STREET LIGHTING

By Electricity Advances Some Eighty-five Per Cent

The startling news has reached the Selectmen of the town and is being passed on to the citizens that the price of electricity for lighting the streets of our town has taken a sudden and long jump, from $13 per light to $24 per light; Antrim has nearly a hundred lights.

What is stated here in Antrim is likewise true in Bennington, except that there are run about thirty lights and the pay is around $14 per light.

This unwelcome news was conveyed to the authorities by a representative of the Antrim-Bennington Electric Light and Power Company, during the past week, and we are told that the Public Service Commission of the state has granted this increase in town lighting; and all towns served by the different plants controlled by this company have a like increase—all have to pay, beginning December 1, $24 per light. One thing can be said in favor of the owners of the plant in past years that for a long term of years the price has remained the same, this being the first increase in price of town lights.

A few months ago the price of house lights and to small power users was increased around twelve percent. This was accepted as a necessary step in the existing condition of things. It may be necessary for continued service and the necessary upkeep of the plant to charge an increased rate and this new price may raise the required amount of cash. It is known to all that improvements in the local plant are needed and will have to be made very soon; in fact we are informed that steps have already been taken to this end.

The question asked at once is: What did Antrim vote to do at last annual meeting under the electric light article? Here is what it did, and the Article acted upon:

To see how much money the town will vote to raise and appropriate for Street Lighting, or take any action thereon.

Voted, that the town pay for street lights in the Precinct and from Clinton Corner to the M. H. Wood corner, as at present; that the Selectmen be instructed to contract therefor, and that the sum of $1050 be raised and appropriated for this purpose.

The town of Bennington in annual meeting acted upon the article:

To see what sum of money the town will vote to appropriate for lighting the streets with electricity.

In this manner:

Voted to raise and appropriate $300. The Selectmen, as the town's authorized agents, will doubtless carry out the votes of these two towns, but we don't anticipate they will expend very much more than the sums appropriated for this purpose. At the coming town meeting in March the voters may see fit to take such action as will increase the electric light appropriation, and if they do it will be a matter for future consideration and can have no effect on the present appropriation.

W. R. C. Election

Ephraim Weston W. R. C. held their regular meeting Tuesday evening, a large number being present. One candidate was initiated, and the annual election of officers took place, as follows:

President—Emma Nay
S. V. President—Jennie Proctor
J. V. President—Rebecca Eldredge
Treasurer—Anna E. Carter
Chaplain—Mary H. Reed
Conductor—Mattie Proctor
Guard—Mabel Parker
Delegates to Dept. Convention—Jennie Proctor, Rebecca Eldredge, and Helen Ashford.
Alternates—Mattie Proctor, Emma Cooley, and Ida Robb.
A lunch of sandwiches, cake and cocoa was served at the close of the meeting.

Notice

A meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the Selectmen's Room, on Monday evening, Dec. 13. A matter of considerable importance will be acted upon and a full attendance is desired.

THE SUNDAY LAW

Is Likely to Receive Attention by Legislators

Now when there is so much discussion about a change in the New Hampshire Sunday laws, it is best that we give space to the law as it is and at least two sets of changes. The incoming Legislature will probably act upon this matter—so many think a change is needed,—when if the law makers would instead give all their time to repealing a number of the fool laws already on the statute books, they would come very much nearer earning their money.

This statute has stood for a century practically without change and is characterized as a typical "blue law" by those who attack it. It reads as follows:

"No person shall do any work, business or labor of his secular calling to the disturbance of others, on the first day of the week, commonly called the Lord's Day, except works of necessity and mercy, and the making of necessary repairs upon mills and factories which could not be made otherwise without loss to operatives, and no person shall engage in any play, game or sport on that day.

"No person shall, on the Lord's Day, discharge any firearms for sport, or in the pursuit of game, nor carry a firearm in a field, highway or private way, while in the pursuit of game or with intent to discharge the same in sport.

"No person shall keep his shop, warehouse, cellar, restaurant or workshop open for the reception of company, or shall sell or expose for sale any merchandise whatsoever on the Lord's Day, but this section shall not be construed to prevent the entertainment of boarders, nor the sale of milk, bread and the necessities of life, nor drugs and medicines."

The Lord's Day League of New England, which is very actively represented in New Hampshire by its secretary, Rev. Dr. Martin D. Kneeland of Boston, would change but one clause of the present statute, as follows:

"No person shall engage in any competitive game or sport on that day; and no person shall hold or conduct any entertainment on that day for which an admission fee in any form is charged or received."

Rev. Edward A. Tuck, representing the New Hampshire Sabbath conference, submits a revised statute which it proposes should read, in substance, as follows:

"No person shall do any work, business or labor of a secular calling to the disturbance of others on the first day of the week, commonly called the Lord's Day, except works of necessity and mercy, and the making of necessary repairs upon mills and factories which could not be made otherwise without loss to operatives.

"No person shall promote or engage in any play, game or sport on that day for which admission is taken, or for which any compensation is received, directly or indirectly, or which disturbs others.

"No person shall hold or conduct any entertainment on that day, for which admission is taken.

"This law shall be so interpreted as to provide one day's rest in seven, to prevent commercializing the Lord's Day, to protect the rights of those who worship and to secure the moral and religious training essential to citizenship.

"All Sundays shall be closed season for game."

Auction Sale

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim

Having sold her place known as the Adams tavern, in Bennington village, Alice J. Tarbox will sell a lot of household goods at public auction, on the premises, on Saturday, Dec. 11, 1920, at 12.30 o'clock p. m. sharp. This lot of goods is in excellent condition. Included in the lot is the bar and all the attachments as used in the Adams saloon. For other particulars read auction bills.

STRAY THOUGHTS

Picked Up and Put Together for Reporter Readers

Congress has come together this week for the short session, before the holidays. It might well be called the preliminary session.

A certain doctor says sleep with your body north and south, which causes someone to ask: What are the odds as long as you have plenty of blankets?

Mott L. Bartlett, fish and game commissioner of the state, is arranging for a get together meeting at the State House, in Concord, in Representatives hall, on December 16, at 1 o'clock p. m. Matters concerning proposed fish and game legislation will be considered. Outside speakers will be present, and this is a meeting for all sportsmen of the state. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

What's this we hear, that the legislature is to be asked to increase the salaries of state officers? With the cost of living coming down, with an impending reduction of wages, and a prospective state tax of over two millions, it does not seem to be an opportune time to suggest increases in salaries, says the Canaan Reporter. More than this, it is highly probable that there are numerous able men in the state who would be more than willing to accept any position left vacant because of the present salary.

While the most of our hunters are very particular about the law concerning the open season on deer and other fur bearing animals, we have often wondered just how many of them knew or had taken pains to find out what the Sunday law touching on this matter is. Reading it in this issue of the Reporter may be the first time many have ever seen it,—or even thought that such a thing existed. Our people have always prided themselves that they are law abiding and now if possibly they have overstepped a bit, they will be more careful in the future. Some others also may see something in this law that they did not know was there—and likely will be glad to know it.

There seems to be a good bit of talk throughout the state of reconvening the Constitutional Convention for the purpose of resubmitting about three of the amendments which were rejected by the voters at the November election for their reconsideration at the March meeting, on the ground that with the Presidential election on the voters did not give the amendments proper thought and only a small part of the electorate voted either for or against them. This may be true, and with a large number of men and women too a town meeting is about as important as an election, and no big vote on these amendments may be had in March. Some who think these amendments should have been voted upon favorably say the voters hadn't considered them as they should. These men should give the voters the benefit of the doubt—there being two ways of looking at the question—and say perhaps the voters did consider these amendments long and faithfully and their action upon them was the result of knowing just what they thought about them and what they wanted to do. In this case the voters are the jury and it is only on rare occasions the jury expects or wishes the judge to tell them what kind of a verdict to bring in. Again we say that if Constitutional Conventions were held every twenty five years instead of as often as they are the state would be better off financially, if in no other way.

Is this encouraging or otherwise to our clergy, and how do the hearers consider it?

A stranger entered the church in the middle of the sermon and took a back seat. Presently he began to fidget. Then he whispered to a man near: "How long has he been preaching?"

"Thirty or forty years; I don't know exactly."

"Then I'll stay," said the stranger. "He must be nearly through."

A PROCLAMATION

By the Governor for the Near East Relief

In January, 1919, I appealed to the residents of New Hampshire to give aid to the Armenian and Syrian people who were then threatened with starvation. About forty thousand of our people contributed through the Near East Relief commission, and by means of these contributions and those of other Americans, relief went to thousands who were in distress.

This work must go on. Children now under care would be in a state of starvation if American food and aid were withdrawn. That the work so providentially inaugurated and so effectively carried on may be continued and that the existing facilities of relief may be enlarged to care for the destitute, still beyond the hand of mercy, the Near East Relief asks of New Hampshire people renewed support.

I officially commend this cause to our generous-hearted people who have blazed the trail of world philanthropy and will not turn a deaf ear to the appeal which the Near East Relief is making to save the lives of these children.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Americanism By LEONARD WOOD

Where law ends tyranny begins. — William Pitt's Speech, January 9, 1770.

LAW'S companion is order. There is no tyranny like the tyranny of the mob. Americanism means law, and law means Americanism. Without it there is first chaos and then tyranny, for out of disorder comes that type of government which, while in a way restraining us, destroys liberty under the law.

Law and Liberty are inseparable. Liberty lovers can be depended upon to see to it that there is not too much law. The people in a republic are the writers of the laws. They can be trusted to secure just that measure of regulation consistent with order and inconsistent with the tyranny of too much restriction of the popular rights.

In America in those places where there have been outbreaks, where the people have taken, as it is called, the law into their own hands, tyranny has shown itself. Happily its rule has been only temporary. The spirit of the mob is despotic. The spirit of the law is democratic.

Americanism means obedience to law. The Fathers of the republic knew this and laid stress upon it. They built upon the foundation of law and they built an orderly structure. When the foundation is destroyed the structure falls and it cannot be reared again except upon foundation stones of the kind first used. Law is government and there can be no Abraham Lincoln's government of the people, by the people and for the people unless law enters into it as a constituent.

The flag of the American republic represents law just as truly as it represents liberty, for there can be no liberty without the law. Proper laws safeguard freedom and never menace it. When the enactment of laws goes beyond reason there is the repeal. The people are the judges of the limits of legal restraint. Americans know how much law is needed to give them full liberty and yet save them from license.

The American flag stands for the nation—it ranks everything else in America. All salute it, from private to president.

The flag of a country, however, can represent nothing except what the country is. When we teach respect for our country's colors, we must bear in mind that respect can be instilled only if the institutions for which the flag stands are maintained in the integrity which the Fathers gave to them.

FOOL THE CUSTOMS OFFICERS

Canadian and Maine Farmers Said to Have Ingenious Systems of Smuggling Devices.

Entirely aside from questions of tariff reform, reciprocity and free trade with Canada would help to put an end to the constant lawbreaking that goes on along the border. It is estimated that eight thousand persons are engaged in smuggling goods across the line.

One instance has been reported in which a party of schoolboys consisting in an old pung down a hill that slopes across the boundary, apparently for fun, brought with them at every trip a chest of tea, until fifty chests had been smuggled into Maine, contrary to law.

Again, an "aqueduct" of small lead pipe, half a mile long, was secretly laid from a tavern in the Dominion to a public house on the other side of the line, through which hundreds of barrels of gin and other liquors were pumped. Nor are such "aqueducts" always restricted to liquors. A wooden spout was used for years to convey oats across the boundary.

The lawbreakers were a New Brunswick farmer named Cudley and a neighbor across the line named Armstrong. Armstrong raised about six hundred bushels of oats on his farm and sold ten times that quantity to the lumber camps. The customs officers watched his premises and searched them at times, but were never able to discover anything wrong until after he moved away, when they found a square spout, made of boards and buried under the snow and piles of brush, which extended from Cudley's barn to a bin in the Maine man's granary. Inside this conduit was a long belt provided with tin cups and attached to a winch that could be turned by a crank in Cudley's barn. Youth's Companion.

ENGAGED IN SPLENDID WORK

New York School Devoted to the Task of Making Cripples and Unfortunates Self-Supporting.

From his association with the late Rev. H. Boswell Bates, founder of the Neighborhood house, George A. Merritt learned how little was being done to make cripples self-supporting, and how common, almost universal, was the belief that owing to various afflictions these unhappy ones must always be a burden on others. This was not his belief, and so strong did he hold an opposite conviction that, with the aid of a few charitable persons whom he inspired with it, he founded the Path school at 80 West Twenty-Fifth street, New York, in order to teach crippled commercial and railroad telegraph and thus give to them that greatest boon, a means of livelihood. This school is still young, but it has already proved itself many times over. It trains legless, armless, and deformed persons, but especially the young who are thus afflicted, either in the course laid out by the school or in some other line most suitable to individual cases. It is free to all, non-sectarian, and it has already in its short life lifted nearly 50 poor creatures from a state of dependence, or even penury, to positions where by honest labor they earn from $12 to $18 per week and have the joy that comes from self-support.

"Isle of Artists"

An island in Lake Como is to be known as the "Isle of Artists." And thereby hangs a tale. The owner of the island, Sig. Caprini, was a great admirer of King Albert of Belgium, and in his will he left it to him with the wish that it might serve some noble purpose which Italy could share. King Albert, through his minister of arts and sciences, has handed over the property to the Italian government with the object of making the spot a restful retreat and center of activity for those who have devoted their lives to art. Under the Academy of Milan villas are to be built for artists and the place will be transformed into a little capital for promoting the fine and industrial arts in the Italian lakes district.—Chicago Daily News.

Why Ship is Feminine.

A ship is invariably spoken of as of the feminine gender; this is traced to the ancient Greeks, who called all ships feminine names out of respect to Athena, goddess of the sea. Friday is believed to be an unlucky day for those who are superstitious. It is derived from the fact it was the day of Christ's crucifixion, as well as the one on which Adam and Eve ate the forbidden fruit. Few, perhaps, are aware, why a weather-cock is frequently attached to a church steeple. This is believed to remind people of Peter's denial of Christ. It is a common belief that peacock's feathers are unlucky. This is due to the tradition that the bird opened the gate of paradise to the serpent.

Ostrich Eggs Slow to Spoil.

Ostrich eggs keep a long time before spoiling, according to a report by M. H. Junelle to the French Acclimatization society. He tells of ostrich eggs sent to him from Telnar on August 23, 1919, which reached him at Marseilles on December 12 still perfectly good. M. Hermentier had eggs that he opened and into which he dipped as he needed them; this for several days.

La Nature suggests that if a regular supply of ostrich eggs in large enough quantities could be arranged for it would be a boon to the confectionery and baking trades as one ostrich egg contained considerably more than a quart of goodness.

ARABIAN EMPIRE NOT LIKELY

As Travelers Point Out, System and Organization Are Foreign to the Semitic Mind.

"History is against the probability of the creation of an Arabian empire. The Semitic mind does not lean toward system or organization," said Col. Thomas E. Lawrence recently.

"The Semites are represented by very little art, architecture, philosophy. But we find an amazing fertility among the Semites in the creation of creeds and religions. Three of these creeds—Judaism, Christianity and Mohammedanism—have become great world movements. The broken fragments of countless other religions which have failed are found today on the fringes of the desert.

"The desert seems to produce only one idea—the universality of God. We, who have gone out to discover the meaning of the desert have found only emptiness—nothing but sand, wind, soil and empty space. The Bedouins leave behind them every extraneous comfort and go to live in the desert, in the very arms of starvation, that they may be free. The desert exacts a price for its secret. It makes the Bedouins entirely useless to their fellow men. There has never been a Bedouin prophet. On the other hand, there has never been a Semitic prophet who has not, before preaching his message, gone into the desert and caught from the desert dwellers a reflection of their belief. The idea of the absolute worthlessness of the present world is a pure Semitic religion, which must be filtered through the scene of a non-nomad prophet before it can be accepted by a settled people.—Asia Magazine.

ANIMAL LIFE AT ITS WORST

Woe-Begone Specimens of Dogs, Pigs, and Horses in the Cuban Province of Pinar del Rio.

There are more dogs than any other kind of animal life in Pinar del Rio, the westernmost province of Cuba, and chickens, pigs, ponies and goats rank next in the order named. Dogs may be seen everywhere, but they are lazy and indifferent. Each shack-hold has a few chickens, none of which would have the shade of a chance in a poultry show, but might hold their own at a cocking main.

There are many pigs to be seen, but they are so thin and weakened that the much-abused razor-back looks like a prosperous porker, says the National Geographical Magazine. Each pig is anchored fast to a peg in the ground, tethered to a rope. Knowing that if the rope were passed only about the pig's neck he could wiggle free, the native passes it around the pig in the front of one shoulder and behind the opposite leg, and then draws it tight enough to prevent the pig from backing out of it or creeping through.

The horses one sees are between the Texas and the Shetland pony in size, and so thin that one wonders if they can make a shadow. Milch goats, which are the cows of Pinar del Rio, seem to be the one class of animal able to look fat and sleek.

New Rigid Airship is Speedy.

In the latest rigid airship, R-80, as developed by the Vickers people, particular attention was given to the elimination of unnecessary head resistance and the cutting down of weight, and the builders have produced in R-80 a ship of only 14 million cubic feet capacity, whose performance in speed and endurance is equal to that of R-83 and R-84, which have a capacity of two million cubic feet. The overall length of R-80 is 530 feet, its diameter is 70 feet and its height 85 feet. The total gross lift is 38.5 tons at sea level, and the disposable lift is 17.5 tons. At full power the estimated speed is over sixty miles per hour and the cruising radius at this speed is four thousand miles and sixty-five hundred miles at fifty miles an hour.—Scientific American.

Artificial Milk on Board Ship.

The milk problem on the hospital ships of the United States navy is solved in a different and highly ingenious fashion. On board the Mercury and Comfort there is now a machine which manufactures milk in any desired quantity, although the ship may have been at sea for weeks. The "mechanical cow" needs to be fed with a combination of unsalted butter and skimmed milk powder, and it will give milk with any degree of butter fat which is required. It also produces cream that will whip and the fluid which it yields tastes like the best quality of dairy milk and cream that can be procured ashore.

Eruptions on the Sun.

Not long ago, at the Yerkes observatory, an eruption was observed (and photographed) on the rim of the sun which threw up material to a height of 500,000 miles. One cloud of it, which appeared as if floating detached, was reckoned to have some thousands of times the volume of the earth. We are accustomed to regard great volcanic explosions on the earth as the most appalling of natural phenomena, but they are feeble and trifling disturbances compared with the outbursts which are continually taking place all over the body of the sun.

DESERT HERO KNOWN TO FEW

Dog That, With Its Master, Was Savior of Many Lives, Well Known for Many Years.

Rufus, the dog hero of the desert, who has saved many lives, is ending his declining days in a dog sanatorium at Pasadena, Cal., where he is well cared for. The end of the dog is not far off, says Our Dumb Animals in a recent issue. He is spent and feeble after his many long and weary journeys over the burning and blinding sands with his pioneer master. He will no doubt soon fall asleep.

Lou Westcott Beck and Rufus were intrepid pioneers in a life-saving project that received scanty support and little recognition. Together they fared forth on their mission of mercy, Beck carrying signboards and cans of palat, Rufus laden with saddlebags of restoratives and poison antidote. While the man set up the guideposts, or pointed the water signs, the dog succeeded many a prospector who otherwise would have died miserably from delirium of thirst or the venom of snake bites.

The work of these two great benefactors is over. Beck died in July, 1917, and since then the government has appropriated one hundred thousand dollars to carry on the project that he and his devoted dog started.

Rufus will be well provided for by a veterinarian who was a personal friend of Beck's. The old dog's years of hardships, of life-saving service on the desolate wastes, are not without their reward. His many friends who used to see him on the streets and pat him with approval as he started out on his desert trips will not forget him in his old age.

ENCOURAGE BIRDS TO NEST

Only Through Them Can the Many Insect Pests Be Kept Within the Bounds of Safety.

Of all the ways of ridding our gardens, parks and farms of the insect pests that destroy fruit, grain, and even trees, none is so effective as the encouragement of birds. Most birds are naturally insect eaters, and it is really amazing to count the number of beetles, bugs, caterpillars and grubs that a small bird will devour in a day.

Andre Godard, a French naturalist, remarks in a recent number of La Nature (Paris) that agricultural plagues invariably follow the disappearance of birds, and he notes that the forests of Hungary were saved by the placing of many artificial nests to attract the feathered enemies of the grubs that were destroying the trees.

It is true that a few birds eat fruit and grain, but even these prefer insects, and it is probably true in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred that the bird which seems to be eating the fruit is really pecking at an insect inside it.

Many Film Pictures Per Second.

Taking motion pictures at the rate of some 15,000 a second with a camera and lens is the recent achievement of a French scientist. High-speed photography is not new, but heretofore has depended upon electric-spark shutters without lenses, and lacking sufficient illumination for clear definition. The mechanism of the camera consists of an aluminum reel, electrically driven at 3,000 r. p. m. and winding film at 164 feet a second. At this rate pictures 2 inches high are made about 10,000 times a second, larger and smaller surfaces being exposed at respectively slower and faster speeds, says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine in an article carrying a full-page illustration.

The illuminant is a stream of high-tension electric sparks with a frequency of about 80,000 a second, produced at the focal point of a concave reflector, and kept from flaming by a current of air.

Nippon Honors Her Soldiers.

On a hill near Port Arthur, China, there looms a grand memorial tower, and just back of it are burial mounds marked trenches, the bodies of 22,000 of the bravest soldiers of Nippon, says the Detroit Free Press. It is a shrine for every loyal Japanese. On the side of another hill he buried all that is mortal of 15,000 Russians, and also a monument has been reared. These were the men who died during the siege of Port Arthur, which commenced 15 years ago and continued for almost a year. Although Port Arthur was given back to China by the Japanese, it remains for all practical purposes a stronghold of Nippon, and it is to be more Japanese in character than Chinese, and it is likely to remain so unless Japan is forced to relinquish the city to another war.

William Jason Knew.

William Jason Tucker, four-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. E. T. Tucker of Columbus, was out riding with his parents and sister Sunday night, and an unusually large number of flies were seen along the country roads. His sister, age six, asked what caused the light in the fireflies. While her mother was trying to explain, William Jason remarked scornfully: "Why, Emily Margaret, anybody ought to know that. It's because they have headlights in their stomachs."—Indianapolis News.

The Message Bearer

By T. B. ALDERSON

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"They tell me you are going down to Leesville, Dacre."

"Why, yes, I expect to visit the old folks for a week or two."

"Would you deliver a message for me to a friend there?"

"Certainly," responded Lynn Dacre, frank, clear-eyed, accommodating, something of a contrast to Marvin Britt on this special occasion who, while a thoroughly good fellow, was just now chuckling secretly over a trick, or rather a double trick he was playing. Innocently enough, however, he tendered Dacre a sealed envelope. The latter paled, then he reddened, then he observed confusedly:

"Is it just the right thing for me to do? It is for Miss Wanda Berteau, I see, and you know—"

"Just how matters stand, Dacre. See here, we are good friends and don't have to mind matters. You and I appeared in the run for her favor and I won out because you were possessed of the modest opinion that you were not good enough for her. In my humble estimation you are worthy of the attention and confidence of the best woman in the world. Between you and I, Wanda and I are having some serious correspondence. Why shouldn't you be my message bearer? You would like to see Wanda again, wouldn't you?"

"I can't deny it, but strained relations, you see," floundered Dacre.

"Nonsense! No embarrassment is necessary. She values you as a friend and something more, perhaps. You never obtrude your silent devotion upon her. She will be glad to see you, I am sure."

Marvin Britt had indeed outdistanced Lynn Dacre in the race for the exclusive regard of Wanda Berteau. That young lady had come to Brandon to enhance the adoration of both. Britt made furious love. Dacre dropped out of the race feeling that he was no match for the most brilliant, if flighty, young man in the district. When Wanda returned to her home town it was current gossip that she and Britt were engaged.

Luce left his friend slightly flustered, Miss Berteau lived at the town where he was going, and he had hoped to catch at least a fleeting glimpse of the only woman he had ever loved during his visit, but would never have ventured to obtrude himself upon her presence.

Dacre made his journey and about all he had in his mind was the prospective call upon Miss Berteau. He did not put this into effect until the second day after his arrival. With some misgiving as to how the young lady might receive him he rang the door-bell of the Berteau home. Wanda was at home alone and came to the door. Perhaps she craved any companionship to alleviate the monotony of her loneliness. Perhaps she was heartily glad to see some one from the town where it was considered she had lost her heart. At all events she greeted Dacre like an old and dear friend. She invited him in and acted as if this was a desirable preface to a leisurely visit.

"I come at the request of Mr. Britt," spoke Dacre, but at this Wanda's brows met in what seemed to be pretty indifference, and she said: "Tell me about my girl friends, and the town generally."

So they chatted, and when Dacre arose to leave he sighed gently, for it had indeed been to him a rapturous hour. Wanda did not open the letter he had brought during his stay. In fact Dacre was somewhat surprised to note how carelessly she tossed it aside. She did not ask him to call again but the next day he met her on the street.

Wanda shook hands with him gently. "I hope you will not forget us during your brief stay," she remarked. "My sisters will be home from a visit day after tomorrow, and if you are the excellent tennis player you were I am sure you will add to the pleasure of the afternoon."

There was a change in Wanda that Dacre could not help but notice. There seemed to be a latent excitement or emotion underlying all she said, as though her mind was constrained yet filled with a sentiment of greater kindness towards him. Each day after that she drew closer and dearer to him. The one upon which he bade her farewell she asked him a question. It was:

"Would you object to conveying a note to Mr. Britt for me?"

"My message bearer loved you before I ever saw you. He loves you now—a worthy, loyal fellow who will deserve the reciprocal devotion you may experience."

And, putting the loose ends of a disjointed romance together, Lynn Dacre believed that there was great hope for the future.

Everett Holt shot a deer one day last week.

Ed. Newton has purchased the Stevens place on Francess town Street.

W. F. and F. C. Starrett started for Mt. Dora, Florida, on Monday.

The heavy rain of Sunday night washed out a big hole in the center of the dam near the Gode!! Shop in this village.

Fred Newton is at home with his sister, Mrs. Gordon, after living a number of years in Meriden and Winsted, Conn.

The topic for the C. E. meeting of Thursday evening, is: "Progressive Living." This is the consecration and will be followed by the business meeting.

The junior Sunday School class met with their teacher, Mrs. Gordon, for a rehearsal and supper on Saturday afternoon. There were thirteen juniors and "one company" present.

Word from Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Keiser is that they have arrived safely in Florida, but were delayed two days en route, on account of all kinds of bad weather, the storms being the worst in twenty years, but there is nothing the matter with Florida sunshine and oranges.

Card of Thanks

To the friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness and words of sympathy, and for the beautiful floral tributes at the time of the death of my father, I extend sincere thanks.

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.
