FOURTH OF JULY

Will be Appropriately Observed in Antrim

Acting upon advice of the committee on National defence, the local Public Safety committee are arranging for a patriotic observance of the Fourth of July, to be held in the town hall in the evening. The thought in the minds of everyone present seemed to be that if ever in the history of our country since the declaration of independence it was fitting to observe its anniversary that time is now; and in view of this feeling preparations are in progress for a fitting observance of this occasion. The arrangements in the main are in the hands of the Public Safety Committee, who have selected different ones to help out on the details. The program at the hall will be a patriotic one throughout and will doubtless be finely rendered and very largely attended.

In times past the observance of Fourth of July has been always a celebration of a noisy and frivolous nature, but this year it will be more of the kind that it ought to be—the world conditions compel it. The people as a whole realize more than ever before what such an observance means and are ready to enter into it with the proper reverence and respect; they realize also that patriotism is a word of great meaning and needs to be fully analyzed in order that their acts may be just what they ought to be and that their lives may be truly American in the fullest meaning of the term. This may seem to some a bit serious, but these are serious times in which we live and they demand serious thoughts from the young as well as the old. It is hard we know for everyone to grasp this idea and shape their lives accordingly, but what is demanded in these times is a realization of the fact that we are all here to be of service—not a narrow selfish service that benefits no one but his own, but a broader service, that someone else may feel that you have an interest in them and that the spirit of equality means very much more than it is generally taken to mean. Getting far away from the spirit and thought of the declaration of independence is one of the reasons for so much thoughtlessness along this line, and to those who have not read it since they were in school it will be time well spent to sit down and read it through from first to last. Living more closely to this marvelous declaration by some of the most loyal and patriotic men this country ever knew, will be a service worth while and one's life will be well spent in so doing.

Antrim Pharmacy Sold

I wish to announce to the public that I have sold the Antrim Pharmacy, stock and good will, to Chester A. Bates, a druggist of long experience, and one of the best prescription druggists in the state. Mr. Bates intends to carry about the present line of goods, making improvements and adding new ideas and goods to the present well assorted lines. He is a man of sterling qualities, and deserves the patronage of the best people of Antrim and surrounding towns. At these times people cannot be too careful about their Prescriptions, Candy, Sodas, Ice Cream, etc. The Pharmacy Ice Cream is all made in the store from pure cream and milk, sugar, etc., so everyone knows just what he is eating.

All accounts owing to the Pharmacy up to and including June 5 can be paid to Mr. Bates at the Pharmacy. I have no further interests in the store.

Odd Fellows Memorial Service Next Sunday

The Odd Fellows will observe their Memorial Day on Sunday next by attending divine worship at the Methodist church, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. All members of the Subordinate and Rebekah lodges unite in this service and will meet at their hall at 8:30 and march to the church. As this is one of the few special services in the year that every member is asked to attend, it is hoped that there will be a large attendance, and let everyone make a special effort to do so. Your presence is needed to make the service the success it ought to be.

GOVERNOR KEYES

Issues Proclamation for a War Savings Day

Whereas, the President of the United States has called the people to universal saving, so that the materials and labor necessary for the support and equipment of our Army and Navy may be made available, and has set aside the period ending June 28 as a special time of enlistment in the great volunteer army of production and saving:

Now, therefore, in order that this state and its people may join with the other states in responding to the call of the President, I hereby proclaim as War Savings Day for the people of New Hampshire, and I urge that all patriotic citizens on or before that day pledge themselves to invest in War Savings Stamps during the year 1918 to the utmost of their ability, upon pledge cards presented for signature by duly appointed agents of the United States Treasury, who will conduct a canvass ending on June 28.

I ask our citizens to assemble on this War Savings Day at patriotic meetings held in their respective communities to signalize the completion of the work of obtaining pledges; and to show both by deed and by word that Americans at home present as firm a front of opposition to the world's enemy as do our brave men on the battlefield of France.

Given at the council chamber in Concord, this fourth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighteen and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-second.

Henry W. Keyes, Governor.
By His Excellency, the Governor, with the advice of the council.
Edwin C. Bean, Secretary of State.

Former Antrim Boy Married

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Martin and son, Omar W. Martin, were in Bristol, Conn., last week to attend the marriage of their son, Carroll F. Martin, of Portsmouth, to Miss Nellie A. Bacon. The following is a clipping from the Bristol, Conn., paper:

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Goodsell, 21 North St., June 5, at four o'clock p. m., when their niece, Miss Nellie A. Bacon, was married to Carroll F. Martin, of Portsmouth, N. H. Rev. Henry D. Coe, pastor of the Baptist church, to which the couple belonged, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by relatives and friends. The bride wore white crepe de chine, with veil and bridal rose bouquet. A reception followed. Following a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Martin will reside in Portsmouth, where Mr. Martin is employed at the Kittery Navy yards. Mrs. Martin has been employed at the Bristol National Bank for a number of years and has many friends.

Family Reunion

There was a family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. Merrill on Sunday, June 2, when all the children and grandchildren were present, the first time in four years. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Merrill, of Antrim, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard A. Merrill and son, Leonard Abbott, Jr., of Haverhill, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. K. I burn and two sons, Frederick Warren and Floyd Homer, of Andover, this state, and Miss Bertha Merrill of Antrim. Warren Merrill's brother, Edwin Merrill and wife, of Nashua, were also present. This proved to be a very pleasant gathering and enjoyed by everyone present.

A GRAND SHOWING

For the Second War Fund of the Red Cross

One hundred eighty of the citizens of Antrim had just raised approximately $3800 for local Red Cross work, and many had subscribed apparently to the maximum of their ability; it seemed to us that in order to be fair the burden of raising this $1200 ought to be assumed as much as possible by those who had subscribed most moderately, and those who had not subscribed at all to the first fund.

We found by consulting the subscription list and an old check list that about 120 of the voters of Antrim did not make subscriptions for the local work and we immediately placed the situation very frankly before them, and the spirit in which this was received was shown by the fact that 182 people gave in their subscriptions on this fund who had not done so on the local work, a few ladies and young people making up for those men who could not, and some who would not give. Ninety-two people gave to both funds, thus being doubly honored, making a total of 224 subscribers to the War Fund, and a total of 312 subscribers to both funds, showing the spirit of Antrim people, as there are probably not more than 400 families in town, and in most cases one subscription was made for the family.

The best part of the whole matter is that in both funds our working people and our more wealthy people each did their part, 16 subscribing $885 and 208 giving $580, a total of $1465. It took the combined efforts of both classes of people to put Antrim over the top, and one without the other would have made a failure of it.

There will be other funds to raise in Antrim during this war: let us then remember that it is not what a few can do, but rather what the many can do, that will bring success to any such undertaking.

Jacob S. Cooledge

Jacob S. Cooledge died at his home in Lowell, Mass., May 30; he was born in Antrim in 1829. The Cooledge homestead was the farm now the home of Otis Knapp. Mrs. Cooledge, the mother, lived to be ninety-four; one brother, Franklin, is still living, born in Antrim in 1826; he has been a highly respected and influential citizen of Lowell. Daniel, the father, was a blacksmith, his shop standing west of the house, where he shod the horses and oxen, making their shoes and pounding out the nails.

Only six of the early schoolmates, who attended school with the Cooledge boys in the old brick school house "over east" are still living.

Verses Solicited For Use in the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign

The Liberty Loan Committee of New England invites contributions of verses to be used in the Fourth Liberty Loan Campaign. There should not be more than four stanzas of four lines each, or two stanzas of eight lines each. They should be simple in form and lyrical. Verses may combine patriotism and non-sectarian religious feeling suitable for church services, or they may be secular and stirring, referring to Liberty Bonds, for use in liberty loan rallies. The authors will be requested to contribute their verses, which may be sent to John K. Allen, Chairman of the Publicity Committee, Liberty Loan Committee of New England, 30 Kilby Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Cottage Cheese Demonstrations

WOMEN—Hillsboro County is especially fortunate in having Miss Pearl Dorsey of Washington, D. C., to tell us all about "Cottage Cheese." Don't say that you have always made cottage cheese, because Miss Dorsey can tell you new ways to make it, new ways to use it, and the use of its by-product. Any effort you will make will be doubly repaid. She cannot visit every town because of limited time. You will be able to hear her at: Bedford June 17, Whitton, June 18, and Goffstown, June 19. Don't Miss It!

FOR HOME GUARD

For Town of Antrim--A Meeting of Men

Was called at the Selectmen's rooms on Monday evening of this week to consider the matter of organizing a home guard, and nearly fifty of the men of the town were present. The matter was thoroughly gone over and considered from different angles, and a committee of three was appointed to look further into the matter, consult with the Adjutant General regarding his desires and the needs of our town, along this line, and report at a future meeting called for this purpose. The committee having this in charge are Col. Richard C. Goodell, Amos O. Harrington and George A. Barrett. It was also mentioned in considering this matter that if a home guard attached to the state was not thought advisable possibly such an organization for purely local use and for the benefit of our male citizens and our town might be a good thing. This too will be reported on by the committee.

There was much interest manifested in this meeting, showing that our men are alive to the needs and demands of the times, and if an organization of either kind should be formed, it is quite evident that it will be well supported. This feeling was very pleasing to the local committee of Public Safety, under whose auspices this meeting was conducted; Robert W. Jameson, chairman.

State Committee Grateful for All Contributions

Citizens of New Hampshire have contributed over $510,000 to the American Red Cross Second War Fund in response to a request to give a quota of $300,000 for this purpose. Our committee estimates that at least 105,000 individuals and corporations have shared in making this offering. Such a splendid record, both in the amount of money and the number of those contributing, exceeds the results of all previous campaigns for war funds.

This success has been made possible by the generous and patriotic giving of our people and the hard work of many hundreds of solicitors and committees. May I take the opportunity, through your newspaper which has done so much in support of this and all other patriotic campaigns, to thank those who have given to the Red Cross. Their number is so large that gratitude cannot be formally expressed to each individual.

The humanitarian work of the Red Cross is such that no citizen of New Hampshire will regret that in this hour of need, he or she has supported it. In this particular campaign, the old Granite State has made a wonderful record, exceeding the expectations of all and ranking her as one of the foremost states of the country. In her voluntary giving to war charities.

Rolland H. Spaulding,
Chairman Red Cross Campaign.

Antrim Grange Notes

About 80 of the members of Peterboro Grange visited Antrim Grange last Wednesday evening, June 5, Neighbor's Night, making the trip in autos. They furnished the following excellent program which was much enjoyed by everyone: Song, Choir; Solo, Leora Weeks; Current Events, Miss Muzzey; Solo, Miss Stockwell; Reading, Miss Donovan; Solo, Mr. Eastman; Reading, Miss Blood; Solo, Miss Leathe; Talk on Forestry, Mr. Clement; Reading, A. O. Smith; Song, Choir, "Star Spangled Banner." Refreshments were served.

Antrim Grange has added two more stars to their service flag, one for Philip H. Butterfield and one for Ira C. Hutchison, who have both entered the service.

Saturday evening, June 15 will be Children's Night with Antrim Grange. All children are invited to be present. The children will furnish the entertainment.

The funeral of Mrs. Irving Stowell was held on Friday from the home of Mrs. Sally Lovewell, on High Street. Rev. H. A. Cooledge, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated, and interment was in Maplewood cemetery.

Women Give Out

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this grateful woman's experience:

Mrs. H. C. Sheldon, Winter St., Peterboro, N. H., says: "I suffered from a very lame back. I could hardly get around the house and couldn't turn in bed or get out of my chair without help. I was unable to dress myself and for days could not do anything. I was in great pain all the time. I used plasters and several medicines, but got no relief. Finally, I took Doan's Kidney Pills and the first box did me so much good that I continued using them. A few boxes cured me of the attack."

Over Seven Years Later Mrs. Sheldon said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I feel any sign of kidney trouble and they always give me the best of results."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Sheldon has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y. adv

ANNUAL MEETING

New Officers Molly Aiken Chapter, D. A. R.

Molly Aiken Chapter D. A. R. held its annual meeting at Peterboro Friday, June 7, as guests of Mrs. Mary Phelps Tenney and Mrs. Nettie Heritage Warner.

Despite the inclemency of the weather a large number of Daughters were present, the trip being made by automobiles.

At the Amherst College Alumni dinner, Amherst, Mass., President Melklejohn announced that within the past year and a half the endowment funds of the college had been increased by $875,000. This includes class gifts to the alumni fund this Commencement passed the $100,000 contributed by the following classes: 1886; $200; 1877; $200; 1882; $1500; 1890; $2000; 1892; $3000; 1893; $15,000; 1898; $330; 1903; $400. In addition to this, $15,000 has been contributed by alumni toward the operating deficit of the college for the current year, which will amount to approximately $30,000. The alumni fund at this Commencement passed the $-00,000 mark, at which time the income of the fund goes to the college for general college purposes. During the past five years there has been appropriated from the fund for instruction in the college $22,000.

Fire in a storehouse of the General Electric company in the South Boston district did damage estimated at $75,000 and threatened several other buildings. Sparks set fire to a shed on the waterfront, some distance away, and also started a small blaze in a building occupied by the Armour Leather company, but both were quickly extinguished. The fire was confined to the fifth floor of the General Electric building, where thousands of electric light bulbs were stored. Many of these were destroyed. Firemen were obliged to use some masks in fighting the flames. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Boston, June 6.—Shipments of soft coal into New England fell off last month more than 420,000 tons, as compared with May of last year, according to preliminary reports to James J. Storrow, New England fuel administrator. "Unless something can be done to cure conditions responsible for this big deficit in our coal receipts," Mr. Storrow said, "New England is faced with nothing short of disaster next winter."

A collision between a local passenger train and a light engine on the Central Vermont railroad between Burlington and Winooski killed five persons and injured several others. Seven persons were removed to hospitals. None of the dead were passengers.

The accident occurred in a tunnel when the southbound local from Cambridge for Burlington crashed head on into the engine. It was claimed that the accident was due to a mistake in orders for the passenger train, which ought to have been held at Winooski until the engine passed north.

The gilded dome of the Massachusetts state house is to be painted a battleship gray, or covered with canvas to make it less conspicuous to possible air raiders. The state house commission decided on this step after a conference with Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the first naval district, and Brig. Gen. John W. Ruckman of the northeastern department of the army. The dome is gilded with 23 carat gold and in normal times is illuminated by nearly 500 electric lights. The lights however, have not been turned on for more than a year.

Lieut. T. H. Webb, a United States army aviator, landed at Saugus, with more than 4,000 pieces of mail matter from New York for Boston. It was Boston's first airplane mail. The trip required three hours and 22 minutes. In making a landing at the aviation field at Franklin park here Lieutenant Webb's machine ran into a pile of soft earth and tipped up throwing the pilot and his mechanic, Ray Heck out, but neither was injured. The machine, however, was somewhat damaged.

The hope that the appeal for the production of more food might result in some increase of wheat-growing in the East has been justified in Vermont. It is estimated that 11,000 bushels of wheat were grown this year, against 25,000 bushels last year. The Vermonters have also done well along other lines, for the estimated yield of corn, wheat, oats, barley and potatoes in 1917 is 10,698,000 bushels, compared with 7,847,100 bushels in 1916.

Pledging the club women of Vermont to buy no more wheat if possible until the next harvest and to discontinue serving refreshments at all social functions during the remainder of the war, the Vermont Federation of Women's clubs closed its annual session at Burlington. Mrs. Gilbert F. Davis of Windsor was re-elected president.

Thus far, only about one-tenth of the $78,000,000 has been raised through the campaign from June 7 to June 28, the women hope to gain pledges enough to cover all the remaining money.

Shortest-Lived People.
The natives of New Guinea are the shortest lived people in the world, which is attributed to their diet of the leaves of certain bushes and their practice of drinking sea water.

General Sir James Willmott, commander of the British expedition to the Malay Peninsula, was awarded the Distinguished Service Order by King George V. Sir Willmott was born in 1854 and served in the Boer War, the South African War, the British expedition to the Malay Peninsula, the British expedition to the East African coast, and the British expedition to the East African coast. He served in the European war in 1914 and 1915 and was twice mentioned in despatches.

T. Herbert White of Bangor, sheriff of Penobscot County, was placed on trial before the Governor and Council on the charge of malfeasance in office for failure to enforce the prohibitory liquor law. The action was taken in accordance with an amendment to the constitution adopted at a special election last September, which gave the Governor in Council the right to remove sheriffs convicted of failure to do their duty, and appoint their successors.

Under municipal ownership, the Attleboro and Briggs Corner section of the Taunton and Pawtucket Street Railway Company, will be in operation June 16, if plans formulated are put into effect. This is the first municipally-owned street railway in Massachusetts and becomes so by the provisions of an act passed at the last session of the Legislature and signed by Governor McCall.

A 12-1/2 per cent increase in wages to weavers and a 10 per cent advance to spinners, cloth room girls, spool tenders, twisters, doffers and quillers at the West Boylston Manufacturing company, Easthampton, Mass., has been granted by Henry B. Endicott, executive manager of the state committee on public safety, who acted as arbitrator in the dispute between the company and its employees.

The 72nd commencement of St. Johnsbury academy was held in the South Congregational church, St. Johnsbury, Vt., a class of 42 graduating from the academic department and 29 from the commercial. Governor Horace F. Graham addressed the class. One of the events of commencement week at the academy was the raising of a service flag bearing 110 stars.

A small quantity of dynamite, with fuse attached was found on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad tracks, within 100 feet of the large Puritan mills, Plymouth, Mass. The bomb was wrapped in paper and was within a few inches of a rail. The Puritan mills are working on large contracts of cloth for the government. Officials are investigating.

Philip H. Grosser, a private at Fort Banks, was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment in the disciplinary barracks at Fort Jay having been found guilty by court-martial of making derogatory remarks and—encouraging—disloyalty among soldiers. Army officials said Grosser claimed to be a conscientious objector.

The Massachusetts state food administration has started an investigation of banana prices, which have increased steadily until retail quotations are from 40 to 60 cents a dozen, and in some restaurants as high as 10 cents each. Wholesale prices are from $6.50 to $7 a hundred pounds, including the stems.

It is reported that Dr. Karl Muck is organizing an enemy-orchestra at the internment camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. The former director of the Boston Symphony has picked thirty-five musicians from among the 600 prisoners and planning to entertain the camp population.

No Negro Army Registrants. A total of 174 young men who have reached the age of 21 since June 5, 1917, answered the call of their country and were registered in the selective draft service at the office of the Portsmouth war board last week. These young men were from all parts of the district and from out of the 174 men registered, there were 142 white citizens, native born, two naturalized citizens, six declarants and 24 aliens, and no negroes. The registration fell a little below what was expected, the board having estimated that there would be at least 200 who would have reached the age of 21 years.

Why We Believe in the Bible. It may be helpful to some who are wondering if the Bible is the Word of God, if we state some reasons why Christian men and women believe the Bible.

It is not a mark of learning, as some would have us think, to disbelieve the Bible. Mr. Gladstone, England's greatest statesman, said, "It has been my privilege to know intimately sixty great men and all but six of them were earnest acknowledged Christians."

Belief in the Bible is not a leap in the dark. It is not attempting to believe it when we have no evidence whether it is true or not. Belief in the Bible rests upon evidence which to those who believe in the Bible is sufficient for them to accept it as the Word of God or man.

One evidence upon which our belief in the Bible rests, is its own testimony. Believing it is unfair to judge it without hearing what it may have to say for itself we listen to its own testimony.

One does not read far in the Bible before he comes to such statements as these: "Thus said the Lord," or "The Lord said." These phrases, or like ones, occur over five hundred times in the first five books of the Bible, and over twelve hundred times in the prophetic books. In addition to this we find that the men who wrote the Old and New Testaments claim their utterances to be divinely inspired, and the New Testament tells us that "holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Spirit of God," and that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God," that is, God-breathed.

Besides this, the book assumes to speak authoritatively from God to man. Now with this testimony before us, we are shut up to one of two conclusions; either it is what it claims to be, or it is a fraud. Having examined, studied and tested the book with the acid test of experience, we are persuaded that its lofty claim is established.

Another evidence which has led us to this conclusion and upon which we rest our belief is the unity.

While it is a library of sixty-six books, it is nevertheless one single book and while it was written by about forty different writers, it has a singleness of plan and purpose. This in the face of the fact that its authors wrote over a period of something like fifteen hundred years. There is only one way to account for this unity and that is by believing that there was a great architectural mind that designed and executed his plan.

Again an evidence upon which we rest our belief in the Bible is its teaching.

It is the one book that tells us about God; who he is and what he is; that tells us about man, whence he came, what he is, and whither he is going. It reveals the love of God in the plan and purpose of redemption through Christ. Without the Bible, we should be searching try to find out God and by guessing to discover ourselves. By it we have come to know God, whom to know is life everlasting, and to know ourselves.

What was said of our Lord can be said of the Bible. No book ever spoke like this book. It is, indeed, a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path and shows us the way to that city whose builder and maker is God.

A fourth evidence upon which our belief rests is fulfilled prophecy.

Take for instance the prophecies concerning Christ of which there are three hundred and thirty-three in the Old Testament. All the prophecies concerning his first advent have minutely been fulfilled. These prophecies stand the severest tests, so that we know that we are not deceived as to their fulfillment so there was no possible way for the prophet to have known how they were coming out. But they came out as predicted. This is only one of many lines of prophecy, which we would examine. Those concerning the Jews which led a court preacher, when asked by his sovereign to prove the Scriptures, in one word to answer: "The Jews, your majesty, the Jews." And the prophecies concerning the great political systems of the world; such as Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome.

Let anyone, who is in doubt about the Scriptures study the evidence of prophecy and he will find ground for faith in the Bible.

Then finally, the evidence of what the Bible does is ground for our belief in it. By its fruits it can be judged. It has civilized nations, transformed the lives of millions, given hope to the hopeless, cheer to the downhearted, comfort to the sorrowing, consolation to the dying and taken hell out of life and put heaven in. What the Bible does gives us ground to believe it must be of God.

Unsung Heroes of Battle Lines

Daring American Linemen, Fresh from Civil Life, Maintain Communications Under Fire

THE two great means of communication on the modern battlefield, the means by which general headquarters keeps in touch with every sector of the line and by which the perfect co-ordination of all branches of the service is possible are the airplane and electricity.

The romantic appeal of the aviation service, the stirring stories of high adventure that have come out of the war have made the work of the birdmen, the supersiders of cavalry as the eyes of the commander, familiar to the people at home. On the ground charging infantrymen and roaring cannon capture the imagination. But the heroic labors of men who keep open the telegraph and telephone lines which make co-operation of infantry and artillery possible are almost unknown outside the service. Save, for instance, when one reads of a medal bestowed on a line-repairman for magnificent disregard of danger. For their losses and their honors are alike great.

They go over the top with the troops, smoking their pipes, coolly stringing lines behind the advancing first line so that the gun crews may be kept informed of the advance or told to concentrate their fire on a particularly obnoxious machine gun, says a writer in the New York Sun magazine section. They clamber out of dugouts into the slush and the freezing wind of a winter night to feel their way along a broken wire, sometimes over the shell-pit open ground behind the trenches until they find the break, then binding in ice water under fire they repair it as carefully and skillfully as if they were at work in the shop at home. It often takes three or four men to repair one of these breaks; the first men sent out may never come back.

Repaired at all costs the wire must be, and danger does not excuse a slipshod bit of work. For the signal system of the army is what the nervous system is to the human body.

Without it the modern army covering 100 miles of front cannot see, feel or move. The army commander wishing to move a portion of his line 50 miles away or to change the rapidity of his artillery fire or to receive information of enemy movements is as helpless without the slender threads of copper as he would be if he wished to move his right arm and found the nerves paralyzed.

There are still people of intelligence who think that the transmission of military thought is summed up in the use of the notebook, the orderly and his horse in the Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven. "But these are passing, and the trained soldier and the educated volunteer understand the vital importance of information.

Hence the necessity for a signal corps or its equivalent, for without it aid modern armies can no more be controlled than can great railway systems; the commander in the field remains blind and deaf to the events occurring around him, incapable of maintaining touch with conditions and out of reach of his superiors or those under his authority upon whom he depends for the execution of his plans. The brain lacks the power to control because the nerves are lacking.

"Time is the main factor in war; to arrive first with the greatest number of men and with the clearest understanding of the situation is to succeed. The last, and often the first, of these conditions depends upon the lines of information of the army."

And these lines in turn depend upon the obscure but daring work of the repairman, the grimy, mucky, hard-fisted mechanic who crawls on his belly through shell fire calculated to appall the stoutest heart and connects the break between the commander and the point he wishes to reach.

Somewhat the lines are kept open all the time or are broken for only short intervals, and the constant tending of them has made possible in France a system of wire communication that is a marvel of efficiency. Indeed so perfect is it that London and Paris are in direct connection with general headquarters on the British front, which in turn is in touch with every division and brigade staff on the line. A wire could be put straight through so that Lloyd George if he wished could hear the bursting of high explosives and shrapnel on the Amiens front.

This tremendous use of the telephone and telegraph in warfare is partly the result of the impetus arising from the American application of electrical communication on a large scale in the Spanish war. The signal corps as it now exists is a comparatively recent evolution.

In the American army the idea first arose in the mind of a young army surgeon, Albert James Myer. The office of signal officer of the army was created in June, 1860, the first of its kind, and Myer was appointed. He was at once sent with an expedition against Navajo Indians in New Mexico, and his crude apparatus at once demonstrated its worth.

When the Civil war began he was ordered East and opened a school for signallers, and in that was the definite beginning of the present signal corps. Wires were carried on horse or muleback then, the instruments were imperfect and telegraphic communication was a rare and precious thing. The service took on tremendous importance in the Spanish war and followed the troops through Cuba and the Philippines, and in China was the only means of communication for a week between Peking and the rest of the world.

But the tasks that confronted our signal men in these wars were play compared to the work that is being done every day on the western front. Our signal men there have an area to cover about the size of Pennsylvania and they have gone at it with a vigor and efficiency that spell volumes for the superiority of Americans in this particular line of work.

The hardy linemen who have strung lines and repaired breaks on the Western plains or battled with great floods and storms in the Rocky mountains have taken to this new work with a zest which is inspiring. On the foundation of the French system they are building a signal system that will be a model of its kind.

Up to within four miles of the front construction is not different from what it is here at home. The wires are strung on poles and most of the poles have been planted by the French. But when one gets inside the shell-torn section that stretches at least four miles from the front wires have to be protected by being buried from six to eight feet deep, so that only a direct hit by a large shell will disturb them.

Within half a mile of the front not even this protection is sufficient, as the shells churn and re-churn the ground. Therefore all wires in this zone are duplicated and are strung along both sides of the trenches. Sometimes a trench wall is covered with wires.

In the battalion headquarters signal office, where the hundreds of wires from the trenches and observation posts center and where the receivers hum with the constant tremors of a world under fire, plain Bill Smith lounges in a corner rolling a cigarette and occupied in his own particular thoughts. It is a dugout, this headquarters, and the air is vile, but Bill got used to that long ago.

"The wire to a battery is down," Smith's superior officer says, turning to him.

"All right, sir," is the answer. And Bill climbs out of the dugout, repair kit over his arm and tin hat on his head.

In the trench he finds the wire that is broken and begins to follow it along. It is hot work in the trench, shells are dropping thickly, but Smith doesn't mind—much. He follows the wire down a communication trench and then after a long time out into the open, where he has to crawl along looking for the hole that will mark the place where the line has been broken.

He gets nearly there when a shell lands near him and Bill Smith, his face toward the break, goes west. After a time, back in the dugout, another repairman is sent out and perhaps he is luckier than Bill and finds the break.

Then he has to sit down in the shell crater, the smash of bursting shells so close that sometimes he is half buried in dirt, calmly making the connection that will enable the observation officer up front to get in touch with his battery again. If he gets back to the dugout he will be sent out again and yet again if the bombardment is heavy, and often for days and nights at a time these men are under fire, snatching a nap now and then in the dugout between breaks. But they keep the lines open.

In an attack the signal men go over the top with the infantry, generally with the second wave, in charge of the observing officer. They make for a point where they can establish an observation post, and as they pass on and through the enemy's barrage they unroll their line and one of them carries a field telephone, through which they somehow manage in the din of battle to make themselves heard.

That telephone is like a battle flag, and many a man goes down with it, only to have it picked up and carried forward by another of these non-combatant troops. Their business is only to serve, not to fight, and they do it with a cool daring which is not surpassed in any branch of the service.

They are in the forefront of every advance and in the retreat and sometimes the last to leave the front line, where they stick to the end of their wires under terrific shell fire until ordered to re-join their commands if they can get through alive.

"An experience of this kind happened to me a short time ago in a lonely chateau on the Ypres-Menin road," an English officer wrote home. "The chateau was the center of a perfect hell of German shrapnel for nearly a week, until it became almost untenable and was abandoned by the headquarters staff.

"The general gave instructions that a telegraphist was to remain behind to transmit important messages from the brigades, and I was left in charge of the instruments in this shell-sewn chateau for a day and a night.

"On the second day the Germans broke through our trenches and the wires were cut by the shell fire. I was given orders to evacuate the building and smash up my instruments. These I saved by burying in a shellproof trench, and then I had to escape between our own fire and that of the enemy's across a field under a terrible tornado of shrapnel.

"On the early morning of the same day one of our cable detachments was cut up and another captured by the Germans, only to be retaken by our sappers and drivers after a desperate and glorious fight."

The linemen also have regular patrols, stretches of line which have to be constantly examined not only for breaks but also to make sure that they have not been tapped by enemy spies in such a way that every bit of information sent over them finds its way to the Germans. In the Alsine zone, where the hill country offered good cover to spies, the wires were constantly being tapped.

One day a lineman passing along the road noticed a lot of cable lying at one side. He started to coil it up and found that a piece of wire had been tied to the main line. When he traced it he found that it ran to a haystack. He went on, tapped the line and sent in word to headquarters and an armed escort found a spy hidden in the hay with several days' supply of food.

They are autocrats in their way, these wire repairmen, and no one is permitted to interfere with the swift execution of their work. Word coming over the line that the wire to a battery was repaired is often the sweetest sound in the world to an observation officer up front, even if it comes in a rough brogue which French weather has not improved.

So when anybody else breaks in on the line and interferes with the repairman he gets rolled, especially if he has been sitting for several hours in a shell hole with an icy rain dripping down his back. An English officer told of what happened to a general who broke in once.

"A general came in the hut and told me 'I rang up the telephone just now and said, "Give me the brigade, please," but some one with a loud voice replied deliberately and distinctly: "Get off the blinking line." I got off remarking that as soon as convenient I should like to speak. I apologized and explained that the line had been down and was being repaired. He went off with a merry twinkle in his eye."

As the number of men in the American army abroad grows with the weeks, the number of linemen, those who make possible all that the artillery and infantry together accomplish, will steadily increase until they are a small army in themselves. And probably it will not be long before an announcement will be made that some plain Bill Smith, wire repairman, has been given a medal for bravery under fire, which attracted attention even among the hundreds of brave acts which these men perform every day.

A Matter of Money

By LINCOLN ROTHELM

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Gloria was as delectable a bit of femininity as one could find at the fashionable resort of Norham. Barely five feet five in her French-heeled boots, she had a most alluring manner of looking into your eyes as if your every gesture were precious to her. Despite the adoration paid her, she remained lovable. But beyond these apparent facts, little was known of Gloria Stanley, who came every year to this resort and, to all appearances, plentifully supplied with money. Always dressed in good taste, with no little variety in her costumes, it is not to be wondered that she excited the admiration of the women as well as the men.

And now the summer colony was agog with excitement—for Gloria had met her "hero." And this is the way it happened:

Arriving one morning earlier than the other guests, she slipped into her bathing suit and ran lightly across the stretch of sand, fairly quivering with suppressed excitement and pleasure of her anticipated plunge. Pausing a moment on tiptoe at the edge of the pier to drop her bathrobe and judge her dive, she stretched her arms obliquely downward and sailed through the air, cleaving the water like an arrow. In a moment her straight body could be seen skimming close to the surface, then suddenly it stopped as if it had struck a barrier. And there arose above the water two heads, more shocked than hurt by the contact.

"I'm so sorry."

"I'm so sorry," Gloria spluttered, as she tread water. "I didn't see you before I dove off."

"Mighty careless of me to be in the way," laughed the young man, with a most engaging smile, as he swam close by in a very professional manner. "I hope you're not hurt."

"Not a bit," she responded, smiling back at him, and as a moment's afterthought, "let's face to shore."

Taking his compliance as granted, she commenced to augment the distance between them with broad, embracing strokes. He let her keep in the lead until but a few feet from shore, then swiftly caught up to her, so that they emerged in unison.

"You swim well," he said, breathing hard. "I didn't think I'd have to work so hard to catch up."

And, although Gloria couldn't account for it, she felt flattered by this stranger's praise. Out of the corner of her eye she saw a stalwart man—just a little different from any other she had ever met before.

"Let's rest," she suggested, stretching at full length on the sand, which had just begun to reflect the warmth of the sun now well up in the heavens.

He sat down beside her, hands clasped about his knees. It was as if they were children and she had said, "Let's play." He entered into the spirit.

"My name's John Turner, he ventured by way of conversation, "but most folks call me Jack. What's yours."

"My name is Gloria Stanley, but most folks call me Gloria," she mimicked, her blue eyes twinkling merrily. "I'm staying at the hotel. When did you come?"

"The young man hesitated.

"Oh, I'm not at the hotel," he answered hurriedly. "I'm camping on the other side of the lake. That hotel and my pocketbook don't hitch."

As if to avoid the personal trend his remark had given to their conversation, he continued: "But you must be hungry. Hadn't you better go for breakfast?"

Gloria arose and shook the wet sand from her suit. "Won't you come, too?" she asked abruptly, as if against her better judgment.

"No, no," he hastily responded, "my breakfast is waiting for me across the lake."

nothing of the scene enacted before them.

The next morning, as if by telepathic understanding, Gloria was at the water's edge at the same hour and in the same costume as the day before. Nor was she disappointed to find the young man already on hand. In the bottom of a canoe lay a neat bundle of wearing apparel.

"Thought I'd row across this morning so I could bring my clothes, and after we have our dip, I'd like to accept yesterday's invitation," and as the questioning look left her face, he added: "I'm camping by myself—and it's lonesome."

"Bully," she cried, striking her palms together man-fashion, "and then I'll be tennis after breakfast?"

Quite naturally he took her hand as they waded into the water until the depth permitted swimming. That morning they raced beneath the water, springing above the waves like flying fish, diving in every conceivable position—and in all the young man executed, the girl gamely followed suit. Tired and breathless, they floated on their backs toward shore. And the porch dowagers shook their heads ominously as the laughter of the two figures chasing each other up and down the sand, came faintly to their ears.

But neither were prepared for the change clothes made. He had not quite expected to see this boyish girl transformed into the vision standing before him, just a trifle taller in the low-heeled tennis shoes; nor, it must be admitted, had Gloria anticipated the very good impression this white flannel hotel guest who chanced to see him. And although such admiring glances, ill-concealed, did not displease her, she was wondering if the others noticed how carefully his finger ran down the price column of the bill of fare. But his seeming parsimony did not mar the ten wonderful days they swam, romped and played together—a very brief span of time indeed as the hourglass goes, but a sweet eternity of delight to the two who had found companionship in one another.

It was a sun; barely two hours awake, which looked down upon the sorrow of their parting.

"Gloria," the young man finally spoke, "these days have been like a wonderful dream to me. I must wake up now."

"Do you want my address?" she tearfully and practically asked.

"No," he murmured, and turned away.

Gloria gasped. His answer was entirely unprecedented in the annals of lovemaking.

"Did you say 'no,' Jack?" she repeated, incredulously.

He turned around and held out his hand. "Trust me, little girl," he softly asked, "wait for me one year. Will you?"

Quite incomprehensibly, Gloria shook his hand. Head bent, she turned toward the hotel. And though her heart told her that Jack belonged to no other, her reason bade her forget how very much he had come to mean to her.

Fall, winter and spring came and went, and with summer arrived Norham's perennial colonists. Gloria, with a charming array of new frocks, appeared as cheerful, winsome and pretty as ever, but exhibited a listless attitude toward her favorite recreation of swimming.

On the third day of her stay, Gloria arose earlier than the other guests and made her way to the lake. As if to leave all her cares behind, she dove from the pier with a high spring and came up—in the arms of Jack Turner.

"Jack!" she exclaimed, trying to free herself from his tight embrace. Deftly he tucked her in the crook of his left arm, and striking out powerfully with his right, in a few moments stood her on the sand. Pleasure at his presence and indignation at his conduct fought for control.

"Gloria!" he commanded, and a wonderful happiness danced in his eyes. "Will you marry me?"

Gloria gasped. "Then you're not already married?"

"Of course not. What put that idea into your head?"

"Well, why did you leave me that way last summer?"

"A man without money can't ask a girl who can afford the luxuries of this hotel, to marry him, can he?"

"No."

"So all winter I've had my shoulder to the wheel, and," he added, nervously, "if you're willing, I can give you the luxuries you are accustomed to."

"But, dear boy," she laughed delightedly, "I'm just a poor, foolish stenographer who spends her winter savings in two extravagant weeks!"

Big Collie is Chauffeur.

Gear-shifting, of course, is outside the limits of possibility for him, but except for this operation a big collie, owned by a Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) automobile dealer, is able to drive a motorcar. Everybody along "auto row" in New York city was completely dumfounded not long ago when the dog acted as chauffeur for his master. While weaving in and out through Broadway's traffic, however, the owner had an auxiliary control at hand to help the animal out of tight places and avoid the danger of a mishap. But on ordinary occasions when congested streets do not have to be negotiated the collie drives along like a man, turning corners and avoiding other vehicles with surprising facility. On such rides his master sits beside him, or in the tonneau behind. On a track, where the chance of accident is eliminated the dog drives along with nobody in the car to help him. No special device is fixed to the steering wheel to assist him. Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"No, no," he hastily responded, "my breakfast is waiting for me across the lake."

"No, no," he hastily responded, "my breakfast is waiting for me across the lake."

EXPERT'S TRIBUTE TO WESTERN CANADA SOIL

That there is good reason for the wonderful crops of grain grown in Western Canada, which have made thousands of former residents of the United States wealthy, is not always given the thought that it deserves is quite apparent. But that there must be a reason is quite evident. Probably more than one—but the one that requires emphasis—is that the soil is of the nature that will produce good crops. It was not long since that the farmer selected his land in the most haphazard way. He need not do so today. He will select it on the soil analysis plan. Soil from Western Canada, was submitted to Prof. Stevens, soil physicist of the State College of Washington, at Pullman, Wash. His report should no doubt further encourage settlement in Western Canada. It reads as follows:

"We have analyzed this sample and find that it runs high in lime, very high in potash, phosphorus and in nitrogen—that it has a splendid supply of organic matter and is in the best of physical condition. There is nothing wrong with this soil from the standpoint of crop production, and I am satisfied that it will give splendid results wherever put under cultivation."

It is soil like this properly worked, and on scientific lines, as is the rule today, that gives the opportunity to quote the experiences of farmers who have increased their incomes from $500 to $30,000 in two seasons, and whose story would read as follows:

"I have threshed altogether 7,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern wheat from 200 acres, which went from 24 to 56 per acre—breaking 24, spring plowing 38, back setting 58 bushels—the average being 35 bushels per acre."

The newspaper giving an account of this man's experience says: "When he disposed of his 1,600 acres from north of Brooks, Alta., to four Oak Harbor men, he was worth $30,000. Two years ago he came here with $500 and a few horses."

It is the soil of Western Canada, and the knowledge of what it will do that brings to Canada the hundreds of settlers that are daily arriving at the border. A growing enthusiasm for the fertile prairie lands of Western Canada is spreading all over the continent. This enthusiasm is the recognition of the fact that sufficient food could be produced on these prairie lands to feed the world. From the south, east and west, hundreds of men, too old for military service, are pouring into Western Canada to take up land or to work on the farms. A great many of the incoming settlers have arrived at such central points as Calgary, Edmonton, and Lethbridge, Alberta, and at Regina, Moose Jaw, and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Judging from the bulk of their household effects, the number of their horses and cattle, and the quantity of implements they are bringing with them, most of the new arrivals also seem well blessed with the world's goods.

Reports from North Portal, Saskatchewan; Coombs, Alberta, and Kingsgate, British Columbia—the principal gateways into Western Canada from the United States—indicate that the present influx of farmers is in such volume as has not been witnessed for many years. From Vancouver, British Columbia, people are going to the prairies for summer farm work, many with the intention of taking up land themselves at the end of the summer.

The influence of this tide of farmer settlers on greater food production will be more readily appreciated when it is considered that the average settler takes up at least twice as much land as he has hitherto been farming—and land which, acre for acre, produces better and larger crops.—Advertisement.

Wouldn't Do for Willie.

Senator William A. Smith of Michigan smiled when reference at a dinner was made to those who are not satisfied with a fair proportion of things. He said he was reminded of a case along that line.

Little Willie was rambling along the street one afternoon, when he saw a bunch of puppies in the show window of a pet store. One long, fond look and then Willie hastened inside.

"Mister," said he, addressing the proprietor, "how much is them pups in the window?"

"Three dollars apiece," answered the proprietor. "They are—"

"Three dollars apiece," interjected Willie, with a thoughtful expression. "Nothin' doin', mister; I don't want a chunk; I want a whole dog."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Not satisfied with doing his best there, he applied for his present position at the Kittery Yards, Me., where he works on electrical supplies for other yards, and submarines.

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARRIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

WILL STAMP OUT ALL DISLOYALTY

Committee on Public Safety instructs Agents to Report at Once Every Utterance Antagonistic to Cause of United States and Allies—Heavy Penalties.

Concord: John B. Jamison, Chairman of the Committee on Public Safety of New Hampshire is determined that the provisions of the Sedition Act, approved May 16, 1918, shall be strictly observed in this state, and he is notifying chairmen of the local Committees on Public Safety to this effect. These committees are to do everything in their power to bring to the attention of the proper authorities the case of any who do or say anything which is in any way disloyal to the United States, or which would tend to hinder the cause of the United States and its allies in the present war.

Utterances of any sort which are antagonistic to the Government of the United States, the Governments allied with the United States in this war, or which would tend to hinder the progress of the various war organizations in the United States, such as the Red-Cross or the Food Administration, should be reported promptly to A. W. Levensaler, Special Agent of the Department of Justice, Post Office Building, Concord.

The law in this case is clear and prosecutions will be speedy. Any word or action opposing the cause of the United States is punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not more than 20 years, or both.

The provisions of this act cover disloyalty in every form. Punishable under it are, any false report or statement willfully made, except by way of bona fide and not disloyal advice to investors, with intent to obstruct the sale of United States bonds or securities, any disloyal language willfully uttered, printed, written or published about the form of government of the United States, the Constitution of the United States, the military or naval forces of the United States, the flag or the uniforms of the army or navy of the United States, or any language intended to bring them into contempt, scorn, contumely or disrepute, or any such language intended to encourage resistance to the United States or promote the cause of its enemies, or any willful display of the flag of any foreign enemy, or any language advocating curtailment of the production of anything necessary to the prosecution of the war with intent to hinder the United States in such prosecution, or any word or act supporting, the cause of any country with which the United States is at war, or any word or act opposing the cause of the United States therein.

TO CELEBRATE FOURTH.

The State Committee on Public Safety is instructing its local committees to make plans now for an appropriate observance of the Fourth of July. Citizens of foreign extraction have petitioned President Wilson for an opportunity to manifest on the Fourth of July their loyalty to the United States, and the cause for which it is fighting, and the State Committee on Public Safety will give every possible assistance to the foreign born groups in the State in their Fourth of July plans. The State Committee is beginning already its work of assistance by sending out to the local committees suggestions for an appropriate celebration of the day, which will bring the whole community together.

It is suggested that each town have a special celebration committee with a representative from every foreign-born group included in its membership. It suggests wherever possible that the exercises be held out of doors and if there is a parade that the flags of the twenty-one allies should be carried.

FOUR HONOR FAMILIES.

R. W. Husband, State Historian, Secretary of the Committee on Public Safety has notified the local historians this week of four new honor families in New Hampshire. An honor family is one which has three or more men in the military service. Newmarket leads this week with three families. Mrs. James Sharples of Newmarket has four sons in the service. Mrs. Jeremiah St. Hilaire of Newmarket has three sons in the service as has Mrs. Leon Deauteuil of Newmarket and Mrs. W. A. Foote of Hancock.

WAR SAVINGS DRIVE

In every community in the state this week the War Savings Committees are pushing with the greatest energy, preparations for the meetings to be held War Savings Day, June 28. By that time, the canvass, which will include every man, woman and child in the State, will have been completed and final announcements will be made of the results of the big June Pledge Drive. Every town has a fixed quota to reach so that when the drive is completed there will be enough pledges secured to guarantee a $20 per capita holding of War Savings Stamps throughout the state. Everywhere War Savings societies are being organized to assist in the War Savings campaign.

COMMERCIAL SUGAR USERS ARE WARNED

All Must Apply to Food Administrator at Once, or Get No Sugar for Rest of Year—Whose Saving Need as Pressing as Ever.

The Federal Food Administrator for New Hampshire has just received telegraphic information from Washington that government control of sugar allotted to manufacturers will, in all probability, be continued throughout the war.

At present sugar for manufacturers is being issued to them by means of a rationing arrangement, the manufacturer applying first to the Food Administrator for a certificate, without which, he is not able to purchase any sugar for his business. To secure the certificate he files a formal statement of his needs. Those manufacturers who have been so fortunate as to have enough sugar on hand to last them until July 1, have in consequence, filed no statement. Now it will be necessary for all manufacturers of the less essential food products, who use sugar in the making of these commodities, to file a statement of their needs. This statement is identical with that already filed by the manufacturers who needed sugar for the period from May 15 to July 1, 1918.

It will be noted, however, that this requirement applies only to manufacturers of less essential commodities. The commodities coming under this classification are: beverage syrups, candies, cereals, chewing gum, cocoa and chocolate, condiments, confections, flavoring extracts, invert sugar, syrups, soda water, soft drinks, sweet pickles and wines.

This statement blank calls for data from which it will be possible for the Food Administrator to estimate a manufacturer's requirements for the period from July 1 to October 1, 1918, and all manufacturers are now notified that they must file this statement with the Food Administrator at Concord by June 15, 1918, whether they think they need sugar in the immediate future or not. This is imperative and the manufacturer who fails to file his statement will be permitted to buy no sugar during the rest of the year 1918.

Statement blanks must be filled out completely even if the manufacturer has no interest in the other items which cover sugar needs from May 15 to July 1. These statement blanks should be secured at once from the local representative of the Food Administration in the town in which the manufacturer has his business.

FOOD EXPORTS ENORMOUS.

Aided by the loyal householders of the United States the Federal Food Administration is able to announce a tremendous increase in food exportation to the Western Allies since the beginning of the war. The figures are astounding. Two periods compared in a statement just received from Washington are those from July 1911 to July 1914 and from July 1914 to March 1918. Here are some of the contrasts:

The yearly rate of export of condensed milk for consumption was 400,000 pounds in the pre-war period. Since the war there has been an increase to a yearly export of 120,000,000 pounds. This is an increase of nearly 30,000%. Exports of dried fish have increased 18,000%; fresh fish 10,000%; fresh beef 6,000%; rice, 2,338%; refined sugar 4,000% and several other commodities show increases of between 1,000% and 2,000%.

The total export of wheat in the three year pre-war period was 95,000,000 bushels and of wheat flour 7,800,000 barrels. Contrasted with this, since July 1, 1914, the yearly average export has been 106,000,000 bushels of wheat and nearly 8,000,000 barrels of wheat flour.

WHEAT SAVING IMPERATIVE.

Contrary to rumors more or less widely circulated that there is no longer need for rigorous conservation of wheat and flour in America there is greater need than ever. The Food Administration's estimate of the situation the first of June shows a total available supply until the next harvest of about 58,000,000 bushels of wheat. Of this 30,000,000 bushels must be exported before new wheat is available for sending abroad if we are to maintain the absolutely necessary shipments to our Army and Allies. This leaves about 28,000,000 bushels for home consumption for the next two months.

The normal home consumption is something over 40,000,000 bushels a month, and so the necessity for the strictest conservation is at once obvious.

SUGAR CHEAPEST HERE.

The wholesale price of refined sugar according to the latest statistics in this country at the present time is $7.30 per hundred pounds, as compared with $9.15 of last August. The United States is much better off than any of her Allies in this respect as is evident from the wholesale prices for sugar in those countries. The hundred pound figure for the United Kingdom is $12.85; France $12.28; Italy $26.20 and Canada $8.07.

Value of Men in Life.
I am one of those men, and I am sure that you cannot get the best results without men. To live a life without men is to live a dull existence; however, sometimes these men may be, or however modest, I am certain that these people who do possess them get far greater results than the less happy people who do not.—Admiral Sir Nevill Baskin Wemyss.

PATRIOTIC TO PROTECT BIRDS

Helping to Save Our Feathered Friends Means Also Helping Save the Food Crops.

The work done by birds in saving food by destroying injurious insects and weed seeds is almost unbelievable, but the figures given here are vouched for by scientists. For instance: A scarlet tanager ate 680 gypsy-moth caterpillars in 15 minutes, which is at the rate of 2,100 an hour.

The quail, most hunted of birds, has so bad habits and eats 145 species of insects in summer and 128 kinds of harmful weed seeds in winter.

A flicker was found to have eaten 1,000 chinch bugs; a nighthawk, 600 grasshoppers; a Maryland yellow throat 3,500 plant lice in 40 minutes.

The stomach of a cedar waxwing contained 100 canker worms; a snow bunting was found to have eaten 1,000 pigeon weed seeds, a Bob White made a meal on 5,000 seeds of the same plant, and a mourning dove ate 7,500 seeds of yellow sores.

Professor Beale estimated that in Iowa the tree sparrow eats 875 tons of seed seeds every year.

The robin, the flicker, the thrush, all found frequently in the game bag of the hunter, subsist largely on a diet of ants, beetles, bugs, flies, grasshoppers, caterpillars and spiders.

Food saving is patriotism. Prove your patriotism by helping save the birds that protect the nation's food supply.—The People's Home Journal.

Just a Matter of Place.
The conversation at a social gathering turned to the subject of domestic arguments when the story was fittingly related by Congressman James A. Gallivan of Massachusetts.

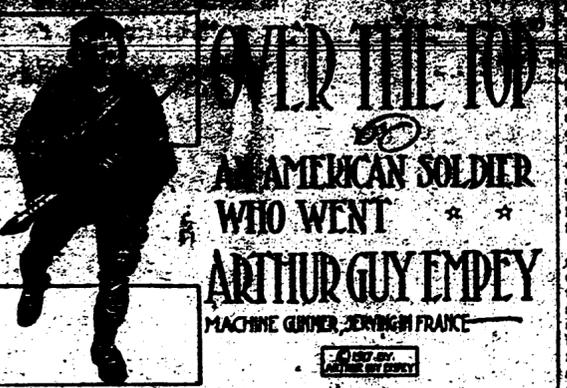

One sporting a hard-featured individual, carrying a grip, entered a city bank and approached the window at the paying teller.

"I want one thousand dollars," said the man in a low voice. "Give it to me at once or I will drop this grip on the floor."

"You will, will you?" responded the paying teller. "What's in it?" "Dynamite," answered the other; "and in one minute you will be going through the roof."

"Let her drop," was the careless rejoinder of the teller. "I have forgotten something that I was told to get for my wife and I might as well have the explosion here as at home."

Net the Reply She Expected.
"Pa, should I marry a man without any money?" "If you're looking to me to furnish the cash that's the way you'll have to marry him."

OVER THE TOP AN AMERICAN SOLDIER WHO WENT ARTHUR GUY EMPEY MACHINE GUNNER, JERSEY CITY

EMPEY, QUESTIONING A GERMAN PRISONER, FINDS HE IS FROM NEW YORK.

Synopsis.—Fired by the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of American lives, Arthur Guy Empey, an American living in Jersey City, goes to England and enlists as a private in the British army. After a short experience as a recruiting officer in London, he is sent to training quarters in France, where he first hears the sound of big guns and makes the acquaintance of "cooties." After a brief period of training Empey's company is sent into the front-line trenches, where he takes his first turn on the fire step while the bullets whiz overhead. Empey learns, as comrade falls, that death lurks always in the trenches. Chaplain distinguishes himself by rescuing wounded men under hot fire. With pick and shovel Empey has experience as a trench digger in No Man's Land. Exciting experience on listening post detail. Exciting work on observation post duty. Back in rest billets Empey writes and stages a successful play.

At one point of the line where the trenches were very close, a stake was driven into the ground midway between the hostile lines. At night when it was his turn, Tommy would crawl to this stake and attach some London papers to it, while at the foot he would place time of bully beef, fags, sweets, and other delicacies that he had received from Blighty in the ever looked-for parcel. Later on Fritz would come out and get these luxuries.

The next night Tommy would go out to see what Fritz put into his stocking. The donation generally consisted of a paper from Berlin, telling who was winning the war, some tin-plated sausages, cigars, and occasionally a little beer, but a funny thing, Tommy never returned with the beer unless it was inside of him. His platoon got a whiff of his breath one night and the offending Tommy lost his job.

One night a young English sergeant crawled to the stake and as he tried to detach the German paper a bomb exploded and mangled him horribly. Fritz had set a trap and gained another victim which was only one more black mark against him in the book of this war. From that time on diplomatic relations were severed.

Returning to Tommy, I think his spirit is best shown in the questions he asks. It is never "who is going to win" but always "how long will it take?"

We were swimming in money, from the receipts of our theatrical venture, and had forgotten all about the war, when an order came through that our brigade would again take over their sector of the line.

The day that these orders were issued, our captain assembled the company and asked for volunteers to go to the Machine Gun school at St. Omar. I volunteered and was accepted.

Sixteen men from our brigade left for the course in machine gunnery. This course lasted two weeks and we rejoined our unit and were assigned to the brigade machine gun company. It almost broke my heart to leave my company mates.

The gun we used was the Vickers, Light 303, water cooled. I was still a member of the Suicide club, having jumped from the frying pan into the fire. I was assigned to section 1, gun No. 2, and the first time "in" took position in the front-line trench.

During the day our gun would be dismantled on the fire step ready for instant use. We shared a dugout with the Lewis gunners. At "stand to" we would mount our gun on the parapet and go on watch beside it until "stand down" in the morning. Then the gun would be dismantled and again placed in readiness on the fire step.

We did eight days in the front-line trench without anything unusual happening outside of the ordinary trench routine. On the night that we were to "carry out," a bombing raid against the German lines was pulled off. This raiding party consisted of sixty company men, sixteen bombers, and four Lewis machine guns with their crews.

The raid took the Boches by surprise and was a complete success, the party bringing back twenty-one prisoners. The Germans must have been awfully sore, because they turned loose a barrage of shrapnel, with a few "Minnies" and "whizz bangs" intermixed. The shells were dropping into our front line like hailstones.

To get even, we could have left the prisoners in the fire trench, in charge of the men on guard and let them click Fritz's strafing but Tommy does not treat prisoners that way.

Five of them were brought into my dugout and turned over to me so that they would be safe from the German fire.

In the candlelight, they looked very much shaken, nerves gone and chalky faces, with the exception of one, a great big fellow. He looked very much at ease. I liked him from the start.

General's indignation presently made this change the subject of a few minutes.

A newly arrived general stepped out of the staff car and was "taken over" by the guide who was to lead him on this particular part of his tour of inspection. The two went forward alone, and very soon the guide made a sign, and whispered to the general to leave the duck boards and come close in to the hedge. The general was tall, and bent low to keep his head from showing above the hedge.

Now and again the general whispered a question, and the guide whispered in reply. The former began to feel a pain in the back through so long maintaining a bent position.

"How far away is the nearest 'Bottle'?" whispered the general, thinking he might straighten his back, and risk a sniper's bullet.

"About four miles," whispered the guide.

"Then what the deuce are you whispering for?" roared the general.

"Can't help it, sir. Been like it for three weeks. Worst cold I've ever had."

The pair had evidently been drinking heavily, for the alcohol fumes were sickening and completely pervaded the dugout. I turned away in disgust, hating to see a man cross the Great Divide full of booze.

One of our officers could speak German and he questioned the dying man. In a faint voice, interrupted by frequent hiccoughs, the unteroffizier told his story.

There had been a drinking bout among the officers in one of the German dugouts, the main beverage being champagne. With a drunken leer he informed us that champagne was plentiful on their side and that it did not cost them anything either. About seven that night the conversation had turned to the "contemptible," English, and the captain had made a wager that he would hang his cap on the English barbed wire to show his contempt for the English sentry. The wager was accepted. At eight o'clock the captain and he had crept out into No Man's Land to carry out this wager.

They had gotten about halfway across when the drink took effect and the captain fell asleep. After about two hours of vain attempts the unteroffizier had at last succeeded in waking the captain, reminded him of his bet, and warned him that he would be the laughing stock of the officers' mess if he did not accomplish his object, but the captain was trembling all over and insisted on returning to the German lines. In the darkness they lost their bearings and crawled toward the English trenches. They reached the barbed wire and were suddenly challenged by our sentry. Being too drunk to realize that the challenge was in English, the captain refused to crawl back. Finally the unteroffizier convinced his superior that they were in front of the English wire. Realizing this too late, the captain drew his revolver and with a muttered curse fired blindly toward our trench. His bullet no doubt killed our captain.

Then the bomb came over and there he was, dying—and a good job too, we thought. The captain dead? Well, his men wouldn't weep at the news.

Without giving us any further information the unteroffizier died.

We searched the bodies for identification disks but they had left everything behind before starting on their foolhardy errand.

Next afternoon we buried them in our little cemetery apart from the graves of the Tommies. If you ever go into that cemetery you will see two little wooden crosses in the corner of the cemetery set away from the rest.

They read:
Captain German Army Died—1918 Unknown R. I. P.
Unteroffizier German Army Died—1918 Unknown R. I. P.

Empey and his machine-gun company go "over the top" in a successful but costly attack on the German trenches. The story of this thrilling charge is told in the next installment.

Be Above Gossip.
Gossiping is about the most useless kind of work one could possibly engage in. How much better and more charitable it is to turn a deaf ear to cruel truths, to honorably keep silent about what we have heard, and at the same time give the unfortunate person in the case the benefit of our doubt. "Small wits talk much," is an old saying and a true one. The girl or woman who would be truly happy, and who incidentally would make others happy, should wisely think twice before she speaks, and then should put into words only thoughts that are cheering and charitable.—New York Evening Mail.

His Duty Done.
The family is rather demonstrative when the various members of the household come and go. The grandchildren are expected to embrace every one at the beginning and at the end of a visit. Fred and Albert were getting into their clothing and making their hasty adieux preparatory to catching their train home after Christmas. "Hurry up, Fred," Albert shouted; "you're too slow for anything. I've got mine all kissed."

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that, so many people claim, it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Not True.
Calvin, six years old, was taking a stroll through Irvington with his father.

"What are those buildings over there?" the lad inquired.

"That's Butler college, son," the father replied.

"Oh, that's where men go down to learn to be butlers, isn't it?" pursued Calvin, and his father had difficulty in convincing him such was not the case.

Work Shirts and Overalls

When you buy work shirts or overalls you want something that will stand up under hard wear and give satisfaction in fit and convenience.

Our work shirts are made up in several colors and vary in weights and materials from the light chambray to the heaviest of flannels and woollens. They are manufactured by the best shirt makers in America and are first class in finish and workmanship.

No matter what your work may be you will find our line of jackets and overalls suited to your demands. They are made up with plenty of pockets, and the material is not skimmed in the cutting.

ENGRAVED CARDS

Are needed by everybody. Sometimes when most needed the last one has been used. If YOUR engraved plate is at THE REPORTER office--where a great many people leave them for safe keeping--it might be well to order a new lot of cards before you are all out. If you have never used engraved cards, wouldn't it be a good idea to call at THE REPORTER office and see samples? They are not expensive--more of a necessity than a luxury.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.
