MEMORIAL DAY

As Observed in Antrim by the G. A. R.

It is seldom, if ever, we are more favored by the weatherman than on Monday—Memorial Day—when it is always desired that the day may be pleasant. This year it was warm but not hot, as fine a day as could be asked for by the most particular person. Everything passed off as it should and just because there was a hitch or two in details, does not make the program or its carrying out in any way worthy of criticism. Possibly there has never been a better program for the day than had been arranged this year, and the efforts of the committee were repaid by a large attendance at the exercises.

While the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic are a bit thinner than they were and very much more so than any of us desire could we have it different, yet there is one encouraging feature to the boys in blue and that is the fact that the boys in khaki of the American Legion are taking an active part in these things, and the kindred societies are ever increasing in numbers and interest.

The address by Rev. H. L. Packard was one of the few given in Antrim in recent years that seemed to be enjoyed by everybody, and was attentively listened to. He has a nice voice and a way of getting the attention of his hearers and holding it; his manner of delivery is easy and pleasing, and he has plenty of good things to say. The Grand Army committee was fortunate in securing the services of an orator who so ably did his duty and was so satisfactory to his hearers in every way.

Memorial Day was observed in town as follows: Ephraim Weston Post, No. 87, G. A. R., left the Grand Army hall in autos for North Branch at 8.30, going direct to the chapel, then to the cemetery to decorate the graves of the soldiers in the usual manner.

At the chapel prayer was made by Rev. George Davies who also made appropriate remarks. Brief exercises were given by the children.

Return was made to Antrim Center where the usual service was performed in the cemetery, and then return was made to G. A. R. hall.

Soldiers' graves on Meeting House hill were decorated by Daughters of the American Revolution. The East cemetery was decorated by a special detail of the Post and the School children.

AFTERNOON SERVICE

The column formed at 2 o'clock, in front of G. A. R. hall and marched to the Town Hall, where the G. A. R. held the usual exercises, commencing at 2.15, as follows:

President of the Day, Charles N. Robertson.

Vocal Music

Prayer

Exercises, recitation and singing by the School children.

Oration by Rev. Harrison L. Packard, of Winchendon, Mass.

Vocal Music

The solo work by Mrs. Robert W. Johnson was well rendered and is worthy of special mention.

At the close of the services in the hall the column was formed with right resting opposite the Presbyterian church in the following order:

Boy Scouts, Ephraim Weston Post, No. 87, G. A. R., Comrades of the late War, George E. Chandler Camp, No. 11, S. of V., Citizens and School Children in columns of twos, autos containing Woman's Relief Corps, American Legion Auxiliary, D. A. R., Orator of the Day, and Clergymen, Citizens.

The route was Main, Elm and

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

The price on a number of different makes of automobiles has taken a substantial drop, which proves that almost everything is getting down nearer to normal.

In these dry times, it is expected the wets will resort to almost any kind of fire water, but to read of them drinking the contents of a fire extinguisher is the latest.

Reads funny, that adv. of the Curtis Publishing Co., coming all the way from Philadelphia, in an effort to get printers in New England. It is a safe bet that most good printers will remain where they are.

It matters not what else has been said of Hon. Albert W. Noone, of Peterboro, one thing is sure, and that has always been true of the man, he is public spirited; and has now demonstrated it in still another way: he has drawn his check for $10,000 as a gift to the town for the construction of a new school building.

Right glad we were to shake the brotherly hand of Hon. Augustus W. Gray, of Boston, who was a former Bennington resident, and lived so near us we thought him one of our own. May he for a long term of years to come have the health and strength to visit the scenes of former years, and his many friends.

The emergency tariff bill was signed last Friday by President Harding. The new law became effective the following day. It will affect for a six months period most farm products and carries a provision designed to prevent the dumping of foreign goods in this country.

In event of passage by Congress of the Longworth resolution, under which new import duties would become effective immediately upon introduction of the permanent tariff bill. House leaders say it naturally would supercede the emergency measure, which carries only a few items compared with thousands in the general bill.

There seems to be a sort of morbid temptation which is almost irresistible in many cases, and in some instances, we regret to say, has been allowed to prevail among public speakers, to dwell to some extent on matters which really have nothing whatever to do with the subject they have in hand. Take for instance a Memorial Day address, and everyone knows what its design is, and when the orator of the day sidesteps to the extent of delivering a harangue on some subject like the League of Nations, the speaker really deserves more sympathy than blame, for he has surely missed a grand opportunity. This he will doubtless realize sooner or later.

Concord streets to Maplewood cemetery, where these exercises took place:

Prayer
Decoration of Soldiers' graves at sound of bugle.

Column re-formed and marched to the Monument, where the Woman's Relief Corps read their ritual and had the last numbers of the program, which closed the exercises of the day. Here Rev. J. D. Cameron made brief remarks.

Return was made to G. A. R. hall, where the column was dismissed.

SPECIAL SERVICE

To Patriotic Societies at Methodist Church

On Sunday last—the day which has become known as Memorial Sunday—the Grand Army, Woman's Relief Corps, and kindred societies, attended divine worship at the Methodist church, and listened to a sermon by Rev. George Davies. This was made a union service by the other societies giving up their morning services and uniting in this one. The church was well filled and nicely and appropriately decorated for the occasion; in addition to the use of bunting, bouquets of cut flowers were neatly arranged to present a handsome appearance.

Special music had been prepared for the occasion and in addition to the choir Mrs. Nims and Miss Jameson were heard in a pleasing selection.

Scripture was read by Rev. S. G. Hastings, and prayer was offered by Rev. J. D. Cameron, D. D. Rev. Davies took for his text words found in 1st Timothy 6:12: Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life. This address was a strong one in every way and very well received.

Water Power Plant Sale is Approved

An order has been issued by the Public Service Commission authorizing the Antrim-Bennington Electric Light & Power Company to sell its water power plant, situated on the Contocook river in the town of Bennington, together with all the appurtenant rights, to the Monadnock Paper Mills.

The contract under which this sale has taken place, which has received the commissioner's approval, provides that following the transfer, the paper mills will be required to furnish 75 kilowatts of power to the electric company for a period of 10 years. It also gives the company the privilege of purchasing additional current whenever a surplus is available. The commission, in granting this approval, retains jurisdiction over the rates to be charged for this service.

The commission finds that this transaction should result in giving the electric company a more reliable and efficient source of power and that it will, therefore, be of benefit to the public.

Sheldon Burnham and lady friend, from Nashua, were week end and holiday guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Burnham.

Places of business along our street, as well as the factories, were closed on Memorial Day, the same being observed in a befitting manner.

Mrs. Montgomery, of Brockton, Mass., formerly Emily Hudson, of Antrim, was the guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Burnham.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hastings entertained the past week Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Tenney and children, of Arlington, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Rudeford and child, from Portland, Maine.

Notices are being posted about the village by the Police, forbidding parking of automobiles in certain localities, and there seems no good reason why this order should not be generally and willingly observed.

George W. Hunt and workmen have completed the job of piping, which takes the water from springs on the side of Crooked Mountain to the Prescott residence, which was recently purchased by a Mr. Winslow, of Boston.

Miss Rose Wilkinson was at her home here last week, being obliged to be away from her duties as teacher in the Winchendon, Mass., schools, owing to illness caused by the extreme hot weather of Saturday and Sunday of the week previous.

On Saturday evening, the first and second degrees were conferred on three candidates by Waverley Lodge of Odd Fellows. These candidates will be taken to Peterboro on Saturday evening of this week, where they will be given the third degree at the District Meeting, when the degree team of Champion Lodge, I. O. O. Opinions on Selling Power of Advertising

In an article on Pinning Faith on Advertising, the Houston Post quotes a speaker before a recent meeting of lumbermen as saying that "a nationally advertised product is half sold."

To our Texas contemporary the Atlanta Constitution well says that the speaker "might have gone further and said that any worth while product, intelligently advertised, is half sold."

What is necessary to get this result, it is explained, is— "The placing of merchandise publicly in those mediums that actually reach the people with purchasing power. It is just as necessary to use discrimination in advertising as anything else, for results will depend on how wisely the discrimination has been made. The weekly paper that goes direct into the hands of the people, by common consent, is the most effective general advertising medium, and is in position to exert incalculable influence in restoring prosperous business conditions than is any other medium."

Good business men everywhere realize this and place their announcements accordingly.

The world's shipping is done in the newspapers; they are the universal business guides and time savers, and the greatest factors in building the business of the world.

Uncle Walt's Story

Walt Mason

THE DIFFERENCE

"I SAW you coming up the street and standing at the gate with Mr. Honeybug and Mr. Playfair," said Mrs. Jamesworthy. "All three of you were laughing so the whole neighborhood could hear you. I wonder why you do all the laughing with your friends, and do nothing but grumble and scowl at home. I haven't seen you laugh in the house in five years, as you laughed out there with those men."

"There's nothing in this house to laugh at," replied Jamesworthy. "Jim Honeybug is a good story-teller, and he was telling us a bully yarn, and for a brief season we forgot the burdens laid upon us, which are greater than we can bear. If you could tell a story as well as Honeybug does, I'd fill these ancestral halls with silvery laughter, but you never try to say anything amusing, Mrs. Jamesworthy. You do tell stories, but they are of a gloomy and tragic character."

"Last night, when I came home, you told a dramatic story to the effect that you had callers all afternoon, and hadn't a chance to cook anything for me, and so I had to eat canned salmon and soda crackers, and wash them down with water, and I insist that when a husband comes home from his arduous labors in the clanging mart, so empty that his watch chain makes a clanking sound when it flaps against his spine, he should have warm victuals, something he can consume with pleasure and pride. The fact that you had an invasion of callers is a cheap excuse."

"My sainted mother never would have permitted any callers to interfere with her management of the cook-stove. She realized that her old man kept the shebang going, and that he should have the right of way. If any old hens happened to be in the house when grub time approached, my mother would request them, firmly but respectfully, to chase themselves, and if they didn't like it they could lump it. When my father came home from his work, the hay was always in the manger for him, and he never had to wait five minutes for a meal."

"The day before yesterday, when I came, staggering home, faint and weary from my herculean efforts to make both ends meet, you told me another story. It was to the effect that you had been downtown sizing up a shipment of new spring hats, just received at the millinery foundry, and you were so interested you forgot the lapse of time, and didn't get home in time to cook anything. But you flashed a winning smile at me, and said it wouldn't take you ten minutes to warm up a can of beans, and there was some cold coffee left from breakfast, and you had plenty of smoked herrings on hand."

"Doubtless I should have burst forth into boisterous laughter over this entertaining anecdote, but somehow it didn't appeal to my sense of humor. I was so busy that day I hadn't time to eat anything at noon, and all the way home I was hoping you would have a porterhouse steak about three inches thick, and a raft of boiled potatoes, and perhaps a slab of mince pie as an epilogue."

"The day before that, when I came home as hollow as a bass drum, and fairly gnashing my teeth with hunger, you related a humorous story to the effect that your club didn't adjourn on time that afternoon, and you didn't get home until late, so I would have to get along with a picked-up supper. If I would be patient a few minutes, you said, to make the story seem more spicy, you would boil an egg for me, and there was cold corn bread in the cupboard."

"Such stories, Mrs. Jamesworthy, may seem highly amusing to an innocent bystander, and I have no doubt they would make a great hit if written up, and printed in London Punch, but there is something wrong with my sense of humor, or I am at the wrong end of the stories. Anyhow, I can't gurgie over them as I do over Honeybug's yarns."

NORTH BRANCH

Mrs. Cole and son and wife visited with Mrs. Taft Sunday.

Mrs. Burnham, from Connecticut, is visiting at Mrs. S. J. Pope's.

Mrs. Boyle's mother, from Vermont, is with her for the summer.

Mrs. O. A. Sutherland entertained her sister and husband for the week end.

Mrs. R. F. Hunt entertained all of her children and families for the holiday.

Mrs. A. G. Simonds entertained her daughters and families for the week end.

Mrs. H. P. Conn and daughter, Nora, were at M. P. McIlvin's for the week end.

Mrs. A. L. Cunningham has returned to her home, after spending the winter in Boston.

Harry Richardson entertained his mother and his sister and husband for over the holiday.

The Ladies' Circle will have their regular supper at the chapel June 7. As usual all are welcome.

Mrs. Louise Crombie entertained her nephew and family, from Manchester, for Memorial Day.

Mrs. Curtis, from Boston, has been visiting her friend, Mrs. Viola Borland at the "Seven Maples."

Mrs. M. P. McIlvin recently received 75 baby chicks by parcel post, from Cleveland, Ohio, only one being dead; the rest were in good condition. This surely speaks well for our parcel post service.

Miss Charter, Miss Mary Linton and Raymond Grant have been entertaining the chicken pox the past week. Possibly they would be glad to sell their interest in the chicken industry to the parties who are interested in the business.

The regular correspondent of the Branch has been rather on the back seat with so many new reporters in evidence, and is glad it's no worse than a young chicken too young to leave the home nest. Better luck next time, for we understand that the party visited is not in the poultry business now.

Memorial Day was observed at the chapel, as usual, with exercises by the children. Owing to an epidemic in the school, not as many were present, but the girls who did take part were deserving special mention in the commendable way they took their parts. Thanks are due Mr. W. K. Flint for his usual refreshments which are always appreciated by everyone.

Telling the Story Over and Over Again Succeeds

No better reason for persistency in advertising could be advanced than the statement of Samuel Merwin, the novelist, who remarks in one of his recent books that "most people can't appreciate a good thing unless they are told it is good."

There are many firms that can testify as to the truth of this statement, notably the once heavy advertisers like the makers of a proprietary soap who after half a century of persistent talking on the goodness of their product decided to quit advertising and do business on their well established reputation, only to find, at tremendous cost, that it couldn't be done.

The way to create sales demand is to keep the story of what you are offering persistently in a place where prospective customers will always see it; impress it upon their minds until its name and worth become a part of their regular thoughts.

At the same time it should be remembered that every newspaper reader who is susceptible to the advertising appeal, who must be worked on by the advertiser continuously to get the maximum of results.

His Status

"Why, he is one of the big copper kings."

Miss Maude Rice and lady friend, from Boston, spent the week end at her bungalow on Highland avenue.

William H. Hurlin, of Haverhill, Mass., spent a few days the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Hurlin.

The Memorial Day exercises in the schools were held on Friday afternoon of last week and were in every way very creditably given.

Mrs. E. D. Putnam is in Boston with her father, Mr. Hill, who is at a hospital for an operation. Friends hope for a speedy and permanent recovery.

HILLSBORO

Mrs. John B. Smith, of Boston, has opened her summer home here for the season.

The Legion cooperated with the Sons of Veterans and G. A. R. in the program for Memorial Day. On Sunday the Legion attended Smith Memorial church in a body.

Alfred Willgeroth, who has been in Germany for the past six years studying music, leaves this month for his home here. It is expected that he will arrive the latter part of June.

A woman's auxiliary to Gleason Young Post, American Legion, has been formed, and the following officers elected:

THE SURPRISE PARTY

"OLD Singlefoot is going to celebrate his golden wedding tomorrow," said the assessor; "we are planning to give him a surprise party, and would like you to go along."

"You couldn't drag me there with a team of government mules," replied the village patriarch. "About the meanest trick you can play a man is to spring a surprise party on him."

"There is no serious objection to a surprise party when the victim is warned in advance, although, as I have shown, it encourages skulduggery and hypocrisy, for no man can be thoroughly honest who pretends amazement over a visit he has been planning for."

"But the genuine surprise party is an outrage, and people who resort to it should be severely punished. There's nothing more humiliating to a self-respecting man than to have a whole neighborhood blow into his dwelling when he isn't looking for it."

"When I am at home I sacrifice everything to personal comfort. I take off my shoes and collar and necktie, and roll up my shirtsleeves and slip my suspenders down over my arms. I don't care how I look if I am feeling at ease."

"Some months ago my wife casually remarked to a neighbor that my birthday would occur on the following Wednesday, and that neighbor, being a confirmed busybody, got busy and organized a surprise party."

"I never received the faintest hint of the scheduled catastrophe, and on the evening of my birthday I was lying on the floor of the sitting room, with about a hundred newspapers around me. My wife was wearing an old wrapper, and was popping corn on the kitchen stove. There was nobody else in the house, and we had no idea visitors would come, for it was a bad night."

"About eight o'clock, just when I was thinking of going to bed, there was a knock at the front door. My wife thought it was some boy on an errand so she went to the door with a stovehook in one hand, and the corn popper in the other, and she gave a shriek of anguish when she saw the mass meeting on the front porch. The minute the door was open all those delegates pushed themselves in, smiling and giggling as though they were doing something mighty funny."

"Our house hadn't been in such disorder in twenty years. It looked as though a couple of amateur teams had been playing basketball in it. My wife and I began apologizing and explaining, as people will do under such conditions, although they know that nobody will believe what they say; the guests assured us that it was all right, but I could see them squinting around and making mental notes for future reference, and inside of a week the story was all over town that our house was a fright, and no respectable cow could live in it."

"That was the most miserable evening I ever spent, my friends, and I have never forgiven the people who took part in that uprising. And you may be sure I'll never treat another man as I was treated."

Lost Note Redeemed. A soldier presented himself at the commonwealth treasury in Melbourne, Australia, and said, "I am a 20-pound note, and want to be cashed."

A Bad Crash. Peters—I hear Randall got kicked out of the house when he asked old Walters for the hand of his daughter. Was he hurt much? Pölsner—Yes. He reckons he came out so fast that he collided with himself going in.—Answers, London.

In Any Trade. "A dress designer," says a Camomile street dressmaker in the London News, "must be born." We always think this is an advantage.—Punch, London.

In Moderation. "Would you advise a candidate to stay on his front porch?" "Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "but only part of the time; just long enough to take care of his voice and get together a good bunch of speeches for delivery on tour."

Economy. "Here is a fine tonic which will quickly bring back your husband's appetite." "Dear me, doctor, I've been getting along so fine with my market money since he lost his appetite."—Boston Transcript.
