THIRTEENTH GAME!

Another Victory for Antrim White Sox, With Henniker, 6 to 4

Antrim White Sox played their 13th game of the season here Saturday afternoon, the opponents being the Henniker aggregation, and won, 6 to 4.

Both pitchers were hit rather liberally, Lynch giving six and Bills eight. The home boys were able to bunch their bingles in the second and third, while Lynch allowed the visitors to hit occasionally.

Singles by Lynch and Mulhall started things in the 2nd, and an error gave Brown his base when Matt Cuddihy knocked the cover off the ball for a 3 bagger and three scores were credited to the White Sox. A 2 bagger by Thornton in the third frame, a single by Lynch and a sacrifice by Brown gained two more runs.

Henniker scored two in the 5th by timely hitting and two in the 7th on errors. The loyal support of "Nappy" of Henniker, a royal rooster and staunch admirer of the Hennikers, assisted them in scoring and he kept the crowd in good humor by his many optimistic remarks when matters looked dark for his friends.

A double play by Sanborn, Powers and Annis in the 6th is deserving of special mention. They had the chance and made good. Antrim had a similar chance in the 2nd and failed.

The Keene Y. M. C. A. will play here this week Saturday afternoon. The boys need good support to win this game; give them your presence and also help them financially.

OBSERVES CRAM RE-UNION

This Unusual Event Occurred in Town on Sunday of This Week, August 1st

Just one hundred years ago, Daniel Cram was born in Antrim, on the Old Cram Place, now the residence of Cyrus J. Whitney, at the Centre.

Daniel Cram packed all his earthly possessions on to an ox cart and left the town of his birth for the Ohio valley. This was in 1837, and he journeyed nine weeks, pitched camp in Elk-town, Ohio, then an unbroken wilderness. By hard toil he established a home. His descendants all prospered.

This was the first re union and many were here who had never been in New Hampshire before.

One lady, Mrs. John Cram, eighty five years old, came from Providence, R. I., by auto, and remembered dining here fifty-four years ago.

Thirty three people sat down to a bountiful dinner prepared by Mrs. Henrietta Simonds and Mrs. Ada Simonds. Great credit is due these ladies for the success of the re union.

A sum of money was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, who opened their doors and entered into the spirit of the occasion. Mr. Whitney's lawn, which is always well-kept, looked its prettiest at this time.

Those present were: Mrs. John Cram, Mrs. Mary Mosley, Providence, R. I.; Stephen Cram, Bedford, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cram, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spooner, Miss Ruth Spooner, Masters Howard and Chester Spooner, Harry Dorr, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Cram, Pawtucket, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Heim Tomfohrde, Mrs. Lena Gary, Miss Katherine Gary, Masters Karl and Heim Tomfohrde, Somerville, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Will Smith, Hillsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Cram, Mrs. Ina Cram, Bennington; Miss Ida Knowlton, Leominster, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Will Simonds and three children, Mrs. Henrietta Simonds, Antrim.

The Sunday School Picnic

Of the Methodist society will be held on Saturday of this week at White Birch Point, Gregg lake. Teams will leave the church at 8 o'clock. It is hoped that all members of the Sunday school and society, and every one who desires to attend, will be present to enjoy the day; a good time always goes with a Sunday school picnic.

CURRENT TOPICS

For The Reporter Readers by its Special Correspondent

The raising of $300,000 for the relief of the survivors of the East-land victims is another evidence of the true spirit of human Brotherhood in America.

Mayor Curley, of Boston, Mass., who opposed the Burnett immigration bill, now favors a federal law that would prohibit all immigration for a term of five years after European hostilities cease. He predicts that the prevalence of such diseases as typhus, typhoid fever, bubonic plague, yellow fever, and small pox, especially in Serbia, will force the United States of America to protect themselves.

If "what we sow in the child you reap in the nation," these figures represent a sorrowful harvest indeed. The infant mortality under a year of age, per thousand births, for Chili, 326; German Empire, 197; Spain, 170; Canada, 140; United States, 165; Finland, 133; Tasmania, 93; South Australia, 93; Norway, 86; New Zealand, 76.

The present impoverishing and demoralizing effects of the war only adds to this great loss.

More than 95% of the total European immigration to this country from 1819 to 1883 came from the north of Europe. These immigrants from the north make the most desirable citizens because they are building with us, and keep to the American standards of living. The Dutch, English, Danish, German, Scotch and Irish report only 3% of wives not living in America; while the Bulgarians and Turks stand at the top, 90% of whose wives remain in the Old World. Syrians, 83%; Greeks, 74%; Russians, 45%; Slovaks, 34%; Italians, about 33%. These tend to herd in communities by themselves.

A Temperance Sermon

The wonderful career of prize ring successes of John L. Sullivan probably fired the imagination of the boyhood of the land as has that of few others, says the Nashua Telegraph. Less picturesque, perhaps, is that of his past ten year struggle against the enemy which finally pulled him down. But his words to the young men of the country today, when he is an old man at the age of 56, are worthy of more than a passing thought. In a recent interview he says:

"Every young man has it in him to be a champion in his line by putting forth the best that is in him.
"I count every man a champion who surmounts obstacles, sticks to the game, never loses courage and makes good.
"No man who is a booze fighter can make good.
"Booze weakens the moral strength.
"I never licked John Borleycorn until I ran away from him. I advise every young man who wants to be a success to do the same."

THE ANNUAL FAIR

Of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church

The annual fair and entertainment of the Ladies' Aid society of the Woodbury Memorial Methodist church was held last Wednesday afternoon and evening in the town hall. The various tables and booths were prettily decorated with crepe paper, flowers, etc. The usual sale of fancy articles, aprons, food, ice cream and candy met with a good sale and a generous sum was realized.

The evening's entertainment comprised a choice list of motion pictures, which was well patronized; in addition were several musical numbers:

Piano trio, Miss Edith Lawrence, Miss Florence Brown, Miss Hazel Burnham. Ladies' Quartet, Miss Florence Brown, Miss Charlotte Balch, Mrs. E. V. Goodwin, Miss Vera McClure. Miss Lawrence accompanist. Vocal Duet, Miss Florence Brown and Frank J. Boyd. Miss Lawrence, accompanist.

The various committees having charge included:

Mrs. Charles F. Carter, Mrs. Lucius E. Parker and Mrs. Fred H. Colby, food; Mrs. H. W. Eldredge and Miss Charlotte E. Balch, fancy articles; Miss Olive Ashford, Miss Lena Woodward and Miss Florine Ashford, candy; Mrs. Frank F. Roach and Mrs. Jas. R. Ashford, aprons; Mrs. John Murray and Mrs. Lena Bottgenbach, ice cream.

INDUSTRY OF GREAT VALUE

Most Essential Service for Humanity Performed by Those Who Manufacture Fertilizers.

In the American Magazine Ida M. Tarbell, writing another article in her business series entitled "The Golden Rule in Business," emphasizes the usefulness of the fertilizer business as an industry. Following is an extract from what she has to say:

"Few businesses perform a more essential service. Making two blades of grass grow where there was one, or none, is the useful task of a fertilizer plant. It serves men, not only by what it produces, but by what it saves. Into its mixture go substances derived from otherwise useless waste, the dregs and refuse of great industries. Millions of pounds of trimmings from factories using leather and rubber and felt are turned into ammoniates in its great incinerators. From the pomace left from the making of cottonseed and castor oil, from the horns and hoofs of the slaughter house, from the remains of fish and meat canneries, are made meals which the soil greedily swallows, to give back to us later more abundant crops of grain and vegetables and flowers.

"This waste and its transformation, the making and using of acid, all produce smells which cause an active and painful nausea to the unaccustomed. When men first go to work in the plants they are often unable to eat, or at least to retain food, for a week or more. I have never found a doctor who thought this nausea had any more than temporary effects, like the ordinary seasickness. It is, however, a painful experience and should be relieved, if possible."

"I knew that man was a carpenter after I had conversed with him a little while."

"How did you know it?"
"From his plane talk."

Knew Where to Stop.
"The Chinese invented gunpowder, I believe."
"Yes," replied the eminent oriental.
"We invented gunpowder, but we drew the line at the 'gunman'."

All Tired Out

Hundreds More in Antrim in the Same Flight

Tired all the time; Wary and worn out night and day; Back aches; head aches; can't sleep; Your kidneys are probably weakened. You should help them at their work. Let one who knows tell you why.

Mrs. W. H. Coy, Main St., Peterboro, N. H., says: "My back pained me a great deal and I was in constant misery. I could not rest well and in the morning I was very lame. It hurt me to stoop or lift. My kidneys were weak and the kidney secretions became unnatural. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, I have felt much better. I do not have trouble from my back now and the pains across my loins have gone. I can sleep well and my kidneys are normal."

NEWS OF THE GRANITE STATE

Democrats Want to Purchase Newspaper AFTER MANCHESTER MIRROR

Over 12,000 Autos Owned in State, License Fees Amounting to Over $225,000—14 Horses Burned in Stable Fire.

Concord.—Leading Democrats of the state met recently to consider the proposition of purchasing the Manchester Mirror and Chairman George E. Farrand of the Democratic State committee was chosen chairman and authorized to appoint a committee to conduct negotiations for the purchase of the paper, on which it is understood they have an option. Mr. Farrand announced the make-up of the committee Saturday, which is composed of the following gentlemen: former Mayor Edgar J. Knowlton of Manchester, Internal Revenue Collector Seth W. Jones of Franklin, Mayor Charles E. Tilton of Tilton, Postmaster George H. Duncan of Jeffrey, former Mayor Charles C. Hayes, William Thomas H. Madigan Jr., and William T. Nichols of Manchester, Mr. Farrand and Edward Gallagher of Concord. The committee will meet in Manchester Tuesday afternoon to organize and elect a chairman.

Berry Pickers Have Trouble. Franklin.—Irving Powers has a blueberry pasture over in Northfield, and one day last week Francis Davidson, a young man of this city, his two sisters and another girl went there to pick berries. After they had filled their pails Mr. Powers and his hired man appeared on the scene and proceeded to appropriate the berries, using whatever force they found necessary to do so. Davidson had the two arrested, and in court told how he had been held by one of the men while the other took the berries from him. Incidentally the hired man cuffed him on the ear, and for this he got a fine of $1 and costs, while his employer escaped. Powers chased one of the girls, and she claimed she threw her berries away rather than let him have them.

An Expensive Ride. Manchester.—Albert Molderez is a deformed and crippled youth, and one day last week he saw a team standing by the curb which he told the police with evident sincerity, he supposed belonged to a friend of his. He got in and before he had gone a block was placed under arrest. The practice of appropriating teams in this way has been getting very common, and in some cases they are badly over driven. It was urged in court that an example should be made of Molderez, and he was fined $15 with costs of $4.62. The fine was paid by the boy's relatives and a jail sentence of 30 days was suspended during good behavior. For a ride lasting less than three minutes it was rather expensive.

Assault is Charged. Portsmouth.—William Boucher, aged 35, chauffeur for John P. Hale Chandler, son of Ex-Senator Chandler, was found one evening lying on the ground outside the Cowles sanitarium. It is alleged that he was thrown from the window by John Downey, a colored butler at the sanitarium during some trouble which the two had during the evening in question. Chandler is a patient at the sanitarium. Boucher died at an early hour Saturday morning. Downey, who was held on a charge of aggravated assault, was taken into court on a charge of manslaughter and held without bail for the superior court.

Large Increase in Number of Automobiles. Concord.—The number of automobiles owned and operated in this state has already passed the 12,000 mark, and more will be added before the season closes. Of these about 11,000 are privately owned and about 1000 are used for public purposes. The amount received for licenses has already passed $225,000, and it is expected before the end of the year it will reach $250,000. This will go a long way toward defraying the expense and upkeep of the state highways, and is a strong endorsement of the highway policy adopted during the administration of Governor Floyd.

Aged Man Escapes Death. Lebanon.—David Mason Ross, father of the station agent here, attempted to cross the track to go to his home Thursday just as an express train was coming in. He became excited and caught his foot under a rail, falling to the ground. The engineer of the train applied the emergency brakes and brought his train to a stop, but not before it had passed the spot where Mr. Ross lay. When the train men went back they found him just outside the rail and uninjured. Mr. Ross is 92 years old.

Fourteen Horses Are Burned in Stable Fire.—Manchester.—The two-story brick fire stable on Lowell street leased by James W. Richardson was completely gutted by fire Thursday night. The origin of the fire is a mystery, and within a few minutes of its discovery the interior of the building was a veritable furnace. There were 10 horses in the building and 14 of the most valuable, worth on an average $300 each, were burned. Some of the other horses were badly scorched. About 50 carriages and wagons were destroyed, together with sleighs, harness, hay and grain. The loss is estimated at $35,000.

License Money is Distributed. Concord.—The governor and council at the meeting Thursday issued the warrant for the distribution of the money received from liquor licenses, and the checks will be sent out immediately. The total amount to be distributed is $276,064.35, which is distributed equally between the counties and the towns where licenses are sold. Hillsborough county gets by far the largest share sent to the counties, $74,858.07, and Manchester leads the cities with $55,408.67. Nashua gets $18,714.05, and Portsmouth $17,020.66. Carroll county receives the smallest amount, only $167.19.

The 39th Annual Encampment. Weirs.—The 39th annual encampment of the New Hampshire Veterans' association will be held here August 24 to 27. Governor Spaulding and staff, the entire congressional delegation and many other prominent gentlemen will attend. Ruble's band of Lakeport will furnish music. Tuesday will be devoted to the Sons and Daughters. Wednesday will be G. A. R. and W. R. C. day, and Governor's day comes on Thursday. On Friday the usual business session will be held.

Agreement on the Railroad Bill. Concord.—It was reported Friday that an agreement between the parties in interest on a Boston & Maine railroad bill would be reached early in the present week and that the bill would be laid before the governor with the request that he call an extra session to act upon it. It is expected that he will do this should the measure which may be submitted meet with his approval.

Third Attempt Succeeds. Nashua.—The third attempt within six weeks to burn the cottage of William Fraser, a telephone lineman, was successful Friday afternoon. The fire was set in the pantry by some one who had raised the window, and had made much headway when discovered. The interior and rear of the house were damaged to the extent of $1500 and furniture valued at $500 was ruined.

Ransacked the House. Nashua.—During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Eaton, one day last week, their house was entered and ransacked. Among the articles taken were a gold watch, rings and other valuables. The house was apparently entered with skeleton keys, and it looked as if the burglars knew the owners were absent and took their time, as they made a systematic search.

A Hint to Farmers. Bow.—Mr. and Mrs. Irving Hastings, who recently purchased a farm in this town, have sold this season 65 bushels of peas from a plot of ground measuring a rod less than a half acre. In addition they have used what they needed in the family and gave some to the neighbors. An agent of the State Agricultural college advised them about the method of cultivation.

Held on Charge of Murder. Nashua.—Peter Pappas was arrested in this city Saturday by the police and in the afternoon was arraigned in municipal court charged with assault with intent to murder Charles Angelopoulos at Peabody, Mass., on July 16. He pleaded not guilty, and the case was continued for further hearing until next week, with bail fixed at $2000.

Tournament of Laconia Gun Club. Laconia.—The first registered tournament of the Laconia Gun club was held here Saturday with a large attendance from all parts of the state. The first prize for amateurs was won by S. W. Putnam. The special professional prize was won by J. H. Chapin.

Doctor is Injured. Tilton.—In leaving the home of a patient Friday the carriage of Dr. Edward F. Houghton went into a deep ditch. It overturned, throwing the doctor out, who received a cut on the face and one leg was injured. He was also badly bruised and shaken up.

Exeter Has Canning Industry. Exeter.—The Exeter Canning company, a new industry here, began operations last week. String beans are the first product to be canned, but later corn, pumpkins, squashes and apples will be canned. The company employs about 70 hands and is an important industry for this vicinity.

Industry the Best Capital. I began life with a sixpence, and believe that a man's best capital is his industry.—Stephen Girard.

THE EASTERN THEATER OF THE WAR

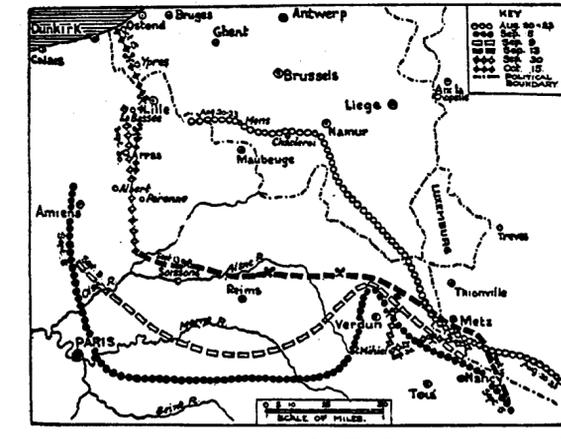

celebrated by a strong attack from the French fortified sons of Verdun. The German retreat was as orderly as that of the French and English had been. The invaders took up an admirable defensive position. It ran just north of the Aisne river, on a series of bluffs, then just north of Chalons and through the wooded, rough regions of the Argonne and the Woivre, joining hands here with the troops besieging Verdun. The allies have tried this line in vain ever since. Both combatants now tried to turn the west flank. Enormous bodies of cavalry. On the part of the French there was largely the desire to link up with the Belgians, now being attacked in Aoutwerp. The mighty siege guns of the German made short work of the Belgian report, however, and it fell on October 9. The remnants of the Belgian army retreated along the sea coast and the Germans in a final rush reached Ostend (October 15). The line extended to the sea. The battle line of the Aisne was now extended to the sea, the Germans holding the important French city of Lille, while the allies kept Ypres in Belgium and, partly by flooding the lowlands, held the position of the Yser river and canal. From October 16 to November 10 was fought the desperate first battle of Ypres, when the Germans suffered enormous losses in attempts to break through the line in Flanders and reach Calais. They succeeded in pushing back the allies only a little and the invasion of Silesia by the Cossacks finally induced them to desist and send reinforcements to Russia. The Germans in September had performed the feat of pushing a salient into the French line south of Verdun, which terminated on the west bank of the Meuse river at St. Mihiel; while the French had taken the offensive with some success in Champagne at about the same time. For the most part throughout the winter the fighting, consisted of regular siege warfare, with heavy artillery combats and mine and counter-mine. The flooding of the River Aisne from winter snows gave the Germans a chance to entrap the French troops on the north side of that river in the vicinity of Soissons for a considerable distance and kill or capture most of them (January 14). Take Offensive in Spring. With the spring, the French and English attempted to take the offensive at several points. In the Vosges the dominating height of Hartmannswillerkopf was taken and retaken several times in sanguinary charges and finally remained in the hands of the French. The salient of St. Mihiel was also subjected to tremendous French pressure on both "legs." The French succeeded in gaining a little ground, but the Germans, despite the apparent weakness of the sharp wedge they had driven into the French line, could not be dislodged and later succeeded in regaining some of the territory they had lost. The British also reported "victories" at Neuve Chapelle and Hill No. 60, in Flanders. Whether these should be accounted successes for the allies is doubtful. The British suffered enormous losses and at Neuve Chapelle bungled affairs to the extent of shelling their own men who had taken German trenches. The next development was the unexpected use of poisonous gas fumes by the Germans in attacks just north of Ypres. With this novel weapon they succeeded in taking several small villages and more than compensating for the British gains south of Ypres. The losses of the French, Canadians and British were severe, but they succeeded in stemming the German onslaught effectively a few miles back from their former position. Begin Series of Attacks. The German line makes a salient at Soissons, though not such a pronounced one as at St. Mihiel. The French now began a series of attacks on the upper side of this salient, to the north of Arras. Expending hundreds of thousands of shells, they time and again blasted away the barbed wire entanglements and concrete trenches, held by Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria's men, and then charged across the desolate ground for slight gains. The fighting centered about the sugar refinery of Souchez and the great German work called the Labyrinth. Fighting went on in cellars and tunnels below the earth and the casualties were heavy. The French bent the German line and captured the Labyrinth, but whether the gains justified their sacrifice in human life is questionable. In July, Crown Prince Frederick William's army attacked in the Argonne region, west of Verdun, and succeeded in gaining several hundred yards of shattered woodlands and capturing several thousand Frenchmen. There were rumors that the Germans were re-entrenching for another great drive toward Calais or Paris, but the Teutonic campaign in the West continued to wait upon the crushing of the much weaker enemy in Poland. they are a matter of routine they are never hurried. Not Altogether His Fault. Eddie had traded a nice pocket knife for a forlorn-looking dog, minus his tail. His father teasingly reminded him that he got the worst of the bargain, as the dog had no tail. Ed sobbingly answered, "Well, daddy, he was sittin' down when I traded." Penalty of Progress. When we get telephones that can be seen through every woman will have to look into the "mirror" before she answers a call.—Toledo Blade.

TAKE PLEASURE IN HAGGLING. Tibetans Will Not Be Denied the Joys That Accrue From the Sense of Bargaining. "Mornin' time, bargain time!" calls out one of the peddlers by the wayside in Tibet cheerfully as he sees you returning from a glimpse of the snows at sunrise. Your bid him come to you, and from one of the innumerable pockets concealed in his voluminous robe he will produce a perfect little jade cup, or a Tibetan coffee pot or gold, copper and precious stones, or perhaps a huge lump of rough turquoise hewn to look like a crouch with a tiny gold Buddha reclining on it. Then comes the bargaining, in which he and all his friends take part against your single self. It can all be done by signs and smiles and patience and in the long run you will get some things well worth having at a very reasonable price. "Poor Dobbie! He was the victim of an unfortunate automobile accident yesterday." "Goodness! What happened?" "He fell into casual conversation with a smooth-tongued person who turned out to be an automobile salesman and sold him one." Its Yearnings. "I see they are going to establish a jitney line in Manila." "Ah! Then I suppose the jitney service is that for which the Philippines." When a man goes in for reform work he begins at home.

CAMPAIGNS IN THE WEST

The first month and a half of the western campaign was made up of startling, swift moves. On September 12, after the defeat on the Marne, the Germans took up defensive positions along the Aisne river. The ten and a half months since then have seen a long deadlock. The battle line of the Aisne and the Oise quickly extended northeast to the sea. Fighting has been continuous with tremendous losses. The general situation has remained unchanged, gains of a few miles for one side at one point offset by minor gains for the enemy in other sectors. At the beginning of August the Kaiser took possession of the little state of Luxembourg and demanded passage through Belgium to the Franco-Belgian frontier. Permission to pass denied, Von Elern attacked Liege (August 4), while other German armies passed around the city and swept over the level Belgian roads at a terrific rate. The little Belgian army yielded Brussels and fell back to Antwerp and Ghent. First Big Engagement. Not until the Germans had almost reached the French border did the first important engagement take place. This is generally known as the battle of Mons-Charleroi (about August 20-25), but at the same time there was severe fighting along the whole line through Thionville in Lorraine and along the Vosges in upper Alsace, which the French had invaded with temporary success. This battle resulted in defeat for the French and English. While obtaining some successes in counter-attacks on the advancing Germans at Peronne and at Guise, the French were obliged to fall back rapidly to the line of the River Marne. On the left the French had withdrawn to below Paris and the westernmost German army, under Von Kluck, followed. The garrison of Paris was put in thousands of motor cars and hurried on Von Kluck's flank. The latter was not taken entirely unawares and met the attack strongly, but at the same time the army of General Foch attacked the German army on Von Kluck's left and drove it back. Driven Back From Paris. The Germans had begun the battle with five armies in line. The withdrawal of the two farthest west now caused the retreat of the third, fourth and fifth in that order, each in turn finding its flank exposed by the withdrawal of the troops on its right. At the same time the movement on the east end of the German line was ac-

CAMPAIGNS IN THE EAST

The first twelvemonth of fighting between the Russians on one side and the Austrians and Germans on the other is a story of great changes of fortune, both combatants being repeatedly driven back only to show the greatest resiliency in defeat and soon to resume the offensive in a most surprising manner. Russia's losses in the first year of the war are not approached by those of any nation in any war of history. Slow to Mobilize. On August 1, 1914, Germany declared war on Russia. Almost immediately the Germans crossed the frontier at Thorn and the Austrians south of Lublin. They were practically unopposed because of the slowness of mobilization in Russia. The Grand Duke Nicholas, Nicholasievich, was forced to gather his main armies well to the rear of the line of great fortresses running through Kovno, Grodno, Ossowetz, Novo Georgievsk, Warsaw and Ivangorod. On account of his desire to do all he could to relieve the French, who were being driven from northern France by the amazing German rush through Belgium, Nicholas attacked sooner than he otherwise would have done. As a result, he met two disasters. He sent General Samsonoff into East Prussia from the south and General Rennenkampf into East Prussia from the east, the latter winning the first large engagement of the war in the East at Gumbinen. At this moment the Germans, believing that the French were well in hand and about to be surrounded on their eastern frontier, quickly withdrew 250,000 men from France and hurled them by rail into East Prussia, where they fell upon Samsonoff with crushing force in the great German victory of Tannenberg (Aug. 28). Meanwhile, the Austrians, leaving only a few troops in Galicia to hold back the Russians advancing from Tarnopol on the line of the Galia-Lipa, struck the Russians en masse at Krassnik and routed them to Lublin. Most Bloody Drive of War. With two armies in difficulty, the grand duke decided to abandon one to its fate and save the other. He threw re-enforcements into Lublin and ordered the line of the Galia-Lipa river to be forced at any cost. In one of the most bloody drives of the war the Russians advanced into eastern Galicia and occupied Lemberg. The Russians then advanced to Rawa Ruska and took the Austrian armies in Poland in the rear, cutting them up (rightfully). Meanwhile Von Hindenburg had completed his victory over Samsonoff by turning on Rennenkampf and clearing East Prussia of Muscovites. But though Rennenkampf had been defeated and Samsonoff almost annihilated, the Germans. The Russians were now as far west as Tarnow in Galicia, while their Cossacks were able to make raids into Hungary farther south. Hindenburg concentrated a great force suddenly in Silesia and began a drive from the west against Warsaw and Ivangorod. The Siberian corps arrived in the nick of time to save Warsaw from the enemy. Hindenburg then drew off the northern section of his army in Poland to the north, thinking to take the pursuing Russians in flank with the southern army. But the Austrians were too slow to carry out the field marshal's plans and the Russians, slipping into a gap in the lines between the Germans and their allies, slaughtered the latter. The result was the

THE JUDGE SAYS—

The Judge Says— Put a package of these real corn flakes—these New Post Toasties on trial beside a package of any other corn flakes on the market. The jury will bring in a verdict of "guilty"—guilty of being the finest corn flakes ever made. The New Post Toasties are crisp and appetizing, with a true corn flavour; and they don't mush down when milk or cream is added. But here's the real test. Take a handful, fresh from the package, and eat them without cream or milk. Mighty good, aren't they? Notice the little "puffs" on each flake—a distinguishing characteristic—resulting from the new method of cooking and toasting, which also brings out and enhances the wonderful, true corn flavour. Your Grocer has the New Post Toasties. Try them and bring in your verdict— "Delicious"

A Souvenir of Solferino. The recent Solferino anniversary recalled not only the occasion of a great victory by Italians over Austrians, but also the birth of the Red Cross. "Un Souvenir de Solferino" was the title of the work that stirred the conscience of Europe. It was written by a young Swiss, Henri Dunant, who had been among the nurses at the front and seen the sufferings of the wounded. That "souvenir" brought an invitation to Dunant from the Geneva Society of Public Utility to propose an international scheme of trained nurses—involuable—under guarantee by all nations. It was that pamphlet which brought the signing of the Geneva convention in 1864, with the Red Cross on white ground in compliment to Henri Dunant's country.—Westminster Gazette. Battleship Services. Every day on every British warship, whether in the North sea, or bombarding the Dardanelles, or guard-

The "church" itself is the deck, the part chosen being as sheltered a position as possible. The sailors' favorite hymns are those dealing with the sea, particularly "Almighty Father, Strong to Save." There is one thing about these services on board ship; every Jack Tar is keen on attending them; and that

The State Chemist Sends The Following Report From His Office in Concord

Notwithstanding the recent protracted rains, this water shows no evidence of the entrance into the supply of any objectionable bacteria, as a result of wash of water shed. There is however rather more color and turbidity than we usually note, and this is probably no more than might be expected, in view of the weather conditions. The chlorine (salt) content is somewhat reduced over the normal, being suggestive of the dilution involved.

The Winchells have returned to their home, leaving Master Alfred at Elm Tree Ranch for a season.

George Wilson, of Franconstown, was a caller at Maple View farm on Friday.

Friends of Mrs. Lillian Knapp Tenney and husband, of Keene, extend congratulations on the birth of a son on Saturday.

Mrs. Celestia Eaton, Will Eston and wife and Mr. Aiken, of Fitchburg, Mass., were callers at Brookside farm on Saturday, coming with a car.

Boys at the Mt. View House, 2 miles away, captured a large turtle at the river some time ago; it escaped and last week had reached Riverside farm on its return trip, when it was again captured but allowed to go. It would fill a large dish pan, the largest we have seen for some time.

The hail storm of Sunday made havoc with the cornfields; the hardest bit we think was Mr. Haefell's, nearly one half of which was destroyed.

Mrs. Rokes is doing nicely. She has been cared for by Mrs. French and Miss Lulu Young as night and day attendants. Ralph Edmund is the new boy's name.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

WITH BARNS FULL OF STOCK

Didn't Look Much Like Hard Times in Western Canada.

A Meyer, who left one of the best Counties in Minnesota, probably because he got a good price for his excellent farm, and left for the Canadian West, writes to his local paper, the Bagley Independent. His story is well worth repeating. He says: "To say I was greatly surprised when I reached Saskatchewan and Alberta would be expressing it mildly. In a country where so much suffering was reported, I found everyone in good circumstances, and especially all our friends who have left Clearwater and Polk counties. They all have good homes and those who were reported to have sold their stock through lack of feed, I found with their barns full of stock, and it did not look very much like hard times. They have from 160 acres to two sections of the finest land that can be found. Those that left here two or three years ago have from 100 to 400 acres in crops this year. Prospects for a bumper crop are splendid. It is a little cold now, but nothing is frosted, either in gardens or fields. Land can be bought quite reasonably here from those who volunteered their services in the European war. Here are certainly the best opportunities for securing a good home with a farm and independence for life in a short time. Before I started I heard that prices were so high. Flour was reported at $12 per hundred it is $4.25 here. In the west all the groceries can be purchased for nearly the same as in Minn. The only article that I found higher was kerosene at 35 cts per gallon. When I saw the land I wondered why people do not live where they produce enough from the soil to make a comfortable living. We visited T. T. Sater, John Dahls, W. J. and R. D. Holt's, Martin Halmen, Ole Halvorson, Wm. Walker and Geo. Colby, all from Bagley. We found well and prosperous farmers who wished to be remembered to all their Bagley friends." (Sgd.) A. MEYER.—Advertisement.

Perfectly Natural. "So you were a witness in a lawsuit?" "Yes." "Did the opposing attorney bother you much?" "Not at all. He kept interrupting me so much that it seemed I was at home telling my story and ma was correcting me as I went along." Going to an Extremes. "Bliggins has an idea that he can run the universe." "Yes, I understand he is training a pet groundhog so that he can be sure of having the kind of weather predictions he wants every year." Why He Failed. "I understand his marriage was a failure." "Yes; he tried to run it the way he ran his business." "How do you mean?" "He was never in the office." Giving Him the Hee Haw! She—How do you happen to be called Jack? He—Oh, it's just a nickname. Why? She—I didn't know but it was an abbreviation. Conversational Discretion. "People are not supposed to tell all they know," said the cautious person. "No," replied Miss Cayenne, "especially in these days of popularized science." In Self-Defense. Applicant—Be youse th' gint wot advertised fer a porter, sor? Hotel Proprietor—Yes, but I stated in the ad that all applications must be made by mail. Applicant—Faith, an' do youse tink Ol'm a fatter lookin' loik a female, sor?

Going to the Limit. "What is your opinion of government ownership?" "It's a great idea," replied Senator Sorghum. "If the government owned everything and had to pay all its own taxes a lot of my constituents would be better satisfied."

Sympathy. Mrs. Gray—The window in my hall has stained glass in it. Mrs. Green—Too bad! Can't you find anything that'll take the stains out?

The Newcomer. Nurse—It has its father's hair. Father—I am glad it's being kept in the family. Nurse—An' it has it's mother's voice. Father—Lord help it!—Life.

Drawing the Line. "Imitation is the sincerest flattery." "Maybe," replied Mr. Cumrox. "But I don't like to have a stenographer copy my mistakes in grammar."—Detroit Free Press.

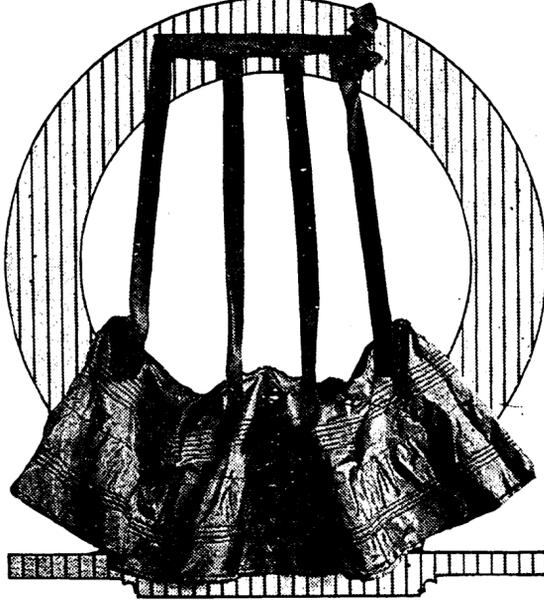

Summer Vogue of White Fur

If there is one thing in the world more becoming than all others, it is the white fur neckpiece. In spite of the calendar and with or without the consent of the thermometer, this neckpiece has flourished through July and shows an undiminished head in August. Its vogue probably came about through the chilly weather in the early summer at San Francisco. All the gay world having journeyed thither, found a fur neckpiece comfortable. All the world recognized the becomingness of white fur and took heart at its appearance in the month of roses to make a vogue for summer furs. Let us be thankful that the majority of the neckpieces with which the wayward devotees of fashion have chosen to bedeck themselves are not really of white fox. They are as far from the fox as the goat is, or the Belgian hare, or whatever else those clever manipulators of skins know how to fashion into things of beauty.

There would surely be few foxes left if every white neckpiece cost the life of one. These summer furs are worn with white turbans or small white hats, with best effect, although they appear with all other midsummer millinery. In the picture a turban of white satin supports a frill about the crown which gives it the appearance of a Tam-o-Shanter. At the left it is decorated with a bead ornament. The hat, the neckpiece, and the dress of cross-bar taffeta, made up with plain taffeta, are all forerunners of fashion and reliable indications of the coming mode. However unreasonable it may appear for the fair wearer of fur to cling to it where no keen wind blows, she may be excused. A white fur neckpiece is really a good investment. The opportunities for wearing it stretch through this summer to the coming winter and to other winters beyond. White furs, especially for youth, will be good style, at least as long as any furs continue to be good style.

The Skeleton Petticoat

A founce suspended by ribbons, to be worn in place of a silk petticoat, is the very latest device for comfort and style. Everyone wants the fashionable flare at the bottom of skirts, and everyone likes the elegance of silk in petticoats. But no one wants added warmth about the body, or bulk about the hips, and here is the solution to the flare without anything else to hamper its wearer. The skeleton petticoat is merely a more or less fancy and fluffy founce of silk suspended by ribbons from a ribbon belt. The very practical one shown in the picture is made of bright green taffeta silk. Eight lengths of green taffeta ribbon suspend it from a belt of the same ribbon which ties in a small bow about the waist. This is a good color to wear with almost any street gown. A petticoat of this kind to be worn with lingerie gowns is made of white taffeta in a founce having decorations of figured taffeta. The figured taffeta—usually a flowered pattern on a white ground—is cut in strips two inches wide and "pinked" along each edge. These strips are sewed together and plaited into very full bows to form a narrow ruching. This is sewed in festoons to the white founce. The belt is made by covering a flat elastic cord with narrow taffeta ribbon shirred over it. The ribbons suspending the founce are sewed to this belt and to the founce. No fastening is required, as the elastic cord holds the petticoat in place about the waist. A similar petticoat is made of light shell-pink taffeta and satin ribbon, with narrow ruffles of the ribbon set on the founce in three overlapping rows. The ways of developing the founce with ribbon and lace decorations are innumerable. This petticoat will commend itself to the stout woman especially, and to anyone who wishes to be as lightly clothed in warm weather as it is possible to be.

ERECT FIGURE CORRECT. The fashionable girl of 1915 appears on the scene with a beautiful, erect figure, a free swing to her walk and with clothing of sufficient width to permit her to be graceful in her carriage. The stooped shoulders with head bent forward and slouching gait, once assumed by those who wanted to attain the extreme in styles, have entirely passed and, like an old-fashioned dress of several seasons ago, will be discarded by those who care enough for fashion to change their manner of carrying themselves.

A Daring Little Vixen

By FLORENCE L. HENDERSON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

It does not matter which side had my sympathies. I was strictly a neutral. I was a neutral, as well, in a sense that was humanitarian. I was benefiting Germans and allies alike, I was under the protection of both, I, Carl Isberg from the far North, but understanding English, French, German and something of low Dutch besides.

To me one day came Professor Abarbanel at Munich. His big goggles took me in affectionately. We had been good friends. More than that, I had been a faithful servant and was proud of it. We had mutually shared much of peril.

"The supply has run out," he announced to me, and I knew what he meant, and my face fell and then expressed an irresistible relief that was born of selfishness—and love.

The supply of what? you will ask. I will reply artlessly. That is not the word, but you would understand it no better if I said diatose-radii, or kokan-lubrica. Enough to say that artlessly was a drug, the formula of which was held only at Munich by a firm becoming rich, vastly rich because of the fact.

Its use among the wounded and dying in hospitals at the battle front was the final relief for excruciating pain. It subdued the last pangs of the dying. It was a nepenthe for the tortured agonized wretch half shot away and through its qualities allowed a peaceful, painless death.

How the arrangement was evincement I never knew, but Professor Abarbanel, as the distributor for the Munich house, had safe conducts through the camps of every nation in Europe. The panacea was minute in bulk, and almost priceless. Its vital ingredient was imported, war conditions had shut this out, and the precious supply had "run out," the professor said. This was not literally true, but it meant that its manufacture had ceased. I was given a proportion of what was left, was to deliver it at Paris and my labor was done. Other agents were dispatched to Russia, Italy, England. Forestalling what I knew must come, I had got word to Vice-Admiral Burtelle, the father of my fiancée, of my plans. I had the drug and my earnings of well-nigh a year secreted under my shirt. I had other funds at home in America and was in a position to wed my peerless Adele.

The Polaric, war ship, was to convey me to a point on the Belgian coast, where I was to be landed by small boat. Thence there was open territory by sea or land to French or English ports, as I chose.

I knew that Vice-Admiral Burtelle was in the vicinity of Alle, a town just beyond the Holland frontier. His present marine command was the charge of the Seeker, an inspection cruiser of small type. It had done some wonders in discovering mines set for the unwary and in venturing, spy fashion, into perilous waters. The craft had extraordinary speed. I did not know if Adele might be with her father. I hoped it and counted on being welcomed by both of them at the seaport town of Vranches. Just about one hundred miles over the Belgian border.

We steamed away boldly enough and the night passed and the day broke with smooth, untruffled progress our lot. The Polaric was worth studying in its superb armament and I was interested in all that I saw. At various points the craft met brother marines and stopped at several ports to disembark some soldiers, to land some ammunition. It was about three o'clock in the afternoon when we sighted a bounding, speeding marine flying the tricolor.

There was great animation on deck. The officers were in consultation, their subordinates were sent scurrying from point to point. "Who is she?" I heard one of the officers sing out to the lookout man.

The answer came definitely: "The Seeker." I was more than interested. She seemed coming toward us and one of the big guns was trained in readiness for a try at her. Just then there was a new commotion. Out from a cliff-guarded inlet there set out one of the largest men of war I had ever seen. Her bulk was fairly enormous. She steamed along slowly, clumsily. The officers of the Polaric were manifestly troubled. Then I overheard one of them cry out: "I see the game!" "What is it?" sharply challenged his companion officer.

"We have headed off the Seeker and she is making for the protection of the big marine. Set position to give the little one a shot as she passes in range." "She is a daring little vixen!" "Yes, and troublesome—a worry to the admiralty, with her quick ways and daring dodgings. It will be a feather in our cap to end her. Get her sure and the admiralty will see to promotions."

The Seeker seemed heedless of peril She seemed resolute to dart past us. The big cruiser seemed to be her goal. I moved nearer to the swivel gun, mounted and leveled. An officer handed me his glass. I looked once and shuddered. "Great heavens!" I exclaimed, irresistibly. "What is that?" sharply asked the officer.

"Nothing," I stammered, and handed back the glass. "Thanks." I stood electrified upon the gun deck of the Polaric. I had made out the commander of the Seeker, the vice-admiral, and fearlessly viewing the outlook of collision or attack, was a girl wearing a bright tri-color knot on her left shoulder, a favorite adornment of the girl I loved.

Then Adele was with her father! It was now a race, the Seeker getting to the shelter and protection of the big cruiser before the Polaric could half intercept and get a square shot at her. As the Seeker neared, neared, neared, the Polaric maneuvered. The gunner had his clear pulse, for the Polaric had shut down steam and was nearly motionless. As the gunner watched and waited, I followed the swift course of the Seeker with distended eyes and bated breath. I saw the Seeker come squarely across our bow. The gunner sighted. Then he drew back and his hand reached out for the electric switch which ignited the cap fuse. Aloft the lookout kept the focus of his glass shifting with the progress of the Seeker. It was the hazard of a second. A whistle rang out—the signal. My love! I had but an instant to think. I pretended to slip clumsily. A curse echoed in my ears as the gunner, torn from the electric switch, went flat, I on top of him. Then rapid orders rang out. The Polaric shifted to get in new range of the scudding runaway. They were all but ready when a startling, remarkable thing transpired. The Seeker made straight for the bow of the big cruiser. Two mammoth sheet steel doors swung open. Into the arms of the cruiser darted the Seeker. The giant gates reclosed, shutting the Seeker out of view, secure in the safety well of the mother ship.

FARM POULTRY

BUILDING UP POULTRY FARM

Necessary to Make Right Kind of Start and Work Must Be Faithfully Performed Every Day.

(By MICHAEL E. BOYER.) A poultry farm built upon a secure foundation is sure to be successful if it is afterward properly managed. It is not only necessary to make the right kind of a start, but the work must be regularly and faithfully performed day in and day out.

As a rule beginners start with great enthusiasm, and not a few build air castles, but to many of them the sameness of the work, the close application, the constant watching, soon become monotonous, and then there is a shirking of duty, neglect, carelessness, and the enterprise becomes a failure.

The point is to begin small—measure the size of the initial step with the amount of capital and experience at hand. It is often the case that men with more or less available capital, practically put all their money in houses and stock. This is a mistake, and more so in the case of those who have no personal experience in the work. In the parlance of today, "a man must be on his job." He must know what to do and how best to do it. He must be aware that inexperience may cause leaks, and leaks will soon sink the enterprise.

It is a noteworthy fact that most successful poultry farms of today are those that have started from a small beginning and gradually expanded as business and experience warranted. Men who would not go into the dry goods business for the reason that they knew nothing about it, will build houses and stock them and expect the hens to do the rest.

Hens, like cows, yield a profit according to the treatment given them. They will not stand neglect. They are hard workers when properly managed and rewarded, but they can be the most idle and indifferent producers when made to shift for themselves. Our agricultural colleges have done much to teach the new aspirants how to tread in poultry paths, and men and women who endeavor to improve of these excellently arranged courses of instruction will have won half the battle—the other half naturally belongs to practical experience.

A man with $1,000 would better invest one-half of it in buildings, stock and fixtures and reserve the other half for feed and running expenses, than invest the entire amount in the equipment and have to go in debt for the feed.

Eggs and poultry are staple crops and the demand is far greater than the supply. This country needs more poultry farms, and they will be successful when properly built and managed. But the beginning must be small and the growth gradual so that every part of the work is promptly noted and carefully and correctly performed.

When Spot Played Cupid. I was acquainted with a sweet young widow, had known and visited her occasionally for about two years. Among her late husband's possessions left to her was a small fox terrier, a great pet of mine. While calling one evening the dog, Spot, jumped on my knee and tried to lick my face.

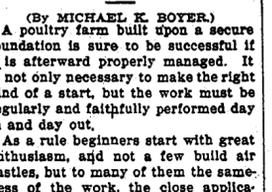

"Mel, don't let him lick your face," and she called the dog, who quickly jumped on her lap. Patting the dog, she said to it: "I think Mel is as fond of you as I am. Ask him would he like to own you himself. But he must never take you from me—I must go too, wherever you go."

I called the dog back to me and said: "Doggie, tell your missus I want to own you." I own both now. God bless the dog—I never had the nerve to propose.—Chicago Tribune.

What is a MS. Worth? What is the value of a stolen manuscript of an unproduced play? The author had to set a value in a lawsuit last week. In such a case the bias is naturally in favor of the play. But once in search for a lost umbrella on New Scotland Yard I encountered a friend who had lost the only copy of his play in a cab and had come in search of it. It was produced, for the cabman was honest. What was the value by which to fix the cabman's remuneration? My friend's bias swung to modesty. He fixed the worth of his play at the cost of typesetting. The cabman got a shilling—more than my friend ever got from his play.—London Chronicle.

LOVE in a HURRY

BY GELETT BURGESS
ILLUSTRATED BY RAY WALTERS

SYNOPSIS.

Hall Bonistelle, artist-photographer, prepares for the day's work in his studio. He is reminded by Flodie Fisher, his assistant, of a party he is to give in the studio that night, and warns that his business is in bad financial shape. Mr. Dorvum, attorney and justice of the peace, calls and informs Hall that his Uncle John's will has left him $4,000.00 on condition that he marry before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight that night.

Flo die tried to speak, hesitated, couldn't. "I—think so—" she finally got out. Then, timidly: "Yes, I'm sure she would!"

"By jove, I'll try it!" he exclaimed. "Who is she?"

Flo die almost broke down. She crept up to him timidly. "Why—why, you know, Mr. Bonistelle, don't you?—why, you must know! It's someone—she stopped and swallowed—" someone you see—very often." She couldn't look him in the face, but stood waiting fearfully, trembling.

"Lord, if I could do it!" Hall went on to himself. "Four millions! Before midnight!" He paused, gazing at a corner of the ceiling. "Oh, by jove!" he exclaimed suddenly. "I know now! You mean Rena Royaltan! Why, I never thought of her, before! Of course. Yes, that's a fact! She did call me Hall, the last time I saw her, didn't she?" He turned to Flo die.

"See here, Flo die, you're clever—how the deuce did you know?"

Flo die clutched at her heart and bit her lip to keep back the tears. He put it to her direct. "Is it Mrs. Royaltan, Flo die?"

Flo die's smile was a triumph; it had in it a dozen different meanings. It was wonderful in its beautiful renunciation; but it took a full minute for her to control herself, and, meanwhile, she bustled herself with the tray.

"Yes," she managed to say finally, and choking, she walked rapidly back into the office.

Hall stood and thought it over. He took out his watch and looked at it anxiously. It was already ten o'clock. Once he shook his head. It was too outrageous; then the humor of the affair seized him and he laughed harshly aloud.

Flo die's white face appeared in the doorway. "What is it?" she cried.

"I've got it!" he shouted. "We'll have the wedding tonight. The guests are invited already, and they can't get at the rice. How's that? Won't that be great? Flo die Fisher, you've saved my life!"

"Yes, I'm Sure She Would!"

He grabbed her and whirled her round in a crazy waltz, till she broke away in anguish. "Oh, Mr. Bonistelle," she began, "I'll just have to tell you. I can't bear it—"

At that moment there was a sound of the hall door opening.

"What is it?" Hall said. "Anything I can do for you? Want to be a bridesmaid, or what?"

Flo die turned, looked, and saw. "Oh, nothing!" She put her hand to her head, as if it were aching. "There she is, now!" she sighed. "Mrs. Royaltan!"

"Good! Tell her I'll be ready in just a minute!" Hall rushed into the dark room to load his plate-holders.

Flo die went wearily into the office with a curt "Good morning, Mrs. Royaltan," and made a brave attempt to smile.

Vastly condescending always, was Mrs. Royaltan, to her inferiors: suave and flattering to those she admired. She wore white, with a purple hat.

"What's the matter, child? Been crying, haven't you? What in the world does a young girl like you have to trouble you?"

"Oh, waiting on customers, for one thing!" Flo die tossed her head like a bill.

Mrs. Royaltan didn't, apparently, get the sarcasm. "Well, you don't seem to wait on them very much! Isn't Mr. Bonistelle ready for me yet?"

Flo die started to reply, then changed her mind. "I don't know," she said, "I'll see."

Hall was blinking, from the dark room, loaded plate-holders in hand.

"Oh, Mr. Bonistelle," Flo die whispered despairingly, "you aren't going to propose to her, are you? Oh, don't, please, Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Well, what's the matter now? I thought you wanted me to."

"Oh, but I don't now!"

"Flo die! You're crazy! Don't you worry! It'll be a happy day for you, little girl, when I'm married! I'll see that you get a better job than this! Say, where's that other plate-holder?"

"Over on that shelf. Oh, Mr. Bonistelle, you'll be awfully unhappy! I know you will!"

Ha stopped impatiently.

"Unhappy! With four millions, Flo die! With a private yacht—a country house—a villa in Italy, perhaps—automobiles—a valet—by jove, I guess not!"

Her face was absurdly distorted with pain and anxiety. Her fists were clenched. She summoned her courage for the last despairing stroke. "Oh, she—paints, Mr. Bonistelle! She paints her face like a clown! You wouldn't—"

Hall laughed aloud. "For heaven's sake! Is that what's troubling you? Now, I suppose she's the only woman who does it in all New York! Well, put your mind at rest, Flo die; I'll promise to reform her after we're married. Tell her to come in."

Mrs. Royaltan wandered into the studio. She began, as usual, with a simper and a smile. "I don't know that I ought to shake hands with you, Mr. Bonistelle! You're a bad, bad boy! Why haven't you been to see me, all this long while?" She filled the place with her dulcet personality.

Hall inspected her sagely, as one inspects a valuable object he is expecting to purchase, seeing her, as it were, for the first time. His first remark lacked conviction. "Oh, I've been busy—Rena! That 'Rena' barely saved it."

"Busy! Oh, you're always too busy for poor little me! I'm sure you'll take a horrid picture of me—and I did so want to get a good one today!" Mrs. Royaltan rattled on, taking off her veil and inspecting her hair in the cheval glass. She twitted him on his impoliteness, she made her big eyes bigger. She did the spoiled child kitenishly.

Hall still seemed distraught. He broke away nervously and went to work. It was his custom to engage his object in conversation, permitting her to change position, talk, drink tea, flirt, or gesture as she would, while she was unaware, and before she began to wonder why he did not begin, to have managed the exposure of some dozen plates, from one or two of which he was pretty sure to achieve a triumph of art and naturalness.

But, at the mercy of his obsession, this method was impossible today. Hall was too busy making up his mind, and could not do two things at once.

"You're not paying a bit of attention to me," she pouted. Mrs. Royaltan, babyish, was a picture for a cynic.

But Hall was too engrossed in his own thoughts. He caught her with an unlit finger, cried "There!" and slipped in a plate. "The fact is, I am a bit worried today," he confessed. "Just look a bit over that way. That's right! Fine!" He deftly pressed the bulb.

quiescent, tantalized. Finally he sat down beside her on the couch under the window, stretched out his hand and obtained hers without much trouble and felt it softly. She stared at him excitedly.

"You know, Rena, the reason why I haven't been to see you, don't you?"

"Oh, some other woman, I'm sure." "No; I just didn't dare. I hadn't the courage."

She drew her hand away, but permitted it to be recaptured with ease. "You must know what I've been thinking," he went on. "You must have seen it in my eyes."

"Why, your eyes look all right, Mr. Bonistelle. I haven't any idea what you're talking about!" She was a forty-year-old baby, now.

"I wish I could see some of it in your eyes, Rena!"

"What in the world? See what?"

"I've admired you ever since I first saw you, Rena!" He plunged in, now, over his head. He shut his eyes for the jump, to give it intensity. "I can't get you out of my mind—I love you, Rena, didn't you know that?"

She moved away, as if a bit alarmed, and withdrew her hand. "Why, Mr. Bon—Hall! I had no idea you thought of me in that way. It's absurd. You haven't known me but a few weeks—"

"Oh, I've known you long enough. I've been desperate about it—"

Hall began almost to mean it. "Rena, you're the only woman I ever loved!"

"Hall,"—she paused and gave him a long languishing look. "Why, I can't law." "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee. This is the portion of the Christian. He has peace with God, and the peace of God, and the God of peace bestows this, for 'there is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.' He knows that he is disobeying God, and he is all the time fearful. 'Who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.'"

Besides, he is conscious of an unseen force which is continually working against him. 'The way of the transgressor is hard,' we are told. Yes, God makes it hard, in order that the sinner may weary of it, and turn his feet into the path of righteousness. 'Behold I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and I will make a wall against thee.'"

As surely as all things work together for good to them that love God, so surely does God work against the sinner. The same love which prompts him to send blessings to the righteous, leads him to send hindrances and warnings to the sinner. The sinner calls it bad luck, but he suspects that it is something more, even the deliberate purpose of God.

2. Not to be a Christian costs the sacrifice of the highest joy. I do not say that the Christless man will have no joy. He may know the joy of health, and friendship, and domestic life; he may acquire money, and power, and fame. But there are nobler joys than those which he loses. He cannot know the joy of sin forgiven, or the comfort and companionship of the Holy Spirit, or the joy of becoming like Jesus Christ.

It is God's purpose that all his children shall be joyful—full of joy. 'These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.' How different the feeling of the Christless soul! A visitor who was calling on the great Bismarck expressed the hope that he might live many days, and this was Bismarck's reply: 'There is only one happy day left for me. It is the one on which I shall not wake up again.'

3. Not to be a Christian costs the sacrifice of the highest success in life. Everyone wishes to make the most of himself, but this is impossible unless he yields his life to Christ. God has a plan for every life, and this plan alone assures the highest success. Does not God know what is for the creature's good better than the creature himself? It is folly to think that one can live in God's world and achieve success, and yet disobey the laws of God—

Remember that money and popularity and power do not constitute success. One may have all these and yet be a consummate failure. The true object of life is to know God's will and do it, and the Christless soul misses that completely.

4. Not to be a Christian costs the loss of heaven. The penalty of having one's own way here, is to be assigned hereafter to a place where everyone has his own way, which is hell. That is what makes it hell. Heaven is a place where no one has his own way, but all delight to do God's will. That is what makes it heaven. The Christless soul has no hope of heaven, and even if he had, he could not enjoy it. Heaven would be hell to one who is not heavenly minded, to one who does not love Jesus, and who does love sin.

The Christless soul must prepare to part forever from all his dear ones who have chosen Christ; his mother who taught him to pray, his faithful wife, his children whose little hands have long been beckoning, to woo him home to heaven. When Dwight L. Moody died he looked up and said, "Is this death? If so, it is glorious. Earth is receding, heaven is opening. God is calling me." Instead of this welcome, the Christless soul will hear the sad words, "Depart from me."

Yes, it does cost something to be a Christian. It may cost you the sacrifice of some pleasure, some companions, some money, but not to be a Christian will cost you the loss of peace, joy, and real success. It will cost you the loss of your soul. It will cost you heaven.

"What shall it profit a man if he gain the world world and lose his own soul?"

What It Costs Not to Be a Christian

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?—Mark 8:36

People sometimes refuse Christ because of the sacrifice involved. It costs too much, and they are not willing to pay the price. Yes, it does cost something to be a Christian, but it costs far more not to be a Christian. Let us see what it costs to live and die without Christ.

1. Not to be a Christian costs the sacrifice of peace. 'O rest peace have which which love thy law.' "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee. This is the portion of the Christian. He has peace with God, and the peace of God, and the God of peace bestows this, for 'there is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.' He knows that he is disobeying God, and he is all the time fearful. 'Who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.'"

Besides, he is conscious of an unseen force which is continually working against him. 'The way of the transgressor is hard,' we are told. Yes, God makes it hard, in order that the sinner may weary of it, and turn his feet into the path of righteousness. 'Behold I will hedge up thy way with thorns, and I will make a wall against thee.'"

As surely as all things work together for good to them that love God, so surely does God work against the sinner. The same love which prompts him to send blessings to the righteous, leads him to send hindrances and warnings to the sinner. The sinner calls it bad luck, but he suspects that it is something more, even the deliberate purpose of God.

2. Not to be a Christian costs the sacrifice of the highest joy. I do not say that the Christless man will have no joy. He may know the joy of health, and friendship, and domestic life; he may acquire money, and power, and fame. But there are nobler joys than those which he loses. He cannot know the joy of sin forgiven, or the comfort and companionship of the Holy Spirit, or the joy of becoming like Jesus Christ.

It is God's purpose that all his children shall be joyful—full of joy. 'These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full.' How different the feeling of the Christless soul! A visitor who was calling on the great Bismarck expressed the hope that he might live many days, and this was Bismarck's reply: 'There is only one happy day left for me. It is the one on which I shall not wake up again.'

3. Not to be a Christian costs the sacrifice of the highest success in life. Everyone wishes to make the most of himself, but this is impossible unless he yields his life to Christ. God has a plan for every life, and this plan alone assures the highest success. Does not God know what is for the creature's good better than the creature himself? It is folly to think that one can live in God's world and achieve success, and yet disobey the laws of God—

Remember that money and popularity and power do not constitute success. One may have all these and yet be a consummate failure. The true object of life is to know God's will and do it, and the Christless soul misses that completely.

4. Not to be a Christian costs the loss of heaven. The penalty of having one's own way here, is to be assigned hereafter to a place where everyone has his own way, which is hell. That is what makes it hell. Heaven is a place where no one has his own way, but all delight to do God's will. That is what makes it heaven. The Christless soul has no hope of heaven, and even if he had, he could not enjoy it. Heaven would be hell to one who is not heavenly minded, to one who does not love Jesus, and who does love sin.

The Christless soul must prepare to part forever from all his dear ones who have chosen Christ; his mother who taught him to pray, his faithful wife, his children whose little hands have long been beckoning, to woo him home to heaven. When Dwight L. Moody died he looked up and said, "Is this death? If so, it is glorious. Earth is receding, heaven is opening. God is calling me." Instead of this welcome, the Christless soul will hear the sad words, "Depart from me."

Yes, it does cost something to be a Christian. It may cost you the sacrifice of some pleasure, some companions, some money, but not to be a Christian will cost you the loss of peace, joy, and real success. It will cost you the loss of your soul. It will cost you heaven.

NOT A MATTER OF FIGURES
Number of Churches or Synagogues Seem to Be of Relatively Little Moment.

"Is it progress to go to church or not to go to church?" asks Dr. Ernest C. Richardson of Princeton university. Thereupon he answers the question in this wise: "What is almost the last word that can be spoken on universal progress at the present stage of affairs was once spoken by that most gracious and polished author of the most scholarly 'Life of Our Lord,' Dr. Samuel J. Andrews, apropos of this very matter."

"An enthusiastic apostle of Christian endeavor in a quiet library reading room was holding forth in noisy conversation on the wonderful progress of the church in these later times.

"Why, just think of it," he cried, "there are twelve hundred churches (if it were twelve hundred) in the city of Philadelphia alone today; twelve hundred churches, just think of it!"

"Doctor Andrews looked up from his book at the strenuous declaimer and remarked quietly, 'And there were eight hundred synagogues (if it was eight hundred) in Jerusalem at the time when Jesus Christ was crucified.'"

Scottish Lodging Houses.
Glasgow has seven municipal lodging houses, six for men and one for women. They are stone buildings, three to five stories in height, and of the most substantial character. Each lodger has a separate room, with bed and chair. The bed has a wire spring, a hair or fiber mattress, coarse sheets, a blanket, a coverlet, a pillow and a pillowcase. These are aired, cleaned and washed after the lodger has gone in the morning. The total number of bedrooms in the seven houses is 2,235.

Perverse Human Nature.
"Is it true that poverty improves a man's perspective?"
"I doubt it."
"Then, how about riches?"
"The result is the same. When a man's poor he can't appreciate the simple life because he has to live it, and when he's rich he can't appreciate the simple life because his doctor recommends it."

Not Under the Circumstances.
"Were you surprised to hear of Jones' death?"
"Not at all. I knew he was being attended by a physician."

Slander.
Slander, sir! You do not know what you are doing. I have seen the most respectable persons almost overwhelmed by it. . . . At first a light sound, skimming the earth like a swallow before the storm, very softly (pianissimo) it murmurs and purrs and sows in its course poisoned arrows. It is on somebody's mouth, and softly, softly (piano, piano), it glides slyly into your ear. The evil is done. It is born, it creeps, it walks; and with growing power (rinforzando) it goes from mouth to mouth diabolically. Then, all of a sudden, I can't tell you how, you see slander straighten up, hiss, swell and grow tall before your very eyes. It springs, stretches its wings, whirls, envelops, seizes, carries off; it flashes lightning, it thunders and becomes a hue and cry, a public crescendo, a universal chorus of hatred and proscription. Who, indeed, could stop it!—Beaumarchais.

Canada is Calling You to her Rich Wheat Lands

She extends to Americans a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

This year wheat is higher but Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help to feed the world by tilling some of her soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think what you can make with wheat around $1 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain growing.

The Government this year is urging farmers to put increased acreage into grain. Military service is not compulsory in Canada. There is no conscription and no war on lands. The climate is healthful and agreeable, railway facilities excellent, good schools and churches convenient. War by Post Card.

Romance and patriotism are gratified in northern Italy just now by the circulation of a postal card showing angels descending from heaven to place the flag of Italy on the Cathedral of Trieste, while a group of bersagliers, Italy's popular and picturesque soldiers, look on at the proceeding. The postal card originated in Venice and has gained an immense popularity.

There are no tourists in Venice and the vendors of glass beads and postal cards are having a hard time. This card has been a godsend to these people. Copies are sold as fast as they can be produced.

All Italy is flooded with them and it is said that the Austrian censors at Trieste are fairly snowed under by the storm of cards that have descended there. Naturally they are rigidly suppressed in Trieste. They are circulated among the Italians there with a gusto that is only intensified by the secrecy necessary to the proceeding.

Too Much in the Background.

Victor Emmanuel, king of Italy, was not always so popular as now. Early in his reign a man approached him and said that for entirely too long the people had not seen him "except on stamps." The remark always stuck in the king's memory.

Tricky Detective Work.

An Omaha detective, seeking to discover a man's past history, sent him a fake dispatch saying he had fallen heir to $4,000,000. He was required to prove his claim, and in trying to, disclosed the desired information.

BEFORE THE RECEPTION.

"I do hope the Dobbs won't be present tonight."
"Why not?"

Chief Object of Travel.
"I have always wanted to go around the world."
"Why don't you go now, grandpa?"
"Why, I am eighty-five years old."
"But you are hale and hearty."
"True. I am able to stand the trip. But I couldn't hope to live long enough to get my fill of talking about it."

Something Unusual.
"You can't always judge a man by his clothes," remarked the moralizer. "That's right," rejoined the demoralizer. "Why, I know a millionaire merchant in Chicago who actually dresses as well as one of his $10-a-week clerks."

The Limit.
"The boob is terribly henpecked, isn't he?" remarked the old fogey.
"Should say he was," replied the grouch. "Why, his wife is making him learn to breathe through his ears so he will wake himself up when he snores."

Fired, All Right.
"I overheard somebody in the barnyard, yesterday, say you were going to be singed," said the strutting hen.
"Oh, very likely," replied the rooster. "I was fired into this world by way of an incubator, and I suppose I'll be fired out by way of the crematory."

SAVE YOUR CALVES
Raise Them Without Milk
Why throw away money by knocking them in the head or selling them for a dollar or two at birth when they can be raised or vealed WITHOUT MILK at a fraction of the cost of feeding milk. You profit both ways selling the milk and still have the calves.
The Best Milk Substitute to Use is Rydes Cream Calf Meal
the most successful milk substitute on the market—the standard of perfection. Thousands of farmers are using it and cannot say enough for it. It is NOT a stock food—it's a complete food that long experience has proved to be right for rearing calves. It contains all the nutrition of milk prepared in the most digestible form and is sold on a money back guarantee to give results.
100 lbs. equal to 100 gallons milk—Try it on your calves.
