The Antrim Woman's Club

The Antrim Woman's Club met on January 8 at the Antrim town hall. Home Talent Day was observed with the following program: Piano duet; debate—subject, "Resolved that the girl of today is more efficient than the girl of yesterday." The contestants were: affirmative, Mrs. Helene Hills and Mrs. Ethel Nichols; negative, Mrs. Lizzie Stone and Mrs. Ida Robb; the program closed with a piano duet.

The winning side in the debate was the negative. The judges were Mrs. Alice Thompson, Mrs. Lewey Tibbals and Mrs. Maud Robinson.

At the close of the meeting refreshments of punch and cookies were served by the hospitality committee, Mrs. Ethel Davis, Mrs. Blanche Thompson and Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson.

The club voted to purchase a sufficient amount of dishes for its use at the regular meetings; also a cupboard and an oil heater.

At the next regular meeting, to be held on January 22, Mrs. Emma S. Goodell will speak on "The Child and Our National Future." A large attendance is desired.

The Church Has Gained The Front Page

What Is It Worth?

By Wentworth Stewart

Dr. Henry Van Dyke, one of the best known and most admired clergymen of America, recent ambassador to the Netherlands, author of much that is charming as literature, as studies in nature, as well as of many religious books and articles, one time Professor at Princeton, has just surrendered his pew in the Presbyterian church because he had become weary of constant controversial discussions on Sunday.

Dr. Van Dyke expresses the feelings of many persons today who are not so interested in either orthodoxy or heterodoxy as to want it served instead of the gospel from the pulpit on Sunday; to them it is offering a stone when they are hungry for bread.

More people than the preachers are aware of, have settled these questions long since and have their own independent religious views; some thought them through far in advance of their ministers.

Life never was so unbalanced as now and the preachers who ought to stick to their task, to help balance life, are the debaters and helping to accentuate this lack of poise.

The Church has gained the front page, but in gaining the front page it has subjected religion to the cheapening that comes with the modern journalistic custom of using the most sacred things of human life or divine revelation for a

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested By What Is Happening Around

If straw votes were as reliable as they are funny, what a lot of different men and women we would have in official positions! And yet there are a whole lot of self appointed committees constantly working the straws.

Rev. Dr. Peter MacQueen, noted war correspondent, traveler, lecturer, author and eminent divine, died suddenly at his home in Boothbay Harbor, Maine. Many of our people will remember of hearing him lecture in the Antrim town hall a number of years ago in the Citizen's lecture course.

The Board of Education of Franklin have voted to allow dances after school basket ball games. There had been a movement on foot to put a ban on dancing. The dances the board says must be chaperoned by mothers of pupils, and objectional dances will not be tolerated.

This is a move in the right direction,—that is, the matter of chaperones and objectional dances. It is a well known fact that young people (as well as older ones) do not want to be watched too close, but well meaning ones will not object to a reasonable amount of wholesome and common sense advice along these lines.

The thing which made us scratch our head and wonder if we were yet on the scene of action, was reading an article in a recent issue of a magazine on "Stage Coach Days," in connection with which was an illustration of a stage coach "used over 200 years ago in New England states." This picture was a good reproduction of a stage coach that was used from Harwich to Chatham, Mass., when the editor of the Reporter was a youngster, living on the stage line, and up to around 1886 made four trips daily through these towns. We certainly enjoyed ourself when we were riding on the seat with the driver, on top of the stage, on the rack, as well as on the inside with the passengers. The old leather springs were solid and reliable and made the vehicle rock like a cradle when the driver really pushed his four-in-hand across a level piece of road so they could more easily make the up grade near by. We don't know what they did use on this particular line 200 years ago.

Forestry Project Leaders Appointed for Antrim and Hancock

At the Farm Bureau Planning Meetings which were held in Hancock at 2 p.m., January 8th, and at Antrim, at 8 p.m., the same day, the County Blister Rust Agent gave a short talk on the White Pine Blister Rust and Forestry. Much interest was shown along these very important lines, and the following men were appointed to act as Forestry Project Leaders for their towns: John D. Hutchinson for Antrim, and Charles A. Sheldon for Hancock.

Any one interested in any line of forestry work should get in touch with their leader who in turn will take the matter up with the County Blister Rust Agent and he will call on the party. If there are any special lines where a group would like information the Forestry Project Leader and County Blister Rust Agent will arrange a field demonstration where experts from the State Forestry Department, including the State Forester, will discuss these forestry problems.

Antrim Shows Well

During December there were sold, at the local Post office, for cash and issued in exchange for the 1919 War-Savings Stamps which matured on January 1st, $2500 worth of Treasury Savings Certificates.

F. C. Ayres, Director U. S. Savings Organization, First Federal Reserve District, informs us that incomplete returns for December indicate an investment of nearly $1,000,000 for New England and upwards of $25,000,000 for the entire country.

Any money involved in 1918 and 1919 issue of War-Savings Stamps is now idle and should be reinvested in Treasury Savings Certificates at once, so that it will continue to produce an income for the owner and be safe from every possibility of loss.

CAPT. WINANT'S POPULARITY AS CANDIDATE GROWS

First in Field, He Wins Support of Prominent Men For Republican Gubernatorial Nomination. His Political Experience Believed to be Important Factor. Concord Man Picked as Nominee Easiest to Elect.

"The more you know of him the better you like him."

That is the brief description you will get of Capt. John G. Winant, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, from hundreds of prominent New Hampshire men of all political parties whose acquaintance with Captain Winant has made them admirers and warm friends of the man, and enthusiastic supporters of his candidacy.

Though he has the energy and enthusiasm of youth, Captain Winant is also a Representative and Senator and also a citizen. There are earnest supporters of his candidacy who do not agree with him in all his conclusions, for when a candidate for any high office frankly and definitely states his position on all important issues, it is inevitable that some of his adherents should differ with him on certain details of his program; but they know, if they know the man, that his conclusions are reached only after mature consideration and that they are absolutely honest.

To the Voters of the Fourth Councillor District:

In 1922 I was urged by representative Republicans throughout the Fourth Councillor District to become a candidate for the Republican nomination of Councillor. After considering this matter seriously for a time, I decided not to enter the race for the nomination, inasmuch as I did not wish to complicate the situation of the Republican party during the critical campaign of 1922 by entering into a contest in this district.

I am again being urged this year by Republicans throughout the district to become a candidate and after consideration and assurance of support from practically all sections, I hereby announce my candidacy for the Republican Nomination for Councillor from the Fourth New Hampshire District.

Aged Newspapers Found

Examination of old papers filed in the vault of the state department brought to light a copy of the New York Herald for Saturday, April 15, 1865, telling the tragic story of the assassination of President Lincoln. An even older paper is the Boston Weekly Journal for Thursday, Feb. 22, 1849. The Boston paper is curious in appearance with eight very wide and extremely long columns, veritable "blanket sheet". It is complete in four pages, but they are pages crowded with reading matter of a sort differing markedly from the contents of even the most conservative newspaper of today.

It is not given to the elders to have an exclusive right to the now so popular brushed wool garments, for youngsters, too, are wearing cunning sweater sets knitted with the same slinky furlike effect. Of course the yard is of the downiest fuzzy-wuzzy kind, and the finer outfits are featherweight, but infinitely warm and pleasing to the touch.

Scarf and cap sets are especially designed for tots and they express adorable colors, such as powder blue with gray and white stripes, rose with pale blue, and the more practical sort are knitted in solid camel color. Pure white sets are the climax of attractiveness for the infant.

Town to Raise All Products It Uses

Plans to raise on Hopkinton farms all of the products of the soil required by residents of Hopkinton this year were formulated at meeting of the townspeople, this being the first systematic attempt in the state since the decline of agriculture many years ago to return to the self-sustained basis of the early period of the country.

County Agent Roy W. Peaslee of Concord and B. M. Davis, instructor of agriculture in the Hopkinton high school, have been making a study of the needs of Hopkinton and possibilities of the farms in the town to supply these needs. They explained what their survey has shown them and suggested how the farmers should use their soil to furnish the necessary produce. The plan calls for scientific selection of crops to be planted and volume of production. The study took in the sort of crops that have been raised in past years and the amount of food supplies which could have been raised in the town, which have been shipped in from outside.

The state farm bureau and other agricultural organizations are behind the Hopkinton experiment.

Calls Merger Only Hope of N. E. Roads

Consolidation through co-operation, according to Lester F. Thurber, chair of the New Hampshire commission, which has investigated the New England railroad situation, is the only salvation for the Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads. In a brief but comprehensive analysis of the subject before the Discussion Club of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Nashua, Mr. Thurber told of the deliberations of the joint investigation committees of the New England states, and presented a summary of their findings and recommendations.

The New York Central Lines he said, are the logical combination with which to include the Boston & Maine, as such consolidation becomes necessary, in the opinion of the New Hampshire commission. He pointed out that by combining the two roads, the short-haul expenses of the Boston & Maine could be absorbed by the long-haul lower expense ratio of the New York Central to great advantage to the New England line, and hence directly to manufacturers and shippers.

the battles of Blenheim and Fontenoy she was a squadron leader of the Scots Guards. The Second dragoon guards have many curious traditions of "Mother Ross." When after twelve years' military service, she ultimately found her husband, he was busy flirting with a waitress in a Dutch inn, and she passed by, saying nothing. In her capacity as a soldier she was a flirt herself, making love to every girl she met, a gallant, a duelist, and notably brave. At last, after a severe wound, her sex was discovered and she forgave her husband. She died in Chelsea hospital at the age of one hundred eight and her monument may be seen in the graveyard.

Hannah Snell left her home because her husband had bolted with another woman, and she wanted to find and kill him. In course of her search, she enlisted, served as a soldier against the Scots' rebellion of 1745, and once received a punishment of five hundred lashes. A series of wonderful adventures led her into service as a marine on board the British warship Swallow. After a narrow escape from founders, this vessel joined Admiral Boswell's fleet in the East Indies. She showed such extreme gallantry in the attack on Mauritius and in the siege of Arcanopong, that she was chosen for special work in a forlorn hope.

In this Seventeenth century an escaped nun did well as a seafaring man under the Spanish colors, ruffed as a gallant in Chili, and led a gang of brigands in the Andes. On her return to Spain as a lady, she was very much patted at the court of Madrid. The last of many female bandits was Miss Pearl Hart, who, in 1890, robbed a stagecoach in Arizona.

But of women who, without disguise, have excelled in adventurous trades, I have known in Western Canada two who are gold miners and two who are cowboys. Mrs. Langton, of California, drove a stagecoach for years. Miss Calamity Jane was noted Montana bull-whacker. Miss Minnie Hill and Miss Collie French are licensed American pilots. Miss Evelyn Smith, of Nova Scotia, was a jailer. Lady Clifford holds Board of Trade certificates as an officer in the English mercantile marine. A distinguished French explorer, Madame Dieulafoy, is an officer of the Legion of Honor, entitled to a military salute from all sentries, and has the singular right by law of wearing the dress of a man.

Several English ladies have been explorers. Miss Bird explored Japan, conquered Long's Peak, and was once captured by Mountain Jim, the Colorado robber. Lady Florence Dixie explored Patagonia, Miss Gordon-Cumming explored a hundred of the South Sea Isles, put an end to a civil war in Samoa and was one of the first travelers on the Pamirs. Mrs. Muller has traced the sources of the Amazonas. Lady Baker, Mrs. Jane Moir, and Miss Kingsley rank among the great pioneers of Africa. Lady Hester Stanhope, traveling in the Levant, the ship being loaded with treasure, her own property, was cast away on desert island near Rhodes. Escaping thence she traversed the Arab deserts, and by a gathering of forty thousands of Arabs was proclaimed queen of Palmyra. This beautiful and gifted woman reigned through the first decades of the Nineteenth century from her palace on the slopes of Mount Lebanon. Two other British princesses in wild lands were Her Highness Florence, Maharani of Patiala, and the sherifa of Wazan, whose son is revered by the Moslems in North Africa as a sacred personage.

Among women who have been warriors, the greatest, perhaps, were the British Queen Boadicea, and the saintly and heroic Joan of Arc, burned to death. Frances Scangnatti, a noble Italian girl, fought with distinction as an officer in the Austrian army, once led the storming of a redoubt, and after three years in the field against Napoleon, went home, a young lady again, of sweet and mild disposition.

Doctor James Barry, M. D., inspector-general of hospitals in the British army, a duelist, a martinet, and a hopelessly insubordinate officer, died in 1865 at the age of seventy-one, and was found to be a woman.

Apart from hosts of adventurous camp followers there have been disguised women serving at different times in nearly every army. Loretta Velasquez, of Cuba, married to an American army officer, dressed up in her husband's clothes, raised a corps of volunteers, took command, was commissioned in the Confederate army during the Civil war of 1861-5, and fought as Lieutenant Harry Buford. She did extraordinary work as a spy in the northern army. After the war, her husband having fallen in battle, she turned gold miner in California.

Mrs. Christian Davies, born in 1867 in Dublin, was a happy and respectable married woman with a large family, when her life was wrecked by a sudden calamity, for her husband was seized by a press gang and dragged away to serve in the fleet. Mrs. Davies, crazy with grief, got her children adopted by the neighbors, and set off in search of the man she loved. When she returned two years later as a soldier, she found her children happy, the neighbors kind, and herself utterly unknown. She went away contented. She served under the duke of Marlborough throughout his campaigns in Europe, first as an infantry soldier, but later as a dragoon, for at

Total Population of Two

An islet with a population of two is disclosed by the British census report for the Orkney group of islands. It is Holm of Grimblester in the bay of Firth. Other islands in the group run it very close. Hunda Island, ten miles south of Kirkwall, has three, and Copinsay, off the southeast coast, has seven. Three lighthouse stations, Skerry, Auskerry and Hellyar Holm, have three, four and six inhabitants respectively. The population of the main island is 14,083 or more than half that of the whole group. The census revealed the fact that the total population is 24,111, the smallest since the census was established, the next lowest, being 24,445 in 1861, the first census year. It was at its highest in 1861, when the figures were 32,385. Since 1881 it has steadily declined.

more undersilks, and household linen, except for table use, is nearly all cotton—but the old names still apply. Color plays an important part in undermuslins and certain tinted that can be easily renewed when garments are laundered are in as great demand as white. In line with other modes, undermuslins are presented in simple styles, with handwork more highly considered than ever. Prettiness appears to be the first requisite for success—which accounts for the little ribbon and flower fancies that are pinned or tacked on garments that are in themselves pretty.

A lace-trimmed chemise and a matched tailored set are shown in the picture and tell their own brief but charming stories. Either silk or cotton can be used for making them, or one may choose to put handwork on sheer linen or fine voile—both very durable. In the tailored set the edges of the short chemise and pants are finished with a bias binding and the pants show a short split in the outside seam at the knee. Val lace insertion and narrow edging contribute the most staple of all, finishing touches to the chemise, which indulges in a bit of sheer frivolity in the frill of finely plaited net at one side. A bow, with hanging loops, of narrow ribbon adds another pretty touch. It is pinned on with the smallest of safety pins.

Mid-Season Afternoon FrocksPretty Caps and Headbands

FASHION has presented a fascinating throng of afternoon gowns this season. More than in anything else—unless it is a beautiful hat—women take pleasure in a successful gown of this kind. It is a pleasure which must be shared by designers, since they find in these dresses opportunities to use all the means at hand, for telling elaboration and for the expression of original and clever ideas. They have had the short-sleeved and the long-sleeved modes to interpret—it appears that the midseason finds long sleeves leading by a nose.

Chiffon velvet has been a favorite all season. Nothing drapes more effectively and nothing gives colors a better opportunity to reveal their beauties. The gown at the right of the two shown in the illustration shows a fine handling of it. In sapphire or Egyptian blue it is especially effective, but so it is in certain shades of brown. The model is cleverly draped and fastened at the side with handsome clasps. Steel or silver in the clasps look well on blue and ivory, topaz or gold on brown. In either case a dark fur contributes a rich finish—fitch recommended on brown and viantha squirrel or dark natural squirrel or blue.

Chiffon, georgette, thin silks and satins are used, with laces and ribbons, in many ways for making these ery—in black, red and gold. The embroidered bands are edged with fur and a long sash of the satin is posed under the girdle at the right side. This model is best suited to a slender figure—it has a slightly bloated bodice and a full, draped skirt. The other dress is adaptable to either slender or full figures, since its drapery is arranged in lines that are almost unbroken.

"Oh, what a difference in the morning!" between the woman who looks like a wreck of the dream she was the night before and the one who manages to look pretty at the breakfast table. When we consider what breakfast caps and headbands for morning wear will do to help out in a good cause, we feel like giving them a rising vote of thanks. And now along come the new ones, gay and fancy—some that conceal the lack of hairdressing and make up for def-becoming bits of finery. They are things that can be bought everywhere, so that no one need be without these flattering accessories.

Year's Progress in Better StockFigures Show Importance of Breeding and Selection—War on Tuberculosis.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The improvement of all kinds of farm live stock through breeding and selection; the development of better methods of feeding, the study of animal diseases and parasites; the protection of the industry from plagues which menace it from other countries, and the search for new facts concerning food values of animal products—all these directions progress has been made during the last year, according to the annual report made to the secretary of agriculture by the bureau of animal industry. The large figures involved show the great importance of the work being done for the industry based upon the production of meat, milk, wool and wool.

Animals Inspected.

More animals were inspected by the department at various slaughtering establishments during this twelve-month period than during any similar period in the history of the live stock business in this country. The number of animals slaughtered under inspection was more than 73,000,000, which exceeded the previous record by 2,000,000 animals. This inspection protects the consuming public against unwholesome meats and in many cases serves to acquaint producers with the condition of herds on the farm.

The battle against cattle tuberculosis has been going forward rapidly, according to the report. At the close of the fiscal year there were more than 615,000 cattle in 28,520 herds officially accredited as free of the disease, a 76 per cent increase in the number of these herds over the preceding year.

The plan of cleaning out the plague in entire counties at one time is becoming popular. Fifty additional counties were freed during the year, raising the total to 81. In the course of the year the tuberculin test was applied to nearly three and a half million cattle, most of these found diseased being slaughtered under inspection and the owners indemnified with federal, state and county funds. Areas in which practically all the tuberculous animals have been removed are now designated as "modified accredited areas," an arrangement which permits shipments of cattle from these areas without the usual restrictions.

Animal Diseases Watched.

There has been no foot-and-mouth disease in the United States for a number of years, but the danger of its introduction is great because of the presence of the highly contagious malady in Jamaica. The department's quarantine forces have been on the alert and so far have prevented its entrance; precautions have been taken, in case it should pass our borders, to have the defensive organization ready for immediate action. During the year, the report says, the dangerous disease known as surra was found in the blood of five dromedaries, offered for importation and inspected at one of the government's quarantine stations.

Livestock improvement is being stimulated through a movement, called the "Better Stires-Better Stock" campaign, in which farmers and breeders are induced to pledge themselves to use only pure bred male animals on their farms. At the end of the year there were nearly 12,000 live stock owners who had made this pledge. A questionnaire sent out to several hundred farmers brought out the most troublesome problems in the feeding of farm animals. As a result of the department's offer to assist, many special problems in animal nutrition have been sent in for solution or suggestions. A study was made of the meat yields of the different farm animals, the results showing that the types recognized as best by judges at the leasing shows are much superior to poorly bred stock from the meat production standpoint.

The animal industry work has been brought to the attention of the public in various ways, including bulletins, articles in newspapers and farm papers, through exhibits at shows and fairs, and by means of motion pictures.

Legume Crops Developed With Natural Limestone

Use of its natural limestone resources has greatly assisted St. Charles county, Missouri, in developing its legume crops from a very small acreage to over 30,000 acres of over 1,000 acres of alfalfa, and extensive plantings of soy beans and cowpeas in 1923, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. These are especially important crops to St. Charles farmers, dairy being one of their principal industries. No limestone was being used in the county and practically no clover or alfalfa grown when extension work had begun there in 1918. That year the agricultural extension agent secured the co-operation of about forty farmers in using lime on soil as a preparation for growing legumes.

Successful demonstrations of the benefits of lime have increased each year and community limestone crushers for utilizing local limestone have been installed to supply the lime. In three years' time four crushers had been established and this year 11 have been in use. Since 1920 over 3,000 tons of lime have been used in the county annually, and up to September 1 of this year, 3,000 tons have been applied, providing for a considerable increase in the legume acreage.

Successful Year for Boy and Girl GrowersYouthful Arkansas Farmers Make Money on Crop.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Junior Potato Growers' Association of Garland County, Ark., is composed of 90 farm boys and eight farm girls, ranging in age from about fourteen to eighteen years. They are all members of the boys' and girls' potato clubs in which, under the guidance of the county agricultural extension agent, they are learning to practice the best-known methods of growing potatoes and preparing them for market.

These young farmers organized their own growers' association, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, elected officers, appointed committees, including a buying and a marketing committee, and selected one variety of potato which all members agreed to grow.

They finished harvesting their 1923 crop on October 16 rendered a businesslike account of their year's accomplishments to the Hot Springs Lions club, which has given the association support.

The members grew, the report states, 786 bushels of No. 1 grade potatoes and over 300 bushels of No. 2's producing altogether 1,300 bushels. They marketed their crop co-operatively, receiving $1,644 for it. The cost of production was $638; the net profit $986, about 74 cents per bushel. The member making the highest yield harvested 27.5 bushels from one-eighth acre plot. A number of the members, according to the report, have started bank accounts with their earnings and practically all expect to continue the work next year.

The report, signed by the president and secretary, is written on the printed letterheads of the association, which bears the names of the boys and girls who are officers and members of the buying and marketing committees.

Plant Potatoes Before Corn to Get High Yield

Planting potatoes after the corn has been put in a practice followed by many corn belt farmers does not produce the best results, according to a five-year experiment conducted cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Iowa experiment station. The fact that the minimum growing temperature for potatoes is fully 10 degrees lower than for corn would make the reverse of this practice seem advisable, and yields from plantings made on various dates from early April to the middle of June have proved this contention to be sound. The early planting also has the advantage of an early fall market when prices usually are better than a little later when marketing is in full swing.

In this experiment the Rural New Yorker variety was used and the dates of planting were set at ten-day intervals, beginning April 10. The seasonal rise in temperature reaches the 40-degree line in central Iowa usually a little before the middle of April. The best yields were obtained from plantings made shortly after the temperature passed the 40-degree line. Plantings made after the middle of May produced a successive decline in yield, and between the first and last plantings there was a spread of 65 bushels an acre. The average for the five years for the April planting was 124.4 bushels and for the plantings made the first half of June 76.2 bushels per acre.

Hen House Ventilation Is of Much Importance

Ten hens breathe off over a pint of water a day. Are you providing ventilation to get this out of the house, or do your hens take a continuous cold bath day and night without a towel for a rub down? Even you would get the roup under such conditions. Watch out for moisture on the windows and frost on the walls. Put in one square foot of thin cloth curtain to every fifteen square feet of floor. Keep this curtain open whenever weather permits. Draughts and damp air and floors cause more colds than zero weather. Exercise helps to prevent colds. Light feeding in a clean, dry litter eight inches deep induces exercise. O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Destroy Chinch Bugs by Burning Off Vegetation

Considerable damage was done by chinch bugs last year. This pest is carried through the winter in the mature state, hiding in fence rows and other places where they can find protection under grass and weeds through the winter season. They are now all congregating in places of that sort and the way to get rid of them is to burn off the vegetation. This will destroy many of them and those that are not killed in that way will find no protection and sooner or later will succumb to the cold.

Solve Wheat Problem by Feeding All Live Stock

Bread-saving habits formed in wartime and needlessly continued now are limiting the consumption of wheat in this country, to the disadvantage to both producer and consumer, say officials of the Department of Agriculture. They assert that a return to pre-war food habits in the use of wheat by the public and the feeding of low-grade wheat to live stock would greatly help to solve the wheat problem.

Practical Jokes Unsafe.

Practical jokes are not always safe. There is a tale of a naval officer who noticed that his decanter of sherry grew steadily emptier. With a view to prevent the "evaporation," he filled it up with the vilest decoction he could compound. The sherry still decanted; and at last he culled up the steward. His explanation was thoroughly satisfactory. "I give the cook two wineglasses for the soup every evening," he said.

Quick to Learn.
"Latin, hey?" audibly ruminated Uncle Pennywise. "You pick up what you need in the business you go into. The young lawyer soon masters habeas corpus and other phrases. The drug clerk gets his Latin off the shelf bottles. The medical student assimilates it in the lecture room. They tell me there ain't any of that stuff in the regular Latin books. Odd Marriage Customs of Russia and Egypt
A queer marriage custom exists among the Circassians of the Caucasus mountain district of southern Russia. At the time of his daughter's betrothal the father pays only half of her dowry to his son-in-law. The other half is not due until the birth of the first child. Then the woman is given her long veil to signify that her dowry has been paid in full.

It is not until after the wedding ceremony that the Egyptian sees the face of the woman he marries. She is always heavily veiled and seldom appears outside her home. Many women make a profession of matchmaking, and often a man entrusts his choice of a wife to one of these, who conduct matrimonial negotiations for a price.

On the day before her marriage the Egyptian girl goes to her bath, under a canopy drawn by four men. After this, the bride and groom give a dinner to their friends. When the feast is over a quantity of henna paste is spread over the bride's hands, and the guests make her contributions by sticking coins into the paste, until her hands are covered.

Record Catch of Fish.

The Lunenburg (Nova Scotia) fishing fleet landed a record catch of 312,375 quintals of fish during the last season. This is 16,925 quintals in excess of the 1919 record. The estimated value is over $2,000,000. The average catch a vessel was 3,151 quintals. The Marian Belle Wolfe, with 5,800 quintals, was high liner.

London's Unhealthy Areas.
In some of the more crowded parts of London, the "unhealthy areas," there is an average of 53 houses and 415 persons to the acre, according to statistics gathered by a committee of the Ministry of Health. The "standard of density" recommended by this committee is 12 houses and 60 persons to the acre.

A Permanent Ticket.
Jud Tunkins says marriage is a lottery, but the only kind that can keep a man in debt all his life for a ticket.

Why Doctors Warn Against Coffee or Tea for Children

THE reason is simple. Coffee and tea contain drugs which tend to irritate the delicate nervous system of children, and so upset health.

The Federal Bureau of Education includes in its rules to promote health among growing school children, the warning that "children should not drink tea or coffee at all."

Why confine the warning to children?

You are careful to protect the health of your children; why, then, take chances with your own health, when a change from coffee or tea is made so easy by Postum.

Postum is a delicious, pure cereal beverage—ideal for children and satisfying to adults.

Postum for Health"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum [in tins] prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal [in packages] for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

Sold by grocers everywhere!

Resolutions of Respect

On death of Brother Morris M. Cheney, adopted by Waverley Lodge, No. 59, I.O.O.F.

Whereas, an Allwise Ruler has seen fit to remove from our membership and from his family, our brother, Morris M. Cheney; and whereas, he will be greatly missed from his accustomed place of business, the family circle, and among the brothers, therefore

Resolved, that in bowing to Our Ruler's divine will, we recognize our weakness and our need of His guidance, and trust that the affliction put upon the family of our brother may be lightened by the thought that He doeth all things well; and may we as a Lodge learn the lesson that our time here being short we should always serve our brothers to the best of our ability.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Lodge, a copy sent to the family, and that they be published in the Antrim Reporter.

Respectfully submitted

The Church Has Gained the Front Page

(Continued from first page) commercialistic end; and to commercialize religion is to materialize it, and to materialize it is to pervert it until it is no longer religion.

There was some virtue in heated religious controversy in earlier times; it disclosed real conviction and intensified it. In those days, great purposeful souls were on either side of the debates, and in times of such narrow knowledge their superstitions and prejudices were excusable, and the world was made to feel by their earnestness that their faith meant something to them. Moreover, their discussions were not commercialized in a daily paper side by side with the most materialistic or vulgar happenings in society.

Today the press uses these discussions with headlines that cheapen religion and make the man in the street think of a religious debate and a prize fight in the same terms.

Not long ago the man known the country over as "Good Roads Earle," the man who started the modern good roads idea, withdrew from a church in the city of Detroit because he said the pulpit was given over to the discussion of politics and he was tired of it.

Pick up your Saturday papers and you will find large numbers of ministers announced to discuss Fundamentalism versus Modernism, national politics, international, world peace, immigration, capital and labor, the industrial situation, marriage and divorce, prohibition, and almost everything except a simple presentation of religion, interpreting to hungry men and women the great spiritual truth of the Bible which is still to many of us the only thing we go to church for.

While all this is taking place before the general public, there is little in the life of the churches to offset this dissipation of vital religion. Our churches for the most part are indifferently patronized; spiritual life and its attendant warmth and inspiration is slightly perceptible. The activities of the church are overwhelmingly of the mechanical order exercised chiefly in the interest of the upkeep of the institution rather than in the cultivation of religious life.

We are now in the midst of the accustomed week of prayer and all the churches in almost any community united can scarcely command enough people to lend religious atmosphere to these assemblies.

We note that a Boston clergyman has just received answers to a questionnaire sent out to 100 non-church going men and he is reported as saying that the general opinion of those who answered the cards was that the reason why men do not go to church is "depravity, cussedness and laziness." This is an easy answer because it is answering for the other fellow. Few men, if any, will acknowledge that they are either depraved, cussed or lazy.

We can not blame the preacher who has to talk to rows of empty pews on Sunday for becoming despondent; it is a tragedy that men of ability should be obliged to prepare thoughtful messages which they have wrought out with blood and passion, for a sermon is never a sermon otherwise, and then be faced by a straggling and perhaps more or less indifferent hearing.

However, sensationalism, novelty or controversial discussions of striking back and forth in prize fight fashion will not necessarily draw and hold a crowd, and if it does will not affect them favorably from the standpoint of religion, or further the spiritual interests of the community.

A spiritual interpretation and application of the great truths over which there is little dispute, with the voice and consecration of the real prophet with a burning passion, and the living out in practical life of these truths by Christian people will leaven and save society, and this only. In these days of strife and contention in the world in general, the church should concern itself with vital religion rather than lend itself to further controversy and accentuate the confusion of the times.

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my house work. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNIE YOUNG, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S. C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide census of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

Just because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is a good reason why it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Get rid of constipation by internal cleanliness

THERE is no reason why you should suffer from constipation. Headaches, biliousness, sleepless nights, heaviness, are nature's warning that intestinal poisons are flooding your system. If allowed to continue, you may become a victim of serious organic disease.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

ROKUSEK IS CAPTAIN OF ILLINOIS

Frank E. Rokusek of Omaha, Captain of the Illinois Football Team.

Frank Rokusek will make Illinois an excellent captain. His leadership and intelligence and his popularity with students and teammates are strong assets. He knows his own position and a good deal about the others, too."

That is Coach Bob Zuppke's terse way of describing the football captain-elect at the University of Illinois.

Product of Omaha.

The news of Rokusek's election was received on the campus with satisfaction. "Rokey," as he is known to his teammates, is a product of Omaha Technical High school, where he learned football under Jimmy Drumm, an old Dartmouth player. Frank was a three-sport man, earning ten letters in football, basketball and baseball.

During his high school career Rokusek's team won the city football championship each season and was in the running for state honors one year, but was nosed out in a post-season game.

The new leader played on four state championship baseball teams at Technical and on one basketball team that coppered state honors once, and twice landed in second place.

At Illinois in 1922 "Rokey" played his first college football and gave a good account of himself at left end. This season Rokusek was an outstanding member of the "fighting Illini" squad. He played a slashing defensive game and scarcely any yardage was registered against him, although he had to stop some of the best backs in the conference.

The Omaha boy is equally good on offense. He goes down fast under kicks, is a reliable receiver of forward passes, and his hard, unerring blocking was an important factor in Grunge's long runs.

is Junior in College.

The new captain is a junior in the college of commerce. He believes in making an early application of the business principles taught there, for he has established an agency that furnishes bread for most of the organized houses and "eat" shops on the campus. To partly work your way, play football and maintain your scholastic standing requires an exceptional man. Why did Rokusek come to Illinois, since he lives within fifty miles of the University of Nebraska? He tells you: "Ever since I was a kid I had heard of Illinois and 'Zup.' I determined to cast my lot with them. So here I am. And I am mighty glad I did."

Gilmore in Olympics

During the summer W. E. Garrett Gilmore is champion singles souler of the world, having won the title from Walter Hoover some time ago, but during the winter Gilmore maintains two real estate offices in Philadelphia, Pa. Gilmore will in all probability be chosen as the candidate to represent the United States in the next Olympic games.

1923 Fails to Produce Any New Golf Marvels

No really new sensation cropped out in golf in 1923. At least not on the order of Sweetser, Sarazen and Glenn Collett. Of course, the youthful Bobby Jones climbed the championship heights, but Bobby has been knocking at the door for a long time.

Leonard Says He Won't Quit Until He's Licked

Benny Leonard, king of lightweight boxers, on a vaudeville tour of the Middle West, says that he will never retire undefeated. "I'll fight until I'm whipped, as I think all champions should do," said Leonard. He continues his training despite his thespian duties.

Stadium for Missouri

A memorial stadium with an initial capacity of 25,000 persons and an ultimate capacity of about 65,000, the first unit of which is to be ready for the 1924 football season, has been announced by Dr. J. C. Jones, former president of the University of Missouri, and chairman of the University memorial committee.

Sport Notes

Joseph J. Cooper, of Baltimore, was elected captain of the Princeton soccer team.

No less than 16 major league baseball teams seem to have struck their winter stride.

Bill Donovan was more than a great baseball player. He showed us what a smile can do.

Firpo is doing a lot of talking, aware, perhaps, that one word leads to another and $200,000.

Captain McMillan is the only regular lost by University of Illinois football team from the 1924 squad.

Swimming is the leading sport of the Hawaiian Islands, followed by tennis, golf, football, basketball, volleyball and baseball.

Coach Tost of Michigan has apparently captured the early bird prize by asking for 20,000 tickets to next November's football game at Columbus, O.

Joe Cantillon, who is planning to start a school for pitchers, should add a course for umpires who often seem to know less about the game than anybody else in baseball.

When Dave Bancroft takes over the management of the Braves next spring it will be the first time in several years that either of the Boston major league clubs has had a playing manager.

Elect Lovejoy Captain

Winslow M. Lovejoy, for two years center on the Yale eleven, has been elected captain of the varsity for 1924. Lovejoy lives at Montclair, N. J. and is a member of the junior class.

Breaks Decide Games

When two evenly matched teams meet in any line of sport, the breaks of the game invariably decide the issue. This fact is proved out every year in the world series and has held up in the big football games of the present season. A fumbled ball, a bad kick or a poor bit of judgment has decided many a game this fall after the two teams had played each other to a standstill and a tie game seemed certain.

AARON WARD WOULD BE TURNOVER HITTER

Ambition of Yankee Key-stone Sacker to Hit Both Ways.

Aaron Ward, second baseman of the champion Yankees, is ambitious to become a "turnover" batsman. A "turn-over" batsman is one who hits from either side of the plate, shifting his position to suit the style of pitching he is facing.

Ward always has batted as a right-hander. He is now experimenting from the other side of the plate, and he is certain he will be able to improve his hitting many points when he can, with equal efficiency, change his position to suit the pitcher.

Once during the last western trip of the Yankees Ward attempted to make the change, but Manager Huggins believed that the experiment might be too costly in the midst of a pennant race that had not yet been won. But while the Yankees were playing exhibition contests, Ward took advantage of the opportunity, and batted left-handed.

"Of course, I am still crude in my efforts," said Ward when speaking of his attempt to change his batting style. "It may take a long time, but one thing that impresses me in my trials is the fact that I am able to see the ball much quicker and more clearly when I bat from the left side. I don't why this is, but it is true.

"I am not able to swing with the same accuracy, nor put the same force in the blow as I now do batting right-handed, but I feel certain that this will be remedied when I have become more accustomed to the new style. I intend to continue the experiment until I have either mastered it or make a failure of it. But I am certain that I will succeed."

Reds Get "Dud" Smith

Byron "Dud" Smith, law student at St. Ignatius university, and the leading hitter in the San Francisco Midwinter league, has signed a contract with the Cincinnati club of the National league. Smith has a batting record of .600. He bats right and lefthanded and is a great base runner.

Coach Keene Fitzpatrick takes over the management of the Braves next spring it will be the first time in several years that either of the Boston major league clubs has had a playing manager.

Coach Keene Fitzpatrick
Lauds Modern Football

Keene Fitzpatrick, the trainer of Princeton athletes, says that the aerial football game that is being played now has done more to make the sport develop as it has than any other single factor.

"A Yale-Princeton game today in my mind far surpasses the exhibitions in the days when huge tallyhos, drawn up behind the ropes, served as stands in the old Manhattan park at New York, where the Tiger and the Bulldog used to meet," said Fitzpatrick. "He is of the opinion that punting and passing not only have given the players themselves a much better opportunity to make use of individual ability, but that from the view of the spectator, the interest in the game has improved vastly.

In concluding, Fitzpatrick said: "Without a doubt, football is the national sport of today. One of the main reasons why it has grown to be this is because it is so distinctly amateur."

Indians Enjoy Big Bat Spree in 1923 Campaign

Only one other club in the American league went on as many batting sprees as the Cleveland Indians during the 1923 campaign. The Indians won 19 games in which they scored 10 runs or more, but so did the Yankees, but where the Indians were beaten in 17 such battles the Yanks dropped only seven, three to Cleveland, two to Detroit and two to St. Louis.

"Miss America" Declares Tonic Wonderful Health Giving Tonic

Miss Campbell in "Miss America" crown which she has won on two occasions.

Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, twice proclaimed "Miss America," has taken TANLAC and endorses it in a statement recently given to the women of America. In this statement, Miss America declares that Good Health is the basis of all Beauty, and advises women who would be beautiful to "first find good health."

Her complete statement as given is as follows: "I consider it a great privilege to be able to tell the thousands of women everywhere what a tonic TANLAC is. Health is the basis of all beauty. Without good health, one is apt to be rundown, nervous, underweight, high-strung, anemic. Indigestion drives the roses from a woman's cheeks and robs her of that radiant quality of womanhood that is real beauty."

"Rosy cheeks, sparkling eyes, a well-rounded figure, a lovable disposition, go hand in hand with good health. To those searching for beauty, I would say—First of all, Find Good Health." The TANLAC treatment has proven itself a boon to womankind, and I recommend it."

Miss Campbell has written a booklet on Health and Beauty which may be secured by filling out the coupon below.

Bertha's Adventure

By CLARA DELAFIELD

"DEAR Lucy, this is a swell place I got into. Its' mister Riddells and he's got a wife and a governess and a son of twenty. My he's some swell looker too and Im to get a hundred a month and the work ain't hard at all. I know I shall just love this place and I only pity you poor girl that's all slaving in a dirty factory for fifteen per. Can that pride of yours Lucy can it and come into service with me they want a girl next door and they pay eighty a month for her. There's Mrs. Riddell calling me and I must run like blazes. I surely tremble all the time for fear of not giving satisfaction and losing this swell job which I mean to keep till I'm married perhaps to the son whose name its Arthur who knows? There's plenty of girls has married better than that."

"Dear Lucy, well this is my second day hear and they're treating me fine. They said they never had such a smart looking girl before and Im to have two afternoons a week to myself which I shall surely seize the occasion to get acquainted with some of the boys in the town. And Im to have the use of the car as soon as I learn to drive and the chaffers did I tell you about him he's to teach me. And I said I was musicale and Mrs. Riddell says I can have the use of the piano when the famblys out which I shall surely do. But Im beginning to wonder whether theres anything queer about this place the way they seem anxious to keep me. You never know your luck however Lucy my advice to you is to can that pride and come into service. There's Mrs. Riddell calling me so I suppose I shall have to go."

"Dear Lucy, well this is my third day hear and its all right only the sons engaged to be married but I never took to him anyway and Ill be glad when hes out of the house next year. The chaffers teaching me to drive the car and hes a bit fresh but otherwise O.K. But what I cant understand is that there hasn't been no quarrels and Mrs. Riddells so humble and perlite not like a lady at all. I shall have to stir her up a bit I suppose. But Lucy you ought to can that pride and get into service its fine and the pay a boy is certainly worth thinking over. There's Mrs. Riddell been calling me the last five minutes so I suppose I must hear end."

"Dear Lucy, well this is my fourth day hear and I cant make the place out at all theres something queer about it in the first place they always say please to me and then Mrs. Riddell says shell raise me twenty per if Ill stay there must be something queer don't you think so? And that chaffers the freshest thing you ever seen he tried to kiss me last night and I slapped his face for him and he went away and 'never come back and me waiting half an hour for him. Im going to make these folks sit up and beg its scandalous no hot water in the morning because the Riddells uses it all and expecting me to get up and get the breakfast every morning instead of taking turn and turn about and the cars a two-year old muddle and do they expect me to ride in that? I think service is a fine thing so far as the money goes Lucy but I wouldn't advise you to quit the factory until I know how things are going to turn out. There's Mrs. Riddell calling again shes been at it the last half hour some folks dont seem to know what consideration means. your loving Bertha."

"Dear Lucy, you got to thank me you didn't leave the factory like you said and try to get into service for if ever I struck a bad spot I done it hear. What do you suppose? I was just dressed to go out this afternoon did I tell you I met a swell fellow who was taking me out in his car and calling for me and Mrs. Riddell comes up. Whose car is that at the door, she says. Thats my business Mrs. Riddell I answered very cold and perle. This aint your afternoon off she says. May be not says I but Im going to the Friendly Girls and Fellows sociable at the beach. And thats my dress you got on she says. Well I says I suppose if I do but I aint got nothing fit to wear so I borrowed this and your hat. With that she hit me a swipe across the face and told me I could go."

"Well you could have knocked me down with a feather Lucy her striking me after all Ive done for her. However I told her Id be glad to stay and try to come to an understanding but she wouldnt hear of it and Im leaving tomorrow. Fine people they are too and Mrs. Riddell shes a corker I didn't know she was a lady when I come hear. Well thats where luck hits you and I dont think I shall try service any more do they want any more girls in the factory at fifteen per?"

A Matter of Time.

Chancellor Brown of New York university was talking at a luncheon about the French occupation of the Ruhr.

"Well, certainly," he said, "Germany has been taking her time in paying up. She has been taking her time ridiculously. It reminds me of a story."

"A new arrival in jail was having his first constitutional in the jail yard when he heard a hoarse whisper behind him:

"How long ye in for, mate?"

"Twenty year," the new arrival whispered back.

"A letter was thrust into his hand and the voice from behind said hurriedly:

"I'm in for life. Mail that for me when ye git out."

COURT UPHOLDS PATENT SALE

U. S. Suit Against Chemical Foundation Dismissed by Judge Morris.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE FAILS

Conduct of Chemical Foundation

Praised in Use of Former German

Patents for Benefit of American People.

Wilmington, Del.—In a sixty-two page decision which swept away every one of the Government's major contentions as being without basis in fact or law, Federal Judge Hugh M.

Morris dismissed its suit to set aside the sale of seized chemical and dye patents by the Alien Property Custodian to the Chemical Foundation, Inc.

The decision rebuked the Government for including in the bill of complaint a series of conspiracy charges unsupported by evidence at the trial and refuted by the defense as well as by documents filed by the Govern-

In declining to compel the Foundation to restore the disputed patents, numbering some 4,700 and bought for $271,000, from the Government, Judge

Morris held there was no evidence bearing out allegation of conspiracy

by American manufacturers to effect a monopoly through the Foundation.

The court ruled that there was no evidence of fraud or deceit practiced on President Wilson, Mr. Polk, Under

Secretary of State;
