BRONZE TABLET

Unveiled Last Sunday at Presbyterian Church

The service at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning was of special interest, as a bronze tablet, erected in honor of the men from the church who served in the World War, was unveiled.

The service was well attended by the members of the church, and also full representations from the G. A. R., American Legion, Relief Corps, D. A. R., and the Legion Auxiliary were present.

The music for the occasion was in charge of Mrs. Robert Jameson, who sang two solos. The first was in keeping with the day, "The Birthday of a King," and the second immediately after the unveiling, "There is no Death." Both selections were rendered in her usual effective and attractive manner.

The pastor took for his subject "America's Hour," and based his remarks on Esther 4:14. He referred to the national greatness of America as seen by her deeds of the past, and spoke of her possibilities as a leading peace nation in the future of the world's history. The nations of the world are looking to America for leadership in many ways. In the future of America one body of men will have a large and important part, and that is the American Legion. Dr. Cameron exhorted those present to do their part in keeping America a Christian nation.

A few words were also addressed to the men whose names were inscribed on the tablet, that it was a reminder of the sacredness of duty, and the hope was expressed that they would win the victories of peace as they had won the victories of war.

After the sermon, escorted by the Commander of the Legion, Charles N. Robertson, Dr. Cameron unveiled the tablet and read the names on it, numbering eighteen. At this point Mrs. Jameson sang the solo "There is no Death," while the Legion stood in a circle around the tablet. The audience also stood during the unveiling and singing.

The whole service was unique in its simplicity and dignity. A fine floral display was furnished for the occasion.

The tablet was erected by the Unity Guild of the church.

Stone Wall in Antrim

(For the Reporter, by G. A. C.)

The History of Antrim gives the town as containing a little over thirty three square miles of land—about 21,175 acres.

It is estimated that there is over five thousand miles of stone wall that surrounds, crosses and recrosses the town. Miles of the wall is covered up with trees and shrubbery, in many places being of no use as a fence but serving as boundary lines or to show where the fields were fenced off and worked.

These walls were built by the farmers and the boys, with oxen, chains and iron bars. The rocks were dug out of the ground and laid up into walls averaging three and one half feet high. I heard it said that a man, boy and yoke of oxen would dig out the rocks and lay up a rod of wall in one day. The cost of doing the work in one day was small—guess for yourself.

Today the building of a rod of wall in one day, digging out the rocks and building them into a rod of wall would take two men and a pair of horses, costing about $10 per rod, or more.

Who wants the building of the 5000 miles of wall at $10 per mile? But very little stone wall has been built in town within the past sixty years.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

The placing of a "trained, sympathetic war mother" at Ellis Island to aid women immigrants to get suitably located in the United States is being considered by the American Legion Auxiliary.

We are under obligations to Senator George H. Moses for a copy of the Congressional Directory—second session of the 67th Congress, December, 1921. This volume is a book of more than 500 pages and contains a large amount of valuable information.

If a pending ordinance allows the employment of 200 additional policemen in Los Angeles, Chief of Police Jones will fill the vacancies with ex-service men, he has informed the American Legion, seeking the organization's cooperation in obtaining candidates.

Among the best and largest Christmas editions that came to our desk this year were those of the Winchendon (Mass.) Courier and the Monadnock Breeze, of Fitzwilliam, both owned by the Courier Press, Inc., H. B. Eldredge, editor, C. D. Eldredge, manager. The former contained 24 pages and the latter 16 pages.

The Antrim postmaster informs the Reporter that the mail at Christmas time was the heaviest both coming in and going out of any year in his experience. The mailing was done earlier than usual, beginning Monday and covering the entire week. One small item, the sale of one cent stamps alone for the week, reached 5500 at the local office. And all this at a time when business throughout the country and locally as well is at a low ebb, leads us to wonder just what it would have been if business had been above normal.

Amounts received as compensation, family allotments and allowances under the war risk insurance and vocational rehabilitation acts, or as pensions from the Government for military or naval service in time of war may be exempted from income tax returns of ex-service men. The exemptions were obtained following an appeal made by the American Legion's legislative committee. The tax exemption also extends to "contribution of gifts for the use of posts of the Legion or the Women's Auxiliary units thereof."

Christmas in Antrim

Many families had their home trees in the parlors, which were greatly enjoyed by everybody.

A number of family reunions were held on Sunday and Monday and pleasant hours were passed by many of our people.

The stores, shops and all business places practically suspended operations for the day, Monday, and everything about town was very quiet.

A number of our fishermen tried their luck fishing through the ice and were successful with fairly good strings of fish. The ponds in this town and Windsor were visited, Monday.

The Christmas exercises by the several Sunday Schools were held on Friday and Saturday evenings and greatly enjoyed by the younger people particularly and the older ones generally.

UNCLE SAM AS EMPLOYER

The United States government is the largest single employer of men and women in this country. At the present time in the executive civil service of the Federal government, and exclusive of the army and navy, there are employed approximately 650,000 workers, or one in 73 of all residents on American soil, ten years of age or over, engaged in gainful occupations. A little while ago, when the number of federal employees was even larger than it is now, one person out of every 38 in the United States who had any sort of a job at all was working for the government. These calculations are based on recent estimates of the bureau of the census in anticipation of the results of the fourteenth general census.

Prior to the outbreak of the war in 1914, the number of men and women in civil positions in the executive service was approximately 385,630. In 1916 it had grown to 498,832. In 1917, after our entry into the war, it was 459,798. On June 30, 1919, the number was 707,448. The number on July 31, 1920, was 691,116.

These figures are confessedly approximations. Since the signing of the armistice the number of federal employees has been decreasing. Undoubtedly the decrease in force will continue to be made for months to come, but the growth of the government business in the past few years has been such as to make it a larger employer in the post-war period than it had ever been in the pre-war period.

These thousands of men and women working for the government comprise every type of ability and intelligence. Their duties cover a range of activities that far exceeds that exercised for other public or private employers; for, besides its task of lawmaking and law enforcing, of national defense and national finance, the government is charged with promoting the health and welfare of its people, of promoting their home interests, their agricultural, mining, manufacturing, shipping, fishing and transportation interests.

To do this it must investigate, control and eradicate diseases that attack persons, plants and animals. It must inspect livestock, foods and drugs. It must study conditions and progress in education, labor and commerce. It must prevent individual men or groups of men from using unfair business methods, whether in banking, transportation, trade or manufacture.

The government must administer public lands and the affairs of the Indians, and educate children in Alaska. It grants patents of invention, it sets the clocks of the country, forecasts the weather, and makes observations of the stars and heavenly bodies. It constructs buildings, docks, roads, bridges, irrigation works, builds canals and aeroplanes, makes ordnance and ammunition, clothing and other supplies for its soldiers and sailors. It makes all its own money and does all its own printing. It distributes all mail and many packages.

The government does everything that any employer in the United States does, in addition to a great many things that no other employer does. How does it treat its people? Is it a good employer or a bad employer? Are its employees contented? These are questions that I should advise the railroad men, the miners and other workers who seek nationalization of industry, to look into before they commit themselves.

Let them find out for themselves what government ownership would mean to them.

The first thing they will discover, as I discovered when I began the present inquiry, is that nobody knows, and nobody in the government service is charged with knowing, the exact number of employees in the service from day to day. Even more astounding, nobody knows, or is charged with knowing, even approximately, the sum of the payroll of the United States.

It is not possible to find out within hundreds of thousands of dollars how much the United States pays yearly or monthly in salaries and wages. I went to the Treasury department, to the appropriations committee of congress, and elsewhere where I thought the information might be lodged, but nobody knew. I was told vaguely that the government was not run on an asset and liability basis, and therefore it was not necessary to know the exact number of employees on the payroll. If the average compensation is $1.

YOU MUST KNOW

Answer These Questions—
All Will Be Well

In the making of an income tax return for the year 1921, every taxpayer should present to himself the following questions:

What were your profits from your business, trade, profession or vocation?

Did you receive any interest on bank deposits?

Have you any property from which you received rent?

Did you receive any income in the form of dividend or interest from stocks or bonds?

Did you receive any bonuses during the year?

Did you make any profit on the sale of stocks, bonds or other property, real or personal?

Did you act as a broker in any transaction from which you received commissions?

Are you interested in any partnership or other firm from which you received any income?

Have you any income from royalties or patents?

Have you any minor children who are working?

Do you appropriate, or have the right to appropriate the earnings of such children? If so, the amount must be included in the return of income.

Has your wife any income from any source whatsoever? If so it must be included in your return or reported in a separate return of income.

Did you receive any directors' fees or trustees' fees in the course of the year?

Do you hold any office in a benefit society from which you receive income?

Answers to all of these questions are necessary to determine whether a person has an income sufficiently large to require that a return be filed and may be the means of avoiding heavy penalties imposed for failure to do so within the time prescribed.

Artists used to be poverty-stricken, but artists nowadays have limousines.

100, the federal civil service payroll now amounts to more than seven hundred million dollars annually. The largest single branch is the Post Office department, with nearly 300,000 employees. The War department has more than 125,000 civilian employees, the Navy department about 90,000, and the Treasury department about 60,000. No other branch has as many as 25,000 employees. Any institution that employs one in seventy-three of all this country's workers and calls for the expenditure of such a large part of our annual revenues is entitled to your serious consideration. You and you alone put up the money.

THRILLED BY STATE "LINES"

English Women Surprised at Simplicity of Crossing Boundaries in the United States.

I like the feeling of crossing from one state into another, especially as the American States are as big as European countries. Especially also as there is only a space to mark the division, and the transit is as simple as sailing from one country to another.

At Thundersburg you cross from New York state to Vermont, or from Vermont to New York state. This might seem an important process. Actually, you stand on one shore and peer your head, making a soft drink the while, and presently a vessel appears which is some other than a rowing red punt, propelled from the side by a small launch. The punt lets down a mill-wheel, the motor gives a hiccup over it, and there you are amid the process, powered, takes place on the other side. This is one of the few ferries by means of which you span the great waterways from New York to Canada—waterways over which, most of the time, bridges are unobtainable.

It is also the gateway from the Green mountains in the Adirondacks, blue and shaggy, and from the one you can see the other on either side of Lake Champlain, and between the two on the sparkling blue surface of the lake pierce a little white steamer, bearing visitors to the most historic spots of North America, and taking the place of the black bark canoe with its load of Indians, who also had their own particular interest in historic spots.

—Harriet Harris in the Manchester (England) Guardian.

"Wanted" in With Dominion Police

Under an act of parliament the Royal Northwest mounted police of Canada was merged with the Dominion police May 1, 1922, with jurisdiction throughout Canada, and known as the Royal Canadian mounted police.

The Dominion police was a small body of men, the authorized members of which were employed largely in guarding the parliament buildings, the mint and other government structures in Ottawa. It was attached a number of highly trained experts, skilled in dealing with international criminals and their schemes, and having knowledge of the finger print system. There are now all members of the Royal Canadian mounted police under the command of Col. A. Bruce Perry.

The force is now recruited to its former strength of 1,200. Canadian government officials hope soon to be able to increase it far beyond that number, but the dominion's war debt is to date making that impossible.

FOREIGN TRADE STEADILY GAINS

Banker Shows How Central European Countries Are Rapidly Recovering From War.

POLAND IMPROVING RAILWAYS

Effect of Foreign Markets on Business Situation in This Country Recalls Days Following Other Great Wars in History.

Boston, Mass., December. —A general improvement in foreign trade conditions has been noted with approval throughout New England and the Atlantic seaboard states during the past week. Chief among the events of financial interest in the last seven days has been the announcement in Boston and Wall Street circles of an American publishing house soon to be established at Prague, Czechoslovakia, and the issue of a municipal loan of the City of Warsaw in five per cent improvement bonds totaling one billion marks. The bonds are secured by Warsaw City property of a pre-war value of $47,001,223, against which there is a total indebtedness, including the present loan, of only $3,100,000.

The fact that American capital is backing enterprises in Czechoslovakia and Poland shows that business men feel that these nations are making the most rapid recovery of any of the countries of Central Europe.

American bankers are interested in the opportunities offered by foreign municipal bonds. Chandler M. Wood, president of the Metropolitan Trust Company of Boston, Mass., has just issued an analysis of foreign investment markets which is looked upon as a real asset to Americans contemplating foreign purchases.

"Attractive investments in foreign municipal bonds, well secured by city properties, are offered the American public today at prices they cannot hope to duplicate for two or three generations," Mr. Wood declared. "In considering the question of the financial recovery of foreign countries, it is well to look into the per capita debt of the different nations. The following table sums up the situation at a glance:

Poland	$ 13.00
Japan	22.00
United States	225.00
Russia	294.00
Belgium	340.00
Italy	509.00
England	$15.00
Germany	$20.00
France	$183.00

"Poland has a sound equitable basis of long term credit to offer American interests in this country."

Improving Railway Systems
Colonel A. B. Barber, an American who has been acting as the technical adviser for Poland for the past year, has just made a report concerning the expansion of Poland's railway system, which has had much to do with the recent interest of this country in the financial recovery of Poland.

"The Ministry of Transportation and Communication and the Ministry of War of the Republic of Poland are laying out a big program of railroad construction which will become a vital factor in international trade," Colonel Barber declared. "Poland has laid out a program of transportation which includes three main tasks—first, changing to a standard gauge; second, the connecting up of various lines in Russian Poland with the lines in Galicia and Poland; and lastly, the building of additional lines to connect the main cities of Poland."

Romance of Wars
Back of the renewed industrial activity of these nations of Central Europe lies the romance which is always a part of all historic wars—that of the way great fortunes have been made through the buying and selling of securities of war stricken countries. The colossal influence of the Rothschild banking house dates from the battle of Waterloo. Meyer Rothschild was nearby when the famous battle was fought. Those were days before telegraph, cables or fast ships. At the risk of his life he crossed the English channel and purchased large quantities of bonds made almost worthless by the news of Blucher's defeat. When the bonds were sent skyrocketing by the favorable news of England's victory, the house of Rothschild made a fortune.

PAINTS

Bill Smith owned a house of wood, and wished to sell it if he could, but no matter how he'd try, he couldn't find a man to buy. After many months had past, and hopes of sales were going fast, a neighbor met him on the walk and stopped to have a little talk.

"I see your house is still unsold, no doubt because it looks so old. If you will spend a little cash and paint the house from roof to sash, you'll find it looks so very well that it will not be hard to sell."

So Bill he took this good advice, and after painting raised the price, and ere a week had taken flight the house was sold to Bill's delight.

Where the Peach Stones Were.
A 500-ton mountain of peach stones was recently thrown upon the New York local fuel market as a substitute for coal. The stones were gathered by patriotic Americans in war time to be used in the manufacture of gas masks. They found a ready market at $1 a ton and were distributed to the needy.—Dearborn Independent.

Girl of 13 Shoots Big Buck From Window

Mary Clement, 13, of Candia, a small village 10 miles from Manchester, is the heroine of the most remarkable hunting story that has come out of the 1921 season. The little girl was awakened from sleep recently by an unaccountable noise near her chamber window. Rising, she found that a big buck deer was pulling hay from cracks in her father's barn and enjoying his morning meal. Although she had never before fired a weapon, Mary got her father's double-barrelled shotgun, raised the window and pulled both triggers. Mary was thrown to the floor by the shot, but her aim was true. The buck struggled to his feet, stumbled and fell dead.

Granite State's Anniversary to Be Held in 1923

The 300th anniversary of the settlement of New Hampshire will be observed in 1923. The state commission appointed to arrange for the observance held a meeting at the office of Gov. Albert O. Brown, chairman of the commission. The commission members discussed informally plans for celebrating the anniversary. Under the legislative act passed at the last session of the General Court, the date of the observance was set during Old Home Week (August 20 to 26) in 1923. It was voted at the meeting to hold celebrations in Portsmouth and Dover the first part of the week, these places being the first to be settled in the Granite state, and continue the observance with a suitable program in Concord the latter part of Old Home Week.

Winter Carnival to be Held in Laconia

Plans are being perfected for a Winter carnival to be held at Laconia the week of Feb. 22. A Laconia Winter Club has been organized that has for its purpose the promoting of Winter sports in that city. Work is to be started at once on erecting a skating rink at the Pearl St. grounds, which have been leased for the Winter season. The rink is to be lighted by electric lights, in order that skating parties may be held in the evening.

A Hockey rink is to be built in front of the grandstand during Carnival Week games will be played by the fastest teams in New England. A tobogganing slide is to be built at the Lakeport end of the city and later a ski jump will be erected.

In connection with the Carnival Week there will be several matinee horse races under the direction of the Laconia Driving Club.

Character in Home.

If there are children in the home we must ever keep in mind that every object there is helping or retarding the character development of that child. He has a right to his own furniture in bedroom, living room and sunroom, and to be able to receive impressions from beautiful things that will help formulate his life standards, for, as one writer says, "Childhood shows the man, as morning shows the day." And finally, let utility, comfort and beauty be our guide in bringing about complete harmony in decoration.

Labor Turnovers Means Big Loss

Manchester has a labor turnover of 75 per cent every year, which means that 21,000 of the 28,000 workers in the city change their jobs or are out of work. This fact was brought out at the meeting of the Employment Managers' Association. It was figured that the cost of training workers for new positions ranged from $7 to $50 per worker, aggregation over $1,500,000 lost to industry every year by training, loss of production, damaged work and other reasons.

Kills Self as Family Comes to Join Him

While his wife and daughter, for whom he sent a month ago, were speeding across the Atlantic for a reunion with their husband and father, Roman Sismowski, 35, an employee of a Manchester shoe factory, hung himself from a water pipe in the kitchen of the tenement in which he rooms. Sismowski had been in poor spirits but the cause of his worry was not known to his friends.

Special Course in Forestry at Durham

The course will open on Jan. 4 with 15 or 20 men to be assigned by the New England district office of the bureau, and will extend over 18 months, including about five months to be spent under the direction in the forests of the state. ### Pine Blister Rust is Found in Concord Trees

Pine blister rust has obtained a foothold in Concord, where it has not previously been found, and the officials of the State Forestry Department will institute immediately a local campaign against the infection. A diseased tree has been located in the large tract of pines owned by the Concord Water Works on the shores of Lake Penacook, the source of the city's water supply. It is estimated that there are 100,000 young trees in the water works tract and five times that number in the plantation of the Concord Electric Company a few miles distant.

Whittemore, assistant to the state tax commission, and an interesting diagram showing how the average city and town dollar is spent has been prepared by Mr. Whittemore. ### Million in N. H. Property Undertaxed

That millions of dollars of property has been found to be under valued by tax assessors of New Hampshire, and merchants and manufacturers have maintained belligerent attitudes to forestall investigation of true values by the assessors, was the startling information imparted to the Association of New Hampshire Assessors in convention at Manchester, by Lawrence F. Whittemore, assistant to the state tax commission. Mr. Whittemore cited several cases to prove his assertions, and said that only the timely investigation made by the state tax commissioners saved thousands of dollars in taxes to the state, which might have otherwise been overlooked.

The tax commission has not investigated taxation values recently in Manchester, but, according to one of the assessors at the convention, the commission is expected to spend considerable time there soon investigating taxable property to determine an equitable valuation.

James C. Farmer, manager of the New Hampshire Marketing Association quoted figures to show that several millions of dollars worth of seasonable farm products could be grown in the Granite State, thereby keeping money in the state which is going elsewhere and serves to decrease the taxation source in New Hampshire.

Can Pay Too High for Peace.

We lose peace as we abhor punishment; but not peace at any price. There is a peace that is more destructive of the manhood of living man than war is destructive of his material body. Chains are worse than bayonets. Donatas Jerrold.

Marvelous Art.

A marvelous production of art is the portrait of Paul V in the Borghese palace, executed by Marcello Plovenale in mosaic. The face alone consists of 2,000,000 pieces, many of which are no larger than a grain of sand.

Abraham's Oak Tree.

When Abraham was promised a possession of the land of Canaan, it is recorded, he was commanded to walk through the land, whereupon he removed his tent, and came and dwelt in the plain of Manure, which is Hebron, and built there an altar to the Lord. It is stated that this spot is still marked by a great oak tree venerated alike by Christian, Jew and Mohammedan. Its preservation in a region cleared of almost all trees to the improvident Turks is attributed to the protection by all religions.

Used Insects to Fight Insects.

Control of destructive insects by the introduction of their natural enemies has become an important technique during the last generation, writes Paul Popenoe in Science. But if competent observers are to be trusted, the southern Arabs employed the same method more than 160 years ago in the culture of the date palm. In his "Relation d'un Voyage dans l'Yemen," P. E. Botta says: "I was able to verify the singular fact previously observed by Forskal, that the date palm in Yemen are attacked by a species of ant which would cause them to perish if each year the growers did not bring from the mountains and fasten in the tops of the palms branches of a tree that I did not recognize, which contains the nests of another species of ant which destroys that of the date palm."

A Peculiar View.

Howell—He has some queer ideas.
Powell—Yes, he believes that the history of the world would have been changed if he had married a different woman.

Hidden Features.

"Turkish ladies conceal their faces." "So do we," replied Miss Cayenne, only we use cosmetics instead of yashmaks."

Man Must Have Mustache.

To be without a mustache is a disgrace in many parts of North, or High, Albania. The Albanian mother tells her child stories in which, unlike our stage melodrama, it always is the hairless man who figures as the villain.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.
