JUDGE H. A. SHUTE

Entertains at Antrim Woman's Club Guest Night

Judge Henry A. Shute, of Exeter, entertained with readings from his works, at the annual guest night of the Antrim Woman's Club, last Friday evening, in the Woodbury Memorial Methodist church. One hundred and seventy-five members and guests were present, and they were delighted with the readings from the Plucky and Beany stories.

The musical program consisted of a piano duet by Mrs. Inez Sawyer and Miss Dorothy Bartlett, piano selections by Miss Bartlett, a vocal solo by Mrs. Robert Jameson, and a vocal duet by Mrs. Jameson and Mr. Newell, accompanied by Mrs. Edith Muzzey.

It was a pleasure to meet Judge Shute, and many had that privilege during the social hour. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served by a committee in charge of Mrs. Helene Hills.

Antrim Grange Notes

Next meeting, Dec. 2, the program is in charge of the past lecturers.

Minnie McIlvin,
Grange Reporter.

Second in the Course

On Wednesday evening next week, December 2, in the Town hall, the second number of the lyceum course: Frank Lane, one of the most versatile entertainers before the public. He performs so many different feats in the course of his program that he has been called the one-man vaudeville show. They say he is a magician, trick pianist, cartoonist, story teller, juggler, character impersonator, singer and novelty instrumentalist. The wonder is, when he has finished, "How does he do it all?"

Xmas Sale and Supper

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 2, the ladies' aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church will hold their annual Christmas sale and supper at their church parlors. The price of the supper is 40 cents and the following menu will be served:

Pot Roast with brown gravy
Mashed potato
Creamed carrots

In Memoriam

By Wallace E. Whynett

Ne'er shall we forget him,
His dimple and his smile,
Who always was a manly boy,
And did the things worth while.

He never shirked nor grumbled,
As most of us often do;
But always strived to do the right,
He was faithful, good and true.

He heard his Saviour calling,
The Saviour's voice was known;
He folded his reverent hands in prayer
And went to serve Him, at His throne.

We shall think of him often,
In our prayers of grace;
As no one he has left behind
Will be able to take his place.

The above lines were written in memory of our friend and classmate, Byron W. Caughey, who died at the beginning of our school year, September, 1925, and are dedicated by the Class of 1927, A. H. S.

A FEW THOUGHTS

Suggested By What Is Happening Around

In a recent address President Coolidge said: "Whether one traces his Americanism back three centuries to the Mayflower, or three years to the steerage, is not half so important as whether his Americanism of today is real and genuine. No matter by what various crafts we came here, we are all now in the same boat."

The publicity committee of the state chamber of commerce which consists of J. Ben Hart of Manchester, George Wood of Portsmouth and Louis Wilkinson of Laconia, has submitted a plan for financing the campaign of raising $50,000 in the state at large, for the purpose of advertising the resources of the state in co-operation with the New Hampshire Publicity Board and the same has been ratified.

Our Lowest Curtsy is Made to the Boston Herald

To have a big city daily take notice of the sayings of a country newspaper is some reward, but when the leading editorial in the Boston Sunday Herald pays its compliments to The Reporter, we must say that we receive very much more than we expected; and it's a nice feeling when one is overpaid. Such compliments are a by-product that are greatly appreciated—and we might also state that some of our townsmen noticed that Antrim was called to the attention of the reading public in this unusual way, thinking it a fine thing, and didn't fail to tell us that The Reporter is one of the town's most worthy institutions. Our thanks for all the good things said of us.

The following is the Herald's editorial about which we have been talking:

Antrim's Acumen

From the issue of the Antrim (N. H.) Reporter, first to reach us after Armistice day we find this illuminating paragraph:

Efforts were made to secure a good speaker for Antrim for Armistice day to give our people something worth while on this day of days. But the kind of a man wanted could not be found, and it was decided rather than to have one not really desirable that it would be better not to have any.

The philosophical spirit which pervades this statement of the case is entitled to the very widest commendation. Here is an example that should spread, not only for public occasions, but for all places where the voice of censure is heard in the land. Let us call it "The Antrim Idea," just as the tariff controversialists used to speak of "The Iowa Idea." Similarly, in western Missouri prohibition was long called "The Kansas Idea." Now let the prohibition of poor speaking be known to all men as "The Antrim Idea," and its spread will find welcome in all the earth.—Boston Herald.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE COLDS

Almost an Epidemic—Father John's Medicine of Great Value

Doctors say that there seems to be a wave of colds in this section at this time. It is worth remembering that Father John's Medicine is of particular value treating colds and coughs and giving strength to ward off the danger of catching cold. The basis of Father John's Medicine has always been cod liver oil combined with other elements which soothe and heal the breathing tract. At the same time nourishing elements quickly take up and make the new flesh and strength. thereby greatly increasing the power of resistance. Father John's Medicine does its work without narcotic drugs or stimulants.

EAST ANTRIM

The school is closed for the holiday season.

Several in this neighborhood saw the meteorite of Sunday, Nov. 15.

Mrs. Emma Brown passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Caughey, at Antrim Center, on Nov. 17th. Although in poor health for some time, the end was very sudden and unexpected. Mrs. Brown had resided at Antrim Branch for about 12 years; her husband died 8 years ago, at their home at the Branch. Mrs. Brown made friends wherever she went, was a woman of sunny disposition and ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in trouble about her. She was never idle, being very able with the needle.

Deceased was 74 years old and survived by three sons and two daughters: Lester of Meriden, Conn., Ernest of Attleboro, Mass., Harold of Antrim, Ethel and Mrs. Caughey of Antrim, besides several grand children and one sister of Boston. She was for many years an active member of the Congregational church of Waltham, Mass. Funeral was held from the Center church on Friday, at 1.30; interment at North Branch cemetery.

No Mail Deliveries to be Made Christmas Day

Postmaster Sam is to give his post office checks and mail carriers a holiday on Christmas day this year. Postmaster General New has decreed that there will be no mail deliveries on Dec. 25. This is an experiment and its success or failure will guide future action.

Consequently it behooves the country at large to mail their gifts even earlier this year so that Christmas mail and packages may all be delivered the day before that there may be no disappointments.

The recent election in Boston shows that the Republicans know who they wanted for Mayor and went right ahead electing him while the Democrats split their votes among several candidates.

XMAS MONEY FOR YOU

Search Your Attic for Fortunes in Old Confidante Envelopes

Among the old treasures of your attic and the forgotten corners of your home are old letters and envelopes. Many of these are the remnants of a bygone era, but they may contain a fortune for you. The old envelopes of the past are now being sold for large sums of money. Some of the most valuable are those of the Civil War era, especially those which contain the names of the soldiers and their regiments. These are now being sold for as much as $100.00 each. If you have any old envelopes, you should search them for these treasures. They may be found in the most unlikely places, such as in the drawers of your desk, in the boxes of your trunk, or in the corners of your attic. If you find any, you should bring them to Mr. Brooks, who is now buying them for large sums of money. He is now in Antrim, N. H., and he is willing to pay for them in cash. ## Keep At It!

One word won't tell you very much,
You've got to keep on talking;
One step won't take you very far,
You've got to keep on walking;

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming.—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I know what the Vegetable Compound did for me because I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.

Relieved Over Night At 53 never has a headache—never troubled with constipation.

"After a serious illness I became very constipated. The doctor's medicine relieved me only for a short time. I also suffered from awful headache three or four times a month. One day I noticed your ads and sent for a box. Beecham's relieved me at once. I found that if I took them on going to bed I would feel fine in the morning. I never have a headache now. I am 53 years old and I do all my own housework. I lay it all to the wonderful help which Beecham's Pills have given me for 27 years."—Mrs. W. C. Staub, Bethlehem, Pa.

Slants on Life

By J. A. WALDRON

A Matrimonial Holiday

IT WAS at Del Monte. The scene was gay, the air balmy, the people—or many of them—those followers of the sun that abandon winter regions for perpetual summer—idlers who glory in their leisure to revel in the legitimate pleasures and the inevitable mischiefs which semi-tropical climes inspire.

He was a newcomer at the hotel. He had not even looked about. Sure of an apartment to his liking, he had lunched himself in summer togs, sent his man back to a transfer point where a piece of his baggage had been missed, and strolled out to look at the sea. That is to say, the sea was first in his mind.

There was a vacant chair and he settled upon it. The chair was at a round table of mahogany. It may be that a smart woman in the chair opposite had something to do with his decision to sit. She was absorbing a pink liquid through a synthetic straw. He lit a cigarette and glanced at the clouds and the sea. Semi-nude figures here and there in the near middle distance did not engage him, for his brief looks afield were followed by longer glances at the partly veiled eye which was still fixed upon him, and he speculated as to the probable period that might elapse before absorption of the pink liquid.

"Isn't it a perfectly lovely day?" She had put down the glass, and he saw her mouth was even prettier in action. He was sure she had addressed the remark—or was it a question?—to him, for in spite of the eccentric sweep of the hat she was now looking at him with both eyes unflinched. And she was smiling.

"You have described it," he replied with an answering smile. "I had no idea things were so attractive here."

"Then you have never been here before? You don't know what you have missed?"

"I realize, I assure you, at this moment that I have missed much." He looked at her in a way that gave the remark personal significance, and she liked it.

"Oh, but there are such sports here! Polo, golf, tennis, sailing, motoring—did you bring a car?—and such natural beauties! A park, and even a wonderful wilderness?"

"I shall explore them. And I hope with pleasing company. I don't bring one of my cars, but cars are to be had everywhere."

"I'm at liberty for a while," she ran on, "and if you care to walk a bit I'd like to show you something of the place."

"I should desire no more charming guide," he said, rising. "But suppose we walk along the shore a bit first. Of course you love the water?"

"Love it? I adore it! But I thought I wouldn't venture in today. Tomorrow, I'm sure, I should like to go in. Of course you're a fine swimmer. I can tell that at a glance."

"Passion!" They strolled toward the beach scattered along the beach. "In my college days I won a championship. But one isn't so keen for the water afterward, you know—I mean for strenuous effort."

"I'd like to have you meet my husband," she said, "but I'll not introduce him today. Tomorrow, perhaps." She turned and swept the scene.

"Away?"

"Oh, no! But we had a little tilt this morning. He's a terrible flirt!"

"Ah! You don't mind that, I fancy? It's a game two can play, eh?"

"Why not? I'd like him to see me with you. He's flirting now, furiously, with a woman he met in New York."

"Where is he?" The stranger looked around among the imitation bathers scattered on the beach. A man always likes to try his skill at picking out a particular person in such circumstances.

"Wait. We'll meet him presently. Upon second thought, I'd like to introduce you at once."

"Very well, if you like." He gave her his card, which she held at the moment without reading.

"There he is." She indicated a muscular man, scantily attired, sitting in the sand very close to a woman as to whose figure there could be but little speculation. "They've been together ever since she arrived." After glancing at his card: Dillworthy? Why her name is Dillworthy, too!"

"By jove!" remarked Mr. Algernon Dillworthy, looking in amazement at the pair. "I understood she was at Newport!"

Children Cry for

MOTHER:—Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Absolutely Harmless—No Opium. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

A Long Wait

"Cuddler (to customer who wants his shoes repaired at once)—Can't do 'em till Wednesday."

"Customer (but you announced 'em repaired yesterday.")

"Cuddler (to customer)—I'm at liberty for a while," she ran on, "and if you care to walk a bit I'd like to show you something of the place."

As Matters Stand

Canvasser—"Who's the head of the household?" Husband (yawning) "I am, my wife is in Europe."

It is doubtful whether swing a nichel here or a dime there is worth the exasperation.

In bed four months ... now a well man

Gives Tanlac full credit.

Over twelve years of stomach misery had made a physical wreck of Jacob Ferdinand. He spent hundreds of dollars seeking relief but every attempt failed until he tried Tanlac. This great tonic brought him immediate relief. "After seven bottles," he says, "I am a well and happy man. I will gladly talk to anyone personally and will answer all letters regarding my experience with Tanlac. For it proved a god-send to me."

*Authentic statement. Address on request.

Tanlac is Nature's great Tonic and builder. Compounded after the famous Tanlac formula, from roots, barks and curative herbs alone, it is absolutely harmless. Millions owe their health and happiness to this great remedy.

Don't let stomach trouble make your life miserable a day longer. Get a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's at once. The first dose will make you feel better. You'll be a new person with the sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks that come from perfect health.

Note: For Constipation, take Tanlac Vegetable Pills, Nature's own harmless laxative.

Rockne Is Thorough in Coaching

Coach Rockne of Notre Dame is one of the most thorough instructors of football in the game today. The photograph shows him illustrating some of the finer points of the game to his players.

Outstanding Grid Star

One of the most likely looking football stars of the West is Benny Friedman of Michigan. He is not only a good ground gainer and forward passer, but is quite clever at kicking. He is a promising candidate for the All-American team.

Drake University's New Stadium for Athletics

Drake university's new $230,000 athletic stadium will not be as large as many similar structures in the United States, but has a number of unusual features. Among them will be a glass-enclosed press stand with a capacity for 64 men. There will be room for 25 telegraph wires and six telephones. The stadium will have 25 entrance ramps and will have a capacity of 18,020 persons. Board seats laid on top of concrete, with numbers burned in to indicate reservations, are so constructed that a spectator can obtain a splendid view of any part of the field from any quarter. The stadium covers eight acres, and includes a quarter-mile track, a 120-yard straightaway of eight lanes and a regulation football field. While the capacity is limited to 18,020, the foundation is so constructed that additional decks can be added without difficulty, and it is the intention of the school's athletic authorities eventually to increase the number to 50,000.

Find Oarsmen Efficient as a Power "Machine"

A novel test recently made at Yale university has shown the trained oarsman to be a more efficient power machine than a steam engine or gasoline motor. The test was conducted to determine the amount of energy used by the trained racing oarsman in propelling his craft. It was shown that approximately one-quarter of the rower's power went directly into the force that moved the boat. The driving power of motors, it is said, generally registers amounts below that figure. It was also disclosed, through the use of special apparatus, the average oarsman, during a contest, will breathe about 3,000 cubic inches of air a minute. Other interesting facts revealed were that in the early part of a race the average oarsman produces almost four horse power and that his consumption of body fuel is equivalent to that in approximately a half-pound of sugar.

Baxter Shows Stuff

The photograph shows Baxter, end man for the Army team, who has shown considerable stuff this season and gives promise of being an outstanding star before the year is over.

Mike Kelly Praises Rockne's Grid Boys

Mike Kelly, coach of the Central high school football team of Washington, D. C., discussing Rockne's system of coaching the Notre Dame players, said a few days ago: "Smartness on the field and individual superiority over opposing players seem to be the characteristics of his players. Speed and deception in his plays, aimed at the weaknesses of the opponents as they are disclosed to a smart quarterback, make any team he coaches a much-feared aggregation. Possessed of keen analysis, a daring imagination and a wonderful liking for the game of football, as well as a sportsman's regard for the ethics of the game, Rockne is a credit to the school at South Bend."

Sporting Squibs

The National Archery association is forty-five years old.

Toronto enjoys eight running-horse-meetings each year.

Newark (N. J.) public schools' athletic stadium just dedicated seats 10,000.

University of Iowa has just added an 18-hole golf course for students' play.

Like Maurice McLaughlin and Mary Browne, Vincent Richards has taken up golf.

Sleeping sickness appears to have overtaken the professional mat game in the East.

Larry Gardner will be back as manager of the Asheville team of the South Atlantic league next spring.

Douglas Wyckoff, captain of Georgia Tech, is probably the outstanding candidate for mythical honors as full-back.

Drury college, at Springfield, Mo., is one of the few schools in the country that has a football team with three brothers on the varsity squad.

An amateur champion in certain lines of sports is said to be able to make the sport bring in from $10,000 to $15,000 a year in strictly legal ways.

Forty of the foremost girl swimmers in the world will meet in St. Augustine, Fla., next February, for the purpose of breaking the present world-swimming records.

The Broadway arena in Brooklyn seating 5,000 spectators, at boxing shows, is next largest in New York to the new Madison Square garden which it is now reported will seat 20,000.

Joe Freshman is president of the western division of the A. A. U. The veteran runner was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1908 and has always been active in St. Louis athletics.

Joe McGinnity, famous "gran man" of the old New York Giants, was recently retired from major league baseball at the age of fifty-four, in 1925 to coach the young pitching talent of the Brooklyn Robins.

Manager Harris appears to have picked up a very promising pennant pitcher in Bullon from Chattanooga. He gave indications in the very few clinics he had to perform in the world series that he will develop.

Baltimore, seven times champion of the International league, rests on the highest pinnacle of minor league baseball after winning five of the eight games played with Louisville, 1925 pennant winner in the American association.

A recent American league soccer football match between the champion Fall River team and New Britain, which the champions won 3 to 1, attracted 11,141 spectators, a record for that city. It shows how the kicking style of football is gaining popularity in New England.

Problem Growing Out of Odd Trick in Golf

George Sargent, national open golf champion of 1908, would like to know the rule on this problem growing out of an occurrence on Sargent's course at Columbus, Ohio. It was a rainy day and the course was soaked. A club member was trying an explosion shot out of a muddy sand-trap. Instead of lighting on the green, the ball stuck to the face of the mallet. Undaunted, the golfer walked over to the pin and shook the ball into the cup, claiming the hole. Why not?

SCOUT SAYS GRANGE IS BEST IN GAME

Illinois Captain Has It All Over Any Other Ball Carrier on the Gridiron.

"Red Grange is without a doubt the best back I've ever seen," said Frank Sommer, a University of Pennsylvania football scout, who saw Grange perform against Michigan at Champaign. "I went to Champaign expecting to see only a slightly better than ordinary back. I thought Grange was a flash in the pan. "Let me tell you, I never was more mistaken in my life. The Illinois captain has it all over any other ball carrier I've ever seen. He has everything an All-American should have, and then some. He's a superstar. I'll wager there'll not be another leather lugger Grange's equal in the next dozen years or so."

"How does he keep from getting injured? Don't his opponents point to stop him? I can't understand how he stays comparatively unharmed," said one of the listeners-in. "Grange has a trick way of falling when tackled that keeps him from being injured badly," replied Pennsylvania's scout.

Cochrane Is Near Buck Ewing Standard in Game

Gordon Cochrane of the Athletics, comes nearer the Buck Ewing standard of catchers than any backstop since the famous Buck's day, unless it be Roger Bresnahan, who helped make the Giants famous. There have been backstops, though not many, who could throw as well and handle pitchers as well, and as a throwing backstop and in handling thrown balls at the plate there never was a better one than Benny Bengough of the Yankees. The Ewing standard, however, includes not only everything that a backstop must do, but batting and running. Ewing was as fast about as Val's S. and a great hitter and a good runner. So is Cochrane, who has great arm like Ewing's, is as good a hitter and a faster man to first base. Ewing was not as fast as either of these, but was as good a thrower, a good a hitter and he wasn't slow. As a base runner he was as smart as Ewing. He was a better all-around player than either of them.

Ski Running Is Ancient With Finns and Swedes

In Sweden ski running is at least 14 centuries old, and probably dates back to prehistoric times, according to Prof. Otto von Friesen, of the University of Upsala. A runestone at Bodö, not far from Uppsala, shows a picture of a ski runner and it is probable that long before they know how to write runes, the Swedes learned the art of skiing from the nomadic Lapps and Finns. Professor Friesen says that in the sixth century southern European writers described hunters in Sweden who were able to glide through the forest at high speed. In the Viking age skis were in frequent use. Winter sports had a special divinity, Ul, who himself was devoted to the use of skis. Roads being rare, the skis furnished means of communication, no matter how severe the winter, and speed on them was highly esteemed.

The Practical Country Road

Marion County, Oregon, for the past few years, has been quietly carrying on a road paving program which has resulted in hard-surface highways into every section of the county. In fact, all the principal country roads will be paved in the not distant future.

A practical plan has been followed. For years gravel or crushed rock has been hauled on the roads and packed down until it is from six inches to a foot deep. Instead of disturbing this well packed base, Marion County has had it covered with four inches of asphaltic concrete which protects it from the weather and absorbs the impact of the traffic. Some of this pavement is now ten years old, has required little or no maintenance expense and is in as good condition as when it was first laid.

This type of road construction gives full value for every dollar spent in hauling rock onto a road and secures a high grade type of pavement at from one-half to one-third the cost often involved in road paving programs which overlook the salvage value of old roadways.

Savings Deposits Show Great Increase in Past Year

Savings deposits in the United States increased more than $2,000,000,000 during the last year. The resources of all the banks in this country now amount to more than $60,000,000,000 and their deposits to over $50,000,000,000. What becomes of this accumulated surplus capital?

In loans and discounts the banks have more than $31,000,000,000. These are the short-time loans to manufacturers, farmers and merchants to provide seasonal working capital. They are secured usually by the products the borrowers produce or sell. Business obviously will never need to draw on the total loanable funds of banks for these current needs. The banks, therefore, must find other ways to employ their funds. In long-term credits, in seasoned stocks, bonds and real estate mortgages, the banks have placed a little in excess of $14,000,000,000. In addition, they have about $1,250,000,000 invested in their own buildings.

The securities in which banks invest their money are not the kind peddled by get-rich-quick promoters. The bank's list of investments generally includes Liberty Bonds and other government issues, municipal securities, public utility and railroad offerings, seasoned industrial bonds, foreign bonds and conservative real estate mortgages. Many of these securities do not yield more than 6 per cent; many yield less. Banks do not look for unusual returns or overnight profits. The men who invest bank funds are in close touch with the investment market, and, although they are just as eager as the small investor to make as much money as possible, they know that money does not earn big profits and at the same time assure the safety of the principal sum.

ARE YOU A DAY DREAMER?

A little day dreaming is good for the imagination. Too much day dreaming is dangerous. It gives the dreamer a false view point of life and makes him queer. There is a lot of pleasure in day dreaming. We can imagine things as we would like them to be. The next step, however, is to get busy and do something to make these dreams come true—to attempt to reach our ideal. The dreamer who is satisfied to spend all his time in the make-believe world of imagination will find himself unable to face the problems of real life.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health offers this motto: "Dream a little; do a lot."

WHEN DO WE EAT?

Energy should be a regular performance, not a continuous one. So says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. People who are too fat get fatter on the in-between-meals. People who are too thin spoil their appetites for regular meals by continuous between-meal nibbling.

Regularity in health habits is an important factor often overlooked. The body works most efficiently with system. There is a regular rhythm to the functioning of the digestive tract. This rhythm allows time to prepare the food for use by the body, and to dispose of waste material. This rhythm is disturbed by helter-skelter eating.

Devices for Feeding Festive Holdup Man

While it may be impossible to prevent a visit from the holdup man there's no need for a merchant to give up a big sum of money simply because he demands it, says the Progressive Grocer.

In the first place, all the money possible should be banked late in the afternoon. If the bank closes at four o'clock everything should be cleaned up and banked by that time. If the bank keeps open until six o'clock or nine o'clock so much the better, for merchants should see that their cash registers or money drawers do not get too full. Along about the time the crowd begins thinning out, and before stragglers start coming in, the bulk of the money, the big bills, most of the fives and all those of larger denominations, are taken from the place where the money is kept and change is made. This money should be hidden away without even the clerks knowing where it is put.

One suggestion made by a detective is that one of the keys of the cash register be wired in such a way that, when it is pushed, the signal of distress is given.

Some Things for Good "Sports" to Remember

Sport is sometimes criticized for the unfairness of its participants or the partisanship of its followers.

It has a mission besides the development of a healthy body, surely it is in the encouragement of fair-mindedness in the players and on the grandstand. Toward this end, the following Golden Rules were printed recently on the back of a program by the army school of physical training in England, and these rules will well bear repetition elsewhere:

- Play the game for the sake of the game.
- Play for your side, and not for yourself.
- Be a good winner and a good loser—modest in victory and generous in defeat.
- Take all decisions without question or argument.
- Be unselfish and always ready to teach and help others.—Toronto Globe.

Washing the Flag

A reader questions the propriety of washing a flag and inquires what to do about it. Taking a navy official as authority, it is perfectly proper to wash the United States flag if this is carefully done so the colors will not run. And this is the way he says it should be done:

Use tepid water and pure soap or soap flakes for washing the flag. Do not wring it, but squeeze it out carefully and rinse in several clear, cold waters. Do not let it lie in the water and hang it up immediately after the last rinsing. Hang it so the stripes run up and down and the blue field hangs over the line.

These precautions will prevent the colors from fading.

Dry in the shade to avoid fading. If the flag requires pressing do this carefully.

Tree That Owns Itself

One of the most famous trees in the country now stands in Athens. It is unique because it is the only tree in the world that owns itself. A few feet of ground surrounding the tree is marked off and the land is deeded to the tree.

There was another well-known tree that stood on the University of Georgia campus until a few years ago when destroyed by lightning. It was called the Toombs oak—for there Robert Toombs, as a student, meeting with the ire of the faculty upon the eve of his graduation, delivered his commencement oration. It is said that so many left the chapel that Toombs had a larger audience listening to his address than the audience on the inside of the chapel.—Carey J. Williams, in the Greensboro (Ga.) Herald-Journal.

Waterfalls and Rivers

The greatest and grandest waterfall in the world is the Victoria falls, Rhodesia, the second being Niagara, partly in Canada and partly in the United States. These, however, are far exceeded in height by mountain cataracts in Europe and America, the highest being the Yosemite, in California. In Europe the highest are in Norway and the Alps. The water power of some of these is of great commercial value. Some authorities claim that the Mississippi is the longest river in the world, but part of the Missouri river has to be taken in to make the claim correct. Whitaker's Almanac gives the names of the six longest rivers as follows: Amazon, 4,000 miles; Nile, 3,800; Yangtze, 3,400; Yenisei, 3,300; Mississippi, 3,100; Missouri, 3,000.

Beehives of the Ocean

Sponges are the beehives of the sea. This curious discovery has been reported to the United States bureau of fisheries by Dr. Charles J. Fish of the scientific staff of the New York Zoological society's steamer Arcturion, just returned from tropical waters. The bees which Doctor Fish found inhabiting the canals of sponges were whole colonies of tiny snapping shrimp. These gregarious shrimps, he discovered, swim freely about, but always return to the individual sponge which is their hive-like home. One sponge-hive with its homing-shrimps was secured and placed in an aquarium aboard the ship, where the colony continued to flourish.—Ott.

The Old Fenton Mansion

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

IN HIS five years of practice as a lawyer Rodney Fenton had had a good many rather difficult interviews to go through with, but now as he turned his steps toward the old Fenton mansion on the outskirts of a quaint little New England town, some four miles from his home, he wished heartily that he was out of this business.

Rodney Fenton's present errand was not exactly a professional one, though it was because he was a lawyer that he had been elected to attend to it. As a member of the Fenton family he had become a rather reluctant member of the Fenton association of his state. They had started a fund for the purchase of the Fenton mansion, two hundred years old, and built on part of the original Fenton land grant that dated back almost three hundred years. Somehow the old mansion had got out of the family, and now old Miss Abby Hawkins and her niece, Estelle, were living there. Of course they had no right—save that of legal ownership—and this the Fenton association rather resented.

So Rodney Fenton called. A demure-looking young woman opened the door. She summoned her aunt, and it was Estelle, not the aunt, who asked Rodney to take a seat in the dreary old drawing-room. Abby Hawkins flatly refused any offer he might make, and would not listen to his attempted persuasion.

"But I understood that you and your niece are joint owners of the house," said Rodney. "I was told that it was left to you in that way by your uncle, its former owner."

"Exactly," said the aunt, "but on condition that it could not be sold unless such sale were mutually agreeable."

"Or in case," interrupted Estelle looking rather embarrassed. But her aunt did not permit her to continue. Meantime Rodney, while trying to concentrate only on the case in question, felt his attention drawn all the time to the rather unusual young woman beside her aunt. So when Rodney had left the old Fenton mansion and gone back home he could not forget Estelle. He made some excuse to go again, though there seemed no chance of coming to an agreement with Abby Hawkins. He found Estelle alone, on one of his calls, and asked her if she would sign an agreement giving them an option on the property in case of her aunt's death.

"In all probability Aunt Abby will survive me," she said. "She has a very durable nature—and she's really not at all old."

On a third visit to the old mansion Aunt Abby was at home, but Estelle, seeing Rodney to the door, managed to have a few minutes with him alone.

"There is of course one loophole," she said blushing. "I rather thought you would have looked up the will of my uncle. It must be filed somewhere where a lawyer could get at it. I just thought I would tell you—and now, Mr. Fenton, I suppose you won't be coming again, so good-by."

Rodney stammered something about hoping that he might come again and went out wondering how it had happened that he had not thought of looking up the will.

For a week Rodney was much preoccupied with important legal work and then one day he took time to go to the county house where the Hawkins will was filed. With experienced eye he skipped over the verbose formalities of the document and came to the important clause. It was the will of Michael Hawkins, Estelle's uncle, that it might not be sold save by consent of both his sister, Abby, and his niece, Estelle, during the lifetime of either—the house was to become the sole property of either Abby or Estelle in case one of the other should marry a member of the Fenton family, surnamed Fenton.

Rodney Fenton sat looking at the document spread open before him. A smile spread over his face and then a look of annoyance. "She would think I was doing it just for the house," he said to himself. "That makes it rather awkward."

Late that afternoon Rodney was knocking on the great front door of the old Fenton mansion and Estelle came quietly to open it for him. "My aunt has positively refused the house to you," she said. "And she has ordered me not to see you. But she is out—and besides the house is as much mine as it is hers. Please come in and we'll drink tea together."

"I've read the will," he said. There was a joyous twinkle in Estelle's eyes as she looked back at him that rather surprised him.

"So I suppose you are going to try to find some member of the Fenton family who will consent to marry me, just to get the old house back into the family again."

"Unless you will marry me?" questioned Rodney.

"Of course you are joking," assured Estelle, but when Rodney persuaded her that he was never more serious in his life, she buried her pretty face in her slender white hands. Rodney went over to her and took away the hands so that he might look into the depths of her eyes.

"Estelle, I love you," he said simply. And so the old Fenton mansion came back into the hands of the Fentons.

Standard Unit Great Help in Calculation

Even the people of remote antiquity had a dislike of fractions apparently the same as have the young and grown-ups of today. All primitive nations found fractions very difficult, and even the Egyptians, who were considered the most proficient, used methods that were long and cumbersome.

Finally standard units came into use which proved of great advantage in the fractional stumbling-block. One of these, the numeral 5, a symbol of Aps, an Egyptian deity, is represented in hieroglyphics by a five-pointed star. This symbol is one of our inheritances from the past and appears today in the stars of our national emblem.

The number 12 was another unit and was chosen as the standard unit because it contains so many small factors. This is the reason why it is still retained as a base in spite of the efforts made to replace it with the metric system, and it also is the origin of our modern "dozen."

The Babylonians likewise made use of the units 5 and 12 in their so-called sexagesimal system, in which 60 was made the base or standard unit. This unit is also of greater value because it can be subdivided to a much greater extent than 12 without employing common fractions. Thus 60 is another element of our ancient heritage and appears today in our division of time into 60 minutes and 60 seconds.

Freak Water Holes Found in Australia

In the deserts of western Australia there are sources of water supply called water holes, usually found in the solid rock. Many of these holes are shaped like a carafe, with a narrow neck and wide cavity below, and some of them hold thousands of gallons of water.

There is a remarkable kind of Australian water hole, known as a "night well," which is dry during the day but filled with water at night. When with the darkness the water begins to flow persons near by can hear the sound of rushing air. Examination has been made of one of these wells in which the water gathered in a long, narrow trench. Near the bottom of it was found a horizontal pit that separated a thin layer of gneiss from the main mass. It is believed that in the daytime the high temperature causes the plate of gneiss to expand in the form of an arch and that the water in the trench retreats into the cavity that is thus formed. When at night the plate of gneiss contracts it forces first air and then water into the trenches.

"Sand Fleas"

The Department of Agriculture says that there is some confusion concerning the term "sand flea." Certain small crustaceans found on sandy beaches, although harmless, are popularly referred to as sand fleas, because of their jumping habit. Likewise, most people upon encountering real fleas in sandy places refer to them as sand fleas. In this connection the name is a misnomer. All true fleas are dependent upon blood for their existence. An animal host is therefore necessary at some stage in the existence of every flea for its survival. Flea eggs, for the most part, are deposited upon the host by females while feeding. The eggs drop off to the ground, where they hatch. If animal refuse is already present or another host comes along, development continues; but in case no food is available the young larvae perish. However, fleas are capable of living several months without food.

Willing to Try

"These scientific management people," says a well-known business man, "with their extraordinary ideas of doubling or trebling a man's labor, remind me of the humble hod carrier's impossible promise."

"Now, a facetious boss said to a new hod carrier: "Look here, didn't I hire you to carry bricks up that ladder by the day?"

"Yes, sir," said the hod carrier. "Well, I have had my eye on you, and you've only done it half a day today. You spend the other half coming down the ladder."

"Whereupon, the hod carrier, with a grin, responded: "Very well, sir, I'll try to do better tomorrow."—Kansas City Star.

Very True

Once the composer Massenet was compelled to listen to a youthful prodigy and give his opinion.

"You have talent," he said to the little pianist, "and with proper diligence and perseverance you ought to be able to—"

"Oh, I would love to compose, too," interrupted the prodigy; "how shall I set about it?"

"You will have to learn a great deal more and become older."

"But you composed when you were thirteen."

"Yes," acknowledged Massenet, "but I didn't ask any one how to do it."
