SOME VERY LARGE FIGURES

Concerning Odd Fellowship Which Will Interest Members of the 3-Link Fraternity

The figures issued by the Sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows for the past year are almost stupendous. From 1830 to December 31, 1914, there have been 4,430,534 members of the order who have received relief at a total expense of $160,833,492.50. Of this amount $6,177,492.18 was paid for relief during the year 1914, an average relief of over $11.90 per minute, while the invested funds of grand and subordinate lodges Dec. 31, 1914, was $68,284,512.59. At the present time there are 54 Odd Fellows Homes throughout the world, accommodating 3,678 residents. The present value of these homes is $5,291,776.35 and the cost of maintenance is $845,652.18. There are now 2,194,778 members of the order scattered throughout the world. The masons rank second in size, with a membership in round numbers of 1,500,000.

More than 15,000,000 people in civilized lands of the world belong to orders of recognized standing. New Hampshire is one of the banner states in Odd Fellowship, the membership June 30, 1915, being 15,616 Odd Fellows and 16,319 Rebekahs; that is one person out of every 27 in New Hampshire is either an Odd Fellow or a Rebekah. The ratio of brother Rebekah members to subordinate members in this state continues to lead all other states, it being one brother to every 2.8 belonging to the subordinate branch, the average for all jurisdictions combined being 1 to 7.1.

Number of subordinate lodges June 30, 1915, no charter surrendered, 104.
Number brothers relieved 1,679;
amount paid total relief for the year $50,351.15.
Average membership per lodge in the state is 150.

Amount paid for relief by the order each day $137.94.
Number of Rebekah lodges December 31, 1914, 95. A new lodge was instituted June 28, 1915, making the total 96.
Amount paid for the relief of Rebekahs during 1914, $2,450.33.

The grand lodge of New Hampshire was in session at Gorham last week and the reports of the grand master, grand secretary and grand treasurer indicated a most successful year with brilliant prospects for the coming year.

The election of the following officers took place: Grand Master, George W. Pike, Lisbon; deputy grand master, Frank M. Gilley, Exeter; grand warden, Justin A. Emery, Rochester; grand secretary, Frank L. Way, Manchester; grand treasurer, William W. Cotton, Portsmouth, grand chaplain, Rev. William E. Getchell, Pittsfield; grand representative, Walter H. Tripp, Short Falls.

The Rebekahs elected the following officers: President, Annie P. Rogers, Nashua; vice president, Margaret H. Waldron, Farmington; warden, Addie B. Palmer, Berlin; secretary, Martha L. Sargent, Woodsville; treasurer, Mrs. Clara S. Palmer.

J. Leon Brownell, of Waverley Lodge, No. 59, of Antrim, was given a place on the legislation committee.

Charles N. Taylor, of Waverley Lodge, a resident of Bennington, was appointed District Deputy Grand Master of the Contoocook District, including the lodges from Contoocook to East Jaffrey.

THE REPORTER'S COMMENTS

On Matters of Current News, Given our Readers in a Condensed Manner

The Liberty Bell will make 60 stops on its way east from the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, by a southern route.

John Bunney's widow has been forced to earn her own living because her husband, one of the most widely known movie actors in the world, left her such a small estate. She has bought Schriber's hotel, at Valley Stream, Long Island, N. Y. Another woman is about to enter the business world with courage high. Women starting out as she is doing to fight down their adversity almost never turn back. They win out.

Clara Morris, the actress of a generation ago, who in recent years has suffered from blindness and other infirmities, has been left a legacy of $2,000 or more a year. Samuel W. Harriot of Whitestone, L. I., her benefactor, set aside $50,000 in his will the income of which is to be paid to Miss Morris for life. He is a brother-in-law of the actress, whose work on the stage delighted the theatre goers in the past; he is a shining example of the old adage that "blood is thicker than water." What friends and acquaintances would have liked to have done for their afflicted favorite but postponed too long, he has done because of the family tie.

"Military preparedness means a mode of protecting the lives of our young men as well as our homes from any possible dangers from hostile neighbors. . . . The bodies of men are the life work of women, just as figures in marble are the life work of the sculptor. To wantonly destroy beautiful works of art is admittedly criminal. To destroy the living bodies of men is infinitely more so." So speaks the talented actress Maude Odell who is playing the leading role in "Nobody Home." Miss Odell, though she says she is not a suffragist has the same strength of mind and active mental process so long as tributed only to that order of high-brows. The truth is women have always been good thinkers but they were not supposed to talk about anything but scandal and ailments.

Bishop William F. Anderson, of the Indiana Methodist Episcopal Conference, said that a United States Senator told him of an incident which happened in the President's Cabinet recently.

"When the President arrived at the Cabinet meeting his face wore a solemn look. It was evident that serious affairs of the nation were on his mind. He said to the Cabinet members 'I don't know whether you men believe in prayer or not. I do. Let us pray and ask the help of God.' And right there the President of the United States fell on his knees and the members of the Cabinet did the same, and the President offered a prayer. If there ever was a time when the chief executive of our nation needed all the mental fortitude, concentration and understanding to be had by mortal it surely has been during the past months of trying negotiations. Cool, unbiased and fearless judgment could not be reached in any other way."

The Antrim Woman's Club

The regular meeting of the Antrim Woman's club was held Monday afternoon in the club rooms. The program was in charge of Mrs. Maude Robinson of the Economics department. The program included a paper, "Food Values" by Mrs. Beatrice Cooper; vocal solo by Miss Ethel Ellinwood; reading, "Relation of Food to Health," Mrs. Amy Wheeler; and a piano solo by Miss Louise Griswold. Mrs. Emma Cooley and Mrs. May Cram were hostesses. Tea was served. Mrs. Cora E. Hunt, Sec'y.

Differences Adjusted

It is apparent that the Progressive party will not be a factor in the approaching municipal campaign and there is every indication that fully ninety per cent of its members are already back within the Republican ranks where they were originally aligned. The shrinkage of the Progressive vote in Manchester as well as in New Hampshire at the last general election was most pronounced. The vote in this city dropped from 1919 for Roosevelt in 1912 to 315 for Allison for Governor in 1914.

In the state at large the vote for Allison, Progressive, for Governor, was 2572, against 17,974 for Roosevelt two years previous. Shontell, Progressive candidate for Congress, polled in the entire 1st Congressional district 971 votes, while two years previous the Progressive candidate received 4307. Benjamin F. Greer, Progressive candidate for United States Senator polled 9188 votes in the entire state. Thus it will be seen that the vote of Allison, candidate for Governor which was 2572, was the largest given any candidate of the Progressive party in 1914, and it is seriously questioned whether or not the Progressive party organization is to be maintained in the future.—Manchester correspondent to the Sunday Globe.

To the non-partisan onlooker, it would seem that the Republicans have every reason to believe that their Progressive friends are largely in sympathy with them now, and they will remain there just so long as they think they are given a square deal; but considering that a political memory never "lapses" it is extremely wise on the part of the leaders to play the game fair, or some day there will be another drop—and probably at a time when it will mean as much as it did in the recent "upheaval."

Auction Sale

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim.

George W. Webb, having sold his farm, will sell at his residence, the James Faulkner place, near Cavendish Station, in the southeast part of Hancock, on Saturday, Oct. 23, at 12 o'clock noon, forty head of cattle, two horses and 20 tons oat fodder, and a lot of other articles. This is a good lot of stock, well selected, and should attract buyers who are looking for cows of quality. For particulars read the posters.

W. E. Cram will sell for Fred L. Proctor, at his former home in Northfield, Mass., on Thursday, Oct. 21, at 9.30 o'clock, a.m., horses and team equipment, and a lot of other goods, as described on posters.

By C. E. Dutton, Auctioneer,
Hancock

A lot of personal property belonging to Francis Bates will be sold at auction at his place of residence on Pleasant street, on Saturday, Oct. 30, at 1 o'clock. For particulars read posters.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer"

Everybody who has seen "Quincy Adams Sawyer" in play form is enthusiastic over its unique charm. There is nothing in the line of rural plays to compare with it. All the scenery has been specially built and painted for this production, and is very effective in the following scenes: first act, Benoni Hill's grocery store; second act, first scene, the cross roads four miles from Mason's corner; second scene, Mrs. Putnam's settin' room; the third act, the Putnam farm yard; fourth act, exterior and interior of the Pettingill homestead. There are 14 speaking parts and the company is well cast. The engagement for Antrim is for one night, Tuesday, Nov. 2.

A Special Feature

Practically every careful woman finds, when she looks over her stock of clothing in the fall one or two serviceable frocks left over from the previous winter. With a little remodeling these frocks are suitable for another season. Mrs. Bottomley tells our readers how to remodel dresses most sensibly in this issue of the REPORTER. She also describes new winter shoe styles.

NEWS OF THE GRANITE STATE

Derry Couple Victims of Auto Accident

WOMAN SHOTS HERSELF

Senator Hollis Has Sold His Business -Gateman Saves Lives Probably -Stricken in Automobile.- Grand Lodge I. O. O. F.

Derry.—While returning home from Boston Thursday in their auto Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Howard were struck by a train at Windham on the Nashua and Rochester division. Just how the accident happened may never be known, but the auto was across the track when it was struck and was crumpled 90 feet. Mrs. Howard was pinned beneath the car and was fearfully mangled, her arms, legs and back being broken. She died almost instantly. Mr. Howard was thrown beyond the car and had one leg and a wrist broken besides receiving other injuries. He was at once rushed to a Nashua hospital where his condition is critical. The auto was entirely demolished, every wheel being smashed. Mr. Howard is a business man, prominent in fraternal circles, and his wife was one of the best known society ladies of the village.

Shoots Self in Presence of Her Children.

Lakeport.—Mrs. J. M. Wagner, aged 34, shot herself in the presence of her two children Friday evening, and the boy and girl, aged 9 and 10 years respectively, remained with the body until morning, too terrified to give the alarm. Mrs. Wagner's husband deserted her several years ago and at a recent term of court she procured a divorce. She has been dependent, and recently made the statement that any one in her position would take their own life. She left a brief note to the same effect.

Gateman Saves Lives, Probably. Manchester.—An auto owned and driven by George H. Parker came down to the Bridge-street railroad crossing Friday afternoon just as a shifter went up the line. The driver supposed the gates were down for the engine and would be immediately raised. A passenger train was approaching and the gateman kept them down, the auto plunging through the gate onto the track. The gateman immediately raised the other gate and the driver was able to get the machine off the rails before the train reached him. The narrow escape evidently unnerved Mr. Parker for the machine went into the end of the bridge and was badly wrecked, and Mrs. Parker, who was in the auto, was considerably injured.

Stricken at Auto Wheel. Claremont.—Le Dolt E. Kimball, head of the Lowell, Mass., Commercial College, was killed when his auto tipped over a road embankment two miles south of Windsor, Vt., Saturday. The cause of the accident has not been fully determined, but it is supposed that Mr. Kimball, who was driving alone, became unconscious while at the wheel. A woman who saw the accident said he was driving at a fair rate of speed, and appeared to be asleep or in a helpless condition. He was a native of Grafton, where he was born 62 years ago, and was especially prominent in masonic and church affairs.

Fire Scare at Hampton Beach. Hampton Beach.—A Mrs. Ferno, of Haverhill, discovered fire in the basement of the Thayer cottage Saturday and immediately gave the alarm. All the available men were summoned and after a hard fight the fire was extinguished. Had the fire not been stopped the Casino would probably have been destroyed, and much other property. The fact that it was announced that the water pressure was to be shut off to make repairs gives color to the theory that the fire was of incendiary origin. The repairs were completed sooner than was anticipated, and the water had been turned on about twenty minutes when the fire was discovered.

Woman is Fatally Burned. Manchester.—When Fred L. Richardson, receiving teller of the Manchester Savings Bank, returned to his home after banking hours Saturday, he saw bits of burned clothing when he entered the house, and found his wife in bed too weak to speak. She was taken to a hospital where it was found she was burned from head to foot. It is supposed that in lighting the fire about noon in the kitchen range her clothing caught in some way and she remained alone until the return of her husband. She died early in the evening.

Red Sox Stars on a Hunting Trip. Ashland.—A bunch of the Red Sox stars are guests of Ed and John Maynard of Plymouth at their camp on the shore of Big Asquah lake, reaching there Saturday evening by automobile. Among them are Tris Speaker, Ernie Shore and Carl Mays. The party was given a royal reception at points on their journey, and at Lenonia three young women, learning that they were to pass through, walked five miles to meet the party. Speaker took them in his car and gave them a long ride.

Senator Hollis Has Sold His Business. Concord.—Another chapter in the Hollis separation suit was furnished the public Friday when depositions were taken in the case. Alexander Murchie testified that he and his brother, Robert Murchie, bought the business on July 18 last for $2000, and took a lease of the books and office furniture until March 5, 1919. This is the day after Mr. Hollis' term as senator expires. It developed that the salary for September, October, November and December of this year has been assigned to Mr. Murchie for the benefit of the children. Beyond the statement the senator was in Newfoundland, no information regarding him could be obtained.

Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. Gosham.—The grand lodge of Odd Fellows closed its session here last week with the election of the following officers: Grand master, George W. Pike, Lisbon; deputy grand master, Frank M. Cilley, Exeter; grand warden, Justin A. Emery, Rochester; grand secretary, Frank L. Way, Manchester; grand treasurer, William W. Cotton, Portsmouth; grand chaplain, Rev. William H. Getchell, Portsmouth; grand representative, Walter H. Tripp, Short Falls.

Child Dies of Burns. Concord.—Lawrence, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McMahon, wandered into the cellar of a neighbor one day last week where he evidently got hold of the kerosene can and saturated his clothing. He then evidently went to the furnace, which had a fire, and set his clothing on fire. A man who saw his blazing garments wrapped his coat about him and extinguished the flames. He was rushed to a hospital but lived but a few hours.

Interesting if True. Concord.—There is a rumor in political circles that Hon. Calvin Page, of Portsmouth, is considering the matter of entering the field against Hon. A. W. Noone, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. Mr. Page came into the senatorial contest during the last campaign as a candidate for United States senator and made an exceptionally good run.

Fred Brown Receives Sentence. Colebrook.—The jury in the trial of Fred Brown on a charge of murdering his wife, after being out all of Friday night, brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree Saturday. The prisoner's counsel immediately filed exceptions and will seek a new trial. The crime was committed a year ago. He followed his wife, who had left him, and upon her refusal to return, shot her.

Mrs. W. E. Chandler Dies. Warner.—Mrs. Lucy Lambert Chandler, wife of Hon. William E. Chandler, died at the summer home at Waterloo, in this town shortly after noon Friday. She was the daughter of Senator John P. Hale, and a native of Dover. She married Senator Chandler in 1874. She is survived by her husband and one son, John P. Hale Chandler.

Cornish Will Not Again be Summer Capital. Cornish.—The President having announced that he will accept the offer of a residence at Long Branch, N. J., for a summer residence, this town will not be the summer capital next year. The town will still have the fine highway to Windsor which was built for the President's benefit.

Family Awakened by Flames. Alexandria.—The residence of Edward Brown was totally destroyed by fire early Friday morning. Members of the family awoke to find the house in flames, and it was with difficulty that they escaped with their lives. It is supposed the fire started from an overheated chimney. The cow and horse were saved.

Senator Hollis Heard From. Concord.—A telegram was received from Senator Hollis, who is in Newfoundland, Saturday, saying he should appear to contest the suit brought by his wife for separation. It has been supposed by many that he would not put in an appearance to be examined by General Streeter, his wife's counsel.

Hired Horse for Short Trip, But Where is It? Franklin.—A stranger called at a local stable Friday and hired a team to go to the Orphans' Home. He did not return and an inquiry disclosed the fact that a team answering the description had been seen going through Penacook.

Mayor Spaulding is Renominated. Manchester.—The Republican majority caucus, which terminated Saturday evening, renominated Harry W. Spaulding. He received 925 votes, and Frank H. Chellis and George H. Spinney one each.

Peculiarities of Dye. Closely related to yeast, fungi discovered in breweries by a Japanese scientist have been found to dye silk a beautiful rose color, but to be harmless when used in the manufacture of beer.

True Charity. Do what you can—give what you have. Only stop not with feelings; carry your charity into deeds; do and give what costs you something.—J. H. Thom.

HOW TO BUILD AND FLY A BOX-KITE

Of first importance in kite construction are the sticks, which must be cut of uniform width and thickness.

Fig. 2 shows one of the two frames required for the box-kite. Cut sticks A 30 inches long, three-eighths inch thick, and three-eighths inch wide, and sticks B eight and one-quarter inches long, one-quarter inch thick, and three-quarter inch wide. Then place sticks B across sticks A, exactly at right angles to them, five inches from the ends and fasten them with slender brads three-quarter-inch long.

After making the two frames, prepare the cloth covering for the end ter of black to one and a center of red to the other, for pupils; then back the nose opening with green tissue paper and the mouth with red tissue paper. A turban of red cloth supplies the finishing detail.

Did you ever hear of this method of fortune-telling? The guests are sent one at a time to a tent in a corner of the room where a witch hands them a mirror, which upon being breathed on tells what the future holds forth for them. This is how the trick is done. The witch writes the fortunes upon the mirror with French chalk, then rubs it off with a handkerchief so no trace of the writing can be seen. When the mirror is breathed upon, the moisture makes this writing reappear.

Pinning the tail upon the witch's cat is lots of fun. Upon a sheet or large piece of wrapping paper make a drawing of a witch astride of her broom, with her cat seated behind her.

The sketch in Fig. 3 will help you in drawing this. Use black crayon or charcoal. Prepare short pieces of clothingline with a small safety-pin sewed to one end, as shown in Fig. 4, for tails.

Blindfold the guests, one at a time, and start them across the room to pin the tail upon the cat.

For choosing partners for supper, give each boy a card with a name written upon it with ink made of baking soda and water. The cards will appear blank, because the writing will not be visible, but direct each boy to pass his card over the flame of a candle and when this is done he will discover his partner's name written in brown upon the card.

Figs. 5 and 8 show appropriate favors for the table. The head of the goblin (Fig. 5) is an orange hollowed out jack-o'-lantern fashion, and a small bottle forms the body. Fig. 6 indicates how the head should be fastened to the bottle by a cork (A) pushed down through a hole in the orange into the neck of the bottle. Make a collar of white paper, a gown of colored tissue paper and a paper cap as shown in Fig. 7.

Make the witch (Fig. 8) in the same way as the goblin, but with an apple head. Fig. 9 shows how to prepare her peaked hat.

temporarily, with sticks sprung in between them. Then measure the distance between sticks A, for the diagonal braces C (Fig. 3). Cut these sticks of the same width and thickness as sticks B, and long enough to provide for notching the ends as shown in Fig. 5, to fit over sticks A (Fig. 4), and so they will be bowed slightly when slipped into place. The reason for having them slightly bowed is so they will keep the cell coverings stretched tight like drum-heads. Lash sticks C together, at their intersections, with thread (Fig. 3), and drive tacks into sticks A, against the ends of C, (Fig. 4) to keep them from slipping away from sticks B.

There are several methods of attaching the box-kite bridle, but the two-point method shown in Fig. 1 is the one most commonly used.

To send up the box-kite, set it upon the ground, on its end, in the position shown in Fig. 1, walk away a distance of about one hundred and fifty feet, and then, with the flying line held firmly, run 100 yards or so, paying out the line as the kite rises.

Fig. 1 shows one of the two frames required for the box-kite. Cut sticks A 30 inches long, three-eighths inch thick, and three-eighths inch wide, and sticks B eight and one-quarter inches long, one-quarter inch thick, and three-quarter inch wide. Then place sticks B across sticks A, exactly at right angles to them, five inches from the ends and fasten them with slender brads three-quarter-inch long.

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

The little Welshman and Van Trevor looked at each other in the rich man's library. The little Welshman was obviously in need of a job. Van Trevor thought. A sense of compassion rose up in him as he inspected the shabby figure.

"Well, Mr. Evans?" he inquired blandly. "I have come with reference to that advertisement for a man to catalogue your books," said Evans. His heart was thumping madly; he was desperately afraid Van Trevor would see his need and cut down the salary.

"You are acquainted with the classics," I believe," inquired Van Trevor. "Yes, sir. I studied Greek and Latin at Cardiff university. I know French and German, a little Hebrew, some Spanish."

Van Trevor extended his hand cordially. "My dear fellow, that is satisfactory," he said. "The work should last about three months. You understand it is not permanent, of course?" he added.

"I only need it for the summer, sir," replied the little Welshman. "I am studying at the Theological seminary. I have a means of working off our board after the term begins."

He hesitated. The use of the plural form had betrayed what he had not been anxious to reveal. "My wife and myself," he explained, hesitating. Van Trevor nodded. "Well, my dear fellow, about the salary," he said. "Would—er—forty dollars a week be satisfactory?"

The little Welshman could not restrain a gasp. He had expected twenty, he had hoped daintily for twenty-five.

"That's settled, then," said Van Trevor. "And now, Mr. Evans, you must lunch with me and meet Mrs. Van Trevor."

Mrs. Van Trevor proved to be a little, vivacious brunette. She shook hands with Evans cordially, and they sat down to lunch in a magnificently furnished room, while a butler served them.

Evans was conscious of a painful diffidence. A gentleman by birth, a long period of hardship had made him self-conscious. He wondered whether he was using his knife and fork correctly. The Van Trevors seemed sticklers for etiquette. In Wales one met all classes upon a free and easy basis; here there seemed to be a conventionalized ritual, a little different, and puzzling. The Van Trevors drew him out about his wife.

"You must bring her to see us," said the rich man's wife, as they parted.

Lella Evans' beauty and copper hair was the sensation of Mrs. Van Trevor's afternoon. The girl had been married six months. She had run away from a wealthy home in Cardiff to go to America with the little Welshman. Those six months had been of unmitigated hardship. Her illusions of happiness in the New World were shattered. She loved her husband, but she hated the sordid barrenness of life in furnished lodgings. The visit to the Van Trevors had opened up a new vista of life for her.

She clung to Evans' arm as they left the house together. "Dear," she said. "Mrs. Van Trevor has asked me to come to the house every day to act as her secretary. What do you think of it? She is going to pay me twenty-five dollars a week!"

Evans was overcome by emotion. "They are splendid people, Lella," he said. "Who would have thought that we should find such good friends in New York? It looks like a prosperous future for us, doesn't it, dear?"

Elsie Van Trevor and her husband sat together in their drawing-room after the guests had gone.

"What do you think of them?" asked Van Trevor. "She's too good for that little shrimp. Too good altogether."

"Poor little devil!" said Van Trevor. "He told me she's saving up for an operation on his ear. He says it's likely to prove serious some day if he doesn't have it done."

"She's too good for him," his wife repeated, following her train of thought. "I don't see how she came to marry him. If I have any chance I'm going to open her eyes. Why, he isn't even a gentleman, dear."

III. Elsie Van Trevor had gone to their bungalow at the seashore and taken her secretary with her. The little Welshman was cataloguing the books in the library alone.

He missed his wife greatly. It was their first separation. Somehow he felt that Mrs. Van Trevor's sudden friendship for Lella boded ill for them both. But Lella had been crazy to go there were to be house parties and all sorts of gaiety, and later Evans was to be invited for a day or two.

Somewhere a bell had been ringing furiously all the morning. The little Welshman wondered where it could be. He threw up the window and looked out. Suddenly a violent pain shot through his head, as if a knife had pierced him. The bell was in his own head. And the pain was stabbing without cessation.

He screamed with the agony of it. He tried to stagger across the room, collapsed, and moaned upon the floor. He saw Van Trevor standing over him, a look of fear in his eyes. Then through a period of unconsciousness he grew to a dim realization of the jolting ambulance, the hospital, the white-capped nurses, and the sickening stench of the other cone.

He opened his eyes to find himself in a bed in the hospital. His head was swathed in bandages.

"You'll do finely now," the nurse said, and he opened his eyes a second time to see Van Trevor at his side.

"How are you, my dear chap?" he asked. "By George, that was touch and go, but the surgeon says you're all right now."

"You haven't told my wife?" asked Evans weakly. "No," thought it best not to alarm her," answered the other.

Van Trevor never came again through the slow days of convalescence. Evans' letters to Lella were unanswered. Gradually a sickening fear began to come over the little Welshman, a sense of some undefinable tragedy. At last, when two weeks had passed, he was permitted to leave the hospital. He hurried to the Van Trevor house. The butler, who opened the door, stood in his way.

"Mr. Van Trevor left a letter for you, sir," he said, handing him a missive.

The little Welshman opened it. It stated briefly that the work had come to an end, and included a check for five hundred dollars.

Evans tore the check to pieces and turned away from the house in blind agony and rage.

IV. The bungalows stood side by side in their trim plots at the edge of the shore. Near by, at the huge hotel, were music and dancing, and the mirth of holiday-makers. Many couples, strolling along the road, looked askance at the seedy little man, who walked hurriedly toward the bungalow at the end of the row.

In the shadow of a pine tree Evans halted. He heard the voices of Van Trevor and his friends, and the tittering laughter of his wife. Then came a laugh that made him clutch at his heart—Lella's.

Then suddenly the little Welshman seemed to become inspired with a strong personality that had never been his. He strode through the open door into the living-room, and stood there at the door.

A Patriot's Prayer

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D., of Chicago

TEXT—I prayed.—Nehemiah 1:4. Nehemiah was a great man, a great statesman, a great administrator, a great leader of men. But he was great in the spiritual realm as well, he had great power with God.

Although a Jew, yet he dwelt in Persia and occupied a position of peculiar influence at court; he was the king's cup-bearer.

It was some time after the return of his countrymen from that land of their captivity to their beloved Palestine, but they were not prospering very well since their return. Some of them on a visit to Persia had been telling him about it. They were in great affliction they said, and in great reproach from their enemies round about. The walls of Jerusalem had never been repaired since they had been burned down by Nebuchadnezzar 150 years before, and the result was they had no protection against assault.

Man Deeply Affected. This deeply affected Nehemiah, so that he sat down and actually wept. When patriotism moves us to weep for our country it looks like the real thing, especially when it is followed by something else as it was here.

The weeping was accompanied by fasting also, so different from the modern way of showing patriotism, which not infrequently takes the form of a banquet with speeches. This fasting lasted for days, he must have been alone in it; but at length it came to a head in prayer. Oh, if our statesmen, and politicians and reformers only knew the secret! How much more they could accomplish at the Throne of Grace than by legislation, and conferences, and harangues, and newspaper articles.

A Wonderful Prayer. It was a wonderful prayer this. First, it was so unselfish. He was not praying for himself but for people, who, for the most part, he did not know and had never seen. They were his countrymen, that was all, and they were in sore need. How much do we owe any for our southern negroes, or the mountain whites, or the dejected Indians on our western plains, or our dependents in the Philippines? What real interest have we in either their material or spiritual condition?

Second, it was such a humble prayer. Somehow or other he felt a sense of personal responsibility for the condition of his countrymen afar off though they were. He confessed to sin in the premises, and included his "father's house" in his confession. If he and his ancestors had acted differently things would not have been as they were. What do we know of that?

Third, the prayer was helpful nevertheless. Hopeful, because he had a strong promise of God to rest upon. "Remember thy word," he said, and then he quoted that word. Can you do that? You must know the promises to be able to do it, and you know the promiser also. How much do you search God's word to discover its treasures for yourself or others, and how much do you exercise yourself to bring them down from heaven for life on earth? Nehemiah just agreed with God about this matter. Ah! that is power. Read the chapter for yourself and see how he did it.

Fourth, the prayer was very definite. He didn't go round Robin Hood's barn as the saying is. He didn't mouth out a lot of fine phrases or pious notions. He told God just what he wanted and when he wanted it, if it would please him to give it. He was going to stand before the king on a certain day in his capacity as cup-bearer, and that would be a good time to ask a favor of the king. He was going to ask him that he might be commissioned as governor of Jerusalem to go up there and build the walls and deliver his people out of their affliction. The king must be disposed to grant the request, and he asked God so to dispose him. Why do not the rest of us cultivate that simplicity and directness? How interesting it would make both our private and public devotions, and how it would enhance God's answers to what we asked.

Fifth, the prayer was successful, of course. "I pleased the king to send me," says he, "and I set him a time."

The God of Nehemiah still lives and nothing is too hard for him. The promise in Philipians reads: "Be anxious for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God." Our national Thanksgiving day will soon be here again, and if sincerely we count our national blessings during the past year it will be the best preparation for that earnest prayer we so much need. Afflictions are opening in certain quarters and perils are ahead and greatly do we as a nation need God.

And in her husband's clasp she felt at last a safeguard against the dangers that had beset her, and knew that thenceforward their real life would be together.

Going It Too Hard

We are inclined nowadays to "go it too hard;" to overwork, worry, eat and drink too much, and to neglect our rest and sleep. This fills the blood with uric acid. The kidneys weaken and then it's a siege of headache, dizzy, nervous spells, rheumatic pains and distressing urinary disorders. Don't wait for worse troubles. Strengthen the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

A New Hampshire Case. Ivan F. Gould, farmer, R. F. D. No. 3, Stewartstown, N. H., says: "I was so miserable from kidney trouble that I couldn't do anything. Doctors thought I was beyond a doubt. My limbs, arms and face swelled and I had awful headaches, a bad dizzy spell. My whole body pained. Doan's Kidney Pills drove away the pain and swellings and fixed me up all right."

WOULDN'T WORK THAT TIME. For Once It Was a Cinch That Sign, Ordinarily Infallible, Was Doomed to Failure.

The talk topic turned to signs, tokens and things like that the other afternoon, when Congressman Henry T. Heigesen of North Dakota contributed the following anecdote:

One day Jones was rambling along the boulevard, when he was halted by his friend Smith. While talking about war, crops and mosquitoes, Jones noticed that Smith continually rubbed the palm of his hand.

"What in the world is the matter with your hand?" he finally demanded. "You have been rubbing and scratching it ever since we stopped here."

"The palm itches like blazes," answered Jones. "They say that it is a sure sign that you are about to get some money."

"Um!" thoughtfully returned Smith, as a great light suddenly dawned upon him. "Here is where you get wise to the fact that there is nothing in signs. I haven't a dollar to spare."

Sad Days. Big sister was reading in her book of poems: "The melancholy days have come—the saddest of the year."

"Sis, sis," broke in her schoolboy brother, "don't pull any of that 'saddest of the year' stuff. With nine examples and a page of grammar to do I know what time of year it is!"

What Kept Him Busy. "I suppose you are well posted on the subject of sun spots, aren't you?" suggested the lady.

"Well, really, I can't say that I am. It takes so much of my time looking after the spots on my only suit of clothes."

Sometimes two women can stop talking about each other long enough to swap kisses.

HARD ON CHILDREN. When Teacher Has Coffee Habit. "Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others. A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously. "One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation. "I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room. "When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavour, and nourishing. "In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared. I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer. "I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 50c and 60c cans. Both kinds are equally delicious and make a healthy and strengthening cup. "There's a Difference" in Postum. —sold by Grocers.

The congestion of the blood in its flow causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. "The man or woman who has rheumatism, neuralgia or other pain and fails to keep Sloan's Liniment in their home is like a drowning man refusing a rope." Why suffer. Get a bottle of Sloan's. 25c. and 50c. $1.00 bottle hold six times as much as the 25c. size. adv.

Favor Coming Together

At the closing sessions of the annual conference of the New Hampshire Baptists and the Free Baptists held in Concord last week, resolutions were adopted referring the proposed merger of the two denominations back to the joint committee on union of the church, to report a plan of amalgamation at the annual meeting in Laconia in 1916. If the union is approved the matter will go before the legislature in 1917 to secure authority for the new corporation. Both branches appeared strongly in favor of the proposed union.

Mrs. Silas Taft visited the past week with her cousin, Mrs. Martha Sawyer.

Rev. William Weston, of Marlboro, is in town for a few days.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctor decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. RESCH, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (Confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

H. W. Spaulding and wife, of Dublin, are to move to the F. D. Henderson cottage.

L. H. Belcher was taken ill while on his way home from Greenfield, last week Saturday, and in a few hours was dead, the result of a shock. A good man has gone and one the town will miss; he was a loyal member of the Masonic fraternity and the Eastern Star.

Mr. Belcher was born in this town, April 19, 1851, son of the late Horace and Asenath Newton Belcher; has always resided here, living on the home place for many years where the funeral service was held, Tuesday at one o'clock, and was Masonic, Rev. William Weston, of Marboro, formerly of Greenfield, a brother Mason, officiating.

His surviving relatives are the widow and two sons and a sister, Mrs. Almira Shedd, of Hillsboro. Much sympathy is expressed for the family in their sudden bereavement.

Do not allow it to become serious. Buy a box today to fight the beginnings of eczema. 50c. a box. adv.

Fair by N. B. Sunday School

The first annual Vegetable Fair given by the children of the North Branch Sunday school was held last Thursday night at the North Branch chapel. During the summer the children have raised vegetables of several kinds and a very good degree of excellence. Ribbon prizes were awarded on the displays. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

The annual meeting of the Sunday school association was held at the same time and the following officers elected: William H. Toward, president; W. L. Linton re-elected superintendent; Mrs. Hardin E. Ford, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Thomas McMinn, Mrs. William H. Toward and Edward R. Grant, executive committee.

A short entertainment was given consisting of flag drills, songs and recitations by the children.

Doubly Proven

Antrim Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This grateful citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

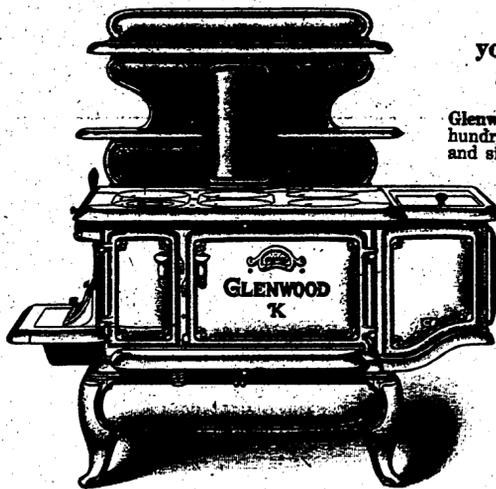

It forms convincing proof of merit. Mrs. Charles Wood, Bridge St., Hillsboro, N. H., says: "I suffered from dull, nagging backaches and distressing pains across my kidneys, was hardly able to stoop or lift. I was restless at night and was annoyed by the irregular kidney action. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills entirely relieved the backache and made me feel better in every way."

Over three years later Mrs. Wood said: "The benefit Doan's Kidney Pills gave me has been permanent." Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy,—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wood has twice recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

POOR SUBSTITUTE FOR KISS

Possibly those who have kept house for a long time know, but there are many others who have difficulty in making custards, cornstarch puddings and gravies smooth if there are eggs in them.

A simple way is to remove the milk sugar and other ingredients, supposing it is cornstarch pudding one is making, from the above to cool enough to stop the boiling.

Dip a few spoonfuls of the hot milk into the bowl in which there are the well beaten eggs, stirring as each spoonful is added.

This heats them gradually, not allowing them to cook before they are thoroughly mixed with the milk.

Then they may be added to the larger quantity on the stove, stirred in quickly and the pudding placed over the fire to finish cooking.

Scotch Stew.

Three pounds of mutton neck cut into convenient pieces. Put two tablespoonfuls of suet into a stewpan and shake over the fire until melted. Remove "cracklings" and sear the mutton, stirring so all sides are browned. Push to side of pan. Blend two tablespoonfuls flour into fat, then add a quart of strained tomatoes. Stir until boiling, add one sliced onion, one bay leaf and one-tablespoonful mushroom or other table sauce. Cover pan. Simmer very gently an hour and a half. Serve in a border of boiled rice. The remainder, including bones, will make an excellent soup.

Bread of Lamb.

About two and one-half pounds of bread of lamb, boiled tender in salted water; takes about two hours or a little longer to cook. Have what vegetables you like and thicken the broth for gravy. If there should be enough meat left chop and season and mold in a small, deep dish and put a weight on it. It will cut in nice thin slices for tea.

NEW SANITARY MILK STOOL. Has pull and tall holder. Clean, safe, reliable. Write for literature. The Weaver Mfg. Co., 100 West 21st St., New York City.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, Jr.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

GETTING A BETTER POSITION.

The stagnant pool is useless and a menace to health. Its water is unfit to drink, and its sluggishness will not turn a water wheel. It either dries up or it remains a blot on the landscape.

The man who stays where he is, without thinking of bettering his condition is like the stagnant pool, for sooner or later, unless he attempts to create a current, he will, like the pool, dry up or else remain an unwelcome member of society.

Conversely, however, there is always as much danger in attempting to rush as there is in remaining placid. The mountain torrent, although active, does not have the body or the quantity of energy necessary for utilization.

However profitable your position may be, you have a right to consider advancement, but when you carry this consideration beyond the lines of ordinary caution, and plunge, leap and run, you are likely to dash yourself to pieces and to be no better off—perhaps worse off—than you would have been had you remained at a standstill.

A Friendly Tip.

Foggs—I wonder what makes my eyes so weak?

Boggs—I don't know—unless it's because they are in a weak place.

The trouble is that victory too often appears at first in the guise of failure.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, Jr.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

DOESN'T ANTAGONIZE.

Nobody asks you to shelve your independence or to forget your individuality. You have a right to your opinion, and there is no reason why you should not express it and live up to your convictions. There is a vast difference, however, between displaying manly courage and carrying a chip on your shoulder.

If you are in business, your success will be dependent, not wholly upon your trading ability, but upon your personality, and the way you treat your customers, and those with whom you come in contact.

Millions of dollars' worth of trade has been lost because salesmen have vented their spleen upon their customers, have annoyed them in loud as well as in big ways, and aroused in them a feeling of antagonism, which is sure to react against the store, as well as against the salesman in it.

A great many people will tell you that they avoid certain stores and certain salespeople, simply because they are not treated with common courtesy, and because the sellers do not seem to be interested in them as buyers.

Few salesmen seem to realize that courtesy—plain and simple politeness—is one of the greatest selling assets and that it contributes largely to success.

One may not be by nature a good seller of goods, and he may be deficient in many other respects; but, if he is uniformly courteous, if he shows a marked interest in the customer and is obliging, he is likely to sell more goods than is an expert salesman who fails to realize the importance of courtesy.

The popular salesman not only makes, but holds, customers.

Thousands of buyers will wait a quarter of an hour, or even longer, in order to trade with their favorite salesman. They feel at home with him. He meets them with a smile, and is, or appears to be, interested in their affairs, although he is not obtrusive. The customer instinctively feels his friendship.

Courtesy is valuable in every walk of life, in business and out of it. The polite man or woman is always popular, provided he does not carry his courtesy into flattery.

The popular man is not always the man of great intellect, but he knows how to make friends, by a charm of manner, by a kindness of spirit, which is readily felt, by a real or apparent unselfish interest in those with whom he is associated.

Popularity counts in business, and counts mightily. Popularity makes friends, and friends in the mart of trade mean customers.

Those little things, which may seem to be of no account, frequently stand between success and failure.

The great trouble with people nowadays is that they look into the clouds and prepare themselves to handle matters of importance, forgetting that things of consequence are but collections of little things, and that nothing great can be accomplished until the accomplisher has perfected himself in the small matters which collectively produce the finished product.

Not what you do, if you are on the firing line of business, but how you do it, counts.

IN VENEZUELAN FORESTS.

There were many good rubber forests in the interior of Venezuela in the old days, and for several years I was engaged, sometimes alone and sometimes in partnership, in outfitting—"grubstaking"—native rubber cutters, and then buying the crude rubber upon their return to my camps, writes an explorer. My own profit on the rubber was about 500 per cent, but this did not, as you may think, represent an imposition, on the natives, since my own posts were far in the interior, and I had a lot of trouble in getting the product out to transportation. One of my routes of travel was by the many lagoons and rivers which indent the Venezuelan coast, by means of which men in canoes can penetrate far into the interior of that wild region. The Guayana country was at the end of a considerable chain of lagoons, and where the ground rose rather abruptly into the hilly and almost inaccessible forests. This was good rubber country and, though the Guayanas themselves never brought down any rubber, they were exceedingly jealous of anybody invading their chosen domain.

I had several bands of halfbreeds working for me who would hunt rubber as a miner does gold. No chances were too great if they promised a good haul of rubber. Several sanguinary conflicts had occurred with the Guayanas, and I almost decided to forbid my men entering their territory, although there was little hope of controlling these restless natives or knowing where their trails would lead once they plunged into the tropical jungles.

Some Difference.

"Now, dis am de question, pahson," stated Brother Shimpaw. "When de millennium comes will folks quit working?"

"No, sah!" replied sage old Parson Bagster. "Dey will quit bein' worked."

—Kansas City Star.

FEEDING IN A DAIRY

Error Made in Giving Too Much Cheap Concentrates.

Chief Problem is to Furnish a Sufficient and at Same Time Not Too Costly Supply of the Best Protein Foods.

(By W. M. KELLEY.)

According to accepted standards, a cow weighing one thousand pounds will require about one pound of protein a day in a maintenance ration, and one producing from thirty to forty pounds of milk a day will require from one and one-fourth to one and three-fourths pounds additional, or a total of from two and one-fourth to two and three-fourths pounds a day. Our dairy business, especially in the East, has been developed largely upon a basis of cheap protein foods; and as a result many dairymen have been buying and feeding too many protein concentrates, for the purpose of stimulating a large flow of milk.

Some dairymen are feeding each cow daily from eight to ten pounds of gluten and other highly-concentrated protein feeds; but it is my judgment that they are making a mistake and cannot obtain profitable results in the pail or by added fertility in the manure heap.

Our farm crops, clover and timothy hay, corn and other fodder, and forage, with oats, barley, wheat-bran and corn for concentrates, and a little of the more highly concentrated protein foods form an ideal combination to promote health and vitality. We may get a little less milk, but our cows will breed more regularly, and we shall have better calves.

The low percentage of protein, and the high percentage of water in corn ensilage makes it desirable to feed with it an abundance of good clover hay, which makes a better ration than either alone, but one that is far from perfect.

When feeding ensilage and clover hay, a liberal admixture of home-grown grain foods should be added to balance the ration with protein. We should make a constant effort to produce various kinds of proteinaceous forage and fodder crops.

This brings up the question of rotation of crops best suited to the feed-

PROVIDE BIRDS WITH FRUITS

Robins, Catbirds and Brown Thrashers Are Fond of Fruit of Redosier Dogwood and Mulberry.

(By D. LANNEY.)

If a person wishes to make a bird's paradise, not one of the plants and shrubs in the following list should be left out. It would be well if nurserymen would cut out this list and preserve it:

Mulberry, red, Russian and white; Mahaleb cherry, wild black cherry, wild red cherry, wild chokecherry, European bird cherry, shad tree, native thorn trees, flowering dogwood, alternate-leaved dogwood, mountain ash, wild crabapple, hackberry, buckthorn, hemlock, staghorn sumac, smooth sumac, larch and pine trees for winter food for grosbeaks, crossbills and pine finches; yellow, black, white and canoe birches for goldfinches and partridges; elderberries, seven varieties of Cornus, Berberis Thunbergii for quail; Myrica cerifera for winter birds; red cedar and all junipers.

According to accepted standards, a cow weighing one thousand pounds will require about one pound of protein a day in a maintenance ration, and one producing from thirty to forty pounds of milk a day will require from one and one-fourth to one and three-fourths pounds additional, or a total of from two and one-fourth to two and three-fourths pounds a day. FARM BOUTRY

CARING FOR FALL CHICKENS

Wise Thing to Attend to Chickens Brought Late in Season—Nice Profit Made on Three Matches.

More attention should be given to fall chickens, for there is a large profit made in them. Very often hens steal their nests away and come up with chicks in the fall. These are, as a rule, neglected and the chicks die from exposure and want of food. Experience has taught me, says a writer in an exchange, that it is a wise thing to care for these chicks, for they will live through the winter if properly taken care of, and be ready for the market in March or April when the price of young fowls is good.

Last fall the first of November, I had three hens to hatch out 24 chicks. I have a room at one end of my chicken house that is plastered and has a floor and windows in it. I gave all the chicks to one hen, and put them with her in this room. I kept plenty of straw on the floor for warmth and litter, provided them with a box of oyster shells, and fed them on winter alfalfa, grains, meat scraps and hot mash made of middlings.

I had a nice bunch of chicks ready for the market. I made a contract with the manager of a large hotel to sell them to him for 60 cents a pound. One does not mind the labor spent when considering the nice profit.

These chicks were hatched by hens which stole their nests away.

QUALITIES OF PEKIN DUCKS

Most Extensively Bred and Probably as Good All-Round Market Fowl as There is on Farm.

Today we have 11 acknowledged varieties of ducks, viz.: Pekin, Aylesbury, Rouen, Runner, Crested White, White Muscovy, Colored Muscovy, Cayuga, White Call, Gray Call and Black East Indians.

For real practical purposes, I only recommend the first four classes and in the order that I have named them, the Pekin being the most extensively bred and probably as good an all-round market duck as there is today; but they are the most timid, and consequently more liable to get panic-stricken when raised in large numbers, says a writer in an exchange. Standard weight of adult drake, eight pounds; duck, seven pounds.

As to laying qualities the Pekins are outclassed only by a single breed. It is a common thing for a Pekin duck to lay from 100 to 125 eggs in a single season.

ERROR OF MANY POULTRYMEN

Too Many Fowls Are Kept Over Winter by Small Fanciers—Should Be Sent to City Markets.

Many poultrymen make the mistake of keeping too many fowls over winter. This is especially true of the small fancier. Imagination looms up to prodigious size, and he sees himself carrying home from the post office order after order for fowls and eggs. He persuades himself that he cannot possibly retain too many fowls for the late winter and early spring trade, so his inflated enthusiasm lures him into paths which lose him profit and defeat the very purpose which he is aiming for.

With this large idea in his head he neglects to cull his flock as severely as he should and thus retains many for breeders which should rightfully adorn the city man's table—via the huckster's cart.

DUSTING PLACES FOR FOWLS

When Provided They Should Be Moist, Not Dry Earth—Dust-Filled Air Is Not Desirable.

Comparatively few poultry plants provide any dust bath other than such "dusting" places as the fowls can find in the runs and the earth on the floor. The great trouble with the dust bath is that it is misnamed. From the name a good many poultry keepers have come to believe that a "dust bath" should be filled with dry dust, the dryer the better. A fowl will use a dust bath when she can't get anything more to her liking, and she will wallow in it until the place is filled with dust almost to the point of suffocation. Such dust-filled air is not desirable for breathing purposes. But biddy will kick up great clouds of dust scratching in dry litter and appear none the worse for it.

Provide Shade for Ducklings. The hot sun will cause young goslings and ducklings as well to topple over and die. Provide shade for them until they are strong on their legs.

Food for Egg Layers. In feeding chickens always remember that they produce fresh eggs for human food and therefore their own feed should be just as pure as that we eat ourselves.

Mashes for Poultry. Avoid sloppy mashes. They are better when fed in a crumbly condition.

Madison Square Tower in Spain.

I have kept the unique wonder of Seville waiting too long already for my recognition, though in its 800 years it should have learned patience enough for worse things.

From its great antiquity alone, if from nothing else, it is plain that the Giralda at Seville could not have been studied from the tower of the Madison Square Garden in New York, which the American will recall when he sees it.

If the case must be reversed and we must allow that the Madison Square tower was studied from the Giralda, we must still recognize that it is no servile copy, but in its frank imitation has a grace and beauty which achieves originality.

Still, the Giralda is always the Giralda, and, though there had been no Salm-Gaudens to tip its summit with such a flying-footed nymph as plies on our own tower, the figure of Faith which crowns it is at least a good weather vane, and from its office of turning, gives the mighty bell tower its name.

Long centuries before the tower was a belfry it served the mosque, which the cathedral now replaces, as a minaret for the muezzin to call the faithful to prayer, but it was then only two-thirds as high.—Harper's Magazine.

SYNOPSIS.

Hall Bonistelle, artist-photographer, prepares for the day's work in his studio. Flodie Fisher, his assistant, reminds him of a party he is to give in the studio that night. Mr. Doramus, attorney, calls and informs Hall that his client, Miss Gale, has left him $4,000,000 on condition that he marry her before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight the next day. Miss Gale calls at the studio. Hall asks her to marry him. She agrees to give him an answer at the party that night. Miss Carolyn Dalley calls. Hall proposes to her. She agrees to give him an answer at the party. Rosamund Gale, art model, calls. Hall tries to rush her into an immediate marriage. She, too, defers her answer until the evening. Flodie tries to show Hall a certain way out of the mixup, but he is obtuse. Jonas Hassingbury, who is the million-dollar case, falls to marry on time, plots with Flodie to block Hall's marriage to any of the three women before midnight. Flodie arranges to have the three meet at the studio as if by chance. At that meeting much feminine fencing ensues, in which Flodie uses her own wit adroitly. Hall comes in. Alfred, the janitor, brings in a newspaper with the story of the million-dollar legacy. The ladies' alliance to humiliate Hall dissolves and they retire to plan war for the $4,000,000 prize. Rosamund telegrams messages from the three ladies inform Hall that he is accepted by all three. Desperate, he asks Flodie to save him from the three-horned dilemma by marrying him. She refuses, and goes with Alfred, who has long been a humble suitor, to get a marriage license. Jonas arrives for the party.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

Hall's reception of him was polite without being over-cordial. The two cousins did not often meet; they had little in common, and they disliked each other thoroughly.

"Well, Jonas, been having a good time in New York?"

"Oh, well, so-so." His eyes twinkled. "Not so good as I expect to have a little later, though." He winked elaborately at Flodie.

"Oh, I see. Meaning that money, I presume."

"That's right! Can't blame me for takin' an interest in it, can ye? Four millions don't walk into my pocket every night, my boy!" He slapped Hall cordially on the shoulder.

Hall was angry. "You seem to be pretty sure of it!"

Jonas placidly shook his head in sorrow at this exhibition of temper. "Now, Hall, ye want to take this in a Christian spirit, my boy. I can see it'll be all for the best. Remember that gold is but dross—"

Hall whirled on him. "Shut up, will you? By jove, if you weren't in my own house, I'd kick you down-stairs!" And with that, he flung impetuously out of the room.

Jonas' sour glance followed him. "Peevish, ain't he? How be ye gettin' along?" he asked anxiously, in an undertone, of Flodie. "Anything happened?"

"Well, I should say!" said Flodie. "You ought to have seen the show. But we're not out of the woods, yet. Still, I think that if I have time and luck, I can put it through."

"Ye can? By whilkens, that's fine! Good for you! Well, we ought to know pretty soon now." He looked up at the clock. "Only, let's see—an hour and thirty—" He stopped, staring at the clock, then, with a puzzled face, drew his own big watch from his pocket, and compared it with the clock. "Say!" He turned eagerly to Flodie.

"Hush!" cried Flodie, and laid her finger on her lip.

Jonas' expression grew crafty. Then he grinned. "Oh, I see! Got a little scheme fixed up, eh? He walked to the couch and sat down, beckoning her. "Say, jest set down, won't ye, and let me know how things stand."

Flodie demurely took a seat beside him.

"Then they ain't no danger of any of them three women gittin' him, is they?"

"Why," said Flodie, "not if we can manage to keep them away from him. It isn't so easy as it looks. Those women are getting desperate, now, and ye've got to help me fool them."

"Me? How? What can I do?"

"Why, if one of them gets him, ye've got to just jump in, and break it up in a hurry. Don't let her get a word in edgewise, if you can help it. Fall on the floor, smash a window—anything! It doesn't matter what they think."

"By jiminy, I'll do it, you bet!" cried Jonas. "One thing I do know: how to handle women!"

"I'm willin' to try it, if you be. I don't see where I could do better, and you'd git a good man if you got me, miss, if I do say it!"

"Thank you kindly," said Flodie, "but I don't really know what in the world I'd do with you if I got you."

Jonas stared at her as if she were raving. "You don't know what you're talkin' about! Don't you realize if you marry me you'll get four million dollars? Lord, any other gal would just jump at the chance to have the spendin' o' that money."

"Let 'em jump!" said Flodie. "That's my advice, Mr. Hassingbury; you take a good jumper. And I want to give you a tip—" She went up to him and took him confidentially by the lapel of his coat. "There will be three women here tonight, and all of 'em can jump like grasshoppers. Once they find out you have money, and they'll jump at the chance, you see! They'll jump all over you!"

Before the astonished Jonas could reply, Alfred opened the door to a lady gorgeously arrayed in blue. Flodie gave one look at her, then whispered: "There's the first one of 'em now! Miss Gale." Then she stepped forward, sniffing fragrant scornfully, and welcomed Rosamund.

An elaborate, painstaking picture of feminine trippery was Rosamund Gale. She came in as if making a stage entrance. Something was to happen tonight. Rosamund was on the war-path.

She barely acknowledged Flodie's greeting, or Jonas' presence, but cast a hasty anxious glance about; then, seeing no women, seemed to breathe freer. "Where's Hall?" she asked almost immediately.

"Oh, somewhere about. In with the musicians probably," Flodie turned to Jonas. "Mr. Hassingbury, Miss Gale!"

Jonas bent over her. "Why, now, they's a lot o' Gales down to Branford, where I live. I wonder if you—"

"Tell Hall to hurry please!" cried Rosamund to Flodie. Flodie started off, smiling, but Rosamund caught at her arm and held her. "Wait a minute, though! Miss Fisher, listen! Has anything—anything important happened?"

"What d'you mean?"

"Oh, I mean—well, nothing exciting, has it?"

Flodie reflected. "Why, I'm afraid Alfred has spilled some salad on his new dress suit, Miss Gale, if that's what you mean?"

Rosamund did not condescend to answer. She left haughtily and passed hurriedly into the dressing room and divested herself of her wraps. Jonas had but time to remark to Flodie, "So she's one of 'em, is she? Pretty gal, by jiminy!" when she was out again, and without noticing them, had gone to the door of the reception room, and looked in, scowling.

Here, the rugs were all up and the floor waxed for dancing. Three musicians were scraping and tuning their instruments. Hall Bonistelle was in a corner, arranging a vase of flowers. Rosamund darted in and swam up to him. No scowl now; she was a different creature, smiling, radiant, angelic, sailing on an air of gladness. She seized Hall's hand excitedly.

"Oh, Hall," she exclaimed dramatically, "ma's perfectly delighted! It's all right, and you needn't worry a moment longer! Aren't you glad?" She hung on him fondly as if she expected him to embrace her.

Hall had turned white. Rosamund's beauty had instantly disarmed him. He could no more have said the brutal things he had contemplated than he could have struck a child. Weakly, he prostrated, fumbling her hand.

"Really?" he managed to say. "Jove! That's fine!"

"Well, why don't you kiss me, Hall?" Rosamund's eyes were on the door, watching anxiously for interruptions. Flodie gazed in.

Hall looked over his shoulder, embarrassed. "Oh, these musicians—I don't want them to—say, wait till we can be alone!"

She stared at him in annoyed surprise then gave another irritated glance at the door. The sound of women's voices goaded her on. "Nonsense! Why, I intend to announce our engagement immediately!"

Terror-stricken, Hall exclaimed, "Oh, no, that won't do at all, Rosamund, really. We'll have to wait a little while—not tonight, anyway!"

"Why, that's half the fun of being engaged—talking about it!" Then, after another quick look toward the office, she gazed up at him and pressed his hand. "We are engaged, aren't we, Hall?"

"Oh, yes—certainly! Only—" Rosamund had an instant of triumph and relief. It was all right, then. She tossed her head as if in secret revolt; she would have her own way, see if she didn't! "Well," she said coldly, "I'll wait a while, if you insist. Only, I should think you might look happier about it. You act so funny!"

He was saved from having to reply by Jonas Hassingbury, who, glimpsing the encounter, and impelled by Flodie, had plunged boldly forward to the rescue.

Concerning the Remodeling of Old Gowns

Rosamund glared, and Hall, sensing the happy chance, had already begun to edge off with a mumbled something about dishes and guests. People had, in truth, begun to arrive and the place was filling rapidly. The musicians had begun to play; Flodie looked in, with a distressed face, and beckoned. Still Rosamund held him by the sleeve.

Jonas fired again. "Ain't never been down Branford way, have ye? Say, you ought to run down to our village some time, miss, and git a mess o' clams. We got some first-class lobsters down home. Know it?"

Rosamund turned the full glory of her gaze upon him. "Oh, yes," she said sweetly, "I can easily believe that!"

But alas for her irony! This indulgence had cost her her prey. Hall was already across the room, and Jonas clung like a leech. She could not, with all her insolence, detach him.

CHAPTER XII.

Guests were coming in bunches, now, and kept Hall so busy for half an hour that he had no time to plan how he should escape from the other two women with whom he must inevitably have matrimonial converse.

So far, he was not particularly anxious. Rosamund he thought he could dispose of somehow, putting her off till Flodie should change her mind; and from Carolyn Dalley and Mrs. Royaltan he feared little. He would trust, at any rate, to the inspiration of the moment. With four millions—and Flodie—he didn't much care what they thought of him. It was a caddish trick, perhaps, but—four millions! The end would have to justify the means.

So, handsome and elegant and popular, witty and well-bred, he laughed and gossiped with his guests, started the dancing, introduced one to another, showed his color prints, and between times, watched the mousy girl in white who had so suddenly assumed an extraordinary importance in his life.

Flodie, merely loved to and patronized by most of the guests, had discovered an unexpected friend in Mr. Doramus. He, finding her his only acquaintance, had stuck to her like a burr. Flodie liked him. At a one-step he could not cut much of a figure, but seated in the office with Flodie, where she could keep an eye on Alfred and the caterer, it was not long before she felt impelled to make him her ally.

With all his elephantine wit and his manners of the old school, Mr. Doramus treated her in a jocular, fatherly, indulgent way that inspired her trust. And, that evening, Flodie had dire need of a coadjutor. She began to the picture above. The straight, moderately full skirt is made of a dark plaid with fine crossbars of white. The belted jacket has a square opening at the front which allows the use of one of the sheer organdie chemises and turnover collars that add much to the becomingness of dark frocks. The plain sleeves which taper to the wrist are finished with plaid cuffs, ball buttons and silk braid. The belt is of the same material as the jacket and fastens with button and braid ornament at the left side.

The plain material appears in a wide band about the skirt, but is more often seen in two or three narrower bands.

This model is well adapted to the nearly grown miss as well as to young women.

There are many good patterns for skirts to be made up in plaid materials. Such skirts should never be "tussy." The broken surface and mixture of colors in the material make it necessary to choose plain designs.

The problems of the home dressmaker in the matter of remodeling last year's gowns to make them up to date are much simplified this season. She may take advantage of the vogue for combinations of plain cloth and fur fabrics, and of the continued favor of sleeves and blouses of chiffon under skeleton bodices of heavier goods. But most useful of all to her is the liking for plaids in both silk and wool materials. Made up in combination with plain cloth they are a style feature. Skirts trimmed with bands of fur cloth—which is a new name for certain plushes—and coats of the fur cloth or of combinations of it with plain goods make as attractive suits as the season has to offer. Plaids are used in the same way and their field is even wider because afternoon gowns and even dressier ones, employ them. They are unusually effective because the fashionable colors of the season are dark and the plaids unusually rich. A pretty combination is shown in

Shoes Displayed for Fall and Winter

The shoes displayed for fall and winter wear are more quiet in design and decoration than those worn during the summer. But, compared to those of former seasons, they are elaborate. The new footwear shows novelties in cut, combinations of two or more materials, and color combinations: in the same shoe, oddities in methods of fastening and minute attention to the details of finishing.

The public, and especially the feminine public, is growing more discriminating and more exacting each year as to footwear. America already boasts the best shaped and best made shoes produced. Now, small items of finishing, such as the buttons used, shape of buttonholes and management of stitching are counted upon to impart much style to the finished boot.

The shortening of skirts brought in the high shoe and it remains. For the street there is a number of smart designs, of which two are shown in the picture. A third very popular boot faces on the inside and steps to be cut in two pieces with a seam run-

Robert W. Chambers, the novelist, prides himself on his knowledge of women, and at the Century club in New York the other day he told a story in illustration of his knowledge. "Smith," he began, "was brooding over his cocktail gloomily. 'I'm not going home to dinner tonight,' Smith said. 'I've quarreled with my wife.' 'Quarreled with your wife, eh?' said I. 'What about?' 'Why,' Smith explained, 'my wife said that young Mrs. Dash was pretty, and I agreed with her.'—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Kidney Trouble Causes Intense Suffering

Sixteen years ago I was taken sick with kidney trouble and suffered terribly for three months. I did not work during this time and was mostly confined to the bed. After using other remedies I finally tried a bottle of Swamp-Root. I immediately began to feel better, and after using seven fifty-cent bottles, was entirely cured and have had no kidney trouble since. I can truly say that I owe my good health to Swamp-Root. You may publish this letter for the benefit of other people afflicted as I was with the hope of bringing to their attention this most wonderful remedy.
Yours very truly,

She Will Recover

So her doctor said. Her friends and neighbors felt sure of it too. They have used Peruna themselves and know of its merits.
That old cough that had worried her for years and years, for which she had taken all sorts of cough medicines, has disappeared.
Peruna is doing the work.
She will recover. Indeed,
she has recovered.

Her name is Mrs. William Mohmann, 2764 Lincoln Ave.,
Chicago, Ill. She had suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child. As she got older she grew worse. She coughed both winter and summer. Had to sit up at night.
Could not sleep. "But all that has left me now. Peruna has cured me."
There are others, and there is a reason.

Help the Editor

"Some persons assume that a newspaper is omniscient and they are surprised when some party which they have attended fails to be reported.
It may be that the party was private in its nature, and that no suggestion of its existence could reach the ears of the reporters. When those who attended fail to see it reported they are inclined to feel that their paper is sleeping and it rarely enters their head that a few minutes at the phone by any one of them would have given the paper the needed "tip."

"The news which a paper most easily misses is the small news. Important news is rarely lost, but the little personal items may easily escape notice. You, Mr. and Mrs. Reader, enjoy reading that your neighbor is away on a vacation or had a few friends from out of town for the week-end. You like to read of the comings and goings of others. Why don't you let the others have the same pleasure in reading of what you do?"

It seems to be hard for some good friends and loyal readers of their home paper to realize that it takes time to print a newspaper, that it requires quick and accurate work and some hours of time to convert an idea, a telephone message or a few hundred words on common stationery into a printed newspaper, delivered at one's home through the postoffice or by the newsboy.

In the offices of the great dailies a few hours of the night suffices to accomplish this feat; in the average weekly newspaper office it requires a whole day.

In order that the paper may be printed ready to be read at a certain time, it is necessary to stop receiving copy at a definite time, in order that there may be time to set the type, read the proof, correct the errors, prepare the forms for the press, print the paper, fold it and take it to the postoffice or news-stand.

When you have an item of news for the paper and are busy and think tomorrow will be time enough, think also of the editor, the compositor, the proof-reader, the pressman and the mailing clerk—and send your items in at the first opportunity. In the newspaper office, thrice blessed is he who sends his copy in early.

If all readers of newspapers who so kindly want to help serve their community by helping their home paper will follow these "tips"—and do it early, the coming year's siege will be rendered easier, the lives of editors prolonged and the satisfaction of readers be increased. In the lexicon of newspaperdom the important word is—Get the news and get it early—

EAST ANTRIM

G. A. Cochran and wife are planning to leave for the Pacific slope in the near future; they will attend the Panama exposition and be away the most of the winter.

George Nylander, of Chatham, Mass., is visiting his mother and brother.

Harry Richardson is closing up his business and will spend the winter with his family in Winchester, Mass.

F. I. Graves has purchased a new Ford five-passenger automobile.

Another husking at Ed. Knapp's on Saturday evening drew a fair crowd considering it was adjourned from Friday evening on account of the weather. No doubt a larger number would have attended on Friday if the conditions had been good. As it was a good quantity of nice corn was husked and a good time for those present. Miss Spaulding furnished music and lunch was served.

George Caughey and men are straightening the wall around the East cemetery and otherwise improving the appearance.

Miss Lula Young has finished her labors at Greystone Lodge and is with Mrs. Perry.

F. I. Graves has just completed a addition to the place.

ANTRIM CENTRE

At the Antrim Centre Congregational church Sunday, the formal presentation of the flag to the school was made by Mrs. Mary H. Reed, Department Treasurer of the New Hampshire W. R. C., in behalf of the local society. Mrs. Reed was attended by Mrs. Lena Bottgenbach, president of the Antrim Corps, and Mrs. Bertha Colby, department Senior Aide. Superintendent John Tenney accepted the flag in behalf of the Sunday school, and Rev. Henry A. Coolidge, pastor, gave a patriotic address. Saluting the flag by the children and the singing of America concluded the exercises.

Miss Dora Craig of East Antrim and Miss Lora Craig of North Branch spent Sunday with their parents, Mr.
