MRS. HULDAH WING

Aged Resident Passes on to Her Reward

After a number of weeks' illness, during which she had at times been very sick, Mrs. Hulda Wing passed away at her home near North Branch village on Wednesday night last, at the advanced age of 80 years, she having observed this birthday in September last. She will be greatly missed by her large circle of friends.

For a number of years Miss Hattie Crooker had made her home with Mrs. Wing and had given her every attention in her declining years. Deceased had the care of trained nurses during her last illness and was tenderly looked after by her daughter, Mrs. Thurlow; her son, George Symes, who resides in Dorchester, Mass., was at the home occasionally to look after his mother's needs. Neighbors and friends were also very kind and rendered assistance as well as sympathy in every way.

Mrs. Wing was born in Phillips, Maine, and was a member of the Stephens branch of the Wing family. Her first marriage was to Jacob Symes, at Lawrence, Mass., Dec. 19, 1880, and lived in Boston; two children were born to them: Emily L. and George W. Mrs. Wing purchased the Dustin place in January, 1888, and occupied it the following May, until the time of her death. A number of years after the death of Mr. Symes she married Benj. B. Wing, August 13, 1900, who died in November, 1916. She has continued to carry on the farm in a limited way. For many consecutive years Mrs. Wing attended the reunions of the Wings in various parts of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. She held membership in the Grange, had been a member of the Rebekah degree, I. O. O. F., for about fifty years, and was present at the institution of the first Rebekah lodge in Massachusetts; she was also a member of Portia Chapter, O. E. S., of Hillsboro. In the Grange she had taken the seven degrees. Mrs. Wing was a grand-daughter of Moses Wing, who was a surgeon in the Revolutionary War.

Deceased was a nurse of much ability and she had been in many homes in town during the hours of their sorrow as well as their joy. She was a woman who always took an active interest in every event of the day. There are a large number of our people who mourn her loss who feel that there is a vacancy which can never be filled.

Deceased was very well known, not only in her section of the town but for miles around, as one of the most energetic and capable women anywhere. She was always ready to lend a helping hand to those in trouble and her ministrations to the needy will long be remembered. For a woman of her years she was, up to her last sickness, very active and was always happy when she could be present where were gathered any number of her many friends. All will remember her pleasing voice and manner and the smile and happy word of greeting she had for everybody. She belonged to that "old school" of ladies, of which there are only a few left, whose one aim seemed to be sharing their own happy temperaments with all whom they chanced to meet.

Deceased is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Emily L. Thurlow, and son, George W. Symes, who have the sympathy of everyone.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon, Rev. J. D. Cameron, D. D., officiating. Beautiful flowers were sent by friends. Mrs. Mary Temple sang two selections in a very touching manner.

The following poem was read during the funeral service, by Dr. Cameron:

WHEN WE GO HOME

When we go home, think you it true
That we shall know as once we knew,
You speak with me and I with you,
When we go home?

When we go home I hope to see
An older face look up at me,
Unchanged from what it used to be,
When we go home.

When we go home, we know not when,
Nor do we care, if only then
We live again the old has been,
When we go home.

ANTRIM TRUST FUNDS

Important Data Regarding This Money

The Reporter is pleased to give space to the following data regarding local trust funds. It will be read with interest by our subscribers, not only in town but by everyone who is interested in our welfare.

J. A. Tuttle Library Fund $11,359.65
Saltmarsh Poor Fund 6,825.00
Goodell School Fund 1,100.00
Miscellaneous Cemetery Funds 1,300.00

Total in hands of Trustees $20,584.65

About half of this, or $9,912.08, is invested in 4 1/2 percent U. S. Liberty Bonds having a par value of $11,200.00, bought at an average price of $88.50 but worth at present market price about 98 or $10,976.00, which it will be seen is $1,063.97 more than cost.

In other words the funds have increased in value while in the hands of present board of trustees from $20,584.65 to a market value of $21,648.62.

$200.00 of the Cemetery Fund was on interest only part of the year and another $200.00 more recently paid in, was not invested in season to produce any income in 1921.

However, the total income for the year February 1, 1921 to February 1, 1922 was $936.18, which is at the average rate of 4.59 percent.

This seems to be a good showing when it is considered that the trustees are restricted by law to investment in bonds, notes or other obligation of the United States, State, County, City or School District Bonds, Savings Banks in this state, or notes of towns or cities in the state.

The present Board of Trustees are:

F. C. Parmenter
C. F. Butterfield
H. A. Hurlin

The Sugar-loaf Rock

Doubtless the picture of the birthplace of the late James A. Tuttle, donor of the beautiful memorial library at Antrim, will appear in the new Antrim History. When the photographer goes to the north part of the town for this work, it has been suggested that a picture of "The Sugar-loaf Rock" be also taken for the history. This rock is on the Miles Benton Tuttle farm (now 1922, owned by Robert Dickie) and is but a few feet from the highway on the "old road."

By many this is supposed to be some kind of an old Indian landmark. It is on a rise of ground and is so placed that it would attract the attention of people coming down the river.

It does not require very strong imagination to picture the Indians in the long ago, hunting and fishing in this locality and gliding in their canoes over the lonely, silent water. When the oak leaves were the size of a squirrel's ear the squaws commenced to plant their corn. There is much fertile land in this vicinity, another reason for thinking that the red man was as familiar with this valley as the present occupants.

In outline this rock very much resembles that of the State of New Hampshire. This is especially noticeable on the north and south sides.

Woman's Club Musical

At the regular meeting of the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon the annual musical was held. In spite of the inclement weather, a large number of members and guests were present, including a good representation from the Hancock Club. The program was in charge of Mrs. R. W. Jamerson, who was assisted by two artists, from Concord. It was a rare treat and much enjoyed by all.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the many kind friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy, during the recent illness of our mother, Mrs. Hulda C. Wing, also for the beautiful flowers sent to her.

George W. Symes
Emily L. Thurlow

When we go home I know it's so,
From out the shades of long ago,
Will come the friends we lost below,
When we go home.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested by What Is Happening Around

The Seattle, Wash., program for the entertainment of Marshal Joffre of France will be in charge of the American Legion. The hero of the Marne will arrive from Japan in the Spring.

Producing documents which showed him to be an honorably discharged German soldier and holder of the Iron Cross, an applicant for membership in the American Legion at Mexico City, Mexico, said he thought the organization took in all soldiers regardless of where they ever fought.

"Spring clean-up days" are being observed throughout the country as a part of the American Legion's campaign to give jobs to all unemployed ex-service men. "Have an ex-soldier do it" has brought out old time kitchen police whose knowledge of barrack cleaning hasn't been forgotten.

Hon. Albert W. Noone, of Peterboro, is surely a public spirited man, in his offer to his neighbor when he says: "If the town of Jaffrey is unable to pay its debts, I'll pay them myself. Glad to do it." It is very likely just as he states, that "somebody has it in for somebody else" that has made the recent trouble in relation to town affairs. This is undesirable advertising for a town and it is hoped that the disturbance will very soon take on a more quiet turn.

Oh yes, we received the questionnaire blanks from the state tax commission, but really we don't know just what the idea. And judging from the reports in the exchange papers we guess no one else has much of an idea what is on. In talking with one person about the matter, he said: "You know the tax commission is very much interested in a high valuation for the towns and cities, but is not so much concerned in the tax rate. A high valuation naturally carries with it a low rate of tax. Yet what does a voter care whether the valuation is low and the tax-rate high, or vice versa,—so much has to be raised in taxes anyhow. We do not see where this would interest the state tax commission in the least, but if the valuation of a town or city is all it will stand and a little more, does this not make the state and county tax that each town has to pay proportionately larger? We think so. This may not be the reason that the state tax commission has in mind, but to the average man it looks reasonable.

Annual Business Meeting

The annual business meeting of the Presbyterian church will be held in the vestry April 4, at 7.30 p. m. The regular election of officers for the ensuing year will be the first order of the meeting. After this there will be heard the reports of the secretaries and treasurers of all departments of the church. The attention of all members and adherents of the church is called to this notice.

Under the direction of the Unity Guild a supper will be served at 6.30, and all families and individuals connected with the church are expected to dine in the vestry that evening instead of at home.

Roads Closed

To heavy travel. The Contoocook Valley highway, the Cheshire road from Keene running through the north part of Antrim, and the piece of permanent highway in Antrim village to Clinton, is closed to travel by three ton trucks with load and two ton heavy team loads.

DEPENDABLE KITCHEN UTENSILS

The sort that give a long term of satisfactory service

WEAR EVER ALUMINUM: The aluminum that made aluminum utensils famous. Perhaps you remember when enameled ware was introduced for kitchen use, housekeepers got the notion that any enameled utensil was desirable, and a lot of low grade cheap enameled dishes were purchased, but housekeepers soon learned that it was not price that determined cost to use.

ALUMINUM IS GOING THROUGH THE SAME PROCESS, a lot of thin soft aluminum is being offered, which cannot possibly be durable; buy WEAREVER and take no chance.

REDS ENAMELED WARE: The sort that took the place of the high grade imported articles which were standard before the war, seamless bodies, smooth handles, heavy foundation and three coats of the best enamel smoothly laid, white lined.

ROYAL ENAMELED WARE: The high grade of moderate cost, the sort that gives a lot of service with very moderate investment.

REED MATCHLESS TIN: Tin for many articles: milk cans, dish pans, dairy pails for instance, proves more satisfactory than any other material, it has to be good tin however, and we have it.

IT IS NOT WHAT YOU PAY THAT DETERMINES THE COST, IT IS THE COST PER YEAR.

You can obtain any of these articles from us by mail if you cannot call, but it is always more satisfactory to see for yourself.

The committee having in charge the procuring of the memorial tablet to be put on the boulder on the library lawn is able to report progress and hopes in a few weeks to hear of its completion. As a part of the exercises for Memorial Day the unveiling of this memorial will be a very fitting number on the program. Our people and the boys whom this town honors in this way will have a memorial which is a deserving tribute and a lasting monument.

At the regular meeting of Waverley lodge of Odd Fellows on Saturday evening last, the matter of bringing to town next winter an entertainment course was considered, and it was thought best to have such entertainments. A committee was appointed to close a deal with the representative who was present for this purpose. It is given out that these entertainments are doubtless the best of their kind ever brought to Antrim, and it will afford our people an excellent opportunity to have something good. The thought of having something nice to look forward to is in itself worth considerable.

ONLY TWO STATES FOR 48 HOURS

Massachusetts is Practically Alone as California Manufactures Almost No Cotton

ALL 60-HOUR WEEKS DOWN SOUTH

Stupendous Burden Imposed on the Northern States Interested in Production of Textiles

Boston—The following statement is issued by the public information bureau of the Cotton Textile Employers' Association:

In none of the Southern cotton manufacturing states is there a law limiting the weekly working hours of women and children to less than 60 hours, with the exception of Tennessee, where the spindleage is only 429,431, which has 57 hours, and Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas, with an insignificant total spindleage of 49,000 on 54 hours.

The following Southern states carrying a total spindleage of 14,191,680, nearly half that of the whole country, operate under a 60-hour law: Kentucky, 97,000; Mississippi, 169,000; Louisiana, 106,000; Georgia, 2,698,227; South Carolina, 5,075,540; North Carolina, 5,247,027; Virginia, 589,858; and Maryland, 238,000.

Massachusetts is the only cotton manufacturing state with a 48-hour weekly working statute. In fact, it is practically the one state with this limit, as California, its companion in hours, has a spindleage of only 78,000, while Massachusetts has 11,841,157.

Ohio, with only 15,000, has a 50-hour law, while the following ten, with a spindleage of 6,871,809, are subject to a 54-hour regulation: Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Michigan, Texas and Rhode Island.

Connecticut, with 1,392,562 spindles, and Wisconsin, with 2000, are limited to 48 hours while Vermont, with 145,000, has a 55-hour law.

Comment on the stupendous burden thus imposed on Massachusetts and other northern cotton-manufacturing states is wholly superfluous in the face of this array of figures.

Germany's Solution of Problem

The major portion of an able editorial in the New York Herald, which discussed the eight-hour working day is herewith submitted:

The reawakening of Germany to the law of economics and of sense that mere wage scales cannot give workers what they want without the production by the workers to back up the wage scales means that other nations will have to face the same fundamental truth whether they like it or not. German productivity or German unproductivity, British, American or any other workers cannot let their own production decline without having their standard of living decline, for the simple reason that they can divide only what there is to divide. The more there is produced the more there is to divide; the less there is produced the less there is to divide.

Germany's output of food, clothes and other necessities of life is not enough under the eight-hour system, the labor leaders now frankly admit to enable the people to live as they lived before when more work was done and more of everything was produced. That being true of Germany as to its own standard of living, something else must be equally true as to German productivity in relation to general productivity. This is that if the German workers speed up their productivity either other peoples of whom the Germans are trade competitors must speed up their productivity or the Germans will conquer the world industrially where they failed to conquer it by force of arms.

More Human Steam Needed

Increased production, with a corresponding lifting of living standards, may not always depend upon the length of the working day. In one country or in one industry where productivity has eased away through men not staying on the job only more hours of work can solve the problem. In another where men are putting in long enough hours but not hard enough, less more human steam will turn the trick. But whether by longer hours in the one instance or by closer application in the other, the productivity of a nation or of an industry must be prevented from running down or its population must have its bread cut in thinner and fewer slices. There is no possible escape from that.

In this country of all countries, where hard work from morning to night built up American industrial power and gave the highest standard of living ever known to the world, labor has been grossly duped by labor union politicians and other demagogues into the idiotic belief that it could get a good living without working for it. It might as well expect stones to turn into fruit for the mere wishing.

The following clipping was taken from the Boston Globe:

At a meeting tonight of those interested in the formation in this city (Concord) of the regimental headquarters company of the Anti-Aircraft Battalion, it was announced by Adj. Gen. Charles W. Howard that four radio stations will be equipped in this state by the National Guard, at Concord, Manchester, Portsmouth and Dover.

The latest and best equipment will be installed and special ratings carrying increased pay will be given to men enlisted as chauffeurs, mechanics, electricians, radio and signalmen. Lieut. William Knowles, who has been selected to command the local company, is a train dispatcher for the Boston & Maine Railroad, who has had signal corps experience on the Mexican border and in the World War.

Lieut. Wm. Knowles is a Bennington native, whose parents, Mr. and Robert Knowles, reside here.

The Ragged Jacket

Although I am but a workingman, I live by honest labor, I always do the best I can to assist a needy neighbor; Content in health, is all my wealth, with honesty to back it, My motives pure, although I'm poor, I respect a ragged jacket.

Let people say whatever they may or broadcast and who wears it, It's not the coat that makes the man, but the deeds through life that bears it.

So, always help a fellow man, if assistance he should lack it; Do him all the good you can, though he wear a ragged jacket.

All men were equally born at first, through this and every Nation. The rich among the poor would be, but for wealth and education; And when we're laid beneath the sod, with a hundred years to back it, Who can tell which were the bones that wore the ragged jacket!

NEW DANCE HAS MADE HIT

Gothamites Take to Importation From London, Though it Seems Rather a Childish Pastime.

There's a new dance stunt in town. It's the balloon dance and it's from dear old London, don't you know. It's a bit of all right, too.

A few nights ago it was introduced at the Rendezvous—one of Broadway's most exclusive supper clubs. And it made a tremendous hit, says the New York World.

A toy balloon is tied to the ankle of each dancer of the fair sex and the idea is to get through a close-fitting foxglove or a tiddle with the balloon still intact. That is the girl's idea.

The idea of the men dancers is to break as many balloons as possible without stepping out of the dance. On a crowded floor the balloons have about as much chance as a snowball in a well-warmed place than New York. However, a prize is offered to the woman who can emerge from the maze of the dance with her balloon still flying.

One young lady at the Rendezvous actually won the prize. But the popping of the colored spheres reminded one of the popping of champagne corks.

Anyway, it's a great boon for the balloon manufacturers. For the dance floors of the average tiddle sanctuary are so small that the only way to keep off one's partner's balloon is to step on her feet—and that is not very popular with the fair sex.

RETURNING TO SWORD PLAY

New York Children in Their Games, Seem to Have Abandoned "Modern Warfare"

Playwrights and theatrical producers predict the return of the costume play and the swashbuckler melodrama. But the youngsters of New York seem to have realized this prophecy in their games.

Wooden swords, umbrella rib daggers and crossbows have supplanted dummy rifles and barrel stave artillery pieces that were popularized by the World War.

Sword play, with hickory rapiers and fragile crate-cover cutlasses seem to have asserted a romantic appeal over infantry charges and vocal "bing! bangs!" The vacant lot is no longer no man's land, but a rock-strewn heath or a tin can infested moor, where Frankie and Johnny would do each other in mortal combat as Spaniard and Dutchman in the lowlands.

There is more realism in the sword than in the pistol, with which one must say "Bang!" Rock piles have become castles after the fashion of the Arthurian legends and lance-armed knights guard drawbridges of planks or old doors over imitation moats—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

COMMUTER HAS GREAT IDEA

Warm His Hat Before Putting It On When the Morning is of the Chilly Order.

The commuter was shivering. An icy blast had chilled him through when he got out of bed to close the window and, although he was about to seat himself at the breakfast table, his teeth chattered at the thought of the cold walk he must take to get the 8:10.

Suddenly a brilliant idea struck him. He dashed into the hall, rescued a soft hat from the hat rack and, slipping into the living room, turned on the electric lamp and dropped his hat over it.

His better half, who had been regarding him with amazement, but who had been married long enough to know not to ask questions in the middle of her husband's brilliant schemes, stepped to the door of the living room and smiled.

"Come on, dear," she pleaded; "you're late now and I've got the loveliest muffins."

"Fine," was the response. "Suppose you wonder what's the big idea. Well, you know, when a man is cold he puts on his hat. I've improved on that. Got my hat on the lamp warming. The leather band inside is always so cold these mornings."

ONE OF GREAT CITY'S TRAGEDIES

An old-time tragedy of the Central Markets, Paris, has been recalled by the death at an advanced age of a once rich woman, who for many years had a poor living there, overhauling garbage cans and selling anything of value she might be able to find therein. Her name was unknown, and for nearly half a century she was merely called "Princess." Fifty years ago it was fashionable for persons of high society in Paris to pass riotous night in the cafes and stails of the market. On one occasion a fashionable woman, one of a gay party, was robbed of money and jewels, presumably by her escort. Left penniless, she refused, for reasons easily surmisable, to communicate with her husband or her family in central France. Instead she sought employment and gradually fell into extreme poverty. She got her nickname owing to her invariable habit, when asked about her former life, of replying: "Ask no questions; I am a princess from a far country."

SMILING PORCHES

More houses are being built with inclosed porches than ever before; you may walk down long streets of dear little homes whose porches smile at you through tiny panes of glass. You pass medium-sized places with grounds, comfortable houses set back from the road, and large mansions—in every one somewhere you catch the glimpse of an enclosed porch-room. Old-fashioned houses follow suit, and back of the rounded Colonial pillars are fitted small-paned glass partitions that inclose the porch as efficaciously as though it had been built that way in the beginning. In the summer these are lifted out, leaving the porch as before.—The Designer.

CANADA PUSHING HONEY INDUSTRY

It is expected that Ontario's honey crop next season will be marketed largely on the co-operative system, as a result of the activities of the committee appointed recently by the Ontario Bee Keepers' association, and with the assistance of the Ontario government. SHALLS IN LONDON RESTAURANTS

English officers who served in France during the war acquired in many cases a taste for frogs' legs and snails, hitherto unknown to London menus. When they returned home they demanded the same tidbits in London and now both frogs' legs and snails are conveyed daily from France to London by airplane. How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

SYSTEM IS ALL WRONG

The great difficulty that stands in the way of discussing Uncle Sam as an employer is that there is no such person.

The men who stand in the relation of employer to their subordinates are nothing but employees themselves, and temporary ones at that, with a very fleeting tenure of office. Cabinet officers and members of congress, to whom the rank and file of employees look for guidance for a solution of their problems, are simply fleeting figures that come and go, with their own interests to serve. They testify freely enough as to conditions of government employment. Senator Carter Glass, recently secretary of the treasury, for example:

"The largely multiplied business of the government cannot be conducted with efficiency and economy unless there be attracted to and retained in the public service a group of highly trained, well-paid and permanent officials of supervisory grades. Uncertainty of tenure in some instances and inadequacy of compensation have closed the public service to many men of the best type or forced them out of government employ at the moment of their greatest usefulness.

"The war has increased the public debt more than twenty-five fold and has augmented the functions and activities of the government in many ways. The duties are greater and the responsibilities are larger than those of other days; to the standards of which it is not to be expected that the government will ever return. The conditions are such that failure to take the necessary action to invite and hold in the public service men of exceptional ability and of real distinction in their fields can result only in grave burdens to the taxpayers of the country and in possible disaster.

"Already the transaction of the business of the government is hampered by deficiencies of personnel due to the return to private life of many men of large capacity who during the period of active warfare were willing and glad to serve their country at great personal sacrifice. I have come to learn that there are heroes in the civil establishments as well as in the military services, self-sacrificing patriots who toll year in and year out for a bare pittance when they could command salaries double or triple the amounts they receive from the government, but who, for the love of their country and for the love of their work, have rejected alluring offers in the field of private enterprise. They were too fine and too patriotic to leave their posts.

"Under the compelling force of patriotism they made willing sacrifices during the war, but with the return of peace the government cannot expect to retain these employees indefinitely, because in justice to themselves and their families they will sooner or later accept the larger opportunities that are open to them in the world of business and industry unless the government proposes to pay them salaries that at least reasonably approach the value of their services.

"Only prompt action by the congress to build up a permanent and dignified civil service which will include men of great ability and high attainments can prevent mistakes and failures in the transaction of the public business, the consequences of which may be calamitous."

Ex-Representative Good, who was chairman of the appropriations committee of the house, is equally frank:

"Today duplication in the government service abounds on every hand. For example, eight different departments of the government, with large overhead organizations, are engaged in engineering work, in navigation, irrigation and drainage, eleven different bureaus are engaged in engineering research; twelve different organizations are engaged in road construction, while twelve, with large overhead organizations, are engaged in hydraulic construction and sixteen are engaged in surveying and mapping. Sixteen different bureaus exercise jurisdiction over water-power development. Nine different organizations are collecting information on the consumption of coal. Forty-two different organizations, with overhead expenses, are dealing with the question of public health.

"The Treasury department, the War department, the Interior department and the Labor department each has a bureau dealing with the question of general education. These departments operate independently; instances of co-operation between them are exceptional. Each of these departments is manned at all times with an organization prepared to carry the peak of the load and maintains an expensive ready-to-serve personnel. A lack of co-operation in the executive departments necessarily leads to gross extravagance. The system is wrong, and congress alone can change the system."

"Listen, son: Some folks call this whittlin' tobacco old-fashioned, but they don't know where the honey is!"

The new district attorney has asked Mr. Levensaler to continue in office while and to prepare the criminal cases to be presented to the April grand jury.

Throws Liquor Into Brook

Joseph E. Bellis, claiming Lawrence, Mass., as his residence, was arrested by federal enforcement officers in Derry after a chase of nearly a mile, during which he heaved most of his machine's cargo of liquor into a small brook. He was stopped after the driver of the car carrying the officers had swerved his machine in such a way as to make a halt or a collision necessary.

Shoe Transportation Rates Reduced

Manchester boot and shoe manufacturers will receive a reduction in their transportation rates of nearly 10 cents per 100 pounds as the result of a conference between the general freight agent of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company of Baltimore and J. J. Cummings, transportation engineer of the New Hampshire Manufacturers' Association. The new rate received by Mr. Cummings, will be 95 cents per 100 pounds from Manchester to Richmond, a saving of 9 1/2 cents.

Father-in-Law Sued for Support

Albion Soper of Portsmouth has filed suit for $3000 against his father-in-law, O. S. Conery, a chiropractor of that city, for breach of contract for failure to support him and his wife. In a plea of assumpsit, it is set forth that on Nov. 4, 1920, the defendant was the father of one Thelma Conery and that he then and there promised and agreed with Soper that if he would marry Thelma at once he would pay all expenses of the education of the plaintiff and Thelma for a period of three years.

Polls Sentiment on Dry and Blue Laws

Five hundred ballot boxes are being distributed throughout New Hampshire in preparation for a state-wide vote on liberalization of the 18th amendment and of Sunday blue laws by Francis Clay Harley, former mayor of Astoria, Ore., and now chairman of the National Liberal Alliance, working to modify the effects of the Volstead act.

Questionnaires asking "Yes" and "No" votes on the dry amendment and the blue law question are to be distributed to all communities in which the ballot boxes are placed. Names secured in this manner are to be used in petitioning Congress at the next session, Chairman Harley says.

Say Partridges Kill Orchard's

Owners of over 50 fruit orchards in the state have filed claims with the office of the state commissioner of fish and game, claiming damages to their trees by partridges.

The number of trees in excess of the claims filed in years previous and following a conference with President George M. Putnam of the State Federation of Farm Bureau. State Commissioner Mott L. Bartlett has named Robert T. Gould of Hopkinton, one of the state's foremost fruit growers, to represent the state department and make an official inspection of the orchards which have been damaged.

The orchards which have been damaged the most are located in Merrimack, Hillsborough and Cheshire counties, according to the reports which have been received.

Edes Major in New Hampshire Guard

Samuel H. Edes of Newport has been commissioned major and George R. Bowman and Thomas P. (Cousin) of Laconia, captains, in the reorganized New Hampshire National Guard. All three were connected with the State Militia prior to the World War and during that period served with the A. E. F. Major Edes is a former state senator, Capt. Cheney is solicitor of Belknap county and Capt. Bowman is a war hero of the State Fish and Game department.

WARD OFF DANGEROUS "COLD"

Much Sickness May be Prevented by Adoption of a Few Preventive Measures.

A few precautions will decrease the liability of catching cold from exposure to the rains of winter—as well as its snows. Some of the simplest preventatives are those that nature herself furnishes. None needs to catch a cold when wet if he or she will walk or run home briskly. Wet clothing draws the heat from the body and lowers the temperature below normal. This is dangerous. But if the heat of the body is maintained by exercise, little or no harm results from the wet clothing. If obtainable, two or three lumps of sugar should be eaten. This helps the heart's action and supplies considerable heat to the body.

Many deride the popular belief that it is impossible to catch cold from a wetting with sea water, but the statement holds much truth. The salt retards evaporation, and thus chilling of the body is delayed. Obviously, that is an advantage. Further, the salt acts as a stimulant, and assists the circulation of the blood. That is another advantage. Thus, unless in unusual circumstances, there is much less chance of a cold resulting from an immersion in the sea than in fresh water.

Those who feel much depressed in wet weather should form the habit of increasing their rate of breathing. The depression is due to the increase of vapor in the air, and the consequent proportionate decrease of oxygen. Quicker breathing, as is obvious, pumps more oxygen into the system, and the depression departs.

London Police.

London, England, probably has the largest and the most efficient police force in the world. The metropolitan police force has charge of an area beside the River Thames composed of twenty-one land divisions and comprising an area of 688 square miles. A superintendent is over each division. In 1916, the force had a strength of 22,320—composed of thirty-six superintendents, 650 inspectors, 2,905 sergeants, and 18,642 constables. The criminal investigation department, having a central body at New Scotland Yard, and branches in each division, was organized in 1878. A branch of this department is the convict supervision office, founded in 1880. The City of London police had a force of 1,161 in 1916, 1,015 being constables.
