FROM WASHINGTON

Some of the Doings Our People Like to Know

The Washington Post comments: "It is noteworthy that, while German imports into Brazil have been reduced, German trade representatives continue their activities and are quoting prices on electrical goods, iron and steel products and chemicals less by from 20 to 75 percent than American manufacturers can afford to offer."

Argentina presents a somewhat brighter picture. There imports are decreasing and exports increasing. But, even in Argentina, imports from the United States are hard hit both by the rate of exchange and the accumulation of stocks. United States manufacturers are also placed at a decided disadvantage by the competition they have to meet, for Belgian and German quotations for future delivery average 50 percent less than American prices.

It may be easy for some folks to get rich "in the movies," and one of the methods toward this kind of riches is in the sale of moving picture stock which is being offered to investors and gullibles. The woods are full of fly-by-night promoters, and experience shows that their stocks and rat-holes possess almost an equal degree of security.

A statement by the Geological Survey says that production of bituminous coal for the month of July is placed at 30,394,000 tons, a decrease of 3,502,000 below the revised figure for June. The average production per working day declined from 1,301,000 tons in June to 1,216,000 in July. The output in July, 1921, was smaller than in any July of recent years.

An engineer's analysis of Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals property held (unofficially) by the Government indicates that the completion of the Wilson dam and other projects would set Uncle Sam back about $60,000,000 of new money, for which Mr. Ford offers to pay for the property, $28,000,000.

The further offer of Mr. Ford to pay the Government $5,000,000 for various properties covers expenditures of over $86,000,000 already made by the Government.

It is claimed that the only benefit which the Government secures for taking these losses and transferring these properties to Mr. Ford is the agreement that the latter will maintain the nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals for furnishing explosives in time of war.

The House has passed the Graham bill to impose a tax of 90 percent on all goods sold by the War Department abroad after the war and now reimported to this country. The Government of France bought most of these goods at knock-down prices, and now seeks to re-ship them to this country and do a little profiteering on them.

Attorney General Daugherty has urged the House Judiciary Committee to recommend enactment of law to prevent former Government employees and officers prosecuting claims against it until they have been out of office at least three years.

Corps of Teachers

The schools will open Sept. 12, with the following teachers:

Headmaster—William M. Heflye, Lynn, Mass.

English—Miss Helen W. Crawford, Lancaster, N. H.

Domestic Arts—Miss Hazel F. Lougee, Hollis, N. H.

Grammar School—Miss Hattie E. Merrill, Deerfield, N. H.

Intermediate—Miss Charlotte E. Balch, Bennington, N. H.

Primary—Miss Bernice I. Buxton, Bristol, N. H.

Center School—Miss Alice E. Cuddihy, Antrim.

False Statement!

It has been falsely rumored that the admission price to the Hillsboro County Fair was doubled this year. We wish to state that the admission fee is the same as last year: 55¢ for adults, and 30¢ for children.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

It is given out that Maine and Massachusetts do not require women to pay poll tax. New Hampshire does and that by state law. Again we are reminded of the odd saying: there is just as much difference in people as there is in anybody.

The editor of the Reporter has been favored with a copy of the 1920 Year Book of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, from United States Senator Henry W. Keyes of our own Granite State. This book is full of valuable information and treats of matters of great interest to the agriculturist and every other person who realizes the prosperity of the farmer has much to do with the prosperity of the nation.

In the large gathering at the lawn party on Friday evening last, it was noticed that a few did not show respect by removing their hats when the Star Spangled Banner was being played by the band. Everybody must know that these were men for the female portion of the crowd did not wear hats. This is a small thing of course but should always have the thoughtful consideration of every person. We hope not to ever again notice such a mark of disrespect.

The tenth annual forestry conference, under the auspices of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, cooperating with the New Hampshire Forestry Commission, and the twentieth annual meeting of the Society for Protection of Forests, will be held at the Deer Park hotel, North Woodstock, this state, August 31 and Sept. 1. A National Forest Policy will be the central topic for discussion. The gradual approach of a timber shortage has caused two bills to be introduced in Congress, known as the Snell Bill and the Copper Bill, each proposing by different methods to regulate henceforth the cutting of timber throughout the United States so as to secure on forest land the return of a forest crop. Both bills will be discussed at this meeting by speakers of national prominence.

A few days ago the postmasters of Colorado sent a challenge to the postmasters of New Hampshire through John T. Wayland, Government Director, Savings Division, Tenth Federal Reserve District, to a contest in the sale of Government Savings securities between the two states; to end on November 30, 1921. This challenge was promptly accepted on behalf of the postmasters of New Hampshire by F. C. Ayres, Government director, Savings Division, First Federal Reserve District, after consultation with George E. Farrand, Postmaster at Concord. It will be interesting to follow this contest as it progresses, and inasmuch as it is not only for the welfare of the people but also of our government we heartily endorse the movement. Let's all go to it and show our western friends what the good old "Granite State" can do, and let Antrim and vicinity do its part.

LADIES' AUXILIARY

Lawn Party a Pronounced Success Every Way

The lawn party by the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion was held on Friday afternoon and evening, on the lawn of G. D. Tibbets, M. D.. The affair was a success from every point of view and the general committee in charge, as well as their assistants, have every reason to feel proud of their efforts. This was their first attempt at anything of this kind and their faithful work in preparation and on the day of the event was amply rewarded.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the sale of fancy articles, food, candy, ice cream, etc., began and for a couple hours there were busy times. The weather was fine and the crowd was large, so everything progressed satisfactorily.

At eight in the evening the Hillsboro band gave their first number of the concert, and a larger company of people on a similar occasion we have not had in Antrim in a long time. By actual count there were upwards of a hundred automobiles on the street and possibly near a thousand people were present. The band gave a fine concert which was very pleasing to everybody.

We are expected to say something nice about the gypsy fortune teller, Miss Gertrude Jameson, who performed this difficult role in a most pleasing manner.

The total receipts of the afternoon and evening were around $206, and the expenses would figure up to about $75. The net sum to be added to the Auxiliary treasury of $125 is very good for an occasion of this kind.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, through the columns of the Antrim Reporter, wish to extend their thanks to all who so generously contributed and assisted in making the Lawn Party a success.

Auction Sales

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim

Arthur S. Waite, having sold his house and being about to move to California, will sell at his residence, 8 Kimball street, Concord, N. H., on Wednesday, August 31, at 12.30 o'clock in the afternoon, a lot of antiques and household furniture. This is an extra fine lot of goods and the household furniture is practically new, having been bought within three years. For further particulars and a partial list of the articles offered for sale read auction bills.

Having decided to go out of the farming business and rent his buildings, Fred N. Colby will sell a lot of personal property, at his residence in Converseville, in the town of Rindge, on Friday, August 26, at nine o'clock in the forenoon. This lot of goods includes one pair of good farm horses, a lot of large and small farming tools, all kinds of household goods, and some antiques. Further particulars on auction bills.

Mrs. Jessie C. Colburn, executrix of the will of the late Lucinda Q. Russell, will sell at the old Russell place, on Russell hill, in Deering, on Saturday, Sept. 3, at 12.30 o'clock p. m., a lot of personal property, consisting of household goods mostly, and some of them are antiques. For a partial list of the articles read auction bills.

Death of James T. Weston

James T. Weston, a writer of some prominence, is dead at his home in Hancock. He has been out of health for a number years.

He was born in Stoddard May 25, 1860, the son of William and Sarah Wilder Weston. His early home was on the ancestral Weston homestead in Antrim, west of Robb mountain. He lived there after 1867 with the exception of a short time spent in Keene and travels in the Maine woods.

In 1891 he married Emma Coolidge of Hancock and their home has always been in that town.

His wife, a daughter, Mrs. Frank West, a grand-daughter, a sister, Miss Sarah Weston, two brothers, Ephraim Weston of Hancock, and Rev. William Weston of Marlboro, survive.

Clinton News

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson and aunt, from Dorchester, Mass., have taken the Waumbek cottage, arriving Saturday for the rest of the season. They were joined Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Holton, from Dorchester.

There will be a special meeting of Antrim Grange Wednesday, Aug. 31, for the purpose of working the third and fourth degrees. The regular meeting, Sept. 7, will be Neighbors' Night and Greenfield Grange has accepted an invitation to be present and furnish the entertainment.

An event of interest to Clinton people took place at the parsonage in Hancock last Thursday evening when Lucellus Thurston and Miss Eunice Loveren were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Pipkin. This ceremony was followed by the marriage of Matthew N. Cuddihy and Miss Hazel B. Locke; all are young people from this neighborhood. Both couples intend making their homes here. Mr. and Mrs. Cuddihy will live in their new home, which they have purchased from Mrs. Leona Tenney.

Resolutions of Respect

Whereas, Antrim Grange, No. 98, has sustained a loss of our sister from our membership, by death, and whereas we as a Grange shall greatly miss her at our gatherings from time to time, and whereas, Sister Emily Tuttle has been for a long time a member of the Grange, therefore

Resolved, that Antrim Grange take due notice of her departure from this life and that we trust in her removal from our associations we as Grangers, will learn the lesson while here of Faith, Hope and Charity as good Grangers.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Grange, be printed in the Antrim Reporter, and a copy be sent to the family of our sister.

VALUES

By CAROL FARMER.

(By 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Alice swayed unhesitatingly with every movement of the elevated train, too weary even to try to protect herself from the jolts caused by the proximity of her fellow sufferers. Despite her pallor and evident exhaustion, her face shone flower-like above her shabby hair.

"Tired, Alice?"

Her companion clumsily tried to steady her as she was almost swept off her feet between the human mad-strom, those fighting to get out and those getting on, like two mighty streams, each determined to have the right of way.

The girl felt that if he touched her again she would scream. Tonight more than ever she seemed to typify all the things she hated with every fiber of her being, all the sorrows which so far had made up her life.

All about her was the same spathy; the self-evident signs of a struggle for a roof over one's head and enough to cover one's nakedness of body if not of spirit. She tried to bring her hard-won philosophy into play.

She had her health and Joe, and a momentary pang of compunction smote her. In all the world he was the only one who really cared anything about her. To all the hustling, pushing throng she was nothing but a mere atom.

In the deep recesses of her soul she knew that in marrying Joe she was not being true to her higher self. She knew it would mean the end of all her striving for some of the beauty and joy of life. No matter how hard she tried she could never take him upward and onward with her; she would have to come down to his level. While he secretly admired and stood in awe of her "notions," as he called them, they were entirely beyond his comprehension.

When she allowed herself to think, Alice despised herself for giving up the struggle so ignobly. But she was so tired of the eternal loneliness, the terrifying abyssal loneliness, her cheerless room, with its musty dampness and single gas jet, of the bargain basement with its tight-skirted, gum-chewing, rouged prisoners, with whom she felt so inadequate to cope. And Joe seemed to offer her the only escape, her only succor. Dull, plodding, yet he could give her physical companionship, a home better than she could win for herself, and mitigate the ever-present specter of the wolf on her horizon.

But her dreams; they could never be anything else but dreams, and she would have to dream alone. So they were to be married the next day.

Suddenly, she looked down straight into the eyes of a woman who was the very essence of all her visions. Swale, beautifully gowned, with the pride of race in every line, she looked as out of place in that throng as a lily in a potato patch. And as their eyes clung for one long moment, Alice envied with an envy that was as poignant as a knife in an open wound.

Lella had dropped breathlessly into a seat, her pulses tingling with a new excitement, rather childishly proud of the fact that she, among all that awful crush, had secured a seat. Not that she was tired, for she had been at a matinee all afternoon and as usual had stepped directly into her luxurious limousine, waiting for her at the close of the performance. But midway the car had broken down and she had taken a sudden fancy to go home on the cars. The experience at this hour was a unique one, something beyond her ken.

What lay behind all this struggle for a seat, even for a foothold, meant nothing to her. She could not even sense the crushing weariness of the tired-eyed women and perspiring men. For Lella had had ease and beauty and luxury all her life and she had married for more ease and luxury. But she had had her dreams, too—such wonderful dreams of a gallant lover, a tender comrade and laughing little children—a life above the selfish, indolent life a worldly mother had forced on her. And she, too, had had to give up her dreams; had watched them drift away day by day like little errant silver clouds overpowered by gold and might.

For instead of a gallant lover she had married a power; instead of a comrade, a money-making machine; and instead of encircling little arms and childish prattle, there was a big house whose rooms seemed filled with a haunting quiet that thrilled her soul.

For the first time in many weeks she felt exhilarated, she forgot her boredom; forgot that she was going home to a silent dinner to sit opposite a husband who thought that women were only dolls to be bought and paid for and looked upon as a symbol of a man's material success. These people all about her—what interests they must have, what strivings for dreams not yet fulfilled, what glorious hopes. She watched hungrily the tender solicitude of the man for the pretty girl who stood before her, and her mind painted glowing pictures of their future together. Oh, to be once again at the threshold of youth and love, out of her golden prison, free to choose and dream again, even as this girl.

And as the car rounded a curve and Alice's slim body was shielded by the protective embrace of the man by her side, Lella envied with an envy that was more bitter than gall and wormwood.

EAST ANTRIM

Oscar Hill is assisting Walter Knapp with his haying.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Appleton visited at C. D. White's last week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Cochran were Hillsboro visitors the first of the week.

Otis Tuttle, of Fall River, was at home to attend the funeral of his mother.

Mrs. A. L. Perry and grand-daughter, Abi Young, visited with Mrs. G. F. Trank a portion of last week.

Ed. Welch and family have returned to their home in Hackensack, N. J., after a two weeks' vacation with his niece, Mrs. Walter Knapp.

MRS. EMILY TUTTLE

The sudden death of Mrs. Emily Tuttle which occurred Aug. 16, was a great shock to the entire community, she having been ill but two days.

Mrs. Tuttle was Emily M. Pike and was born Feb. 25, 1861; she married Horace B. Tuttle Jan. 10, 1883. One son was born to them, Edison H., who has always resided at home and was a devoted son. She had also one step-son, Otis, who resides in Fall River, Mass.

Mrs. Tuttle was for many years a member of the Presbyterian church and an active worker in both church and Sunday School. She was also a member of the Grange.

Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church, with prayer at the home, Rev. W. J. B. Camell of the Baptist church officiating, in the absence of Dr. Cameron. Besides the sons mentioned there is one sister, Mrs. Clara Brooks, of Hancock, and many friends to mourn her loss. Much sympathy is felt for all, especially the son at home.

HILLSBORO

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rees, of Somerville, Mass., are visiting at the home of Charles Perry.

Louis P. Aldrich, of Great Barrington, Mass., is visiting his mother, Mrs. Elsie Aldrich.

Lester Landon and family are passing a vacation in New York state and Portland, Me.

Arthur Woodhead, of Lebanon, has been visiting his father, Abraham Woodhead.

Rev. and Mrs. Frank A. Beal, of Judson Memorial church, New York City, have been visiting friends in town.

Repairs have been made on the Contoocook mills dam, and it is hoped that the mill will start up next month. It has practically been closed since April 30.

A liking for silk hosiery proved the downfall of Mrs. Alma Moffett, of Hillsboro, who was before Judge Brown in the municipal court in Concord last Wednesday morning, charged with larceny. It is claimed the goods were taken from the Coolidge store in Henniker. A search of her room in Hillsboro revealed nine pairs of silk stockings, sixteen nightdresses and other articles valued around $100. Mrs. Moffett was ordered to pay a fine of $50 and costs of $56.50, and 30 days in jail. Sentence was suspended upon payment of costs.

GREENFIELD

Mrs. Emma Dixon, of Horner, N. Y., is a guest of Mrs. Ella C. Hopkins.

The Girl Scouts passed last Wednesday afternoon at Sunset Lake.

Miss Lena Conant, of Contoocook, has been a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gage.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beane, of Everett, Mass., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Will French.

Mrs. Fred Brooks and son, Paul, passed last week with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Savage, at Ossipee.

Miss Doris Hopkins is entertaining Miss Florence Foster, of Horner, N. Y.

John K. Felch has been in town for a few days.

Miss Judith Anderson is the new telephone operator.

Mrs. E. H. Clover and daughter, Margaret, are visiting relatives in Pennsylvania.

THAT'S OUR IDEA in making CAMELS—the Quality Cigarette.

Why, just buy Camels and look at the package! It's the best packing science has devised to keep cigarettes fresh and full flavored for your taste. Heavy paper outside—secure foil wrapping inside and the revenue stamp over the end to seal the package and keep it air-tight.

And note this! There's nothing flashy about the Camel package. No extra wrappings that do not improve the smoke. Not a cent of needless expense that must come out of the quality of the tobacco.

Camels wonderful and exclusive Quality wins on merit alone.

Because, men smoke Camels who want the taste and fragrance of the finest tobaccos, expertly blended. Men smoke Camels for Camels smooth, refreshing mildness and their freedom from cigarette aftertaste.

Camels are made for men who think for themselves.

Prominent Men to Gather for Forestry Meet

The tenth annual forestry conference, under the auspices of the Society for the Protection of the New Hampshire Commission and the twenty-second annual meeting of the Society for Protection of Forests, will be held at No. Woodstock August 31 and September 1.

Selectman Howe of Claremont Dies

Selectman John M. Howe, who suffered a shock recently while out automobile, died last week.

Gives Warning to Housewives

Calling attention to the dangerous condition that has arisen from the wide sale of inflammable cleaning liquids for home use, Fire Chief Spring of Laconia cautioned the housewives of Laconia to exercise the greatest care in purchasing such cleansers, and issued a warning to local druggists and others against selling such hazardous compounds.

Belmont Hosiery Mills to Start

The Belmont Hosiery mills at Belmont, formerly owned by the Ipswich Hosiery Company, have been purchased by Walter F. Duffy of Franklin and his brother, George E. Duffy of Worcester, Mass., both prominent figures in the New England manufacturing industries, and England manufacturing industries, and will be opened late in the fall if possible.

No Appointment Yet of New Prison Warden

While Governor Brown attended the meeting of the board of trustees at the state prison, no public announcement of an appointment of a new warden to succeed Walter Coggeshall was made. No action was taken on the resignation of Prison Physician Russell Wilkins. The full board were in attendance at the meeting. The next meeting will be held August 31.

Too Many Applicants for Phillips Exeter

Hundreds of applicants for admission to the Phillips Exeter academy have been turned down, and it is safe to predict that fully as many will be refused as gain admission. If all were admitted the enrollment when the school opens in September would probably be about 1,200 students, which would make it next to Dartmouth in numbers.

Conditions Better, Says Comm. Davis

John S. B. Davis, State Commissioner of Labor, has given out figures of unemployment in New Hampshire as of June 1 since which time conditions have changed considerably for the better. Reports as of that date from 615 plants normally employing 68,820 persons showed 53,946 at work. In Concord 36 establishments employing under normal conditions 3859 persons reported 1274 idle. Since June 1 one local plant, then entirely shut down, has started up, and large building operations have given employment to many of those then reported as idle.

May Name One of White Mountains

The Presidential range of the White Mountains may have an annex as a result of a movement started in Lancaster for a permanent reminder of President Harding's recent vacation visit. A suggestion which is meeting with favor is that Mt. Prospect, one of the Mt. Mansfield peaks between Lancaster and Whitefield, be renamed Mt. Harding. Whether this will be done may depend largely on the attitude of Secretary of War Weeks, who wins most of the mountain and in whose summer home on the summit President Harding was a guest for five days of relaxation from White House duties.

Portsmouth Gets Job Repairing Warship

According to one of the high officers at the Charlestown Navy Yard, the transfer of the Chattanooga to the Portsmouth Navy Yard is nothing that the workmen should become alarmed over, as the transfer is only temporary. Under Navy regulations a copper-bottom ship, such as the Chattanooga, is not to be berthed within 250 feet of a ship of the steel type on account of the danger to the latter. It was discovered that the farthest ship at the yard of the steel class away from the Chattanooga was only 100 feet away, and steps were taken immediately to move her. At Portsmouth the Chattanooga will be anchored alongside the Des Moines, which has a copper bottom. When the time comes for repairing the Chattanooga she will be returned to the Charlestown yard as Boston is still her home yard.

Lisbon Barn Burns With 40 Tons of Hay

For the first time in the 70 years in which John B. Atwood has lived on his hill farm, a short distance above Lisbon village, he has lost a building by fire. The 100 feet long barn owned by himself and son, Herbert E., suddenly broke into flames without any apparent cause, and was burned to the ground with 40 tons of hay, a large amount of grain, two gasoline engines and a car. There was no live stock in the barn at the time.

Small Boy Manages to Kill

The old reliable spring that has lunched the thirst of hundreds of people during its known existence of over half a century, is no longer turning a refreshing drink to the weary travelers of East Bay St., Tilton, since it is alleged a boy of that section poured kerosene oil into it and the mixture is quite unpalatable.

Query Arises Over Liquors

It is an important question with the Federal officials just now whether or not the 25 bottles of whiskey and gin found in the drug store of W. P. Underhill on Main st., Concord, by Federal Agents George H. Wickett and Inspector Christie and Hickey, when they made a visit to the store, is a part of the stock which was left when Mr. Underhill's permit was revoked in April, 1920.

Underhill claims the liquor has been in his store since the above date. Sheriff Wooster stated that at the time the permit was revoked he checked up the liquor on hand and thought the number of bottles tallied with the amount he checked up and sealed.

Senate Sick And Tired Of Anti-Saloon League Dictation

United States Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire with a party of Portsmouth friends, visited York Beach, Me. in an interview given at the Kearsarge Hotel, where he died as the guest of Manager Joseph Geisel. Senator Moses said that he thinks the United States Senate is tired and sick of the dictation of the Anti-Saloon League.

On no other theory, he added, can he explain the unprecedentedly large vote which the Senate has recently cast against the so-called Anti-Beer Bill, which the Senator said would be more properly described as a bill to make Congress the censor of the medical profession and to put Congress into every kitchen to analyze the favoring extracts used in housewives.

Newton Breaks Into "Champ" Pullet Class

Accounts which have been printed of the exceptional performances of early laying pullets have created much interest in Newton, where Mrs. Walter L. Stickey of "The Elms" has a pullet whose laying townspeople believe to be unusual. The pullet, a Barred Plymouth Rock, was not perhaps so early to lay, but her yield has been larger than is customary.

The Pullet was Hatched on March 9, and by Aug. 12 had laid 18 eggs.

Concord, N. H. has produced the earliest laying pullet reported to date, in one owned by Thomas J. Miles. He has a hen which was hatched Feb. 17 started laying within four days of four months, on June 13. Mrs. Leslie R. Pierce of Greenwich Village, Mass., reported a pure bred Barred Plymouth Rock that was hatched March 27 and laid its first egg July 30, when four months and three days old.

From East Bluehill, Me., came the record of the performance of A. J. Grindie's entry which was hatched on March 9, and laid an egg four months and 17 days later, on July 26.

State Board May Start College Extension Work

A division of university extension to provide courses of instruction through correspondence or school classes in liberal arts and vocational subjects may be created within the state board of education this fall, in conformity to the terms of a joint resolution passed by both branches of the last legislature, according to the contents of a letter from Commissioner of Education E. W. Butterfield received by Representative William F. Howes recently.

The measure providing for the creation of the division was one of the last to be passed by the senate and house and signed by the governor. Its provisions do not make it mandatory upon the state board of education to create the division, but requests that it expend a sum not to exceed $2,000 "for instituting as a part of the work of the board of division of university extension." The resolution was introduced by Mr. Howes.

Wilfrid J. Lessard, a member of the board, says that a mass of business which required immediate attention, principally the budget which occupied considerable time, thus far has prevented the board from giving the attention necessary before any definite plans can be formulated.

It seems assured now, however, since receipt of the letter by Mr. Howes from Commissioner Butterfield that the matter will be taken up at once and that some definite program

Uncle Walt's Story is a collection of tales for the rising generation. It is a book that will provide for the education of youths who desire a college education but cannot afford it. They would be guided by the best thoughts of professors in surrounding colleges in selecting their material for reading and would gather other valuable knowledge from lectures which would be delivered two or three times a week.

Scott Held For Grand Jury At Concord

"Col" Charles E. Scott arraigned in Municipal Court, Concord, on two counts for passing worthless checks. He was held in $800 bonds by Judge Harry J. Brown for the October Grand Jury and went to jail.

Students To Judge Cattle

Agricultural College Teams to Compete For Permanent Trophy

Realizing that students in the Eastern agricultural schools and colleges do not have the opportunities offered their cousins of the West to judge thoroughbred stock, the Eastern States Exposition management in Springfield, Mass., has completed plans to repeat its intercollegiate livestock judging contest at this year's exposition, Sept. 18 to 2. Individual students and teams representing various agricultural colleges in the East will have the privilege of passing upon the merits of the leading livestock offerings of the country.

Two separate contests will take place this year as last, one for judging dairy cattle and one for judging beef cattle, horses, sheep and swine. In addition to the handsome silver trophies to be held by the institutions whose teams win the contests, cash prizes amounting to $300 and several medals are being offered.

The trophy to go to the winning team in the dairy judging contest is offered by the four dairy breed associations, namely: The Holstein, Jersey, Ayrshire and Guernsey, while the exposition offers the trophy in the other contests. Each of these trophies must be won three times by a team from the same institution before it becomes its permanent property.

The Connecticut Agricultural College won the dairy contest last year, and the Penn. State College carried off the honors in the beef department. G. H. Bedell, national stockman and farmer, of Harrisburg, Penn., has been reappointed director of the contest.

Dr. Artault de Vevey told the society de Therapeutique de Paris at a recent meeting that he had had great success in treating nearly a thousand cases of infectious diseases such as influenza and purpural fever by injecting the patient with his own lymph drawn from a blister. He had also succeeded with it in rheumatism, cholera, facial neuritis, appendicitis and other such troubles.

THE RISING GENERATION

"I WONDER what sort of men and women the children of today will make" sighed the professor. "They all seem to have the idea that amusement is the one thing that is important. They spend their days and evenings on the streets, in theaters, or in automobiles. I don't see how they can grow up with any serious sense of the responsibilities of life."

"I suppose there ought to be a law," rejoined the low-browed man. "It is time to call a halt. Well may we ask, whither are we drifting?"

But, to tell the truth, I'm not losing any sleep over that proposition. I have the idea that the kids of this generation will stack up as high as any you ever knew. Among them there are several presidents of the United States, and innumerable congressmen and postmasters, and perhaps one or two Shakespeares.

"I've noticed that the old boys always view with alarm where the kids are concerned. It was that way when I was young. The boys of our neighborhood formed a gang, and we used to assemble every evening for diversion. There were no automobiles or movies then. Our pleasures were of the cheap but filling kind. In the winter, when there was snow, we took our hand sleds and had great sport. Our parents found it impossible to get us to do any useful work when the sleighing was good, and said parents used to get pretty despondent over it."

"I have heard my father say a hundred times that the boys of that period were not worth the powder that would blow them off the landscape. 'All they think of is fun,' he used to say, so discouraged he could hardly stand it. 'When I was young,' he'd go on, 'children understood that amusement was merely incidental, not an end in itself. When I was ten years old I used to save all the wood used by the family, and carry buckets of water from a spring two miles away, and milk fourteen cows, and carry eight horses, and polish the stove, and hang out the week's washing, and when I had a few minutes to spare I sat down and read a good book, so that when I was twelve years old I knew the unabridged dictionary by heart. But the boys of the present day won't do anything useful or profitable unless you stand over them with a club.'"

"Father used to talk that way all the time, until I got sick of hearing him. My grandfather was alive then, and he felt worse about it than dad did. He used to say he'd be jiggered if he could see anything ahead of such boys as he knew, but the fall or the poorhouse. All we cared for was a good time."

"It was the same way at school. If a boy was half an hour late in the morning, because he got interested in a game of marbles on his way to school, the teacher would say he never did see such a frivolous bunch as the boys of that generation were, and then he'd take down a small sapling from the wall and larrup the student until his troubled soul was soothed."

"All the old graybeards were agreed that the boys of the neighborhood were headed for the everlasting bonfire, and we were always being lectured and flogged and held up as horrible examples. Yet, the most of us did pretty well. I am the only one I can recall who didn't make a shining success of life. I am grand worthy custodian of my aunt's cows. I might have risen to a greater height, but I was crossed in love when I was young. A man doesn't recover from an experience like that. He loses his ambition to be president, and is satisfied to peddle milk. "But Freddie Biker, became a successful book agent, and has his own motorcycle; Jim Gangling studied law and finally was appointed notary public by the governor; Charlie Ormiston also studied law, and got a job on the police force; Oliver Messway is the best southpaw pitcher in the cross-country league, yet the old fossils used to say he would come to a bad end; then there was—" "Spare me the ghastly details," urged the professor.

DENIES WOMAN IS MYSTERY

Man is Puzzling Himself for Nothing. Is Assertion Made by Writer of Gentle Sex.

After declaring to the reporters who met him in New York that the women of today care for nothing but having a good time and have assumed an attitude of pagan enjoyment, the English essayist, Gilbert K. Chesterton, is reported as moving majestically along the pier shaking hands with the custom officers and leaving Mrs. Chesterton to see about the baggage.

"My wife understands these things: I don't," he said, with a sweep of his stick.

It is evident from the report that, although woman may have changed much since before the war, as Mr. Chesterton says, some of the oldtime masculine attitude toward them remains. May Stranathan writes in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. In further proof of this, the Englishman goes on to speak in the same old prewar way about the psychology of women, using the familiar words, "I speak reverently as of a mystery, for a man never knows what a woman will do," and then he tells how she will act under certain circumstances.

The mystery about it is not in the psychology of woman, but in the fact that, having supposed that a woman would act in the way most natural to all humanity, he thinks it is mysterious because a woman does it. He describes a man as likely to act the same way under similar circumstances, but does not see any mystery in the masculine point of view.

Hear Heart Yards Away

An amplifying apparatus described as so delicate as to permit a physician in one city to make a stethoscopic study of the heart action of a patient hundreds of miles away, was demonstrated to a group of army and civilian medical men at the army signal corps laboratories at Washington. The principle involved is similar to that used in transmitting President Harding's inaugural address. The demonstration was directed by Brig. Gen. George Squier, chief signal officer. The stethoscopic apparatus, with electrical connection, was placed over the heart of one of the laboratory assistants and the heart beat was amplified many thousands of times, emerging from a phonograph horn and heard distinctly and studied by the physicians in a room some distance from that in which the subject was located.

Making of a Language

That the slang and idioms of today will be correct English tomorrow is the opinion of Prof. H. Glicksman of the English department, University of Wisconsin. "Our language is made up of what was once slang, idiom, colloquialism and jargon," he said lately, and warned that the only deplorable feature about slang was its tendency to produce mental slovenliness. Professor Glicksman then referred to the word "mob" as slang of 200 years ago and as such denounced in the "Spectator" by Addison. "It is an abbreviation of the word 'mobile.' Even so the word 'pop' is vital and virile and will survive with the word 'snappy.' But to gain recognition slang must be free from vulgarity and cheapness," said Professor Glicksman.

He Didn't Fall Far

Tinner—Yesterday I fell off an 18-foot ladder. Lady—Mercy! You might have killed yourself. Tinner—Naw, it was only from the second step I dropped.

Same Color, Anyway

Mr. Flatbush—I was just upstairs, dear, looking at baby, and I do believe he's got your hair. Mrs. Flatbush—Mercy on us, Henry! I thought I had put that switch out of the dear little fellow's reach!"

DENIES WOMAN IS MYSTERY

Man is Puzzling Himself for Nothing. Is Assertion Made by Writer of Gentle Sex.

After declaring to the reporters who met him in New York that the women of today care for nothing but having a good time and have assumed an attitude of pagan enjoyment, the English essayist, Gilbert K. Chesterton, is reported as moving majestically along the pier shaking hands with the custom officers and leaving Mrs. Chesterton to see about the baggage.

"My wife understands these things: I don't," he said, with a sweep of his stick.

It is evident from the report that, although woman may have changed much since before the war, as Mr. Chesterton says, some of the oldtime masculine attitude toward them remains. May Stranathan writes in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. In further proof of this, the Englishman goes on to speak in the same old prewar way about the psychology of women, using the familiar words, "I speak reverently as of a mystery, for a man never knows what a woman will do," and then he tells how she will act under certain circumstances.

The mystery about it is not in the psychology of woman, but in the fact that, having supposed that a woman would act in the way most natural to all humanity, he thinks it is mysterious because a woman does it. He describes a man as likely to act the same way under similar circumstances, but does not see any mystery in the masculine point of view.

Hear Heart Yards Away

An amplifying apparatus described as so delicate as to permit a physician in one city to make a stethoscopic study of the heart action of a patient hundreds of miles away, was demonstrated to a group of army and civilian medical men at the army signal corps laboratories at Washington. The principle involved is similar to that used in transmitting President Harding's inaugural address. The demonstration was directed by Brig. Gen. George Squier, chief signal officer. The stethoscopic apparatus, with electrical connection, was placed over the heart of one of the laboratory assistants and the heart beat was amplified many thousands of times, emerging from a phonograph horn and heard distinctly and studied by the physicians in a room some distance from that in which the subject was located.

Making of a Language

That the slang and idioms of today will be correct English tomorrow is the opinion of Prof. H. Glicksman of the English department, University of Wisconsin. "Our language is made up of what was once slang, idiom, colloquialism and jargon," he said lately, and warned that the only deplorable feature about slang was its tendency to produce mental slovenliness. Professor Glicksman then referred to the word "mob" as slang of 200 years ago and as such denounced in the "Spectator" by Addison. "It is an abbreviation of the word 'mobile.' Even so the word 'pop' is vital and virile and will survive with the word 'snappy.' But to gain recognition slang must be free from vulgarity and cheapness," said Professor Glicksman.
