PETERBORO DEFEATED

Antrim the Victors, 4-2,
Opponents Outclassed

Well, boys, our team journeyed to Peterboro last Saturday afternoon. For some time we have felt that we would like to play there and sort of see what kind of an aggregation they had on the diamond. And then, you know, Drake, their pitcher, made 20 strike outs against Milford the week before, and that whetted our appetite. By the way, we might say that he got less than half that number against us.

The cool, steady pitching of Adams was a delight to see. He held Peterboro to three hits, struck out some of their heavy stickers, and made a single and three baggers in three times at bat. In six of the nine innings he retired the batters in 1-2-3 order, ably assisted by his team mates.

Scoring commenced in the 2d frame when Sweeney gained first on an error, stole second and raced home on Gilmore's long single. Singles by Sweeney and Gilmore enabled the former to score again in the 4th, these two securing the only hits and runs Peterboro obtained.

In the 3d Town was passed, stole second, advanced to third on Harlow's single, and scored on a pretty sacrifice to right field by J. Thornton. The 4th and 5th were uneventful for Antrim but the 6th opened well with a single by J. Thornton. Drake muffed A. Thornton's hit, Raleigh and Mulhall

J. Thornton and A. Thornton scored on sacrificed, Adams slammed a 3-base wallop and we scored two more. Raleigh's 3-bagger in the 8th brought A. Thornton home and finished the run-getting.

It was encouraging to our boys to have such a goodly number of fans from Antrim attend the game. They witnessed a well-played contest.

CLOTHING, EQUIPMENT

Discharged Soldiers May Obtain Certain Reissues

Hon. Edward H. Wason, representing the second district, has been able to secure a ruling on clothing and equipment allowance for returned and discharged soldiers. This allows the men their full equipment which they can secure by writing to Mr. Wason for blank application forms. His office stands ready to furnish these blanks and also to see that the boys receive their full allowance. The following letter from the Q. M. Corps explains this in full:

From: Office of Director of Storage, Supplies Div.

To: Hon. Edward H. Wason
Subject: Uniform for discharged Soldiers

1. Replying to your letter of inquiry concerning the steps necessary to obtain a reissue of certain articles of uniform clothing and equipment, the following information is furnished:

A. The following articles of clothing and equipment may be permanently retained by enlisted men upon honorable discharge:

1 overseas cap for all enlisted men who have had service overseas, or 1 hat and 1 hot cord for all other enlisted men
1 olive drab shirt
1 service coat and ornaments
1 pair breeches
1 pair shoes
1 pair leggings
1 waist belt
1 slicker
1 overcoat
2 suits underwear
4 pairs stockings
1 pair gloves
1 gas mask and helmet, if issued overseas
1 set toilet articles, if in possession when discharged
1 barrack bag
3 scarlet chevrons

B. Any enlisted man who served in the United States Army during the present war and who was honorably discharged or furloughed to the Reserve since April 6, 1917, and who has restored to the Government any of the above articles, or to whom for any reason they were never issued, may make application for such articles to the Supplies Division, Office of the Director of Storage, Munitions building, Washington, D. C., and similar clothing and uniform in kind and value as near as may be will be returned to him. The application should state sizes required and will be accompanied by affidavit made before any civil or military officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth the soldier's record of service since April 6, 1917; the date and place of his discharge or furlough to the Reserve; the articles and kind of clothing restored to the Government, whether cotton, O. D. or woolen, O. D.; and certifying that none of the articles applied for were retained by him at the time of this discharge or furlough to the Reserve, or if retained, that they have been restored to the Government since that time.

C. Officers and enlisted men who have returned the gas mask or helmet may make similar application for these articles and they may be issued if available.

By authority of the Director of Storage.

Cottage Destroyed by Fire

Thursday afternoon about 5 o'clock fire totally destroyed one of the summer cottages at White Birch Point, Gregg Lake. This building was on the left side of the road, near the Putnam cottage. An alarm was not sounded but help was summoned by phone. When the firewards and a few of the department arrived the building was a mass of flames and doomed to destruction. All of the furniture, bedding, stove, etc., were a total loss. It is most fortunate that there was no wind at the time or a more serious fire might have resulted.

Questions Regarding the League of Nations

Washington—Questions which those favoring the League of Nations are asked to answer were given out here by George W. Pepper, of Philadelphia, vice president of the League for the Preservation of American Independence. Mr. Pepper's questions follow:

"Why should Great Britain have six votes in the Assembly of Nations as against one apiece for Liberia and the United States?"

"Is our guarantee of aid to France the same or a different thing from the guarantee which we give to other nations under Article X of the League covenant?"

"If the same, why make a separate treaty? If different, what is the difference?"

"What good reason is there why the United States should surrender her moral leadership of the world by agreeing to act as directed by the international voting trust?"

"These are the questions, says Mr. Pepper, 'which millions of Americans have lately begun to ask themselves. They look to the President for an answer and have got none. He merely asserts in a confident and attractive way that all will be well if he is permitted to do exactly as he pleases. One would suppose from reading his speech that the League of Nations had actually proved its seaworthiness and was making regular trips."

"Upon the Senate rests the supreme responsibility of reserving the moral leadership of the United States by making the League covenant safe for American independence."

"The greatest peace asset of the world today is the free will of the people of the United States. No international machinery can be approved which impairs this asset, or destroys it."

Mrs. Henrietta Simonds

Died at her home near Antrim Centre July 12 of bronchial pneumonia following a period of failing health which has extended over a number of years.

Mrs. Simonds was the adopted daughter of Jesse and Achash Cram Combs and was born in Antrim July 6, 1844. She was married in 1871 to Lewis Simonds and went to Minnesota to live. With the exception of two and a half years spent there, all her life has been lived in Antrim. She had been for many years a member of the Presbyterian church, was a kind neighbor and a devoted mother. Mrs. Simonds is survived by three children, William H., who lives here, Mrs. Lena Gary, of Allston, Mass., and Mrs. Beasie Tomphord of Somerville, Mass., also five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the home Wednesday afternoon. Burial in the family lot at North Branch cemetery.

Over the Top 78 Times

Major and Mrs. H. F. L. Wight, of the Isle of Wight, England, and Mrs. Wight's sister, have been spending a season at the Maplehurst Inn. The Major, who is a brother-in-law of Albert Zabriskie, has seen considerable military service and was able to relate most interestingly some of his many and varied experiences. He was in the United States army for 17 years and received a decoration for valor at San Juan Hill.

In the World War Major Wight served for nearly three years with the Canadian army. He went over the top 78 times, was wounded in 14 places and gassed. The Major is the proud possessor of a Victoria Cross.

Our New Serial

It is with much pleasure that we announce to our readers the title of our new serial to be "The Magnificent Ambersons." One of Booth Tarkington's greatest stories.

We will print the opening chapters in an early issue. Watch for further details of this story which won a $1000 prize for excellence.

Days of Dizziness

Come to Hundreds of Antrim People There are days of dizziness; Spells of headache, languor, backache; Sometimes rheumatic pains; Often urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney ills. Endorsed by residents of this vicinity.

Mrs. Fred Abbott, Jackson St., Hillsboro, N. H., says: "For some time I suffered from dull, nagging backaches and pains across my loins. I had spells of dizziness and headaches and my kidneys caused me a lot of annoyance. I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and the backaches left. I don't have any dizzy spells or headaches now and the annoyance from my kidneys has stopped."

SEVEN YEARS LATER Mrs. Abbott said: "Although I haven't had to use Doan's Kidney Pills in several years, I still hold a high opinion of them and recommend them as highly as ever."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Abbott had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Peace Treaty and League of Nations Stir Up Lively Debate in the Senate.

SHANTUNG AWARD SCORED

Charge Is Made That Gift of Chinese Province Is Price of Japan's Signature—Warning of Peril of War—What Shall Be Done With Mexico?—Daylight Law Saved by President.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

"Many people have thought that the mere signing of the treaty with Germany, marks the ending of the world peril. The situation today is still serious. The world's statesmanship will be sorely tried in the next few years."

"The peace conference has been history's greatest instance of a unified world statesmanship directing the moral and material resources of the world's family of nations. To allow the spirit behind it to disintegrate at this moment of emergency, when united action is imperative, would be fatal to all the hopes of permanent peace with which we entered the war."

"Out of it all has come the most important international document ever drawn—the treaty of peace with Germany—a document which not only meets the issues of the present war, but also lays down new agreements of the most helpful and most hopeful character. The nations are bound together to avert another world catastrophe, backward peoples are given a new hope for their future; several racial entities are liberated to form new states; a beginning is made toward removing unjust economic restrictions, and the great military autocracies of central Europe are destroyed as the first step in a general disarmament."

"The treaty is, of course, not all that we had hoped for. Too many conflicting interests were involved. Nearly every one will find in it weaknesses, both of omission and commission."

"I come home pleased, but not overcomplacent with the outcome of the last six months; hopeful, but not in the least unmindful of the problems yet to be solved."

These are the words of Robert Lansing, United States secretary of state. They sound like both fact and sense. Therefore they are welcome in these topsy-turvy days.

Admitting that the League of Nations is the hope of the world, is it one that America can accept in justice to herself? That is what the United States senate is trying to find out. It is the question of the hour. So many shades of individual opinion are held among the senators that acceptance or rejection can hardly be said to be a party question. Anyway, the Republican view is presumably correctly set forth in the following official statement by Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican national committee:

"The situation respecting the league covenant is simply this:

"There must be effective reservations. These reservations must safeguard the sovereignty of the United States in every particular; must guarantee the Monroe doctrine beyond the shadow of a doubt; must either eliminate article 10 entirely or so modify it that our own congress shall be morally as well as legally free after a specified period to decide when and where and to what extent our soldiers shall be employed; must retain our full control of immigration, tariff and all other purely domestic policies, and must provide full right to withdraw hindrance or conditions of any kind, upon giving suitable notice."

"It is up to the administration to decide whether it will or will not accept these essential guarantees, or American independence, which would unquestionably be promptly accepted by the other nations."

Curiously enough these several questions—distinctively American and therefore presumably of the highest importance to this country—have temporarily been lost sight of in a burst of senatorial indignation over the action of the peace conference by which Shantung—probably China's richest province, with 36,000,000 people, the birthplace of Confucius—is given to Japan.

President Wilson presented the treaty to the senate July 10. He said that the treaty was nothing less than a world settlement and it was not possible for him in his address to summarize it; he would attempt only a general characterization of its scope and purpose. He offered to be at the service of the senate or the foreign relations committee. He did not mention the Shantung provision, or the Monroe doctrine, or our obligations under article X. Typical expressions of opinion regarding his address follow:

"The address," said Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, "is magnificent, able, eloquent and inspiring. The reasons presented for the ratification of the treaty, including the League of Nations, were strong, cogent and unanswerable."

"Sooths, mellifluous and uninforming," was the comment of Senator McCormick, Illinois.

Taking its stand on President Wilson's principle of "open covenants openly arrived at," the senate committee on foreign relations to consider the peace treaty met Monday. Senator Johnson, California, brought forward a resolution embodying a demand for data of every character relating to the treaty and its formulation. It called for the suppressed plan for a League of Nations submitted to the peace conference by President Wilson, which the president admits was rejected in favor of the British plan, and also called for the stenographic reports of the peace negotiations. It was adopted Tuesday by the committee.

Tuesday, after a heated debate, the senate, without a record vote, adopted Senator Lodge's resolution calling on President Wilson to submit to the senate the text of the secret treaty negotiated last year by Japan and Germany and all other data showing overtures made by the mikado's government to the central powers during the war.

Throughout the debate the fighting revolved about the Shantung incident. Senator Lodge, Republican leader, charged that the Shantung peninsula was "the purchase price for Japan's signature to the League of Nations covenant." Senator Moses of New Hampshire, a Republican member of the foreign relations committee, called it a "bribe," and Senator Norris of Nebraska, Republican, denounced it as "an outrage" and "a betrayal."

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska endeavored to defend Japan's right to Shantung, but Senator Williams of Mississippi, Democratic member of the foreign relations committee, frankly admitted that if President Wilson had not yielded in the Shantung affair Japan would have broken off from the allies and negotiated a separate treaty with Germany. Realizing the close relations between Senator Williams and the White House, senators attached much importance to the Mississippi member's statement that Japan would never give up Shantung again without a war.

"If that's the challenge we might as well get it now," said Senator Borah of Idaho, Republican.

Thursday was marked by lively senate proceedings. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, called upon the league supporters to join him in securing a referendum. Senator Sherman, Republican, Illinois, made an address warning the danger of war with Japan and pointing out that such a war would be "Great Britain's opportunity to regain commercial and financial supremacy from us." The senate adopted Senator Borah's resolution demanding the text of the United States protest at Paris against the Shantung award.

President Wilson, seeing the league making no headway, and receiving no invitation to appear before the foreign relations committee, began issuing invitations to Republican senators of visit him at the White House to discuss the treaty. Senator McCumber, North Dakota, an outstanding supporter of the treaty and the league, was the first caller Thursday. Senator Colt, Rhode Island, was the second.

What shall be done with Mexico? This question almost rivals the League of Nations in interest. Nobody seems ready with a complete program, but official Washington is guessing that something will be done soon. Reports come from abroad that the administration is pledged to intervention. This is officially denied.

Wednesday Mrs. John W. Correll, whose tragic experience is well known, arrived in Washington with her fatherless son. She hopes to meet the president. A list of 179 Americans murdered in Mexico since 1915 was made public by the National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico. Mrs. Correll said she was leading the ghosts of the 500 Americans who had been murdered in Mexico since 1910.

The exclusion of Mexico from the League of Nations was based upon the ground that it had been unable to give proof of intention to observe international obligations. Aside from the murder of foreigners—human life is cheap these days—money matters will probably force action. Americans have about $655,000,000 invested in Mexico; Great Britain about $670,000,000; France about $255,000,000; Spain, Holland and other countries about $265,000,000.

Great Britain and France hold the United States responsible for the Mexican situation, under the Monroe doctrine, and under the policy pursued since 1910. They want Mexico put in position so that this property will not be confiscated and payment will be resumed on national and other debts.

In short, every indication points to a probable intervention by the United States, acting as mandatory for the League of Nations. The alternative—which is unthinkable—is that foreign nations will be allowed to intervene, in spite of the Monroe doctrine.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE NEWS

Barry Heads Labor Unions.

The 18th annual session of the New Hampshire Federation of Labor, which was held in Rochester, voted to hold the next meeting in July, 1920, at Portsmouth. Alderman John L. Barry of Manchester was chosen president.

It was recommended by a vote of the convention that the present daylight system be retained, the action of the President on the subject being endorsed. A copy of the resolution was sent to the President.

A resolution was sent to the American Federation of Labor that it was the unanimous choice of the convention that John J. Coyne, Manchester, be made the official organizer of the state of New Hampshire.

Another resolution was endorsed, its purpose being to favor increasing the wages of the Postal employees and those affiliated with them 25 per cent. A copy of this resolution was sent to the New Hampshire and Maine Congressmen.

During the convention, a telegram was received from Senator Keyes stating he would vote in favor of the Nolan amendment on Federal employees wages.

Other officers elected were Fred N. Staten of Portsmouth, first vice president; Earl C. Lane of Berlin, second vice president; John J. Scully of Concord, third vice president; Matthew H. O'Neal of Keene, fourth vice president; Nason F. Stacy of Lebanon, fifth vice president; Joseph Newton of Franklin, sixth vice president; William H. Connell of Rochester, seventh vice president; Charles H. Bean, Jr., of Franklin, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Wants to Hold Ram Sale.

Edgar A. Perry, secretary-treasurer of the New England Sheep Breeders' association, a society which the state helps along every year with a bonus of $500 has been to Boston, where he attended a meeting called by men interested in the sheep industry in New Hampshire and Eastern New York.

About 50 breeders were present, along with New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut state officials, and the idea recently advanced by Mr. Perry that the United States government hold a ram sale at the Eastern exhibition at Springfield next fall was fully endorsed and a committee of three appointed with full power to further the scheme.

The Sheep Breeders' association began this year, through the efforts of Mr. Perry, to pool its wool, and several thousand dollars worth of wool has been sent to Meredith to be sorted and assigned to classes which will bring it to the top notch in market price.

Bulls to Guard Blueberries.

Berry picking is becoming the occupation of many children and adults of Franklin who find the time to visit fields and pastures where blueberries abound this summer. There are said to be few places where there is good picking that are open to pickers.

Some of the owners of the berry farms refuse all admittance. Others demand a portion of the berries picked. There have been some near assault cases reported in which trespassers and land owners were involved.

In some instances, it is claimed, that farmers have turned bulls loose in their pastures to keep out the berry pickers.

However, there are bushels of berries brought into town every day and the price of blueberries which has ranged from 25 to 30 cents per quart is expected to drop considerably.

Chance to Market Cattle in France.

New Hampshire farmers have an opportunity to sell dairy cattle in France. The U. S. department of agriculture advises that the U. S. government has sent a commission to the United States to negotiate for a several thousand head of dairy cattle.

Prof. Husband is Again Historian.

Prof. Richard W. Husband of Dartmouth has resumed the due of state war historian for New Hampshire, and will take up the work which he resigned about two months ago.

Prof. Husband carried the under-taking from the beginning until some time after the close of hostilities and with the aid of local historians in the cities and towns accumulated a great quantity of most valuable data on the service of New Hampshire men in the army and navy. The duties of the office are still far from completed, however, and although he retired because of the pressure of other tasks, he has now found it possible to resume charge of the historian's work of the state.

Kills 63 Snakes.

Workmen who came from Reading, Mass., to do the baying on the former farm now owned by Mrs. Matilda Kirkegaard, on the Newmarket road, Exeter, report that they found and killed 63 snakes of various sizes and varieties, also three skunks, and two woodchucks.

The reptiles were found for the most part in the grass while the workers were mowing, and the skunks, and woodchucks were also found in the day time. They are inclined to think this is the record, and expect to bar a few more before returning to Massachusetts.

Tyler May Be Out for Year.

Dog Causes Man's Death.

Henry Wentworth and Joseph Dyer, both of Sanbornton, who have been employed by the B. & M. R. R. Company painting switch targets, were riding horses from Dover in one of the company's motor cars, and when passing the county farm crossing a large dog ran in front of the car, ditching it. Both men were thrown a number of feet and Mr. Wentworth received a severe cut on his head. He was removed to the Wentworth hospital, Dover, and died during the night.

GREAT CHANGE IN NATIONAL GUARD.

Eliminates 66 Officers and 1,870 Men from State Militia.

The final plans of the War Department for the reorganization of the National Guard make a sweeping change in every state in the Union, and New Hampshire is among the foremost in proportionate reduction from what she was required to maintain at the time of the entry of her forces into the Federal service on July 25, 1917.

According to the advice received by Governor Bartlett from Maj. Gen. Jesse M. Carter, chief of the bureau of militia affairs, this state will be called upon to furnish a total of 800 officers and men, which is figured on the basis of 200 for each representative and senator in the congress.

This means for New Hampshire a reduction of 66 officers and 1,870 men and includes the elimination of eight companies of infantry, one company of signal corps, one machine gun troop, two companies of coast artillery, one supply company, one headquarters company, one attached sanitary train, quartermaster corps and staff corps and departments.

As shown by the assignment, the state force, when organized, will comprise two companies of coast artillery, one battalion of infantry, one battalion of field artillery and one field hospital company.

A Desperate Play

By S. B. PEACH

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News-Paper Syndicate.)

Tired with her long journey and a bit disgusted with her errand, Jean Gifford descended from the dingy coach and found herself standing on the platform of a small country station, dimly lighted, gloomy with the night.

"What a crazy way to be married!" she exclaimed to herself. "I hope there is some one here to meet me."

Save for the old station agent, who was busy with his own cares, no one was about; so she sat down in the smoky waiting room and thought over the situation.

Mr. Curtis did not want the marriage to take place; neither did Ryder Sabin; so she had been forced to take the lonely ride to the northern lake cottage where the marriage was to take place—a secret affair.

The door opened and a man's face appeared. He looked at her, then smiled.

"We are waiting for you, miss," he said.

Jumping up, thankful for the sight of a friendly face, she hurried out. Her bag was taken, and in a moment she was in a machine, headed away into the darkness.

There was no one in the car save herself and the driver, and she settled back with a sigh of pleasure. The road was a rough one, but the driver was skillful, and they went along swiftly through the woody-smelling darkness. Suddenly they swung down a grade and before her was the long, level brightness of the northern lake.

A voice called from the shore.

The machine turned and stopped. "Here we are, miss," the driver said. A swift suspicion raced through her.

He Stopped Short and Stared at Her. mind. "But I am going to the Welch cottage and I understand we went directly there by car," she said wonderingly.

"We can make it quicker by motor-boat, miss," was the answer.

Her suspicion allayed, she went to the shore and found a motorboat waiting, and in it another man. Her fear returned, but a friendly greeting dispelled her.

She was carefully handed to a seat and the boat started off with motor hummus softly.

As they glided along, the dark shores sliding by in even lines, she heard the faint, far sound of an automobile.

"I supposed this was an almost deserted country," she said to the man across from her, "but that sounds like a car."

He started and listened, and at the same time, so it seemed to her, the boat went ahead at a faster pace.

"Well, there are a few cars around here—not many, though," the man answered. "We use more boats than cars in this country. I can't imagine who that is."

Before them lay the silvery expanse of the lake; on the right the dark masses of the woodland. Something made her shiver—she did not know what, but decided bravely that it must be the dampness rising from the cold lake.

The moon rose over the hills; its light brought clearly into view the men and she saw, for the first time, who were her companions. Both were dressed in the rough garb of the northern woodsman or guide. She began to be puzzled and worried.

"Where are you taking me?" she asked.

The man opposite her stirred. "Don't be worried, miss. We will take care of you," he said quietly.

She thought she read a hidden meaning in his voice, even though he seemed to try to conceal it.

"Very well," she answered quickly; "but I want to know just where we are going. Are you headed for the Welch cottage?"

"Pretty near there," he answered. "But—"

"I want to go there—not pretty near there!" she said sharply, rising.

He caught her arm with a firm hand and drew her back.

"You keep quiet. I promise you no harm will come to you," he said bluntly.

She sank back, her heart beginning to pound. Something was wrong, beyond a question.

She saw the boat change its direction, starting across the lake, in entirely the wrong direction if her judgment was right. Not knowing what to do, she sat quiet, growing colder each moment, with something that was not the coolness of the mist about her.

She did not know how many half hours passed before she saw the gleam of a light. Swiftly the boat drew inshore.

"Here we are, miss," her guardian said.

Swiftly and tremblingly she rose.

Aided by the men she mounted the dock and stared about her. The whole surroundings were strange to her—even the lights gleaming from a hunting cabin back in the woods did not seem friendly.

She turned sharply. "I demand to be taken back! I do not know this place! The Welch cottage, so I was told, is near the lake."

The guide caught her in a strong grasp. "Young lady, you come with me!" His gentleness was gone.

At first she thought of struggling; then she went obediently up the path.

One of them opened the door and pushed her in. She found herself in a living room, decorated with heads of captured game. A woman was busy at a table.

"Well, we landed her!" her guardian said, smiling. "I guess that wedding will not be pulled off!"

Jean turned. "Oh, I see—I am not at the Welch cottage!" she cried.

The man smiled. "Not a bit. You might as well know how we worked it. Mr. Sabin learned of the marriage at the Welch cottage, and we just stepped in. Your father is on the way to get you, and you and your sweetheart will have to pick another date."

She looked at him. "So, Mr. Sabin does not want me to marry unless I marry him, and father is coming to make me marry some one else. Is that it?"

"You bet!"

She laughed. "Probably Mr. Sabin owns this cottage or hired it. Is he here?"

"He will be—guess he's coming now."

The door opened and a tall, thin-faced man entered.

"How do you do, Mr. Sabin?" she said, smiling.

He turned to the watching, grinning man and stuttered: "This isn't the girl. What in—"

"But—but—she—" one of the men said with astonishment.

Jean leaned back and laughed heartily. "I am not. I was to be a friend at the wedding—a bridesmaid. I came ahead to get a few things ready. Your information was incorrect; and, by the way, I guess the wedding is over by this time."

She looked at her watch and held it out for inspection.

King Khamha.

His Majesty Khamha, the native king of Bechuanaland, an earnest supporter of prohibition, is reported to be greatly exercised over the recommendation of a government commission, in support of the sale of beer and light wine to the native population. If this recommendation is carried out, King Khamha threatens to retaliate by withdrawing the native labor from the gold mines.

Such a step would create a very acute labor situation in that country. It looks at present as if breweries and wineries would be obliged to seek some other outlet for their products.

It might be well for them to try a more enlightened part of the world where such primitive ideas do not prevail.

Toast to Those Who Stayed.

A hero had returned from Chateau Thirry. The day had been spent in excited greetings and snatches of delayed news. At last the family was alone; just before dinner the father proposed a toast to the returned hero—the shining eyes of his sisters and his mother, as well as his father's proud smile rested upon the khaki-figure decorated with medals—with a gesture he stopped them.

"Oh, not to me, father, not to me," he cried, "but to the men that fell by my side."

The File Fish.

The file fish captured off Land's End is a rare visitor to the English coast, the only previous specimens recorded having been caught so long ago as 1827. It belongs to a numerous and important family of the tropical seas, which are so-called because the first dorsal fin is studed up the front with small projections that suggest some resemblance to a file. Another peculiarity of these comic-looking fish is the gunlock spine, the principle of which was adopted for the earliest safety-rifle locks.

Monument to Punch.

Men have been honored and women have been honored for their services in war by having statues erected as testimony to their worth. There have been monuments even to animals. But how it is proposed to put up a monument to publication, and a humorous one at that. This probably is unprecedented.

The publication to receive this distinction is Punch, without which it is not quite clear how the Britishers could get along.

Went Right Ahead.

"Did you ever run into a telegraph pole?" inquired a lady of a taxi driver.

"Yes, ma'am; I've bumped into telegraph poles several times."

"Brings you to a sudden stop, doesn't it?"

"No, ma'am; the machine stops all right, but I and my fare always keep on going ahead, mostly in the air. Must go somewhere, you know, ma'am!"

TEXT—Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour. And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Matt. 27:46.

The Son of God is dying—a shameful, lingering death. The Father's well-beloved hanging on a cross! Hands that have stretched forth blessing everywhere are stretched now upward on the transom of that cross, mangled and torn. Feet that have trodden no forbidden paths but carried him only upon errands of mercy, are pierced with cruel nails. The brow, on which the dove—in holy symbolism—has set her feet, is circled now with a crown of thorns, and blood-drops trickle down from a score of ghastly wounds. Appalled nature, gazing upon the awful tragedy, trembles, while over all there rises a cry from the lips of the Lowly Sufferer: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Two heifers that have been missing for three days were found tied by the legs to a tree on the Balch farm in Leicester, Mass., both nearly dead for want of food and drink. Berry pickers who frequent the Balch farm are believed to be responsible for the death.

The bill for the consolidation of the more than 100 state boards and commissions into nineteen departments, was passed to be engrossed in the Massachusetts Senate after a brief debate, during which two proposed amendments were rejected by substantial margins.

When 290 striking workmen refused to accept a 10 per cent increase in wages offered by the Wright Wire Co., Palmer, Mass., the plant was shut down. The strikers were paid off and strucken from the company pay roll and their places filled by other persons.

The biggest gathering of champions ever held in the East will take place at Springfield, Mass., from Sept. 15 to 20, when the Eastern States Exposition will play host at a great semi-military camp on its grounds to the 300 proven leaders of boys' and girls' club work in the ten northern states.

The city of Quincy and the town of Billerica, Mass., Waterbury, Conn., and Portsmouth, N. H., are the communities that will receive the four pieces of captured German field ordnance offered by the treasury department as prizes for the largest percentage of individual subscribers to the Victory Loan.

Mrs. Mary McCarthy of West Rutland, Me., who killed her sister, Miss Kate Kerrigan, with a shot gun in August, 1918, was released by a court order from an asylum for the insane at Waterbury, where she has been under observation since the shooting. The order of the court stipulates that she must continue to live in Waterbury.

Oh, for a voice to make known to men their personal interest in that unanswered cry! There is a psalm that, in one short line, tells it all—the 2nd: the psalm of which this cry is the opening line. David wrote it, but it is Christ who is seen and heard in every word of it. And in the third verse we hear his answer to this question, "Why?" Hear it, Oh, sinner! "But thou art holy." Yes. "Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity." Sin upon the sinless One? Yes, but it is thy sin and mine laid on him. And God must turn away his face. Ah, Christ in the darkness is Christ "made sin" for you and me! Christ forsaken of God is Christ treated like a sinner in thy place and mine!

Outside the limits of Israel's camp a fire was perpetually burning. Upon that fire the bodies of beasts used for the sin-offering were consumed, as the apostle says in Heb. 13. "For the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burned without the camp. Therefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate." Out to Calvary do they take him to die, as unfit to die within the sacred precincts of the Holy City. Christ on Calvary is Christ, the true Son of God.

Regarding that the pre-war prejudice against the army uniform was already being manifested in Boston, Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, in a letter to the war department, requested that soldiers stationed at the coast defenses be allowed to wear civilian clothes while on pass, so that they would not be subject to further ridicule and insult.

Among the automobiles which stopped in Augusta, Me., the other day, was one driven by W. W. Strong, who said that he came from Cab. Coy., British West Indies. His car bore registry number 1. He said there were only two cars on the island. Since leaving Miami, Fla., the party has been over most of the Atlantic coast states and driven 4300 miles.

Regarding a wide-spread and persistent rumor that 5,000 men are to be laid off at the Fore River shipyards, Quincy, Mass., General Manager Wakeman said there was no truth in any such report. He said not over 150 men had been let go in a month and that the company had recently received additional contracts which would enable the company to keep the men at work.

Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts has signed the bill increasing the salaries of the state treasurer and auditor from $5,000 to $6,000 each annually.

These bills are retroactive to June 1, so that Treasurer Burrill and Auditor Cook will receive $5,500 this year. The governor also signed the bill authorizing the use of state armories by veterans of the world war. This bill will permit dances.

That delays are expensive as well as dangerous, the high school building committee of Wakefield, Mass., has just learned. Three months loss of time in getting the building started will mean $20,000 to $50,000 additional contractors and architects tell the committee. The delay is due to the fact that the town meeting refused to accept the architects originally chosen by the committee and instructed that estimates and plans from different firms be obtained.

If there were no such word in Scripture as, "He that believeth not shall be damned," "he that believeth not shall see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him;" that supernatural darkness round the cross would be a sufficient warning to all men.

Answer that question, if you can: If God turned away his face from his one beloved Son, the very darling of his heart, and infinitely holy because my sin was but imputed to him, what will he do with you whose sins are your own by nature and by practice when you stand before him, as you surely shall?

Way of the Holy Cross.

Go where thou wilt, seek whatsoever thou wilt, thou shalt not find a higher way above, nor a safer way below, than the way of the Holy Cross.

—Thomas a Kempis.

Miss Annie C. Crosby of Boston has made a proposition to Belfast, Me., to contribute $40,000 if an equal amount is raised by subscription within a year towards a public school building to cost not less than $100,000. The $80,000 is to be invested in Liberty Bonds and remain until, by the interest or some other means, the fund reaches $100,000. Miss Crosby is a granddaughter of the late Gov. William G. Crosby of Belfast.

Because his sense of humor was so much in evidence that he could not restrain himself from laughing long and loudly at a witty remark made by the Rev. H. E. Julien in the East Rochester, Mass., Finnish Congregational church, David Mehonan of Wareham was fined $5 by Judge Washburn of that village.

Mehonan was only recently reinstated in the church, after being expelled for disorderly conduct over a year ago.

Unseasonable rains become more frequent, too, the potato crop of Connecticut promises to be dwarfed, except in the low lands. Fruit trees and berry bushes also are suffering for lack of moisture, and the leaves in some instances are turning yellow. The raspberry crop, however, now at its height, is reported to have been exceptionally satisfactory thus far.

Corn is making a slow but even growth and promises better than normal yield.

Alfred W. Quigg of Pawtucket, R. I., who is under $50,000 bonds awaiting the outcome of 10 indictments issued in 1912, charging him with being an accessory to the embezzlement of $40,000 from the United Workmen, appeared in the superior court in an effort to have the amount of bail reduced to $3,000 on each charge pending the outcome of the trial. This action was brought in connection with his petition for an injunction to prevent the Southern Surety company from surrendering him.

Quigg is in a rather peculiar predicament due to the recent death of his brother, former Congressman Lemuel F. Quigg of New York.

Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts has signed the bill passed by the Legislature on petition of Simon Swig to permit savings departments of trust companies to pay interest monthly on deposits. The governor affixed his signature as soon as the bill was placed before him. Other measures approved by him were the bill to authorize the payment by the state of $6,000 to Judge Hayden of Roxbury and $2,000 to Representative Leland Powers of Newton to reimburse them for damage done their houses by bombs; also the measure to prevent the unauthorized possession of bombs or explosives under penalty of $1000 fine and one year's imprisonment.

Richard Billings president of the Woodstock Railway Company, announced that the company had decided to withdraw from the American Railway Express Company the privilege of doing business over its line and that the express service would be discontinued on or about October 1. This action had been taken, Mr. Billings said, because Edward C. Niles, assistant manager of the United States railroad administration, had refused to allow the Woodstock Railway Company the same increase in pay for the express privilege as that granted the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain Railroad Company and other subsidiaries of the Boston & Maine Railroad Company.

Mrs. A. W. Wilder and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wilder, from Munsonville, with Charles Thurston were at his home here Sunday. Mr. Thurston is painting at Breezy Point Cottage, in Munsonville.

Hein Tomthorpe, from Somerville, Mass., was here last Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Simonds.

Charles Holt and family and Mrs. Mary Sawyer called on relatives in Munsonville Sunday.

Otis Pike was here the last of the week, called from his work in Portsmouth by the serious condition of his mother.

Mrs. F. O. Little, from Medford Hillside, Mass., spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. George Sawyer.

Morton Paige has returned from a week's trip selling his bassinets and reports a very successful business.

Mrs. Fanny Pike was taken Thursday to St. Joseph's hospital, in Nashua, and Monday morning underwent a serious but successful operation. Her chances for complete recovery are reported as a little better than even.

Strange Fate of the House of Habsburg

By Marie Widmer

In these days of the League of Nations, with the fate of the world hanging in the balance, probably the future of the house of Habsburg is of small moment politically. But historically it is a most fascinating question.

For the history of Austria is unique in history in that it is the history of a family and not the history of a state; it is the history of a dynastic and not of a national power.

It is unique also for many other things. Territorially the name Austria was attached from about 1000 to 1300 to an inconsiderable archduchy on the Danube. Dynamically it became connected in the thirteenth century with the house of Habsburg, then insignificant, and its history since is simply the history of that house. There is no Austrian nation, strictly speaking. There is no Austrian language. Historically there never was an "emperor of Austria."

In the zone of perpetual conflict in Europe were born the two states which in turn were to dominate Germany—Austria and Prussia. "Austria" is simply the Latin form of "Oesterreich" the "Eastern Mark" of the German kingdom established by Charlemagne on the Danube, as its defense against the Magyar invader.

The importance of the house of Habsburg—and of Austria—begins with Rudolph of Habsburg—Emperor Rudolph I of the Holy Roman empire. To go back a few generations: Guntram the Rich was a count of Alsace who flourished in the tenth century. Warner, a grandson of Guntram, became bishop of Strassburg and on an eminence above Windisch, on the banks of the Aar, in the Swiss canton of Argau, built Schloss Habsburg (Habsburgsburg—the castle of vultures). This castle is still standing; the picture shows it to be an unpretentious affair. Werner I, nephew of the builder, was the first count of Habsburg. Albert III, son of Werner II, inherited extensive estates in Upper Alsace and "acquired" several Swiss districts about Zurich and Lucern. The house of Habsburg began to grow at once.

Rudolph III, son of Albert IV, was elected emperor of the Holy Roman empire in 1273 and thus figures in history as Rudolph I, Holy Roman emperor. The Holy Roman empire, it has been said, was neither holy, Roman, nor an empire. Its original basis was sort of a loose union of the crowns of Germany and Italy. Who ever was accepted as king by Germany was regarded as the potential emperor and assumed the imperial title when crowned by the pope at Rome. By the sixteenth century it was an anachronism; yet it persisted—at least in form and title—until the nineteenth century.

Rudolph I was elected emperor because his possessions were small and it was supposed he would be an amiable figure-head. He fooled the electors by reviving and increasing the powers of the imperial office. Moreover, he used the powers for the aggrandizement of the house of Habsburg. Ottocar, king of Bohemia, refused to acknowledge him and was defeated and slain. Rudolph therupon appropriated for his sons a part of the dominions which the Bohemian king had acquired, including Austria (then a duchy). The house of Habsburg thus became the house of Austria, and its history from this time on is the history of Austria.

By marriage, by diplomacy, and by pressure, the head of the house of Habsburg plucked one by one the coronets of Tyrol and Carinthia (1630); Franche Comte, Flanders and the Low Countries (1477), the crowns of Spain, Naples, Sicily and Sardinia (1516); Bohemia, including Moravia, and Hungary (1526). These many crowns were never welded into one, but were carefully distinguished as emblems of separate sovereignties, united in no way except by homage to a common ruler.

The mixture or races under the Austrian emperors until the great war was the most extraordinary in Europe. Thus when Charles VI secured inheritance to Maria Theresa by virtue of the Pragmatic sanction, he was "elected" emperor of Germany; by hereditary right sovereign of Hungary, Transylvania, Bohemia, Austria, Styria, Carniola, Carniola, the Tyrol, the Brisgau, and he had recently obtained Naples and Sicily, the Milanese and the Netherlands." In modern times the Slavic peoples are predominant in numbers and the Germans are only about one-fourth of the whole; yet until recent years the Austrian power in European politics figured chiefly as a German power and took leadership in Germany itself.

At last Prussia rose up to proclaim a German nationality. Then Austria was thrown out from the Germanic circle and found her true level in the politics of Europe. In 1806 the headship of Germany was settled between Austria and Prussia on the field of Sadowa.

This brought about the establishment of the dual monarchy of Austria-Hungary. Inasmuch as the Austrian emperor's power could no longer be based on the theory of Austria's ascendancy in Germany Francis Joseph I (1830-1916) had to submit to a rearrangement of the relations of Austria and Hungary. So Francis Joseph, whose own sons were excluded from the succession when he married Countess Sophie Chotek, the daughter of a Bohemian nobleman. He succeeded Francis Joseph November 21, 1916. He abdicated November 11, 1918.

Charles, the present head of the house of Habsburg was born in 1887. He married Princess Zita of the Bourbon house of Parma and has two sons. He is oldest son of Archduke Otto, the younger brother of the assassinated Archduke Francis Ferdinand, whose own sons were excluded from the succession when he married Countess Sophie Chotek, the daughter of a Bohemian nobleman. He succeeded Francis Joseph November 21, 1916. He abdicated November 11, 1918.

Charles and family fled to Switzerland when his empire went to smash. He first occupied Wartegg castle on the shore of Lake Constance. The Swiss government, however, suggested that he remove as far as possible from the Austrian frontier. So the former emperor of Austria is now occupying the ancient castle at Prangins, above the lake of Geneva. This castle was once occupied by Joseph Bonaparte. It is a charming mansion, with beautiful grounds—altogether very different looking place from the Castle of Vultures.

The house of Habsburg was 900 years in building. It went down almost in a day. Will it stay down? Or will it rise again?

Lieut. Frank Luke: American Air Hero

A GERMAN OBSERVATION BALLOON GOING UP

PASSING OF A HERO

IL Arizona, not to say Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada and Southern California—it would be safer to include Wyoming, Montana and Idaho also—is feeling a certain sort of grim satisfaction these days. For Frank Luke, Sr., of Phoenix has got the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously awarded to Lieut. Frank Luke, Jr. Oh, yes, it was presented with proper ceremonies at the Arizona state capitol in Phoenix by Brig. Gen. H. R. Hickok, Governor Campbell and other dignitaries. But the main thing is that the medal was awarded and is now where it belongs. And the fighting men of this western country are mixed in their feelings—divided between grief that they can no longer wish their pet flier "Happy Landings" and pride that he so well represented them that he was the first flying officer to get the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Moreover, the mystery of Luke's fate that for many months kept all the fighting men of this western country on the lookout for news of him is now solved. And these western fighting men are now doubly proud that their air hero "died with his boots on"—that his grand finale was fittingly glorious and as heroic as was his whole meteoric career.

Eighteen Hun planes and balloons in seventeen days is part of Luke's official record. "And balloons!" Yes, balloons. Don't make the mistake of thinking lightly of an aviator destroying a balloon. Regulars, marines, national guards, national army, doughboys, artilleryists, engineers—all have their heroes. But don't overlook the airmen when apportioning honors. And if there is any war business more dangerous than combating enemy airplanes it is destroying enemy observation balloons. The quality of the job is indicated by the German practice of crediting with two victories every pilot who strafed a balloon. And maybe this is why strafing balloons was the chosen business and specialty of Frank Luke.

Here's a glimpse of what Lieut. Frank Luke's comrades think of his work: The other day J. Loy Maloney returned to the Chicago Tribune staff. He had a pair of R. M. A. wings and three gold overseas service chevrons, and his pilot book shows 350 hours in the air, 150 of which were over the lines. He was with the famed 94th aero squadron—Eddie Rickenbacker's o. n. He was pressed for "news" of his exploits.

"Well, I didn't do a darn thing, but I can tell you a story about a hero—a real hero, the bravest man in the war," said Maloney.

"His name was Frank Luke, Jr., he lived in Phoenix, Ariz., before the war and he was probably the most brilliant flier we had."

"He would fly over our balloon officers and drop a note telling them he would knock down a blimp at a certain time—and at that time down would come the bag."

"On Luke's last trip up he made the most sensational flight in history. He had dropped a note saying two German balloons would be crashed. They were, and then his air went bad and he had to pump by hand, which means handling the stick, the gas and all the guns with one hand. He saw two Fokkers knock down an American scout, so he went up and knocked down the boches. On his way back he saw seven Frenchmen trying to get a huge German triplane. Luke got the ship, but shrapnel stopped his motor.

"Down he went. Below was Germany and German troops. That 20 year old kid dove the ship over the marching columns of boche troops and turned his machine gun loose on them, knowing he would be a prisoner."

"But he killed eight men, then set his ship down on the ground and whipped out his automatic. He hit three boches when they came up to capture him—and they bumped him off."

"When he died he had eighteen victories to his credit and was keeping Rick humping."

This is the judgment of a trained newspaper man, used to getting facts, appreciating their value, and sizing up men.

Perhaps nobody is better able to tell the truth about Luke than the man, who commanded his squadron in the fighting in which he took so brilliant a part. That man, Harold E. Hartney, now a lieutenant colonel and chief of gunnery in the air service, describes his first impression of him as that of "a youth keen and aquiline, blue-eyed and fair, with a strong jaw and hair brushed back from a broad, high forehead."

Luke was 20 years old when he entered the service. He was trained at the University of

LUKE AT WORK

Texas, at Rockwell Field, at Issoudun and at Cazeaux, in France; joined the 27th aero squadron near Chateau-Thierry late in July, 1918; had an insatiable appetite for flying, defied all rules of formation and safety in the air.

If any layman or landsman reading the history of Luke's career is inclined to fancy that balloon strafing is an easy trick, no experienced pilot shares that illusion," says Colonel Hartney. "In reality it is the most dangerous exploit any man in any branch of the service can undertake. The concentration of anti-aircraft fire from the ground makes it much more hazardous than other fighting. On every occasion of such attempts Luke's machine was literally riddled with bullets and twice he was compelled to abandon his airplane and break in a new one.

"Here is a sample of the work Luke did: September 15, 1918, the enemy succeeded in getting another balloon up at Bois-Hingry. Luke had been watching like a hawk this area, and the moment a balloon ascended he spotted it and returned to his own aerodrome with data and an appeal to be allowed to destroy it.

"Before Luke went out on that afternoon, therefore, new tactics were decided upon. Three friendly escorting patrols of five machines were to dart to Luke's rescue, timed to arrive at the objective 60 seconds after Luke. Our balloons were advised by courier that at 5:05 that afternoon Luke would shoot down the Bois-Hingry balloon and asked to be on the lookout. Almost to the second Luke was perceived diving homeward, with a formation of five enemy Fokkers sitting on his tail and a burning balloon falling in the background. He managed to dodge the fire of the enemy and landed on his own side of the line and not far from the most advanced American troops. Those on the ground thought that he was lost. He had, in fact, landed to get his own bearings and those of the second balloon, which he had seen at distance.

"Without getting out of his machine, without even stopping his motor, careful only of hidden shell holes which might smash his undercarriage, he took off skillfully from ground which was never intended as a taking-off place for airplanes and made straight for the balloon at Bois-Hingry. Without escort and with no companion, at exactly 20 minutes after shooting down his first balloon, the second fell actually under the noses of the enemy formations near by.

"Later observing north of Verdun and east of the Meuse, an attempt to send up another balloon.

"Luke was 20 years old when he entered the service. He was trained at the University of

OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Italian Town, Industrial Center, Still Retains a Reminder of the Middle Ages.

Arona is best known to travelers as the station on the railroad from Milan where Lake Maggiore first bursts into view. To Italians it is best known for its plantations of American corn, a novelty in Europe.

Today, Arona is an industrial center, but off in the northeast corner the castle of Angera adds a touch to the landscape which bespeaks medieval importance. The famous Borromeos—they who produced Cardinal de Medici, who became Pope Pius IV—dwelt in ancestral halls on the outskirts of the village.

At the Hotel Reale, a tablet calls attention to the fact that Garibaldi was a guest there in 1848.

That "Arona, Lago Maggiore," Turner's wonderful canvas, was not made from photographs can be gathered from Ruskin's letter, in which he says, "No such hills are, or ever were, in sight from Arona. They are gathered together, hill by hill, partly from the Battles of Oleggio, partly from above the town here, partly from half way up the lake near Baveno and then all thrown together in one grand imaginary chain."

Taxed, Too?
It seems to Marian that everything she especially likes bears the burden of the new war tax—sundaes, sodas, candy, beads, and about everything she had been accustomed to ask for when mother and father went to town. Now they limit the number of luxuries they buy for her and always explain their limitation by saying "on account of the war tax" or "plus the war tax."

The other day a new baby sister came to Marian's home. Fixedly she looked at it the next day after its arrival. "What did it cost?" she asked.

"Twenty dollars," boasted her father. The second question quickly followed, "plus the war tax?"

Age Counts.
Two very dirty, little youngsters were standing in front of the Monument betting the other day. Finally one of them said: "I bet you a nickel I'm dirtier than you are."

The other little fellow, whose bets on his prowess had been large and vigorously made, was confused for a few minutes. Finally he admitted: "Well, you ought to be. You're older than I am, aren't you?"—Indianapolis News.

Affording a Comparison.

"What are you going to do with yourself this summer?"

"I'm going to help mother and the girls enjoy themselves at a summer resort," said Mr. Cumrox.

"So you are going with them?"

"No. I'm going to stay in our cool, spacious city home and write them a letter every day about how hot and uncomfortable I am."

Cuticura Soother Itching Scalp.

On retiring gently rub spots of dampness and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your everyday toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Adv.

Orcharding in South Africa.

The present South African area, of commercial orchards is estimated at 20,000 acres, exclusive of raisins and sultanas. Of this area probably 10,000 acres are planted with varieties largely used for drying.

Disorder Demanded.

"What made them fire that chair-man out of the window?" asked the boys.

"He insulted one of our most reverenced principles," replied the anarchist.

"The first thing he said was,

"The meeting will come to order."

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. LYNN, MASS.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I am the mother of four children, and for nearly three years I suffered from a female trouble with pains in my back and side, and a general weakness. I had professional attendance most of that time but did not seem to get well. As a last resort I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which I had seen advertised in the newspapers, and in two weeks noticed a marked improvement. I continued its use and am now free from pain and able to do all my housework."—Mrs. B. B. Zimlaska, 202 Weiss Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tried it and now I am strong and well again and do my own work and I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound the credit."—Mrs. JOSEPHINE KIRKLE, 936 West Race Street, Portland, Ind.

We Are As Full of Deadly Poisons As A Germ Laboratory.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" (or Fruit Liver Tablets) will protect you against Auto-intoxication.

HANCOCK

An entertainment and dance will be given at the town hall on Wednesday evening, July 30, for the benefit of the Grange. Music by Vigenault's singing orchestra, of Keene. Read the posters.

Old Home Day is to be Aug. 21. Music by the Keene city band, singing in charge of Mrs. Annie Lindsey Putnam. The exercises will be largely a welcome home to the soldiers.

Hancock defeated Hillsboro Saturday, 3 to 1 in a close and exciting game. The features of the game were the pitching of Woodward, who fanned 19 men, ably supported by Weston, a circuit clout by Upton and a running catch by Young. Harrington and Gardner made a fine showing in their initial appearance. For Hillsboro Travers and Dutton did good work.

The Grange presented an entertainment at town hall Wednesday evening of last week with the following program: selection, Vigenault's orchestra of Keene; recitation, Beatrice
