ANTRIM SHUTS OUT HILLSBORO

The White Sox Visit the Neighboring Town, Covering Themselves With Glory

Antrim kept up its winning streak by defeating Hillsboro in a very exciting game at Hillsboro Saturday last, by a score of 3 to 0. This was the first game of an eight game series, and it was Antrim's sixth consecutive victory this season. Lynch was at his best, allowing only two hits—one in the 1st and one in the 9th inning—and striking out ten of the Hillsboro batters, and getting three hits. The whole Antrim team were on their toes at all times, playing an errorless game. C. Brooks and C. Crampton made two very classy catches which looked like sure singles.

Kepple pitched a good game for Hillsboro, until the 8th inning; the score then being 0 to 0, but in the "lucky eighth" the Antrims found "Kep" for six hits and three runs, settling the game then and there.

Hillsboro comes to Antrim next Saturday for the second game of the series, and it is needless to say it will be a "hummer."

Antrim is playing a strictly local team and it is hoped a large crowd will turn out and support the home team.

IMPRESSIONS OF A HINDU

Learned Eastern Visitor Frankly Confesses That He is Unable to Understand Americans.

Not seldom I feel among Americans as the Egyptian is said to have felt among the Greeks, that I am moving in a world of precocious and inexperienced children, bearing on my own shoulders the weight of the centuries. Yet it is not exactly that Americans strike me as young in spirit; rather they strike me as undeveloped. It is as though they had never faced life and asked themselves what it is; as though they were so occupied in running that it has never occurred to them to inquire where they started and whither they are going. They seem to be always doing and never experiencing. A dimension of life, one would say, is lacking, and they live in a plane instead of in a solid. That missing dimension I shall call religion. Not that Americans do not, for aught I know, "believe" as much as or more than Europeans; but they appear neither to believe nor to disbelieve religiously. But even in Europe—and far more in India—there has always been, and still is, a minority who open windows to the stars; and through these windows, in passing, the plain man sometimes looks.—Rabindranath Tagore.

Civilization's Peril.
America is closer to the heart of Europe than at any time since England's colonies became independent states. To the most isolated farmhouse it has been known for a half-year that we are not remote from the portentous events beyond the sea; that the fate of our brothers over there, in some way which we do not well discern, involves us also. We are, whether we like it or not, full shareholders in the civilization which is imperiled. Our commerce and industry, our prosperity and well-being, our culture and religion, the foundations of our common humanity, and the ideals of our common aspirations, are all at stake.—Edward T. Devine in the Survey.

Sees to Fight Troops.
In the bush fighting in East Africa the Germans and their black troops placed hives of wild bees, partially stupefied by smoke, under lids on each side of narrow tracks along which our troops must advance. When our cords lifted the lids when touched by the advancing troops, and swarms of infuriated bees, recovered from their temporary stupor, were let loose on the attackers. The failure of the attack at certain points is said to have been due as much to this onslaught of the "little people" as to the German rifles and machine-guns, many men being so horribly stung on the face or hands as to be temporarily blinded or rendered incapable of holding their weapons. Over one hundred stings are said to have been extracted from one of the men of the Royal North Lancashires.—London Mail.

Gun Has No Recoil.
An officer of the United States navy has invented a gun that fires a six-pound projectile without recoil. This gun, because of the absence of recoil, is well adapted to use on aeroplanes or dirigibles. The gun has both ends open to the atmosphere. The shell has the projectile fitted into one end, and in the other end is a mass of birdshot. The shot is of sufficient weight to furnish the required reaction when the projectile is discharged from the other end of the gun. When the gun is fired the projectile is thrown from the muzzle at a high velocity while the shot is discharged from the breech at low velocity.

Criticizes Hospitals.
Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has given much time and money to the question of the selling of drugs and the treatment of those who become victims, which the city of New York takes care. She now declared the manner in which the city of New York takes care of the drug "fends" a hideous farce. After ten days the victims are sent out of the hospitals "cured," and she says they leave shattered in nerve and unable to fight against the drug. Katherine Bement Davis, commissioner of charities in New York, says that between 35 and 60 per cent of all the criminals are drug fiends.

A Prudent Provision.
"Jones is nothing if not thorough. No matter how he starts out, he always gets to the bottom of things." "Then it is very lucky for him that he didn't start out as a sea captain."

The Difficulty.
Maud—Haven't you and Jack been engaged long enough to get married?
Marie—Too long. He hasn't got a cent left.—Boston Evening Transcript.

A Painful Hint.
Mr. Slowboy (calling on girl)—You seem—er—rather distant this evening.
The Girl—Well, your chair isn't sat down, is it?—Brooklyn Eagle.

ODD TIBETAN DEVILS

LAMAS DRAW FRIGHTFUL PICTURES OF THE FIENDS.

All Misfortunes, Individual and Natural, Are Ascribed to Them—May, However, Be Fought and Killed With Swords.

F. N. Nicholas, reporting to the Geographical society on lamasery life in Tibet, says:
Fantastic and absurd as lamasism is, there is, with one exception, nothing in Cho that is immoral or repugnant to western ethics. That one exception is the belief in the "Dre" or devils. Somewhere in the lowest hell, Sangee has chained the chief devil, whose name is Sa-nin-tze or Sa-tin-tze (not very far from Satan). Pictures of this fiend are in every temple. They are made as horrible and revolting as Tibetan ingenuity will permit. Although Sa-tin-tze is a prisoner, he has under his control legions of lesser devils whose business it is to harass humanity.

Lamasit devils do not tempt men as the Christian devil does. Temptation, according to the lamas, is merely the result of a man turning his back on Sangee. The devils of Tibet injure, molest and destroy mankind. All the misfortunes of life are the work of the "Dre sickness." Business, misfortune and calamities, both individual and national, are caused by devils. They are not only "personal," but also rampant and omnipresent. Almost every lama has seen a devil and has had a personal encounter with him. Devils hate lamas because of their piety, and take especial delight in attacking them. Devils are greatly afraid of guns. During the devotional exercises a Tibetan rifle was fired three times every day to scare the devils. They may be fought and killed with swords. More than one lama has told me how he has slain a devil.

My only unpleasant experiences in the lamasery have resulted from the belief in devils.
Sudeny suddenly ran amuck one afternoon. He stripped himself to the waist, drew his sword and shouted that devils were fighting against Cho. The Kenpo and I were compelled to sit on Sudeny's chest for nearly an hour before he returned to a normal state. I promptly discharged him and sent him to Ta Chien Lo. The direct cause of the outbreak was his secret smoking of opium in celebrating New Year's day, but his hallucinations and his peculiar manner are traceable, I believe, to the morbid talk of the lamas about devils and incarnations and Ma-ha-ga, and all the rest of it.

My other servant, Yichi, walked in his sleep one night and fell down stairs. On the following evening, when Kenpo dropped in for a little chat around the hopen, Yichi turned to him as to a father confessor and told him how a devil had gripped him by the throat and then had hurled him downstairs. The Kenpo looked worried and said that the Dre were evidently at their old tricks again and were hovering about the lamasery. He advised me to fire my rifle three times. I did so, and this greatly reassured the Kenpo and Yichi.

Later Yichi described to me the devil's appearance. It was precisely the same as the horrid picture of the Sa-tin-tze that is pasted on the wall of the residence of the Living Buddha. Yichi had looked and shuddered at the picture so often that it had at last developed into a nightmare.

Lamasery life is almost certain to get on the nerves of any man who takes it too seriously. If the average American believed as lamas do and lived their sort of life, he would be a candidate for a lunatic asylum within six months.

Cement From Beets.
It has been discovered in France that an excellent cement is one of the byproducts of the manufacture of beet sugar. The scum that forms when the beets are boiled, and which has heretofore been thrown away, consists largely of carbonate of lime and water, and from 70,000 tons of beets treated 4,000 tons of carbonate lime is obtained; to this 1,100 tons of clay is added, the resulting product being 3,182 tons of excellent cement. The scum is pumped into large tanks, where it is allowed to dry partially. Finely divided clay is then mixed with it; the mixture is thoroughly amalgamated by beaters for an hour and burned in a rotary kiln. The clinker is then removed and pulverized into cement.

War Horses to Farmers.
In order to assure the spring seeding, the French war department has decided that horses retired from the army shall be sold only to the farmers. Each buyer is obliged to present a certificate that he is a farmer and needs horses.

Not So Far that the Statements of its Residents Cannot be Verified

Rather an interesting case has been developed in Concord. Being so near by it is well worth publishing here. The statement is sincere—the proof convincing.
J. A. Drew, painter, 15 Highland Ave., Concord, N. H. says: "I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back, which often extended into my shoulders. I was so weak and lame that I could hardly move. The kidney secretions were too frequent and caused me much annoyance, especially at night. I didn't rest well and got up in the morning feeling tired and miserable. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

NEWS OF THE GRANITE STATE

Governor and Council Have Long Session

SELECTING EXCISE BOARD

Weekly Publishes Summer Outing -Destructive Fire at Ossipee- Various Other Items of Interest.

Concord.—The governor and council had a protracted session Friday, the matter of appointments being threshed out in various phases. The session lasted all day and well into the night, and was chiefly concerned in the selection of the new excise board to take the place of the present license commission whose term of office expires July 1. It was expected that the governor would name Edmund Sullivan of the present board as the minority member of the new commission. This he did, but the council refused to confirm him, and the governor then made six other combinations for the new commission which were turned down by the council in each case. On the eighth attempt he named Harry W. Keyes of Haverhill as chairman, Frank W. Ordway of Milford and Robert Jackson of Concord as the minority member.

After this matter was disposed of the Governor nominated John H. Benton to succeed himself as a member of the public service commission. The council refused to confirm him, and the governor then named William T. Gunnison of Rochester for the place, and he was confirmed. Some minor appointments were also made.

Weekly Publishers' Summer Outing.

Lancaster.—The 16th summer outing of the New Hampshire Weekly Publishers' association was held here Saturday and Sunday. Upon the arrival of the party from the arrival of the party was presented the association on behalf of the Board of Trade. Saturday morning the party were taken by automobiles for a twenty mile drive on the Vermont side of the river, after which they went to Jefferson and from there to the summit of Mt. Prospect where the summer home of Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts was open for their inspection. The party next went to Martin Meadow pond where an appetizing clam-bake was served.

Sunday the party was taken to Dixville Notch where they took dinner at the Balsams.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: M. White of Lancaster, president; George F. Mitchell of Pittsfield, vice president; Charles G. Jenness of Rochester, secretary; Olin H. Chase of Newport, treasurer; D. M. White of Lancaster, C. G. Jenness of Rochester, B. C. Snyder of North Conway, E. W. Townsend of Salmon Falls, C. O. Barney of Canaan, executive committee.

Both Were Battered.

Milford.—Charles A. Howard, a well known resident of Brookline of middle age, walked into the police station here one day last week, and wanted a warrant for his housekeeper, whom he charged had made an assault upon him with a pitchfork. His appearance indicated that he had been having trouble with something, as he was badly cut about the head and shoulders. He had hardly completed his tale of woe when Mrs. Edith McHugh, the housekeeper, also middle aged, walked in. She presented a somewhat battered appearance, having several wounds and some un washed blood stains. She was also after a warrant, and charged her employer with having caressed her in a manner appropriate for the prize ring. As no report of the two cases reached the public it is suspected that the parties called it a draw game.

Girl Has Curious Story.

Milford.—Edith Davis, 15 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, disappeared one day last week, and when she did not return the police were notified and the neighborhood searched. She returned after being absent for 24 hours with her clothing nearly torn off, and a story of being carried away by two men with a motor cycle. She says she was carried to a house and shut in, but managed to escape the next afternoon and with the help of neighbors got away from the men and ran through the fields to her home. The police are working on the case, and the girl was taken to a physician to find if she had been injured.

Sheppy Commits Suicide.

Nashua.—William G. Sheppy, a boiler maker, committed suicide one afternoon last week by shooting himself with a revolver in the room of his daughter-in-law. While there is no specific reason for the act it is said that he had quarrelled with the daughter lately, and some of the roomers in the house complained that they had been kept awake by their altercations. He was 70 years old and a widower.

Destructive Fire at Ossipee.

Ossipee.—Fire was seen issuing from the rear of the blacksmith shop of Fred E. Bellware about five o'clock one afternoon last week. The alarm was at once given and a bucket brigade formed to fight the flames. There is no water supply except wells, and this prevented effective work. The blacksmith shop was soon a mass of ruins and the fire had communicated to other buildings. Help was summoned from Rochester, Dover, Wolfboro and Sanborville, but the lack of a water supply handicapped the efforts of the fireman, and the fire finally burned itself out after extending over a territory a half mile in length. The court house costing $200,000 was entirely destroyed, and it is feared some of the valuable records are lost. The store of C. H. Carter, the dwelling house and also the undertaking establishment of A. C. Moulton, and the residences of Thomas H. Brown and Mrs. Elisha Allen were also burned. It was attempted to stop the progress of the fire by dynamiting one of the burning buildings, but it only served to spread the flames over a wider area. The loss is estimated at $50,000, and some of the property carried no insurance. The village had a destructive fire in 1903, at which time the court house was burned, and it is feared by the people of the village that it may not be rebuilt here.

During the progress of the fire several people were more or less injured, but none of them seriously.

Saves One Man, Injures Another.

Concord.—As the driver of an automobile was turning into the alley north of the Eagle Hotel Friday night an elderly man stepped directly in front of the machine. The driver turned it quickly to avoid striking the man and crashed into Henry Newton employed at the Eagle garage. Mr. Newton was hurled directly through the heavy plate glass window of a store, the glass for a height of about three feet being smashed into a thousand pieces. Mr. Newton was badly cut about the head and shoulders but at the hospital no deep cuts were found, and he is expected to be about again in a short time.

New Hampshire People at Thaw's Trial.

Concord.—A large number of people from this state went to New York as witnesses for Harry K. Thaw in the trial to determine his sanity. The strongest witness for him was Sheriff Holman Drew of Colebrook, who testified that he had the custody of Thaw for 16 months and saw no evidence that he was otherwise than rational. Among other witnesses were Mrs. Drew, the sheriff's wife, Oliver Peirin of the Eagle Hotel where Thaw boarded for several weeks, Sheriff Willis of Gorham and others.

Well Known Hotel Gone.

Mont Vernon.—The Mont Vernon Hotel was struck by lightning during a shower Saturday noon. The bolt struck the rear of the house, and within five minutes the ell and barn were a mass of flames. A telephone call for help brought 20 automobiles with chemical extinguishers from Milford, and a delegation came from Amherst. Much of the furniture on the first floor was saved. The house had just been opened for the summer and some of the guests lost all their belongings. The loss is about $15,000, partially insured.

Death of a Well Known Woman.

Manchester.—Mrs. Moody Currier, widow of former governor Currier, died at her home Thursday afternoon at the age of 86 years. She was widely known both in the city and state, but was of a retiring disposition and declined to unite with societies and organizations. Her benefactions were many however, and for these she will be gratefully remembered.

Gunpower and a Match.

Rochester.—Albert Stackpole, the 12-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Stackpole, found a pan of dirt in the house with which was mixed a quantity of gunpowder. He took it into the yard and applied a match. An explosion followed, the young man being severely burned about the face and one eye was injured. The physician expects to save the sight of the eye.

Shaker Bridge is Being Repaired.

Enfield.—When it was found that 60 feet of Shaker bridge, that historic structure across Mascoma lake, which was first built by the Shakers something like 100 years ago, had sunk into the lake it was a problem as to its being repaired. Work has begun upon it, however, but it will be many weeks before it can be used.

Government Buys More Land.

Concord.—It is announced that large purchases of forest lands among the White Mountains were approved at Washington. The new acquisition includes 8,000 acres among the Franconia mountains and 15,000 acres in Zealand. The area of forest land in this state now under government protection is 260,000 acres.

H. E. Boutelle Wins Suit

The suit of Henry E. Boutelle against John E. Loveren was tried in the superior court at Manchester before Judge Branch, Tuesday the 22d, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff. The case involved a question of the value of some wood purchased by the plaintiff in 1911, from the late Mrs. Curtis, as shown by her receipt, and which was left by the lumbermen on two woodlots, the defendant took the wood claiming to have purchased it from Mrs. Curtis' agent. Before the institution of the suit however, Mr. Loveren tendered the amount he considered he owed for the wood he drew away, which tender Mr. Boutelle, through his attorney, refused to accept. The court found there was a larger amount due than was tendered, thus giving basis for the verdict and placing the costs on defendant. J. F. Brennan of Peterboro represented the plaintiff and Holman & Smith of Hillsboro the defendant.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

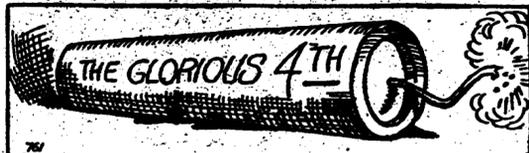

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no sleep, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try Dr. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Mass.

NATURE'S DOCTOR

Regal

A STYLISH, muscle action health boot built on approved anatomical lines that gives tired feet, twisted bones and five toes a chance to live, breathe and grow as Nature intended.

Heel. The last is designed to maintain proper balance and throw weight of body on the bony structure on the outside of the foot. Snug heel seat prevents throwing undue weight forward on transverse arch.

Flexible Shank. (No steel stiffening). Allows the foot all the spring and resilience of action Nature intended to strengthen the muscles that support the arch.

Corset Grip Instep Support. The last is whittled out under the arch while the insole and outsole are set in deeply at the shank and the uppers are fitted with "right and left" patterns so the shoe hugs tightly on the instep and a corset grip is produced. When laced over the instep it acts like a bandage for the weak arch, assists in proper distribution of weight and affords a support until the muscles acquire normal strength.

Toe Freedom. Secured by a last built on straight lines on inside from toe to heel. Note Nature's Line illustrated. Comfortable swing on outside to allow toes to expand under pressure.

Appropriate Gowns for the Evening

There are evening gowns and evening gowns. Some of them are naïvely simple, made of taffeta that glimmers in light colors, or of vapory lace over net or chiffon. Less simple but quite as charming are those of taffeta veiled with lace or net, and they make up a large part of the whole number. Their contemplation entices one to follow up the line until those splendid ones are found in white lace and tulle or crepe de chine. The shimmer of satin and the sparkle of paillettes are called upon with every other enticement in material and decoration to achieve the distinction that is required.

Always among any collection there are examples of black in which tulle or lace is brightened with jet. Sometimes it is black over white, or a color, but more often it is all black, as in the gown of tulle shown in the picture. In this model there is no end to the fullness of the skirt, with its eccentric inverted plaiting of tulle extending half way up at the front, back and sides and about the bottom.

There is an under petticoat of satin messaline and a small bodice which should appear under the drapery of tulle, but has been omitted to show plainly the management of the fabric in the bodice. This and the angel sleeves are edged with little jet beads. The sleeves are weighted with a bit of jet embroidery at the pointed ends, and the tulle is completed with a splendid girdle of jet beads with cabochons and hanging fringe.

Paquin has shown a gown in crepe de chine made up with black. The bodice is wholly of the crepe, and the full flaring underskirt also. The long over-drapery is of black embroidered with blue roses in quaint set rows of graduated sizes. Chiffon roses like them in color confine the sleeves to the arm at the top. The overdrapery reaches to the bottom of the skirt but does not extend across the front. It opens in a panel that widens toward the bottom.

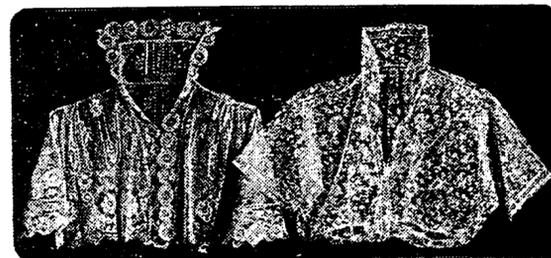

As beautiful as it can be, and less perishable than fragile tulle, the evening dress of crepe de chine and lace, enlivened with the shimmer of paillettes in iridescent colors will match in charm any other assembling of materials.

Iron Crepe de Chine Dry.

Of course you know that white crepe de chine will wash, but perhaps you do not know the very best way to do it.

Wash the material in cold water, with white soap. Rinse it very thoroughly; and here is the great secret of success—iron it without dampening, after it is completely dry.

New Bodices Made of Lace Flouncing

There is no telling where the usefulness of the new shadow laces will end. Besides their prominence in gowns and blouses they have been exploited in the realm of millinery and by those who make all the sheer and dainty things for bouclier wear and the undermuslins of today.

These laces are not imitation of handmade designs, but something quite apart. They mark an era in which their designers are adapting patterns to the weaving of cotton into laces by machinery. The precision and efficiency of machinery are factors to be considered, and they enable the designers to achieve the airiest fabrics ever woven, in patterns incredibly intricate and fascinating.

In the good old days of yore only kings and queens or others of princely fortune could wear laces, but now everyone may own these beautiful stuffs, because the price is so moderate.

A pretty bolero and a dainty blouse are shown in the picture. Lace flouncing is used for the bolero, which is to be worn over a corset cover of lace or net or one of thin wash silk. The lace is tulle across the front into the shoulder seams, and these and all other seams are finished with feather-stitching done in heavy embroidery silk. An edging finishes the fronts, also the collar and sleeves, and is set on with feather-stitching. The collar is stayed with fine wire supports to stand up—more or less—at the back of the neck.

An all-over pattern is used for the dainty blouse at the right of the picture, although flouncings are woven in all-over patterns with narrow edgings included, which will serve the same purpose. This simple blouse is cut on the kimono fashion with seams set together with a narrow cunty insertion. The edges are finished with a narrow cunty pattern in inexpensive lace.

It will not take the average woman long to figure out that the small cost of these bodices is about nothing as compared to their beauty. They are so simple in construction that anyone can make them. It is in the selection of pretty patterns in the laces that the secret of success lies, and it is a pleasure to know that these lovely little belongings are possible to those of meager means as well as to those who have plenty of money.

Ends of Guest Towels.

As if the tiny towels intended for the drop-in guests weren't bright and attractive enough, an ingenious girl has added color to the little towels for her hope chest by attaching a two-inch hem of striped galatea to each end of every towel. When pink-and-white striped galatea is used the little floral spray on the towel is embroidered in white and pink. Whatever color appears in the stripes, the same is repeated in the design. In some instances hemstitching is employed to join the striped material to the huck-aback.

Glass-Topped Kitchen Tables.
A glass-topped kitchen table that measures four by three costs $24. It is primarily, of course, a pastry table, but it is as well a delightful table for general kitchen use. The legs and frame are made of metal painted white, and the whole thing has a look of cleanliness and freshness that is quite desirable.

The Belgian Refugee

By Victor Radcliffe

"Astounding!" cried Robert Driggs. "Where did it come from and how did it get here?"

Mr. Driggs had reason to be amazed. He was more than that—stunned, unnered. A bachelor of thirty, sedate and settled in his ways, shy with women, unsocial with children, an appeal to his humanity had come home to him with a force that was absolutely a shock.

To the reticent, well-regulated occupant of the prettiest home in Brookton, and the loneliest, in the opinion of many a sighing matron with marriageable daughters, there had come a disturbing invasion. He had left home in a peevish frame of mind. He had returned to find Mary, an old lady family servant, pacing the porch, bundle done up in a shawl in her arms, which she was industriously rocking and "sh-shing," to the accompaniment of an unmistakable infantile chorus.

"Why—what—?" began the dumfounded Driggs.

"Don't talk too loud, sir," warned Mary, mysteriously. "It's a baby."

"Where—did you get it? How—does it happen to be here?" blurted Driggs, agitated.

"It's a war baby, sir."

"A what?"

"Oh, sir, don't act so horrified!" pleaded Mary. "It's not my fault. Just after noon I came out on to the porch here, and there was this poor, wee little darling lying asleep in an old blanket. The sweet cherub!" and the speaker cast a defiant look at her master as though reproaching him for his cast-iron lack of human sympathy.

"But you said 'war baby,'" protested Mr. Driggs.

"Yes, sir, that's right."

"And what do you mean by that?"

"Why," explained Mary, "of course I was startled. I telephoned to the lady next door, the widow, you know, who has just taken the place beyond our garden wall. She came over. She

"I declare!" remarked Driggs to Mary, after Mrs. Denslow had gone home, "she's one of the pleasantest women I have ever met."

By the end of a week Driggs blessed the little cherub that had been the means of changing the entire basis of his lonely bachelor life. The two women made a pet of the tiny stranger and Driggs himself spent half of each evening in awkward but earnest attention to it. Mrs. Denslow came over frequently. They got well acquainted and Driggs missed her when she was not there.

Then at the end of the month there came a shock. The Belgian mother appeared to claim her little one. She had found relatives in the new country. She could get a sure home for the little half orphan.

Mary cried, Mrs. Denslow was disconsolate. Driggs tried to bribe the mother to sell him the little one. Mary solved the problem. She had noted the growing friendship of bachelor and widow.

"Mr. Driggs," she said slyly, "if you and Mrs. Denslow were married and could offer the Belgian widow a permanent place as cook, why, the little one would be as good as adopted."

"A capital idea!" enthused Driggs. "If Mrs. Denslow will have me if I ask her."

"She will!" declared observant Mary, and she did, and happiness supreme and satisfaction all around was the glad result.

Brieux Reads France's Future.

Eugene Brieux, in a recent article in the Paris Temps, anticipates the obvious question as to whether the French people will forget all their differences and live in complete accord after the war.

He thinks not; but he believes that a great improvement in their political affairs will ensue and that his compatriots will understand better how there can be disagreement without hate and argument without insult.

He does not expect them, however, to become "calm as statues." "By her geographical situation, and because of the races that gave it being as a nation, France is destined to agitation. And agitation may be fruitful, while immobility never is."—Literary Digest.

Soldier's Untimely Return.

A typical story of Yorkshire character is told of a returned soldier. Anyone who knows the all-importance of washing day in Yorkshire will appreciate the humor of it. He was just out of the hospital, and except that his left arm was tucked into the breast of his jacket, you would never have guessed what he had suffered for king and country. As he crossed the threshold of his home his father took the pipe out of his mouth and gave him a real Yorkshire welcome.

"That's never cum. Moother! there's ar Jim." And "moother," hurrying in from the back yard, added her felicitations thus:

"That's looking nooan so bad, lad; but whatever med thee, cum head on a wash day!"

"Suppose—suppose it gets fractious?"

"It won't," insisted Mary. "See, sir, it's gone to sleep. I've given it some warm milk and it will be quiet for the little spell that I'm away, I am sure."

It was with considerable trepidation that Mr. Driggs undertook the task of padding up and down the porch, awkwardly holding the sleeping child in his arms. Then the little one began toidget. It was warm on the porch and shady in the garden. Cautiously he conveyed his precious burden down the steps. There was a path lining the high brick wall that separated the place from the adjoining house. Here Driggs took up his anxious promenade.

He was not acquainted with his neighbor, Mrs. Denslow. He had seen her several times, a handsome, genial-faced lady. Retiring and shy, he had rather evaded her. When an old-time friend and his family had lived in the house, he had kept the little door in the brick wall unlocked. With the advent of a new neighbor he had ordered it closed and its socketed bar kept in place.

All of a sudden the baby opened its eyes. It looked up wonderingly and appealingly at Driggs. Then its little lips began to pucker. It was a war baby all right, Driggs decided, for its first feeble wall gradually grew into a clarion-note volume.

"S-sh! Goodness; what shall I do?" fustered Driggs. "S-sh! Bye—bye! Oh, dear! this is a horrible pickle for a defenseless man to be in!"

He bounced his bundle, he coaxed, he cooed—in vain. The cries of his tiny charge redoubled.

"You poor man!" spoke a sudden voice, and looking up the abashed and embarrassed Driggs saw the fair face of his widow neighbor appear looking over the top of the brick wall. Evidently she had mounted a step ladder on the other side to command the view.

"I—I am having quite a time, I say, I say," floundered Driggs.

"Why don't you lay the baby down and go get it some milk?" challenged the pretty widow.

"I—I am afraid of breaking it."

"I shall have to help you, I see," responded Mrs. Denslow, wigglingly.

"There—there's the gate," suggested Driggs. "I'll unfasten it."

Which he did; with an immense sigh of relief he sank weak and perspiring to a rustic seat, as his visitor took charge of the child and soon soothed it in a gentle way that won the profound admiration of her host.

He stole many a shy glance at her before Mary returned. How companionlike she seemed in the little garden! How pleasant the old house appeared as, Mary returned, the two of them bustled about installing the tiny stranger into comfort and content!

TAME HENS LAY MOST EGGS

Poultry Keeper Must Be on Good Terms With Members of His Flock—Make Friends With Chicks.

When a man says his hens don't lay or pay, or both, a little observation will usually disclose the fact that his hens are too shy and nervous to stay on the nest long enough to lay an egg. Have you ever watched the successful poultry keeper, the one who is making poultry keeping pay, how his fowls run after him whenever he has occasion to enter the poultry yard? The best results cannot be obtained from hens that are wild and shy. The poultry keeper must be on good terms with his hens or his hens won't lay as they should. A hen that is so wild that she will fly off the nest or roost whenever anyone enters the poultry house cannot be a good layer. She is in a continual nervous state for fear someone will come within sight of her and hasn't time to think of laying eggs.

But there is another disadvantage beside the one that directly affects your pocketbook in having "wild fowls. It isn't conducive to good temper to have your fowls start cackling and crowing every time you happen to get near them, nor is it very convenient when you have to chase a long-legged cockerel all over the place every time wife wants a chicken for dinner. Viewed from any angle the tame hen is by far the more desirable. It isn't hard to tame chickens. On the contrary, it is the easiest thing imaginable. It is simply a matter of being friendly whenever you are around the fowls, instead of throwing stones at them every time they get near you. But the fowls are by far the easiest to tame when young. Start making friends with your chicks this summer and your next hens will be tame ones.

RHODE ISLAND RED IS IDEAL

Hens Are Extra Good Mothers, Protecting Young as Few Fowls Do—Eggs Are in Demand.

I consider the Rhode Island Red as the farmer's ideal fowl, says a writer in Agriculture. Its heavy covering of feathers helps to keep it warm so its food can be utilized more favorably for egg production. Its plump yellow body is as free as that of a white fowl from disfiguring dark pin feathers, always a disadvantage in marketing. The hens are extra good mothers, protecting their young as but few fowls do. The chickens grow fast and get to laying as soon as any other of the American breeds. They lay beautiful large brown eggs.

I have shipped eggs to a small city for the past two years and the grocery man says they sell better than any eggs he handles. I have raised poultry for 25 years and have kept Leghorns, Brahmas, Cochins, White Wyandottes, White Plymouth Rock fowls and crosses of these breeds and most of the time have had the Barred Plymouth Rock. It has always been a stand-by and still is a favorite. From my two pens of two-year-old Barred Plymouth Rock fowls during the past winter, I had an average of half as many eggs as hens, but the Rhode Island Red fowls did better than that.

Assist the Little Chicks.

This hot weather, if the chicks hatching in the incubator are among the last coming out and have already pipped and partly broken the shell about their head, you had better help them farther out at this point, as a chick dies quickly at this stage of hatching. To shut up the incubator and leave it another hour may mean a chick that is lifeless and past coming out next time you look.

Success and Failure.

Some people fail with chickens because they are easily discouraged. Others succeed for the simple reason that they keep hard at work, cleaning up, fighting vermin, matching as much as possible. One must be persevering to succeed with poultry.

Shocking and Inexcusable Waste.

"The plaintiff in a recent suit for divorce," related the simp, "declared that he awoke in the night to find his bed soaked with alcohol and his wife hunting for a match!"

"Ar-r-r!" grumbled DeLeary M. Trimmis, "that was a heck of a way to waste alcohol, wasn't it?"—Kansas City Star.

Heroes have to wade through a job lot of trouble to get a reputation.

But you can never measure a man's achievements by his own tongue.

WRONG DIAGNOSIS

One of the prominent clubs of this city gave a contract for the decoration of their building in honor of the visit of the fleet, and the decorator conceived the idea that the word "welcome" spelled out in signal flags would be an appropriate and beautiful design for the front wall, over the entrance. He asked a naval officer for directions, and, following the code which said officer wrote out for him, a very interesting result was obtained. Judge of the surprise of the contractor when an army officer, happening by, asked: "Do you know what you have written?"

"Why, welcome," stammered the decorator.

"Not by a long shot!" said the army officer. "You have up there, 'To h— with the army.'"—Life.

More Important.

"Fine feathers do not make fine birds," said the ready-made philosopher.

"No," replied Mr. Growcher; "their responsibilities are greater. They are depended on to make fine human beings."

OUR COUNTRY AS IT IS TODAY

DOCUMENT THAT MADE A NATION

Text of the Immortal Declaration of Independence Which All Americans Should Be Familiar.

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its power in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury; For transporting us beyond the seas to be tried for pretended offenses; For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection, and waging war against us. He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections among us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts made by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connection and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace, friends. We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown; and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And, for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

HIS NAME HONORED

Nathan Hale a Synonym for the Highest Patriotism.

How Youthful Martyr to the Cause of Liberty Met Death With Fortitude That Can Never Be Forgotten.

When the farmers of Lexington fired the shots that brought on the war of American Independence that April day in 1776, a pale, slim boy, not yet twenty years old, destined to become a martyr to our freedom, laid down his badge of office as a schoolteacher at New London, Conn., and took up the sword.

New London went wild with excitement when the news of the battle of Lexington reached there. Bands of patriots paraded the streets. Guns were fired and speeches made. A meeting was called at once to determine what that city should do in the war. Every man of prominence spoke and then the young schoolteacher was called to the platform. What words he said that day have been lost to posterity, but we do know they must have been the most stirring of the occasion, for immediately after he left the platform men began marching forward to enlist. One sentence of Nathan Hale's that day has been preserved and it is worthy to rank with the greatest sayings of our nation.

"Let us march immediately and never lay down our arms until we have obtained independence," he said. That is all the more remarkable when one remembers that it was more than a year later before independence was talked of in the continental congress and it was two years before the Declaration of Independence was adopted.

Nathan Hale enrolled as a lieutenant in the regiment of Col. Charles Webb. His studious habits stood him in good stead, and soon he was one of the best officers in the regiment. He went with his company to Boston and during the siege of that city by the army under General Washington the twenty-year-old boy was promoted to be a captain for bravery and efficiency.

When the British evacuated Boston and sailed for New York a greater part of the American army went down that way. Captain Hale and his regiment were among them. They took part in all the hardships of that campaign.

Late in the summer of 1776, when the British had driven the American army from Long Island, General Washington was particularly anxious to establish some sort of secret information line into New York. He tried many plans without success. Finally he summoned his officers to a council and told them to be on the lookout for some bright, courageous man who would undertake the dangerous task. He spoke, among others, to Colonel Knowlton of Knowlton's Rangers, the regiment to which Captain Hale was attached.

Colonel Knowlton conferred with his officers. When he put the proposition to them every cheek paled. If the messenger should be caught they all knew he would be hanged as a spy. The word spy is a horrible one to an honorable man. No one volunteered to risk a death of shame. For a few moments there was a hush in the room. Then Captain Hale walked in and said:

"I will undertake it, sir." Captain Hale had been sick in bed for some time, and his fellow officers crowded about him seeking to dissuade him from his purpose. Among them Capt. William Hull, a classmate of Hale's at Yale, spoke the longest. But the youthful captain could not be shaken from his purpose.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I owe my country the accomplishment of an object so important and so much desired by the commander of our armies. I know of no mode of obtaining the information but by assuming a disguise and passing into the enemy's camp. I am fully aware of the consequences of discovery and capture in such a situation. I wish to be useful, and every kind of service for the public good becomes honorable by being necessary."

In such manner did Captain Hale turn spy. That night he left the camp at Harlem Heights dressed in the brown garments and broad brimmed hat of a schoolteacher. He was accompanied a short distance by Sergeant Hempstead and his faithful servant, Ansel Wright, who arranged to have a boat ready for Captain Hale for his return, September 20.

Nathan Hale had no trouble in penetrating the British lines. He went to New York and over to Brooklyn, carefully collecting information about the number of British soldiers, their cannon, ammunition, other supplies and fortifications, in Latin, and concealed it in a hollowed out place in one of his boot heels.

September 19 he began his return. He spent the night at a farm house near the place where the boat was to wait for him. The next morning he went to breakfast at a little wayside inn, "The Cedars," kept by a widow named Chichester. During his meal a man entered and stared at him. Captain Hale paid little attention, as he thought he was safe by now.

As soon as the meal was finished he hurried off to the rendezvous. It was a misty morning. As Hale approached the beach he saw a boat pulling in. Glad almost beyond belief to be rid of his dangerous task he hurried down to meet it. Too late he realized that instead of Sergeant Hempstead and Ansel Wright the boat was filled with British marines. He turned to run, but the marines caught him.

"What are you doing out so early?" a marine demanded. "Isn't it proper for a schoolteacher to get a breath of fresh air?" Hale asked in reply.

"Why did you run?" "I thought you were rebels."

The marines would not believe Hale's assertions of innocence and began to search him. They looked everywhere without success. One pulled off his boots and reached inside. Nothing suspicious had been found and the marines reluctantly were preparing to turn him loose when one of them, with an oath, threw the boot he held at a tree. That threw away the strip that covered the secret hiding place and the papers fell out.

Captain Hale was then taken aboard a frigate in the harbor and later to New York, where General Howe questioned him. There was nothing to do but admit that he was a spy. General

Howe Immediately Ordered That the young patriot be hanged the following day and turned him over to an officer named Cunningham, the provost marshal.

That night Hale was kept in solitary confinement. He begged to be allowed to write letters to his mother and Alice Adams, his sweetheart, in New London. Cunningham furnished him with paper and ink and then destroyed the letters in front of Hale, saying:

"The rebels should never know they had a man who could die with such firmness." Hale asked that a minister or a Bible be sent to him. Both were refused. The only favor he received was being allowed to rest in the tent of a young British officer while on his way to his death.

Early on the morning of September 22, 1776, it was Sunday, Hale was conducted to the scaffold. Cunningham cuffed him brutally and said:

"Make your dying speech." Hale had been praying. He continued when he had finished rose to his feet and faced the crowd of British soldiers and townspeople. In a loud, clear voice he said:

"I regret that I have but one life to give to my country." "Swing the rebel off!" Cunningham shouted, and thus died one of the most heroic figures in our history.

Real Lesson of the Day. The Fourth of July properly symbolizes the liberty for which the patriots stood ready to sacrifice their lives in order to launch the United States as a national craft which should be anchored by no weight of foreign despotism.

Most Enduring Tribute. After all, it should be remembered that the finest and most enduring tribute we can pay to "Old Glory" is to so live our lives as individuals that the nation may be truly great in the character of its citizenship and the ideals for which the flag stands.

BOUNTIFUL PROMISE FROM WESTERN CANADA

Average Increase of Acreage in Wheat Over 22 Per Cent.

Table showing Wheat Acreage Increase by Province: Saskatchewan (25%), Alberta (32%), Manitoba (15%), Saskatchewan (22%).

The growth of the crop during the past week was very satisfactory. Rain fell in many places during the early part of the week, followed by warmer weather, which has been most beneficial to the grain. Breaking and summer-fallowing were well under way, and conditions generally were most promising.

The following reports have been received by the department from the various centers: Denholm—A little rain needed in the northern part to start late grain; remainder of district plenty of moisture. Davidson—Ideal growing weather; a few farmers harrowing grain to conserve moisture by breaking crust formed since last rain. North Battleford to Prince Albert—Good growing weather; crops looking well. Slight damage near North Battleford from outbursts; recent rains beneficial. Kindersley—Crops looking fine and prospects good; plenty of moisture, with prospects of more rain. Every slough in this country is full. Prince Albert—Crops in fair condition, though outbursts and light frosts have done damage in some sections. Have had moderate quantity of rain.

Owing to prompt marketing of the harvest of 1914, the farmers were enabled to devote more time than usual to cultivation in the autumn, under conditions which were decidedly favorable, and that, combined with the opportunities for soil preparation presented by an early spring this year, has resulted in the seeding of a wheat area estimated at twenty-five per cent greater than last year. Areas sown to oats and flax may be less than last year, because of the concentration upon the wheat in greater demand for export. Wheat seeding was completed eight days earlier than the average, under almost ideal conditions.

Prospects excellent. Abundant moisture throughout the province, following rain. Area thirty to thirty-five per cent greater. Crop generally two weeks earlier.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the land has not been in such fine condition to work for years; neither has there been as much moisture as there was last autumn. This was protected during the winter by a little more than the average snowfall, which remained on the land, not being removed by the warm chinook winds, as is usually the case. There never has been a more optimistic feeling than exists today, judging by the information received from various parts of the province. We feel justified in saying that the crop never went in under more favorable circumstances; weather splendid and land particularly well worked.

While it is true that the acreage will be greatly increased, it is pleasing to learn that despite the high price of feed, the receipts of milk and cream at the dairies continue to keep up, and that the output of the creameries has increased in quantity.

One of the most encouraging things in last year's work was the increase of practically thirty per cent in the output of cream and butter south of Calgary.

Manitoba. Owing to the exceptionally early harvest last year and favorable fall weather, a much larger acreage of land was prepared than usual, and partly for the same reason and the prospects of high prices for all kinds of grain, farmers took more pains in the preparation of land, so that the spring opened up with 1,235,000 acres of fully prepared land above the previous year. Seeding was general by the 7th of April, some days in advance of the average. Since that time the weather has been exceptionally favorable for the sowing of wheat, and the farmers have taken full advantage of it. Much of the crop is now above the surface. There has been a very general and liberal rainfall; this will hasten the germination of the recently sown wheat, and will prevent the soil from drifting off the later sown crop. The area sown in wheat is fully 15 per cent greater than last year.

To sum up the agricultural situation generally, the Department of Agriculture says: "The area is larger than usual, the land has been well prepared, and the wheat has been sown at the right time; not so early as to run the risk of being killed off by frost, but sufficiently early to insure its ripening in the fall."—Advertisement.

A good way to save money on your gas and electric light bills is to spend your evenings at theaters and restaurants where the management pays for the lights.

Resembled Dining Car. Jim Sullivan, typical American tramp, carried a kitchen cabinet under his coat, and when arrested in Red Wing, Minn., the following things were found: Eight large, raw potatoes, weighing seven pounds; one quart bottle of sweet milk; one ten-cent loaf of wheat bread; one-half dozen tea biscuits; one-half dozen rolls, fresh; two one-pound packages of ground coffee; two aluminum salt and pepper shakers, glass cruet filled with vinegar, one raw onion and two Japanese paper napkins.

Interesting Comparison. "It beats all how luck does play favorites," remarked Farmer Corntassel. "I jes' been to see Ezra Hankins."

Tomato Squares. Mix two cupsful tomato, four cloves, two slices onion, two peppercorns, half teaspoonful salt and one-quarter teaspoonful paprika. Cook ten minutes, press through a sieve. Melt three tablespoonfuls butter, add one-quarter cupful cornstarch and strained tomato mixture; boil ten minutes. Cool slightly, add one egg, pour into buttered pan, chill, cut in squares, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs, fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper. Serve.

Puree of Baked Beans. Put two cupsful of baked beans into a saucepan, add small piece of pork. If you have it, cover with two quarts hot water, season with pepper and salt and add one-half onion. If you do not use the pork add one tablespoonful butter, boil until the beans are very soft, then press through a sieve and serve.

Cantaloupe Frappe. Three pints of cantaloupe pulp, two cupsful sugar, the juice of two lemons or one-half cupful lemon juice and pass through a very fine sieve. Freeze as usual. Serve from glass cups or from the chilled rind of the melon, shaped into a basket.

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. SOOTHED THE CRYING CHILD Escaping Convict Proved to Mother That She Need Have No Fear in His Presence.

Tenderly petting a young and crying baby which he had picked up from its crib, escaped convict Peter Tosti succeeded in convincing Mrs. Charles Kelley of San Rafael, Cal., after he had gained entrance to her home, that he would not harm her and her two children.

Tosti told Mrs. Kelley that all he wanted was something to eat and a change of wearing apparel for his prison stripes.

Mrs. Kelley was awakened by the crying of her two babies, who had been disturbed by the convict. As she awoke she saw Tosti pick up the younger one and soothingly begin to rock it. He kept this up until the child fell asleep. Noticing that Mrs. Kelley was awake, Tosti addressed her, saying:

"Don't be afraid. I am fond of children and I would not harm two like these—or their mother."

After this he kept up a running fire of conversation, and as soon as he had foraged in the kitchen for some victuals he left, apologizing for his intrusion. With Tosti went Mrs. Kelley's husband's overcoat.

Tosti had served only two years of a ten-year sentence for grand larceny committed in Merced county when he escaped from San Quentin.

HAS TO DRAW ON ENGLAND

France Feeling the Scarcity of Coal Consequent on the German Control of the Mines.

France is now compelled to call on England for coal, which was formerly mined in the north of France. Practically all the mines in that district have either been destroyed by the German artillery or are being operated by Germans. At Lievin and Courrières the German army is carrying on extensive mining operations and producing great quantities of coal, which are being shipped into Belgium for the use of the German military forces.

France is no longer able to draw coal from Mons and Charleroi, which formerly supplied large quantities for exportation. Consequently, the residents of northern France are largely dependent upon English mines for coal, which has become very scarce.

Frequently towns and villages near the fighting lines are entirely without coal for a week. This works great hardship on hospitals, sadly in need of the fuel for hundreds of thousands of wounded and the sick soldiers of the allies who are being cared for in French towns.

Hospital Barges.

Northern France is rich in waterways, and hospital barges are already running between Paris and the battlefront, under the auspices of the Union des Femmes de France. The hold is enameled white and fitted with 40 beds, and at the end is the nurse's retiring-room. The barge-master's cabin is converted into a living-room for two surgeons. There is an operating-room, too, with washing gear, an electric plant, and a perfect system of heating. To convert a Seine barge into a gondola of this kind costs a bare $500, and the results are beyond praise—especially to fracture cases, to whom the jolting road is agony.

The wounded are hoisted in by means of small cranes, and the barge is then towed by steam or motor yachts lent by wealthy persons, who are more than glad not only to lend their boats free of charge, but to navigate them in person, thus sharing in the work of mercy.

Dyeing War Horses.

Ever since the war broke out experiments have been made with a view to dyeing the coats of white horses, but simple as it may seem to the uninitiated a satisfactory result has not yet been obtained. Numerous inventors came forward with wanted dyes, but after the preliminary tests only one liquid seemed to resist the rain satisfactorily. A battery of 24 white horses was consequently treated, and sent out on duty in all weathers. When they returned after a week or ten days all the beasts were of a beautiful bottle green, and are expected to retain that hue for some time to come.

Automatic Post Office in Paris. The first of the automatic post offices which are shortly to be installed at different points in Paris is already working in the great waiting room of the Gare St. Lazare. required mechanism, postal cards and letter slips. The machine takes only French money, but conscientiously returns such coins as it does not accept as current. At each side of the machine are ledges on which the client can scribble his correspondence, which he can then place in the letter box.

SEEMS A HOODOO ON POST

Incumbent at Beira Tells of the Series of Misfortunes Which Befell His Predecessors.

Strangely enough, writes Sybil Belcher in the Wide World, our predecessors at the Beira consulate had all experienced varying vicissitudes which, forging a curious chain of misfortune, made Beira hardly an enviable post were one inclined to superstition, as will be seen from the following:

The first man to be appointed was the captain of a man-of-war, his ship doing duty as the consulate. After three or four months' stay he contracted so bad an attack of malaria that he died shortly afterward.

The next consul who came, frightened of the surrounding swamps, purchased an old sailing ship, turned it into a hulk and fitted it up into a most comfortable residence. In some mysterious way, however, his floating home sank in the middle of the night, he and his wife only escaping with their lives. The catastrophe so discouraged him that he left soon after.

Number three was unfortunate enough to lose his wife from the effects of fever, and she was buried there. Number four nearly lost his life by being shot at while breakfasting, the bullet passing within a few inches of his head and going through the adjoining door. The consul following him was our unfortunate predecessor, who was brutally murdered in his office, being stabbed in the neck. Such an unbroken history of disaster in connection with a consulate is rarely to be met with.
