began to like the game, but more than that he saw an opportunity where he might be of great service to the State by becoming Governor and that is what made him a candidate.

Mr. Noone is a strong admirer of President Wilson and a vigorous supporter of his policies. He believes in the doctrine of live and let live, and when many business men were seeking to understand the President's purposes and motives, Mr. Noone was one of the prosperous business men of the country who stood by him and gave him encouragement. Now he has the satisfaction of seeing thousands of others taking the same position that he took when he declared that the President was the greatest enemy in the State that man has never been discovered. He enjoys great popularity and is winning not only friends but votes by his open, frank and straightforward methods. There is nothing under cover with "Hi" Noone. He takes the people into his confidence and lets them know his purposes. One of the principal planks in his personal platform is:

"In the first place I am a Democrat and a progressive Democrat. I believe in the great movement which is going on to give the people a larger and more direct share in the conduct of their affairs. Much progress has been made and more is going to be made, and as a progressive Democrat I believe that my party offers the most practically efficient agency to promote that progress."

The following is a synopsis of the Senatorial career of Jacob H. Gallinger, by Wm. L. Stoddard in "Pearson's":

"Jacob H. Gallinger, Republican, of New Hampshire, was elected Senator in 1891 and has been successively re-elected ever since. He is a doctor by profession and has been a Republican politician and officeholder for many years. He voted in favor of the confirmation of Daniels and in favor of secret sessions of the Senate. He voted in favor of women's suffrage.

He voted against direct election of Senators. He voted for Lorimer on every roll-call. He voted in favor of Archbald. He voted against the seamen's bill; against the right of postal employees to organize; against the creation of the parcel post, and for the amendment hamstringing the parcel post. He failed to vote on the Republic Coal Bill, and voted against the Alaska railroad bill, as well as the Hetch Hetchy bill. He voted for the Connecticut River Dam bill and the Weeks Appalachian reserve bill. He voted against the Panama Canal bill giving American ships free tolls, and failed to vote on the tolls repeal bill, as well as on labor exemption."

Surprise for Film Star.

Rose Tapley was given a birthday surprise party at her home in East Orange, N. J., when 30 of her friends and neighbors invaded her home, decorated it from cellar to garret in yellow and green, and gave the popular player one of the most enjoyable occasions imaginable. Miss Tapley was the recipient of many presents, including a handsome Victrola, a complete set of Shakespeare's works, numerous books, and many other valuable and useful gifts.

Temporarily With Andrew Mack.

William Conklin, who for the past six months has been playing important roles in an eastern company's productions, by permission of that company was allowed to go to Philadelphia for the company, now filming "The Ragged Earl," with Andrew Mack in the leading role. Mr. Conklin informs horseback rider, a fact which will probably surprise many of his friends.

A Meeting of Old Friends.

"Somebody told me, the other day, that Maud Washington was married. You knew her in school, too, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes; I knew her very well there."

"Oh, what a terror she was! I'm sorry for her husband, whoever— By the way, I wonder who the deuce she married, anyhow?"

"Me."

No Reason to Worry.

"I once played the part of Venus in a pantomime," said the lady who showed her age and was beginning to have a mustache.

"Well, I wouldn't let it worry me," replied the one who was still fair to look upon. "Venus was only a myth, so, of course, you didn't hurt her feelings."

Unfulfilled Expectations.

"That man Tithersons reminds me of a torpedo boat."

"How do you make that out?"

"Ever since he was a boy at school people have been predicting great things for him but he's never done anything worth mentioning yet."

My. HOW LIGHT!
Why it's as Light as Down.

These are the remarks we invariably hear when we offer one of our customers a

Maish A.P.C. Comfort

Yes, the name is quite accurate. No cotton comfort of our acquaintance has a better right to the name "cotton down."

The secret of Maish lightness and fluffiness is the Maish principle by which it is woven—a special process. This makes Maish Comforts twice as thick and warm as ordinary comforts and much lighter in weight.

A comfort filling woven in this "peculiar" way simply cannot "pack," "bunch," "lump" and lose its life and vitality. It is new—in this sense—'till worn out.

Lovely art shades in attractive and exclusive patterns make Maish Comforts as good to look at as they are comfortable to sleep under.
