PASTOR RESIGNS

The Presbyterian Church Soon To Lose Pastor

At the morning service Sunday at the Presbyterian church the pastor, Rev. F. Albert Arbuckle, read his resignation, to take effect Dec. 28. This action on the part of Mr. Arbuckle came as a complete surprise to his parishioners and the townspeople.

Rev. Arbuckle came to Antrim about two years and a half ago, from Boulton, Me. Since he has served as pastor here the church has been very active. Through his efforts a new pipe organ has been installed in the church, the 125th anniversary of the founding of the Presbyterian society was elaborately observed, a Men's Civic League was formed, regular monthly musical services were made an attractive feature of the first Sunday evening services of each month, the Newburyport Presbytery held a session here, beside the regular social and spiritual activities of the society.

Rev. Arbuckle has accepted a call to serve as pastor of the Presbyterian church at the city of Fillmore, Cal. A large portion of the membership of his new church are young people.

Death of Micajah George

Micajah M. George, a well known and long time resident of Bennington, died at his home last Friday, aged about 77 years.

Mr. George was born in the town now incorporated as Bennington, but which was then a part of Greenfield. For a few years he resided in Antrim, and later removed to Bennington where he has managed a nice farm for over 30 years. He married Lucy A. Rogers March 3, 1859, and she survives him.

He was a member of the Masons, Waverley Lodge, I. O. O. F., the Encampment, I. O. O. F., of which he was a charter member, and the G. A. R.; a veteran of the Civil war, having served in Co. E, First N. H. heavy artillery.

For many years Mr. George took an active part in the political life of the town and was always interested in its welfare. He served for years as selectman, moderator, town clerk, member of the school board, and other minor offices.

He was the head of a four generation group. The survivors are: Mrs. Carrie Smith of Nashua, Henry A. George of Bennington, Edward E. George of Antrim, Alonzo C. George of Granville, N. Y., and Mrs. Emma F. Holt of Francestown, children, besides the grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The funeral was held at the Congregational church on Sunday. Rev. Andrew Gibson, pastor, officiated.

Molly Aiken Chapter Entertains

The Peterboro chapter, D. A. R., was entertained in Antrim on Friday last by the Molly Aiken chapter, D. A. R., at the home of the Regent, Mrs. Cora Baker Hunt of Summer street. Mrs. Hunt was assisted in her duties as hostess by Mrs. Mary Butler Jameson.

A large number of members of both chapters were present for the day's session. An elaborate dinner was served at noon. The Hunt homestead was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and roses.

In the afternoon the visitors furnished a literary program which included a vocal solo by Mrs. Will Knight, a piano solo by Mrs. D. W. Harrington. The feature was the reading of a paper on "Christmas in the Navy," by Mrs. D. F. Conant. Extracts from the log of the "Olympia" were given which described the experiences of an eye witness of the nine-day fire which broke out in the coal supply of the Olympia. Several incidents of life on board ship were included in the paper, which was much enjoyed by all.

A social hour followed the program.

The ONLOOKER by HENRY HOWLAND WAIL FROM DAD

Littl' shoes and stockings
Costing more and more
Make the purse grow flatter
Than it was before.

Littl' strips of bacon
Once so very cheap;
Now the butcher, when we Get it, stabs us deep.

Little bricks of butter—
Gee, but they come high!
Guess that all the boosies
Must be going dry.

Little raisins daily
All along the line
Keep a fellow digging.
Always, rain or shine.

Never any let-up;
Wonder where they'll stop!
Grocers always claiming Shortage of the crop.

Even rich men grumbling
At the price they give
For their food and clothing
And the right to live.

Little raisins daily
Added here and there;
Wish I were an angel,
Restin' up somewhere.

"But you said yesterday that you thought it was a splendid picture. You raved over the atmosphere, you praised the drawing and you were enchanted with the coloring."

"I know; but I have since learned that the painter lives in Chicago. The thing is a mere daub."

"Do you believe Methuselah lived to be as old as the Bible says he did?"

"Well, I've always thought they might have had shorter years than we have now. Still, he might have done it. There is no record that he ever even played soccer football."

HER FIRST THOUGHT.

"Darling," he said, "I have just been informed that my salary is to be increased ten per cent at the beginning of the new year."

"Oh, lovely," she cried. "Let's hurry and decide which will be the best way to spend the extra money we shall have."

Not Minding It.
"Don't you find that living is much higher than it used to be?"

"Yes, it does cost more, but I don't mind it. The alimony I am getting from my second husband is much larger than the courts awarded me the first time."

NOVELTY IN THRILLS

Wrecking of Trolley Car Is Something Unique.

Here Moving Picture Designers Have Produced a Truly Exciting Scene —Profit Shown in the Renting of Films.

One of the most exciting scenes in motion pictures is contained in "A Prince of India." To inject the necessary "thrill" deemed essential by all producers for "movie" plays, the director of this melodrama resorted to the unique expedient of wrecking a trolley car.

In the average modern "thriller" the villain invariably finds a waiting automobile or one within easy hailing distance to convey him from the scene of his misdeed to safety. But here is developed a different situation. The villain, escaping with some precious booty, fails to see any motor car, but finds a convenient trolley car, without passengers, conductor or motorman. He immediately boards it and, turning on the power, dashes away, barely in time to escape his pursuing victim. The latter, however, is not to be balked so easily. Meeting some friends in a powerful automobile, he induces them to take him in and pursue the robber.

The chase which follows is indeed thrilling. When the automobile catches up with the trolley car the pursuer leaps from it on the running board of the speeding street car and a fight between the thief and his victim follows while the car is in flight. When it reaches a trestle, the car suddenly jumps the track, veers, crashes through a railing and is precipitated headlong 50 feet to the gorge below, to its utter destruction. The villain is presumed to have been killed in the wreck, but his victim, fortunately, leaped from the car before it reached the trestle, taking with him the stolen property which he had recovered in the struggle.

Films Rent for $40 a Day.

A popular feature film generally rents for $40 a day, while it is new and fresh, and from twenty-five to thirty-five prints are sent out. That means a gross return of from $1,000 a day, or from $7,000 to $9,000 a week.

The life of the average feature film is about three months (at a lesser rental during the last month). So it is easy to see that the gross return is very large. Some films, such as Hackett in "The Prisoner of Zenda," or "Rainey Hunt," have continued popular for more than a year, fresh prints being made.

The copyright laws are still lax and rather chaotic concerning motion pictures, and the Authors' League of America is working better to protect authors whose books and stories are used for films, since a popular book often makes as good a movie drama as a play. But these conditions will doubtless be corrected and it may be said that the author and perhaps the dramatist of the immediate future, if he writes the kind of books or plays which have interesting plots, and especially if the scenes can be put into pictorial setting, will have a new source of revenue from the motion pictures.—Walter Pritchard Eaton, in the American Magazine.

Big Crow—How did you find out that Willie Raddish was going to be married; he told me that I was the only one that knew anything about it?

Little Crow—How could it be otherwise? He proposed in a cornfield.

ANTRIM RESIDENT

Writes From Winter Quarters in Vermont State

We have received the following letter from Eliza A. Kimball, who is at present making her home with relatives in Irasburg, Vermont:

Editor Antrim Reporter:

Within a dozen miles of the Canadian boundary, so of course this section is somewhat interested in the latest change in the matter of removing the customs headquarters from Newport, the thriving shire town of Orleans county to St. Albans, on the other side of the state. Yet quite a force of officials will be employed at Newport, which is situated on lake Memphremagog, and an important railroad centre, and from its location a busy and growing place.

Irasburg has a large lumber mill and teamsters are in employment at all times of the year carrying various products to the nearest railway station, Orleans, formerly called Barton Landing; but a large quantity of lumber is used in several manufactories in Orleans. In winter the farmers, and this is a noted farming section of Vermont, make it a leading business to attend steadily to "lumbering" as it is called. In spring and later than the city markets will admit, maple sugar has the leading attention. Although the year through dairying is uppermost,—ten cows would be considered a small herd and forty a large one. At Glover, and near Barton on a principle highway, lies a farm where one hundred cows are kept, and everything in keeping with modern buildings and appointments.

A great deal of interest is shown in caring for the schools in this vicinity. The nearest High school is in Barton and considered up-to-date in every way. The churches exhibit a harmonious spirit and hold frequent union services. Irasburg has what may be termed a pretty little town hall, and there the course of lectures are held, which the present season comprise five entertainments: East End Girls, Mohammed Ali, Jubilee Singers, Osterbein Quartet and Bell Ringers, Sylvester A. Long.

The weather in this vicinity has been similar to that reported in southern New Hampshire. Never as cold here as at St. Johnsbury, nearly forty miles to the southward. I hope always to hear the good word from my home town of Antrim.

Antrim Poultry Association

The seventh annual exhibition of the Antrim Poultry Association will be held in town hall on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, January 5, 6 and 7, next; entries for which will close on Saturday, January 2, at eight o'clock in the evening.

There promises to be the most successful show and a large number of cups and special prizes are offered the exhibitors. The premium lists are being distributed. Any information desired may be obtained by addressing Erwin E. Cummings, clerk, Antrim, N. H.

The County Vote

From the Manchester Mirror we clip the following which will interest many of our readers:

The official returns of the vote cast at the November election for county officers show the election of every Republican candidate save one, and the exception is caused by the reelection for the fourth time of the Hon. Herbert O. Hadley of Peterboro, who has been the Democratic member of the board of county commissioners during the past six years. Mr. Hadley's success is attributable to his recognized fitness as a practical farmer for the position, to his large acquaintance throughout the county as the result of his having been for six years master of the New Hampshire state grange, and to the fact that he has been able to command the support of hundreds of Republicans. In the present instance, however, he barely pulled through, as the tremendous Republican landslide almost swept him away, and if he had not run more than 1000 votes ahead of his Democratic associates on the ticket he would have been defeated.

The one thing that stands forth prominently in county vote is the manifest loyal following commanded by Col. E. J. Copp of Nashua, register of deeds. Col. Copp is given a plurality of more than 4000, and leads all his associates on the ticket by 1000 or more. Hundreds of Democrats at every election take pride in extending their support to Col. Copp, who is recognized as one of the most progressive men in the conducting of probate business in the entire country. He has modernized his office, and besides his progressive and practical methods he possesses a personality so pleasing that it is ever a gratification to do business with the registry office.

Next to Col. Copp Sheriff Elect Stearns of Manchester receives the highest plurality, and then in order comes Calvin R. Wood of Nashua, register of deeds, Albert H. White of Manchester, county treasurer, Albert T. Barr of Manchester, county commissioner, James H. Hunt of Nashua, county commissioner, and John R. Spring of Nashua, county solicitor.

BAD MAN CLARENCE

The Wild West Nearly Keeps the Railroad Out of Moscow, Maine.

By FRANK MACDONALD.

(Copyright.) I'm not going to say anything against literature as literature, but I'll be blessed if it didn't nigh prevent us from getting our railroad. Robbie Swan, whom you will remember as a very nice, obliging sort of chap, reckoned that boy's didn't have much chance in the country, and that therefore it was the city for his'n.

So he went off to Bangor to work in an office, and he lasted about six months. When he came back he had fallen away som'at in flesh, and there was a far-away, worried look into his eyes until he was confronted with one of his mother's best meals. Then he brightened up and said he guessed, after all, that raising turnips and potatoes, and doing a little logging in winter, were honorable occupations, and good enough for any free-born American.

But Robbie brought back with him other things besides experience and an elastic appetite. He had a whole trunk full of stories of the West, the great, the glorious, golden West, the West that never was.

In them there is always a hero whose clean-cut, determined features are somewhat stained by, but not wholly buried in, alkali dust. Then there is the sweep of the pitiless, parching, cloudless sky that arches the far-reaching, arid plain like a brazen, burning casque.

There is a girl, a graceful, dare-devil of a girl, who can ride any broncho that ever bronked, and who rounds up either the hero or the bad man at the end. Then there are also greasers, pancakes for breakfast, chili con carne, Injins, and such truck.

Well, those books and magazines and pamphlets were left to Robbie by an accidental roommate, who lit out, taking Robbie's change and spare clothes. He was going to the golden West to brand mavericks and get into stories but he only got as far as Worcester where he went to work in a wire mill. But Robbie's money never came back.

Hums'er, these stories almost decided the destinies of our town, Moscow, Maine. Andrew Carnegie ain't as yet recognized our need of a library, and, hitherto, in the past we've confined ourselves to rural publications like Residence and Radiator, Pies and Pans, or the Housekeeper's Guide the Furrow, etc. So we pitched right in and read Robbie's books, and they proved terribly stimulating.

We're a pretty big place, and the turnips that come from our neighborhood are popular all over the world, some of them entering the best society in New York, and even Washington political circles. But we were really handicapped by lack of railroads.

A Nervous Wreck

Had No Desire To Live — Peruna Is A Tonic and Strength Builder So Says

Mrs. Frank Strode, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis. Her letter reads:

"I began using Peruna a few months ago when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck. Could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live."

"Three bottles of Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. While my recovery took nearly four months, at the end of that time I was better than I ever had been before. I had a splendid color and never weighed more in my life."

"I certainly think Peruna is without a rival as a tonic and strength builder, and it has my endorsement."

Mr. Charles Brown, R. R. 4, Box 79, Rogersville, Tenn., writes: "I have had many different remedies, but have found that Peruna is the greatest tonic on earth, and a perfect system builder."

facilities, for we had to bring our goods down the Merrigakkin, and sometimes the Merrigakkin ain't there in dry weather.

We had sent delegations to the Great Central and Atlantic, and our pastor has preached a powerful sermon on the subject. Still, the best the directors could do for us was to say that they might take the matter under advisement.

It was fall when Robbie got back home, and those books served to lighten the dull period between harvest and logging. I tell you we had some fierce arguments about them. Bije Dow, whose aspirations was to be a barroom Socrates, which he couldn't be in a prohibition state, he allowed that a hacienda was higher than a patio, but that a majordomo ranked them both, and was superior even to a general!

But b'y-bye we were all at work and forgetting of those things, while Bije stays around home keeping warm and letting good literature filter into his system. He probably would have built a dove house, if he'd known what it was, or braided a few quirts, or something of that sort, if he could. But he didn't.

A' he gone was to make a mess of tortillas, which weren't nothing but pretty poor flapjacks, and read. He read till spring, and then he knew more about the imaginary West than the people who write about it. He didn't even take part in the spring painting; just hung around the post office and acted like a chicken with the roup.

He said it was a great yearning in his heart for the boundless plains, and he could see in his mind's eye the endless, treeless stretches where the plaintive prairie-dog coughs, the Gila monster roots in its lair, and the coyote howls dismally through the hollow, aching void of night.

We jest laffed at him and told him the plains was as devoid of drink as they was of trees. But one day he got into action.

"I know," he said, "there's bad men lurking about. I hit their trail over in Whaccahamore. I'll keep my eye peeled."

He spent the next day mooching around doing volunteer scouting, and about as busy as the second-hand of a watch. We had all dropped down to the post office for the semi-weekly mail, when we heard the all-fired hallooing and shouting, and then there streaked past the most sensational figure I ever witnessed.

He had on a cartridge belt, plum full of shells, a brownish canvas jacket, with a bit tail, short pants, heavy stockings, big, high shoes, a floppy wide-brimmed hat, and around his neck there was twisted a blue handkerchief with white spots onto it. He was youngish, maybe twenty years old in his stocking feet, and his face was awful white, and he looked like as though he had swallowed his chin in his fear.

I found these details later, for when he first bu'nt into view he looked like a mud-colored streak. Behind him came Bije, badly winded; all het up, but triumphant, and with some property that must have belonged to the man he was chasing.

"I'll round ye up!" yelled Bije. "A real sample of the bad man! But I disarmed him when he wa'n't looking. See that!"

He threw down on the ground a big revolver, a funny little hatchet, the blade of which turned in to the helve, and which might have been mighty handy for chopping down grass, and last of all a thing that looked like a spy-glass on three three legs.

"A hatchet for silent work," said Bije, "and that air thing's a machine gun. Shoots invisible bullets. Prob'ly a needle gun. I tell you—"

He didn't tell us any more, for a voice that sounded like the voices of 50 men all rolled into one yell, broke in:

"You blinkety-blank-blank ding-dood, floundered-footed, gangle-jointed, knock-kneed, slab-sided, pin-headed yam! Leave go of that level! Where's my rodman? What are you chasing Clarence that way for?"

He was a big, roughly-dressed, likely-looking man, and he was mad to the soles of his boots.

"I'm the surveyor for the Great Central & Atlantic," he yelled. "You've druv my rodman away and maybe he'll die in the woods."

Then he explained that they had come up to make a survey for the branch road, and that they had been working toward Moscow when Bije spotted them and cut Clarence out and started in for to chase him.

"I don't believe in running myself," said the man who was none other than Walters, one of the leading engineers of the road, "and I don't like to see a boy treated that way, especially when he has valuable instruments on or about his person. And I tell you, if you don't get him back, there won't ever be a rail laid to Moscow."

We got him by the pine grove near Widdo's and Mr. Danvers' onion patch, and brung him back.

Keeps Audiences In Mind.

Francis X. Bushman, Essanay screen star, commenting recently on his successful career as a photo player, attributed his popularity chiefly to one thing. He instinctively feels his audience before him as he enacts a scene before the camera. "The importance of carefully presenting my part for the screen was never more impressed upon me than when I made a lecture tour of the country," he said. "Wherever I appeared the theater patrons seemed to be thoroughly familiar with every film star and looked forward to seeing their favorites in their most suitable plays. They criticized and praised their interpretations. When I discovered this I determined to bear my audiences in mind in all film productions."

Changes Character Parts.

Charles Ray is taking the lead in the photo play, "Not of the Flock," being produced by Scott Sydney, and Enid Markey is playing opposite him. For the second time in his connection with the pictures Mr. Ray is taking the part of a clergyman, and it is something of a change after the warlike character he played last. He makes a good looking minister.

Film Secures Praise of Critics.

The film version of Wilson Barrett's play, "The Sign of the Cross," which was recently filmed by the Famous Players, with William Farnum in the role of Marcus, which has just been released in Great Britain in order to fill bookings obtained as far in advance as last spring, has received unusual praise from all the English trade periodicals.

Injured In Auto Accident.

William Humphrey of the Vitagraph players was injured in an automobile accident at Asbury Park, N. J. Mrs. Humphrey, who accompanied him, was seriously injured, having three ribs broken and suffering internal injuries. Their machine skidded and turned turtle on the sandy beach, and Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey were caught underneath.

Acquitted Child of Murder.

The children's court of Kings county heard a charge of homicide against a twelve-year-old boy in People versus Vicuno, in which the boy, being under sixteen years old, could be found guilty only of a misdemeanor. The testimony showed that the defendant knocked down and kicked a nine-year-old boy in a Brooklyn school yard last January, and the boy died the following July. Expert testimony revealed that the boy's death six months after the injury was due to tubercular peritonitis, which medical experts said was a germ disease that could not be communicated by a blow from the hand or foot of an aggressor. The court held that the defendant could not have contemplated the death of his victim and ruled that it had not been proved beyond a reasonable doubt that the boy died as a result of violence, since the specific disease that carried him off was tubercular peritonitis. The defendant was acquitted on a charge of homicide.—New York Sun.

As to Shipments by Sea.

An important admiralty decision was rendered by the United States circuit court of appeals, Second circuit, in Benner Line versus Pendleton, in which the court holds that "in every contract for the carriage of goods by sea, unless otherwise expressly stipulated, there is an absolute warranty on the part of the ship owner that the ship is seaworthy at the time of beginning her voyage, which warranty does not depend upon his knowledge or ignorance, his care or negligence. To constitute seaworthiness the hull must be so tight, staunch and strong as to be competent to resist all ordinary action of the sea and to prosecute and complete the voyage without damage to the cargo."

"Dead" Snake Bites Warden.

A large pilot snake buried its fangs in the right hand of Game Warden J. B. Hendershott of Newton, N. J., at Lake Norlock. He immediately sucked the blood from the wound, but the hand swelled to almost double its normal size.

The warden does not believe this species of pilot snake, which lives in the water, is poisonous, although he says the land pilot snake is dangerous.

Mr. Hendershott had struck the snake with a stick and thrown it in the grass, believing it dead. A few minutes later it attacked him.—New York American.

"What makes you insist on always dancing with that girl? You know you dance badly."

"That's true," replied the determined youth. "I think a lot of that girl. If I dance with her instead of letting her sit down and watch me at a distance, maybe I can keep her from seeing what a fearful dancer I really am."

Coats      Suits      Gowns      Furs
Separate Skirts      Shirt Waists
Raincoats      Silk Petticoats

A repetition of our sale of a year ago when many of our highest priced Coats and Suits were almost immediately disposed of, at such surprisingly low prices that merely the announcement is necessary to induce bargain-wise women to visit The Fashion Shop during the remaining week or until every article is disposed of. According to our policy, nothing will be carried over.

MOVIES TO AID DETECTIVES

New York Police Commissioner Will Henceforth Use Films in Identifying Criminals.

Before resigning as second deputy police commissioner of New York, J. Robert Rubin, who had charge of reorganizing the detective bureau, arranged for the use of moving pictures in connection with criminal identification.

The system, which is considered of special value in training new detectives, is expected to be in operation on a small scale in a short time, and if funds are voted it may be extended throughout the city and eventually to police administrations in other cities.

"With younger men constantly replacing the old detectives we believe that the moving pictures will soon be an important factor in police work," Mr. Rubin said. "Its first application is planned in connection with the lineup."

"At present much time is lost by detectives who have to attend the lineup, but with the movies the films can be displayed at any time in headquarters or at division stations.

"As New York headquarters is practically the clearing house for all criminal investigations, detectives and police officials coming from other cities could see a procession of crooks or suspects on the canvas and in many cases identification undoubtedly would follow."

Politick Economy.
"Of course," said Meandering Mike, "de great t'ing in taxation is to take de money away from a people widout lettin' em realize dey're partin' wid it."

"Yes," replied Plodding Pete. "But youse can't expect a perfectly dignified an' respectable government to slip up on de public wit a sand-bag or a bottle o' knock-out drops."

Critically Considered.
"I am glad that you favor serving only soft drinks in the ball park."

"Yes," replied the man from a rough town. "A soft drink bottle seems better constructed. It goes straighter and lands harder when you toss it at an umpire."

Exacting Standards.

"I am afraid Bliggins hasn't a powerful sense of humor."

"Oh, yes he has. The only trouble is that when Bliggins makes a joke he isn't satisfied to get a laugh. He thinks it's a failure if it doesn't hurt somebody's feelings."

In Harmony.

"Do Mr. Bliggins and his wife have any disagreements about the extraordinary hats she wears?"

"No," replied Miss Cayenne; "they seem in cheerful accord. He's glad he doesn't have to wear 'em and she's glad she doesn't have to pay for 'em."

Poetic Fiction.

"Must you be going so soon, Mr. Bliggins?"

"We would esteem it a favor." .
"Respectfully yours." .
"Strictly fresh eggs."

THE PATRIOTIC DOLLAR

CONGRESS DECREES DOLLARS INDULGING IN LUXURIES MUST FIRST SALUTE THE FLAG.

War Revenue Tax of $105,000,000 Levied—Beer Bears Brunt of Burden.

Congress has levied a war tax of $105,000,000 to offset a similar amount of loss on import revenue due to the European disturbances and of this amount beer is the heaviest contributor, having been assessed approximately $50,000,000; a stamp tax on negotiable instruments, it is estimated, will yield $31,000,000; a tax on the capital stock of banks of $4,500,000 and a tax on tobacco, perfumes, theater tickets, etc., makes the remainder.

Congress has decreed that the brewer, the banker and the investor must shoulder the musket and march to the front; that milady who would add to her beauty must first tip Uncle Sam, and a dollar that seeks pleasure must first salute the flag; that Pleasure and Profit—the twin heroes of many wars—shall fight the nation's battles and by an ingeniously arranged schedule of taxation congress has shifted the war budget from the shoulders of Necessity to those of Choice and Gain, touching in its various ramifications almost every line of business.

All hail the dollar that bleeds for its country; that bares its breast to the fortunes of war and risks its life to preserve the stability and integrity of the nation's credit.

The market place has always been a favorite stand for war revenue collectors. The trader is a great financial patriot. His dollar is the first to rally around the star-spangled banner and the last to bear the coo of the dove of peace. He is called upon to buy cannon; to feed and clothe the boys in blue and each month cheer their hearts with the coin of the realm. Men can neither be free nor brave without food and munition, and money is as important a factor in war as blood. Many monuments have been erected in honor of heroes slain in battles, poems have been written eulogizing their noble deeds and the nation honors its soldiers while they live and places a monument upon their graves when they die, but very little has been said of the dollar that bears the burdens of war.

Honor to the Dollar that Bears the Burdens of War.

All honor to the dollar that answers the call to arms and, when the battle is over, bandages the wounds of stricken soldiers, lays a wreath upon the graves of fallen heroes and cares for the widows and orphans.

All honor to the industries that bend their backs under the burdens of war; lift the weight from the shoulders of the poor and build a bulwark around the nation's credit.

All honor to those who contribute to the necessities and administer to the comforts of the boys who are marching; cool the fever of afflicted soldiers and kneel with the cross beside dying heroes.

A dollar may fight its competitor in business, industries may struggle for supremacy in trade and occupations may view each other with envy or suspicion, but when the bugle calls they bury strife and rally around the fat, companions and friends, mess mates and chums, all fighting for one far one cause and one country.

The luxuries in life have always been the great burden-bearers in government. We will mention a few of them giving the annual contributions to the nation's treasury: Liquor, $270,000,000; tobacco, $162,000,000; sugar, $64,000,000; silk, $15,500,000; diamonds, $3,287,000; millinery, $2,479,000; furs, $2,024,000 and automobiles, $974,000. We collect $665,000,000 of internal and custom revenue annually and $176,000,000 of this amount classifies as luxuries, and to this amount we should add the $100,000,000 war tax now levied.

The war tax is immediately effective. "There'll be trouble," thought the industries are marching $100,000,000 strong and beneath the starry flag they will fill the treasury again while they shout, "Hurrah for Uncle Sam!"

In every field of human activity the demand for more competent men and women is growing every day—especially so in agriculture.

Home made is a right—especially for the housewife, and the farmer who is home is doing his best to help us along on the road to success.

Work is the salve that heals the wounded heart.

LUCK

He never walked beneath a ladder, nor saw a pin and let it lie;
He never started things on Friday, nor let a good luck charm get by;

He never let a hunchback pass him ere he had somehow touched his hump;

But once his collar bone was broken against the handle of a pump.

He had a list of all the jinxes: the moon
when new was never seen By him, except o'er his right shoulder: he would not be one of thirteen;

He carried luck stones in his pockets; he thought the opal was accurst;

And every morning he selected his right shoe to be put on first.

He often went to fortune tellers to find out how and when to act;
He turned away from cross-eyed people,
he thought they brought bad luck,

in fact;

He picked up horseshoes when he found them, but never nailed one o'er his door—

He had no door to nail one over. Enough is said, so why say more?

Why She Likes Football.

"Why is it that you always go to all the football games? You don't seem to take an interest in any other kind of athletics."

"I never miss a football game if I can help it because I hate boys."

Evidence of Prosperity.

"Mr. Bronson must get a terribly big salary."

"Why do you think so?"

"They have beef three times through the week and a roast nearly every Sunday."

How He Gets It.

"Man wants but little here below,"

Thus saith the ancient song:

There's one sad thing about it,
though—

He gets that little wrong.

For Food and Clothes.

"Young Grigsby is getting up a corner in food and clothing."

"Grigsby! Why, he hasn't got a dollar!"

"No. He's going to marry the daughter of old Blenkinsop, the plutocrat."—

Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Quitter.

"I always knew that Murphy was a quitter."

"What's your evidence?"

"This paper says while the catcher was fighting with the umpire, Murphy was caught trying to steal home."—

Buffalo Express.

KING'S ONLY DAUGHTER NOW A "GROWN-UP"

There is no longer a "little princess" in Buckingham palace. No, for the only daughter of the king and queen of England has "grown up," so to speak.

The charming camera picture reproduced here depicts the latest portrait of Princess Mary, which has an increased interest from the fact that it is the first posed photograph of the princess showing

her with her hair

"up," although, of course, for some months the princess has worn this outward sign of womanhood. Princess Mary attained her seventeenth birthday on April 25

last. It is the custom for princesses

APT REPLY OF STAGE DRIVER

Declares Himself to Be Most Abused
Person in Oregon and Companion
Agrees With Him.

Senator Harry Lane of Oregon, though born in that state, comes of southern ancestry, who emigrated to the far West many years ago from Carolina. His career has been varied —at one time a doctor, then later on superintendent for the state insane asylum, then into the senate.

Lane's grandfather, who was one of the most prominent men in Oregon in the old days, was also a senator, and held that position at the breaking out of the Civil war. Naturally, this senator, whose name was Jo Lane, felt kindly toward the land of his birth, and these sentiments found frequent expression on the floor. So much so, indeed, that when he reached home he began to realize that he was beginning to lose his great popularity, while many already regarded him
as an out-and-out rebel.

One day he took a seat in a stage alongside of the driver, who did not know the identity of his companion.
In the course of the conversation Lane remarked that he thought he was the most abused man in the state.

"Well, I don't know about that," chuckled the driver as he flicked a fly deftly from the nigh horse's flank,
"but I do know that if you are any worse abused than that rascal Jo Lane, heaven help you."—Washington ton Star.

WAS GLAD TO HEAR IT.

The Proprietor—If you can't keep your work up we shall have to look for another man.

The Bookkeeper—You'd better look for two while you're at it. There's more than enough work for three here.

Various Graces for Various Places.

"Of course," said the young husband who is trying to be humble and take instructions. "I'll admit that my ballroom and reception manners are pretty broad-gauge and fortissimo."

"They are," she commented, severely.

"But let me tell you one thing."

"What's that?"

"Your Vere de Vere ways at the ball park would queer our hopes of ever winning a game if the home team knew about 'em."

Art's Unkindness.

"My farewell appearance was an occasion of the greatest enthusiasm."

said one prima donna.

"Yes," replied the other. "Isn't it remarkable that such a large number of people should have seemed so delighted to hear you for the last time."

Highly Significant.

"Doris is writing a great many verses these days."

"What kind do you suppose they are?"

"I am afraid they are poems of passion. She uses red ink."

to remain "little" until they reach the seventeenth year; then they are permitted to "put up" their hair and be recognized as a "grown-up." Then, of course, there comes the series of court social affairs in which the "grown-up" princess will set the world gossiping by marrying some eligible from the list of kings' sons of some section of the world, and perhaps she may even be the means of securing for Great Britain a powerful alliance with the nation into whose royal family she mar
