FROM WASHINGTON

The Reporter's Correspondent
Writes Interestingly

IMMORTALITY AT THE PUBLIC CRIB

One of the big problems in Washington concerns the getting rid of the surplus war workers, who apparently regard their positions as "related to immortality." Members of Congress are constantly using their influence to "save the scalps." There is an insistent demand throughout the country for rigid economy, and it is a popular belief that Washington should set the example in "paring down" expenses.

POLITICS THE MAIN INTEREST

Most of the administrative branches of the Federal government are head over heels in politics—and Congress had a hard time to keep going because most of its members were plumb daffy over the political situation. The only diversion is the performance of Honorable Josephus Daniels and his seafaring men who are holding post mortems over the part the Navy performed in the war. The chief interest in their quarrels surrounds the telling of secrets that had better never have been told. Mr. Bryan has a habit of disagreeing with the Democratic party leaders that is enlivening, and the Republican candidates have made one another envious by their tales of the sizes of their campaign funds. The pre-convention disclosures are proof to the old saw about politics making strange bedfellows.

BREAKING THE RAILROAD JAM

The Interstate Commerce Commission has been active in its efforts to put the railroads back "on the map."
A few days ago plans were inaugurated for rerouting thousands of loaded cars that had accumulated in the principal railroad centers over the most direct routes, regardless of costs or the preferences of individual con-signees. These vigorous measures furnish promise of breaking the jam that has been preventing operating the railroads of the country in a healthful manner.

POLITICS AND THE RAILROADS

For a dozen years at least the railroads of the country have been regarded among the assets of the politicians, and the one who could block the administrative plans of the greatest number of railroad lines was considered the most successful "statesman." When the Government itself finally got the roads tied into a hard knot through public operation, it was decided that it was high time to give the owner of the lines a new opportunity to make a real business out of railroading. Howard Elliott, representing the rail executives, has pointed out to the Interstate Commerce Commission the fact that freight rates have been raised 71 percent in England; 140 percent in France; 100 percent in Belgium; 40 to 100 percent in Italy; 70 to 140 percent in Holland; 200 percent in Sweden; and 150 percent in Norway. The increase in the United States has been about 40 percent, as against increased operating expenses of fully 100 percent. The railroads in asking an increase of 23 percent in freight rates state that the amount will enable them to pay the additional billion dollars that has already been granted in wages to the railroad operators.

While the railroads are thus trying to catch up through the Interstate Commerce Commission the trainmen are pressing through the Railroad Labor Board, which is another Government institution, for an additional billion dollars increase in their wages.
Doubtless many railroad employees are underpaid, and there will necessarily be some wage increases.

A CHANCE TO DRAW THE "DEAD LINE"

The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Railroad Labor Board apparently have the opportunity to check the everlasting circle of increased costs, and to act in the interests of the public in an effective manner, by establishing a definite and more or less permanent basis of freight rates, and wages; first, by raising the rates to a point that will make railroading a good business proposition for investors; and then by an adjustment of wages that will be equitable. There are many people who are hoping that these two Federal agencies will firmly and courageously meet the issue, and

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What is Taking Place Around

Aren't we glad we live in New Hampshire? Potatoes in Chicago are selling for $7.20 a bushel.

Are you able to pick the "dark horse" at the Chicago convention, or will you be content by saying "I told you so!"

Millions of money is a good thing and we presume very convenient, but when it is used in a political campaign it seems to work in other ways than the one in which it is designed to work. Even at that it serves a purpose.

The many friends of Judge John R.
Spring, of Nashua, were pleased to welcome him to town one day last week. He was here with a friend from his city, whom he was introducing as a candidate for the Governor's council.

A little talk is being indulged in by some newspapers regarding a change-over in Hillsboro County officers at this coming fall election. A full Republican vote and good candidates will go a long way toward the change—the existing conditions throughout the country will do the rest.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce goes on record as opposed to a cash bonus to soldiers. It is quite safe to say that this organization is not composed of ex-service men; and also safe to say that if it were something affecting their own salaries it would have been a unanimous vote in favor-of themselves.

Antrim's tax rate for the ensuing year is $1.80 on every hundred dollars. We think the Selectmen have done well in their assessment, considering the amount of appropriations made at the last annual meeting. The total amount of taxable property fell a little short of last year's, owing to the change in the manner of taxing automobiles; the total valuation of the cars in town could not be included in the sum total, but the amount of tax coming to the town from this source will probably be as much as received last year and may be more.
And almost everybody having an automobile thinks the new method of taxation a fair one for the owner of a car or cars.

Annual Meeting Molly Aiken Chapter, D. A. R.

The annual meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Sylvester Tenney, in Peterboro, Mrs. Warner assisting hostess. The following officers were elected:

Regent—Mrs. Marietta S. Lang
Vice Regent—Mrs. Mary R. Wilkinson

Secretary—Mrs. Cora B. Hunt
Treasurer—Mrs. Hattie S. Peaslee
Historian—Mrs. Anna E. Carter
Registrar—Mrs. Lucy Martin
Chaplain—Mrs. Helen R. Ashford
Auditor—Mrs. Helen S. Burnham

Board of Managers—Mrs. Louise Pratt Smith, Mrs. Ethel B. Nichols,
Mrs. Gertrude Robinson, Mrs. Beatrice
C. Boyd, Mrs. Nettie G. Hurlin
Music Committee—Mrs. Gladys
Lowell, Miss Mary Barrett, Mrs. Allice Hawkins.

This program was then given:
Roll call, The Poetry of N. H.'s Lakes and Rivers; Paper, Conservation of N. H.'s Waterways, Mrs. Gertrude Robinson; Piano duet, Miss Barrett,
Mrs. Lowell; Paper, Our Waterways in Song and Story, Mrs. Smith; Reading, Contocook River, Mrs. Lang; Mandolin solo, Miss Stanley.

Mrs. Smith, in behalf of the chapter, presented both Mrs. Warner, past regent and founder of Molly Aiken Chapter, and Mrs. Boyd, retiring regent, a past regent's pin.

A beautiful collation was served and a social hour enjoyed.

furnish an example for other industrial activities of the country in adjusting their affairs to a very definite and specific standard.

A Proclamation

Agreeable to a good and increasingly popular custom, I urge the people of our State to reverently observe Monday, June 14, as Flag Day.

Upon this occasion appropriate exercises should be held in our public schools that our children, who are to carry on unextinguished the torch of liberty and transmit to future generations the ideals of the founders of the Republic, may be impressed with the necessity of maintaining the principles which are symbolized by this emblem of popular sovereignty. Let the children be taught that our flag is not only the emblem of a union of states in which the ideals of liberty prevail, but that through our participation in the great World War it has come to represent to all the nations of the world those ideals of justice, liberty and the sovereignty of the popular will toward which they are striving; that so long as the flag is honored and revered, it will remain the unaltered emblem of government by the people for the people, and that disloyalty to the flag is a crime against our country and humanity.

Let there be a widespread observance of the day, and a general display of the flag by all citizens, that we may thus honor alike those who have fallen in its defense and those to whose preservation it is entrusted.

John H. Bartlett,
Governor.

Not So Far That The Statements of Its Residents Cannot Be Verified

Rather an interesting case has been developed in Newport. Being so near by, it is well worth publishing here.
The statement is sincere—the proof convincing:

Frank Dudley, retired shoemaker,
Laurel St., Newport, N. H., says:
"Sitting constantly for eight or ten hours a day in one position and lack of exercise was the cause of kidney trouble in my case. My back became very lame and sore, and my kidneys were disordered and failed to act properly. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, so I used some. They gave me wonderful relief, removing the pain from my back and regulating my kidneys. From that time on, I have kept Doan's Kidney Pills in the house, and have used them whenever I have felt any soreness in my back or other signs of kidney trouble."

Jerome A. Crane, general manager of the Liggett stores of New England, died last week at the age of 60 years. He entered the employ of the firm as clerk in 1897.

Ralph Scovell, fourteen years old, was drowned in Otter Creek, Rutland, Vt., when companions thought his cries for help were a joke and did not go to his assistance.

Herbert Humphrey & Sons, shoe manufacturers, Marblehead, Mass., have resumed operations suspended for nearly two months because of a strike for higher wages.

Whiskey, amounting to 3,300 quarts and valued at $30,000 was seized on a big truck in Providence by Federal agents and the police. The truck had arrived from New York.

East Cambridge, Mass., has added its contribution to the number of escaped prisoners. In this instance the man liberated himself by the now popular ventilator route and made a clean getaway.

After a separation of 40 years Edward Wright, who during that time has been in the gold fields of California and Alaska, will join his sister, now Mrs. Charles Richardson, of Providence.

Patrick Doran, Jr., 13-years-old of Roxbury, Mass., was fatally injured while swinging in a hammock on the roof of his home, when a chimney, to which the hammock was attached, collapsed and fell on him.

In a circular letter to the members of the Massachusetts legislature, four medical societies within the state are set down as opposed to the passage of the bill to provide maternity benefits for needy expectant mothers.

Dr. Henry J. Millard, aged eighty-four, a Civil War Veteran and the oldest practicing physician and surgeon in Berkshire County, is dead at his home in No. Adams. He served during the Rebellion as a surgeon.

The Massachusetts house passed the bill permitting farmers, planters, ranchmen, dairymen or fruit growers to combine for the collective marketing and sale of their own products, notwithstanding anti-trust laws.

John Rising of Westfield, Mass., was out of a job and needed work. He applied for it by parading the streets with a placard on his back inscribed thus: "I want work." He was offered four positions within two hours.

Governor Coolidge has signed the remaining two rent bills thus approving all of the five temporary measures passed by the Legislature for the purpose of relieving the housing situation and curbing rent profiteering.

After kneeling, apparently in prayer, on a wall surrounding a lake in Lincoln Park, Worcester, Mass., Alexander Maxwell, 80, drew a 32-calibre revolver from his pocket, shot himself through the head and plunged headlong into the water.

Plans have been made for the organization of the Haverhill, Mass., grocery and meat store clerks into a separate branch of the retail clerks union. There are 150 now affiliated with the union and the other 100 have agreed to join the separate local.

Haverhill, Mass., High School students are up in arms over a mandate issued by Principal Arlington Clow that hereafter there shall be no more imitations of candidates at the school. The boys assert that imitations will continue even though they are held in secret.

Streams and ponds in the Springfield, Mass., section have been enriched by the release of more than 1,000,000 young fish, mostly perch and walleyed pike, by the State hatchery. A big shipment of fingerlings was also sent to Pittsfield and other parts of the Berkshires.

An uninstructed delegation will represent Vermont at the Democratic national convention in San Francisco. The delegates were selected without contest at the state convention in Rutland. The delegates-at-large are J. H. Jackson of Burlington, Henry C. Brisson of Rutland, Fred C. Martin of Bennington and Dr. E. H. Bailey of Barre. District delegates elected were Howard E. Shaw of Stowe, L. W. Watcher of Windsor, John B. Flanagan of Proctor and H. C. Shurtleff of Montpelier.

Dashing along Boylston st., Boston, with pedestrians scurrying hastily from their paths, two horses attached to a milk wagon crashed into a show-case in front of the Continental Clothing Co.'s store, Boylston and Washington sts., wrecking the case and causing damage estimated at $1200.

A 10-minute airplane flight, in which the machine reached an altitude of 3000 feet, was a feature of the 87th birthday anniversary celebration of Mrs. Abbie D. Harris of Brattleboro, Vt., the pilot of the machine being her grandson, Fred H. Harris, who was in the aviation service during the world war.

Mrs. Mollie Binder, 30, and her three children were found in bed dead from gas poisoning, at their home, 85 Lucerne street, Dorchester, Mass. The mother was despondent because the family had been ordered to vacate the house which her husband had been forced to sell a short time ago.

Dr. M. F. Fallon of Worcester, Mass., speaking before the New England Federation of Medical Examining Boards at the State House declared that legalized murders are being committed in hospitals by inexperienced young men, who, as internes, are allowed to operate on persons seeking relief.

A huge boulder from the shore of Lake Champlain, erected by the state of Vermont by the site of the old Saxe homestead near the Canadian border, was dedicated as a memorial to John Godfrey Saxe, the poet-humorist. Gov. Ernor Clement, Lieut. Gov. Mason S. Stone and other state officials had a part in the ceremony.

Maj. Albert W. Buck, recently appointed full-time health officer for the Oldtown, Orono, Milford, Bradley and Veazie, Maine, District, has resigned to accept a position with the Rockefeller Foundation Association for work in France. Maj. Buck is a graduate of Bates College, 1912, and took postgraduate work at M. I. T.

Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts vetoed the bill providing for state censorship of moving pictures, basing his objection on the formal opinion of J. Weston Allen, attorney-general, that the measure is essentially obnoxious to the federal constitution. The House in which the bill originated, sustained the veto by a vote of 202 to 14.

Jesse Pomeroy, famous life-time prisoner at the Charlestown State prison, has been elected president of the "Lifers' Club," an organization composed of 154 "life-timers" in penitentiaries in every part of the country. The society has been formed by Captain Thomas Anderson of New York, a Salvation Army prison parole officer.

An explosion of a brass pipe bomb occurred in the basement kitchen of the state armory Hartford, Conn. The first battalion, Connecticut State Guard, numbering 350 men, was maneuvering in the drill shed of the armory at the time and number of officers of the State Guard were in their offices on the second floor. No one was injured.

A bomb was exploded under a window in the home of John H. Goss, Waterbury, Conn., millionaire manufacturer and a leader in Americanization movements. The damage was slight. The bomb is believed to have been placed as a demonstration by sympathizers with the 20,000 hands of the mills here who have been on strike for weeks.

Never in the memory of the oldest citizen were fruit trees and berries so loaded down with good, healthy blossoms as this year. Even the great peach orchards on both sides of the Connecticut river south of Norwich are in splendid shape in spite of the late cold spells. There will be tons of strawberries marketed in eastern Connecticut this year.

At 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning Gov. Coolidge, by the secretary of state, Albert P. Langtry, prorogued the 141st regular session of the Massachusetts Legislature. The legislative work of the year included the passing of 629 acts and the adoption of 35 resolves. Of these the Governor vetoed two acts and one resolve and in each instance he was sustained.

Several avenues of escape from Charlestown state prison have been discovered by Warden Shattuck as a result of a complete investigation of the institution following the break by Herman L. Barney, Harry Manster and Charles Ward, and plans are under way to strengthen the prison and prevent a repetition of the events which allowed the dangerous trio to gain their liberty.

The keel of the world's biggest warship will be laid down in Quincy, Mass., within six months. The battleship Lexington, combining in a degree unequalled by any ship of war now built or building the qualities of powerful armament and high speed, has taken form in drawings and awaits the arrival of materials to be advanced from the hands of the architect to those of the builder.

Temporary removal of the fresh fish industry, recently inaugurated in Rockland, Me., by the East Coast Fisheries Company, to its plant in Cape Breton, N. S. as the result of a threatened strike by the Fish Handler's Union, is intimated by General Manager Walter J. Rich. As an earnest of the company's intention to resist the union's demands, it was stated that steam trawlers Heron and Curlew, each carrying about 300,000 pounds, had been ordered to Gloucester to discharge their fares.

NEW HAMPSHIRE
STATE NEWS

Judge W. H. Sawyer at the April term of superior court, Keene, granted 33 divorces.

State guard companies are getting ready for the encampment at Concord, the latter part of this month.

James M. Bean, one of the youngest Civil war veterans died at his home in Kensington. He was 72 years of age.

The annual meeting of the New Hampshire Bar association will be held June 26 at the Hotel Wentworth in Newcastle.

At a meeting held in Boston, Dr. Charles Duncan, secretary of the New Hampshire state board of health, was elected president of the New England Federation of the Medical Examining board.

A verdict of $5,000 against Philip Trober of Lewiston, Me., was brought in by the jury in the case of Minerva Capelle of Wells, Me., administratrix of the estate of Vienna R. Breed of Hampton Falls against the defendant Trober.

Attorney Thomas P. Cheney of Laconia has been appointed by the superior court, county solicitor for Belknap county to fill out the unexpired term of Fletcher Hale who was recently appointed a member of the state tax commission.

According to Federal Prohibition Director George H. Whitchee, Berlin, a city of 16,000 souls, is the Sahara of the Granite state. Returning from a fishing trip during which he studied conditions in Berlin, Mr. Whitchee declared that he did not believe there was a quart of liquor in that city.

Employees of the Concord railroad shops have shorter hours, the eight hour day schedule having gone into effect. While the shops have been running on this time, an extra hour a day has been worked for which the men received time and one half. The railroad shops at Billerica, Mass., and Lyndonville, Vt., went on the same schedule as the local shops.

Portsmouth Man is Killed by Heat. Albion Stringer, 43, of Portsmouth, was overcome by the heat while sitting on the North Congregational Church steps, and died in a few minutes. The temperature has been in the 90's and Stringer, a machinist, had worked hard during the day.

Drop of 40 Feet Cause of Death. While shoveling dirt, near the opening of the quarry of the Victoria White Granite company, Fitzwilliam, William Mathews lost his balance and fell to the bottom, a distance of 40 feet. He was rendered unconscious and died before the arrival of a physician. He was 55 years of age. He leaves a wife, four sisters and one brother.

Questionnaires For Grocers Now. Questionnaires are being sent out from the Department of Justice in New Hampshire to the grocers throughout the state for the purpose of getting an entry of the wholesale and retail prices of the goods they handle. In this manner a check may be had upon the dealings of the grocers and a record of prices charged and profits made.

Pure-bred Pigs Arrive. The New Hampshire Legislature of 1919 appropriated $10,000 for a stock barn and $5000 for the purchase of livestock for the agricultural college at Durham. This is the first time it has been possible to keep systematically pure-bred livestock other than dairy cattle at the college. There are quarters for thirty head of sheep, eighteen head of cattle and four horses. There are also calving and foaling quarters and a small hospital. A part of the building is heated and contains quarters for student attendants.

The barn was designed by Professor O. L. Eckman, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry. As the building is not a dairy barn, the customary great row of stanchions is conspicuous by its absence. The eight which are provided are for the use of the milking cows of the limited herd of dual purpose cattle, Short Horns. The other cattle will be sheltered in an open shed at one end of the barnyard.

During 1918 the Training Detachment of the National Army sent to the college constructed as practice work a modern piggery which has accommodations for twelve brood sows and litters.

Name Stevenson As Successor to Cain. The resignation of Maj. Orville E. Cain of Keene as department commander of the New Hampshire department of the American Legion was accepted at a meeting of the executive committee at the Legion headquarters in the state house. Maj. Reginald C. Stevenson of Exeter was unanimously elected to the office. Major Stevenson was a member of the old First New Hampshire Regiment and saw active service in France.

Resorts Natural Farmers' Market. A large number of farmers could profitably supply the exceptional demands for reasonable farm products at seashore and mountain resorts. There are 160 Summer hotels located in 57 towns, also many boarding houses and thousand of summer cottages that are usually filled to capacity during the summer months.

The Bureau of Markets' survey of summer hotels to determine the amount of reasonable farm products purchased outside the state during the month of August, 1919, shows that such purchases ranged from a few hundred dollars to $22,000 for a single hotel during that month, and taking into consideration that the season lasts from June to September, one immediately sees that large opportunities are offered by the summer hotel trade.

The ability to secure this business has been questioned by some, but already managers of summer hotels have advised the Bureau that they would be glad to arrange for local purchases, if possible; while owners of cottages are inquiring for names of farmers who can supply them regularly throughout the season.

Farmers could and should work together co-operatively in supplying the demands of these hotels by producing large quantities of certain products, assembling and grading them at a central point, and then marketing direct as per order. Producers living within five or ten miles of summer colonies can build up a profitable summer business by making one or two trips weekly, selling their products direct to the cottagers at the retail market price.

Grand Regatta For The Weirs. Under the auspices of the recently organized Weirs improvement society, a grand regatta will be held at that popular resort on July 4.

The association has offered a number of beautiful silver cups for the winners in the several motor boat races. Entrance for the boat races should be made to Carl Blaisdell, Winnepesaukee pier, The Weirs.

Dairy Herd Shows Promising Future. Advance registering official testing is being carried on for the first time in the herd at St. Anselm's college. The school is now under the direction of Father Vincent and a dairy herd of high rank is being developed.

To begin with the herd has been tested and is free from tuberculosis. Testing was started by C. A. Petmilzas, a former New Hampshire college student. Four cows are on test and results being obtained are very gratifying. When it is known that one of these animals, a heifer three years and one month old, has made a 30-day record of 2,630 pounds of milk producing $3,062 pounds of butter fat or 104 pounds of butter, it can be readily seen that the start has been made with the right foundation material.

Find Body of Escaped Prisoner. The body of Marcus W. Jones, who escaped from the Portsmouth naval prison on May 10, was found floating under the stern of the receiving ship Southern at the navy yard. It was identified by the officials from the naval prison.

Marcus Jones with another prisoner, Frank Jones, attempted to make their escape from the prison on May 10 by swimming across the back channel to the Kittery shore. Frank Jones became exhausted and was picked up by a boat which put out from the yard, but Marcus disappeared and it was supposed that he reached the Kittery shore and made good his escape. He was 19 years of age and came from Locke, N. Y. He was under a two years' sentence from a general court-martial and had been at the prison two months.

Orphans' Home Annual Meeting. The 49th annual meeting of the New Hampshire Orphans' home, Franklin, was an auspicious event, although the fact that the superintendent and Mrs. R. P. Gardner, who have accomplished wonders for the institution in the past 19 years, are leaving tended to cast a spirit of regret over the gathering, and there was an absence of much of the gaiety so common to anniversary days.

Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Fitzpatrick of Belmont, who are to succeed Rev. and Mrs. Gardner, were present and received many assurances of loyal support in their endeavor to maintain the excellent standard of the home.

It has been long conceded that the New Hampshire Orphans' home is one of the best managed and most successful institutions of the kind in the country. Much of the success is credited to Rev. and Mrs. Gardner.

A LETTER
FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown following the birth of my oldest child. I got up too soon which caused serious female trouble. I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a curb-stone. One day one of your booklets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. EVA E. SEAY, Garnett, Kansas.

LES MISERABLES

By VICTOR HUGO

Victor Marie Hugo was born at Besancon, France, on Feb. 26, 1802, so puny a child that he was not believed he could live. He was the third son of a distinguished soldier and a d'Ar Napoleon. He came sturdy but not noble stock, his ancestors on his father's side having been simple peasants.

He was well educated in France and in Spain, where his father held high rank under Napoleon's brother. He was a precocious lad, writing long plays in verse and prose while hardly more than a child. Before his 21st year he had won several high prizes for his verse. But, thrown on his own resources by the death of his mother, he found it difficult to live by his pen. He moved into an attic, where he had his only experience of actual poverty. His writings, however, soon became popular and he was able to marry, at the age of 21, Adele Foucher, his playmate of childhood days. It was a happy marriage for 10 years. Then Hugo became infatuated with an actress to whom he was devoted 50 years.

From his youth until his death, on May 22, 1885, Hugo wrote rapidly—poems, plays and novels. No man of his time had such an international reputation. Swinburne hailed him as "the greatest man born since the death of Shakespeare."

His most famous novel, "Les Miserables," was published in 1862, but he had been working on it for 15 years. Thirty years before had appeared his first great prose romance, "Notre Dame," and the third, "Toilers of the Sea," came out in 1855.

ABOUT the time of the French revolution, Jean Valjean of La Brie, a day-laborer, earned a scanty living for his sister and her seven children. One time, when the family was starving, he stole a loaf of bread, was caught and condemned to the galleys for five years. Twice he attempted to escape and failed. He was a convict for 19 years. When he was discharged in 1815 he was wicked, silent, chaste, ignorant and ferocious; his affectionate nature had been poisoned against society. But he had taught himself how to read, and he had thought.

Refused shelter or food at tavern or private house, he came to Monsignor Myriel, Bishop of D—, in the foothills of the Alps. He was treated like a prince, but in the night he stole some of the bishop's silver plate, was caught as he made off and was brought back to the good bishop, who, with a smile, assured the gendarmes that the articles were not stolen but given. Adding two silver candlesticks, the bishop said to him: "Take them and become an honest man. My brother, you no longer belong to evil, but to good. I have bought your soul of you. I give it to God."

As he fled, he yielded to one last temptation to do wrong; he took from a hardy-gurdy boy a two-franc piece, but almost immediately, filled with remorse, he tried in vain to find the boy. Two years later a stranger, dressed like a workman arrived at the little city of M— sur M—. Just as he arrived a fire broke out in the Town Hall and he rescued two children belonging to the captain of the police. This saved him from having to show his passport. He made an invention and soon became prosperous. He built great workshops, endowed a hospital, founded schools, paid high wages and was made mayor.

Employed in his factory was Fantine, a girl who had been deserted in Paris by an unworthy lover. She had left her baby, Cosette, with a crafty and hideous pair named Thenadier. When it was learned that she had an illegitimate child, she was discharged without the knowledge of M. Madeleine, the benevolent manufacturer, and was reduced to such poverty that she could not pay the Thenadiers, who took Cosette's clothes for their own girls and wrote Fantine for more. The girl sold her beautiful blonde hair; then they informed her that Cosette was ill, which was a lie, and demanded 100 francs. To obtain this she sold her front teeth to a traveling dentist; then she went on the town, and when a dissolute dandy, to annoy her, put snow down her back, she scratched his face and was arrested by Javert, Inspector of police, a brutal and over-officious tyrant, who had been attached to the galleys when Jean Valjean was there and suspected the mayor of M— of being the former convict. The mayor freed Fantine. She supposed he was the cause of her misfortunes and spat in his face. He took the affront meekly and investigated her complaint. She was ill of consumption and he provided for her and promised to look out for her child.

About the same time the police arrested another man who three former convicts swore was the missing Jean Valjean. Jean Valjean's conscience would not allow an innocent person to be punished in his place. Surmounting extraordinary difficulties, he went to Arras, where the trial took place, and just as the judge was condemning the wrong man, he confessed he was the missing convict that had robbed the bishop and the hardy-gurdy boy. The judge let him go; but Javert was implacable and apprehended him at Fantine's death-bed. He was lodged in jail, but having enormous strength, he broke out and returned to his house to secure his great fortune. He had time to hide his money in the haunted forest of Montfermeil, but was captured and sent to the galleys for life.

Nine months later at Toulon he broke his chain and saved the life of a sailor who was hanging head down from the topmast of a ship, but he himself either fell or jumped off from the spar and was reported drowned.

The battle of Waterloo had taken place and the Thenadiers, who had been guilty of robbing the dead on the fatal field, kept a wretched inn at Montfermeil. They treated Cosette, now eight years old, with great cruelty. Christmas, 1823, was the climax of her wretchedness; she was sent after dark to fetch water from a spring in the dreadful forest. A poorly dressed stranger, passing, carried her heavy bucket. At the tavern he protected her from her mistress' threatened punishment, and the next morning he paid Thenadier 1500 francs and took Cosette to Paris, where he occupied a tumble-down habitation just outside of the city; the gloomiest place in all the gloomy boulevard. By day ugly, at twilight lugubrious, and at night sinister. He thought himself secure there, but his benevolence made him conspicuous, and the old care-taker, being full of envy and uncharitableness, grew suspicious of her lodger.

One day he saw Javert. He took Cosette and again fled. But Javert was on his track. Only by unexampled adroitness and by his colossal strength did he escape by climbing over a high wall. He found himself in the garden of the convent of the Petit Picpus, where worked Pere Fauchelevent, whose life M. Madeleine has saved when he was mayor of M—. The gardener, out of his gratitude, got him appointed his assistant by representing him to be his brother. Cosette was taken into the convent school. She grew up into a charming girl; beauty suddenly came to her like the blossoms to a cherry tree in April, and Jean Valjean, happy in loving her as his daughter, as his granddaughter, as the only woman he had ever loved, guarded her as a sacred treasure.

He had good reason to be wary, for the Thenadiers had come to Paris and joined a band of robbers; and Javert never forgot. He had several desperate encounters with them. On the one side outlaws; on the other undeviating law personified. He took part in the abortive revolution of 1830 and saved Javert's life, at last winning the admiration of that implacable and fatally honorable man.

But there was one danger from which he could not protect Cosette; the most beautiful thing in the world, which nevertheless seemed to him his worst enemy—love.

Baron Marius, the son of a man whom Thenadier had robbed at Waterloo and incidentally saved from a terrible death, had been turned out of his house by his royalist grandfather and was earning a poor livelihood by literature. He saw her and they met. Their love went through more than the usual vicissitudes. During the insurrection Jean Valjean carried the youth through the mazes of the Paris sewers and brought him desperately wounded to his grandfather's house. The old man relented and consented to the marriage. Jean Valjean gave Cosette a dowry of about 600,000 francs. In order to have a conscience perfectly clear, he told his life story to Marius, who, not understanding the grandeur of the spirit that had never done anything but good, allowed him to go away with a broken heart. Thenadier, however, came to the baron to blackmail him and unconsciously revealed what a noble life Jean Valjean had led. Marius, taking Cosette, hastened to the old man's death-bed, and gave him one last taste from the cup of happiness. He died in their arms.

Victor Hugo calls "Les Miserables" "a drama in which the hero is the infinite, the second character is Man." It is in reality a melodrama in which are mingled scenes of history, a host of characters from the highest to the lowest, improbabilities which strain one's credulity, a vast amount of rare and curious information on all sorts of subjects, dissertations on philosophy, science, politics, and religion. Its treatment of social injustice had a powerful influence on public opinion, not only in France but in many countries. It has been an epoch-making book. Copyright, 1919, by the Post Publishing Co. ANALYSIS OF SOVIET RULE Cold Reasoning Easily Proves Fallacy on Which the Idea is Based—Demagogism Its Foundation Stone.

Article XXI

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Lenine has frequently observed that representative government is a fallure. He has insisted that the democratic form of government is debauched and destroyed by the political machine; that political corruption vetoes the will of the people. If Lenine is right in this conclusion, then the bolshevik government in Russia offers just from three to five times as much chance for political corruption as our own form of government. If it is dangerous for the American people to entrust their business to an agent whom they directly elect and who is directly responsible to them, how much more dangerous must it be to turn over the public business to 17 men appointed by a central executive committee, the members of which have been appointed by an All-Russian congress, which All-Russian congress is elected by soviets for whom the people did not vote? Applying this plan to our own government, our congress would be elected by the state legislatures and the aldermen of the cities, then this congress so elected would pick an executive committee of 200, and this committee would elect 17 commissioners to whom would be given the supreme power of the state, both legislative and executive power, the right to make laws, and the authority to enforce the laws.

Democracy or Autocracy?

All down through history two theories of government have been at war. One is that the majority shall rule—the other, that the minority shall rule. The people struggling for freedom have battled for the former; the few seeking special privileges have fought for the latter. The first is democratic, the second autocratic. No compromise is possible; there is no middle ground. These two antagonistic ideas have nothing in common; like parallel lines, they can never meet, in their nature they are separate and apart. The government of the late kaiser of Germany, the government of Nicholas, the autocrat of Russia, were founded on the idea that the minority shall rule. History shows that minority rule has always enslaved the majority. The rule of a minority over a majority means slavery for the many. It is human nature. The principle always works the same result. If it is a political meeting and the minority runs it, the result is a machine and a boss. When it is a nation, you have a bureaucracy and a dictator, deriving his power not from the consent of the governed, but from the bayonets of the army. There may be room for honest differences of opinion between honest men on many questions, but there is not any room for difference of opinion among honest free men on the proposition that minority rule is a menace.

In Article III of the bolshevik constitution we find incontrovertible evidence that the government of soviet Russia is built on the tyrant's stone, minority rule. Section 25 reads:

"The All-Russian congress is composed of representatives of city soviets in the ratio of one delegate for every 25,000 voters, and of representatives of the soviets of the provinces in the ratio of one delegate for every 125,000 inhabitants."

Discrimination Against Peasants.

No explanation is given for basing the representation in congress from the cities on the number of voters, while the representation in congress from the provinces is based on the number of inhabitants. The words are not synonyms, a voter is an inhabitant of certain age and possessing certain qualifications. An inhabitant is anyone who lives in the province, regardless of age or qualifications. If the word inhabitant is given the same meaning that the word voter is given, then it is apparent that the constitution unjustly discriminates against the "poor peasant." As they have had no general elections in Russia, it is impossible to give the official construction of these two words. If the word inhabitant means any man, woman or child living in the province, the discrimination against the "poor peasant" is just as obvious, although it does not go to the same length. As an illustration, if we read this important provision of the constitution giving to the word inhabitant the same meaning as we give to the word voter, then we see that the voters of the city have one congressman for every 25,000, while the "poor peasants" have one congressman for every 125,000. If we construe the word voter to mean the qualified legal voter, and the word inhabitant to mean any human being living in the provinces, we learn that the people of the city have one congressman for every 25,000 voters, while the people of the provinces have one congressman for every 62,500 voters. I reach this estimate in the following manner: In the United States we estimate that there is one voter in every five of the population. This calculation is based upon male suffrage alone, with the voting age fixed at twenty-one years. In Russia both men and women have the suffrage, and the age qualifying one to vote is eighteen years. I, therefore, figure that there would be one voter for every two in population. There is no question about the discrimination against the "poor peasant" and the favoring of the city voter. It is only a question of how much.

Machine Politics.

Lenine may be the idealist some people say he is, but this section of the constitution proves him to be a practical machine politician in his methods. The provision was written to meet a situation. It has a purpose. Lenine has frequently written and spoken about the "poor peasants." He can be forgiven for overworking the phrase. The "poor peasants" make up the great bulk of the population of Russia. It is not bad politics, although it smacks of demagoguery, to speak often and sympathetically of the "suffering poor," particularly when the "poor peasants" make up the majority of one's constituency. Many successful politicians owe their offices to this appeal. In Russia over 80 per cent of the people live on the land—over four-fifths of all the Russians are peasants. Less than one-fifth of the population live in the towns and cities. Measured by his words, Lenine is the friend of the "poor peasants;" by the constitution, their enemy.

As we have seen, the constitution specifically declares that the supreme power of the government is vested in the All-Russian congress. Of course this is true only in theory, for we have read how the All-Russian congress turns the supreme power over to the central executive committee, which in turn surrenders the power to the 17 people's commissars.

The discrimination against the "poor peasant" runs all through the constitution; the bolsheviks are at least consistent. Paragraph "B" of section 53 of the constitution furnishes additional evidence of the conspiracy against the peasants. It reads:

"The provincial soviets are composed of representatives of the city soviets and the rural soviets, one representative for 10,000 inhabitants of the rural districts, and one representative for 2,000 voters in the city."

In the regional congresses it is the same, one representative for 25,000 inhabitants of the country, and one representative for 5,000 voters of the city.

Aim at Disfranchising Peasants.

The governments of the nation, of the regions, of the provinces, are based on the disfranchisement of the "poor peasants." I am wondering if there is any significance in the fact that the people of the city have one representative for a certain number of votes, and the people of the country have one representative for just five times the number. You will note the ratio is always the same: For congressmen it is 25,000 in the city, as against 125,000 in the country; in the regional congress it is 5,000 voters of the city as against 25,000 inhabitants of the country, in the provincial congresses it is one representative for 2,000 voters in the city, one representative for 10,000 inhabitants from the rural districts. Why this five to one? I am wondering how Lenine hit upon the ratio of five to one; is there any connection between this five-to-one discrimination against the "poor peasants" and the ratio of population in Russia between city dwellers and "poor peasants," which is about five to one? It is not difficult to guess the reason for this action. Any American ward politician could furnish the explanation in a minute. All political experience proves that a political machine is best controlled, easiest organized in the cities. Political machines have never been popular in the country districts. The soviet form of government is a political machine. The control of the machine is insured by disfranchising the "poor peasants." The men who designed the bolshevik constitution knew one thing about practical politics, and knew that one thing thoroughly, and that is that cities are accessible to political control, amenable to political influence, ideal for the political machine.

The soldiers and sailors are generally stationed in cities. This gives them the power of city voters. They are not discriminating against they are favored. Soldiers and sailors are not free agents in the sense the civilians usually are. Civilians have a freedom of thought and action that the military do not enjoy. The soldier's occupation prevents it. First, he is an employee of the government; second, he is under discipline; third, the people's commissars fix his pay, determine the quantity and quality of his food, arrange for the comforts of the barracks; the votes and the bayonets of the military sustain and support Lenine as truly as the military force held the czar on his throne.

AKHAI AS VIEWED BY YOUTH

Army Called Place Where Collectors Cease From Troubling and Callosities Leave the Feet.

Ideas about army life that persuasive recruiting sergeants never heard of in all their various "hitches" in the service, were brought out by the public schools of the country under the auspices of the army and recruiting service.

Freedom from annoyance while in khaki is the theme of a little girl in Ohio, who writes: "One of the benefits of an enlistment is that you ain't all the time bothered by bill collectors."

"You get respect for law in the army," a Montana boy is convinced, because "the Constitution says America is a country of free and ungovernable rights."

Another boy in Illinois wishes "teacher was a man so she could be a soldier." Filled with the enthusiasm of a patent medicine prospectus, an Indiana school girl has this to say: "An enlistment is good for the mind, the liver, the lungs and the kidneys. It takes the callosities off the feet and puts them on the hands."

KEEPS FLY PAPER IN PLACE

Device That Will Be Appreciated by Any One Who Has Sat on the Abomination.

A New Jersey man has invented a device to keep fly-paper in one position and from being blown by the wind on to father's favorite chair or mother's most treasured lace curtains. It consists of a frame having grooves at each end to permit the insertion of the sheet of fly-paper. A narrow strip of wood is forced down into the groove over the paper to hold it taut. At the lower end of the frame three grooves are located for taking care of any variations in the lengths of the fly-paper.

When the fly-paper is in its frame, it may be placed up in any convenient place, and will be so conspicuous as to be readily seen before being sat upon. In addition to being useful as a holder for fly-paper, the device can be used as an embroidery-frame or as a stretcher for cloth or paper.—Popular Science Monthly.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Woodward were recent visitors with relatives in this place.

Norman Thompson is spending the summer in town, employed at the F. C. Henderson place.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman H. Clark recently visited their daughter, Mrs. Andrew Fuglestad, in Laconia.

Owing to the rain of last Saturday the base ball game scheduled to be played on the home grounds against Hillsboro, had to be postponed.

The Paine bungalow on Highland avenue has been sold to a Miss Rice, a teacher in the Boston schools, who with her mother will soon occupy it.

The ladies' Mission Circle of the Presbyterian society will hold a meeting at their church parlors on Thursday afternoon, with the usual supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deacon and Mrs. Molly Bass have arrived in town for a season, from Winter Hill, Mass. They are now at the Deacon cottage at Gregg lake.

The rain of the past week was good for the grass land and will make lots of hay, but the lowlands were made very wet and hard to cultivate for some time yet.

The graduating exercises of the Class of 1920 will be held in the town hall, June 18, at 2.30 o'clock. In the evening the invited reception and dance will be held.

The Warren Merrill farm at the Center and the W. W. Wyer farm on Hancock road have been sold the past week by Sawyer & Downes of the Chamberlin & Burnham agency.

Married, in Sunapee, June 5, by Rev. George M. Smiley, Alonzo Wallace George, of Antrim, and Miss Dagmar Helena Isaacson, of Dover. Antrim friends extend congratulations.

The local base ball team will play the Wilton team, at Wilton, on Saturday of this week. Next week Saturday, the 19th, they will play the Hillsboro team here on the Jameson grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jameson and children and Mrs. Walker, motored up from Concord Friday to spend the day with Mrs. Edwin D. Jameson. Mrs. Walker remained over the week end, returning to Concord Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens, of New York, were visitors in town Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Stevens, who was formerly Miss Marion Paine, spent many summers here with her mother, at the Paine bungalow on Highland avenue.

The Patriarchal degree was conferred on two candidates at a special meeting last week Wednesday evening, of Mt. Crotched Encampment, I. O. O. F. On Monday evening of this week at the regular meeting, the Golden Rule degree was conferred on the same two candidates.

Mrs. H. W. Eldredge was called to Orleans, Mass., first of the week by the serious illness of her brother, Jas. F. Eldredge. Her daughter, Mabelle, accompanied her as far as East Wareham, Mass., where she will spend a season with her aunt, Mrs. Eugene C. Ellis.

In the English room at the high school building, on Monday and Tuesday afternoons of next week, from 3.30 to 5 o'clock, there will be an exhibition of the drawing done by the grades, and the sewing and manual training done by high school pupils. All are cordially invited to visit this exhibition.

Work on the state road has been started.

Mrs. Bertha Gross, of Ipswich, has been visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Hicks and daughter, Martha, have returned from Franklin.

Andrew VanDommele, of New Bedford, Mass., recently spent a day in town.

Mrs. Lestina Goddard, a former teacher here, has been visiting friends in town.

Donald Parker, of Boston, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Parker.

Josephine Costine, of North Adams, Mass., spent the week end with Charles Sleeper's.

Raymond Reese, of Somerville, Mass., recently spent the day at the home of Charles Perry, on Park street.

Walter Barnes, of Nashua, joined his family at the home of Mrs. Barnes' mother, Mrs. N. R. Bruce, for a few days' visit recently.

A car driven by Leo Lafamme collided with a car from Peterboro, demolishing the former's car. The occupants escaped with minor injuries.

Hillsboro is planning a grand celebration for July 5th, including base ball, races, parade, horribles, circus, dancing, etc. Watch for posters.

Delmont E. Gordon was last week elected president of the N. H. Retail Jeweler's Association at their convention held at Laconia. Mr. Gordon attended this meeting, the largest in the history of the association.

EAST ANTRIM

Harvey Rogers and family have moved to Bennington.

Word has been received that Robert Nylander was married on June 5, to Esther Anderson, of New Sweden, Me. Antrim friends and neighbors extend congratulations and say: Robert, come to Antrim with your bride for a wedding trip.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Lars Nylander will this week enter a hospital for an operation. Her friends wish her speedy and complete recovery of health.

East Antrim was well represented at the Estey auction, in spite of the downpour of rain.

NORTH BRANCH

George P. Craig has hired a farm and will take possession at once.

G. Miles Nesmith and Phillip Whittemore were callers at George Craig's Sunday.

The Estey auction was well attended, even though there was another rainy day. Things commanded a good price.

Mrs. S. J. Pope and daughter, Florence, are at their home for the summer. We are glad to welcome all friends back to the Branch.

Charles S. Abbott recently took a party from the Branch to Frances-town; they were interested in granite and marble, also in making a geographical survey of Crooked Mountain.

Mrs. Geo. F. Lowe and friends, from Hollis, were present at the auction, and we are pleased to state that the real estate was purchased by Mr. Lowe, we hope for a home. They were too good citizens to leave our town anyway.

The latest Ford stunt was performed by A. O. Sutherland's car, when it became violently insane and started for the back of the barn, and bursting through the boards, looped the loop and landed on its back, where it continued to run until it was gassed. After being righted and led up around to the barn it was found to be practically unharmed. If anything but a Ford could do that stunt we would like to know its name.

Backache Slowing You Up? Are you dragging along with a dull, throbbing backache? Feel lame morning after morning, suffer torturing twinges at every move? Often the kidneys are to blame. A cold, strain or overwork congests the kidneys; poisons accumulate and mysterious aches and pains result. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with perhaps bladder irregularity. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

A Massachusetts Case J. D. Brenehan, contractor and builder, 477 Walnut St., North Adams, Mass., says: "Every fall and spring I had trouble with my kidneys. Mornings my back felt sore and I could scarcely get out of bed and during the day when I stooped my back would give out. The kidney secretions were highly colored and contained sediment. I finally began to use Doan's Kidney Pills and after a few days' use the soreness left my back and I felt stronger in every way. Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box. DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS. Prayed for Cure Finds it After 10 Years Food Would Sour and Boil -Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gesner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.: "I had stomach trouble over ten years; kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever. Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk. I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one-third of it and began to feel relief. I felt fine when it was three-fourths gone. I felt fine when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the new box and I have no more stomach trouble. Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man; I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all."

WOULD MAKE AN EXCEPTION Captured German Captain Decided That on This Occasion He Would Forget About Honor.

Among the letters from France that have been printed in the Atlantic Monthly there is to be found this entertaining episode: The code of the German officers is, never to surrender; but of course they cannot live up to it. In a recent raid a sergeant I know made a prisoner of a German captain who, as they walked to the rear, cursed his luck in fluent French, saying that he was caught unawares that an officer never surrendered, but fought to the end. "Stop here, my captain, and let us consider this," said the sergeant seriously. "There are several articles of your equipment to which my fancy runs. That watch, for example, those leather puttees, and that fat purse I saw you change to your hip pocket. Perhaps I can oblige you and gratify my whim. Suppose you were suddenly to run—a quick shot would save your honor, and me the trouble of escorting you to the rear. And I am an excellent shot, I assure you."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Bandits Armed With Corncobs. Our correspondent in Villa Hermosa communicated to us the capture of some inventive individuals, who, having passed themselves off as rebels, devoted themselves to robbing and attacking small towns. "It was astonishing that the captured men carried arms that were a crude imitation of 30-30 rifles, made of worthless wood; in their cartridge belts they were wearing corncobs instead of deadly bullets. For some time they fooled many and gained much booty. At last their protector, Gestas, slept and they were taken prisoners."—"El Universal," City of Mexico.

Some Joys of the Metropolis. Hunting for a home in New York is more thrilling than any tale ever related by Gaboriau, more improbable than the adventures of Baron Munchausen, more daring than exploits of Arsene Lupin, as sordid as the novels of Emile Zola and as mysterious as the dramas of Wilkie Collins. Just now there is not an apartment to be found in the whole of Manhattan. Up in the Bronx they are renting cellars. A skylight room in a ramshackle building up a dingy street draws $70 a month. Some people have got to move out of New York or the darn thing is going to bust.—Exchange.

It's easy to laugh at misfortune—when it visits the house next door.

A PAIR OF SHOES

By LINCOLN ROTHBLUM (© 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Dolly Copley, just twenty and pretty as a waxen doll, breezed into her home, closely followed by the protecting and admiring Jim Reardon. Dolly's mother, her gray hairs belying the youth and laughter in her eyes, glanced up from the bit of embroidery in her hands and noted a foreboding pout on her daughter's face, wondering as her gaze wandered to the flushed countenance of her future son-in-law. Mrs. Copley did not like the looks of the situation.

"Children, what is the matter now?" the "now" indicating that similar incidents had occurred before. Accustomed as Mrs. Copley had become to the petty quarrels of the young lovers, any new cause of disagreement evoked uneasiness lest in their childish tempers they invited much unhappiness.

"Well, who said what?" she added by way of an initial conciliatory step. "Oh, Jim's trying to act silly," said Dolly.

"You mean, Dolly won't be sensible," corrected Jim.

"First one and then the other," impatiently chided Mrs. Copley, laying aside her embroidery. "Now, Dolly, we'll hear from you, and," anticipating a long recital, "be brief."

Dolly, with cheeks prettily flushed, removed a large leghorn hat, its creamy whiteness enhanced by a blood-red poppy stitched to its side. She seated herself on a low bench before an open grate fire and placed the hat upon knees cocked up by fashion.

"Really, mother," came the answer in tones of insulted dignity, "it is well I find it all out now. Jim wants a slave, not a wife." This with a withering glance at her prospective mother-in-law, who sat twiddling the cigarette his impatience would not permit him to smoke.

"Careful, Dolly, careful," cautioned Mrs. Copley, but Dolly pretended not to hear.

"The play at the theater tonight was all about that man who wanted his sweetheart to repeat the silly words. 'Thank goodness, the table is set,' and she wouldn't do it (which I am convinced was perfectly proper). So she gave him back his ring. And that's just what I'm going to do because Jim thought he could make me say, 'Here, dear, are your shoes.'"

"I didn't say that," retorted Jim defensively. "I said—"

"Just a moment, please," pleaded Mrs. Copley, placatingly. "Are you through with your side of the story, Dolly?" A blond head nodded in the affirmative. "All right, then, we'll hear what you have to say," continued the arbitrator, turning to Jim.

"Aw, after the show all I said was if I should ask her to bring me my shoes, if she would hand them to me kindly or would she be stubborn like the girl in the play. And Dolly said, 'Oh, I might and I mightn't.' I didn't like that very well, and I said, 'Dolly, let me hear you say, 'Here, dear, are your shoes.'"

Then Dolly said, "Don't be silly, Jim." And I said, "Please, Dolly, say, 'Here, dear, are your shoes.' Well, the long and short of it is, Dolly won't say it, and I want her to say it."

And having delivered himself of this oration, Jim Reardon set his arms akimbo, spread out his legs and defied the world.

"No more of this nonsense, children," Mrs. Copley rebuked sharply. "Come, now, shake hands and drop the matter."

"But she hasn't said, 'Here, dear are your shoes,'" came parrot-fashion and with masculine persistency from Jim.

"The which I won't say," snapped Dolly dangerously.

And the astonished eyes of Mrs. Copley saw the flash of a diamond as it whirled through the air and lay in scintillating beauty between the angry pair. In high-handed disdain Jim stalked from the house. And Dolly cried.

The night lengthened into a week and the week into a month, and the month into double and treble that number of days. And time, proverbial healer of discord and inharmonious, rendered impossible a cohabitation of pride from either side. Dolly's interest in life ceased to center about gowns, teas and shows, and dwindled to reading the daily news with its disquieting announcements.

It was well into the fourth month since the unfortunate attendance at that performance, whose very moral, intended for them, failed to drive home the lesson. Jim Reardon moped down the town's busy street, dark shadows beneath listless eyes testifying to the gnawing canker of heart-sickness within.

For distraction he joined the onlookers before a shop window where an up-to-date business-getter had stationed his machine to secure the passing trade. "Rubber heels put on while U wait," read the legend in brilliantly silvered letters across the pane. The advertising psychology of the repairman was good. Jim glanced at his shoes, thought of rubber-heeled comfort and saw the excellent work being performed within the shop. He entered.

"Rubber heels, please," he courteously said to the gum-chewing clerk as he removed and handed him his shoes. He inserted his feet and twiddled his stockinged toes within the spacious confines of carpet slippers, as vacantly he watched the minute hand of the clock on the wall make monotonous progress. The whirr of the electric machinery was peculiarly soothing to his distraught mood.

A boy entered, and not receiving the immediate attention the majesty of his youth demanded, flopped a coin on the counter and, grabbing up a pair of shoes, made hasty exit just as the clerk advanced.

Jim took out his watch and confirmed the time of the wall clock. He had been there 30 minutes. He called to the clerk.

Guilty, But Pardoned

By REV. E. J. PACE Director of Missionary Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.—Prov. 28:13.

A story comes from ancient Sparta in illustration of the fortitude in which the youth of that rigorous military state were trained, telling how a boy permitted a stolen fox, hidden under the folds of his tunic to eat into his vitals, rather than allow his theft to be discovered. What a graphic picture of many a man or woman who through years of anguish bravely endured the gnawing of unconfessed sin.

Such was the case with King David. His body was clad in the royal purple, and seated on a throne; but his soul was in hell, and had been there more than a year. He had sinned, grievously sinned in the matter of the wife of Uriah the Hittite. In idleness upon the roof of his palace the lust of his eyes awakened an illicit passion for the wife of another, whom he took, and by craft rendered a widow. With cunning cleverness he attempted to conceal his crime, thinking all would be well. But David penned no psalms, and his harp awakened no melodies in the royal palace all that year. He thought to prosper, but his prosperity was turned into the drought of summer.

Made Coward by Conscience. But that year of agony dragged on, during which, as he afterwards confessed (Ps. 32:3), his "bones waxed old through his roaring all the day long," all because his "tongue kept silence." Then Nathan came. David's old friend, the prophet Nathan. We can well imagine how his knees smote each other as the chamberlain announced Nathan at the door. Ordinarily David would have greeted the old prophet with a hale and hearty welcome, but not today. Of all men he cared to see it was not Nathan. But he must not be discourteous; let him come in. Dignified, clear-eyed Nathan stands before the king, David's eyes are shifty; his face is pale, and his whole bearing is ill at ease. Now he's in for it. But imagine his relief when from the lips of Nathan fall, not words of denunciation, but a complaint about a man losing his sheep. Ah, how immensely relieved is King David! The blood comes back to his face; he is alert and all attention now, his old self-reliant, righteous self. Sheep: why he knows all about sheep, having grown up with the flocks out Bethlehem way. "Say on, Nathan; what was it you said about a sheep?" (To himself): "My, I'm glad he isn't going to talk about sin."

"Found Out" by His Sin. Then follows Nathan's story of the rich man stealing the only sheep of the poor neighbor to feed a chance guest, and the king is furious. "As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this shall surely die." Hold on, David, you are going too far. The law grants only four sheep for one, but you would take the man's life! But how like him we all are! What sacrifices will we not undergo, what services will we not render, rather than get down.

"Thou art the man," thunders the prophet, and David crumples up a heap before his merciless uncovering of that sin, and weakly says: "I have sinned." But now the floodgates are open, and with a body shaking with sobs, he pours out his soul in that matchless penitent Psalm (the fifty-first), which has been the beaten pathway back to God for millions of sinners since.

Forgiven. But that isn't all. David finds mercy, as our text guarantees, for Nathan immediately replies, "The Lord hath also put away thy sin."

Once again David seizes his harp, and the palace walls ring with the glad refrain of the thirty-second Psalm. "Blessed is the man whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered." Blessed be our God; when he covers sin beneath the cleansing blood of the Lamb of God, there is abundance of prosperity assured, "for whose confesseth and forsaketh his sin shall have mercy."

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord."—Isaiah 55:7, 8.

"If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."—I John 1:9.

BYRON EXTOLLED IN PRESS

Two Tributes to the Memory of the Great Poet Have Been Paid for Many Years.

This is the anniversary of the death of Byron, observes the New York Evening Sun of April 19. If the reader were in London today and should visit the statue of the famous poet in that secluded and exclusive part of Hyde Park called Hamilton gardens, he would find the monument decorated with a single yellow wreath. And if he had brought with him a copy of the Times and would turn to the obituary column he would find there a notice of Byron's death and a proclamation of his fame.

These two tributes have been rendered annually to the memory of Byron for many years. They are paid for each year with the income of a sum bequeathed for that purpose by a woman admirer of the poet. The legend connected with the tributes runs that they are to be continued annually until the name of Byron is inscribed in the poets' corner of Westminster abbey. Byron died in Greece on April 19, 1824, in his thirty-seventh year.

All in the Wedding Cake. The ring in the wedding cake means that the person who draws the piece containing it will be the first to be wed of those present. The thimble brings disappointment, an old maid's fate is wished onto the finger of the one who gets the thimble; the tiny wish bone, of silver or gold or whatever it may be, another popular ingredient in wedding cakes, allows the one who draws it to make a wish upon it which will come true. Then there is the penny or dime promising riches to its lucky holder. The button foretelling bachelorhood for the one whose plate it falls upon.

TEXT—He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.—Prov. 28:13.

A story comes from ancient Sparta in illustration of the fortitude in which the youth of that rigorous military state were trained, telling how a boy permitted a stolen fox, hidden under the folds of his tunic to eat into his vitals, rather than allow his theft to be discovered. What a graphic picture of many a man or woman who through years of anguish bravely endured the gnawing of unconfessed sin.

Such was the case with King David. His body was clad in the royal purple, and seated on a throne; but his soul was in hell, and had been there more than a year. He had sinned, grievously sinned in the matter of the wife of Uriah the Hittite. In idleness upon the roof of his palace the lust of his eyes awakened an illicit passion for the wife of another, whom he took, and by craft rendered a widow. With cunning cleverness he attempted to conceal his crime, thinking all would be well. But David penned no psalms, and his harp awakened no melodies in the royal palace all that year. Home Town Helps

GARDEN CITIES HELP TRAFFIC

Transference of Part of Population Relieves Congestion on Cars in London.

Dense morning fogs have combined with the now chronic congestion of passenger traffic to make Londoners realize too vividly the inconveniences of an over centralized population, remarks the London Times. London is undoubtedly too large for health, for happiness and for economical living and production; and, although the amenities of life in this and other great cities have in some ways been increased by providing dormitories at a distance from the work room, the problem of daily transit has been proportionately intensified.

Much is to be said for the garden suburb, but even more for the garden city. The two are often confused or falsely identified, but from the point of view of transport the difference between is fundamental. Garden suburbs represent an extension of the daily traffic of a great town to a more distant circumference; garden cities, a permanent transference of a section of the population to a less crowded center.

Every inhabitant of a garden suburb who works in the city contributes twice a day his or her share to the ever increasing problem of traffic congestion. The colonist of a garden city, on the other hand, definitely relieves the overcrowded centers of the duty of transporting him to and from his work and catering for him and his. Dwellers in garden suburbs are excursionists; in garden cities is an emigrant. It is of the nature of the community to which he belongs that he shall not only sleep, breakfast and occasionally play lawn tennis and grow beans or roses there, but shall work there as well; and for his reward as a pioneer he escapes the strains and stretches of the straphanger.

Would Be Paying Proposition in These Days of Railroad Strikes and Coal Shortages.

Is there a little woodlot in your town? Zurich, Switzerland, has had one working for it for six centuries and it is still paying big dividends. There is a great big lesson in this, the American Forestry association of Washington says, in these days of railroad strikes and coal shortages.

Many travelers are familiar with the "town forests" of Europe. One of the best known of these is the communal forest belonging to the city of Zurich, in Switzerland, which has an area of 2,840 acres, yielding on the average an annual income of nearly $20,000, or about $7.00 per acre; and this is the most remarkable because most of this income is derived from the sale of firewood, which is perhaps, the cheapest product of a forest.

This tract of forest land has been under management since the year 1309, and it has been steadily increasing in value during these six centuries, writes Prof. John Bentley, Jr., of Cornell, in the American Forestry Magazine. In this country the number of towns and cities that are practicing forestry is still small, and their efforts have been confined chiefly to the protection of watersheds from which the city's water supply is drawn.

Billboards Versus Beauty. Thus it comes about that people who ride out into the country, eager for the rest and refreshment which only the open country can give, find every field and every little hill dotted by V-shaped signs, erected in the most approved fashion, and ornamented with the approved moldings and machine-made cornices, while the beautiful vistas that might otherwise make each turn in the road a new delight are cut short by successive examples of the approved "head-on" "showings." One needs but to test his own sensations on such a motor ride to know how completely the billboard men are stifling his power to enjoy "natural scenic beauty spots." All their scruples have not preserved to him his native rights in the open country.—Christian Science Monitor.

Where Did the Colors Go? John's mother was washing some of his garments. Holding up one of his new wash suits, she exclaimed: "Oh, dear, dear John, the color in your pretty new suit ran." John, who was having much trouble in controlling a fery, steed in the form of a broom handle, apparently paid little attention. A little while later, he came to his mother, and said in a much puzzled manner: "Mother, I can't find 'em any place." "Find what, dear?" asked the mother. "Why, the colors," answered John. "You said they ran. Where did they go?"

To the Poor Indian

SENATOR R.L. OWEN OF OKLAHOMA

CHIEF WHITE CROW OF THE CHEROKEE

ZIT-KALA-SA

"Lo the poor Indian." This time-honored phrase must go into the discard. The American Indian is not poor—either in patriotism, worldly goods or ambition to get ahead, or in other requisites of the desirable citizen. Some of the tribes—the Five Civilized Nations and the Osages—are already citizens. The rest of the deserving Indians may possibly soon be made citizens by congressional legislation. The Indian isn't dying off, either. Nor is he losing his identity by intermarriage with the pale face. "Lo the coming Indian!" is the revised version of the old phrase.

"The only good Indian is the dead Indian" was the way the frontier expressed the general contemporary American idea of the desirability of the red man as a man and brother. "As a race the Indians are utterly incorrigible. Despite all efforts to reclaim them they remain savages; wild men of the wilderness; untamed denizens of the woods. And even when individuals of their race are taken from the forests and educated and cultured they relapse at the first opportunity into savagery, and then they become more barbarous than original barbarians. Essentially a wild animal, like the wolf and the catamount, the Indian has always roved, and will always continue to rove, untamed in the forest." Wesley O. Howard, former justice of the supreme court of New York, thus states the case of those who still continue to dislike the Indian.

On the other hand the friends of the Indian—and they are many—believe that the so-called "Indian problem" should be solved by making the Indians a part of the American people, instead of keeping them apart as aliens and semi-outcasts under the name of wards of the nation. This case for the Indian is the one adopted by a committee representing his friends. Its chairman was the Rev. Henry Roe Cloud, an Omaha Indian and a graduate of Yale university. Among its members were S. M. Brostus, the Washington agent of the Indian Rights association; the Right Rev. H. L. Burlington, Protestant Episcopal bishop of South Dakota; John W. Clark, secretary of the National Indian association; Mrs. Raymond T. Bonnin (Zit-kala-sa), secretary of the Society of American Indians; the Rev. Thomas C. Moffett, superintendent of the Presbyterian Indian Mission Work; and the Rev. Francis S. White, domestic secretary of the Protestant Episcopal board of missions.

Mrs. Bonnin, secretary of the Society of the American Indians, believes that over-paternalism on the part of the United States government is stifling the initiative of the Indian. She wants him enfranchised and believes he can take care of himself. Mrs. Bonnin (Zit-kala-sa) is the wife of Capt. Raymond T. Bonnin, U. S. A., of French and Sioux descent. She herself is a full-blooded Sioux and a direct descendant of Sitting Bull. Self-determination for races hith-to held in tutelage is the fashion of the moment. It's in the air for the Indian. There are several members of congress of Indian blood and legislation making the Indian a citizen is likely to be kept before that body till something is accomplished. One of the leading proponents of equal rights for the Indian, for instance, is one who has a trace of the lineage of the red man himself, Robert Latham Owen, senior senator from Oklahoma, whose mother was "Narcissa Chisholm of the Cherokee Nation." As the secretary of the board of education of the Cherokee nation, United States Indian agent for the Five Civilized Tribes and owner and editor of the periodical, the Cherokee Chieftain, the senator has done notable work for the cause of equal rights. The best service he has rendered, however, is in being what he is—for surely any one who has made a fortune as an up-to-date farmer, is the organizer of a bank and has got himself elected to the United States senate has furnished a demonstration that he is well adapted for taking care of himself.

William Wirt Hastings is of Cherokee parentage. He was born in 1836 in the old Indian territory. On his graduation from the Cherokee Male seminary he went to Vanderbilt university, which gave him the degree of LL.B. He became in 1896 the attorney for the Cherokee nation and represented it in the winding up of its tribal affairs in Washington. He was a delegate at large to the national Democratic convention at Baltimore in 1912. Besides serving as a member of the present congress Mr. Hastings is the regular attorney for the Cherokee tribe in all its public relations.

Charles Daugherty Carter was born near Boggy Depot in an old fort of the Choctaw nation, Indian territory. He attended as a boy the Chickasaw Labor academy near Tishomingo, I. T. He worked on a ranch as a cowboy for a while and then became a clerk in a store. Mr. Carter rose to high place in the councils of the Chickasaws, serving as school superintendent and mining trustee and occupying various other positions. He is a director of the Ardmore bank in his home town of Ardmore, Okla., and he is the member of congress responsible for the Indian enfranchisement bill.

Probably the force most to be reckoned with among the Indians of the present day is the returned soldier. The Indians sent 10,000 young braves into the army and 2,000 into the navy. They proved to be gorgeous fighters and brought home decorations galore. But the main point is that the army experience of the young men has proved, for most of them, the most important educational factor of their careers. Commissioner Sells refused to permit them to be grouped as Indians in service units. They volunteered or were drafted as individuals and were allocated as such to companies and regiments. The result was that for a year or two they lived precisely the life of the white soldiers, with white men for companions. These men will never be satisfied until they are citizens.

Cato Sells, the United States Indian commissioner, has faith in the red man. He says: "The time has come for discontinuing the guardianship of all competent indians and giving even closer attention to the incompetent Indians, that they may the more readily achieve competency. Broadly speaking, a policy of greater liberalism will henceforth prevail in Indian administration to the end that every Indian as soon as he has been determined to be as competent to transact his own business as the average white man, shall receive full control of his property and have all his lands and moneys turned over to him, after which he will no longer be a ward of the government.

"This is a new and far-reaching declaration of policy. It means the dawn of a new era in Indian administration. It means that the competent Indian will no longer be treated as half ward and half citizen. It means reduced appropriations by the government and more self-respect and independence for the Indian. It means the ultimate absorption of the Indian race into the body politic of the nation. It means, in short, the beginning of the end of the Indian problem. In carrying out this policy, I cherish the hope that all real friends of the Indian race will lend their aid and hearty co-operation."

As fast as they become competent the Indians are placed on individual footing, receive fee patents to their lands, and are "turned loose." In pursuance of this policy 10,256 patents have been issued in the last three years, more than were issued in the preceding ten years. No matter whether the Indian gets the franchise or not he is rapidly becoming a factor in the nation. Here are some facts indicating his progress: As to the present-day educational, social, and domestic conditions of the Indians, it appears from Commissioner Sells' report that 61,000 out of 84,000 eligible children are in school; that 43,000 out of 54,000 families live in houses; that there are only 236 polygamous marriages; that 113,000 Indians are churchgoing; that 120,000 speak English; that 81,000 are literate in English; that 191,000 wear citizens' clothing; that 79,000 are citizens, and that 26,000 are voters.

The United States has reserved to them some 60,000,000 acres of land, which if brought together would make a region more than twice as large as the State of New York. It is very conservative to say that this land is worth $363,000,000.

They raise about $11,000,000 worth of crops, sell about $4,000,000 worth of live stock annually without depleting their flocks and herds, gather in about $5,000,000 a year from brother whiteman as landlords, sell about $4,000,000 worth of land a year, receive about $1,700,000 a year as interest on trust funds, $700,000 on treaty account, and, in the last fiscal year, about $20,000,000 more from Indian money, mineral royalties, and hard work, the latter item alone amounting to about $4,000,000.

More than 50,000 adult Indians are now self-supporting and less than 5,000 able-bodied adults receive rations with or without labor equivalent.

In fact, the Indians as a class are now so prosperous that they were able to invest about $25,000,000 in Liberty Loan bonds, or approximately $75 per capita, which is far better than the per capita showing of many of the States, besides investing about $1,000,000 in War-Saving stamps.

Improved on Nature

For a great many years graphite used in making lead pencils was obtained almost exclusively from mines in Cumberland. When the best quality was exhausted (early in the nineteenth century) the manufacturers turned their attention to the utilization of the accumulations of waste from cuttings of the original masses which they finely ground and mixed with varying proportions of clay. In this way they were able to produce pencils of 14 degrees of hardness and softness, making them superior to those formerly made from the entire graphite, which was never uniform in hardness and color.

Waiting for Him.

They were going to have a "literary" one night, and that afternoon, just before leaving school, some mischievous impulse prompted me to put a pin in my seat. I did not come that night, but the intended victim, instead of sitting on it, merely bent it over. The next morning I came to school and slid into my seat with much force (I had forgotten about the pin) and slid into that bent pin. I was so surprised I jumped up and yelled, "It's there yet."

Best of Cooking— with Economy

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove is the perfect and most economical stove.

The reason for its great fuel saving lies in the perfect and complete combustion of every drop of oil. Then, too, you are not wasting fuel by keeping a fire burning when you are not cooking.

The New Perfection provides the hottest flame for cooking—the high, white-tipped blue flame. You can have intense heat instantly by regulating the handle. Further regulation gives you an even blue flame for slow boiling or simmering. Comes in 1, 2, 3 and 4-burner sizes.

For your further convenience—the New Perfection Water Heater—quickly heats running water. It is easily connected to any circulating water system. Simple and very economical.

PROOF THAT STONE GROWS

Rock on California Farm Has Increased in Weight Within the Memory of Settlers.

On the farm of Mr. James Champion, known as the old home place of his father, John Champion, boys used to meet years ago with the elder Champion, and often tossed a round stone, ball fashion, one to another. The same stone now lies in the yard, at the old place, and men now in their eighties often speak of this rock and identify it as the stone they used to toss about to each other.

Today it will weigh about 300 pound and lies near the spot where it has lain for nearly a century. Some of the most substantial old men of Mercer county who are now living, will vouch that this rock has grown from a small stone to its present size since their babyhood days.—Wilmore (Call) Enterprise.

Friendly Enemies.

I am a conductor from a suburb. I boarded a crowded train, but found a seat occupied by one man who monopolized the space at his side by filling it with packages. When I asked him to remove his bundles he suggested I probably would be able to find room elsewhere. But after a disagreeable discussion I finally settled down in the seat. In walked a friend of mine who gave me and my seat mate a nudge and said: "Mr. S., you must shake hands with Mr. E.; you will like him, I am sure. He has just moved and has rented the house next door to you."—Chicago Tribune.

Sister Margit Slachta is the name of the first woman elected recently to the parliament of Hungary. She was formerly a school teacher and for ten years was a member of the Catholic Social Mission society, where she did social work excellently as a professional. She is said to be between thirty-five and thirty-eight years of age and has given her country excellent service, organizing in the whole country the Catholic women who were voting for the first time, and through her work her party became the leading one, having a majority in the house.

Applicants Aplenty.

The other day an Indianapolis high-school teacher had a birthday. In some way the children had discovered that it was coming and since she was very popular many of them decided to give her presents. One of her little freshman boys came in with a huge box of candy. "Oh, Bob," she said, "why I believe I'll have to kiss you for this." Now right behind Bob was a junior boy much larger and more glib of tongue. So immediately he spoke up, "Wait a minute, Miss T. I've got you a present, too."

Powerful Subs.

The submarines of the English "K" class are said to be the fastest and most powerful submersible craft in the world. They are propelled on the surface by steam turbines at a speed of 24 knots, which is about eight knots faster than the speed of ordinary submarines. They are 340 feet long, and displace 2,570 tons. These boats have unusually long periscopes, measuring 30 feet from top to bottom. Their funnels are made to hinge back before the boat dives.

Bell Met With Misfortune.

The new giant bell, "Jeanne d'Arc," destined for Rouen cathedral, met with an accident just after it had left the foundry at Anney, France. It was being drawn by 14 horses through the streets when an axle-tree gave way and the great bell, weighing 20 tons, fell to the ground, obstructing the traffic. The road was cleared sufficiently to allow vehicles to pass some hours afterward, but it took five days to lift the bell.

CAIN WILL RUN FOR CONGRESS

Former Army Man Seeks Republican Nomination in Second District

RESIGNED AS A. L. HEAD

Keene Man Says Military Record to Be Left Out of Campaign—Thinks More Aggressive and Constructive Action by Congress is Needed—Favors Early Declaration of Peace.

KEENE, June 3.—Maj. Orville E. Cain today announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for Congressman from the Second district. Though not entirely unexpected, the announcement was received with pleasure by the many friends of the Cheshire County man, who have been urging him to run.

MAJ. ORVILLE E. CAIN.

Maj. Cain is known throughout the state as Commander of the New Hampshire department of the American Legion, an office which he recently resigned. He enlisted in the National Guard in 1900, served in the Mexican Border campaign, and 18 months active service in France. He was decorated and made an officer of the Black Star of the Legion of Honor of France.

"My army record," says Maj. Cain, "is not to be brought into my political campaign. I will go before the voters on my record as a public servant and business man."

He believes the Republican party should instigate and carry through constructive legislation, and believes in an early declaration of peace, with proper safeguards, that America may give her entire attention to the problems of reconstruction.

Maj. Cain is 51 years old. He has practiced law in Keene since 1898. As solicitor of Cheshire County from 1905 to 1915 he made an enviable record by his vigorous and intelligent administration of his office. In Keene he has served on the board of aldermen and as president of the Common Council. He was mayor of Keene when the troops were called out in 1916.

In the legislative session of 1915 Mr. Cain represented the Tenth district in the state senate.

How a Noted Vet. Gets Rid of Rats—Farmers Head

Dr. H. H. Butler says, "I use RAT-SNAP around my hospitals every three months, whether I see rats or not. It does the work—RAT-SNAP gets them every time. I recommend it to everybody having rats." Don't wait until there is a brood of rats, act immediately you see the first one. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Cram's Store.

"Marguerite, can you cook?" "No, Percival; can you afford to keep a limousine?" "No, dear."

So they did not marry and they lived happily ever after.—Boston Transcript.

Servant Girl Wouldn't Go Into Cellar, Fearing Rats

Mrs. Tepper, Plainfield, N. J., says "Rats were so bad in our cellar the servant girl wouldn't go there. I bought some RAT-SNAP and it cleaned all the rats out." RAT-SNAP destroys rats and mice. Absolutely prevents odors. Comes in cake form, no mixing. Cats or dogs won't touch it. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Cram's Store.

Antrim Locals

FOR SALE—Choice Baled Hay.
Fred L. Proctor adv

Perley Hutchinson has removed his family and household goods to Fitchburg, Mass., where he has secured employment. The tenement in the Wilson house, vacated by him, will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Byron G. Butterfield.

Dr. Charles A. Eastman, author, scholar, lecturer, will give an address at Antrim town hall on Friday evening of this week, his talk being on the customs and life of his people. This will be a very interesting address and all our people will want to hear it.

The Etey sale last Saturday was a very successful one in spite of the rain, and owing to the storm it was impossible to sell all the goods advertised. The balance of the goods will be sold at public auction on the premises on Saturday afternoon, June 19, at 1 o'clock.

Arrangements are being made for a semi public installation of officers of the following orders: Waverly Lodge and Mt. Crochted Encampment of Odd Fellows, of Antrim, and Valley Lodge and North Star Encampment, of Hillsboro. Hand in Hand Lodge of Rebekahs of Antrim, Hope Rebekah Lodge of Hillsboro, and Ephraim Weston Woman's Relief Corps, of Antrim, are invited, and the families of Odd Fellows are included. The program is now being arranged, but the date has not been definitely selected. After the exercises refreshments will be served.

How We Cleared Our Summer Home of Rats, told by Mrs. Perry

"When we opened our seaside home last May, it was alive with rats. They'd gnawed all the upholstery. We cleaned them out in a week with RAT-SNAP. I prefer this rat killer because it comes in cake form, no mixing. Saves dirtying hands and plates." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Cram's Store.

Remember the old fashioned presidential candidate who used to sit on the front porch at home and let the people come to him?

The automobile which has the most cylinders is not always the best one, and the same applies to the platform which has the most planks.

A man who seems to know most about the problem of capital and labor and to do most of the talking about it is the one who never had any capital and never would labor.

Isn't it pathetic that after all these heartbreaking primaries nobody seems to know who will be nominated either at Chicago or Frisco?

Judged by the divorce records, some of the movie queens seem to have as many troubles in real life as they do in reel life.

About Advertising

It costs money to advertise in a paper of circulation and influence in the community. Every business man who seeks to enlarge his trade, recognizes the fact that advertising is a legitimate expense. It is not the cheapest advertising that pays the best. Sometimes it is the highest priced newspaper that brings the largest net profit to the advertiser.

There was quite a mixup of all kinds of vehicles near the railroad crossing late Wednesday afternoon. Someone was moving a house by auto truck and failed to make the short turn immediately, thereby blocking several autos, a couple of one-horse rigs and a mule team, not to mention a fat boy, a house cat, and a few bicycles. Although the truck was delayed over an hour, not a profane word was spoken by the men in charge.
