PRECINCT MEETING

Special Session Does But Little Business

The special meeting of the South Antrim Precinct was held according to call on Friday evening last; same was called to order and the warrant read by the Moderator, Hiram W. Johnson. The clerk of the Precinct being out of town, H. W. Eldredge was chosen to act for the evening. The business of the meeting was at once begun.

Under article one, to see what action the Precinct will take in regard to the purchase of a new fire alarm system, it was voted that the article be dismissed.

Before the vote was carried it was explained that the new electric siren which the Commissioners had to try out was not satisfactory to them, and as far as they could learn was also unsatisfactory to the people. It was the sense of the meeting that the Precinct did not wish to purchase it.

Article two was to see what action the Precinct will take in regard to the disposal of the fire alarm apparatus now installed in the engine house.

The alarm is a compressed air whistle and the great objection to this has been the cost of maintenance in cold weather. This was discussed to some extent, and it was finally voted to instruct the Commissioners to change the place of installation from where it now is to the basement of the town hall building, with whistle in tower, providing satisfactory arrangements can be made with the Selectmen. This seemed to be the sense of everyone present. An additional tank was talked and also a change from a 6 inch to an 8 inch whistle; these may be very needed improvements, and if added might make our fire alarm system one of the best for country towns and ahead of anything we have previously had.

This completing the business under the warrant, the meeting was adjourned.

Same Shape as Granite State

The memorial boulder which we have mentioned weekly for a few times is now in its final resting place and destined there to repose for all time—so far as is known. It looks a bit odd in its new location but is not objectionable, and when it is cleaned up and adorned with the large bronze tablet which must go on its face toward the street, it will present a lasting appearance—to say the least.

This is a peculiarly shaped stone, the outline of same being almost an exact counterpart of the state of New Hampshire. Probably no other memorial to the returned soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses, in the state has a similar distinction. Had you noticed this? This one feature in itself is worthy of note, and doubtless will prove very interesting as time goes on.

Auction Sales

By W. E. Cram, Auctioneer, Antrim

The 100 acre pasture, owned by A. W. Griswold and located in the west part of Antrim near the Forest road leading from Hancock to Stoddard, will be sold at public auction, at Woodward's hotel, in Hancock, on Saturday, October 15, at 1.30 o'clock. This is a desirable pasture and also has a large amount of growing spruce. For further particulars read auction bills.

To Our Patrons

The Postoffice Department says that all reading notices inserted in a newspaper announcing any sale or event which is designed for gain or profit MUST be tagged with the word "advertisement." If papers don't do this they are liable to have their second class mailing rates taken away from them. In compliance with this ruling, all such notices in our columns will hereafter be properly labelled and we trust that such advertisers will appreciate the necessity under which we act. The only exceptions would be notices for which no fee or other consideration is given us; in other words, a bona fide free notice.

THE REPORTER

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

Several thousand longshoremen who struck and tied up shipping on the Hoboken, N. J., waterfront, returned to work long enough to unload the army transport Wheaton with 2,624 soldiers dead on board, allowing American Legion posts to hold funeral services. The strikers, many of whom were ex-service men, declared they would take care of the bodies of their dead comrades despite the wage controversy and added: "we'd do it free if necessary."

Marshal Foch will not come to America to be officially heard at the international disarmament conference in Washington, Paris dispatches are pointing out, although he will let his views on armament be known. The marshal's visit is a private one, it is being carefully explained, in response to the invitation of the American Legion to attend its convention. Premier Briand will head the French delegation to the conference, sailing Oct. 29, a week after Marshal Foch.

With the entire nation paused at noon in two minutes of silent prayer, American Legion service men of the World War from each state and territory will do homage to the unknown American soldier at Arlington national cemetery on Armistice Day. Medal of Honor men also have been designated by the government as official mourners. Honorary pallbearers will be eight generals of the army and four admirals of the navy, with non-commissioned and petty officers as body bearers. President Harding will deliver the funeral oration.

Mrs. Oscar W. Brownell

The funeral services of the late Mrs. O. W. Brownell were held at the residence at Clinton Village on Saturday last. Her pastor, Rev. Wm. J. B. Cannell, conducted the service. Interment was at Maplewood Cemetery.

Mrs. Brownell (Ammie H. Pillsbury) was born in Lyon, N. Y., in 1854. On July 4, 1875 she was married to Oscar W. Brownell. About 34 years ago she became a member of the Baptist Church in New London, N. H., by baptism, and joined the Antrim Baptist Church by letter after the family moved here in 1889. Mrs. Brownell was of a retiring disposition, finding in the ministry of the home her chief joy. For some years she had been an invalid, but in all was a cheerful and confident Christian.

She is survived by her husband, and three children, Mrs. Carrie E. Woodward, of Malden, Mass.; J. Leon Brownell and Mrs. Kate W. Poor, both of Antrim. These knew the worth of the wife and mother who has been taken from them. Their sorrow at her passing on is mingled with joy because of the peace that is hers after the trial and suffering of these later years.

PAYS RETURN VISIT

Bethesda Lodge of South Boston Entertained

The occasion of entertaining the brothers of Bethesda Lodge of Odd Fellows of South Boston, by Waverley Lodge of Antrim and Valley Lodge of Hillsboro, has passed into history, and makes pages of interesting matter which will be cherished by the two lodges and it is hoped will be pleasantly remembered by the visitors from the city. It is not expected that country lodges can entertain as city lodges do, but it is known that the desire is just as keen and the efforts are fully as great, and if in any details there seems to be a place where the brothers fall down, it is not from a lack of desire to do it as well or a little better than it was ever done by anyone.

Most everyone is familiar with the reason why this occasion was planned—and so successfully carried out. A little more than a year ago these two lodges from the country had occasion to attend the session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge in Boston as the guests of Bethesda Lodge, and royally were they entertained. Not one single thing was left undone by the city brothers that would give the boys the least bit of pleasure, and every little attention was given them. It was next to impossible to equal any such entertainment; so it is seen why this occasion, and also what the country brothers were up against in their efforts to anywhere near match them at their own game. However, in view of all this, an invitation was extended the city brothers by the lodges of Hillsboro and Antrim to a return visit here on Saturday last, and the invitation was enthusiastically received and promptly accepted.

Then the time of preparation began; committees were at once appointed, and all got busy. The general committees from Hillsboro and Antrim came together and organized, and not a single thing was done by either lodge but what was known to the other, and they worked in perfect harmony in everything, and in this way it was possible to carry forward the plans to perfection and accomplish what to many seemed at first almost an impossibility.

This has been styled "Chambers Day," and why almost everyone knows, but as some don't, we'll just state in passing that a member of Bethesda Lodge, Joseph Chambers, whom everybody has grown to love as a worthy brother, was perhaps more responsible for these two visits than any other one person. Hence the name.

After one or two committee meetings, and it was decided about what to have for a program, for afternoon and evening, the plans were adopted by the lodges, and at once the committees began to work out the details. It was some job but everybody put a shoulder to the wheel and the thing was accomplished.

As time went on it was learned that very nearly one hundred brothers from the city would make the journey to New Hampshire and that they would come by auto; also that they would stay over night, all of which was most satisfactory. Knowing what to depend upon the country lodges went forward with preparations and when the big day arrived they were ready in every particular.

It was thought best that a committee from Antrim drive to Nashua to meet the guests and escort them over the road which was new to the most of them. This was done by F. F. Roach, John Thornton, Morris Burnham, Chas. L. Eaton and H. W. Eldredge. At 11.20 the party was met, consisting of 18 automobiles suitably decorated and nearly 100 Odd Fellows, and then continued on the journey; but with all motorists tire trouble is ever present, and a delay of an hour or two from this cause made the arrival in Hillsboro about two o'clock. Here was waiting an old fashioned New England boiled dinner, and in addition cold ham, rolls, pies, coffee and ice cream. Everyone was hungry, and there being an abundance of food, all did justice to the dinner.

Leon B. Proctor, chairman of the general committee, acted as toastmaster, and after welcoming the guests presented a number of the visitors for remarks. This was a most pleasing and highly satisfactory beginning of the day's festivities. Rain which had threatened all day was now a reality and as the time had arrived when the return trip to Antrim must be made, owing to rain the circuitous trip via North Branch was eliminated.

At five o'clock the curtain was rung up on Antrim's part of the program, which began with a banquet at Odd Fellows hall. Following this was the entertainment at town hall by the members of Valley Lodge of Hillsboro and was a straight minstrel show in two parts. Between the parts the visitors were welcomed by Chairman Proctor, of the committee, and response was made by Bro. Hobbs, D. D. G. M., of the visiting lodge. Grand Master Ernest C. Dudley, of Concord, being also a guest, was introduced and made most appropriate remarks. At the close of the second part in minstrelsy light refreshments were served. This number on the program being disposed of, dancing was indulged in.

At the banquet some more than 250 were served, and there seemed no end of food. The menu consisted of cold meats, baked beans, brown bread, hot rolls, fancy and plain pies, cake, fruit, coffee. It was impossible here to have after dinner speeches, as both the banquet hall and lodge room were used for setting tables. About an hour between the completion of banquet duties and the entertainment was used in a social way in becoming better acquainted with the guests of the evening.

The entertainment by the Hillsboro brothers exceeded the expectations of everybody, even though we all knew they were all experts in this line of work and had much musical talent to draw from. Almost every specialty act or musical number received an encore. This entertainment was open to all Odd Fellows and their families and Rebekahs and their families.

The last number on the evening's program—dancing—seemed to be greeted with delight by the guests, and even the old fashioned figures appeared to have first place. This as well as everything else for the day and evening was arranged for the entertainment of the visitors and they entered into it heartily. This happy and whole hearted spirit with which the guests entered into every event was the one thing that greatly pleased the country hosts.

It was announced that so much food remained that the committee must have help to dispose of it, and that breakfast would be served at nine o'clock to all guests in the Odd Fellows dining hall. Only a few of the visitors were compelled to return to the city that night, so most of them were cared for at The Maplehurst and in the homes nearby, although about ten were housed at Mrs. Hulda Wing's, at the Center,—she being a member of Bethesda Lodge of Rebekahs and mother of George Symes, a member of the visiting lodge. Mrs. Wing's hospitality would not allow her guests to leave before breakfast, so they missed the social hour with the brothers at this time. To fittingly close a pleasant hour and start the day along as it should be, as well as closing up a most happy occasion, a few words of farewell were indulged in by some of the visitors who had not previously been privileged to say very much. Secretary Eldridge of the committee presided.

The brothers now thought it time to depart for their city homes, and a number of them headed their notes that way; although as many as could remain an hour or so longer were shown over the town and given a chance to see the beauties of nature within the town's boundaries. This pleasure and that of partaking of the morning meal, were not on the program as previously arranged, but was a nice conclusion of the whole affair.

These passed into history one of the most pleasant and successful occasions it has been the privilege of Antrim to enjoy; and Odd Fellowship here and in Hillsboro is made to mean more to its members than it ever has before.

In Regard To Cutting Expenses At Postoffices

Postmaster Archie Swett has received letters from the Postoffice Department at Washington to the effect that all needless expenditures in the administration of the affairs of the Antrim postoffice must be eliminated as soon as possible. This is a form letter which is being sent to offices all over the country and should not be understood as meaning that the expenses of the Antrim office are higher than they should be.

Postmaster General Hays is functioning 100 per cent in his department to redeem the Republican party's pledge that in event it was placed in charge, there would be more business in government. It is the intention of Postmaster General Hays to reduce the operating expenses of the postal department $15,000,000 a year by the plan which has been worked out and approved by him and his advisers. In his statement to the postmasters of the United States, Mr. Hays says:

"Attention is called to the acute financial condition of the country and the urgency of meeting the desire of the President for economy in public expenditures, as far as possible in the postal service."

Postmaster General Hays orders the elimination at once of overtime and also calls upon postmasters carefully to revise the working schedules of clerks and carriers. To assist in this, there will be an inspection of the routes of every carrier and collector and a very possible readjustment of routes. In addition, a campaign will be at once inaugurated to educate the public to the necessity of intelligent and whole-hearted co-operation and will consist of early mailing by every one, equipment of every residence and place of business with mail receptacles and on the part of users of the mail, use of pre-cancelled stamps, facing of mail, etc. The Postmaster General believes these reforms can be inaugurated and overhead expenses thereby reduced without impairing the quality of the postal service.

"Employees are reminded that Congress has granted them generous increases in salaries. They will be expected to give honest service, full 8 hours, and those who are unable to do so are to be separated from the service. The department will not require anything unreasonable, but it expects and must receive full value in the service for the public funds expended."

I Am Everybody's Enemy

I am more powerful than the combined armies of the world.

I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I am more deadly than bullets and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest of siege guns.

I steal in the United States alone over $300,000,000 each year.

I spare no one; I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, the young and old, the strong and weak.
Widows and orphans know me.

I massacre thousands of wage earners each year.

I lurk in unseen places and do most of my work silently.

YOU ARE WARNED AGAINST ME, BUT YOU
HEED NOT.

I am everywhere—in the house, on the street, and in the factory.

I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

I destroy, crush or maim; I give nothing, and take all.

I am your worst enemy.

I Am Carelessness.

I Am Everybody's Friend

I am the conqueror of Carelessness.

I save more lives than all the Doctors of the world.

I am more vital than medicine and surgery.

I help everybody—I find my friends among the rich and the poor—the young and the old—the strong and the weak.

I save the lives of thousands upon thousands of wage-earners every year.

I am omnipotent—saving the arms, limbs, eyes, bodies—the lives of fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, relatives and friends.

I am omnipresent—in the home, in the mill, in the factory, on the street, on the railroad, on the sea, in the air.

I prevent mental worries and physical pains.

I bring health, joy and happiness to the lives of all.

I am a panacea for the majority of all human miseries and troubles.

I bring smiles and happiness
wherever I go.

I augment your bank account,
for I am a "money saver."

I add years to the lives of hundreds of thousands.

I make life really worth living.

I am constructive, not destructive.

I am a "Joy Dispenser," a

Room at the Top

Kathleen Wheeler Ross

The top of the ladder's the dandiest place

So far from the folk on the ground.
The people up there wear a smile on their face,

But you cannot arrive at a bound.
There's no use in climbing but half the way up

Contentedly just there to stop.
For the crowd on the ladder will push
you right off,

But there's plenty of room at the top!
The secret of climbing is just this,
my friend,

Keep at it, in spite of each fall.
If the man on the top had stayed down
when he fell,

He would never have got there at all.
So there's no use in climbing just half the way up

Contentedly right there to stop.
For the crowd on the ladder will push
you right off,

But there's plenty of room at the top.
And when you are mounting just take my advice,

Reach a hand out to poor folk below,
For when others join you and share
the good things

You will not feel so lonely, you know.
Oh! the top of the ladder's the dandiest
place,

Tho' I've never been up there to see,
But I hasten my steps when I think of the things

Waiting up there, "Uncalled for,"
for me!

President Harding wisely points out

Curfew Law in Dover, Children Must Get Home

The enforcement of the curfew law went into effect in Dover Oct. 8. Marshal Charles Crowley issued orders that all children under the age of 15 found on the streets after nine o'clock shall be taken home and their parents notified to appear at the municipal court.

Fire Destroys Paper Plant at Hillsdale

Fire destroyed the G. A. Robertson paper mill at Hillsdale at an estimated loss of $100,000, destroying 25 tons out of work. The fire gained such headway owing to the great quantity of oil in the building that the whole structure was a mass of flames before the fire department could reach the scene.

Refuse Wage Reduction

Advices received in Concord are to the effect that by a big majority of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, freight handlers and station employees of the Boston and Maine railroad had voted to refuse to accept the labor board wage reduction decree. The premature announcement was based on the returns from 90 per cent of the employes.

New Hampshire Women Protest by Resolution

One of the most important resolutions passed by the State Federation of Women's clubs, in session at Conway, N. H., October 5 and 6, 1921, and representing 12,000 organized women, hereby respectfully and most earnestly petition the international conference for limitation of armaments called to meet in Washington, D. C., on November 11, 1921, not to dissolve until it has taken decisive action which will relieve the nations of an intolerable burden of taxation and effectually safeguard the world against a recurrence of war, which John Hay characterized as the most futile and ferocious of human follies.

New Hampshire Man With Atomic Unknowns Burial

Secretary of War John W. Weeks has notified Governor Albert O. Brown that in connection with the ceremonies provided for by Act of Congress, pertaining to the burial of an unknown American who was a member of the American expeditionary forces and who lost his life during the World War, the President has considered it appropriate that each state and territory be represented at the national armed forces between April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1918, and the secretary has asked the governor to designate such a representative of the state of New Hampshire.

In compliance with the request Governor Brown has named for this honor Sergeant Stephen E. Thibault, of Manchester, commander of Intracoastal post, American Legion.

Sergeant Thibault will be one of the party of official mourners and will follow the remains from the Capitol to Arlington cemetery, leaving the Capitol at 8:30 a. m. on November 11.

STEPS TAKEN TO UNDO IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Governor and Mayor With Co-operate With State Labor Head

Steps have been taken to relieve the unemployment situation throughout the state of New Hampshire and in the city of Manchester when at the request of President Harding and the Unemployment Conference at Washington Gov. Albert O. Brown and Mayor Moses Verette took under advisement the plan for placing unemployed workers as suggested by Washington dispatches given out as official requests to state and municipal officers to act in their respective communities.

Governor Brown expresses confidence in his confidence in the federal conference and stated that he would do everything in his power as a state official to relieve unemployment in the various communities of the state. In referring to his probable action in the matter the Governor declared that he had not had sufficient time to say out a specific plan, but indicated that he would work in conjunction and in co-operation with the State Department of Labor, headed by Commissioner John S. R. Davis of Concord.

Mr. Davis has built up a very efficient machine for the aid of the workers of the state, and for the assistance of the employers," declared the Governor. "and I presume that it will be through that organization that we shall make our efforts to better conditions."

Mayor Verette of Manchester when approached declared that he would do all in his power as mayor of Manchester to co-operate with any movement that will tend to decrease the number of unemployed.

According to an estimate made by John S. R. Davis there are approximately 12,000 workers without employment in the State of New Hampshire at present, which shows an exceptional improvement over June of this year when there were about 24,000 without work in the state.

"This employment gain is due almost entirely," said the Commissioner, "to the great improvements in the hotel and shoe and the textile industries in Manchester and to the increased building operations in centers like Concord where at present the Standard Printing company is putting up a large new factory and where the Boston and Maine railroad is constructing a large round house. The men employed on these jobs are of course in many instances employed temporarily but they are working."

In referring to the employment bureau which is conducted through the State Department of Labor, Mr. Davis said that since the establishment of the bureau in 1917 on the first of May, a total of 3338 persons have sought assistance through the state employment office, most of whom have received employment as a result of the co-operation of the employer and the workers brought about by the State machinery.

In addition to the applications for positions employers called upon the state during this period to furnish 1987 workers, both men and women. During the last year 531 have registered calls for aid in the seeking of employment and 233 of these were actually referred to prospective employers with a very large per cent receiving employment as a result.

Sen. O. Aldrich for Keene F. H. Sen. O. Aldrich, a prominent resident of Keene has been nominated postmaster at Keene by President Harding. This is Mr. Aldrich's second choice as postmaster. His first term was in 1918.

Sen. O. Aldrich, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis W. Aldrich, was born in Westport in 1876, and after attending the public schools there came to Keene in 1897 and commenced work as clerk in the drug store of Dufford and Foster. After seven years he entered business for himself under the firm name of Aldrich & Dutton. He continued in the drug business until 1918, when he was appointed postmaster by President W. H. Taft. He remained in the position until 1914.

Sen. Moses Opposes Peace Treaty

The peace treaty with Germany, Austria and Hungary were before the Senate with a speech of six hours by Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, in opposition to ratification and an address by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, Republican, "irreconcilable," in favor of the treaties.

"It cuts us loose at once and I hope forever," said Senator Moses. "That that body of death known as the League of Nations."

The New Hampshire Senator opposed American representation on the allied reparations committee, although, he said, it was no secret that Secretary Hughes favored such representation.

Legislators Invited to See's Lanching

Through President Oliver L. Friesbe of the New Hampshire Legislative association, the commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard has invited all members of the organization to attend the launching of a submarine at the yard on Thursday, Oct. 28, at 2 o'clock p. m. The craft is the last of the S type made at the yard. It is also proposed to formally lay the keels of two cruising submarines the same afternoon.

UNCLE WALT'S STORY

DISTORTED NAMES

"I HAD a letter from Marie Desobry this morning," announced Mrs. Jamesworthy, "and she hints that she would like to come and stay with us a while."

"Let her keep on hitting until her elbow is out of joint," said Jamesworthy. "So long as I am master of this house, and my word is law, no American woman who calls herself Marie is going to be welcome at our graying board. There are some affections, Mrs. Jamesworthy, which give me a horizontal pain in the neck, and the worst of them is this thing of giving foreign spelling and pronunciation to our home grown names. There isn't a fleur or stilette name in the city directory than Marie. The most distinguished woman this world ever saw had that name, and it was good enough for her."

"Any woman who tries to rearrange such a name as that has something wrong with her intellect, and I'd be afraid to have her under my roof. At any moment she might become a gibbering maniac."

"When I was young all the good old fashioned names were in evidence everywhere. The woods were full of Elizabeths and Dorcas and Matildas. The women who had such names were proud of them, and never mocked with them. Had they done so, they'd have been cast into outer darkness by polite society. Just today I was glancing over the newspaper and saw some mention of a woman who calls herself Elizabeth. Now, I wonder what that 'y' is doing there. Some people don't spell Elizabeth with a 'y', and in the grand old days the people wouldn't have stood for such an innovation. But in these modern times all the institutions of our fathers and mothers are being overturned, and if a girl is so fortunate as to receive a stately name at her christening, she deserves the best years of her life to overhauling it, so it will look like something escaped from a feeble-minded institution."

"There is no law to prevent women from maltreating their names, so we can't rebuke them by process of law, but we can at least set our faces against the fool custom and close our doors to the gally parties. I am a man of hospitable instincts, and would welcome to my abode the veriest beggar or social outcast, but no Marie, Katheryn or Mae will ever enter this house while I have strength to resist. When I see them coming I'll sell my life as dearly as possible, Mrs. Jamesworthy."

"My sister's mother was the sanest woman I ever knew. Talking her by and large, pro and con, she stuck up about as high as anyone. She never tried to cut a swath in social circles, for she had a profound contempt for everything that was trivial or superficial and she had a reverence for old ways and customs."

"Her front name was Isabella, and she wore it, without any frills or flourishes, as long as she lived. She never sent that name to the upholsterer or taxidermist to have it made over. She realized that famous names and other great women were that name, and she was proud of it. You might have argued her into having her hair shingled or her front teeth pulled out, but if you had suggested rearranging her name she'd have thought your proper place was the booby hatch. Her name was a treasured possession, an heirloom more precious than the family jewels."

"The name Isabella lends itself to sanitation and transposition more than any other. Modern women, blessed with that magnificent name, can't rest until they have telescoped it, so we have Isabels and Isbells and Yobells and half a dozen other variants, each being more idiotic than the others. Whenever I think of the way my mother hung on to Isabella I feel a new respect and admiration for that grand old woman, and I wish she were here today, to make the round of the Chautauques, and point out to young women their duties and privileges."

Perverses.

Remedy for Ants.

Here is a helpful paragraph in a New York paper: "To rid the pantry shelves of red ants, wipe them with denatured alcohol every few weeks." Now, how are you to catch the ant and give him that alcohol bath? The cursed little things just won't stand still.—Jackson News.

The Crowning Aggravation.

"Boy" Behind the Voice.

A business man who was in a great hurry called up an establishment that had failed to deliver goods as ordered. A tiny boyish voice was heard at the other end of the line: "What is it that you wish?"

"Mr. Jones, boy, and hurry."

"All right," and the receiver was hung up. In a few minutes it was taken down and the small voice replied: "Mr. Jones is not in. Can I help you?"

"See here, boy," snapped the man who was in a hurry. "I want to talk with some one who can do business. When I need the office boy I will call for him. The way for you to get along is to let the other things alone and attend to your own duties."

"That's what I am trying to do," meekly said the small voice. "I am the president of the company."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Isolated Police Post.

A new farthest north Royal Canadian mounted police post has been established at Pond's Inlet in the extreme north of Baffin's land. This is now the most northerly post held by the force of scarlet riders, the nearest to it being those at Chesterfield Inlet and Cape Burwell, at the entrance of Hudson's straits. A sole staff sergeant will be full police authority at Pond's Inlet and will have full charge of customs and judicial control of Baffin's land and the territory about it. Only a few Eskimos are to be found there and it is the occasional port of call for traders.

Logical.

Six-year-old Nellie came home from the corner much excited. "Oh, mother," she began, "I saw the biggest crowd of people and I went over, but I couldn't see anything except a wagon and a lady said it was a gossip wagon and for me to listen and—"

Then mother interrupted her. Closer investigation disclosed the fact that the wagon was a gospel wagon. "But," mother wisely shook her head, "it might have been a gossip wagon from the way Nellie says they crowded around it."

KIDD NOT PIRATE

And His Treasure a Fable, Says Archivist.

Massachusetts Authority Asserts That Lord Bellomont Was Arch-Scooter—High-Placed Adventurer.

Song and story are wrong. Captain Kidd was not a pirate and his fabled treasure does not exist. Privateersman he was, but of good repute. His hanging as a pirate and murderer on execution dock at London in 1701 was to satisfy the political exigencies of the time.

These are the findings of John H. Edmonds, state archivist for Massachusetts, as announced in a lecture at the old South Meeting house. Archivist Edmonds was discussing "Lord Bellomont and the pirates."

Bellomont, he said, was appointed governor of New England in 1686 with a special mission to suppress piracy. "Before leaving England," Mr. Edmonds contended, "he agreed with Capt. William Kidd, a privateersman of good repute from New York, to proceed against pirates in a ship called the Adventure, galley, on a 'no-capture-no-pay' basis. The adventurers included Captain Kidd, Robert Livingston, Lord Chancellor Somers, the earl of Oxford, first lord of the admiralty; the earl of Romney, and the duke of Shrewsbury, secretaries of state; Bellomont and the straw men, to whom the king's grant of treasure was later made, did not contribute a cent.

"On September 6, 1696, with a 'crazy' vessel and a crazier crew, Captain Kidd proceeded on his mission," the archivist said. "He picked up several pirates, including 'a Moorish ship of 200 tons and a Bengal merchantman of 500 tons, both having French passes and being lawful prizes."

He came to New York and then to Boston "through the trickery of Bellomont, who promised him safe conduct. With the remnant of his crew he was arrested, sent to England, tried for murder and piracy, convicted and hung on Execution dock Friday, May 23, 1701, to satisfy the political exigencies of the times."

"It was either Lord Bellomont, the lord chancellor, the first lord of the admiralty, the secretaries of state or Captain Kidd, and under this circumstance he had no chance. Collusion and perjury are plainly evident in his trial; the French passes which would have cleared him of the piracy charge, though produced in parliament, were suppressed in the Admiralty court. The least said about Bellomont's action in the matter the better. He fooled Kidd, he fooled his council, and the worst of it is, he allowed it in his letters to the lords of trade."

"The Captain Kidd of today is a composite pirate made up of all who frequented our shores from 1637 to 1837. Propaganda of the worst kind blackened the reputation of a man of whom a recognized French authority says: 'It may be well doubted whether any man in equally trying circumstances has ever been truer to his trust.'

"And yet the great American public persists in calling Captain Kidd a pirate and in searching for his treasure, which does not exist."

Cat Mothers Rabbit.

An interesting case of adoption has occurred on a farm in the humble district of East Lothian, Scotland. A cat, whose kittens had been given away as they were old enough to be removed from the mother, has adopted a young wild rabbit, which she tends and nurses with great care and affection. The cat was in the habit of killing and bringing in young rabbits to feed its kittens, and it is remarkable that she now should show maternal affection towards an animal which hitherto she has regarded as prey.
