NEW STATE ROAD

To Hillsboro Now Open to Traveling Public

The road to Hillsboro, past Maplewood Cemetery as far as the residence of Robert Mulhall was closed to travel most of the time last summer and to date the present summer. It was not only unsafe for travel, but it was absolutely impossible to pass over it. It is unnecessary for us to say anything concerning the history of this improved road, yet we want to announce that this piece of road is open to travel, and really appears to be in excellent condition for a new road. The first auto was allowed to pass over on Monday morning.

The work of completing this piece of road has been in charge of Fred L. Felch, of Winchester, this state, an experienced road builder, under the supervision of the State Highway department. There is yet some rolling to be done by the steam roller and the finishing touches to be put on, then it would seem that Antrim will have an excellent piece of improved highway. Mr. Felch took the Reporter man over this road on Monday morning and ran his heavy auto on the sides as well as in the center of the road, to prove that in turning out there would be no danger of the wheels cutting through the surface. The width of the road from the Elm street corner is uniform and has a six inch crown all the way so as to allow the water to run off when the sides are kept in proper condition.

On the flat beyond the cemetery the road was raised considerably and a new cement bridge has been built of sufficient size to carry any amount of water that may be running in the spring of the year. The conditions as we see them now appear most favorable. The cost has been exorbitant, but having got into the mess we did last year, the only thing to do was to go ahead and finish the job in as good shape as possible—and this has been done and the builder deserves credit. The care of the road is the next consideration and we feel sure that it will receive proper attention as time goes on.

Right here it might be well to state a fact that the road man called to our attention, and that was the grass which was allowed to remain and grow between the road and the ditch, notably on Concord street. If this waste space were kept as a part of the road, the same would be that much wider and the water after a rain would run down the ditch instead of in the roadway. Other places in town need the same sort of treatment. This is of great importance, as you will readily see.

Where this road joins the piece of permanent road already built, near the residence of B. L. Brooks, it will be necessary for someone to do some repair work and also up the hill it needs attention.

We think it is safe to say that our people are glad this piece of road is practically completed—and it is hoped it will prove just what the most optimistic person hopes for.

Death of C. F. Whitney

Charles F. Whitney, a life long resident of Antrim, passed away on Thursday, Aug. 25, at the home of his step-daughter, Mrs. Charles N. Fuggle, after an illness of about six weeks' duration.

Deceased was born in Antrim, Sept. 20, 1847, son of Cyrus J. and Mary J. Whitney. He was married July 4, 1881, to Mrs. Sarah Somers, of Amherst, Nova Scotia, who died nearly eight years ago.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Raymond Taylor, and two granddaughters, Bessie and Beatrice Taylor, of Gardner, Mass., a step-daughter, Mrs. Chas. N. Fuggle, and three brothers.

Mr. Whitney was a member of the Woodbury Memorial M. E. Church, and was of a kind and cheerful disposition. The beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which he was held.

Funeral was held at the home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. W. J. B. Cannell officiating. Mrs. Jennie Nims and Miss Gertrude Jamison rendered appropriate selections. Burial was in the family lot at Maplewood Cemetery.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

The city election in Birmingham, Ala., may be postponed at the request of an American Legion post of that city. The service men want to vote. When a law exempting them from poll tax was declared unconstitutional recently, the men were disqualified as voters. Thirty thousand world war veterans of the state are affected.

The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion in Hawaii are working together to obtain passage of the Hawaii bill now before Congress. They ask for the Americanization of the island as against Japanese domination, in the interest of the territory's two industries, tobacco growing and coffee raising.

The first of the party of six observers who were the only persons in America to witness the mysterious "new star," visible when the earth passed through the tail of a comet last month, was Eddie Rickenbacker, premier American ace and member of the American Legion in California. The party was stationed at the Lick Observatory.

We contend that business will not be on firm foundation until the farmers gather their crops and sell a portion of them, thus easing up the financial situation, says a report which appears authoritative. This should mean that by next Spring, or by the first of March, business should definitely begin to increase in a constantly growing volume.

Following the announcement of the Rev. John W. Inzer, Baptist minister of Chattanooga, Tenn., that he would marry, free of charge, all service men attending the third annual convention of the American Legion, at Kansas City this fall, provided they furnish the brides, a Kansas City jeweler has announced that he will furnish wedding rings for the couples, "even if there are 1,000 of them."

The Milford Cabinet recited the occurrence of three accidents caused by auto drivers in its town on a recent day, and in two cases they drove on as if nothing had happened, and the third only stopped long enough to berate the owner of a cow that was crossing the street and which he knocked down, causing her to break a leg. It is no wonder the Cabinet makes this statement:

Such people should have their licenses revoked and be forever barred from the use of public highways. They are not fit people to have running about. When people get so exclusive that they imagine a cow hasn't a right to cross a public street, or that other people in carriages or on foot are infringing rights when they use the highways, it is about time that they were given a taste of absolute exclusiveness in a nice little stone cell with a pretty iron door across the front.

HILLSBORO CO. FAIR

Scores Another Big Success This Year

One of the largest and most attractive fairs for many years was the one at Oak Park fair grounds, Greenfield last Wednesday and Thursday, under the auspices of the Hillsboro County Fair Association. The midway contained booth after booth of attractions, and was very much larger than any previous year.

Everything was ready Wednesday morning for the visitors. At the farther end of the field, 125 cattle sheds contained some of the best stock in the county; at the right near the grand stand the horses and ponies, numbering 150, were of a higher class than usual. Fakirs everywhere; pop corn stands, fortune tellers, games of chance, eatables a-plenty, etc. One of the most attractive places was Floral Hall with the finest display of arts and crafts, vegetables, flowers, fruits, etc.—a remarkable display for so early in the season.

The vaudeville was excellent; the ball game between the Greenfield and Hancock teams of Wednesday was won by the former, 4 to 1. The game on Thursday between Peterboro and Antrim was won by Peterboro, 4 to 2. Peterboro Band furnished good music.

In the beauty contest the first and third prizes went to Peterboro, and second prize to Miss Carol Jameson, of Antrim. In the baby contest the first and third prizes went to Peterboro, and second prize to Milford.

The half mile running race, exhibition of Shetland ponies, hurdles, and trotting were of the best seen on these grounds. The races in the several classes both days were run off in good time with a large list of entries.

In the exhibition of Welch ponies Harold Proctor, of Antrim, secured a cup as first prize, and Natalie Norwood, of Antrim, secured a ribbon as second prize.

The showing of Shorthorn cattle was something new and those belonging to the Arden Farm, in Antrim, and the Highland Farm, in Bennington, were handsome ones, and admired by everybody.

Some five thousand people were on the grounds Wednesday, and Thursday even more people were present, making this the Big Day at the Fair.

The list of premiums and prizes awarded will be given in these columns next week.

At Camp Greggmore

The first annual pageant to be given by the girls of Camp Greggmore was presented Saturday afternoon on the athletic field at Gregg Lake and was a most successful affair. Several of the townspeople accepted the campers' hospitality and were present to enjoy the occasion.

The various numbers on the program included several interpretative dances, solo dances, group dances, and the singing of the camp songs. Much real talent was displayed by the participants and the applause of the audience was frequent and appreciative.

The colorful and attractive costumes were the work of the camp girls, who cut, dyed and sewed the cloth into the costumes which presented so pretty an ensemble.

The Camp Greggmore girls plan to give another pageant next year and also an out of doors play.

On Monday evening the campers gave their farewell banquet and a most enjoyable occasion it proved to be, even though a bit of a shadow was seen in the distance at the thought of leaving this beautiful spot. Camp was broken today, Wednesday, and the girls have left town for their respective homes, hoping that another year will find them again at Greggmore.

WANTED-A GUIDE.

By ADA MAY STEVENS.

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was partly the fault of the dog.
He is much too impartial, as collies are apt to be. He spent his time indiscriminately among his admiring neighbors.
Three of them had houses just like his master's. How should he know which was which, since all gave forth bones?
Were I a dog—but you shall see. For a fellow just recovering from an attack of nerves, to meet things as unstable as this dog and the furniture of Maple street, is demoralizing, that's what it is.

I chose my cousin's from the list of possible visiting places, because it was quiet. Even the town is quiet. Of the house one had reason to expect a special stability. Alfred explains at length that I have not been betrayed, but judge for yourself.

My cousin met me upon my arrival, for it happened that I had never visited him since he moved to Westgate. We stopped before a piazza in duplicate, passing through a duplicate door into what afterward I found to be a duplicate hall. Except in furnishings, in Alfred's hall was only a table and a chair. It was restfully vacant; from its plain walls, scant furnishings, to the cheerful little wife and pleasant home atmosphere, I felt at last I had found peace. I rested well that night.

With the interest of a stranger in town, I went out next day, proud to take my first trip alone. I felt duly, or unduly, elated. Returning, I ran confidently up the steps where sat Billy, the cat; I opened the hall door to be greeted by Major, the dog. But the hall looked unfamiliar; there was a tall clock in the corner, and a formidable hatrack almost challenging the way. Like a soldier—or is it a burglar?—suddenly scenting danger, I came to tiptoe position; I craned toward the door into the sitting room.

"Did you want to see Alfred Poser?" He lives next door." The voice was sweet, and the head that followed it was pretty, but I left as precipitately as though followed by a bristling warrior with all swords drawn. There is little satisfaction in apologizing for a frankly bone-headed intrusion, even to a pretty face, so I left at once, with my apology trailing over my shoulder.
Alfred's wife has a pleasant laugh, and the mirth of cousin's is more healing than that of brother's, so I picked up courage once more, took back my rash vow that I would never appear in public again without a keeper, and went down street on the following afternoon.

I went early and returned late. This time I left nothing to chance; I counted my steps from the corner to the house. I looked first at the numbers and then at the draperies and house plants in the windows. I carefully avoided all piazzas where reposed any of our household pets. Then I boldly walked in.

Heavens! What had I done? Not an article was familiar. By the stairs stood a broad old-fashioned couch; a black walnut wardrobe, and a crockery umbrella rack grinned from separate corners. The accustomed chair where I usually draped my coat was gone. Standing bewildered, I clutched my falling senses and uttered the thoughts within me:

"Have I gone mad again—where am I? Where am I?" I cried, in the loud voice ordinarily used for such crises as calls for "Help" or "Fire."

As though it were a signal, the lights went up. A cool voice came down the hall, "Why, Cousin Tom, is that you?" Then she went into spasms of laughter. Yes, Alfred's wife is a cheerful soul, but I never before realized what a useless thing her laugh could be. Between shrieks she gasped:

"No wonder you don't know where you are! Oh, Tom, you look too funny for words—do forgive me!"

"Explain yourself!" I intoned, with much dignity, realizing that only so could I bring her to herself.

"Why, you see," she laughed, "the things came from Alfred's father's house while you were gone, and we put them around at once. Isn't that a love of a couch? Truly, you don't have to look so wild—but, after yesterday—" She was hopeless and helpless. I left her.

It's all very well to soothe my feelings and explain things to me; anyone in my condition can tell you just how soothing it is. I utterly refuse to go abroad alone again in this town. Meanwhile I find the piazza just the right length for pacing; and I spend my time teaching Major and Billy the delights of home. In a place like this, some guide is necessary.

Congestion in Various Lands.

In Japan today one of the pressing economic problems is the rapid increase of rents. Charges for the use of the bamboo and paper dwellings that make up the majority of the habitations in the cities have increased five-fold in the last five years and there is much congestion.

Even in Teheran, Persia, congestion has inevitably created tenement houses. In spite of their injunctions of religion and custom to seclude their women, the families of many Persian workmen use a common street door and occupy rooms opening on a common court. The rent is approximately $1 per room per month, a price which does not appear very small when it is understood that the unskilled laborer receives about 80 cents for each day he works.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Antrim Locals

One of the local nursing classes is having a picnic at Lake George, in Bennington, at the Lawrence cottage, today.

For a special Labor Day attraction in Antrim, the local base ball team has arranged with a good team from Keene to come here on that day for two games. Everyone interested are hoping to see good games on this day; and it is hoped there will be a large attendance at both games.

The Intermediate Society of the C.
E. of the Baptist Church gave a farewell party in honor of its president, Ralph Kimball, Monday evening at the close of the regular meeting.
Games were played and ice cream and cake served. The Kimball family are moving to Sanford, Maine, and will be much missed by the church and community.

NORTH BRANCH

Miss Florence Pope has gone to Richmond, Va., for a season.

North Branch was well represented both days at Greenfield Fair.

Misses Florence and Laura Kidder, of Franconetown, with a party of friends, were with their sister, Mrs.
G. F. Lowe, Sunday.

There will be no regular Circle meeting, owing to the lunch which will be held Sept. 5; we hope to get big returns for that day.

All roads lead to North Branch Sept. 5, and we hope to see all the old faces with us again, altho there are some who have gone to the Great Beyond since the last meeting.

Let's Keep Advertising

A merchant in town told The Times the other day that there was no business anyway, so why should he advertise? And that reminds us of the hen which quit scratching because there was a scarcity of worms, says an exchange. It seemed to be a bad year for worms; the hen didn't see any of the wriggling varmints trying to make themselves an honest meal for a hungry chicken, and the hen soon began to have the appearance of a run down fowl.

The owner noticed the run-down appearance, caught the hen, killed her and threw the carcass to the "hawks."
—and the moral is this: "Don't let your business get that run-down appearance or some of your best customers might get it into their heads that you are ready for the financial graveyard, and pass you up like a pay-car passes a tramp."

Let's keep advertising.

"Fraternity" Camps.

Ten little Indian girls from four Oklahoma schools play amicably with their white American sisters in a Y.
W. C. A. camp at Tulsa, Okla. Organized into ten "Indian tribes," with a councilor for each, the campers govern themselves and hold many a pow-wow over the camp fires. A pretty ceremony took place recently when Ella Jones, a full-blooded Creek Indian girl, lighted the "friendship fire" as a token of friendship between the two races. Five hundred Indian girls are members of the Y. W. C. A., and conduct the activities of their several associations in ten Indian schools in Oklahoma and New Mexico. Summer camps form the meeting places for these daughters of our first families and the daughters of later comers to America. Miss Edith Dabb, who directs the Y. W. C. A. work for Indian girls, has lived for many years on the reservations. Partly because of the esteem and confidence with which she is regarded by the tribes, she ranks as an authority on all things Indian.

Embarrassing Moment.

I was appointed sergeant of decoration for the school hall. I had a number of assistants, together with some forty-odd spectators who offered criticisms whenever there was an opportunity.

It was a few hours before the play, and I was hurriedly attending to "last-minute" preparations, perched on the top of the shaky ladder. I remember, distinctly, reaching out to untwist a flag, paying no heed to the "that-a-girl" and "go-to-its" of the onlookers, when the ladder gave way under me and I came crashing to the floor. Imagine, how I looked and felt sitting astride the flattened ladder, a hammer poised in one hand and the troublesome flag in the other.—Exchange.

Honor Fallen Comrades.

A new and admirable form of war memorial is being instituted by the Fourth Dragon Guards. A portable brass plaque has been designed, which will always remain with the regiment wherever it may be stationed. It will form part of the charge of the regimental guard and a ritual will be established, in that the names of the fallen engraved on the plaque will be read with full military honors once a day by the guard at "guard mounting."—London Telegraph.

Some of us would like to know why it is so dark around the corner by the there and the darkness makes it dangerous.

George O. Joslin furnished autos free to all who attended the Tall Pines Camp entertainment on Tuesday afternoon. Everybody expressed due thanks for the kindness.

Miss Thelma Weston, who is one of the swimming instructors at Tall Pines Camp, dislocated one of her shoulders, but was able to get it back into place, so the trouble is only temporary.

It is reported that the house between the railroad and the river, known as the Gray place, has been purchased by the Monadnock Mills and is to be demolished soon, as the land is needed for other purposes.

The aluminum exhibit and lecture demonstration at S. of V. hall was fairly well attended on Monday evening and proved interesting and instructive. Quite a number ordered the various useful articles needed in the kitchen.

The Tall Pines Camp gave a little operetta, "Robin Hood," at their camp at Lake George on Tuesday afternoon last, which was well worthy of the appreciation it received. The solo, "O Promise Me," by Robin Hood, was exceptionally well sung in a deep contralto voice which was a pleasure to listen to. The dance of the Bunnies and of the fairies was much enjoyed, as was also both singing and dancing by the older girls.
The exhibit of handicraft was interesting, and the exhibit of wild flowers found about the lake or nearby, opened our eyes to the decorative possibilities of these wayside friends, of whom the average person knows so little.
The baneberry was quite new to most

ANNUAL PICNIC

The annual family reunion was held at the Balch Farm, on Saturday, Aug. 20. Sixty seven were present from the following places: Lynnfield Centre, Lowell, Tewksbury Centre, Medford, and Gardner, Mass., Homer, N. Y., Tenafly and Haddonfield, N. J., Fajardo, Porto Rico, Nashua, Milford, Greenfield, Peterboro, Newport and Antrim, N. H. Forty-four of the company were lineal descendants of Mary Chilton of Mayflower fame.

The day was spent in the customary manner of picnics, with games, social intercourse and the usual picnic dinner under the trees. This was the largest gathering of this family for several years, and all left with the determination to be at the picnic next year if possible.

Under Your Hat

By George Brinton Beal

There is no room in the world for discouragement. When you permit yourself to feel discouraged you admit defeat. Admitting it and inviting it are one and the same. Going about like a human envelope stuffed full of gloom not only is disastrous to your own chances of success but exercises an evil influence on others. Cheerfulness, like the measles, is catching.
Seeing you in a cheerful mood will make others unfold their own brand of smiles, smooth them carefully out and pin them in place where they will do the most good. Say it with smiles and you'll find folks tumbling over themselves to become life members of your personally conducted cheer-up club. No trouble is big enough to down you. You can only down yourself. Keep your head up, stick your hands deep down into your pockets, whistle a cheery tune, and keep going. If you can't whistle, sing.

Community Meetings

Arrangements are being made by the Hillsboro County Farm Bureau to hold a series of Farm Bureau community meetings that will cover practically every town in the County. The object of these meetings is to organize a plan of demonstration work for each community. Specialists from the State College and the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture are being scheduled to speak at a number of these meetings on topics of special local interest.
Meetings already arranged are at Franconetown, Aug. 31; Litchfield, Sept. 1; Merrimack, Sept. 2; and Wilton, Sept. 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carlson of West Concord have returned from a visit with relatives in Sweden. They brought back many souvenirs of their trip, among the many gifts being a dress suit case that contained 700 cookies made by Mr. Carlson's mother, who is 80 years of age, to be given to her friends in this country.

Manufacturers to Meet Next Month

Directors of the New Hampshire Manufacturers Association voted to hold the semi-annual convention of the organization in Manchester about Sept. 15. Definite arrangements have been determined upon but the matter was thoroughly discussed by the directors. Over 350 New Hampshire manufacturers are members of the association.

Head N. H. Legion

Dr. Robert O. Blood of Concord was elected Commander of the state department of the American Legion at the concluding session of the third annual convention at the Ways to succeed Reginald C. Stevenson of Exeter, following the closest and most sensational contest ever waged for an office of the department since its start three years ago.

May See Building Boom

York Beach real estate dealers say that this fall and next spring will see one of the biggest building booms in many years at the beach. One Boston man is already negotiating to erect six beautiful summer cottages on Union Bluffs near Young's hotel. Land out on the Nubble road is being bought up and a big stretch of property on Long Sands has changed hands.

Portsmouth Boat Shop Not To Be Transferred

Closely following an announcement made that it had been proposed to transfer all work from the boat shop at the Portsmouth navy yard to Brooklyn, N. Y., a telegram was received by Mayor Hartford from Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, stating that "boat building will not be given up at the Portsmouth yard."

Portsmouth Navy Yard Smeiter Shut

The smelting plant at the Navy Yard, Portsmouth, has been closed on orders from the Navy Department. The plant has been in operation for seven years, scrap iron and other old materials being brought here to be melted from navy yards and stations all along the Atlantic Coast. Twenty-five civilians were employed.

Corn Crusade Still On

The ban on green vegetables being brought from New Hampshire to Maine has not been lifted and officials are stopping all machines at the Kittery toll bridge. Manchester members of the summer colony at York, made inquiries and learned that the end of the crusade against the corn borer was not in sight. Piles of vegetables are carted away nightly from the bridge.

N. H. Legion Wants Bergdall Punished

A resolution was unanimously passed at the third annual convention of the American Legion of New Hampshire to "express to the secretary of state of the United States its expectation that the United States government spare no pains or expense to secure the return to this country of Grover Cleveland Bergdall for the infliction of the punishment described by law."

Comes Along After Accident; Arrested Ernest Ripard of Nashua, who was a considerable distance from the scene when the automobiles of Arthur Mahado of Gloucester and Esther Farr of Boston collided on the Lowell road was the principal victim of the accident. He came along several minutes later while the police were investigating. They didn't like the manner in which it is charged, he drove his machine through the crowd of bystanders, and they arrested him on charge of speeding and reckless driving. He was fined $10.

City and Town To Share Sheep Loss

The Concord city government committee on accounts and claims have been in Hopkinton to confer with the selectmen of that town relative to the damages to a number of sheep that disappeared from a pasture at Mast Yard, lying partly in Hopkinton and partly in Concord. The sheep are believed to have been the victims of dogs.

The Hopkinton selectmen agreed to share the loss $500 upon a statement of the law in the case from City Solicitor J. Joseph Dorchester and it is expected that the bills will be submitted to the city government at the September meeting.

Miss Savory at her winter home, 17 Aberdeen street, Boston, said it was all news to her, however, and that someone was playing a joke on her and that she had something to say to that someone. Peculiar Fishing Case At Meredith

An important case was decided at Meredith, one of which has been the topic of conversation for several days. Fred Lafam, on the complaint of a resident of Manchester, was charged with fishing without a proper license.

Although Mr. Lafam has been a resident of Meredith for more than thirty years and is a property owner, he has never secured his naturalization papers, having come from Canada. Since the law requiring a resident to have a license, he has secured one year after year, and as he had been a resident so many years, he was never questioned and secured the license at the resident rate. He pleaded not guilty and the case against him was dismissed by Justice B. R. Dearborn.

Runs Amuck With Auto

Alfred F. Gilbo of Keene was in Milford police court on the charge of reckless driving of an automobile and operating the machine while under the influence of intoxicants. Gilbo pleaded guilty, and was fined $25 and costs, and given a three months' jail sentence, suspended.

The apparently light fine was the result of the story told by V. S. Howes, a Keene jeweler, Gilbo's employer, who testified to the previous good reputation of Gilbo, and who also stated that the prisoner had been a gallant war veteran and had been shell shocked and gassed. The court reckoned the circumstances and the light fine followed.

James T. Weston, Poet, Writer, Dies

James T. Weston, poet, writer and composer, is dead after a long illness. Patriotic exercises and songs of his composition have been used in many schools in New England on Memorial Day for many years.

He was born in Stoddard May 25, 1860, the son of William and Sarah Wilder Weston. His early home was on an ancestral Weston homestead in Antrim called "The Mountain." He lived in Hancock after 1887 with the exception of a short time spent in Keene and travels in the Maine woods.

LIVE THROUGH SILLY SEASON

Boys and Girls Can Be Trusted to Out-grow Natural Foolishness of Their Early Years.

A man is old when he begins to be irritated by the folly of youth. The old man of, say, forty years, has little patience with the boys and girls of sixteen. He is convinced that the girls are without sense, and he is persuaded that they never will have any sense. No ideas illumine their conversations. "I'll tell the world," they will remark; or "I'll tell the world." Endless chatter; endless repetition of the slang phrases of the day; endless giggling. He forgives them, however, because of the luster of their eyes and the soft freshness of their cheeks.

The boys he cannot forgive. The boys are not beautiful; they are awkward and ungainly; their voices occasionally miss on one cylinder; they are filled with a desire to show off; they talk too much and say too little; they brag; they feel their biceps and wish to be wicked; they are proud of their new-found vices, and strive to give the impression that they are bad guys and dangerous to fool with.

The old man is convinced that they will all go to the devil. He thinks they will all be hanged, and rather hopes they will. But they are not. Considering the variety and extent of the temptations our civilization offers, a surprisingly small number of boys grow up to be hanged. They have their silly season—their season of taking pride in things that are not wholly respectable—and then they settle down to become old men and criticize the next generation.

The father who is old loses sleep in the fear that his boy will not turn out all right. He forgets that he was that same kind of boy, and if he, having made a poor start, was able to become the wonderful creature he now is, what reason has he to believe that a son of his will fail to do as well? The saplings are green and worthless, but they all develop into seasoned timber if they are not cut down or denied an opportunity to develop.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Vienna Still a Music Center.

About the only thing that may be said to flourish in the Austrian capital these days is music. Despite the hard times and the almost worthless-ness of Austrian money, the concerts are largely patronized. The capacity of the concert halls is taxed to the utmost. Music-making starts early in the day and lasts till night, one hall frequently having as many as five concerts in one day. And most of the halls are sold out, although where the money comes from is somewhat of a mystery.

This artistic life speaks well for Vienna as a music center, as that city is attracting not only native talent, but musical artists from many outside countries. Even Sweden is sending musicians, and a seventeen-year-old Chilean boy pianist was a recent artist who took that city by storm.

Progress in New Guinea.

It is 13 years ago that Zahn of the Evangelical Lutheran synod went to New Guinea and began his work among the natives, who were then largely heathen. There were many cannibals in the territory. A letter recently received from Morobe, shows wonderful spiritual progress. A large proportion of the islanders have renounced heathenism and given up their instruments of witchcraft. It is estimated that 8,000 of them have been received into the Christian church.

THE KIND WORD

"I READ such a beautiful article in the Uplift Magazine today," explained the landlady. "It said that the kind word is the greatest civilizing influence in the world."

"I have often thought," said the star boarder, "that the value of the kind word is greatly exaggerated by our gifted sunshine writers and orators. When properly used, at the right time and place, it is an excellent thing, but you must admit, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, that it doesn't always bring results. Only this morning

I heard you saying that the housework would be done if you didn't keep after the hired girl all the time, and I assume that you don't keep after her with kind words. In fact, I have heard you say to that languorous damsel that she isn't worth the coal oil it would take to blow her through the roof.

"I am partial to kind words, and use them whenever the signs seem right, but they don't always work out as they should. On my way home this evening, I stopped to witness a dog fight which was in progress in the middle of the street. A great crowd had assembled, and the street was jammed. All the beauty and chivalry, fair women and brave men, were there. It is rather remarkable, when you come to think of it, that a dog fight has a great fascination for our leading citizens. They wouldn't go ten feet out of their way to listen to a college glee club, or hear an elevating lecture on the regeneration of the race, but they'll sprint ten blocks at the risk of apoplexy or heart failure to see a couple of misguided bowwows chew each other up.

"Mr. Junkman, the banker, was at my left hand in the crowd this evening. Everybody knows how polite and suave he is at ordinary times, but he was greatly incensed because he couldn't get a good look at the wrangling pups. A man with a tall hat stood right in front of him, and shut off the view; and Mr. Junkman knocked his hat down over his ears, without a word of apology or explanation. Why is a dog fight thus ruinous to our veneer of civilization?

"A large man with a truculent face, was right in front of me, and I tapped him gently on the shoulder, and informed him in the most courteous terms, that he was standing on my foot and doing great injury to my favorite corn. Nobody could have broken the news to him more gently than I did. If kind words were what they are cracked up to be, the large man would have apologized and moved off. But he glowered at me in the manner of one who is willing to meet grief half way, and proceeded to argue the question. He said he wasn't standing on my foot, that I was laboring under a hallucination, and if, by any mischance, he was standing on my foot, it was because that foot was so large he couldn't do otherwise. And in any event, he finally inquired, what was I going to do about it?

"I didn't see that I could do anything worth while, for the man was as large as an ordinary cottage, and he seemed impatient for trouble. I was just explaining to him that I rather enjoyed having people stand on my feet, when the crowd shuffled around, and he was pushed to one side. In his new position, he was in front of another citizen as large and dangerous looking as himself, and presently this second citizen took him by the ear, and twisted his head around, and said, 'Say, you big loafer, get off my foot!'

"The truculent gentleman hadn't a word of argument on this occasion. He squirmed away, and the second citizen gave him a prod in the small of the back that made him groan, and he didn't indulge in so much as a reproachful look.

"Thus we see, Mrs. Jiggers, that kind words don't always bring home the bacon, and so I'll trouble you for the stewed apricots."

A Watch Can Do It

Bacon—I see a Mrs. Rosa Abbey of Bingham, Me., has recovered a watch that was stolen from her four years ago while she was on her way to California.

Egbert—The police ran the watch down, I suppose?

"Oh, no; it ran down itself."

If Not, Why Not?

"When the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen," quoted mother. The small philosopher of the family mused. He had evidently struck a new problem to be solved. "Mamma," he asked, "when the days begin to shorten, does the heat begin to hotten?"

Economics.

Knicker—"What is the advantage of a budget?" Bocker—"Being forewarned, you can arrange to borrow early."

The Power of Music.

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, formerly controller of the currency, best known as "Hell an' Maria" and now director of the fiscal system of the federal government, is a musician as well as a financial magician who proposes to make Uncle Sam's high cost of doing business dwindle and shrink to the vanishing point.

While commissioner of supplies at General Pershing's headquarters in France, General Dawes needed eight hundred horses and needed them in a hurry. His formal application was promptly turned down by the British commander. Dawes was not to be thwarted, and trailed this particular officer, Gen. William E. Budkin, to his hotel and thence to a cafe to make a personal appeal.

While they were waiting for service a good orchestra played. It brought Dawes' jangling nerves into tune. He had a parley with the orchestra leader and soon was playing an instrument. General Budkin and his party so enjoyed this music that they kept Dawes playing most all night and in the morning he got his eight hundred horses—he had fiddled them out of the British commander.

Barthelme Meets a Sport.

Dick, Barthelme, says he has met many sports in his day, but none equal a country friend he met while on location.

"He pestered the life out of me to introduce him to a girl in the picture. I finally did so. He took her out three times and stopped short.

"What's the matter?" I asked him.

"Don't you like her any more?"

"Well, I thought I liked her, but she tried to work me," he answered. "The first time I was out with her she told me she liked salted almonds, so I got her some. The next night, when we were taking a walk, she had to have some more. The third night, when we were sitting on the hotel porch, she wanted some more salted almonds.

"That's where I quit," Dick quotes his rural friend as saying. "That darn girl owes me 30 cents now and she hasn't made a move to pay it back."—New York Tribune.

Advice to Idiots.

Bishop Hughes was talking about agnosticism at a luncheon in Portland. "An agnostic asked me once," he said, "if I didn't come across a good many things in the Bible I couldn't understand.

"Of course I do," said I.

"Well," said the agnostic, "what do you do about it?"

"My dear friend," I answered, "I do just as I would while eating a nice bit of planked shad. When I come to a bone I calmly lay it on one side and go on enjoying the delicious meat, letting any idiot who insists on choking himself on the bones do so."

Child Was Lucky.

Anna Cunningham, nine years old, fell off a station platform in front of an elevated train in Brooklyn recently. In falling she missed the approaching cars, dropped between the rim of the platform and the track, glanced off an electric feed wire and landed on the street pavement, 35 feet below. She cried as a policeman picked her up. Physicians found her only injuries were three broken teeth and some scratches.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.
