Ten Weeks in Bed - Eminent Physicians Failed - Wonderful Recovery

I wish to inform you of the great benefit I have derived from the use of Swamp-Root. I had been a sufferer for more than twenty years from kidney and liver trouble and was almost constantly treated by the most eminent physicians who could only give me temporary relief. I had been in bed ten weeks when I began the use of Swamp-Root. Inside of twenty-four hours I could see that I had been greatly benefited. I continued to use Swamp-Root until I had used several bottles when I really felt that my old trouble was completely cured and I am positive that any person suffering with kidney or liver trouble can be cured by the use of this preparation.

I am now in the best of health, better than I have been for ten years or more. I do not know how to express myself as strongly as I desire, in favor of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, as I am sure that it saved my life and that my good health is due entirely to this great remedy. I heartily recommend it to every sufferer and am confident they can be benefited as I have been. It is a pleasure for me, gentlemen, to hand you this recommendation.

MRS. H. J. PRICE,
1406 Center St.
Portsmouth, Ohio.

Personally appeared before me this 18th of September, 1909, Mrs. H. J. Price, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

R. A. CALVERT,

NOTICE

To the Depositors of Hillsboro Bridge Guaranty Savings Bank of Hillsboro Bridge, N. H.

The law of this state provides that, "It shall be the duty of every depositor in any savings bank, and of every shareholder of any building and loan association, to present his book for verification with the books of the bank, or association, when notified so to do, at the times fixed by the bank commissioner."

The bank commissioner has selected the month of May in this year as the time for such verification. I have been appointed to examine the depositors' books and compare them with the books of the bank, with the object of correcting any errors that may exist, and for that purpose I shall be at the Hillsboro Bridge Guaranty Savings Bank between the hours of 9 and 12 and 1 and 3 each day the bank is open during the month of May, unless the work is sooner completed.

You are requested to present your deposit book, or to forward the same by mail or otherwise, to me at the bank, at as early a day in May as convenient, if possible during the first two weeks, and so avoid having a personal request sent to you. The book will be immediately returned to you after comparison with the account as kept by the bank.

"LIGHT OF OTHER DAYS" Molly Aiken Chapter, D. A. R., Holds Very Instructive Meeting

The members of Molly Aiken chapter, D.A.R., met Saturday at the home of Mrs. Cora Baker Hunt, Regent. Mrs. Etta Chapman Cochran assisted Mrs. Hunt in entertaining. Music during the afternoon was furnished by Miss Helen Stanley's violatola.

"The Light of Other Days" was the title of a 40-minute paper by Mrs. Hunt. This paper was illustrated with rare and peculiar lighting appliances which were used many years ago. The lighting evolution starting with the pine knot, and including the pewter, glass, china and brass lamps, old fashioned lanterns, etc., was shown. In the collection of old lamps was a Phoebe, which is supposed to be the only lamp of its kind in the State of New Hampshire. It is a very rare specimen and is over 200 years old. It has three burners, extinguisher, hook for cleaning burner and tongs for raising the wick.

In lamps, the whaleoil was shown in many styles. The candelabra, sconce, grindole, and Bayberry candles were shown to illustrate the method of lighting by candle. This portion of the address also included the old fashioned candle moulds, snuffers, etc.

Miss Florence L. Brown sang, and there were quotations by the members on various subjects. The refreshments were shrimp wiggle, stuffed figs, assorted cakes and coffee.

There was a large attendance of the members of the local chapter present to enjoy the meeting which was one of the most interesting held for a long time.

Special Meetings at a Close

The series of special evangelistic services which have been held at the Baptist church for the past three weeks closed on Sunday. In the morning Rev. F. O. Cunningham delivered an address on "Road Building," the application being the making of character. The regular session of the Sunday school was held at noon, and in the afternoon at three o'clock there was a meeting for everybody with a good attendance.

The concluding meeting of the series was held Sunday night and the Baptists were joined by the Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists, who gave up their regular Sunday evening services; nearly 250 were present. Rev. Cunningham gave a very strong address on "Thy Kingdom Come" or "The Second Coming of Christ." Alexander H. Graham, musical director, who has been assisting in the meetings, sang selections and had charge of the combined choirs. Mrs. Fred Thompson played the piano.

It Isn't Your Town—It's You

If you want to live in the kind of a town
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new.
It's a knock at yourself when you knock
Your town.

It isn't the town—it's you!

Real towns are not made by men afraid
Lest somebody else gets ahead.
When everyone works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.
And if while you make your personal stake
Your neighbors can make one, too,
Your town will be what you want to see,
It isn't the town—it's you!

COMING TOWN FAIR

Antrim People as Board of Trade to Hold a Town Fair

A regular meeting of the Antrim Board of Trade was held at Selectmen's room on Monday evening, although not largely attended.

The principle matter of business considered was the coming Town Fair which will be held about the first of September, and will be a one-day exhibition. It is thought best by many that instead of ribbons this year cash prizes will be offered; and the exhibition will be conducted along lines much the same as was the horticultural show which was held here last fall.

It is desired to give to our farmers nearby this early information that they may plan to have something nice to exhibit; the planting time is here and this is the season to prepare for certain things that they would like to have for show. This also applies to those men who would like to exhibit other things beside produce—such as stock, fruit, etc.; and also to ladies who would likely have canned goods of different kinds to compete for prizes. The Board of Trade is planning to have this fair eclipse any previous efforts, and by all concerned putting in a little time in preparation for it, Antrim will have a bigger and better fair than any which has been held here or nearby for many a day. Let everybody "put a shoulder to the wheel and lift."

The Antrim Woman's Club

Met Monday, April 19, in the Club rooms. Parents, teachers and superintendent of schools were especially invited guests, and a large number were present. Especially gratifying was the response by those who live at a distance; the Centre furnishing a splendid delegation of interested parents.

The subject "How Parents Can Help Our Teachers and Our Schools" was discussed from the teacher's standpoint by Miss Peaslee, Miss Linsley and Mr. Brown of the High School staff, while Supt. Kendall presented both sides at a greater length.

Mrs. Edith Muzzey and Miss Mae Harris rendered a piano duet, and there were phonograph selections during the arrival of the guests and interspersed between the addresses.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served.

The next regular meeting will be held May 3.

A State Conference on Art and Music will be held at Peterboro April 29, to which all Club members are cordially invited.

The annual meeting of the State Federation will be held at the Universalist church, Concord, on May 4, 5 and 6. As we are so near by, it is hoped many of our Club members will be interested and make an effort to attend a part of these meetings at least.

An American roofing company, it is stated, instead of bemoaning the hard times, decided last year to increase their advertising appropriation very materially. Result: In the first two months of this year their business gained all the way from 19 to 70 per cent. Not one of the 1000 employes has been laid off a minute and all have received their regular salaries or wages. Here's a tip for other business concerns and even for the hard-pressed Boston & Maine railroad, very aptly remarks the Rochester Courier.

Regarding the Proper Storage of Apples

Editor Reporter:

Are you interested in the storage of apples? If so, here is something worth a little of your time and consideration.

I had the pleasure of sorting J. T. Hanchett's apples last week and they were as fine a lot of apples as one would care to see.

I have picked, sorted, packed and sold a good many car loads of apples and have seen them kept in a good many different kinds of storage, but never saw apples in as good condition as those kept in Mr. Hanchett's storage cellar. It not only preserves the apples, but also preserves the flavor, which is the most important part. As an experiment: we headed up one barrel of baldwins and a barrel of northern spies, and Mr. Hanchett will open them about the first of June, and if they are in good condition then the storage problem is solved for the farmer.

If this appeals to you, just call and see Mr. Hanchett and his storage cellar.

Artesian Well

Arigen S. Seymour of the well known law firm of Huntington, Rhineland and Seymour of New York City, has expressed his entire satisfaction in the splendid drilled artesian well recently finished on his summer estate at Gove Hill, South Stafford, Vt. This well was drilled by the Bay State Artesian Well Co., of Warner and Woodsville, N. H., who feel they have also a right to be pleased with the results, since several years ago a western concern made a small bore test of about 700 feet for Mr. Seymour and reported that it was impossible to get water on that high hill at less than 700 feet depth. Notwithstanding this report, the Bay State Artesian Well Co., made a contract with Mr. Seymour to forfeit $500 from the regular contract price if less than 2000 gallons a day was not procured, at least, 300 feet, and the result was that the pump test at 294 feet revealed about 20,000 gallons a day. In drilling, deep veins of copper were gone through. —Woodsville News.

Postponed B. of T. Meeting

The only feature the Board of Trade has moving at the present time is the Town Fair. Do you want it? If so, you will not kindly be present at an adjourned meeting to be held next MONDAY evening, at 8 o'clock, in Selectmen's room, for the purpose of completing arrangements for that event. This does not mean just those who are members of the Board, but does mean every person—male or female—who desires that a Fair be held here next Fall. Will you not bear this in mind and please to come.

War Bulletins Kaiser Wilhelm himself, is personally directing the 'Teutons' campaign in the Carpathians, although not actually at the front. French aviators, flying 375 miles from their own lines, raided the city of Hamburg and dropped bombs on several barracks, setting them on fire and wounding a number of soldiers, says a dispatch from Denmark. Guided by seaplanes, a French battleship has shelled a Turkish encampment near Gaza, a town in southern Palestine, near the Egyptian border and two miles inland from the Mediterranean. Vienna says that, aside from the repulsing of Russian attacks in the mountains the situation is unchanged. There is little action in Poland. Advances by the Russians along the Carpathian front from Bartfeld to a point east of Uzok Pass, principally in the direction of Guminio, continue, says Petrograd. Ten members of the crew of the Glasgow steamer President, attacked by the German submarine U-4 off Edystone Rocks in the Channel have arrived at Brixham towed by a fishing boat. After having roamed the high seas since August 3, as an auxiliary cruiser of the Kaiser's Navy, the Kronprinz Wilhelm, formerly one of the North German Lloyd's crack transatlantic liners, steamed into the harbor at Newport News. The Russians having reached the southern slope of the Carpathians, defended their recently gained positions against persistent and violent attempts by the Germans and Austrians to throw them back upon the summits of the range.

Washington Rear Admiral Pond, in command of the naval defense district of the Pacific, was named by Secretary Daniels to take command of the Pacific reserve fleet at Pudget Sound. The Navy Department received a note of regret over the accident to the submarine F-4, from Captain K. Boy, Ed, naval attaché at the German Embassy.

The Riggs National Bank of Washington, allied with the National City Bank of New York, has appealed to the courts for an injunction to protect it from the alleged malice of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams. NEWS OF THE GRANITE STATE

Items of Interest Gleaned From All Parts of the State. WILL RETURN TO FAMILY Greek Will be Brought to Manchester With 15-Year-Old Girl With Whom He Eloped—Other News.

Manchester—Peter Frangos, who left this city and his family some time ago, is expected to return under conditions which will make it unpleasing to Peter Frangos, who has been in business with another Greek, and when he left town it was found that his partner's attractive daughter was also missing. The girl is only 15, but would pass for much older, and it was found that Peter called for her at the mill where she was employed and the two left town together. It was further discovered that the man had been on intimate terms with the girl for some time, notwithstanding that he was married. Through the efforts of the police and the sheriff's office the pair have been located in another state, where they are now under police surveillance, and in the near future will be returned here under conditions specially unpleasant for Peter. Dr. Bancroft Reinstated. Concord—At a special meeting of the Board of Control Thursday evening Dr. Charles P. Bancroft was reinstated as superintendent of the state hospital. The board is constituted just as it was when Dr. Bancroft was discharged, with the exception that Governor Spaulding is now a member in place of former Governor Felker. Dr. Bancroft was nominated by the governor, and although there was a spirited discussion there was no formal vote. Dr. Bancroft is now in California, and an effort will be made to reach him and inform him of his reinstatement. He Will Not Call for the Watch. Portsmouth—When Major David Urch visited a building owned by the Newcastle Bridge company one day last week he found that it had been entered and ransacked. Further investigation revealed the fact that while nothing of great value had been taken the burglar had left a valuable gold watch and chain behind him. The watch was running and absolutely correct as to time. The major invites the owner to call and prove property. He feels quite sure, however, that the burglar will not call.

Russian Claims to Have Lost Good Roll. Portsmouth—Three Russians arrived here by train from North Conway one day last week, and one of them claimed that on the way down he had lost his roll containing $182. The three had been employed in a lumber camp and had got paid off just before starting. The Russian who lost the money could not speak English, but through an interpreter told the police that no one had been near him on the way down but his two companions. Upon being searched one had $25 and the other $27. The loss of the money is unexplained. Lucky Stones Did Not Work. Plymouth—At a trial of a Boston man for selling "lucky stones" and using the mails to defraud, Albert Smith of this town was one of the witnesses. He testified he had bought two. He lost the first one almost immediately and bought another. He said that he did so because he thought the first one had not time to penetrate his system, and he wanted to be lucky in playing penny ante. He testified that he had dropped $2 and did not think the stone had the properties claimed for it. Both Arms Crushed. Concord—While Charles Tardiff was operating a steam hammer at the railroad shops one day last week it came down unexpectedly, crushing both arms. One was injured from wrist to shoulder, and it was at first thought that amputation would be necessary, but after his removal to the hospital it was decided to delay the operation a day or two in the hope it might be eased. Man Falls from Staging. Laconia—While working on a staging one day last week George Biron lost his balance and fell to the ground, a distance of 15 feet. He struck upon his head and suffered a slight fracture of the skull, together with many bruises and cuts. He was removed to his home, and his condition has showed such improvement that his recovery is expected. Woman Falls Down Stairs. West Concord—Mrs. Jennie Flanders was seriously injured one day last week by falling down a flight of stairs in the Kelley block. One ankle was broken, the other sprained, and she received numerous cuts and bruises. Ice Out of the Lake. Walshe—The ice is practically out of Lake Winnepesaukee, and it will be entirely clear before these lines are read.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LEGISLATURE

Business Starts With a Rush, but Change Follows RAILROAD MEASURE'S LEAD Governor Spaulding Appears Before the Legislature—The Boston & Maine Bill is Defeated 161 to 129.

Concord, April 19, 1915. The legislature came together last week with all the ardor of a lot of school boys attending the first game of ball, and after some of the house leaders had dangled the hope of a final adjournment before the eyes of the members they tackled the business of the day with the gusto of a man at his first meal after a long fast. The house had five special orders for the day, and these were expeditiously disposed of. The first was the Swanzy voting precinct bill which had caused a lot of discussion, and had come over from the previous week. It was voted to a third reading. Then the Concord & Montreal railroad bill, known as the Eastman bill, came up as the next special order, and the house made hardily a mouthful of it. It was on its second reading, and without discussion was passed under a suspension of the rules. The next in order was the corrupt practices bill as amended by the senate. It was found that all the internal organs had been taken out and a new set substituted, and not only this, a whole lot of teeth were found missing. It was moved to concur in the senate amendments, but this would not go down, and a committee of conference was ordered. The next special order was the bill relating to the killing of dogs, amending the present law so to make it less drastic. It did not go very far with the farmer members, and dogs interfering with poultry or sheep will be in the same danger from a charge of buckshot as heretofore. The next special order related to foreign insurance companies which was reported from the senate with amendment. Representative Pender of Portsmouth and one or two others kicked up quite a dust regarding it, but a big majority favored concurrence, and this was disposed of. Not satisfied with this the house reached over into Wednesday and brought out the special order for Dartmouth College. The question was on an amendment to cut the appropriation from $20,000 to $10,000, and it was adopted with but slight discussion. It was well past eleven o'clock when the recess was taken and John E. Benton of the public service commission explained the railroad bill and said the commission approved it. Others who favored the bill were Gen. E. G. Eastman, who represented the Boston & Maine, Allen Hollis representing the Boston & Lowell, George F. Morris for the Concord and Montreal, while E. C. Niles of the public service commission and Samuel C. Eastman urged its passage. In opposition were Conrad W. Croker representing the Lawrence interest in the Boston & Maine, Clarence E. Carr and Judge Remick, trustees of the John H. Pearson stock. Judge Remick made a vigorous and impassioned speech against the bill, and at the expiration of his time was given ten minutes more. Not having finished, it was voted to give him what time he needed to conclude his remarks. It was evident when the recess closed that a large majority of the members were opposed to the bill. Governor Spaulding appeared in the hall and made a statement favoring the bill, and upon his retirement there were repeated calls for a vote and a scene of great confusion. The house soon came together in afternoon session, but its appetite for business was spoiled, and after passing a joint resolution in aid of agricultural fairs, another to encourage sheep raising and a few unimportant bills, it adjourned. The railroad bill was made a special order from Thursday at thirty seconds past eleven, this being done in order to give it precedence over a special order at 11:01. It was nearly noon when it was reached, however, and the flood gates of oratory again opened for and against the measure. Wednesday night the friends of the bill admitted its overwhelming defeat, but as the discussion progressed the bill seemed to gain friends, and when a vote was reached at three o'clock it stood 161 to 129 against it. There was another scene of confusion and Speaker Morrill, who is acting during the illness of Speaker Chase, adjourned the house. All hope of an adjournment faded, and the members hurried to the trains, leaving Friday, as usual, a day without a quorum. This practically closed the most exciting week of the session, with the assurance that the judiciary committee would report another Boston & Maine railroad bill for this week. It is hoped that a final adjournment can be effected Wednesday night, but no one feels absolutely confident that such will be the case.

Lydia flinched, she knew not why. There was a sting to the words, despite the languidness with which they were uttered.

Risking more than she suspected, she said: "He never considers the cost of a thing, Mrs. Brood, if its beauty appeals to him."

"How old are you, Miss Desmond?" The question came abruptly. "I am nineteen."

"You were surprised to find me so young. Will it add to your surprise if I tell you that I am ten years older than you?"

"There! I am a nasty, horrid thing. Forgive me. Come! Don't be stubborn. Shake hands with me and say that you're sorry I said what I did."

"It's—it's very good of you," she murmured, her own eyes softening as they looked into the deep, velvety ones that would not be denied.

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Brood, calmly, almost indifferently, and dismissed the subject. "What an amazing room! One can almost feel the presence of the genie that created it at the wish of the man with the enchanted lamp."

"It was worth a fortune," said Lydia. A calculating squint had come into Mrs. Brood's eyes while she was speaking. To Lydia it appeared as if she were trying to fix upon the value of the wonderful carpet.

"The collector you refer to—" "I was referring to my husband," said Mrs. Brood, unabashed. "He is very rich, isn't he?"

Lydia managed to conceal her annoyance. "I think not, as American fortunes are rated."

"It doesn't matter," said the other, carelessly. "I have my own fortune. And it is not my face," she added, with a quick smile. "Now let us look further. I must see all these wonderful things. We will not be missed, and it is still half an hour till tea-time. My husband is now telling his son all that I am to be told about me—came to marry him, but—the other way 'round. It's the way with men past middle age."

Lydia hesitated before speaking. "Mr. Brood does not confide in Frederick. I am afraid they have but little in common. Oh, I shouldn't have said that!"

"I'm sorry I spoke as I did, Mrs. Brood," said the girl, annoyed at herself. "Is there a reason why he should dislike his son?" asked the other, regarding her fixedly.

"Of course not," cried poor Lydia. "There was a moment of sympathy. 'Some day, Lydia, you will tell me about Mr. Brood's other wife.'"

"She died many years ago," said the girl, evasively. "I know," said Mrs. Brood. "Still I should like to hear more of the woman he could not forget in all those years—until he met me."

Great lanterns hung suspended beside the shrine, but were now unlighted. On the table at which Brood professed to work stood a huge lamp with a lacelike screen of gold.

Over all this fairylike splendor reigned the serene, melting influence of the god to whom James Brood was wont to confess himself! The spell of the golden image dominated everything.

In the midst of the magnificence moved the two women, one absurdly out of touch with her surroundings, yet a thing of beauty; the other blending intimately with the warm tones that enveloped her. She was lithe, sinuous with the grace of the most seductive of dancers.

The girl could no more withstand the electric charm of the woman than she could have fought off the sunshine. She was bewildered, and completely fascinated.

"It's—it's very good of you," she murmured, her own eyes softening as they looked into the deep, velvety ones that would not be denied.

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Brood, calmly, almost indifferently, and dismissed the subject. "What an amazing room! One can almost feel the presence of the genie that created it at the wish of the man with the enchanted lamp."

"It was worth a fortune," said Lydia. A calculating squint had come into Mrs. Brood's eyes while she was speaking. To Lydia it appeared as if she were trying to fix upon the value of the wonderful carpet.

"The collector you refer to—" "I was referring to my husband," said Mrs. Brood, unabashed. "He is very rich, isn't he?"

Lydia managed to conceal her annoyance. "I think not, as American fortunes are rated."

"It doesn't matter," said the other, carelessly. "I have my own fortune. And it is not my face," she added, with a quick smile. "Now let us look further. I must see all these wonderful things. We will not be missed, and it is still half an hour till tea-time. My husband is now telling his son all that I am to be told about me—she dropped the curtains. The soft warm glow of the room came back and she sighed with relief. "I hate things that are dead," she said.

At the sound of a soft tread and the gentle rustle of draperies, they turned. Ranjab, the Hindu, was crossing the room toward the small door which gave entrance to his closet. He paused for an instant before the image of Buddha, but did not drop to his knees as all devout Buddhists do.

"I do not like that man," said Mrs. Brood. Her voice was low and her eyes were fixed steadily on the closed door.

CHAPTER V.

Husband and Wife.

The ensuing fortnight brought the expected changes in the household. James Brood, to the surprise of not only himself but others, lapsed into a curious state of adolescence. His infatuation was complete.

It pleased him to submit to Yvonne's commands. Not that they were arduous or peremptory on the contrary, they were suggestions in which his own comfort and pleasure appeared to be the inspiration.

There were no false notions of sentiment to restrain or restrict her in the rearrangement of her household. She went about the matter calmly, sensibly, firmly; even the most prejudiced could not but feel the justice of her decisions.

To begin with, she miraculously transferred the sleeping quarters of Messrs. Dawes and Riggs from the second floor front to the third floor back without arousing the slightest sign of antagonism on the part of the crusty old gentlemen, who had occupied one of the choice rooms in the house with uninterrupted security for a matter of nine or ten years.

They had been betrayed by the wife of their bosom friend. It is small cause for wonder, then, that the poor gentlemen as manfully turned back to the tippie and got gloriously, gurgulously drunk in the middle of the afternoon and also in the middle of the library, where tea was to have been served to a few friends asked in to meet the bride?

The next morning a fresh edict was issued. It came from James Brood and it was so staggering that the poor gentlemen were loath to believe their ears. As a result of this new command, they began to speak of Mrs. Brood in the privacy of their own room as "that woman." Of course it was entirely due to her mischievous, malevolent influence that a spineless husband put forth the order that they were to have nothing more to drink while they remained in his house.

He loved them and he knew that their pride was injured a great deal more than their appetite. In its modified form, the edict allowed them a small drink in the morning and another at bedtime, but Jones, the butler, held the key to the situation and—the sideboard. And after that they looked upon Mrs. Brood as the common enemy of all three.

The case of Mrs. John Desmond was disposed of in a summary but tactful manner. "If Mrs. Desmond is willing to remain, James, as housekeeper instead of friend, all well and good," said Mrs. Brood, discussing the matter in the seclusion of her boudoir.

She looked at him darkly. There was something in her eyes that caused him to shift his own steady gaze uncomfortably. He could not have explained what it was, but it gave him a curiously uneasy feeling, as of impending peril. It was unlike the queer, inexplicable though definite sensing of danger that more than once he had experienced in the silent, tranquil depths of great forests.

"I wonder what could have happened to make you so bitter toward her," she went on, still watching him through half closed eyes.

"One can be lonely even in the heart of a throng," she said cryptically. "No, James, I will not have him sent away."

He was silent for a moment. "We will leave it to Frederick," he said. Her face brightened. "That is all I ask. He will stay."

"I should like to have Mrs. Desmond as my friend, not as my housekeeper," said his wife simply.

"There is but one way, you know," "She must be one or the other, eh?" "Precisely," she said with firmness.

"I am quite competent, James," she said brightly. "You will not miss her, I am sure."

"I love you, Yvonne—Good God, how I love you!" he cried abruptly. His eyes burnt with sudden flame of passion as he bent over her.

"I suppose it is only natural that you should inquire," he said resignedly. "Of my servants," she added pointedly.

"I flushed slightly. 'I dare say I deserve the rebuke. It will not be necessary to pursue that line of inquiry, however. I shall tell you the story myself some day, Yvonne. Will you not bear with me?'"

"Who is to tell me the wife's side of the story?" The question was like a blow to him. He stared at her as if he had not heard aright. Before he could speak, she went on coolly:

"I dare say there are two sides to it, James. It's usually the case." "He winced. 'There is but one side to this one,' he said, a harsh note in his voice."

"That is why I began my inquiries with Mrs. Desmond," she said enigmatically. "But I shan't pursue them any farther. You love me, that is all I care to know—or that I require."

"I do love you," he said, almost imploringly. She stroked his gaunt cheek. "Then we may let the other woman—go hang, eh?"

He felt the cold sweat start on his brow. Her callous remark slashed his finer sensibilities like the thrust of a dagger. He tried to laugh, but only succeeded in producing a painful grimace.

"And now," she went on, as if the matter were fully disposed of, "we will discuss something tangible, eh? Frederick."

"Yes," said he, rather dazedly. "Frederick." "I am very, very fond of your son, James," she said. "How proud you must be to have such a son."

"I am surprised at your liking him, Yvonne. He is what I'd call a difficult young man."

"I haven't found him difficult." "Morbid and unresponsive." "Not by nature, however. There is a joyousness, a light-heartedness in his character that has never got beyond the surface until now, James."

"He has wanted to go abroad for years. This is a convenient time for him to go."

"But I am quite sure he will not care to go at present—not for awhile, at least."

"I should like to have Mrs. Desmond as my friend, not as my housekeeper," said his wife simply.

"There is but one way, you know," "She must be one or the other, eh?" "Precisely," she said with firmness.

"I am quite competent, James," she said brightly. "You will not miss her, I am sure."

ANOTHER VARIETY OF SHARK

Theatrical Manager Had Many of the Human Species, But Could Make Room for Others.

George F. Kerr, manager of the new Broadway Rose Gardens theater, and Danse de Pierrette, was called to the telephone the other day.

"This is Captain Williamson, the fellow who made 'At the Bottom of the Ocean' picture," came in stentorian tones over the wire. "I've just received a couple of sharks that figured in the picture, and I'm going to send them on to you. Are you fixed to take care of them?"

"I've got a pretty complete line of sharks now," groaned Kerr, as he tossed a helpless glance at the waiting army of supply salesmen, contractors and things always to be found swarming about a theater in process of construction. "Still, you better tell me all about these two fellows, and I'll try to look after them."

The recruits proved to be two stuffed specimens of the man-eaters the picture actors struggled with in making "At the Bottom of the Ocean." They are to be accorded positions of honor in the lobby of the theater.—New York Herald.

YOUR attention is respectfully called to an important point not generally known, that a laxative should have a tonic element to successfully meet constipation.

Mr. John B. Capers, of 610 Pecan St., Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a good deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment Peruna very quickly relieved him of his bad 23 m p o m s.

This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had similar attacks of trouble, the prompt relief symptom of which is constipation, and has always found prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the fountain syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna, added to the laxative qualities, that procured this very desirable result.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Take Honeymoon Trip on a Chicago Street Car

CHICAGO.—Car No. 2203 of the Chicago Surface Lines sang a song of happiness the other day as it poked its tender into unfrequented territory, seeking the way to the State of Matrimony. It sang with its wheels as the miles of track spun out behind them—sang because of the burden within its strapping sides—the most unique burden ever carried by any street car in Chicago.

There was a girl in a satin wedding dress—a girl whose eyes were glad, and who nestled close to a good-looking man in his best attire. And there were other girls in white, who held bouquets of pink roses in their laps, and who sang songs in a foreign tongue. There were many others inside Car No. 2203, friends of the girl in the wedding gown and the man who clasped her hand. They were dressed, some of them, in costumes of another nation than America, in red and yellow and blue and green. There were decorations of all kinds in the car, flowers and ribbons and signs and placards, and here and there a suspended wedding bell. It was a long way—from South Chicago—and the car had never been in the loop. It whizzed its way in South Chicago avenue to Cottage Grove and thence downtown, and then it crept across the river and continued north in Milwaukee avenue. It found the State of Matrimony at St. George's church, Milwaukee avenue and Robey street. And there it discharged its passengers, and the girl in the wedding dress and the man in his best attire were married. They were Eli Dianozich and Johanna Uzelac, both of 10722 Torrence avenue. They had come all the way to be married by a Serbian priest—the only Serbian Catholic priest in Chicago. Both the bride and her husband are of that nationality, and the woman had insisted she must be married by a priest of their own people. It would cost $200 to escort them all—bridesmaids, best men, ushers, relatives and friends, but the street car did the job for much less—and more satisfactorily, everybody said.

WHO IS WHO NOW

QUITS WHILE STILL POPULAR

"I have never had a great deal of personal ambition except perhaps my desire to make the best I could out of public life, and to retire while the tide of my popularity in my district was at its height. I am gratifying that ambition now."

So spoke James T. Lloyd, who for 20 years has represented the First district of Missouri in congress, and thereupon he announced that at the end of his term, on March 4, 1917, he would retire from political life. The step was entirely a voluntary one, as the fact that he received the biggest majority of his career at the last election will verify, and there are hints that his admirers will insist on putting him up for a higher position than he has held.

Although he is nearing the three score mark in age, James T. Lloyd is vigorous and hearty and looks forward with a keen kind of pleasure to his prospect of returning to the walks of business life, as is his present intention. He is a native of Shelbyville, and a graduate of Christian university at Canton. The early years of his life were spent in teaching school and in the practice of law. He was prosecuting attorney of Lewis county from 1889 to 1893.

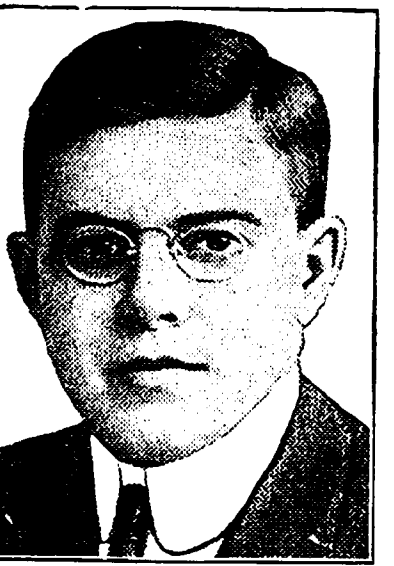

DECORATED BY KING ALBERT

Mlle. Jeanne Perichon, a blue-eyed girl of twenty-three years, has the distinction of being the only woman whom King Albert of Belgium has decorated with the military order of Leopold, and the medal was pinned on her bosom for conspicuous bravery which has seldom been equaled even by members of the stronger sex.

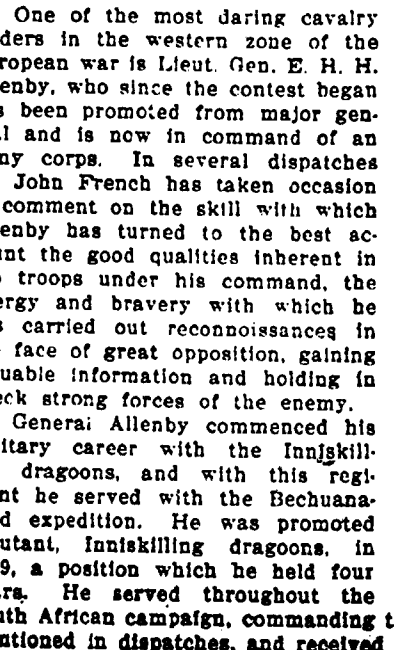

Mlle. Jeanne is a Red Cross nurse who has actually done work in the trenches at the front. She felt she could accomplish more good there by administering first aid to the wounded than by simply doing her regular duties in some field hospital, and by special permission she was permitted to go with the surgeons to the battle lines. She is in America as the secretary of the Countess L. de Hemptinne, to aid in her appeal to Americans for help in rebuilding Belgium. "Jeanne has seen actual fighting in towns that were sacked and fired," the countess explains. "She was at Fort Waelhem, Antwerp, during the siege, and for two weeks she lived with the soldiers in the trenches east of Furnes, until her health broke down. She was taken with fever and had to be carried off to London, from where she accompanied me here because she thought she could help by collecting funds."

SANDUSKY IS PROUD OF HIM

Dr. Walter F. Rittman of the United States bureau of mines, who has developed a process whereby much of the waste in deriving gasoline from crude oil may be eliminated, and another for the extraction of toluol and benzol, used to make dyes and explosives, also from crude oil, went home to visit his parents in Sandusky, O., and received an ovation from his admiring fellow townsmen. In Sandusky Doctor Rittman is looked on as a second Thomas A. Edison.

DARING CAVALRY LEADER

One of the most daring cavalry leaders in the western zone of the European war is Lieut. Gen. E. H. H. Allenby, who since the contest began has been promoted from major general and is now in command of an army corps. In several dispatches Sir John French has taken occasion to comment on the skill with which Allenby has turned to the best account the good qualities inherent in the troops under his command, the energy and bravery with which he has carried out reconnaissance in the face of great opposition, gaining valuable information and holding in check strong forces of the enemy. General Allenby commenced his military career with the Inniskilling dragoons, and with this regiment he served with the Bechuana-land expedition. He was promoted adjutant, Inniskilling dragoons, in 1889, a position which he held four years. He served throughout the South African campaign, commanding the Fourth cavalry brigade, was twice mentioned in dispatches, and received the Companionship of the Bath.

POULTRY FACTS

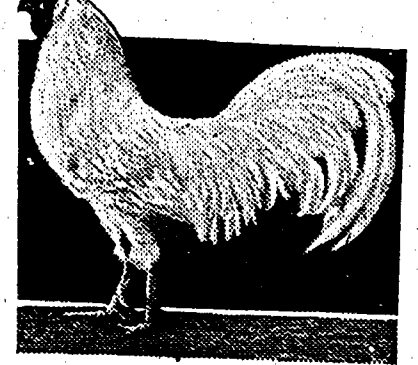

WHITE LEGHORNS ARE BEST

Pullet is Quickly Brought to Maturity and Soon Starts Laying—White Eggs in Demand.

"Why are White Leghorns good birds to own?" I would say, that, profit being the aim of the commercial poultryman, the well-bred White Leghorn of good laying strain seems best to meet his need.

The Leghorn pullet is quickly brought to maturity, and if of good strain quickly goes to work for her owner. To be sure, if she is hatched very early she may molt slightly, but she will have laid pretty nearly enough eggs to pay for herself by the time the molt comes, and with proper care she is laying again in a few weeks.

White eggs bring the highest price and are in growing demand. That is a big factor in favor of the Leghorn, writes Temple Smith of Eglantine Farms, Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia Ledger.

We have trap-nest records showing quite a number of our birds laying a hundred, or more than a hundred eggs, within twelve months from date of being hatched. I recall one that laid her one hundredth egg the day she was eleven months old. Such birds are pretty safely and well in the 200-egg class.

Please do not take me as saying that any large flock of layers averages 200 eggs. Nor are all Leghorns even good layers. With Leghorns as with any pure breed, the result depends quite as much on the strain as on the breed, but all the eggs a Leghorn lays are white, hence worth most. So the Leghorn would still lead. Much, too, depends on comfortable housing and proper feeding and attention, whatever breed is kept.

YOUNG CHICKS NEED WARMTH

Utmost Care Should Be Exercised to See That Little Fellows Do Not Get Chilled.

Some incubators have a space around the egg tray for the purpose of letting the newly hatched chicks drop into it, off the tray. If we had an incubator of this kind, we would stuff the opening with flannel rags, or newspapers crushed lightly and arranged to permit circulation of air, and keep the chicks on the warm tray until ready to remove them, says a writer in an exchange. If it becomes overcrowded, better take out the thoroughly dry, first-hatched chicks, into a flannel-lined, warm basket, and close the door quickly.

There is a difference of from five to nine degrees in temperature between the tray and the floor of the nursery. In some machines the floor has openings for ventilation.

Imagine a wet chick tumbling down from a temperature of 103 to 105 degrees, into one of from 90 to 95 degrees. It will shuff out and apparently be all right; but nine times out of ten it will die before the tenth day.

Babies and chicks need warmth; flannel for the chicks is about as necessary as for the babies.

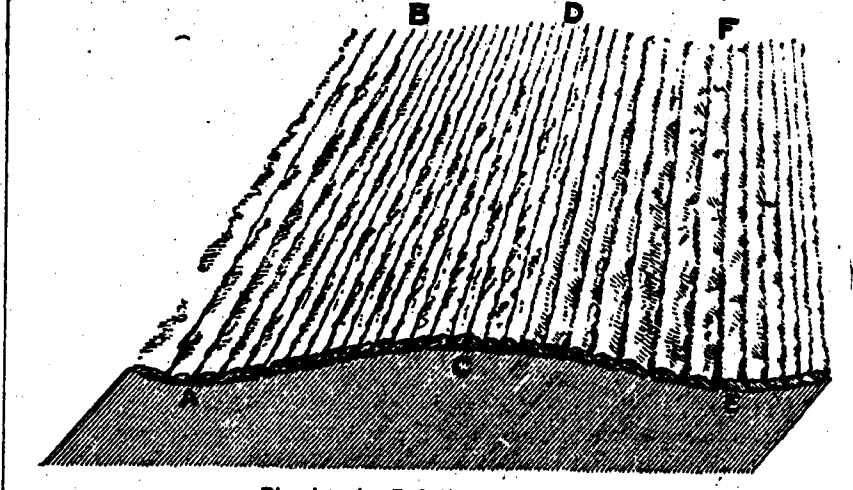

TUBERCULOSIS IN OLD FOWLS

More Likely to Be Affected by Disease Than Young Stock—Make Two Years the Age Limit.

It is found at the North Dakota station, that old chickens are more likely to be affected by tuberculosis than young stock. This is fowl consumption, the disease sometimes called "going light."

Old birds should not be kept anyway. It is recommended that such stock be killed off and only young stock kept, two years being the age limit. The disease spreads faster among poultry kept in poorly lighted and poorly ventilated houses, as is the case with human beings.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS ABOUT PLOWING

Plowing in Relation to Drainage.

(By O. M. OLSON.)

The depth at which land should be plowed depends much upon the season of the year, the kind of soil and the physical condition of the subsoil. Fall plowing, except for fall-grown grain, should invariably be deeper than spring plowing, as there is more time for it to become sufficiently settled and compacted. Whenever land is plowed quite deeply, and the climatic conditions do not thoroughly settle the furrows, it should be thoroughly worked before it is planted.

Heavy soils need to be plowed deeper than the lighter types of soils. Such soils usually have quite compact subsoils, and they are benefited by being brought to the surface. It is also a benefit to heavy soils to bury the vegetable matter at a good depth, as this will assist in keeping the subsoil from becoming too compact.

Lighter soils are very much the opposite. Their subsoils are usually not too compact, and it is better to have the vegetable matter mixed with the surface soil. Deep plowing of such soils has a tendency to make them too loose, and care should be taken to thoroughly compact them before they are planted to crops.

Plowing land continuously at the same depth every time has a tendency to form a hard, compact layer in the subsoil at that depth. This is an undesirable condition, and can usually be avoided by varying the depth slightly from year to year. New land, when first brought under the plow, should not be plowed too deeply. While it may be desirable to ultimately have a furrow six or seven inches in depth, it should be brought about gradually, by plowing a half-inch or so deeper every year.

A method of draining fields which has proved satisfactory and inexpensive, is ridging the land while plowing. The plow is started in the middle where two furrows are plowed against each other. By turning the horses to the right when making the turns at C and D, the dead furrows will be located at A and B and E and F. By continuing this system a series of years, the ditches are made deeper year by year. No ridge is formed on the sides of the ditch. By commencing to plow in this way, and by varying the back furrows one year a little to the right of C and D, and another year a little to the left, the dead furrows will be made broad rather than deep, making the fields gently undulate instead of being cut up by deep ditches and narrow high ridges.

BEST FARM BUILDINGS

Too Little Thought and Study Given to Details.

Not Generally Understood That Circular Structure is Much Stronger Than Rectangular Form—Cost of Material is Less.

(By W. J. FRAZER.)

The planning, construction, and arrangement of farm buildings do not usually receive the thought and study these subjects warrant. How many dairymen have compared a circular, 40-cow barn with the common rectangular building containing the same area? How many understand that the circular structure is much the stronger; that the rectangular form requires 22 per cent more wall and foundation to enclose the same space; and that the cost of material is from 34 to 58 per cent more for the rectangular building?

In a community in which everyone is engaged in the same occupation, one person is likely to copy from his neighbor without apparently giving a thought as to whether or not there is a better way.

In comparing a 60-foot round barn with a rectangular barn of the same area, the two barns should afford the cows the same amount of space on the platform. Allowing each cow in the 60-foot round barn three feet six inches in width at the rear of the platform, it will accommodate 40 cows and leave space for two passageways. But in a rectangular barn, only three feet four inches of platform space need be allowed for each cow, and the 78 1/2-

TAKE CARE OF THE MANURE

Shallow Concrete Pit Affords Practical Means of Taking Care of Soil Fertilizer.

The shallow concrete manure pit out of doors is a practical means of taking care of manure and is to be recommended.

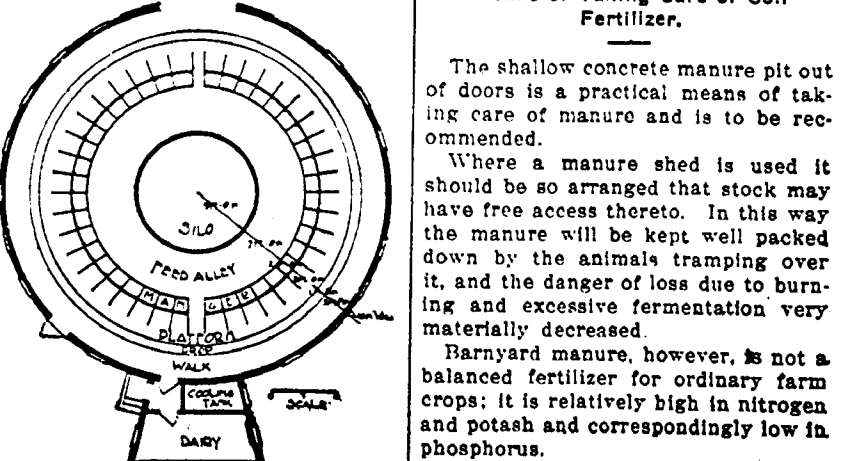

Where a manure shed is used it should be so arranged that stock may have free access thereto. In this way the manure will be kept well packed down by the animals tramping over it, and the danger of loss due to burning and excessive fermentation very materially decreased.

Barnyard manure, however, is not a balanced fertilizer for ordinary farm crops; it is relatively high in nitrogen and potash and correspondingly low in phosphorus.

Experiments conducted by the Indiana station show that most clay soils of the state are deficient in that same element, phosphorus. By adding some phosphatic material to the manure as it is produced, we are able, not only to supply the lacking element, phosphorus, but also to fix the nitrogen, to some extent, and thus prevent its escape in the form of ammonia gas.

Maintenance of Sows. In the maintenance of the brood-sows we have our best opportunity to make use of pasturage, waste feeds, fallen fruits, etc. Not that these things are sufficient, but because roughage, range, bulk, succulence and variety are good for the sows.

Work Together Nicely. The hog and the dairy cow work nicely together.

Showing How This 60-Foot Barn May Be Arranged to Accommodate 40 Cows in Stalls—To Supply This Sized Herd and the Necessary Young Stock With Silage for Eight Months Would Require a 370-Ton Silo, or One 18 Feet in Diameter and 56 Feet Deep; With a Seven-Foot Feed Alley and a 2 1/2-Foot Manger, the Circle at the Stanchions Would Be 38 Feet in Diameter, or 119 1/3 Feet in Circumference; Allowing 4 1/2 feet for Two Passage Ways, the Stalls Would Be 2 Feet 10 1/2 inches Wide at the Stanchion, and 3 Feet 6 inches at the Drop.

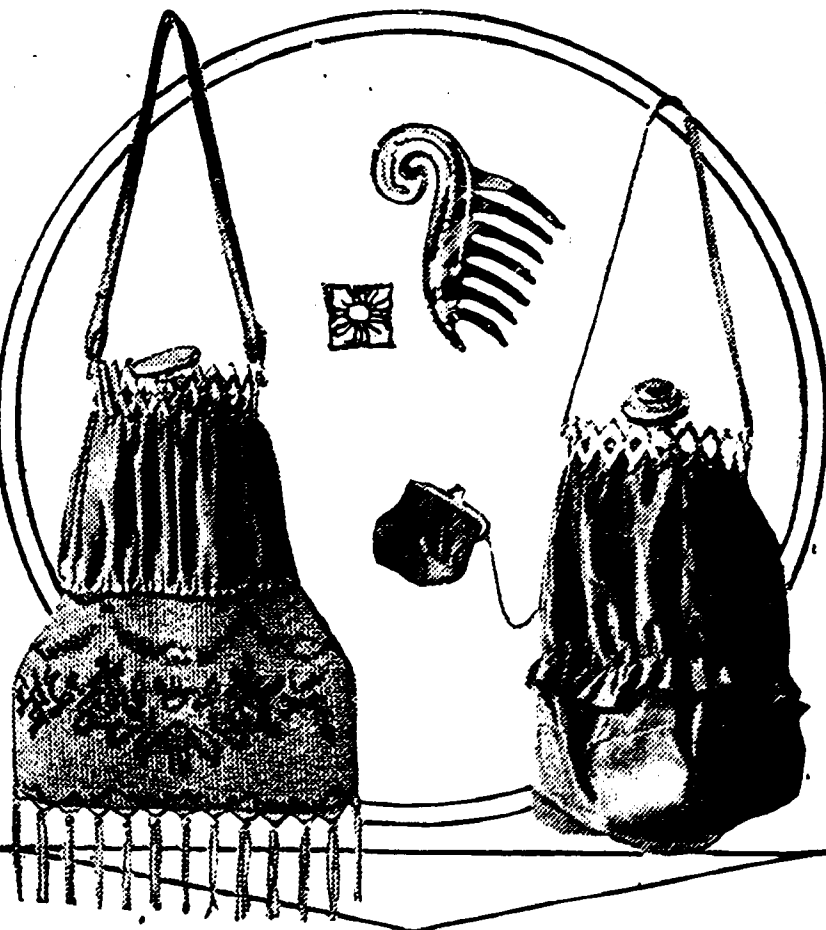

Miss Stonehouse in Leghorn Picture Hat

Miss Stonehouse, whose high-bred type of beauty carries off the splendid things in clothes, seems fitted to masquerade as silken-robed princesses and queens pictured in romances of long ago. The strenuous life of the moving picture actress is not reflected in the calm eyes and serene brow that the "fans" know so well in this actress of the silent drama.

tilly lace outlines the flange of leg-horn where it is set on to the chignon, and the underbrim is faced with chiffon which allows the black lace to show through. The round crown is set on the brim without a band. A beautiful wreath of moss roses and buds and an occasional huge pansy blossom make up the decoration of the crown. They are wonderful copies of the natural flowers. A bow of wide velvet ribbon with long hanging ends is tacked against the underbrim at the back. A spray of the moss rose buds and a single pansy make up a bouquet that is sewed to the long ends of velvet about midway of their length.

Novelties in Dress Accessories

New shopping bags fancier than those of leather, and new combs in odd shapes are among the latest of novelties in accessories of dress that are alluringly displayed in the shops. In the picture given here two of these bags are shown, together with a comb. The bags are mounted on the new clasp, which has been christened the "Panama Gate." It spreads when pulled out to open the mouth of the bag, and when pressed to close it fits under a cap of metal.

gunmetal. The bag is suspended by a handsome silk cord. The gold-colored bag has handles made of folds of the silk run through small gilt slides. The comb is an excellent imitation of tortoise shell in a composition of celluloid. The curved teeth are set on to a back which is scroll-like in shape and set with small rhinestones. The shape of the scroll has given the comb its name. It is ambitiously called "The Eternal Question." It is cleverly curved both in the back and the teeth to fit well to the head and is intended to be worn with the new long roll in which the hair is arranged at the back and over the top of the head.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY,

An Every-Day Gown.

A pretty little "every-day" gown is of mouse-colored cloth trimmed with graduated bands of deep sapphire velvet; it has the yoked skirt and full hem of today, and a quaint high belt, also an exceedingly pretty high collar, in striped mauve and sapphire tulle and satin.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A great man or woman is he or she who works cheerfully and merrily, rests cheerfully and merrily and does not slumber in the tents of "the good old times."

SANDWICHES AND SALADS FOR EVENING PARTIES.

A most attractive cabbage salad is made as follows: Mix together finely shredded cabbage and green peppers and olives. Chop the olives and remove the seeds and tough white portion from the peppers. Moisten with a rich mayonnaise dressing and fill lemon cups with the mixture. Place each on a small plate, covered with a dolly.

A most delicious salad and one easy to prepare is crisp fresh lettuce dressed with a French dressing to which has been added a teaspoonful of tomato catchup, a tablespoonful of chopped green pepper, a teaspoonful of minced parsley and a tablespoonful of chopped onion. Shake or beat well with a Dover eggbeater, and serve very cold. The dressing is best passed as the oil and vinegar wilts the lettuce very soon.

Mock Crab Sandwiches.—Take a quarter of a cupful of grated cheese, a pinch of mustard and pepper, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of anchovy paste, a tablespoonful of chopped olives, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of creamed butter. Spread on buttered bread after blending well.

Fig Paste for Sandwiches.—Cut three-quarters of a pound of figs into small pieces, add the same amount of brown sugar, a quarter of a pound of seeded raisins, a cupful of water and the juice of half a lemon. Stew on the back of the stove until very soft, remove and add a tablespoonful of vanilla. Put all through the meat grinder and to clean the grinder finish with three or four crackers which may be added to the paste. This will keep if packed in jars indefinitely and is delicious as a sandwich filling for any kind of bread or crackers. Used with two kinds of bread, the slices pressed together and then cut like cake makes a most attractive sandwich.

Cocoanut Sandwiches.—Take a cupful of freshly grated cocoanut, a half cupful of chopped almonds, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, two teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar and three tablespoonfuls of thick cream. Spread this on wafers or buttered bread few shredded almonds; cover a box of gelatin with a half pint of cold water and let soak for half an hour. Add to it a cupful of sugar and a quart of boiling water; stir until dissolved; add juice of two lemons and one orange and two teaspoonfuls of caramel. Strain into a mold over the fruit and set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream garnished with candied pineapple.

Teach me to dilute my work with play, to brighten my seriousness with jest and never to take myself so seriously that I crowd out of my life the joys and pleasures that by heritage are mine.

MEATLESS SOUPS.

The oyster plant is now in season and makes a most delicious soup. Cut the salsify into thin slices after scraping well. Cover with a quart of water, to 12 good-sized roots. Cook gently for an hour until the plant is tender; add a quart of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter and salt and pepper. Serve with oyster crackers.

The roots are so discoloring to the hands that the fingers should be well wrapped while preparing. Rubber gloves are best, but a cloth wrapped around the fingers exposed will do very well.

Clear Tomato Soup.—Add a pint of water to a quart of stewed tomatoes. Add a slice of onion, a half a bay leaf, a dash of celery salt and a few celery tops, a teaspoonful of salt, a chopped green pepper. Cook together for 15 minutes, put through a sieve, add two tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter rubbed together, or cornstarch will make a clearer soup. Cook until the starch is well cooked. Serve with squares of toasted bread.

Cream of Potato Soup.—This is a soup that should be better known, is an economical and wholly satisfying one. Pare three medium-sized potatoes; cover them with boiling water; boil five minutes, drain and throw away the water. Cover with a pint of boiling water; add a slice of onion, a bit of celery and a bay leaf. Cover and cook slowly until the potatoes are tender. Put through a sieve, add a quart of milk, two teaspoonfuls each of butter and flour, rubbed together; salt and pepper to season. Reheat and serve piping hot.

Who hopes the wet goes forth with fish-head bare And to the open blue he lifts his face And cries "All good of earth or sea or air Is mine by boundless largeness of God's grace."

FRUITS FOR CHILDREN'S PARTIES

As fruit is one of the safe things to give children in right quantities and good condition, they lend themselves to many delightful variations. If one wishes to serve a jelly for a child's party it may be molded in an orange cup or a pretty red apple, the cover kept on so that the contents will be a surprise. Children from four to forty, and even older, enjoy an element of mystery about things and a surprise is a most delightful way of entertaining little people. A tiny doll dressed in fluffy robes may be hidden in a rosy apple as a favor or as a gift.

A banana with a half dozen little "bigger" dolls or chocolate babies embedded in the banana and the skin put back is another delight that the children will rejoice over. Cut off a slice of the banana to make the surface level and give the dolls room to lie in a nice row in their dainty bed. A stick of good candy wrapped in oiled paper or fringed paper candy stick may be slipped into an empty banana skin.

A pretty ball may be concealed in an orange that has been carefully hollowed out and the quarters or halves put back closely.

An orange may hold almost anything from choice candy with candy hearts and mottoes to a cosy nest for another tiny doll.

A Jack-in-the-box is great fun to make, using fruit to hold the jack. For boys, whistles and marbles, tops and different toys can be used. Penny toys with a bit of something to eat (for little people think of a party as only begun when the food is served) may be easily furnished by any mother at small expense.

"LIFE, LIBERTY AND PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS"

A Western Canada Farmer Writes as to Conditions.

A. G. Hansen is a farmer living near Clavet, Sask., and as an old resident of Minnesota, takes strong exception to some of the articles appearing in American papers disparaging the true conditions in Western Canada. The "Cottonwood Current" of Cottonwood, Minn., an important weekly paper in the southwestern part of the state, recently published a letter from Mr. Hansen, which is interesting reading. In his letter Mr. Hansen makes a splendid case for Western Canada against those who seek to deter farmers in the States from settling in Canada. He says:

"The district in which we live is a fair comparison to any other district in the country, made up mostly of settlers from the States. The majority here consists of Americans from Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas, with a few Canadians and an odd Englishman. We have been here eleven years, ever since this part of the country was settled, and the majority have done well. If they have not, it is certainly not the fault of the country.

"There has not been a crop failure in this district since settled. This year was the poorest, caused by lack of rain, although a fair estimate of wheat is about twelve bushels per acre, average, and oats about ten. Some farmers got as much as twenty-five bushels of wheat per acre, and we all got good prices.

"The laws of Canada are nearly the same as those of Minnesota, and we enjoy the same privileges. "So far as the European war is concerned, we suffer to a certain extent as all the world does. Canada is giving a helping hand to her Mother Country, and we American-Canadians firmly believe it is Canada's duty to do so. I have not heard one American-Canadian who has expressed a different opinion. Canada is not compelled to send her soldiers. The service rendered is all voluntary service.

"The accusation that old settlers are considered undesirable citizens and are forced out of business, even in danger of being 'mobbed at their own fireside,' is all false, a mere fabrication in the mind of badly informed correspondents. There are a few who have been discovered carrying letters, others papers and plans to prove them spies, and whose object is to conspire against the government. These have justly been arrested. Such a class of people cannot be considered good citizens, whether living in Canada or in the United States.

"Some people are failures wherever they are, and as an excuse for failure in their country it may seem easy to put the blame on the Canadian people and the Canadian government. Fact is, thousands of people from the United States are emigrating to Canada at the present time, which shows they are not afraid of the Canadian government.

"The government is giving away, free of charge, provision through the winter to farmers in certain districts affected by the drought, and is also sending seed grain to those in need of help. This is very different from driving settlers away from their own homes.

"I have always observed that the people who love their Mother Country most are those who make the best citizens of their adopted country. The glorious 'Stars and Stripes' will always stand for what is good and noble to us, though we live in a neighbor country where we also enjoy 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'—Advertisement.

The Mourner. "Does your wife grieve much over her first husband's death?" "Not so much as I do."—Baltimore Sun.

SAYS WIVES SHOULD BOSS

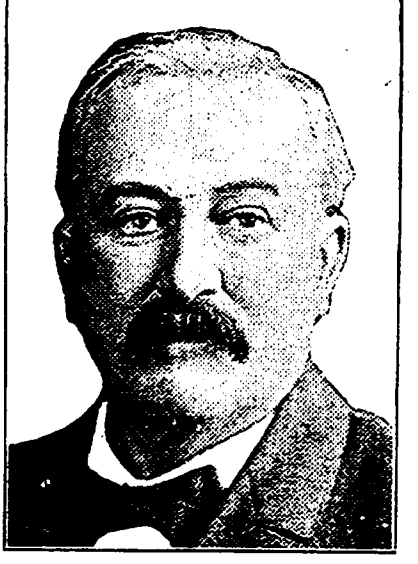

Just why, in addressing a woman's organization, Secretary of the Navy Daniels should have asserted that every young man should get married; that "every man needs a real good woman for a boss," was not apparent, but he said it as he bowed gracefully to Mrs. Daniels. The occasion was the banquet of the League of American Pen Women.

Qualifying his remarks about every man having a feminine boss, Secretary Daniels advised that the wife boss her husband systematically and wisely. He said the husband would then amount to something, but otherwise the chances were he would not.

"Women help to make men better, and with the aid of suffrage they would help to make our government better," he declared. The secretary said he knew a man who calls his wife "partner," and declared he likes it, for a wife is all of that. In connection with the European war, as a result of which homes have been broken up in those countries, the secretary spoke of the separation of husbands and wives. He said that while he was not allowed to speak of war, being strictly neutral, he often wondered, as he thought of the great conflict, if our civilization is only skin deep.

A POLITICAL PARADOX

Democrat, though, was badly distanced. When the sum total of the votes of the four counties was added up, it was found that, while the Democrat and Progressive had each polled about the same number of votes, Mr. Fordney had beaten them both by a substantial number.

Thus, after three thousand years, nearly, was justified the remark of old Hestod: "It is only a child who doesn't know that the half is greater than the whole."

Representative James W. Fordney of Saginaw, Mich., is a political paradox. Expressed in mathematical terms, he would be parallel lines which meet or a half that is greater than its whole.

For Mr. Fordney, in the last congressional election, though everywhere defeated in detail, was victorious. He was beaten in each of the four counties that compose his district, and yet was elected. In each of these counties he ran second—and when the sum of them was taken, he ran first.

Against Mr. Fordney, who is a Republican, there ran a Democrat and a Progressive. In two of the four counties of the district the Democrat won over Mr. Fordney by a small number of votes; the Progressive, however, was left far, very far, behind. In the other two counties the Progressive came out first, with Mr. Fordney a very close second; the
