THE REPORTER'S COMMENTS

On Matters of Current News, Given our Readers in a Condensed Manner

Henry B. Quinby, former Governor of New Hampshire at the exchange of ideas on our preparedness, said: "We should have a navy three times as large as the one we now have. At the battle of Gettysburg General Lee and General Meade had 634 guns and today we have not as many as that. It will take two years of constant work to provide ammunition for those we have. There is only ammunition enough to keep our coast defense mortars going for perhaps half an hour and our big guns about three-quarters of an hour. We have but no long-distance torpedoes. We have but eight first-class battle-ships. There are seventy-seven ships tied up at the docks for want of repairs or want of men.

Of the seventeen submarines but one could dive and be sure to come up. If an enemy should land on our shores it could settle matters in six weeks' time, so that it would be useless for us to continue the contest.

The fault cannot be laid at the door of the Democratic party. I am as good a Republican as the average, but I am prepared to say that the Republican party is equally guilty.

As Americans, without regard to party, we should start a propaganda of preparedness. We should return to our homes and stir up a sentiment that will cause the people to say to the Congressmen: "You must drop politics in your consideration of appropriations for the army and navy or we shall elect Congressmen who will."

The American people by this War, have been raised from their Rip Van Winkle sleep and they now understand what would happen if a country should come to our coast and decide to assimilate us.

What good would it do us if we could assemble an army of 10,000,000 men or 15,000,000 men to colors if, when they got there they found no arms or ammunition? We should be ready to meet any invaders, no matter who they are or where they come from."

Mrs. Harry Logan Tucker, daughter of Gen. John A. Logan, has circulated a petition in Washington, D. C., declaring that the women of this country are now demanding military training. She is asking that the War Department authorize a woman's camp to be conducted on the general plan of the business men's camp now at Plattsburg, N. Y. Mrs. Tucker and her mother believe that this camp can be established this fall, but if not then early next spring.

New York is stirred by the rumor that Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has been authorized by the Chinese Government to place orders with American submarine builders for 100 submarines, at a total cost of $75,000,000. Mr. Schwab has also been given charge of the manufacturing in this country of China's naval program.

100TH SESSION

Dublin Baptist Association at Antrim Church

The One Hundred Sixth annual meeting of the Dublin Baptist Association was held in the Baptist church in Antrim, on Wednesday last, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

The devotional service in the morning was in charge of Rev. G. F. Sibley, of West Swanzey; followed by a business period. Rev. G. E. Crouse, of Chesham, was chosen Moderator, and Rev. Sibley, Clerk. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. Donald Fletcher, of Fitzwilliam. An address on "The Northern Baptist Education Society" was given by Rev. R. A. Sherwood, of Keene.

Dinner was served by the local church, the committee in charge being Mrs. Edward E. Smith, Mrs. D. H. Goodell, Mrs. Charles E. Pease, Mrs. Ernest C. Martin, Miss Mildred Grant, Harry B. Drake, B. J. Wilcham, and Claire Goodell.

The afternoon session opened with a service in charge of Rev. F. Sibley, of East Jaffrey. At the closing session it was voted to hold the next annual meeting with the

The New Hampshire College Extension Service will hold an Orchard Field Day at Wilton, on Sept. 10, in the orchard of H. R. Chase, which is quite near the depot. Good speakers have been secured and a profitable meeting will doubtless be the result.

Great interest is being taken in the attitude of the British Labor men who refuse to maintain relations with German and Austrian labor federations because "never again" they say will they sit in conference with the representatives of a nation which applauded the wholesale murder of 1,400 unarmed men, women and children as when the Lusitania was sunk without a moment's warning.

Ten thousand dollars have been offered to Theodore Roosevelt if he joins the English colors. George Gess, a real estate dealer living at 1640 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, will hand over a certified check to T. R. if he will shoulder a musket and start for France. Mr. Gess says: "I voted for Roosevelt three times. When he ran for Governor of New York I supported him, and I even went so far as to leave the Republican party in his behalf. But he talks entirely too much for me. I want to see him back up some of his remarks. I want to see him start out like a real fighting man, and if he does I have $10,000 I shall hand him." Mr. Gess says other German-Americans living in Brooklyn would double the sum.

The feature of the afternoon's program was an address by Rev. D. S. Jenks, secretary of the New Hampshire Baptist Convention, on "The Los Angeles Convention." After musical selections by Mr. Winslow, there was a discussion on "The Church and Social Service." The "Woman's Hour" was in charge of Mrs. Tewksbury, of Osaka, Japan. Rev. G. F. Sibley of West Swanzey, presided at the Sunday School Convention, which completed the afternoon's meeting.

In the evening the session opened with a praise service led by Ralph G. Winslow, followed by prayer by Rev. G. E. Crouse, of Chesham. An address on "How Big is the Sunday School?" was given by Rev. F. F. Peterson, of Boston. "The Five-Year Program" was given by Rev. P. H. J. Lerrigo, M. D., of Boston.

Guests and delegates from the Baptist churches in ten towns covered by the association were present, many of whom remained here over night.

The entertainment committee included Mrs. Richard C. Goodell, Deacon Fred A. Dunlap and Mrs. Clara Abbott. Transportation, Deacon R. C. Goodell, Deacon H. A. Hurlin, C. S. Abbott, R. J. Abbott and E. F. Tenney.

OAK PARK FAIR

The 16th Annual Exhibition a Successful One

The 16th annual exhibition of the New Oak Park Fair, at Greenfield, was held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday last. Weather conditions were ideal and a large crowd of people from all towns in this section of the Granite State were in attendance. In all ways it was a successful fair.

Many who have followed the fairs for years and always attended Oak Park fair declared that never before was the exhibit of cattle, horses, neat stock and agricultural products as good as this year.

The floral hall was the center of interest to many. It was literally overflowing with flowers, vegetables, exhibits of the skill of the housewife in canning and in needle work—while the display of antiques was especially attractive.

The midway was clean, and furnished amusement and entertainment for young and old. Sheriff Stearns and Deputy Boisvert attended the fair Wednesday and found everything O. K. Sheriff Stearns stated that the fair had improved greatly and that it was a most orderly affair this season. No straight gambling devices or games were allowed on the grounds.

The ball game on Wednesday between Milford and Hillsboro was a walk-over for Milford, 6 to 3. Early in the game Milford took the stride for a successful lead and was never in danger of losing it. The ball game on Thursday was the best of the entire three days. Greenfield and Roxbury A. C. crossed bats and for 14 long innings it was nip and tuck between the two teams. Lynch of Antrim was the twirler for Greenfield, while Cotter was in the box for the visitors. The game abounded in feature fielding and grand-stand catches.

The vaudeville was particularly entertaining. "Houdini's rival" was "right there" and succeeded in amazing all with his skill in extricating himself from seemingly impossible positions.

The races were well up to the usual standard. Gilmore's horses captured first money in four classes. Other winners were Cavanaugh, of Manchester, Adams, of Bennington, and Fletcher, of Fitchburg. Gilmore was from Townsend, Mass. Between the heats of the races several interesting events took place. The prize bull, a registered Jersey, entered by the Upland Farms, of Peterboro, and which was awarded the Noone silver cup given by Hon. A. W. Noone, appeared harnessed to a sulky and was put through several stunts to the great delight of the spectators. Mr. Noone, himself, who takes much interest in agricultural pursuits, was present at the fair both Wednesday and Thursday and thoroughly enjoyed the various events. He personally congratulated the driver of the bull, but although repeatedly urged by Congressman Watson to make a speech, the former candidate for gubernatorial honors failed to respond, disappointing many of his friends who would have enjoyed hearing him.

Music during the three days was furnished by the Hillsboro band. E. H. Clover, secretary, was untiring in his efforts to make the fair a big success, and to him largely as well as to the other officers and committees is due a considerable amount of praise and congratulations for the unequalled success of the 16th annual fair of the New Oak Park Fair Association. Congressman Watson, President of the association, was on the job, and was one of the busiest men in the county Wednesday. He acted as starter, timer and judge, and announced the winners of the races.

Miss Eva Thompson of Antrim won first prize on ladies' driving horse.

E. E. Cummings, of Antrim, won $10 cash on his exhibit of poultry.

HILLSBORO HUMBLLED TWICE

Antrim White Sox Win Both Games Labor Day, and Also Win the Series

"General Gloom" reigned in the trenches of the Hillsboro camp Monday night—Labor Day—after "Herr Von" Crowell and his army of ball players finally beat an ignominious retreat from the Antrim ball grounds after a terrific all day's battle, in which they were practically wiped off the base ball map.

The Antrim White Sox had no difficulty in thoroughly walloping their opponents, 7 to 3 in the forenoon and 14 to 1 in the afternoon. By winning this double-header Antrim forces Hillsboro to be content this year with but three winnings in a series of eight games, while our home boys pull out ahead with five victories.

MORNING GAME

The morning game was pretty soft for our "Benny" Lynch. For the first five innings his opponents retired 1-2-3 with the single exception in the 4th when Crowell made a nice 2-bagger. With a player on third and second, in the 6th Lynch tightened up and struck out Crowell. At no time was Antrim in danger of losing the game, as they had it sewed up from the second inning.

Lynch was "right there" in the morning game

Hagiman, Hillsboro's pitcher, was an easy problem for our White Sox, and together with poor support partially accounts for the first game.

AFTERNOON GAME

We venture to say that Hillsboro will never forget the afternoon game on that memorable Labor Day—Sept. 6, 1915. With Saunders of their home town as umpire the game started off.

During the day both games were characterized by good fellowship and an absence of the unnecessary talk which has marred the meetings of these teams in former years.

Purcell, pitching for Antrim, was a wonder, and the visitors were trimmed

Purcell endeared himself to the Antrim girls by his superb pitching

14 to 1, almost shut out and with but one hit.

Murphy started in the box for Hillsboro but in the sixth he was so badly mutilated and pounded out of shape by our heavy sluggers that he was mercifully removed, and Hagiman was called on to assume the role of twirler. Between the two of them they granted twenty-one hits, one of which was a splendid drive by Dick Cuddihy for three bases.

Lookin' for a Bat With a Hit in It. All day Hillsboro was striving to find a bat that would hit the ball

It was a practice game for Antrim in which everybody fattened their batting average.

THE WEEK'S BIG NEWS EVENTS

Happenings That Caused A Stir Briefly Chronicled.

SITUATION AT WASHINGTON

Executive Acts at the Capital—Victories and Defeats of the Great War—Deaths in the Forty-Eight States Recorded.

War Bulletins

Berlin reported the loss of 80,000 British soldiers in assaults by the Allies on the Turks in the Gallipoli peninsula fighting during August. A British submarine, navigating the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora and the western entrance to the Bosphorus, turned north in the Golden Horn and blew up a portion of the famous Galata bridge, spanning the Golden Horn and connecting Galata with Stamboul. Rome announced the Austrians as in retreat from two points in Val Sugara and along the upper Isonzo, in the face of the Italian advance. The Paris "Temp's" correspondent at Sofia, confirmed the report of a Turko-Bulgarian agreement, and stated that Turkey is supposed to have promised military aid to Bulgaria in case of war against Rumania, Serbia and Greece. Six hundred persons were killed during the recent bombardment of the German base at Zebruggen, on the Belgian coast, according to an interview in Amsterdam with a traveller who just returned from Belgium. The defeat by Field Marshal von Mackensen's troops of Russian forces, which made a stand south of Kobryn while retreating in the marshy districts east of Brest-Litovsk, was reported. The Russians' lines of defense, already badly shattered and scattered, were smashed anew by the combined Austro-Hungarian and German armies in Galicia as well as Poland. Italian aviators completely wrecked the Austrian aviation base at Divassa, east of Trieste, according to the official Rome statement. A dispatch from Constantinople said that the situation at Sedd-ul-Bahr has practically unchanged except for material losses and gains on both sides.

Washington

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo returned from his vacation and was the guest of President Wilson at luncheon in the White House. Under a new ruling, U. S. naval authorities decline to pay the postage on postcards advertising the service, which sailors are requested to send to their friends. The Department of Agriculture predicted that the cotton crop would be approximately 11,800,000 bales. The Postoffice Department announces the establishment of a three weeks' instead of a monthly, service between San Francisco and Samoa. An investigation by the War Department reports that United States army officers drank a toast to the Germans arms in a Seattle cafe was ordered by Secreary Garrison. Standing with no protection from the rain President Wilson reviewed the 2,000 militiamen of the District of Columbia at Washington. The Department of Commerce made public figures showing that the steamship Eastland, nine and ten years ago, carried as many as 3,000 passengers across the Great Lakes. Admiral Bush, commanding the naval station at Honolulu, reported to the Navy Department that the F-4, the submarine which sank March 25, with loss of 21 lives, has been raised. Frank L. Polk has accepted the position of Counsellor to the State Department.

General

The disabled Japanese cruiser Asama, which went ashore near Turtle Bay, Lower California, arrived at San Francisco. John F. Seaman, one of the commissioners who drew up the recent commercial treaty between the United States and China, died at Bar Harbor. The plant of the American Steel Foundries Co., at Granite City, Ill., which has been closed since Nov. 1, last, will resume operation. Canada imported almost 62 per cent. of the brick and tile and more than 66 per cent. of the pottery exported from the United States in 1914. The safe in the Elford, Pa., post office was blown open by robbers and between $200 and $300 in stamps were stolen. A group of business men at Portland, Ore., will offer the management of the city of Portland to General George W. Goethals. The offer will call for a salary of $25,000 a year. Three men were killed when two trains loaded with eight tons of high explosives exploded in the Hercules Powder Co.'s plant at Pinole, Cal. The Aero Club of America received a check for $10,000 from Mrs. William H. Bliss. The money will be used for aviation training. The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey reports an increase of gross earnings for July of $120,000.

NEWS OF THE GRANITE STATE

Russo-Japanese Fund Income Allotted WHICH AMOUNTED TO $900

Store Robbed in Barton, Police Got Two Men and a Woman—Auto Kills Four-Year-Old Boy.

Concord—At the close of the successful peace negotiations at Fontenoy several years ago, at the close of the Eastern war, New Hampshire was offered a fund of $20,000. This was accepted and it was decided to establish a charitable fund, the annual income to be divided. The trustees of the fund met last week and allotted the income, amounting to $900, as follows: Cottage hospital, Portsmouth, $200; and the following institutions $100 each: Sacred Heart hospital, Manchester; St. Patrick's orphanage, Manchester; Bethesda Home for Needy Children, Rumney; New Hampshire Humane society, Nashua; Centennial Home for the Aged, Concord; Laconia hospital, Berlin District Nursing Association.

Had Been Robbing the Barton Store. Manchester—Several sales girls in the Barton store noticed three suspicious acting characters in the store one day last week and a policeman in citizen's clothes was detailed to watch them. Before the day was over he had arrested two men and a woman who had their pockets filled with articles bearing the Barton mark. A visit to the rooms occupied by the trio showed a large quantity of miscellaneous articles, most of it bearing the Barton mark, and including gloves, hosiery, handkerchiefs, waists, jewelry, and numerous other small articles. A trunk belonging to the woman was completely filled with goods. The parties have only been in the city a few weeks, but it appears the thefts have been going on for some time.

Auto Kills Four-Year-Old Boy. Dublin—While Frank B. Farley of this town was driving his auto on the Keene road, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oja suddenly appeared from the side of the road directly in front of the machine. Mr. Farley was running at a moderate rate of speed, and in trying to avoid the boy ran his machine upon the bank, overturning it and throwing the occupants out. He could not avoid the child, however, which was struck by the car and injured so seriously that he lived only about an hour. The car was somewhat damaged when it was overturned but none of the party was injured.

Rescue Aged Blind Man. Bedford—The cottage house of George P. Carr was discovered to be on fire one afternoon last week, and neighbors knowing that John Simpkins, 80 years old and totally blind, was in the house, rushed to the spot. They succeeded with considerable difficulty in getting him from the burning building and to a place of safety. The house was a total loss. There had been a chimney fire early in the day, and Mr. Carr had watched until four o'clock, when he supposed it was safe and left it. The loss is about $1500.

Saved from Watery Grave. Manchester—Richard J. Murphy, a well known landlорd, started out in a boat on Lake Massabesic on a fishing trip. While arranging his lines he lost his balance and went into the water. He uttered desperate cries for help and was swimming for his life. Friends went to his relief, caught him by the shoulders and stood him on his feet in less than two feet of water. He could have easily waded ashore when he went overboard.

Strike on State Road. Manchester—Work on the new state road at Massabesic was entirely suspended last week by a strike of Italian laborers. They demanded $2.25 for a nine-hour day and a Saturday half holiday. They allow no work to be done, although otherwise quiet, and refused to let a man all the red danger lanterns which are used at night.

Rollins is Elected President. Franconia—The New Hampshire Forestry conference held its annual session here last week. Former Governor Frank W. Rollins was elected president. Allen Hollis was chosen secretary and George T. Crufts president.

Coal Heaver Meets Terrible Death. Concord—As the 7.05 Boston train was coming into the station Wednesday evening of last week the engine struck M. Deaute, a coal heaver in the employ of the Boston & Maine, and he was dragged under the engine trucks about 600 feet until the train stopped. He was crushed beyond all recognition and a roll of bills in one of his pockets was so mangled that it did not contain a whole bill. It is not known if the man had any relatives here.

Foreign The Austrian Minister of the Interior gives the number of cases of cholera in that country as 929. The United States scoutship Chester arrived at Canea, Crete, with 470 refugees expelled from Beirut, Syria. The first bale of Georgia cotton received at Liverpool was sold at auction for $750. The proceeds were donated to the English war relief fund. The body of one of the sailors of the submarine F-4, now in dry-dock at Honolulu, was found in the middle compartment of the wrecked submarine after a search of several hours. Berlin newspapers assured the people that the substitution of iron for nickel in the minting of ten and five pennig coins is only temporary. Edwin Emerson, an American citizen, is held in Geneva, Switzerland, on a charge of writing articles reflecting on the President of the Swiss Confederation. An officer and 16 members of the British training ship Cornwall were lost when that boat was in collision with a tug in the Thames river. The president of police at Berlin favors the prohibition of the selling of whiskey after 7 in the evening.

Afternoon Costume for the Informal Dance

This easy and comfortable-looking afternoon gown of taffeta with a lace bodice, might lack just the requisite crispness if it were not worn with a dashing hat that draws its inspiration from Spain. This last item in the costume is decidedly new in style and one sees this Spanish idea in evidence wherever the new millinery modes are displayed.

The hat is made of velvet over a frame having a fat brim and a soft, puffed crown. A narrow band of velvet encircles the crown at its base. Small silk-covered balls are set about the brim-edge and two sprays of flowers, in vivid-colored velvet, set in dark foliage, are applied flat to the brim. It is posed at a saucy angle on the head by means of a bandeau, which lifts it at the left side. A scarf of soft silk is draped over the bandeau and finished with a loop and two pointed ends that hang toward the back. They are weighted with the little balls set about the point.

The bodice of black lace over white chiffon is cut in kimono fashion, with sleeves extending below the elbow. The open throat is finished with small revers of velvet, and a strap of velvet extends down the front. Little pearl buttons, set close together, and a narrow fancy braid at each side, decorate it.

The skirt is plain and gathered with a little standing ruffle about the waist line. The bottom is finished with shallow scallop bound with the taffeta. It is rather short and, altogether, the dress goes well with the very new hat which is worn to such advantage with it. This costume is an excellent one for general afternoon wear and will please those who are fond of informal dances—the devotees of the dandant.

Embroidered Dress.
A very attractive dress for a child is made in one piece. A collar and bolero effect are gained by means of embroidery work done in outline stitches and French knots. If the work is done with colored thread on white linen or fine pique, the two features stand out more prominently. A crushed girdle of linen to match the color of thread used for embroidery is placed rather far below the natural waist line.

A Hat for Every Day and One for Sunday

Although there is no end of variety in the shapes of hats for little girls, the small-brimmed hat promises to continue as a favorite. At least five out of six of all the hats shown may be relied upon to carry a soft, moderately large crown upon a gently drooping brim. The brims are more or less wide and more or less flexible, the wider ones providing the floppy, gracefully curved lines about the face that suit girlhood so well.

A hat for daily wear, to and from school, or otherwise, and one of velvet for dress-up are shown here. They are selections from a number of thoroughly practical hats for little girls. The hat for school wear is made up in several novel weaves in woolen fabrics and has a plain crown and a flexible brim. Machine stitching is an important factor in its make-up. The brim may be turned up or down at any position. The crown is quite plain and finished at its base with a band of the same material as the hat. Color contrasts and novel patterns in the material are the factors that place this hat above the commonplace.

The hat at the right is of brown velvet with soft puffed crown and plain brim that suggests the poke-bonnet style. A full ruffling of tan-colored ribbon is gathered about the junction of the crown and brim. Near its lower edge it is gathered in a tiny ruffle and sewed to the upper brim. There is a full bow with short-standing loops and longer hanging ones at the back. One small, metal blossom rests on the brim at the left side.

There is nothing startlingly new or unusual in these hats although the season offers some very pretty innovations for those who are looking for them. There are odd four-cornered brims and hats with crowns made in sections that are laced together with silk cord. There are transparent brims and occasionally one sees birds or flowers, or little chickens, or ducklings, cut out from velvet and applied to velvet hats in a contrasting color.

Blue and White Footwear.
Black and white footwear has been rather overdone in the last few months, although it is still worn by very smart women. But blue and white footwear is not only newer, but less likely to be overdone than black and white. There are some charming blue pumps (navy blue of course), touched with pipings and bands of white kid, and these are worn with navy blue silk stockings, showing white cloaking or narrow stripes of white. This blue footwear is, of course, worn with navy blue frocks.

The KITCHEN CABINET

We are spirits clad in veils:
Man by man was never seen:
All our deep communings fail
To remove the shadowy screen.

SOME CHERISHED RECIPES.

We are apt to forget the composition and preparation of many of the delicious old dishes of our grandmothers, so it is wise to use them occasionally so they may not be entirely forgotten.

Rivet Soup.—Put a quart of milk on to scald. Beat an egg until light, pour, drop by drop, into two tablespoons of flour, well mixed with one teaspoonful of chopped nuts and a teaspoonful of salt. Stir with a fork, and when well mixed roll the rivets with the hands. Drop the rivets into the milk, and when boiled serve at once.

Apple Bread.—Mix together a cupful of cooked dried apple, one cupful of raisins, one cupful each of sugar and walnuts, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves and a half teaspoonful of allspice into a pint of bread sponge. Mix and knead as for bread and let stand until light. Bake in a slow oven for two hours. This will keep for weeks if well wrapped in oiled paper and kept from the air.

Dutch Cabbage.—Chop a small cabbage with one small onion and when fine, pour over the fat from a small slice of fat salt pork which has been cut in cubes and browned. Add the pork, and into the frying pan pour sufficient vinegar to moisten, but not make the cabbage wet. Add seasonings of salt and red pepper. Pour over the vinegar boiling hot and serve at once. This is a dish that you will not be allowed to forget, for everybody asks for it again and again. The secret of the palatability of this salad, as is true of all salads, is the seasonings. Taste it often to get the right proportion of salt, pepper and vinegar. If the vinegar is very acid and you need quite a little moisture, dilute the vinegar with water.

Steak With Olives.—Broil the steak until properly cooked, season well with salt, butter and pepper and place in the oven to keep hot. Put a tablespoonful of butter in a sauce pan and when bubbling hot add a half cupful of finely-chopped olives; when hot pour over the steak. Serve with baked potatoes.

MORE GOOD DISHES.

A nice change from the everyday dishes will be found in the following:
Calves' Liver Vermicelli.—Put five slices of bacon in a frying pan, cut in small pieces and fry until crisp; add a small onion chopped; cook until brown; add a tablespoonful of flour and a fourth of a pound of chopped liver; stir and cook, then add three-fourths of a cupful of strained tomato, and cook until thick. Add a half teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet and a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper and a curfule and a half of cooked vermicelli. Heat and serve hot.

Corn on the Cob.—Corn is not always cooked properly. It is either over or under cooked. Corn husks should not be removed until just before cooking. Some cooks prefer to remove all the silk and leave the tender inner husks, tying them at the top of the ear, then remove them when the corn is cooked. Corn should be cooked until the milk is thickened. A teaspoonful of sugar may be added to improve the flavor, but do not add salt until the corn is cooked. Drop the ears into a kettle with plenty of boiling water and cook for fifteen to twenty minutes.

Cornmeal Pancakes.—Take two cupfuls of flour, one-half cupful of cornmeal, one tablespoonful of baking powder, one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt, one and a half cupfuls of boiling water, one and a quarter cupfuls of milk, one egg. Add the meal to the boiling water and boil five minutes, then turn into a bowl, add milk and the dry ingredients, mixed and sifted, then the eggs well beaten, one-third of a cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Cook on a well-greased griddle.

Currant Mint Sauce.—Two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped mint, a glass of currant jelly, cut in pieces, and the grated rind of a third of an orange. Serve with lamb or mutton.

Cornmeal mush mixed with any chopped meat, molded, then when cold cut in slices to fry in a hot greased pan, makes a nice breakfast dish.

Steel Railroad Ties.
Short cuts by walking the tracks will no longer save time, when the railroads have replaced the old wooden ties by those made of steel. The sharp edges of its pigeon-hole construction will make very uncomfortable walking. In Oklahoma, where they have been used for some time, it is declared that they cost much less than the wooden ties, and that they have also been very valuable in keeping trespassers and cattle off the tracks.—The American Boy.

CORNMEAL DISHES.

The old-fashioned Johnny cake is such a favorite that it never goes to waste when nicely prepared and well baked. Take a cupful of yellow cornmeal, a half cupful of flour, a cupful of sour milk, two eggs, a half cupful of sweet milk, two tablespoonfuls each of shortening and sugar, a half teaspoonful of soda and salt. Mix all together and bake in a good-sized dripping pan so that the cake will be thin when done and thoroughly baked.

Another very similar one is sour milk corn bread. Take two cupfuls of cornmeal, two cupfuls of sour milk, two eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and one and a half teaspoonfuls of salt. Cook all the ingredients, except the eggs and soda, in a double boiler for ten minutes. Allow the mixture to cool, add the well-beaten eggs and the soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of cold water.

Cornmeal Crisp.—Take a cupful of sour milk, a cupful of cornmeal, a half teaspoonful of salt and soda. Mix well and pour into a hot frying pan, well greased with fat; set in the oven to bake. Split and spread with butter when serving.

Steamed Corn Bread.—Sift a cupful of flour with one and a half teaspoonfuls of soda and one teaspoonful of salt; stir in a cupful of cornmeal, add a half cupful of molasses and two and a quarter cupfuls of sour milk. Mix thoroughly and put into a well-buttered pan or mold. Fill two-thirds full, cover and steam for five hours.

Cornmeal Mush.—Into a quart of salted boiling water add a cupful or more of cornmeal, gradually; do not make it too thick, as it needs long cooking to make it wholesome. Stir and cook for a half hour or longer if a larger portion is used. Pour out into a dish to cool. To serve, cut in slices and fry in hot fat. Serve it fresh and hot with good, rich milk and you will have a fine supper dish. The New England people like a little dried codfish served to eat with the mush. This will supply salt, so that the mush need not be oversalted.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE TO EAT?

On baking day when it is hard to think of an easy dessert try these dumplings: Add enough shortening to bread dough to make a rich biscuit; mold as for biscuits, and let stand until light. Have ready some sweet or dried apples with an abundance of juice. When the dumplings are light, dot with butter and pour the hot fruit juice over them. The more juice the more delicious will be the dumplings. Sprinkle with sugar, dust with cinnamon and bake a half hour in a hot oven.

Combination Salad.—Take any kind of cold meat you happen to have left over, or different kinds will do. Grind the meat, then add one large, mellow apple, chopped fine, one-half cupful of chopped celery, three hard-cooked eggs, minced; one chopped onion, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a few dashes of red pepper. Mix all together and add any salad dressing.

Eggs.—Take any chopped meat of left-over fowl, beef or pork, add to sauerkraut with water and boil for three hours. This may be served reheated and will be good as long as it lasts.

Oatmeal Sausage.—Take stock in which meat has been cooked and when boiling hot thicken with oatmeal, season well with salt and when nearly done add some chopped cooked meat. Pour out into a dish and when cold slice and fry. Good for a breakfast or luncheon dish.

Mock Chicken.—Put into a double boiler one cupful of milk; add salt and pepper and a few grains of curry. Let this boil, then add two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, stirred smooth in a little cold milk. To the whole add a cupful of cold roast pork, chopped or cut in dice. When thoroughly hot serve with toast as creamed chicken.

Pohomac.—Place a layer of cooked macaroni and cheese in a baking dish, then a layer of chopped ham, then a layer of mashed potatoes left from dinner. Pour over three-quarters of a cupful of milk; season well and bake brown.

New Coast Defense Gun.
A new American coast defense gun is reported to be capable of throwing its shell over 31 miles, when the gun is at 45 degrees elevation. Though this is mere speculation, for the carriage for that elevation has never been built.

The only high-grade heavy guns owned by the United States are the coast defense mortars, of which the latest 12-inch weapon has an extreme range of 19,000 yards, or just under 11 miles.—Leslie's Weekly.

SEGREGATE SICK HOGS

Cholera Is Not the Only Disease Troubling Swine.

Alling Animals Should Be Taken From Herd and Isolated Until Nature of Disease Can Be Fully Determined Upon.

(By D. H. PRESTON HOSKINS, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

The importance of a correct diagnosis, where hog cholera is suspected, cannot be over-estimated. Hog cholera serum, administered to a herd thought to be infected with cholera, but in reality suffering from some other disease, usually means time and effort wasted, and, if the treated hogs keep on dying, distrust of the serum treatment. Except in very unusual cases, either a positive or negative diagnosis of cholera can be made, if there is opportunity for a post-mortem examination. In doubtful cases a post-mortem is always proper.

Just as soon as it is noticed that a hog is sick, it should be separated from the herd and kept isolated until the exact nature of the trouble can be determined.

Diseases which are most frequently mistaken for hog cholera are intestinal worms, various digestive disturbances, lung worms, inflammation of the bowels and necrobacillosis. The last named disease is caused by the same germ that is responsible for sore-mouth and bull-nose of pigs. Most of the confusion of the two diseases arises from the fact that in some cases pigs affected with necrobacillosis will show the speckled appearance of the kidneys which has been looked upon as so characteristic of hog cholera.

Hog cholera serum is of no value in combating any disease except hog cholera.

CARE OF HORSE IN SUMMER

Every Reason for Giving Faithful Animal Best Attention and Liberal Amount of Cooling Food.

During the warmest of the summer days there is plowing and much harvesting work for the horses to do. There is every reason for giving the horse the best of care and attention, and a liberal amount of cooling feed.

It is difficult for you to hustle on hot days and it is just as wearing on the horse. Often you stop the team and rest in the shade for a few minutes several times during the day. Why not give the horses the benefit of the cooling shade breezes?

You drink often and the dumb brutes that are doing the hardest of the work will appreciate an opportunity to drink several times during the day. Better not let the horses gulp water in large quantities unless you want a foundered animal.

How refreshing and restful is a good plunge in the old creek which flows through the backwoods pasture, after a hard day's work. It makes you feel like a new man. And faithful Dobbin will appreciate it if you sponge off the harness marks, especially over the shoulders where the heavy collar has been rubbing all day. Put a little salt into the cold well water so as to make it still cooler.

CARING FOR LATE POTATOES

Tubers Are Too Often Neglected After First Few Weeks of Growth—Use Light Cultivator.

On many farms the potatoes are well cared for during the first few weeks of their growth, but late in the season they are left to take care of themselves.

It is true that deep cultivation, after the plants are fairly well grown, will be harmful, but the occasional use of a light cultivator, with teeth not more than an inch and a quarter wide, may well be continued until the tubers are nearly ripe, or the vines have become so large as to prevent further work between the rows.

The destruction of injurious insects is another matter which usually receives fairly prompt and thorough attention during the first half of the growing season, but which, on many farms, does not receive sufficient attention later on. The fight against the enemies should be continued to the end of the growing season. This will allow the tubers to reach their full size and to become thoroughly ripe. It will also do much to prevent the appearance of large numbers of "bugs" next year.

Drive Out Granary Pests.

When the new grain goes into the granary, drive out the weevils and other pests. A few open dishes of bisulphide of carbon set around will do it. Then close the granary tightly and make yourself scarce while the stuff is evaporating, for the vapor goes downward and you may get a whiff of it, to your great harm. Keep lights and fire away.

MAKE FOR BETTER DAIRYING

Test Product of Each Cow—Keep Posted and in Touch With Modern Ways of Managing Herd.

(By GEORGE C. HUMPHREYS, Wisconsin Experiment Station.)

1. Treat cows gently and avoid excitement.
2. Be regular in time of milking.
3. Keep stables clean, well lighted and ventilated.
4. Weigh the milk of each cow at milking time.
5. Get your neighbor to share with you in owning a Babcock milk tester, and test the product of each cow.

An Excellent Milker.

6. Discard the animals which have failed at the end of the year to pay for their keep.

7. Breed your cows to a pure-bred registered dairy bull from a family having large and profitable production of butterfat.

8. Raise well the heifer calves from cows which for one or more generations have made large and profitable productions of butterfat.

9. Breed heifers to drop their first calves at twenty-four to thirty months of age. Give cows six to eight weeks' rest between lactation periods.

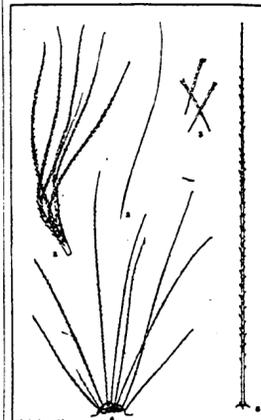

10. Join a dairy cattle breeders' association. It will help you keep posted and in touch with the best and most modern ways of managing your dairy herd.

DESTROY BROWN-TAIL MOTH

Contact With Hairs of Insect Causes Poisonous Rash on Human Beings—Big Menace to Trees.

One of the most serious effects of the presence of the brown-tail moth in a community is that of the peculiar skin disease it may produce. Some of the hairs of the full-grown caterpillar are furnished with minute barbs. When the caterpillars molt these barbed hairs are shed with the skin and as the skins become dry and are blown about by the wind the hairs may be quite generally disseminated. When the hairs alight upon the human skin they cause an irritation which upon rubbing may develop into inflammation.

Men who come in contact with these poisonous hairs during their work in the parasitic laboratory in Massachusetts, use the following remedy for the brown-tail rash: Carbolic acid one-half dram, zinc oxide one-half ounce, lime water eight ounces; shake thoroughly and work well into the affected parts. This has proven a most effective remedy.

According to Doctor Riley, the brown-tail moth was introduced into this country from Europe about the year 1890. The pest has spread rapidly over New England and New York and there is every prospect that it will continue to spread until it reaches the middle and western states. Wherever it goes it will prove a serious pest to man as well as to his trees and plants.

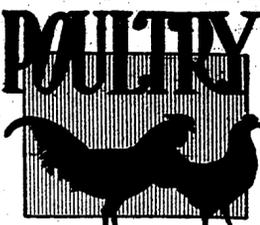

PREVENT BAD TRICK OF COW

Arrange Girth Strap Through Rings So She Cannot Suck Herself—Use Good Strong Halter.

To prevent a cow from sucking herself, put on a good strong halter and a strong strap around her body. Fasten rings in the girth strap, one on each side about level with the side rings on the halter. From these rings to the side rings place two other straps just long enough that the cow can turn her head from side to side, but cannot get it back far enough to suck.

The girth strap should not be too tight. It is better to leave it quite loose and place some small weight on it underneath the cow so the strap will not slip out of place.

Cultivate Garden Crops.
It pays to cultivate garden crops as long as one can get between the rows.

DRY AND WET COMPARTMENTS

Moisture in Incubator Tends to Increase Hatch of Eggs—Also Adds to Weight of Chick.

A test made in April, 1914, by the New Jersey experiment station to determine the efficiency of a 300-egg capacity incubator gave a percentage of hatch of fertile eggs of 77.4 and a percentage in July of 85. Comparing compartments run dry with those run wet it was observed that the latter gave a much higher percentage of hatch as well as an increase in the weight of the chicks, the average weight for the dry being 1.2 ounces, and for the wet 1.25 ounces.

Four brooders of 100 week-old chicks each were fed for nine weeks, two lots receiving a regular chick ration and two other lots receiving in addition all the sour milk they would consume.

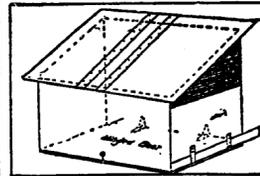

The first two brooders made a total gain of 48.62 pounds and 42.35 pounds and the mortality was seventy-one and seventy-three respectively, while the last two brooders made a total gain of 82.22 and 81.94 pounds and the mortality was twenty-eight and twenty-eight, respectively. It was found to require 3.5 quarts of skim milk to produce a pound of body weight.

It is stated that the skim-milk-fed chicks represented a more uniform flock than those not so fed. It has been concluded that skim milk has the power to kill the organisms which cause many poultry diseases, the bacilli being destroyed by the dilute acid of the sour milk.

DURABLE COOP FOR CHICKENS

Illustration Gives Outline of Sanitary Pen for Confining Chicks—Simple in Construction.

This drawing shows the plan of chicken coop we designed and have been using the last ten years. The coops are made in the winter time when the men are not busy with other work. They are made of 12 and 6-inch soft pine boards. They are 23 inches long, 18 inches wide, 18 inches high in front and a foot high at the back. The roof extends over the side walls about 3 inches on all sides, writes Mrs. S. M. Pophart, in Farmers Mail and Breeder. The floors are hinged on as shown and the coops are painted inside and out. Wire screen is put in the ends as shown, to provide ventilation. The little side door permits chicks to come and go. The material in each coop costs about $1. We use the coops from year to year as they are cleaned out every fall and put away in the dry during the winter. I have never yet lost a chicken in these coops, either by drowning, smothering or through having some animal get in.

Observes 80th Birthday

On August 31st, Mrs. W. R. Cochrane celebrated her 80th birthday by inviting her pastor, Rev. S. P. Brownell and family, and a few relatives of her family to spend the evening with her. The company joined in singing many of the old time songs.

At the request of her son, Mrs. Cochrane sang two solos showing that she had not forgotten how to sing, even at the age of 80.

Although a shut in for the last two years, Mrs. Cochrane is very much at home to her many friends throughout the town and New England. She intends to keep young as long as possible.

The hostess was made happy with cards from out of town friends, and a lovely bouquet, birthday cake and other gifts from dear friends nearby.

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Not So Far that the Statements of its Residents Cannot be Verified.

Rather an interesting case has been developed in Concord. Being so near by it is well worth publishing here. The statement is sincere—the proof convincing: J. A. The kidney secretions were too frequent and caused me much annoyance, especially at night. I didn't rest well and got up in the morning feeling tired and miserable. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is fully closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. E. J. CHERRY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. INFINITELY VAST AND LITTLE.

They Baffle Understanding and Cause Apparent Contradictions in Scientific Facts.

The infinitely little and infinitely vast alike baffle the understanding, developed as it is by our concrete finite life. Creation is typified by the sphere. A circle is a straight line that at every point ceases to be a straight line, and the earth's surface is a plane that every moment ceases to be a plane. Following the surface of the earth does not carry us to the under side, because there is no more an under side than there is an upper side—there is only a boundless surface. But if it were possible for us to build a globe on the globe, as large as the one we inhabit, would it not have an upper and an under side? The rain causes the grass to grow, and the sun causes the snow to melt, but we cannot apply the idea of cause, in this sense, to nature as a whole, but only to parts of nature. Gravitation caused Newton's apple to fall, but what causes the earth to fall forever and ever, and never to fall upon the body that is said to attract it?—John Burroughs, in Atlantic Monthly

Three years ago the city of Paris presented the czar with a wonderful Easter egg. It was incrustated with precious stones and rested on a cushion of the finest silk. The egg was surmounted by a golden crown, in which was an almost invisible button. When the button was pressed the egg flew open and revealed a charming portrait of the czarina.

SEEING LIFE with JOHN HENRY & George V. Hobart

John Henry on Snapshots

WHEN Aunt Martha gave friend wife that new-fangled camera I had a hunch that the dealers in photographic supplies would be joyously shrieking the return of good times and hotfooting it to the bank with the contents of my wallet.

Peaches just grabbed that camera and went after everybody and everything in the neighborhood.

She took about eight hundred views of Uncle Peter's country home before she discovered that the camera wasn't loaded properly, which was tough on Peaches, but good for the bungalow.

Like everything else in this world, picture-pinchin' from still life depends entirely on the point of view.

If your point of view is all right, it's an easy matter to make a four-dollar doghouse look like the villa of a Wall Street broker at Newport.

Ten minutes after friend wife had been given the camera she had me set up as a statue all over Uncle Pe-in exclaiming: "Oh, joy! John, I have developed two pictures!"

I wish you could have seen the expression on Peaches' face.

In order to develop the films a picturesque assortment of drugs and chemicals has to be used.

Well, friend wife had used them. A silent little stream of wood alcohol was trickling down over her left ear into her Psyche knot, and on the end of her nose about six grains of extract of potash was sending out signals of distress to some spirits of turpentine which was burning on the top of her right eyebrow.

Something dark and lingering like iodine had given her chin the double-cross and her apron look like the remnants of a porous plaster.

Her right hand had red, white, green, purple and magenta marks all over it, and her left hand looked like the Fourth of July.

"John!" she yelled. "Here it is!"

"With Both Feet in a Slushy Little Snowbank Representing Nearly-the-North-Pole."

ter's lawn, and she was snapping at me like a Spitz doggie at a peddler.

I sat for two hundred and nineteen pictures that forenoon, and I posed for every hero in history from William the Conqueror down to Doctor Cook, with both feet in a slushy little snowbank representing nearly-the-north-pole.

But when she tried to coax me to climb up on a limb of a tree and stay there till she got the picture of me looking like an owl, I swore softly in three languages, fell over the back fence and ran for my life.

When I rubberbushed it back that afternoon friend wife was busy developing her crimes.

The proper and up-to-date cager in connection with taking snapshots these days is to buy a developing outfit and upset the household from pit to dome while you are squeezing out pictures of every dearly beloved friend that crosses your pathway.

Friend wife selected a spare room on the top floor of Uncle Peter's home where she could await developments.

A half hour later ghastly noises began to come from that room, and mysterious whisplings fell out of the window and bumped over the lawn.

When I reached the front door I found that the gardener had gone, the My goodness, I am so excited! See what a fine picture of you I took!"

She handed me the picture, but all I could see was a woodshed with the door wide open.

"A good picture of a woodshed," I said; "but whose woodshed is it?"

"A woodshed!" exclaimed friend wife. "Why, that is your face, John. And where you think the door is open is only your mouth!"

I looked crestfallen and then I looked at the picture again, but my better nature asserted itself and I made no attempt to strike this defenseless woman.

Then she handed me another picture and said: "John, isn't this wonderful?"

I looked at the picture and muttered: "All I can see is Theodore, the colored gardener, walking across lots with a sack of flour on his back!"

"John, you are so stupid," said friend wife. "How can you expect to see what it is when you are holding the picture upside down?"

I turned the picture around, and then I was quite agreeably surprised.

"It's immense!" I shouted. "It's the real thing all right! Why, this is aces! I suppose it is called, 'Moonlight on Lake Champlain'?" Did this come with the camera or did you draw it from memory?"

"Where is Mrs. Henry?" I inquired.

waitress was leaving and the cook was telephoning for a policeman.

"Where is Mrs. Henry?" I asked Mary, the cook.

"She is still developing," said Mary.

"What has she developed?" I inquired.

"Up to the present time she has developed your uncle's temper and she has developed your aunt's appetite, and a couple of bill collectors developed a pain in the neck when she took their pictures, and if things go on in this way I think this will soon develop into a foolish house!" said Mary, the cook.

A half hour later, while I was hiding behind the piano in the living room, not daring to breathe above a whisper, for fear I would get my picture taken again, friend wife rushed

"The idea of such a thing," friend wife snapped. "Can't you see that you're holding the picture the wrong way? Turn it around and you will see what it is!"

I gave the thing another turn.

"Gee whiz!" I said. "Now I have it! Oh, the limit! You wished to surprise me with a picture of the sunset at Governor's Island. How lovely it is! See, over here in this corner there's a bunch of soldiers listening to what's cooking for supper, and over here is the smoke from the gun that sets the sun—I like it!"

Then my wife grabbed the picture out of my hands and burst into speech.

"Why do you try to discourage my efforts to be artistic?" she volleyed and thundered. "This is a picture of you holding Mrs. Mellivain's baby in your arms, and I think it's perfectly lovely, even if the baby is the only intelligent thing in the picture."

When the exercises were over I inquired casually: "Where, my dear, where are the other 21,219 pictures you snapped today?"

"Only these two came out good because, don't you see, I'm an amateur yet," was her come-back.

Then she looked lovingly at the result of her day's work and began to peel some bicarbonate of soda off her knuckles with the nut cracker.

"Only two out of 21,219—I think you ought to call it a long shot instead of a snapshot," I whispered, after I had dogged behind a sofa.

"Where You Think the Door is Open is Only Your Mouth."

She went out of the room without saying a word, and I took out my pocketbook and looked at it wistfully. (Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

VICTORY RESTED WITH PAT

Lawyer Got Decidedly the Worst of Verbal Combat With Irish Jockey.

An Irish jockey was called as a witness in a trial, and the opposing counsel was doing all he could to invalidate his testimony.

"What are you?" he began in a bullying tone.

"Sure, I'm a jockey, same as my father was before!" was the reply.

"Ah!" said the barrister, thrusting his hands into his pockets and preparing to enjoy himself hugely with the witness, "and I suppose your father did a little cheating in his time, like the rest of the fraternity?"

"Troth, and I suppose he did now an' then," was the quiet response.

"And where do you suppose he is now?"

"In heaven, I hope, rest his soul."

"And what should such fellows as jockeys do there, I should like to know?" inquired the barrister, in a voice of thunder.

Paddy scratched his head. Then, with a sly grin, he replied—

"Troth hesses for the angels, perhaps."

"And cheat them as they did their fellow mortals?"

"Maybe so," replied the jockey, still unabashed.

"Ah! they would be prosecuted then," exclaimed the barrister, triumphantly.

"Sorra a bit," answered the witness.

"And why?"

"Because they might search over and over again, and no lawyer would they find there."

Understood His Profession.

The professor of jurisprudence in a western university was lecturing to a hundred embryo lawyers. He asked whether anyone in America could own property. One fellow answered, "No, a criminal can't own property."

But the professor said: "Suppose a man who owns a ranch gets into trouble with his neighbor, assaults him and is put into the penitentiary, does he still own the ranch?"

The class was unanimous that he did, said the Youth's Companion.

"If he did not continue to own it," went on the professor, "what would become of it?"

That was supposed to settle the discussion, but one boy called out, "The lawyer would get it."

There was a hearty laugh, of course, and the professor added:

"We learn two things from that apt remark: be a lawyer, and don't be a criminal."

Not an Industrious Lad.

Young Henry Biggs, the miller's son, who had been apprenticed to Farmer Grubbin's, had not proved what might be described as a conspicuous success. And so, when old Biggs came along one day to ask what progress the lad was making, there came a certain dubious expression into the old farmer's eye.

"Well," he drawled, "tisen't that I wish to discourage you nor your son neither. Tisen't that I wish to be grubbin' at him one bit. He don't do nothin' wrong—nothin' at all, if he can help it. But I will say, Miller Biggs, that it's my opinion that if your son Harry had another hand, he'd want another pocket to put it in!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Call for Assistance.

"So you want me to come and reform Crimmon Gulch?" said the persuasive speaker.

"That ain't exactly what we're after," replied Three Fingers Sam, after a few words with the rest of the committee. "We want you to come around an' whoop it up an' tell us what a rip-sawtin', wicked community we are, so's to contradict the impression that the old Gulch is dyin' on its feet."

A Vision in the Forest

By CARL CARTER

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"I must confess this is a ghost story," said Jamieson at the club. "However, you can put it down to three nights and days spent wandering in the Adirondacks, if you prefer to. It doesn't matter to me. I've half a mind not to tell it anyway, only I remember the expression on Tarrant's face when he told it to me."

"Tarrant and his wife had been married six years, and that is just about the time when trouble develops, if it is going to develop at all, especially when a couple are childless. The truth was, they were living an artificial life, and both were getting bored."

"Tarrant and Molly had been deeply in love with each other when they married. Molly couldn't understand why Jack seemed not to care for her any more, and Jack Tarrant wondered why the sweet girl he had married was always nagging and finding fault with him. They talked of a separation.

"The matter was still up in the air when they decided on spending their usual summer holiday separately. Molly went home to her mother and a lot of crank female friends—the unmarried kind who try to separate happy couples. Tarrant went up to the Adirondacks to fish.

"The first day or two he mooned about, very miserable, and yet relieved at the sense of freedom. He had expected to long for Molly; on the contrary he began to think of all the unhappiness that had been in their lives. The thought of the tie between them maddened him, and that was how he lost his way in the woods at sundown.

"Tarrant had no woodcraft at all.

He Wandered On and On.

He wandered on and on, and by the time he decided to shout for aid he was at least ten miles from anywhere, right in the heart of the most desolate tract in all that wilderness. He slept somehow that night, and the next day was the most terrible of all. The second night he became delirious—but through it all he knew that he hated Molly.

"He had no more knowledge of the passage of time, but toward evening he came suddenly upon a little deserted place in the heart of the forest. There had been a clearing there once, and there was still a tumble-down log cabin. Tarrant approached, trying to pull himself together sufficiently to appear intelligent, when suddenly there emerged from the cabin the most beautiful girl that he had ever seen.

"Tarrant was not in a condition to appreciate feminine beauty just then, but there was some quality in the girl's face that seemed to stun his faculties, so that he could only stare and stare at her. It was not so much the physical beauty as the sweetness of soul, the wisdom and sadness that set his heart beating tumultuously, and, at the same time, seemed reminiscent of something. He felt that he had seen the girl before—this country woman dressed in a homespun dress.

"It was impossible, of course. Tarrant began to wonder whether reincarnation was true, and whether he had known her in some previous existence that had slipped from his memory with his birth. Suddenly he realized that he was behaving rudely. The girl had turned away and gone inside the hut.

"Tarrant went in, but, when he entered at last, after knocking repeatedly, he found the hut empty. He decided that the girl alarmed at his behavior, had gone out of the back.

"Being a gentleman, of course he could not stay, but he could not resist taking some bread, rather stale and dry, and some cold bacon that he found on a table. He withdrew with these into the forest and made a ravening meal. Then, tired out, and injured to mosquitoes, he fell asleep.

"It was daylight dawn when he awoke. He opened his eyes in astonishment, and at first he could not remember where he was. Then, all at once, he saw the girl again, standing where he had seen her before, at the door of the cabin.

"He approached her very courteously, raising his hat. This time she did not run from him, but stood still and smiled. He apologized for having frightened her the night before, and asked her if she could direct him to his hotel.

"He must have presented a terrific spectacle, all scratched, dirty and bruised from his long tramp, and with the wildness of delirium still in his eyes. But the girl only smiled again, and stretched out her hand, indicating a trail. Tarrant thanked her, but she went back into the hut without a word. Afterward he remembered that she had not spoken to him at all.

"Plunging heavily along the trail, Tarrant walked till the sun came up. Then, lifting up his eyes in amazement, he saw, not half a mile away, his own hotel.

"Fifteen minutes later he was back, and ten minutes after that he was enjoying chicken broth in bed. After that he slept the clock around.

"When he awakened he told his adventures to the hotelkeeper, who had formerly been one of the local guides. But when he mentioned the girl in the cabin the man was silent. Tarrant pressed him hard.

"Who is she?" he insisted.

"At last the man raised his eyes sullenly to his. 'She died a score of years ago,' he answered. 'She was the wife of the old squire, before the land was bought by the state. She died when her baby was born. She was always kind to folks, and she loved children.'

"That was all Tarrant could get out of him. He tried to find the trail through the woods many times, but none of the guides admitted knowledge of it, and the landlord flatly refused to show him. And Tarrant, thinking over the matter, all at once understood why he thought he had seen the woman before.

"The look in her eyes was the look that he used to see in Molly's eyes—long ago, when he courted her, before the rubs and jars of married life had worn away the sweetness of their love.

"Tarrant was no fool, and after a while he began to piece the warning together. That look which had so allured him, that look which he had seen in the dead woman's eyes and in Molly's—what was it but the universal, loving soul of woman, embodied now here, now there, but always noble and always sweet?

"And Tarrant knew that in loving Molly he was loving the spiritual quality which is given to all men in some form, in life, but is so often thrown away and lost through misunderstanding.

"That night he hurried home, and all the way in the train the wheels beat 'Molly.' He arrived, fearful that she had already taken some irrevocable step. He wanted a chance to tell her, to explain . . . but when he reached the house it was night, and it was Molly who met him within the darkened hall.

"He flung his arms about her and stammered out acknowledgment of his hideous mistake.

"He felt her tears upon his face. 'Dearest,' she whispered, 'I came home. I couldn't stay away from you longer. I was writing to you. What a mistake we have made dear. And there is something . . . listen!'

"Incredulously Tarrant heard the whispered story, while his heart beat madly. When she had done he folded her in his arms. 'We shall never part again, through all our lives,' he said.

"And it was only afterward that he remembered how the woman of the lonely cabin had died, and understood why she had come to him."

NEW YORKER CANNOT SWEAR

Just Said "Doggone It" as He Saw His New Car Go Up in Smoke.

"I don't know who owned the car," said Constable George Simpson of Sayville, reporting by telephone to the New York Sun office the burning of a big automobile on the Lakeland road, according to the New York correspondent of the Times Star. "But I'm blamed sure 't' fellow that owned it is a man that don't swear."

The reporter at the telephone asked the constable to explain.

"Well," said he, "it was a big six-cylinder car that looked like it was pretty high brand new. I dunno what struck it, but she busted out in flames all over, all of a sudden. The man that was a-drivin' it looked like a New Yorker. He had to jump so quickly to keep from bein' burned up that he didn't have time to stop 't' engine. Th' car kept on from to back. It never stopped until it was half burned up and in five minutes after it stopped there wasn't nothin' in 't' road but a pile o' twisted iron and ashes. Th' man that was a drivin' it run after it 'n' ketcht up just about th' time th' fire was out. He looked at 't' pile of ashes a few minutes an' then he just sez 'Doggone it!' an' took th' next train for New York. He sure was a man that don't use no violent language."

Factory's Output Provided For.

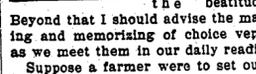

A factory has been established at Niagara Falls for the manufacture of metal magnesium, which is the lightest metal known, and is said to have many qualities superior to aluminum. The output of the factory has been contracted for by the French government until the end of the war, the material to be made use of in the manufacture of household utensils, and some interesting novelties will be brought out, it is said.

Value of Memorizing Scripture

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE, Superintendent of Mass. Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night. Josh. 1:8.

One of the best habits one can acquire is that of committing to memory choice verses of Scripture. Some people commit entire books of the Bible, but I regard that as an unreasonable tax upon the memory. Of course one could easily learn the first psalm, the twenty-third, and the one hundredth and the one hundred and twenty-first. Also the commandments and the beatitudes.

Beyond that I should advise the marking and memorizing of choice verses as we meet them in our daily reading.

Suppose a farmer were to set out a dozen choice fruit trees each year. In a few years his farm would be well stocked with a great variety of fruit, and each tree would bear fruit as long as he lived. Each tree has its own individuality and value, and in course of time each one would come to seem like an old friend. Some yield sweet apples and others sour. Some are early and others late.

Suppose a person should commit to memory one verse of Scripture each week. That would not be a very hard task, but how great would be the result as the years went on. Each verse is like a fruit tree which bears some kind of choice fruit to enrich his mind and ennoble his character and increase his usefulness. And these yield fruit not simply once a year, or even once a month, like the trees in Celestial City (Rev. 22:2), but every day in the year, and all the years of his life.

Take such a verse as John 14:27: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." How many times, think you, would a Christian feed his soul on that verse in a lifetime? The same is true of Matt. 11:28 and Romans 8:28 and 1 John 3:1 and Jude 24.

If one continued this habit a few years his mind would become a magnificent orchard, yielding fruit in such abundance and variety as to supply not only the owner himself, but all his neighbors and friends. If a man had no other assets than a mind well stored with Scripture, he would be a rich man. But he would have other assets, because it is declared of those who delight in the law of the Lord, that they shall be "like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season. His leaf also shall not wither, and whatsoever he doth shall prosper." Psalm 1:3.

Consider also the effect of this habit in creating a relish for that which is pure and wholesome in literature, and a distaste for that which is vulgar. No one whose mind is stored with the sublime sentiments of the Bible will care for trashy and sensational reading.

Not only will it affect his mind but his character. He will naturally love righteousness and hate iniquity. He will have high ideals because he is familiar with such men as Enoch and Daniel and Abraham. In time of temptation the Holy Spirit will recall to his mind some suitable verse, as he did for our Savior when tempted by the adversary. When perplexed as to his duty some passage of Scripture will flash upon him and make the path of duty as clear as daylight.

Besides, if he is on the alert, he will find many opportunities to help others. He can correct false impressions, answer excuses and objections, and often lead sinners to begin the Christian life.

In some families the custom prevails of each member repeating a verse of Scripture at family worship. In one family each child has a promise each day, and Sunday mornings they repeat all the promises they have learned during the week. A verse from each member of the family at the breakfast table, with the Lord's prayer in concert makes a very good form of family worship where some have to hurry away to business immediately after breakfast.

As a help to those who wish to know God's Word better the writer has arranged a leaflet containing one hundred choice verses, selected from the whole Bible. They cover a wide range of topics and are particularly rich in verses adapted to the use of personal workers. They are arranged in the order in which they come in the Bible, with chapter and verse given. The whole verse is not given, but only enough to recall it when once it has been learned. Anyone who masters these hundred verses will be well equipped for any emergency which may arise. A verse a day for three months would accomplish the task.

The writer has none to sell, but he will gladly give a copy to any who will send him his address on a stamped envelope.

TO KNOW FROM EXPERIENCE

Evidently Mr. Jimso was to get a Plentiful Quantity of Fresh Air That Night.

Mr. Jimso was in the habit of attending meetings which often detained him after the usual hour of retirement. One night he was exceedingly late, and his wife, after fretting herself into a temper, went to bed, determined to give her husband a lesson. When she had been upstairs about ten minutes she heard a knock, so, putting her head out of the window, she inquired:

"Is that you, Tom?"

"Yes, Kate; come and open the door," was the answer.

"What has kept you out so late?" asked his wife.

"We have been discussing the real benefits of fresh air," answered he.

"Well," returned his better half, "you can lecture tomorrow night from experience," and down went the window with a bang.

Disenchanted men and women, members of a sketching club, were tutoring along a country road. Just within the fence on the left grew innumerable graceful stalks, each bearing globes of pale green that shaded into gray and purple.

"How enchanting!" exclaimed one young woman.

"Do tell us," said another young woman, equally enthusiastic, to a gardener standing near, "what those beautiful things are."

"Them? Them's onions gone to seed."—New York Times.

Backache is Discouraging

Nothing is more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. If the urine is disordered, passages too frequent or scanty, there is further proof. Delay is dangerous. Prompt use of Doan's Kidney Pills now may spare you serious trouble later. Doan's is the world's best-recommended kidney remedy.

OTHER WAYS OF SELLING OUT.

"I don't believe that every man has his price," said the iconoclastic philosopher, with flashing eyes. "There are some men that no amount of money could buy."

"I agree with you, my friend," replied the gentle cynic. "There are men in the world that no amount of money could buy, but stop there. Other things in this world are worth having and we are only human beings after all."

How It Works Out.

"I'll never forget the favor you have done for me," said the man who doesn't mind asking for what he wants. "Don't say that," replied the cold-blooded person. "When a man keeps brooding over an obligation he's almost sure to get resentful instead of appreciative."

False Leg of Lamb.

Bill—I see a farmer has provided one of his lambs, which was born minus a leg, with an artificial limb. Now the lamb runs about as fleetly as any of its companions on the farm.

Jill—I suppose the lamb feels so confident that he can "gamble on it."

Hard to Suit.

"How did you like the comedian's song without a chorus?"
"Why, when I heard it I fancied I would have preferred the chorus without the song."

Her Notion of His Job.

"Yes, ma'am."
"Well, I have three cut glass dishes I won as card prizes that I'd like to exchange for something."

Misunderstood.

"Hubby, if I asked you for a check for a hundred dollars, what would you do?"
"I'd give you assent."
"Oh, you mean old thing."

WANTED TO SEE THE END

Oscar Wilde's Irreverent Joke Concerning the Biblical Version of Voyage of the Apostle Paul.

"The death at Ypres of Capt Cyril Holland reminds me of an Oscar Wilde story, for the brave and handsome young Captain Holland was Oscar Wilde's eldest son."

The speaker, a New York publisher, resumed, thoughtfully:

"Oscar Wilde in his youth was himself brave and handsome, and also very amusing. Once, when a student at the University of Oxford, he was ordered as a punishment for levity to sit down and copy out the twenty-seventh chapter of Acts.

"He copied away diligently for some time, and then his tutor said: 'You may stop now, Mr. Wilde.'"

"But Wilde kept right on copying. 'Didn't you hear me say that you might stop?' the tutor asked a half hour later.

"Oh, yes, sir," Wilde answered, "I heard you; but I was so interested in what I was copying that I couldn't leave off. It's about a man named Paul, who went on a voyage and was caught in a storm. I'll just keep on, if you don't mind, sir, till I find out whether the poor fellow got drowned or not."

A Paradox.

Said he, "I give my love to you,
I pray you, do not spurn it!"
Said she, "To prove that I am true,
I shall forthwith return it."—Judge.

Decorated Mentality.

"Your mind seems very much ruffled," said the observing friend.
"No wonder," replied the irritable man. "My wife talks to me for hours about the new fashions."

SURE TIP.

"I have some money to invest and I'd like to take a little flyer. Can you give me a good tip?"
"Certainly. Try aviation stock."

RIGHT PLACE.

"There's too much horseplay in your musical farce."

"Oh, that's only in the pony ballet."
