JOINT INSTALLATION

New Officers and Members Entertain Visitors

An occasion which had been looked forward to with considerable pleasure was the semi-public joint installation of the Odd Fellows lodges of Hillsboro and Antrim, in the town hall, Antrim, on Tuesday evening last. The lodges having a part in the exercises were Valley Lodge and North Star Encampment, of Hillsboro, Waverley Lodge and Mt. Crochted Encampment, of Antrim, whose officers for the ensuing six months were installed in regular form, insofar as the public ceremony is concerned. The Rebekah lodges of each town were invited and in addition the Woman's Relief Corps, of Antrim, were invited guests. Of course the families of all Odd Fellows were included. A company of about three hundred gathered to witness the ceremonies of the occasion.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Reporter's Correspondent Writes Interestingly

THE CAR SHORTAGE

With the harvest season at hand the only relief from the difficult condition with reference to the car shortage rests in the more intensive use of the existing equipment. The railroad program, for which public cooperation is sought, contemplates the following: An average daily minimum movement of freight cars of not less than thirty miles a day; an average loading of thirty tons per car; reduction of bad order cars to a maximum of four percent of total owned; early and substantial reduction in the number of locomotives now unfit for service; more effective efforts to bring about the return of cars to the owner roads.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is in close touch with the railroad plan, and Washington is rather optimistic since it has found that there is a stern determination among railroad operators throughout the country to mount the difficulties that confront them.

NEWSPRINT HAS ADVANCED 500 PERCENT

A current report of the Government Forest Service says that the larger newspaper publishers of the country have been able to keep down the advance in cost of their newsprint to about 200 percent because of their ability to contract in large volume. But the market price, according to the bulletin, has advanced 500 percent since 1915. It is at this price that the small publisher is compelled to buy his paper stock.

Primarily the reason for the advance in paper is due to a wood shortage. In earlier days the paper mills were built in the lumber regions and their pulp wood was a sort of by-product of the saw milling industry. But in most of these regions the saw mills have finished, and they have packed up, burned out, or moved away for some other reason. But the paper mill cannot play the part of "carpet bagger" quite so easily, and as a result the north-eastern part of the United States has become largely dependent upon Canadian wood. Spruce from Minnesota and Canada, for example, is being hauled from 700 to 1200 miles to Wisconsin paper mills. In New York state, where nearly fifty percent of our newsprint is produced, sixty percent of the pulp and paper mills have absolutely no timber supplies of their own. New Hampshire and Maine appear to be the only eastern states that still have raw materials for making paper, and there is a well-grounded suspicion in the paper trade that the day of profiteering in spruce, hemlock, balsam and poplar is pretty well under way.

The big papers, in any event, are certainly eating up the little ones, and their "funny sheets," magazine sections and other irrelevant features add to the tragedy of the proceedings.

AUTOMOBILE PRICES

A rumor in the automobile world to the effect that prices of cars had recently been reduced in Omaha has been found incorrect. Investigation shows that there have been no actual reductions in the prices of new cars, but there is hope in the fact that proposed advances by manufacturers have been temporarily deferred.

The Roosevelt Trail Marking Complete in New Hampshire

Frank A. French has just returned from an inspection of the marking of the Roosevelt International Highway in its course through this state and reports completion of the trail markings. The sign is a wide red band with narrow white bands above and below with the letters "T. R." in black on the red.

These signs may now be seen all the way from Portland, Oregon, to Portland, Maine, and already tourists are making portions of the tour and some this season will take the entire route for their vacation trip. In New Hampshire the route covers a most wonderful section of the state, entering from the West at Littleton and passing out into Maine at Conway. In this course the tourist sees our whole cross section with the big range of mountains and including the marvels of Crawford Notch.

SPAULDING - WILSON

What's the Difference?

From SPAULDING'S letter of announcement:

"Whether we wish it or not, the time has come when we of this Nation must accept the fact that we face international responsibilities which may not be avoided."

"The frank assumption of these responsibilities . . . are, I believe, as indispensable to America as to the rest of the world."

"A short-sighted and provincial policy of national isolation."

"At home as well as abroad, selfish interest challenges selfish interest."

"I believe that the national and local issues of the day are successfully to be met only in a spirit that can and will pass above the bounds of narrowest partisanship."

"For myself, I view party as an instrument and not as an end."

From WOODROW WILSON'S speeches:

"Let them show me how they will prove that . . . They are not absolute, contemptible quitters if they do not see the game through."—At St. Louis.

"We have no choice but to be the servants of the world if we would be our own servants."—At St. Paul.

"We have got to be either provincials or statesmen."—At Minneapolis.

"I hear counsels of selfishness uttered."—At Bismarck, North Dakota.

"I want to read the riot act to anybody who tries to introduce politics."—At Tacoma, Washington.

"What difference does party make?"—At Richmond, Indiana.

Entente Allies Discover They Must Defend Poland Against Russian Bolsheviks.

EAST PRUSSIA THREATENED

King Faisal of Syria Yields to French—Drys Nominate Watkins—Harding is Notified and Cox Declares for Wilson's League Policy—Rail Workers Offered Wage Increase.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

International attention was centered during the week on the Russo-Polish situation, in which the diplomats found plenty to disturb their equanimity. In the first place, the Moscow government, replying to the British note asking if it would arrange an armistice with Poland, rejected in substance the British proposals. The Reds declined to go to London for any peace conference, holding that Great Britain is not impartial, and, in language so sarcastic that it hurt the feelings of the English statesmen, made it clear that they could deal with Poland direct. Their next move was to send a wireless message to Warsaw expressing regret that Poland had seen fit to deal through the allies and suggesting that conversations on peace be conducted between the two governments without consulting or considering outsiders. So far as is known at this writing, the Poles have not replied definitely to this invitation, but a London report said they had been told to apply for an armistice in order to test the sincerity of Moscow.

Meanwhile, the soviet forces opened a general attack all along the line from the Roumanian border to the Pripiet marshes, and though at first the Poles repulsed them in most places, at one point they broke across the border and were fighting on Polish soil. North of the Pripiet the Reds moved rapidly and took Grodno. Their evident objective was Warsaw, and the civilians of that city were preparing to take flight, some already having left. American relief organizations were ready to quit the city, and the Red Cross was shifting part of its headquarters to Cracow.

In their advance through Lithuanian territory the bolsheviks seem to be threatening an invasion of East Prussia, and the German government is preparing to defend that region desperately. Fifty thousand of the best reichswehr troops have been mobilized and Berlin feels confident they can prevent an invasion if they can be maintained near the border. The danger, however, is that as the soviet army draws near the bolshevik elements in other parts of Germany may break out and cause a scattering of those defense troops and leave open to the Russians the way into East Prussia. No doubt Germany will take advantage of the conditions to ask leave to mobilize more of her regular troops, and also it is likely the threat of invasion will bring to light vast stores of concealed arms, including artillery.

Early in the week Ignace Paderewski was made Polish plenipotentiary to Paris and his return to power was taken as evidence that the Poles were willing to make peace with the Russians direct. The musician-statesman was expected to placate Lloyd George and Millerand, Pilsudsky, Polish chief of state, had refused to withdraw his armies to the line specified by Lloyd George, insisting that national safety required the holding of the line of Baranowitz-Pinsk-Dubno.

As a result of the Spa conference Great Britain and France are pledged to support Poland against Russian aggression, and they intend to give this support in the form of arms and munitions; men also will be supplied if this is considered necessary by British and French missions that have just been sent to Warsaw. But the British government is greatly vexed with the Poles. Premier Lloyd George on Wednesday gave voice to this feeling in a statement to the house of commons. He said, "If ever a nation in history has gone war mad, that nation is Poland" and characterized its course as reckless and foolish. This, however, he asserted, does not justify the crushing of the new nation, adding: "The whole fabric of European peace depends on an independent Poland. There is no time for the machinery of the League of Nations to interfere. If the bolsheviks overrun Poland and reach the German frontier, they deprive the allies of the entire fruits of victory." If the Russian bolsheviks decline to come to terms, the allies will give material aid not only to the Poles, but also to Gen. Baron Wrangel and others who are fighting the soviet government.

For the present France's trouble in Syria seems to be over. According to a report from Beirut, King Faisal of Syria has accepted all the terms of General Gouraud's ultimatum and it is believed the French can now occupy the territory assigned them without further attacks. Faisal had been informed that Great Britain would not support him, taking the position that his independence is not inconsistent with a French mandate over Syria. At the time he yielded the French troops were ready to move on Damascus, his capital.

Operations in Anatolia ceased for a time. Kemal Pasha and his nationalists being held in check, but in Thrace there were signs of the outbreak of a new Balkan war. The Greeks, to whom western Thrace was awarded, had not advanced far inland, but according to reports Bulgaria, which claimed the territory, was getting into action against them, and had called the class of 1921 to the colors. The Bulgarian irregulars were helping Jufar Tavar, who, with headquarters at Adrianople, is trying to hold western Thrace for Turkey.

It was a lively week in Ireland. Several British officers were assassinated, at least one town was looted and partly burned, and there was desperate fighting in Belfast in which a number of persons were killed. The opposing forces in that city were Sinn Fein and Orangemen employees in the shipyards.

Bloody battles in the vicinity of Peking marked the progress of the civil war in China early in the week, and then came the news that the rebels had been defeated and had given up the struggle against the government.

The prohibition party met in national convention in Lincoln, Neb., and rather surprised itself by nominating William J. Bryan for president at the first session. The nomination was made by acclamation and came after a stampee of the delegates started by the adoption of a resolution "tendering" the honor to the Nebraskan. On Thursday Bryan absolutely declined, so the convention named Rev. Aaron S. Watkins of Germantown, O., and gave the second place to D. Leigh Colvin of New York.

Formal opening of the Republican presidential campaign came with the notification of Senator Harding that he was the party's standard bearer and the delivery of his speech of acceptance. This took place in his home town, Marion, where most of the big party leaders and many thousands of others had assembled. Here are some of the salient points in the senator's speech:

"I believe in party government as distinguished from personal government, individual, dictatorial, autocratic or what not."

"Our vision includes more than a chief executive. We believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the vice president, second official of the republic, shall be asked to participate."

"I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

"No surrender of rights to a world council or its military alliance, no assumed mandatory however appealing, ever shall summon the sons of this republic to war. Their supreme sacrifice shall only be asked for America and its call of honor."

"We approve collective bargaining." "Gross expansion of currency and credits has depreciated the dollar. We will attempt intelligent and courageous deflation."

"When competition—natural, fair, compelling competition—is suppressed, whether by law, compact or conspiracy we halt the march of progress, silence the voice of aspiration and paralyze the will for achievement."

"The human element comes first, and I want the employers in industry to understand the aspirations, the convictions, the yearnings of millions of American wage earners."

"War establishes its higher standards for wages and they abide. I wish the higher wage to abide, on one explicit condition—that the wage-earner will give full return for the wage received."

Governor Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt began the week with a lengthy conference with President Wilson in the White House. After the meeting it was formally announced that the president and the Democratic nominees are in full accord on the League of Nations issue. Governor Cox said:

"We are agreed as to the meaning and sufficiency of the Democratic platform and the duty of the party in the face of the threatened bad faith to the world in the name of America. His thought is still of the war and the pledges we gave to those who sacrificed. What he promised, I shall, if elected, endeavor with all my strength to give."

The president announced that he had found, what he already knew, that Governor Cox and he were "absolutely at one with respect to the great issue of the League of Nations and that he is ready to be the champion in every respect of the honor of the nation and the secure peace of the world."

On Tuesday the Democratic national committee met in Columbus, O., to prepare for the campaign. Mr. Cox's choice for chairman was Edmund H. Moore, his pre-convention manager, but Mr. Moore absolutely declined. The governor then asked the election of former Congressman George White of Marietta, and the committee, most of whose members were said to favor the retention of Homer S. Cummings in the place, yielded and named Mr. White. To comply with the rules laid down by the San Francisco convention, Mr. Moore resigned from the committee and Mr. White was elected in his place. Governor Cox is to be notified on August 7 and Roosevelt two days later.

Whether or not to accept a wage increase of $600,000,000 yearly, including about $140,000,000 back pay, was the proposition put up to the rail workers of the country last week by the United States railway labor board. The long awaited award was announced in Chicago to the representatives of eighteen brotherhoods and unions, and it really did not please them at all, as they demanded approximately twice as much. Some of the members of the grand council were not empowered to accept the award finally, so a referendum vote of the two million rail workers becomes necessary. The chiefs of one union, the Order of Railway Telegraphers, rejected the award, and they called for a referendum vote on strike.

Of course the railway executives at once began looking for means to pay the advanced wages, and they already have worked out a schedule of increased rates, both freight and passenger, for presentation to the interstate commerce commission. The passenger increase asked is from one half to one per cent per mile. That for freight will undoubtedly be heavy.

In the death of William K. Vanderbilt in Paris one of America's leading financiers and sportsmen passed. He inherited a large share of the vast estate of his father, and is believed to have left a fortune of between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000. Despite his wealth he worked his way up from the bottom in the railroad business.

Another death of the week, interesting but not important, was that of Joachim, youngest son of the former kaiser. Distressed by financial difficulties, he committed suicide in Berlin.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

BOLSHEVIST SEEDS OF POISON

Avowed Object of the Leaders of the Movement is to Stir Up Hatred of Law and Order Everywhere.

Article XXVIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

"The program of the communist party (bolsheviks) is the program not only of the liberation of the proletariat of one country. It is the program of the liberation of the proletariat of all countries; it is the program of international revolution. The overthrow of imperialist governments by means of armed revolt is the road to the international dictatorship of the working class." In these words, Bucharin, accredited and recognized bolshevik propagandist, set forth the object of the communists at Moscow in 1918.

Lenine, in the same year, in Petrograd, declared "that the chief task which we set ourselves at the very beginning of the war was to turn the imperialist war into a civil war." His aim was to force upon Russia Communism, and to summon the discontented of the world to rise in revolution against their governments. All existing governments were vile, lenine said, and they must be overthrown. Political action, parliamentary methods, peaceful voting, were worse than useless. They were inventions of the devil, Capitalism. Force must be used; the workers must arm themselves and fight; the world could not come to the light of freedom and justice except through blood. Lenine was for the great "red baptism." It alone could cleanse the world and make it a decent place in which to live. He wrote the aim and object of bolshevism into the soviet constitution when he defined the fundamental problem as being the "victory of socialism in all lands." He blazoned the war cry on the coat of arms of the bolshevik government in these words: "Workers of the World, Unite."

The bolshevik government has been insistent and persistent in its propaganda, collecting and pointing out the causes for discontent in other lands. It has been a propaganda of hate. It has scattered, broadcast, poison seeds in the soil of unrest. It has played to class feeling. It has appealed to the lowest and worst in men. It has written and spoken of the "Great War" as the enterprise of capital. It has charged upon the terrible shedding of blood to capitalistic imperialism. It has listed the ill-effects of the war and charged them not to the war, but to Capitalism. It has pointed to the poverty and the disorganization of the world, directly caused by the war, and attributed all of these unhappy results of a four year struggle with autocracy, not to the war but to the system of so-called "Bourgeois Government." It has multiplied, magnified and intensified unrest. It hopes to bring about a great world foment which will destroy all government except the government of the proletariat, the soviet plan. Its propaganda has caused many of the people of the world to think that they are still fighting the regimes of the czars, and that reactionary governments everywhere are conspiring to bring about their downfall and re-establish the reign and rule of despots in Russia. It does not make conspicuous the fact that the czar is dead and that his regime has passed forever.

Lenine Without Tolerance.

Lenine declares anyone and every one who does not accept his gospel of world revolution. He is particularly bitter towards socialists who are opposed to his program. Writing of "the military program of the proletariat revolution" he concludes his article in the November "Class Struggle" for 1919: "Whoever, in view of this last war, is not willing to carry out this demand, let him be good enough to refrain from uttering large words about the international revolutionary democracy, about the social revolution and about the war against wars."

Of those who have dared to denounce militarism and demand disarmament Lenine has written: "What will the proletariat women do to prevent this? Merely denounce all wars and militarism? Merely demand disarmament? Never shall the women of an oppressed and revolutionary class resign themselves to so despicable a role. On the contrary, they will say to their sons: 'You will soon be grown up. You will have a gun. Take it and learn how to use it—not in order to fight your brothers, as is the practice in this war of plunder, but in order to fight the bourgeois of your own country; in order to put an end to misery and wars, not by means of kind wishes, but by overthrowing and disarming the bourgeoisie!'"

The third "International" was called together to organize the movement against the peace of the world. It met at Moscow from March 2 to March 6, 1919; it adopted a "manifesto" which was signed by Lenine and Trotsky, the leading spirits of the congress of the communist international.

This "Manifesto" has been sent all over the world. It makes no bones about the plan of the bolsheviks to incite the world to disorder. On the contrary, it boasts that this is its mission. Under the caption "The Way to Victory" the manifesto declares: "The revolutionary era compels the proletariat to make use of the means of battle which will concentrate its entire energies, namely, mass action, with its logical resultant, direct conflict with the governmental machinery in open combat. All other methods, such as revolutionary use of bourgeois parliamentarism, will be of only secondary significance."

The "manifesto" further proclaims the "First International" foresaw the future development and pointed the way; the "Second International" gathered together and organized the proletariat; the "Third International" is the international of open mass action of the revolution, the international of Deeds. The work of the "Third International" is mapped out in the "Manifesto" in these words: "The task of the international communist party is now to overthrow this order (present governments) and to erect in its place the structure of the socialist world order. We urge the working men and women of all countries to unite under the communist banner, the emblem under which the first great victories have already been won."

"Proletarians of all lands! In the war against imperialistic barbarity, against monarchy, against the privileged classes, against the bourgeois state and bourgeois property, against all forms and varieties of social and national oppression—UNITE!"

All Urged to Unite.

"Under the standard of the Workers' Councils, under the banner of the Third International, in the revolutionary struggle for power and the dictatorship of the proletariat, proletarians of all countries, UNITE!" I have quoted these excerpts from an edition of the "Manifesto" printed in Chicago. The copy in my possession contains the name and address of the printing company. There is an introduction to this document. It is unsigned. A few extracts from this introduction are important. Commenting on the "Manifesto," the introduction says: "It will soon become the basis of international working class action, and will become the lightning that will rend the clouds and fogs that now envelop the workers of the world."

"Comment on this manifesto would be useless, superfluous. Its magnificent language speaks the message a suffering world is eagerly waiting to hear."

"It will assist the socialist movement everywhere into the path of uncompromising, revolutionary action that alone can usher in the triumph of International Socialism." If the publication of this manifesto and the introductory comment to it is not treason, then Benedict Arnold was a patriot. It is a conspiracy against the peace health and happiness, as well as the lives and property, the liberty and security, of every man, woman and child in the United States. It is a call to lawlessness, organized crime. It might be well for the people to give less time and thought to partisan political wrangling and set themselves to silencing sedition. It should be an easy matter to discover the author of this un-American, inhuman and criminal foreword to the "Manifesto." The publishers and distributors should be brought to the bar and made answer. Let us kill this menace by destroying the seed. If we do, we will save ourselves much trouble later. By such a course we will allay unrest.

Lenine has repeatedly said and written that the bolshevik government cannot last in Russia alongside of the present governments of the world. In other words, bolshevism cannot live in a world of democracy. The greater truth is that democracy cannot live in the same world with bolshevism. Bolshevism in theory is based on the ideal of socialism, communism; in methods of the bolshevism of Lenine is mass violence, supreme autocracy. (Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Ellen Richards, Chemist.

Intuition is the headlight put in woman's forehead uniquely for her when woman lost common sense in Eden. Just a few females have been able to clutch at the skirts of common sense, and to retain it hard pan usefulness. These have plunged into hard pan studies, and in the crucible have evolved some good things for the world. Among the number stands Ellen H. S. Richards, chemist, born in 1842. Died in 1911, a skilled instructor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Not only was Ellen Richards a chemist, but she was a pure food expert. Her books and pamphlets are valuable. Among their titles are these: "The Chemistry of Cooking," "Conservation by Sanitation," "The Cost of Cleanliness," and "Home Economics." All honor to you, Ellen Richards, who pursued the hard paths of practical output unadorned by the jessamines of romance.

Honey Yields Higher.

The average yield of surplus honey in 1919 was 50 pounds to a colony of honey bees, as estimated by the bureau of crop estimates, United States department of agriculture. This is considerably above the average of 45 pounds in 1918, and of 41.6 pounds for the five years 1913-1917. The relative proportions in which the honey of the last two years was marked are indicated by 59 for extracted honey, 51 for comb honey, and 10 for bulk honey. About one-third of the product goes to "outside" markets.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE NEWS

The cigarmakers of Manchester have been granted a two dollar increase per thousand on hand made cigars, one dollar per thousand on mold cigars and ten cents per thousand increase for packing cigars.

Surferman R. H. Ripley of the Isle of Shoals coast guard station has received official communication from the commandant for his courageous act of June 25 when he plunged into the surf and rescued T. W. Woodruff, a fellow-guardman who was drowning, after being stricken with cramps.

Funeral services were held in Portsmouth for Lt. Paul Carroll Dennett, M. C. A. C., U. S. army a former Boston doctor, who died in France, October 1918, and whose body arrived under military escort and was taken to the state armory, where it lay in state. Dr. Dennett was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Dennett of Portsmouth.

Rose Clark, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clark of Portsmouth, was drowned in a peculiar way. She secured a small piece of ice from the back of an ice cart and, as it was covered with packing sawdust, she went to the pond to wash it off. While reaching over the water, in some manner she fell in and sank immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wheeler, who passed through Manchester recently, about three jumps in advance of a score or more of deputy sheriffs, constables and police officers on a spectacular flight from St. Johnsbury, Vt., maintained their lead over the minions of the law until July 19, when they were arrested in Missouri. The couple will be brought back to face a series of charges of forgery, larceny, horse stealing, and child abandonment.

A Newsboy's Investment
A Keene newsboy recently received 1,000 per cent on his investment which is far above that usually received in Wall street. While peering through a grating over a light well, the "newsy" saw a dime at the bottom of the well. He sent his companion after a long stick while he hurried to the nearest store and purchased a ball of gum for a penny. After chewing it several minutes he attached the "cud" to the end of the stick, and "presto."

Sheriff Lord Opposed by Veteran
Sheriff Edward H. Lord, who was next in authority to County Solicitor Roy M. Pickard in conducting the investigation of the Dean murder case and who has been criticised for his failure to locate the murderer, will have opposition if he decides to run for the office at the primaries on September 7. Bernard J. Gilbo, former army lieutenant, in France during the world war, announced his candidacy for sheriff of Cheshire County on the Republican ticket.

The New Hampshire state board of education held a two days' meeting in Concord for the consideration of several matters of importance and to hear reports. Reports to the members of the board on "The Normal Schools and the Teaching Training Problem" were made.

Among the matters under consideration are: The normal schools and the teacher training problem, district finances, supervisory matters, the school year—(a) recommended reductions, (b) recommended transfers; delinquent districts.

Reappointed Everett as Commissioner

Textile Workers to Convene in October

The date of the convention of the United Textile Workers of America, which was to have been held in Manchester in September has been changed to Oct. 4, that the American delegates to the British trades council session next month will have time to return and report at the convention.

Wins Scholarship

Miss Eleanor Frances Batchelder, honor pupil of the class of 1920 of Portsmouth High school has received notice that she has been awarded the Valentine Smith scholarship at New Hampshire State college. Miss Batchelder led her class during her senior year and won two of the Haven gold medals for general excellence.

Plan for Annual Convention
Plans are being made for the annual convention of the state firemen's association which will be held in Concord in September and every effort will be made to make the event a memorable one as it will be the first time in many years that Concord has had the pleasure of entertaining the association.

Works for Company Nearly Sixty Years

A period of service with one concern spanning 60 years, broken by about three and one-fourth years of military service during and after the Civil War is the record of William Riley Clark, veteran gate tender at the Central ave. entrance of the Cochebeco cotton mills, Dover.

"Riley," as he is generally known to his friends, has held this post of gate tender nearly 37 years.

FARM PROPERTY SHOWS DECLINE

Census Returns From Strafford County Indicate General Falling Off There

Complete returns from Strafford county on the east side of the state the first in New Hampshire to return exact figures upon which to base comparative New Hampshire farm values in the census of 1920, show that agricultural property in that county has decreased in value to an extent which may be justly classed as alarming from the point of view of those who have the farming interests of the state at heart.

While city realty has jumped in appraised valuation by leaps and bounds the land of the farmer in Strafford county, which is his stock in trade and only support has fallen 22.5 per cent in area and has increased in value only 9.6 per cent.

The number of farms actively cultivated in 1920 is 1,420 as against 1,831 in 1910. This of course indicates that the farms still being operated have increased in value more than the total appreciation of 9.6 per cent would show but the fact that active acreage in the county has decreased is the true cause of alarm in the figures of the census bureau.

A corresponding decrease in all animals is reported in a table which was made public by the census bureau and which follows:

Domestic Animals	Jan. 1, 1920	April 15, 1910
Farms reporting domestic animals.....	1,201	1,562
Animals reported:
Horses.....	2,124	2,592
Mules.....	6	8
Cattle.....	38,445	96,600
Sheep.....	951	2,075
Swine.....	2,140	2,184

Hold Two Men for Keene Auto Theft

William F. Kennedy of North Attleboro, Mass., and William Greve of Walpole, Mass., in Keene municipal court pleaded not guilty of the larceny of an automobile from C. B. Leach in that city on July 15. The pair were held in $500 each for the action of the grand jury of the October term of superior court. The automobile was recovered.

New York Firm Buys Tilton Optical Plant

The Tilton Optical Co. has changed hands and is now owned by the General Lens Co. of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., one of the largest optical concerns in the country. George Clement, formerly of Tilton and recently with the General Lens Co. at Mt. Vernon, is in charge. The new manager will be Harold A. Woodward, formerly with the Tilton Optical Co.

Calls $20,000 Jewel Loss Mere Sentiment

Miss Laura Walker, formerly leading lady in a theatrical company which was in Manchester for some months, has now arrived at so solid a pinnacle of fame and fortune that she can contemplate philosophically the loss of $20,000 in jewels. According to the New York papers, when Miss Walker was informed of the theft of her gems she declared the loss to be "chiefly sentimental." The burglar smashed the door of the actress' apartment and removed the loot from a closet where it had been left in the owner's absence.

Two Estimates Submitted.

Only two bids submitted for the construction of the proposed new Amoskeag bridge were opened.

The United Construction Co. of Albany, N. Y., offers to build a modern bridge across the Merrimack river on the site of the old bridge for $242,700, plus $33,300 "to furnish and place the reinforced concrete and woodblock pavement and re-enforced concrete walk and ornamental lamp posts."

The Connors Bros. Construction Co. of New York offers to build a considerably smaller bridge, using wood instead on concrete and steel in some places, for $152,000.

The specifications laid down by the board of mayor and aldermen call for a steel bridge to be built with an appropriation of $160,000.

Had Large Industrial Connections

Benjamin Ames Kimball, railroad chief, banker and distinguished son of New Hampshire, known as the "Russell Sage" of this state and simply as "Ben" by his large circle of friends who died last week, in his beautiful summer home, Kimball Castle, on the shore of Lake Winnepesaukee, was at the time of his death president and director of the Mechanics National Bank, the Concord & Montreal Railroad, the Pemigewasset Valley & Mt. Washington Railroad, the New Boston, Nashua & Acton Railroads, the Cushman Electric Company, the Beecher Falls Company, the Concord Light & Power Company, the Boston & Maine Railroad and the Wm. B. Durgin Company. He was also trustee of the New Hampshire Orphan's Home and of the New Hampshire Historical Society.

Legislation to Aid Disabled Workers

A letter has been received from the National Association of Manufacturers to the effect that Congress has recently passed a law providing for the vocational re-education and re-habilitation of persons disabled in industry, and their return to other employment.

The amount due New Hampshire is $5000. The matter has been brought to the attention of Gov. John H. Bartlett.

Balaam: the Compromiser

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Assistant Dgan, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—And God's anger was kindled because he went; and the angel of the Lord stood in the way for an adversary against him.—Num. 22:22.

A great preacher said: "There is nothing like the first glance we get at duty, before there has been any special pleading of our affections or inclinations. Duty is never uncertain at first. It is only when we have got involved in the mazes and sophistries of wishing that things were otherwise that they are, that they are, that they are."

seems indistinct. Considering a duty is often only explaining it away. Deliberation is often only dishonest. God's guidance is plain when we are true."

This principle is well illustrated in the case of Balaam, who was a diviner, dwelling on the Euphrates, and having some knowledge of the true God. When Israel was encamped in the plains of Moab, on the way to Canaan, Balak the king of the Moabites sent for Balaam to curse Israel, offering him great rewards for his divination.

When the princes of Moab came to Balaam, he inquired of Jehovah as to what he should do. The answer of the Lord was plain: "Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people; for they are blessed."

Balaam's Great Mistake.

Balak, however, was in such distress that he sent more princes, even more honorable than the first, with promises of great honor for Balaam if he would only curse Israel. It was just at this point that Balaam erred. The will of God in the premises had already been made clear, and the second invitation from Balak should have met with an instant No! Instead of this, Balaam replied: "Now, therefore, I pray you, tarry ye here this night, that I may know what the Lord will say unto me more." What more did he need?

It is evident that Balaam did not lack light, any more than we usually lack it in matters of duty. It was because of base motives entering in, making him unwilling to walk in the light vouchsafed to him, that he sought from God a reversal of the directions already given. Avarice and ambition overpowered him. His eye was on the rewards of divination in the hands of Balak's princes, and his imagination was kindled by the promise of great honor at Balak's court.

Yet it is to be noted that even while wavering as to his duty, he spoke great swelling words of integrity: "If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the word of the Lord my God, to do less or more." Yet he went forth to tease God, if we may so speak, for a reversal of his decree.

God's Permissive Will.

And now a thing happens which should be marked well. The Lord apparently reverses his orders and says: "If the men come to call thee, rise up, and go with them; but yet the word that I shall say unto thee, that shalt thou do." Had the unchangeable God really changed his attitude in the matter? To ask the question is to answer it. No, we have illustrated here the distinction between God's directive will, which had bidden him not to go, and his permissive will, which allowed him to have his own way. Doubtless Balaam was happy now and felt confident he could secure the rewards of divination without doing anything contrary to Jehovah's word.

He soon discovered that those who follow their own lusts, rather than the will of God, come to grief. First, an angel with a drawn sword met him in the way. We are reminded how the Lord met Moses and sought to kill him for some disobedience (Ex. 4:24), and how Jonah ran into a dreadful storm when fleeing from Jehovah. The way of the transgressor is still hard. Again even the ass Balaam bestrode found voice to rebuke him. Every bush becomes an officer to the criminal, and nature, animate and inanimate, has tongues with which to rebuke the guilty soul.

Balaam would have turned back at this stage, but alas, we cannot always turn back; even if forgiven we may suffer the consequences of a wrong choice. The angel said: "Go with the men, but only the word that I shall speak unto thee, that thou shalt speak."

The Folly of Disobedience.

What was the outcome? Instead of pleasing Balak by cursing Israel, he displeased him by blessing them. Finally, he seems to have corrupted Israel by means of the Midianitish women and was slain by the Israelites along with other enemies of God (Num. 31:8). He stands pilloried in Holy Writ as a man who sought the wages of unrighteousness and who cast a stumbling block before God's people (II Peter 2:15; Jude 11; Revelation 2:14).

HOT WEATHER Hits the Stomach Hardest

Chicago, Ill.—Hot weather upsets the strongest stomach and causes serious trouble for the weak ones, so word is now going out to thousands of eatonic users that they should, during this hot weather, be on the safe side and take one eatonic tablet about half an hour before meals, as well as after eating. Do this and keep the excess acids and poisonous gases from forming in stomach and bowels. Eatonic acts quickly; it will help the appetite and take away the hot-weather, feverish, thirsty feeling from mouth and stomach, because it takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases and carries them out of the body and, of course, when the cause of the trouble is removed, there can be no bad feeling. Eatonic is like a bit of candy, and is recommended to all as a safe, sure remedy these hot days for stomach and bodily troubles, caused from overeating and drinking cold things. Adv.

Antrim Wins from Troy

The Troy Baseball Team came to Antrim last Saturday and as usual met with overwhelming defeat at the hands of the local team. They were outclassed in every way from the first and there never was any doubt as to who would win the game. It was not an especially exciting contest Antrim did not work very hard to make the score read 8 to 1, in spite of the fact that they used a number of substitute players.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

There being a leak in the water pipe which is being repaired to-day, necessitating a shut-off of the water and the loss of power to run our newspaper press, we are compelled to run our papers early in the morning. This action necessitates leaving out some local news and also to omit a few changes of advs., very much to our regret. We feel sure, as this is the only way out of a difficulty which no one is to blame for, that our action will be approved.

Earnest-Work Brings Success.

No class of men have a monopoly of opportunity. History is filled with records of the poor man's progress. As the race is not always to the swift, so is success not always to the naturally talented. It's the man who trains the talents he has who rises above his fellows. How often have we seen the man whom the neighbors all looked upon as a genius flash into a temporary prominence soon to give place to the ordinary but tireless worker who substituted ceaseless effort and constant pains for special gifts. The fact is men of exceptional talents often lean upon them and cease to make real efforts to improve. You will find them in middle life where they were in youth.
Often they are disappointed and grouchily creatures criticizing the efforts of others who attempt on mender talents to do what they ought to have done. They have made no progress in developing their own personality.

Joy in Winning Success.

The training of personality is often a matter of compulsion. Men shun loads and dodge responsibilities whenever they can. They covet ease and wealth and try taking the shortest road to it. That may land them there and it may not. Usually men have to rise through struggle. That has a way of making men turn to themselves for what they get. Others are busy with the same job and they can't give help to anyone. As men learn to do they develop power to do and eventually the love of doing takes possession of them. It's not just a matter of poetry, but it's according to fact.
There's no joy like that of conscious success and it grows with what is done.

Gave Him the Snub.

I was sore at a certain boy at school and when I walked by him in the hall always put my head high. One day when I was going home at noon I met him in the hall with a big bunch of boys. I gave him the snub and put my head up high. I didn't see the steps. I fell all the way down, and to my mortification this boy came and picked me up.—Exchange.

Big Supply of Yellow Pine.

In the southern states there is a yellow pine area of about 124,000,000 acres. Fully stocked and carefully forested this will produce about 70 cubic feet an acre a year, or more than 27,500,000,000 board feet a year.

Reducing the Surplus.

"Equal suffrage is a serious matter in England when the number of women entitled to vote far exceeds that of the men."
"Oh, they have removed that danger."
"How so?"
"No woman can vote who will not acknowledge that she is not under thirty."

PATHOS IN PLEAS

More Than Humor in Samples of Baboo Writing

Communications Evidently Composed Under Stress—Proposal of Marriage Can Only Be Classed as Remarkable.

Serpents, baboons, tigers and other dangerous and disturbing creatures have not infrequently interfered with the work of progress and improvement in India. The distracted telegram of a baboo station master, asking for instructions in the unpleasant emergency of "Uger dancing on platform," has long been a stock anecdote. He was certainly excusable for being rather upset in his mind and in his English.

The recent plea of a baboo office clerk, addressed to the head of the firm whose son, a confirmed dog-lover, had been recently put in charge, had less to justify its urgency—yet there are many who will sympathize.

"If this office will be continuously infested by sprightly canine with penchant for eating legs," he wrote, "how shall work be performed to honor's satisfaction? I beseech with honor relegate the friend of man to house and home, where noxious behavior will be suitably admired."

The gentleman who reports this choice gem adds another, less recent, but equally characteristic:

"Office cat, by reason of rats, daily growing lean," he notified his superior. "Will superintendent please increase the contingent allowance for her return to stoutness?"

Here is a fine example of baboo, and a proposal of marriage, too:

"Dear sir—It is with faltering penmanship that I write to have communication with you about the prospective condition of your damsel offspring.

"For some remote time to past a secret passion has been firing my bosom internally with loving for your daughter. I have navigated every channel in the magnitude of my extensive jurisdiction to cruelly smother the growing love-knot that is being constructed in my within side, but the timid lamp of affection trimmed by Cupid's productive hands still nourishes my love-sick heart. Needless would it be for me to numerically extemporize the great conflagration that has been generated in my head and heart. During the region of rightness my intellectual cranium has been entangled in thoughtful attitude after my beloved consort. Nocturnal slumberlessness has been the infirmity which has besieged my now degenerate constitution. My educational capabilities have abandoned me, and I now cling to those lovely tresses of your much-coveted daughter like a mariner shipwrecked on the rock of love. As to my scholastic caliber, I was recently ejected from Calcutta university. I am of lofty and original lineage and of independent incomes, and hoping that having debated this proposition in your preoccupied mind you will concordantly corroborate in espousing your female progeny to my tender bosom and thereby acquire me into your family circle. Your dutiful son-in-law."

Move for Sound Currency.

How the great volume of European currency, unsecured by gold or real estate, is to be reduced is illustrated by what is taking place in Czecho-Slovakia now, says the Milwaukee Journal. This is one of the new states carved out of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. It inherited from the old empire its share of inflated war money—more than 8,000,000,000 crowns, worth in the old days about 20 cents each, but whose present value is around one cent. Czecho-Slovakia realizes that its money must have more value. So in the recent reorganization of its financial system all of the old money was called in and new money issued.

But the volume of new money is 38 per cent less than the old, and the state cannot increase this except by providing adequate security (gold, silver, bonds, commercial paper, warehouse receipts, etc.) upon which to base the issue. Further, plans have been made to withdraw from circulation another 1,500,000,000 crowns.

Girls Invade the Navy.

And now the women want to join the navy, too, observes the Tulsa World.

Officers of the local recruiting station received the shock of their lives lately when two fair ladies of this city applied at the station for enlistment in the navy. They declared that they wanted to see the world and that they considered the navy as the best place for their pursuit as Uncle Sam paid all the traveling expenses.

When Chief Roth told them that no yeomanettes were being enlisted now as there is no war on, they left the office, saying that they would be back just as soon as another war broke out.

Psychology Again to the Rescue.

"Clothes do not make the man," remarked the ready-made philosopher. "Let us hope for the best," rejoined Miss Cayenne. "Perhaps some of the society lads who are putting on overalls will be psychologically influenced to attempt a regular day's work."

English Like O. Henry's Works.

O. Henry is a favorite author in England. The English publishers of his works recently reported that the total sales through them amounted to 800,000 copies.

SETTLED QUESTION OF HAIR

After Experience With Kerosene, Captain Hopkins Had Not Any Further Worry About It.

Baldness is a condition the threat of which will frequently stir men of even the most dormant vanity. Hair tonics have netted fortunes for their inventors and there are countless remedies of the old housewife, some of which, such as the application of kerosene, make the writer, at least, feel that the disease might be preferable to the cure. The sea captain John D. Whidden tells of in his "Ocean Life in the Old Sailing Ship Days," certainly discovered to his sorrow one of the possible results of such a "cure."

Captain Hopkins was giving a dinner to some of the other ship captains and their wives who were in the harbor of Bahia at the same time with him. As the cabin of the captain's brig was small, the table was laid under awnings on top of the cabin. The guests arrived and dispersed about under the awnings to enjoy themselves until dinner was served. Captain Hopkins, who was a general favorite, after a few minutes went below, "presumably to put a few finishing touches to his appearance." The captain, who was "a small man, with a quaint, seamed, whiskerless face," was troubled about his thinning hair and, after trying all sorts of tonics, some one had told him that "kerosene oil, well rubbed in, would cause a healthy growth when everything else had failed." Captain Hopkins tried it and came to have great faith in it, "going around with his head glistening, and an odor distilling from him like a Pennsylvania oil derrick." Down in his cabin, now, he proceeded to give a fresh application of the kerosene.

Suddenly the people on deck were startled by a yell, "and the next instant the head of old Hopkins appeared above the companionway, blazing like a giant candle. The ladies screamed, while one or two captains caught up buckets and, dipping up salt water over the brig's side, deluged the captain's head, extinguishing him in a moment, but leaving him as bald as an egg, although beyond a few blisters he was not seriously hurt." Captain Hopkins, it turned out had lighted a lamp and somehow brought the match in contact with his head.

Concentration of Wealth.

In substantiation of the contention that very much of the national wealth is finding its way into a few private hands, Congressman Henry T. Rainey, in the house of congress, made the following statements, based on statistics of the federal income tax bureau:

"There are two men in the United States whose income last year was over $10,000,000. There are five men in the United States whose income last year was over $5,000,000 apiece. In 1914, before the war started, there were 60 men whose annual incomes were over $1,000,000 apiece. Last year there were 248 whose incomes were over $1,000,000 apiece. In 1914 there were 114 men whose incomes were between $500,000 and $1,000,000 apiece. Last year there were 405 men whose incomes reached this immense sum. In 1914 there were 147 men whose incomes were between $300,000 and 400,000 apiece.

"Today there are 400 men who enjoy that large income. In 1914 there were 130 men whose incomes exceeded $250,000, and was under $300,000. Now there are 350 who enjoy that income. In 1914 there were 233 men with an income between $200,000 and $250,000. Now there are 750 men who are enjoying that income. In 1914 there were 400 men whose incomes exceeded $150,000 and was under $200,000. Now there are 1,300 men who enjoy that income."

A Wilderness Establishment.

Sam Cook is the keeper of a stopping place at Rocky Lake on the main winter trail in from the Pas in Manitoba to the Flin Flon mining country. He supplies shelter for man and beast—but no provender. Horse and dog teams transport their own feed. For the human travelers the Cook establishment provides dishes, water and fire only, the visitors doing their own cooking. If there is any food left, the travelers usually leave it for their host. Cook keeps a set of books of a sort and these show that since November last 1,600 freight teams, that is, horse-drawn outfits, and 1,500 dog teams have passed his place, and 932 men used his roof as shelter overnight. Cook collects 25 cents for each traveler that uses his cooking utensils. He says that business is looking so good as the result of the mining development that he is going to erect a much larger stopping place this summer, including a stable capable of giving shelter to 100 horses.

He Came Back.

I am employed in an attorney's office. One afternoon he was leaving for his golf club and not wanting to miss his train by waiting to lunch, sent me for some sandwiches, writes a correspondent. When I returned the switchboard operator told me he had left and apparently forgot the sandwiches. So I ate them. I had just finished eating them when he returned for his sandwiches. What followed was my most embarrassing moment.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What is Taking Place Around

The yacht races create some interest throughout this section, but a whole lot of enthusiasm on a subject of this kind so far away from the salt water is not very apparent. While our interest is naturally on this side of the big pond we feel that the best boat will win.

What a lot of time and thought the opposition is putting into the fight to beat Hon. George H. Moses for Senator in the Primaries. Yet not a single statement is being made regarding business ability but that Senator Moses can match it, and in addition he has the experience which is worth all else combined. Why change?

Miss Annie Bock of Los Angeles, formerly an equal suffrage leader, in a letter to W. K. Anderson, representative in the lower house of the Tennessee legislature, urges him not to support ratification of the suffrage amendment.

Suffrage, she says, coarsens and cheapens women. She expresses her regret at her former activity in its behalf, saying that since suffrage has been granted there has been an alarming increase in immorality, divorce and murder in California.

"I Wouldn't Go Camping Without Rat-Snap," Says Ray White

ROYAL PALM STATE PARK

ROYAL PALM AND SPANISH MOSS

Royal Palm State park in Florida is a "thing of beauty" and "a joy forever." Paradise key is its old-time name. It is an island in the heart of the Everglades. From a biological view it is almost unique, in that it presents a remarkable example of a subtropical jungle within the United States in which primeval conditions of animal and plant life remain unchanged by man. In other Everglades keys and keys along the Florida coast original conditions have been changed by forest fires, by the clearing of forests and by the digging of canals. Through these agencies the original physical conditions have been affected in various ways; moreover, aquatic animals and plants have invaded and found a foothold. Paradise key is also remarkable as a meeting place of many temperate and tropical animals and plants. It offers a virgin field for students of many branches of natural history.

And last—and not least—Paradise key does not "blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air." It is accessible to all nature-lovers and can be reached by automobile highways that run directly into the park.

Why, then is not Paradise key a national park? Perhaps it should be. Anyway, to the Florida State Federation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is due the fact that Paradise key is now Royal Palm State park instead of merely Paradise key, an island in the Everglades. There has long been an appreciation of Paradise key by discriminating nature-lovers and spasmodic efforts had been made previous to 1915 to get the Florida legislature to set it aside as a state park. Then the federated club women of Florida took hold in earnest, under the leadership of Mrs. W. S. Jennings, president of the state federation. The club women made an aggressive campaign and in 1915 the legislature set aside the key, together with an adjacent area of swampland, as a public park. This, with an additional tract afterward donated, has received the name of Royal Palm State park. It contains about three square miles. The club women also erected a building and installed a park warden. The automobile highway from Homestead and Florida City to East Cape passes close to the park and a spur runs directly into the park.

Royal Palm State park lies in Dade county, about 37 miles directly southwest of Miami. Paradise key owes its preservation in primeval conditions to its isolation and to a deep nearby slough, which never becomes dry. Southern Florida, with an almost tropical climate, is sometimes subject in the winter months to severe storms from the north, in which the thermometer falls below the freezing point. That these occasional cold spells have not seriously injured the vegetation of Paradise key is shown by the presence in its flora of noble royal palms, tropical orchids, and other tender plants, and insects belonging to types essentially tropical. On the other hand many temperate species, both of plants and animals, extend their range southward to this region; although, as far as least as the animals are concerned, the temperate species are here represented by varieties or subspecies which take the place of the northern types.

The Everglades owe their characteristic features of marsh, sloughs, and shallow ponds, to their recent origin and their slight elevation above the sea level. Their general surface is not high enough to permit the formation of deep valleys by eroding streams; and the water appears to ooze slowly seaward, on the west side toward the southwest and on the east side toward the southeast.

Royal Palm State park of course takes its name from the royal palms (Roystonea regia) which possibly form its chief ornament. These splendid palms often rise to a height of 100 feet, dwarfing most of their competitors of the palm family. A worthy rival is the magnificent live oak (Quercus virginiana), which sometimes spreads its moss-covered branches over an area 200 feet in diameter. In the way of curious forest growths is the poison tree (Metopium taxiferum), a giant smutch with a smooth spotted trunk; its sap acts very much on the human skin like the poison ivy of the north. Another tree to be catalogued among the curiosities is the strangling fig (Ficus aurea). It begins life somewhat like a mistletoe, sprouting from a tiny seed dropped on the limb of a tree. It soon sends down threads which take root when they reach the ground, and which grow together wherever they touch one another, forming a meshwork about the trunk of the host which is strangled to death. The photographs reproduced herewith show a strangling fig embracing a cabbage palm.

The list of beautiful and interesting trees is long. Some of the more striking are the gumbolambo (Elaphrium simaruba), called West Indian birch in the Antilles; satinleaf, which takes its name from the golden brown, satiny lining of its leaves; a beautiful mimosalike Lysolima, usually called wild tamarind, with fernlike foliage and smooth white trunk; the mastic tree, or wild olive; the bois-fille (incorrectly translated "fiddle wood"), and the pigeon plum.

Of course, it is impossible here to catalogue the fauna and flora of Royal Palm State park. There are many very interesting specimens; some are found nowhere else in the United States. Northern eyes, for example, seldom see the jointed liana (Hippocratea volubilis) which is shown hanging along the trunk of the live oak in the photograph. It is one of nature's agents to keep the balance. It works its way to the crown of a tree and then covers it so thickly that its host is often crushed by its weight. It brings more trees to earth than storms or parasites.

The ferns are legion, and include Spanish moss, festooning the trees. Orchids, climbing plants that bloom, and flowers in great variety are everywhere.

There's the identical spider that spins webs from which silk is made. The moths and butterflies are many and beautiful. The zebra butterfly (Heliconius charitonius) is the only representative of its family in the United States; it has such an unpleasant taste that insectivorous birds will not eat it. The mosquitoes are many, but do not communicate disease to human beings.

The fishes are many and some of them are rare and curious. The big-mouthed bass (Microperus salmoides) here sometimes attains a weight of 20 and even 25 pounds. The mudfish is believed to survive periods of drought by burying itself in the mud. Yet local sportsmen say it is "one of the hardest fighters that ever took a hook." A mature female leaffish is only an inch long and a male three-quarters of an inch. The killifish brings forth its young alive.

From the warden's lodge the alligator can be heard bellowing in the big slough. If you are enterprising you can dine on alligators' eggs; they're 'as good as turtles' eggs when fresh. Snakes there are in plenty—if you go looking for them—rattlesnakes too, and the water moccasin.

In birds the park is rich both because of its climate and because it is on the highway of migratory birds which spend their winters in the West Indies.

In southern Florida many well-known birds, as well as mammals, are represented by varieties or subspecies quite distinct from the typical forms occurring farther north. Thus we have the Florida quail, Florida crow, Florida wren, and the Florida cardinal, all of which are essentially Floridian, and the Florida wild turkey, which is fast disappearing. One of the most beautiful birds, a tropical species now fast disappearing from Florida and occurring nowhere else in the United States, except in Texas, is the roseate spoonbill (Ajaja ajaja).

The Seminole Indians of the Everglades are comparatively recent intruders, who retreated to the swamps from the lower Creek towns in the eighteenth century. Most of them have been transferred to Oklahoma. In the time of Columbus, the most important tribe of this region was the Caloosas; it was they who repelled Ponce de Leon in 1513. Very little is known about the aboriginal Indians. The Tequestas, who occupied the Everglades before the Seminoles, are described in the narrative of Jonathan Dickinson, who was shipwrecked in 1690 and became their captive.

Finally the first pole was lifted clear of the ground and railroaded for it to the new hole prepared for it by sliding it on a ten-foot oak plank.

Burritt's Remarkable Record. "Learned Blacksmith" was the epithet bestowed upon Elihu Burritt, the American reformer, author and linquist, who lived from 1810 to 1870. He began his career as a blacksmith about 1827, and worked at that trade for many years, during which time he made himself proficient in numerous ancient and modern languages. According to Mathews' "Getting On in the World," Elihu Burritt acquired a mastery of 18 languages and 22 dialects, "not by rare genius, which he disclaimed, but by improving the bits and fragments of time which he could steal from his occupation as a blacksmith."

Cut the Cost of Fuel

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove is a real money-saver. It uses fuel only when you want a fire for cooking. The moment the match is applied, you can have intense heat for fast cooking and boiling, or a low flame for simmering.

Not a drop of oil is wasted, for the long blue chimney provides the necessary draft for perfect and complete combustion, and at the same time drives all the heat directly against the cooking utensil.

3,000,000 users of New Perfection Oil Cook Stoves are independent of coal, wood and ashes. They come in 1, 2, 3 and 4-burner sizes.

For your further convenience—the New Perfection Water Heater furnishes hot running water at a very moderate cost. Ask your dealer.

"George Bernard Shaw has been a vegetarian for 36 years," said an editor. "Shaw told me a vegetarian story the last time I visited him in London. 'He said he was walking in the Strand one day when a beggar held him up and asked for a little money to buy food claiming he had eaten nothing for 48 hours. Shaw gave him a note to Frascati's for a full meal, and stopped in there the next day to pay the bill.

"I sent a poor beggar here yesterday," he said. "What do I owe you?" "Seventeen and six, Mr. Shaw," said the manager with a smile. "Seventeen and six, eh? And what were the items?" "Eight beers," said the manager, "three whiskeys, a pint of port, four cigars and a package of Virginia cigarettes. A true vegetarian like yourself, sir."—London Tit-Bits.

THE PILOT

By JAMES FENIMORE COOPER

Continued by Alfred Clark

Cooper was born in New Jersey in 1789, but when only about a year old removed to his father's estate at Cooperstown, New York, where he died in 1851. There he learned to know the wild scenes which play so important a part in his books, and there, too, he probably acquired that headstrong self-assertiveness and disregard of the opinions of others which made him, while one of the few most widely read authors in the world, one of the most cordially detested individuals to be found. He had a positive genius for getting in bad. While Dickens and Kipling deeply wounded one nation by their American Notes, they were pillars in this respect compared to Cooper. He could exasperate any and everybody and apparently cultivated with pleasure his habitual attitudes. Lowell wrote of him as "Cooper, who's written six volumes to prove he's as good as a lord." An English magazine described him as a "billious braggart," a "liar," a "full jackass," an "insect," a "grub," and a "reptile." The "New Yorker" pleasantly wrote of him: "He is as proud of blackguarding as a girl woman is of billingsgate. It is as natural to him as snarling to a tomcat or growling to a bulldog. He has the scorn and contempt of every well informed American."

On a late afternoon of a winter's day, during the American Revolution, a rakish schooner and a majestic frigate anchored well inside a little bay on the northeastern coast of England. A whaleboat drove shoreward, a young officer scrambled up the steep cliffs and a few minutes later a mysterious stranger was transferred to the frigate's deck. He answered to the name of "Mr. Gray" and was said to be merely a pilot, but he was greeted with surprising deference.

For no ordinary man would these vessels have ventured so near that coast of sandbars and hidden rocks. The wind was a mere ruffle of air. But the incessant mutter of the long, slow waves foretold that a storm was brewing. Ever more fitfully and faintly blew the land-breeze; the mutter of the waters grew deeper. Only here and there did a few stars twinkle between the fast gathering clouds. It was time to beat out to open sea, if it were not even now too late. Men swarmed aloft and hung up the yards; sails fluttered out; the anchor was pulled in; the frigate gathered headway. Then the faint breeze died. The spread of canvas hung useless; the currents drove the ship shoreward.

With a roar the wind came suddenly from the east. White spray dashed from the bow. Yet the Pilot paced the quarter-deck seemingly oblivious to danger. But open water was far ahead and suddenly from the forecastle came that dreaded cry, "Breakers! breakers, dead ahead!" The Pilot shook off his trance of thought. His orders thundered forth, sailors sprang hither and thither at his bidding, the frigate swung about at his cry of "Hold on everything!" Tortuously she picked her way through the twisting channels, in darkness amid the howlings of the great winds.

She shivered from bow to stern as a hundred men loosed the huge mainsail. The jib was torn free with a crash like a cannon's blast, but the big sail held and the frigate bowed like a reed in the wind. White foam showed dimly upon both sides, but the Pilot kept the ship, as by a miracle, within a narrow ribbon of dark water. He took the wheel himself. Time and again the frigate seemed to have reeled free from peril; time and again she plunged anew toward a welter of white water. But she drove ever on and at last she rode the great waves of the open sea.

Not the storm alone had these ships dared. They were American vessels, lurking about an enemy's coast. This little bay had a peculiar fascination for two young lieutenants aboard, Edward Griffith and Richard Barnstable. Not far inland lived Colonel Howard, a Tory who had fled from America when the colonists revolted. With him dwelt his niece, Cecilia Howard, beloved by Griffith, and his ward, Katherine Plowden, betrothed to Barnstable. In St. Ruth's abbey lingered, too, Christopher Dillon, a poor kinsman anxious to better his condition by wedding the wealthy Cecilia. Redcoats lent a picturesqueness to the venerable abbey, for a small garrison under Captain Borroughcliffe had been summoned by the owner. For aught that men knew, John Paul Jones himself might be aboard these ships hovering nearby.

While reconnoitering the next night, "Mr. Gray" and Griffith were captured, but Borroughcliffe's drunkenness enabled them to escape. Griffith was, however, retaken.

The impetuous Barnstable, fretting offshore with his enormous coxswain, Long Tom Coffin, had been nearly cut off from his schooner by an English cutter, but he scrambled aboard safely and the drum beat to quarters. While broadides roared and the decks grew slippery with blood, the little fighting ships met and grappled. Before Barnstable could lead his boarders to the enemy's deck, Coffin tumbled into the sea. Shouting "Revenge Long Tom!" the lieutenant rushed with his men upon the foe. It was fighting at close quarters and the issue was in doubt when the drenched and furious coxswain emerged from the sea and with his harpoon pinioned the English captain to his mast. In a few minutes the Americans were masters of the cutter. Covering in that scene of bloodshed the victors discovered the crafty Dillon, who pleaded to be sent off as a hostage, promising to return in person or to have Griffith delivered in his stead.

His word of honor was trusted and he was sent away with Long Tom. He luckily overheard Dillon's treacherous plot to entrap Barnstable's waiting party. The resourceful old seaman gagged Borroughcliffe and drove Dillon, at the point of his harpoon, back to the waiting schooner. By this time, however, a battery on the cliff brought down the schooner's mainmast. She was driven from her course by heavy seas. The masts were felled and anchors dropped, but she plunged on like a bobbing cork in rapids. Barnstable would have stayed by his ship, but suddenly Long Tom seized him and hurled him over the bulwarks. "God's will be done with me," Coffin cried, above the wind's roar. Dillon's lifeless body was rolled upon the shore, but Long Tom's stayed with the sea to which he had dedicated his life.

Surprise succeeded surprise at the abbey. Barnstable marched his shipwrecked mariners into the building and they took possession, but they were soon made prisoners by the redcoats. Then the mysterious figure of the Pilot appeared at the door and behind him loomed the marines from the frigate. Colonel Howard, an unwilling prisoner, was marched away with Cecilia and Katherine, who could not be downcast at the triumph of their lovers.

Captain Borroughcliffe was freed, as was another inmate of the abbey, Alice Duscombe. She had recognized the Pilot in his disguise when he was first captured. They had been lovers, but she was so staunch in her love for her king and she so hated bloodshed that she had broken her troth to this "Mr. Gray," whom she addressed as John. She reminded him that did she but once call aloud his true name the whole countryside would ring with it. What that name was is never revealed, but there was but one sea rover who could strike stark terror into all English hearts.

On board the frigate repeated conferences were held between the captain, Griffith and "Mr. Gray." Suddenly out of the fog drove a mountainous ship of the line. The drum beat aboard the frigate, sailors leaped nimbly about the deck, clearing for action. The women were led below and gradually order resolved itself out of the chaos of shouting men. A terrific roar filled the air as three tiers of guns blazed a broadside on the English ship. A few sails and ropes were cut, but the frigate's sailing power was hardly affected. One chance ball struck the captain and hurled him to death. Griffith succeeded to the command and he was appalled as he saw the frigate hemmed about. To the east loomed the great ship of war and far in the northeast the sails of another frigate.

"What are we to do?" cried Griffith. "Fight them! Fight them!" shouted the Pilot. "Let me proclaim your name to the men," Griffith appealed. But the Pilot refused. "Should we come to a grapple," he said, "I will give forth the name as a war-cry and these English will quail before it."

The ship of war was distanced, but she cut off a retreat and the frigate ahead had been re-enforced by two others. The foremost maneuvered with the American frigate for position. Broadides crashed and they grappled. The American guns raked her foe and left her helpless, with useless ropes dangling from shattered masts. The deck was cleared and as another enemy appeared, Griffith shouted, "Hoist away of everything!" Fifty men flew aloft upon the spars and white canvas was spread from every mast. The frigate lunged ahead, but it could not outstrip its rival, and the halt to give battle had enabled the ship of the line to draw up.

Then, for a few breathless moments, the Pilot leaped into command. Breakers loomed ahead, but he drove the vessels straight into the shoals, into narrow passages where white foam bubbled perilously close. The enemy dared not follow, and when night fell pursuit was hopeless.

Colonel Howard, fatally wounded in the battle, lived long enough to see Cecilia Howard and Katherine Plowden wedded by the chaplain to their lovers. His last words were spoken to Griffith. "Perhaps I may have mistaken my duty to America—but I was too old to change my politics or my religion; I—I loved the king—God bless him!"

The frigate drove on to Holland, where the Pilot landed in a small boat that dwindled into a black speck and disappeared in the setting sun. Twelve years later Cecilia Griffith saw her husband's face cloud as he read in the newspaper of the death of a great man, but not even then did he divulge his name. He had promised to keep it secret. He said only, "Our happiness might have been wrecked in the voyage of life had we not met the unknown Pilot of the German ocean."

WILL HONOR EARLY PRINTER

Anniversary of Birth of Christophe Plantin to Be Appropriately Commemorated in August.

The four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Christophe Plantin, the noted French printer of the sixteenth century, will be commemorated with appropriate ceremonies in Antwerp, during August. Plantin was a son of Belgium only through adoption. He was born somewhere in historic Touraine.

It was the peculiar achievement of Plantin to bring honor and glory to the printer's trade in the days of its infancy. With a keen appreciation of the beauties of literature, Plantin delighted in perfecting his workmanship in order that those beauties might be published in the most attractive form possible, although his tools were those of a common workman. His chef-d'oeuvre was the famous Biblia polyglotta—published in 1569-1573—an attempt at a scientific revision of the text of the Old and New Testaments. It was published in the Greek, Hebrew, Syrian and Chaldean languages. As a result of this monumental work Plantin received from King Philip of Spain the title "prototypographus regius," and the right to print all the liturgical books for the states embraced in King Philip's far-flung empire.

BOUND TO DELIVER SPEECH

Guest at Banquet Must Have Something Astonished the Rest of the Gathering.

There was to be a banquet at an Indianapolis church and one of the parishioners felt sure that he would be called on for a speech. Realizing how poor he was at impromptu speeches he accordingly made ready for this occasion by writing one and then memorizing it.

The night of the banquet came and after rehearsing his speech to his proud wife the parishioner went to church, elated over his forethought. The crowd assembled and gathered around the table. And then—the minister called on the parishioner to say "grace."

For a minute he was appalled—also his wife. But bravely he rallied and began to compose a grace. He gave one sentence, hesitated and then to his wife's horror plunged into the middle of his speech. He finished it, too. Of course every one was amazed, his wife most of all, for you see he even used his practiced gestures.

Aids in Fighting Forest Fires.

Fifty of the 54 forest-fire stations of the state of New York are equipped with steel towers to facilitate the operation of quickly discovering and locating fires in the woods. During the last year as a result of the operations of this department, the number of fires and the extent of the damage was greatly reduced in that state.

More Than She Bargained For.

She had been taught to pray for the things she desired. It was very dry and hot, and everybody was looking anxiously for rain. Suddenly it occurred to the little miss that she might pray for rain, and she acted on her impulse at once.

In a few minutes there came a terrific thundershower. Streets were flooded, trees were blown down, and other damage was done. After the shower the child's mother found her standing at the window looking out with a rueful face upon the debris, and heard her say in an awestruck voice: "Oh, Lord, what have I done?"

Early Rising.

A Chicago advertising man drove through to the advertising convention in Indianapolis. A few miles outside Indianapolis he had bad luck. His car skidded into the ditch and he had to wait till daylight to get someone to pull him out.

At 3:30 a. m. he went to a nearby farmhouse, knocked at the door and the farmer's wife answered the call. The advertising man asked: "Could I get your husband to pull my car out of the ditch?" "Well, that's too bad," she replied. "You should have got here before breakfast. He took the horses over half an hour ago and is down the road two miles there and plowin' by now."

The Usual Course.

"What did they do when the leak arrested the boat's progress?" "They baled her out."

You Will Recognize Post Toasties

as the best corn flakes made the first time you compare their appearance and delightful flavor with other corn flakes.

Post Toasties are distinctive and superior. The flakes are more substantial, they don't crumble or break. They're crisper, better flavored, and have an all around goodness no other corn flakes have.

When ordering corn flakes, be sure to specify Post Toasties by name. Sold by Grocers everywhere

TO ODD FELLOWS

Information in Regard to the Boston Trip

Reply postal cards will be sent out to members of Waverley Lodge this week in an effort on the part of the committee of arrangements to find out just how many will pledge themselves to go to Boston the 29th. It is very important that everyone receiving a card should return it at once. All Odd Fellows in Antrim and surrounding towns in our jurisdiction, whether members of Waverley lodge or any other lodge of this order, will be reached in this way if possible—anyway all Odd Fellows are included.

It will be well to announce that arrangements are progressing constantly by Waverley Lodge committees for the "On-to-Boston" trip Sept. 29, to visit the annual session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge which meets there for the week. The local lodge has an invitation from Bethesda Lodge of Odd Fellows, of South Boston, to be their guests for this day and are making preparations for their entertainment in a royal manner. Together with Valley Lodge, of Hillsboro, which has a similar invitation, a special train has been chartered for the trip, going in the morning and returning in the evening at such hour as best suits the convenience of the two lodges. A considerable number of the three linkers in the different branches of the order have signified their intention of taking the trip. It is the desire of the South Boston host to have the ladies accompany the gentlemen at this time and arrangements are being made for their entertainment while in the city, and it is probable a goodly number will take in the trip. One of the rare good times is in store for all Odd Fellows—and their ladies.

Mrs. Harry Ross is visiting in Turners Falls, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace are entertaining company.

Will Griswold is at his home here, coming by auto from Reading, Penn.

Thirty eight Grangers went from here to Antrim on Tuesday evening last.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knowles were in Boston recently to attend the funeral of Mrs. Knowles' sister.

Mrs. Phelps, who is ninety one years old, is visiting her daughters, Mrs. Morris Cheney and Mrs. Elliott Wilson.

Miss Ruth Wilson and party of friends were here for the Auxiliary supper; some of them like cherry pie pretty well.

Isabelle, Dorothy, Sarah and Fred Cosman and Ermese Tabbutt, from Boston, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. George Ross.

The movies were exceptionally good last Wednesday; and Mabel Bailey and Harold Rogers cranked lots of laughter with their funny song.

"Goat feathers are what, under the name of honors, other people stick on in order to make a goat of you. When an odd job has to be done, when an ornamental position has to be occupied, when a time consuming fancy has to be made real, someone suggests you as a very willing person"—and on go the goat feathers. We all wear them more or less in a country village, and so much valuable time is wasted in doing lots of unnecessary work, making out and filing reports, etc., that are of no mortal use.

Joint Installation

ers of North Star Encampment, were finely rendered and fitted in well where they were placed.

John Thornton, installing officer of both branches of the order, deserves much credit for the success of the occasion, for while he had the ready assistance of all members of the order in both towns, he necessarily had most of the arranging of details; and for one man to do the work of installing officers of these two branches of the order in one evening is something probably never before attempted in the state; the same was done in a correct, pleasing and very able manner. Anyway this is what the Grand Officers present stated in their remarks. Waverley lodge and Antrim have every reason to feel proud of the way this occasion was conducted and the successful outcome of a very novel and happy event.

The distinguished officers present were Grand Master Lewis C. Shaw, of Warner, of the Grand Lodge, and Grand Patriarch Alfred C. Wyatt, of Laconia, of the Grand Encampment. These gentlemen were accompanied by their wives. At the conclusion of the installing ceremonies, Brothers Shaw and Wyatt made some very appropriate remarks which were highly complimentary to the installing officers, the committee in charge of the affair, and the lodges of both Hillsboro and Antrim.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served as a fitting closing number of the evening's program.
