ROMANCE HALTED

How a Necktie Figured to Bring Two Together

Forty years ago John Emmons and Charity Timmons of Bishopville, Del., were twenty years old and sweethearts. With her own hands Miss Timmons made a necktie as a gift for her young gallant. The evening of the day he received it Emmons put it on. He didn't like the colors and replaced it.

As usual, he visited Miss Timmons that evening, according to a Selbyville (Del.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Ledger. It was a nice summer night. The moon revealed that he was not wearing love's token and Miss Timmons demanded the reason.

"It's too loud," replied the youth. "Do you mean you will never wear it? Then you don't love me," sobbed the girl, and she went into the house.

That apparently was the end of the romance. Emmons went to Portland, Ore., and prospered. As the owner of a big department store in the far Northwestern city, he returned to Bishopville last Christmas for a visit.

It was inevitable that he should meet his former sweetheart in the village. Soon each learned that the old love would not die; that each had considered the other the only mate and that neither had married.

Of course, Emmons proposed. Miss Timmons did not refuse him, but she bought a tie as nearly like the one that started all the trouble as she could find. Then, when he wore it without flinching, she coyly murmured "yes." And so they were married the other evening.

Convicted by the Bible. Law founded on the Bible is good enough for Mayor Gilmore of Morgantown, W. Va.

A local man charged with not having the tail light burning on his automobile was arraigned before the mayor, who assessed a fine of $3.

The accused protested, said it was a poor law under which he was fined and that he did not think it would hold water in court.

The mayor declared any law founded on the Bible was good enough for him. The defendant said he couldn't see where a tale about the Lord had anything to do with the Bible. The mayor looked pityingly at the defendant and said:

"Do you remember the tale about the ten virgins, and five of whom had lights and five of whom had not? Well, if you do, you will remember that the Lord wouldn't have any of those who had no lights. And neither will this court."

Cotton Stalks Will Furnish Paper. The possibilities of cotton stalks as a source of paper have long been suspected and experiments in this direction have been made, but for one reason or another it has never proved quite practical.

The nearest approach to success has been made recently, and it is announced that there is a plant at Greenwood, Mass., where 50 tons of paper are made every day from three times that amount of stalk.

TOBACCO GROWING

Some Troubles the Farmers Have With Crop

(By Rev. S. G. Hastings) The season of 1920 was on the whole a very unfavorable one for the tobacco growers of Connecticut. For some of them it was disastrous. Excessive rains in the earlier part of the season, hailstorms in harvest time, poleweat soon after the crop was harvested, all contributed to damage it severely. The buyers have been afraid of it, prices have averaged low; much of the crop remains in the hands of the growers, for whom a sale at fair prices is almost an absolute necessity in order that they may be able to buy fertilizer and go on to raise a crop the present season.

In spite of all these drawbacks of the season of 1920 one tobacco grower of our acquaintance, who has been long in the business, achieved the greatest success he had ever met with in that bad year. His success was due partly to queer accident, partly to expert knowledge, partly to a good reputation among tobacco buyers. He prepared his tobacco beds very early in the season, intending to transplant the plants into the fields at the earliest possible time. In order to hasten the plants he germinated the seeds before they were sown in the beds. This is often successfully done. Not so in 1920. There came a week or two of freezing weather and the number of seeds that survived it was far from sufficient to furnish the plants he needed. He was forced to depend on his neighbors for plants and to take such inferior plants as he could get. This delayed him nearly a month and proved to be the happy circumstance that did most to save the day for him; for just as he had his plants fairly in the fields and ready for it came the scant forty five days of good tobacco growing weather which the season afforded. Never in his life, he says, had he seen tobacco grow as his did in those forty five days.

At the end of that period it was ready for the harvest, a remarkable record. However, this was not the only accident that proved to be in his favor. Being two weeks behind hand with his crop, he avoided having it newly hung in the sheds during the two weeks of "poleweat" weather which damaged many other growers so seriously. Result, he came through with the finest crop he ever raised, sold it for the best price an open grown crop ever brought in his state; and, knowing that he grew the crop from refuse plants from different sources, he smiles when people come to him from miles around to obtain from him some of the wonderful seed from which he won this great success. Moreover, he is not at all sure he will ever raise another good crop. He may never "hold the cards" for another.

N. H. Woman's Legion Auxiliary in Election

At the closing session of the Woman's Auxiliary to the New Hampshire Department of the American Legion these officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Harriet Knowlton, Exeter
Vice President—Mrs. Adele Walker, Keene.
Secretary—Mrs. Ethel Morrill, Concord.
Treasurer—Mrs. Archibald Smith, Manchester.
Chaplain—Mrs. Agnes Scammon, Berlin.

Executive Committee—Mrs. Katherine Wendell, Portsmouth; Mrs. Zatae Straw, Manchester; Mrs. Etta Pierce, Berlin; Miss Agnes M. Desautels, Dover; Mrs. Arthur Bassett, East Jaffrey; Mrs. Margaret Nolin, Claremont; Mrs. Elmer Jackson, Woodsville; Mrs. James B. Woodman, Franklin; Mrs. Edith A. French, Laconia.

A constitution and by-laws were adopted and resolutions supporting National Commander Galbraith of the Legion in his exposure of un-American and pro-German propaganda. It was voted to hold a convention at The Weirs the last week in August, when the American Legion also will be in session there.

The past week has brought out quite a number of new ones who are anxious to secure licenses to drive automobiles.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

No, Romeo! Equal suffrage does not mean equal in everything; for the fair sex will not serve as jurors. And New Hampshire does not want them to hold office—or that was the result of the recent vote.

We saw an item the other day in a trade paper, something like this: You can almost always tell the kind of manufacturer or business man if you know who his printer is. Think this over—really there's something to it. The Reporter office claims to do the better class of printing.

The number of delegates to the recent constitutional convention who have decided that they need $3 more than the State treasury does has risen to 144, or more than a third of the entire membership. At first the number of applicants was small, but of late it has been increasing rapidly.

It is an old saying that "misery loves company," and this may be the excuse for stating herewith that in a letter recently received from a subscriber in Walden, N. Y., was contained the information that the cutlery plant in that town is being conducted on a three day schedule. And this seems to be the report from other cutlery towns.

It made fine reading, that economy speech of Governor Brown's before the legislature last Wednesday. Taxes must be kept down, of course. It may be the best thing that has happened in a long time that the amendments to the Constitution were not voted for, that more revenue was not in sight for the law makers to spend. We little fellows who have always had to cut our garments according to the cloth in hand, know what this means.

The principal feature of the new law governing the registration of motor vehicles is its change from horsepower to gross weight as a basis for estimating the fee to be charged. The minimum will be $15 and the maximum $200. The terms "motor truck" and "trailer" are exactly defined, and vehicles of a gross weight exceeding 10 tons are to be allowed on the State roads only by special permission of the Commissioner of Highways. A considerable increase in the receipts of the motor vehicle department is expected to result from the operation of the new law.

Americanism

By LEONARD WOOD

No gilded dome swells from the lowly roof to catch the morning or evening beam; but the love and gratitude of united America settle upon it in one eternal sunshine. From beneath that humble roof went forth the intrepid and unselfish warrior, the magistrate who knew no glory but his country's good; to that he returned, happiest when his work was done. There he lived in noble simplicity, there he died in glory and peace. While it stands the latest generations of the grateful people of America will make this pilgrimage today as to a shrine; and when it shall fall, if it must, the memory and the name of Washington will stand an eternal glory on the spot—Edward Everett's Oration on the Character of Washington.

THIS address stands out as one of the finest portrayals of the grand yet simple character of George Washington, First of His Country.

Everett calls Washington intrepid. So he was. He calls him unselfish. So he was. Patriotism always is unselfish. When thought of self advancement at the expense of one's country enters into a man's breast he no longer is a patriot. Washington subordinated everything pertaining to himself to his country's good. He gave a lesson to posterity that well might be the better learned by some of us today.

The first president has been exalted by Americans but he never exalted himself. His Americanism was that of devotion to country and a willingness to carry his devotion to the end of death if death should come.

The story of Washington should be one of the first lessons in the book of Americanization. It is an appealing story and one to be understood by even the mind of a child. The memory of Washington, men have said, has acted as an anchor to the ship of state in times of storm. It was not so much Washington's deeds as a warrior which brought to him the admiration and affection of the American people, as it was the noble simplicity of his character which was shown not only in his deeds but in his actual manner of life.

Allens who come to our shores for the purpose of becoming American citizens almost invariably know something of George Washington. It may be that he is only a name to them, but almost always it has been found that in the minds of the incoming immigrants the name is associated with all that they have thought of as best in the land which promises them the liberty for which they seek.

He was a man "who knew no glory but his country's good." In these few quoted words can be found the whole story of a life of devotion to an ideal. No patriot could wish for a better epitaph than this.

It Was Suggestion.

"So she refused you?"
"That's the impression I received."
"Didn't she actually say no?"
"No, she didn't. All she said was 'Ha-ha-ha!'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

PREPARING TURF FOR FUEL

New Method, Said to Have Originated in Russia, May Result in Relieving Shortage.

A new method of drying turf to relieve the serious fuel shortage in Finland has been put in operation in various Scandinavian countries. The new method was invented by engineers working under orders from the Russian soviet government, to find a more labor-saving method of preparing turf as fuel for the great central power station near Moscow, the process being made known in Finland through an escaping engineer. The fundamental principle of the process is quite simple. The raw turf in the swamp, by a powerful jet of water under a pressure of 20 atmospheres, is freed from all old roots and changed to thin mud. This is pumped out on a drying field and spread in layers. When sufficiently dry it is cut into bricks of uniform size by means of a tractor. The turf pump is constructed like an ordinary water turbine, is reversible with aid of electric motor, is equipped with a cutting apparatus which completes the work of the water jet, and can be raised or lowered as the surface of the mud varies. The entire equipment is mounted on a car which can be pushed forward or backward on rails along the line of work.—Scientific American.

Certain thin tubular fiber in the plant will furnish excellent cellulose for durable papers. It is strong and flexible. If a quarter of the annual supply of the cotton stalks of the South were put to this use each year there would be no need of a paper shortage in this country.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LEGISLATURE

According to the journal of the House for Monday this is how the legislative week opened: "The house met at 7:30 o'clock according to adjournment. On motion of Mr. Foster of Langdon, at 7:31 o'clock the house adjourned."

There was a generous attendance of members Tuesday morning, and an evident desire to push things. The record of work done showed 164 bills passed by both branches, with 75 which had been passed by the House in the Senate. Tuesday morning there were 67 bills in the hands of committees, 25 of them being with the committee on appropriations.

Among the new legislation was a bill abolishing all the county jails with the exception of those at Haverhill and Manchester. It provides for a house of correction however in each county.

An opinion was read from the judges of the State Supreme court in regard to absent voting, ruling that it was not in the power of the legislature to pass a law allowing absentee voting.

The salary bill came up again as an unfinished business and a motion to indefinitely postpone was defeated by a large vote.

Representative Geo. A. Blanchard of Montpelier introduced a resolution which calls upon the Public Service Commission to report to the House the conditions of the Boston & Maine Railroad in 1915, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920 and state whether or not the New Hampshire section of the road could have been operated at a profit if it had been operated separately from the rest of the system.

The House passed the resolution calling for the adjournment of the session on Wednesday, April 6, and it was sent over to the Senate.

The educational bill which was made a special order for 11:01 went over until after the noon recess. It was debated for two hours in speeches which bordered at times upon the acrimonious. The amendment that would have deeded state aid to towns having an equalized valuation in excess of $1,200,000 was voted down as was a motion to indefinitely postpone. The bill was then passed under suspension of the rules. Among the bills passed were a joint resolution for the repair of the Webster birthplace in Franklin, an act relating to liability for neglect to repair; and an act relating to the sale, quality, and standards of dairy products; an act relating to a lien on standing timber covered by mortgage, and an act imposing a tax upon the transfer at death of personal property of non-residents.

Wednesday morning Governor Brown read a message to the Legislature in which he again sounded the note of economy, and also urged the passage of the motor vehicle bill now in the hands of the committee or revision of the statutes.

The house voted Wednesday morning to recess from its position on the senate amendment that no highway shall be named for any living person. This puts the kibosh on the aspirations of a well known gentleman to have a highway named in his honor.

The only flurry Wednesday was when the bill authorizing Stratford county to detract the expenses of John E. Weeden incident to the trial of state v. Weeden for manslaughter, was taken from the table on motion of Representative Knox of Madbury. The bill was again tabled.

The house in the afternoon passed acts relating to the registration of motor vehicles; relating to the law of the road; relating to fish and game; to enable the city of Nashua to erect a statue to the memory of Gen. John G. Foster and an act relating to the location of school houses.

The death of Senator Joe W. Daniels of the 22d district was reported Thursday morning and both house and senate adjourned later as a mark of respect.

The message of the governor in regard to economy was reflected in the reports of the committee on appropriations which slashed many items.

The State Sanatorium resolution providing for the erection of a new infirmary and other necessary improvements was reduced $10,000.

Other reductions in appropriations included $50,000 in the educational department deficiency appropriation $123,000 on the appropriations asked for by the State Hospital for improvements, $118,000 on the revised estimates of the State College for maintenance, $20,000 asked for by the industrial school for a new barn and $75,000 for each of the next two years for the fight on disease in cattle.

A new bill exempting women from jury duty came in from the judiciary committee and was made a special order for Tuesday. Two radical measures relating to taxation came in. One known as the Carr bill provides for detailed inventories of mills, factories, water power, etc., throughout the state. It provides that returns be made on or before May 15, 1921. The other is practically a straight income tax on intangibles.

The chiropractic bill passed the senate Thursday morning after a few amendments by a vote of 14 to 6. It now goes back to the house for concurrence and will then go to the governor for his signature.

There are more special orders of the calendar for Tuesday than any day this session and the session of the house will be a busy one if all are considered.

INDIANS ALL OF SAME RACE

Differences in Type No Greater Than Among the Whites, According to Scientist.

The American aborigines from the Hudson bay and Alaska to the southern tip of the continent are all members of the same race, according to Dr. Frederick Mosen of New York and Pasadena, said to be more familiar with the American Indian than any other white man.

Doctor Mosen declared the differences in type found in Indians of the various parts of the continent are becoming manifest among us today. He recognizes people from Maine as typical of that section of the country, and says a southerner or westerner can be easily distinguished by one familiar with the types of American people.

"The aborigines of America are all red men," Doctor Mosen said. "The Eskimos have flatter noses and oily skins, due to their diet and the climate."

He found corresponding differences among the Indians of the Eastern coast, the West, Mexico and other parts of the country, but other indications prove the distinguishing characteristics were the product of food, environment and methods of living.

Mentioning the treatment the red men have received from the whites, Doctor Mosen said: "The Pilgrims embarked on Plymouth rock and fell upon their knees. Then they fell upon the aborigines and we've been falling on them ever since."

RULER HAD PRACTICAL MIND

Like Our Own Politicians, Sultan Preferred Any Eventually to Being Forgotten.

At Trengganu (Malay Peninsula) the native sultan welcomed me and I spent several days with him, telling him what was happening in the world and discussing his problems. The problems were largely financial. He owed some money, and, knowing that he had something in the treasury, I asked why he did not pay his debts.

He thought for a time and then replied: "Well, I'll tell you. If I pay those people, they will forget about the sultan of Trengganu. If I don't pay them, they'll never forget me."

The conversation turned to the subject of prisoners. On my way to the palace I had passed the cages where the prisoners were kept. Many of them were starving to death, for unless their friends or family cared for them they got no food.

"Why don't you feed them?" I asked.

"Why should I?" he replied. "If I feed them, my whole country will want to go to jail."—Asia Magazine.

Point of Honor.

Samuel Untermyer, the brilliant New York lawyer, who probed the building question, said in a discussion about honor:

"Business men are honorable; or they don't get on. Even big business men are honorable. Of course, few business men are as punctilious about a point of honor, though, as Honest John Jones was.

"Honest John Jones, you know, once stole on tiptoe, fountain pen in hand, into the empty waiting room of his hotel. He stepped stealthily up to an inkwell, advanced his fountain pen towards the ink, then drew back with a start.

"No!" he groaned, striking his brow with his palm. "No, I cannot all my fountain pen with the hotel's ink—it would not be honorable."

War of Science on Diseases.

Of the diseases of men and animals known to be infectious, Dr. Walter E. King counts up 38 having organisms not yet discovered that are believed to be so small as to pass through the customary filters. These include chicken-pox, rabies, dengue fever, small-pox, trachoma, measles, poliomyelitis, scarlet fever, typhus and mumps, and yellow fever was in the list until Doctor Noguchi's recent discovery of the organism. As in the case of tuberculosis, knowledge of the organism does not always bring a direct remedy. On the other hand, steps toward eradicating yellow fever, through the destruction of the germ-carrying mosquito, were made possible while the disease organism was still unknown.

Wireless Waves Fire Oil Wells.

In recent years there have been a number of oil well fires the origin of which has never been explained. The fires started at such times when the sites were deserted and could not have been done through any human agency, and in this connection E. M. McLain of Desdemona, Tex., has come to the fore with a remarkable theory that the firing is done by wireless waves gathered by the metal entering into the construction of the derricks. This gentleman has observed a number of oil well fires which could be explained in no other way.

Reassurance.

"Look here," demanded the new patron of the Dizzy Hour lunchroom. "When do I get that order?" "Control yourself," snapped Romeo the waiter. "The cooks are on strike, but I think they'll come to an agreement 'most any hour now.'"—American Legion Weekly.

Probably Not Overdressed.

Through Stress and Storm

By VICTOR RADCLIFFE

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Ransom Dacre valued and was proud of his adopted daughter, Elita. He had become guardian of the orphaned girl of a fellow physician because she was homeless, the child of two cherished friends, and he found that he had not only secured a loving and faithful home companion, but also a helpful and intelligent aid in his professional duties.

Elita had been brought up amid an atmosphere that familiarized her with medicines and their uses. She was observant. She got to know the names and contents of the many phials; she even interested herself in the cases that came up and prepared many office prescriptions. Several times she had acted as nurse and had given remedies to patients who had called at the house while Dr. Dacre was absent.

This latter phase came up one day in a signal manner. Next door to the doctor's home resided the Ellingtons and Maurice Nagel, a brother of Mrs. Ellington, had been their guest for some time. Elita was startled as the good lady burst in upon her very much agitated and alarmed.

"It is about my brother," she said. "He has been taken quite ill and needs a doctor's care. Can Dr. Dacre come over at once?"

"I am sorry," said Elita, "but Dr. Dacre has gone to the next village on an urgent case and will not return until this evening."

Elita listened attentively as Mrs. Ellington described the condition of her brother. The latter had been taken with a weak spell. Elita analyzed all the details given and then, selecting several solutions from the medicine chest, decided to accompany her visitor. Once in the presence of the very presentable young man whom she had met several times, she became absorbed in the case, gained a full knowledge of his symptoms and history and ventured to employ some ailments of which she had an intimate knowledge.

It was no haphazard experiment that Elita tried. She was gratified to note the almost immediate benefits of the medicines she administered, and when she returned home she studied up the case from standard books. When Dr. Dacre returned, she narrated to him all about the incident. His eyes expressed the deepest approbation.

"You used great sense and judgment," he applauded her. "Besides that, you have diagnosed the case equal to some standard physician. I will see the young man and I can tell him that you have saved his life."

"Between them, the doctor and Elita certainly aided the invalid. A continuation of the exigency treatment of the latter led to most beneficial results. Maurice Nagel daily improved. Within a few days he was able to be about again. By the end of a week he became a regular daily visitor at the Dacre home, grateful and appreciative for the beneficent ministrations of the young lady who had put him on the road to recovery.

When he went away, his fervor and kindly expressions told of genuine interest in Elita and she missed him greatly after he was gone.

It was the following early summer when they met again. It was at an ocean beach resort, and Elita was amazed to recognize her casual patient in the strong, healthy young man who greeted her effusively with an allusion to the olden days when they had first known each other. Maurice now became the daily escort of Elita along the beach and their friendship seemed to be apt to lead to a deeper sentiment.

"He is a grateful fellow and a fine young man," Dr. Dacre said to Elita. "Every time he and I engage in conversation he drifts back to your first ministrations in his behalf. He insists that he owes to you all of his restored health and strength and I believe he is right about it."

One day Elita had gone out in a light skiff. The weather was stormy and quite a distance from shore she lost control of the frail craft and both oars were sent afloat. Helplessly Elita allowed the tossing boat to drift shoreward, but each moment fearing an upset amid the turbulent waters.

She uttered a glad cry and waved her handkerchief frantically as she saw a man leap into a boat and put out from shore. Her boat was now caught in the irregular swell of the waves and engulfment menaced momentarily. Then, as the shore boat approached more closely, Elita recognized in the sturdy rover the man she had learned to love and who so signally aided her at a vital moment in her distress.

"Oh, I am so glad!" she cried as the running craft grazed her own and strong arms lifted her to comfort and safety.

"I did not recognize you at first," answered Nagel, and there was a tremulous quaver in his voice. "Oh, then, how fervently I cherished the strength that your kind ministrations gave me last summer. Miss Dacre, Elita, aside from that the love I bear for you infused me. Yes, I must say that, for my heart is full of it. Shall we return to shore pledged one to the other? Speak the words that will make me a happy man, indeed!"

"Life, for life, love for love, they realized that fate had destined that thus they should meet again, with no shadow of the further parting.

Finds Alligator in Strawberry Patch John F. Vance, 162 Sylvester St., Manchester, discovered an alligator in a strawberry patch to the rear of his home which upon measurement was found to be eight inches long. The discovery was the second in as many days, the first being found in a garden at Goffstown by Mrs. Fred S. Kimball of Shirley. No one can account for their presence.

Shipped Alcohol as Automobile Oil Forty gallons of automobile oil, according to labels, proved to be pure alcohol when examined by Berlin authorities. The stuff formed part of a shipment from Boston which was consigned to a Berlin business man. The consignee professes ignorance of the shipment.

Loses Life in Odd Hanging Accident Merle Arthur Enman, aged five years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Enman of Manchester, met death by hanging while at play. The boy was on a platform under a clothes reel, swinging with a rope suspended from an arm or the reel. With a turn of the reel the boy lost his balance, falling from the platform and in some unexplainable manner his head was caught in one of two nooses.

Notable Year for White Mountain Anniversaries Crawford Notch in the White Mountains was discovered in 1771. This year, therefore, will be the 150th anniversary of that event. It also happens that the year 1921 is the 100th anniversary of the first ascent of Mt. Washington by women, and the 60th anniversary of the opening of the carriage road from the Glen to the summit of Mt. Washington.

Discover Mangle on West Swansey Boy While in pursuit of her duties as agent for the Cheshire County Humane society, Mrs. Jennie P. Powers discovered a case of mangle on a boy in West Swansey. It developed from a horse which the boy had been mounted for several weeks. The suspicions of Mrs. Powers were verified that the young man was suffering from the mangle, when one physician and two veterinarians examined the boy and pronounced it a pure case of mangle.

Claim's Champion Rhode Island Red Hen "Big Egg" Layer Sigrid Anderson of South Manchester has a Rhode Island Red hen which she claims is the champion big egg layer. The hen recently laid an egg that weighed six ounces and measured the long way nine and a half inches long and the other way seven and a half inches around. When the egg was opened half a cup of the white of an egg was removed and another perfectly shaped egg was found inside.

To Reduce Pay by Leave of Absence A leave of absence for one or two days a week seems to be favored by some of the railroad crafts of Concord as the only way to reduce the wages of the shopmen of the Boston and Maine railroad. At a meeting of the carmen, the settlement was to propose to the railroad a leave of absence for each employe for two days a week during the period in which reduction of forces is necessary.

Several N. H. Citizens Give to State College President Ralph D. Hetzel announced that several citizens of New Hampshire, active in state affairs and interested in the welfare of the State college had recently made gifts to the small number of endowments at the college.

Ex-Governor John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth has advised the president that he will contribute $50 yearly toward such prizes as the board of trustees may think advisable or to the fund which is maintained at the college for loans to needy students.

Old Landmark Burns The old landmark on the East Surrey road, Keene, known as the Carpenter tavern and owned by Nils Johnson, which was destroyed by fire recently, was built 115 years ago. The date 1806 appeared in several places about the old structure. The timbers were white oak and hand hewn. Mr. Johnson plans to rebuild on the same location, using the four brick walls of the old house as the outer walls of the new house.

Concord Milk Producers' Association Endorse Distribution Plan At a meeting of the Concord Milk Producers association the committee appointed to look into the matter of a central distributing plant for Concord reported favorably. Flowers Tell Time.

If you have a clock that you never can depend upon, take time by the forelock and plant a window box with flowers that will help you out, while if you live in the suburbs, get a goat! It is said that dandelions open at 5:30 in the morning and close at 8:30 in the evening. That the white lily opens at 8 and closes at 5. The pink's day lasts from 8 until 2; the sow thistle from 5 o'clock until noon. The yellow goat's beard shuts at noon precisely—the moment of the sun's highest altitude.—New York Mail.

CLEANING THE DOG

"THIS is the most wonderful soap ever offered the public," explained the voluble agent, as he opened his grip. "It will clean anything under the sun. It will remove grease spots, polish tinware—"

"Oh, I have no doubt it will restore hair to bald heads and make chickens lay eggs," said Mrs. Curfew, sarcastically. "I feel quite satisfied it's made of barks and buds and healing herbs, but I don't want any of your marvelous soap, having had experience with other marvels of the same kind. Last fall an agent came along, selling a soap that would do everything you can think of, from beautifying the female complexion to chasing the cows out of the corn. The agent talked as though he had eight-day works in him, like our old grandfather's clock, and he didn't make any impression until he said the soap would heal all skin diseases of man or beast. It happened at that period that Mr. Curfew had an imitation-bird dog that he traded a good watch for, and gave a dollar to boot, said dollar having been extracted from my private savings, and never returned.

"This dog had the mange or some disagreeable disease that caused him to itch in the most reprehensible manner. He was always scratching and rubbing against everything he could find, first and last. One day he upset my parlor table and broke all my best china, which I had placed on the table a few minutes before. He also upset the sewing machine and the churn, and I don't know what else. "So when Mr. Curfew heard that the agent's soap would cure skin diseases, he insisted upon buying a cake, and after he had gone he began to wash the dog with that marvelous soap. I don't know what ingredients said soap contained, but after it was rubbed into the dog's skin that unfortunate animal became frantic and acted as though its reason tottered on its throne. Mr. Curfew tried to hold the beast, and it reached around and bit his ear almost off, and of course he released it then, and the uproar he made, as he danced around the house, holding his ear with one hand, and summoning the police with the other was simply scandalous.

"Meanwhile the dog ran off, entirely demoralized. Mrs. Turpentine was crossing the road pushing her baby buggy, when the animal collided with said vehicle, and spilled her offspring into the mud. I am willing to admit that such an experience was aggravating, but I don't think it was ladylike in Mrs. Turpentine to come over to my house with her muddy infant under her arm, and shake her fist under my nose, and tell me that for five cents she'd pull all my hair out. "Old Mr. Popsinjay was standing on the corner, leaning on his cane, waiting for a street car, when the crazy dog ran against his cane and he took a header into the gutter, and I really felt sorry for him when I saw him going home ten minutes later, dripping slush and mud like a sea-serpent, but I couldn't sympathize with him so very much when he picked up a brick as he was passing our place and smashed a panel in our front door.

"For two days people were coming here claiming that we ought to reimburse them for damages done by that dog. It seemed that the unfortunate animal made a circuit of the town, and left a trail of desolation behind him. He upset six pans of milk for Mrs. Trumpeter, and scared Smith's family horse so it ran away and injured several members of the family, and killed eight prize chickens for Mr. Dippy, and I don't know what else. In view of which, I think we can struggle along without any of your marvelous soap."

PURE WATER FOR HOLY CITY

British Have Repaired Pontius Pilate's Reservoir and Death Rate Has Dropped One-Half.

Jerusalem, situated outside the valley of the Kedron, boasts of only one small spring, the Virgin's font, so named because it is believed the Mother of Christ drew water from it. Ever since Solomon's day the want of water has been felt in Jerusalem, and the British, since their occupation, decided to repair and use the old reservoir, now known as Birket Assoub and lying a few miles to the south of Solomon's pool. It was built by Pontius Pilate and it was from here that he brought water to the city in the days of Christ. Pilate's old reservoir was repaired and enlarged, its capacity today being 5,000,000 gallons. Galleries were built in various directions to tap the numerous surrounding springs, including those of Ain ed Dirweh, in which, it is said, Philip baptized the eunuch. A powerful pumping plant was installed by which the water is pumped up to large reservoirs built on higher ground on the Hebron road, the water flowing from here by its own gravity in one-foot iron pipe to twin pools on the hill west of the city, from whence it is conducted to various standpipes in and around Jerusalem. Pilate's aqueduct, ruins of which dot the landscape today, stretched for a distance of 40 miles, though as the crow flies the Holy city lies but 18 miles away. The British pipe line, however, is but 15 miles in total length. As a result of this British enterprise the death rate in the city has dropped by one-half.

FINALLY SCARED CROWS OFF

Device Employed by Los Angeles Man Was Somewhat More Effective Than Neighbor's Umbrella.

"Not long ago a friend of mine from Birmingham was sitting out on my front porch when a flock of crows flew across one of my fields," said R. B. Posey, "and he remarked that it was the biggest lot he had seen for years, and asked if he did not injure my crops. I replied that until I got onto a way to keep them out of my watermelon patch they ruined a lot of them by pecking holes in one and then hopping for another. "I tried various ways but without success, until I put poles around the patch and ran just an ordinary piece of cotton around them about eight feet from the ground, and between the poles tied pieces of cotton to flap in the wind. It worked like a charm. "A neighbor of mine used to say that he was advised to put an old umbrella in the middle of the patch, and he did it, but one day creeping up behind it, he peeped over it and there sat a bunch of crows having a watermelon feast."—Los Angeles Times.

No New-Fangled Notions.

John came from down state to the city schools. He was placed in the seventh grade, and then his teacher's troubles began. His mother thought the course of study should be identical with the one which had held sway in the faraway red schoolhouse. She objected strenuously to physical culture and music, saying they were a waste of time.

And then came John's first day at manual training. The next day came an indignant note to the teacher from John's mother. It read: "Dear Miss — I want you to quit having John waste his time at school. That music and physical torture exercise was bad enough, but now you begin to learn him to whittle. Please stop it immediately or I'll change him to another school. He inherits whittling from his father and his brains from me. I'm paying to educate him, so educate his brains."—Indianapolis News.
